The Franco-Russian agreement has, in fact, encouraged The Slavs of Austria to fight against the neon influence of: the Germans' rant. She persuaded them to resolutely put themselves-lying across the pan-Germanic current which constitutes, For Austria, this is a constant danger and could become, early on Sooner or later, a source of very serious ph ion. Since At that time, various incidents also occurred to disrupt the relationships. friendly relations between Austria and Germany. The symptom What is most characteristic in this sense lies in the efforts attempted in Vienna to reach an agreement with Russia, with a view to to delimit the sphere of influence of the two Empires in the South Slavic countries, and especially in the peninsula of the Balkans. This new policy direction Austrian initially encountered a lack of sympathy that the Polyglot Empire finds within these Slavic populations, who above all want to live their lives national. It also encounters, in Austria itself, a strong opposition and sparked numerous protests. Thus, whichever way it turns, diplomacy Austrian, pursuing exclusively dynastic goals ticks, is guaranteed never to obtain approval unanimous vote of parliament.

In any case, the rise of the dualist monarchy towards Thessaloniki, that is to say at the gates of the Orthodox East-doxe, adds a new element at the end of the century to the old elements of unrest and discord. This is not no longer just the emancipation of the Slavic world which is in game. The interests of cosmopolitan Judaism are linked deplorably to those of the Austro-Hungarian state; and the The Eastern question should, in this respect, be called the Its real name is the eastward expansion of the Jews. This would place Austria's current aspirations on the the realm of real events. Will this surge reach its But? That's the big question. The foreign policy of Austria faces too many obstacles for it to be it is possible to resolutely take the initiative in an action no matter what. By doing so, she would provoke reprisals.

INDEX 391

of its adversaries both internally and externally. As one might say, said from the floor of Parliament, Austria does not have, among its neighbors, only one state that is not deeply hostile to it (spinnefeind). Therefore, unable to risk a war an adventurous one that would bring the revolution to light if latent, it is necessarily reduced to abstention.

Its internal divisions paralyze its action at outside, as demonstrated by the heated arguments from the Austrian press. Conflicting influences which emerge from the struggles of interest between nationalists, Jews, socialists, and others have reached such a degree of intensity that, in a critical moment, it will be absolute-
It was impossible to group the votes, due to the efforts of the press, towards the salvation of the State, which, in a country otherwise constituted, should be the sole objective.

France has to protect and defend, in Austria-Hungary, much more significant financial interests more significant than is generally believed. The amount of French capital invested in Austrian securities and Hungarian assets should be valued at over 4 billion francs.
more than half of which, fortunately, are in mortgage-various securities and assets. However, the fate of Austrian annuities female dogs is inextricably linked to that of the State, expected that, as everywhere else, they have as their unique guarantees the maintenance of its power.

As a governmental institution, the Austrian state is in full decline. An invaded country can recover;

392: INDEX

We have seen it many times during this century. A country divided by internal struggles, and giving enemies well-disciplined, the spectacle of its discords, plays its existence, while still retaining some chances of salvation. But a country thus divided must perish.
when he is simultaneously driven to despair by the hunger, and that the people, deprived of everything, wonder, in the possibility of a call to arms, for whose benefit or of What cause would anyone want to take his life from? The change which took place in this regard in Austria-Hungary is also as radical as possible. Currently, the country is in a state of unease and excitement; even in the deepest layers of the population, each one is dissatisfied; and people lived only on hopes that were unfulfilled. compatible with Prat's safety. The ailment from which the monarchy, from which it slowly perished, does not include The remedy. It's decomposition.

"INDEX

HAS

Adler Victor: 362
Adultery: 151-152,

Albania: 321, 328-329, 331, 335

Alcoholism: 247-249, 391,
Alençon, Duchess of [date]: 20,

Alexander III: 192, 241, 291-292, 307-308, 317, 338, 349, 364

Germany: 88-90, 95-97, 99

Germans: 2, 8, 9, 12, 14, 16
58, 96, 126, 137, 139, 148, 193,
196, 201, 205, 207, 208, 210,
214, 222, 243, 258-259.

Israelite Alliance: 185, 192, 349

Alsace-Lorraine: 289, 301, 303, 327

America: 74, 164,

Friends of Humanity: 142,

Love of one's neighbor: 163,

Andrassy Jules, Count: 291– 293, 305–306, 318, 335, 336

England: 75, 89, 197, 251
310, 343, 353

Carnivorous animals: 145,

Anti-Semites, anti-Semitism:
72, 117–118, 143, 156–162, 166,
168–171, 173–174, 179, 181–182,
198, 260, 263, 347, 353–358

Vocational training:
113–115, 150,

Aryans: 172, 182,

Austrian aristocracy: 24, 135, 165,

Aristocracy of money: 188, .
Jewish aristocracy: 152,

Arts: 135,

Asia Minor: 162,

School associations: 206, 216,

Atheism: 127–128,

394. INDEX

Auërsperg (President of the Council):
325

Cisleithan Austria: 73–74, 78, 80, 87, 101, 132–134, 137,
142, 166, 199–200, 210–211,
218, 220, 222, 229, 305, 344,
392.

Jewish Austria: 125,

B

Badeni (count): 307.

Balkans: 294, 317–318, 320, 325–326, 329, 331, 333, 334,
394,

Banat: 264.

Bastiat (Frédéric): 98.

Battenberg (Prince of):
318, 326

Bavaria: 219, 302.

Belcredi, Count of: 96, 98,

Belgium: 75, 371.

Belles-lettres: 136,

Berg ©. F. (journalist): 364.

Bismarck, Otto von: 207, 289,

291–292, 301, 313.

Bloch (rabbi, leader) philosemite): 363.

Blum (Léon): IV.

Bohemia: 62–64, 66, 104, 131,
133, 150, 155, 199–200, 203,
205, 217, 219, 222, 224–228,
259, 277, 281–282, 297, 346, 363, 378.

Bontoux (industrial): 384.

Borgia, Caesar: 43,
Bosnia and Herzegovina: 201, 211,

.267, 294, 320, 323–324, 327,

331, 335–338, 340–341.

Bourgeoisie: 65, 68–69, 93,
115, 117, 155, 159, 184, 361.

Stock exchange: 83, 145, 165, 173, 180
370–372, 379

Executioner: 164.
Braun, Baron of: 34,

Bukovina: 63, 152, 155, 199–
200, 211, 220, 244, 253, 392.

Buenos Aires: 155,

Bulgaria: 256, 319–321, 328,
331, 338.

C

Caprivi (Leo): 291.
Carlyle (Thomas): 315.
Cobden (Richard): 312.
Suez Canal: 334.

Carinthia: 155, 199, 203, 219, 278.

Carniola: 199, 219, 229–230, 278.

Cartels: 144,

Economic catastrophe: 73,
Charlemagne: 225,

Chaos of peoples: 341.

Charles I (King of Romania): 266.

INDEX 395

Charles Ferdinand (Archduke): 277.

Charles, Louis (Archduke): 21,
Charlotte (Empress): 20,
Cheliel: 188,

Unemployment: 111

Christians, Christianity: 97, 113, 124, 127, 129–131, 136–
139, 145, 147, 149–153, 156,
158, 172–175, 177–178, 181,
184, 186, 187–190, 210–211,
247, 288, 295, 339.

Christ: 183–184,
A deceitful civilization: 177,
Clergy: 14, 159, 184

Coburg (Ferdinand de, King) of Bulgaria): 319.

Austro-Hungarian Compromise:

258.

Concordia (press box) reserved): 348.

Confederation
17, 19, 227,

Congress of Berlin: 289, 291, 294, 318, 320–322, 336–337.

Constitution: 4, 11–12, 17, 19, 38, 36, 46, 57, 59, 87, 124–
126, 140, 199, 222, 227, 234,
247, 253, 259–260, 270, 274,
288, 300, 303, 321, 324, 343,
345, 387, 392–393.

Germanic:

Convention (the): 10,
Corruption: 158, 169,
Crete: 320.

Crime against humanity: 177.

Croats: 196, 230, 232, 244
266, 277, 278.

Croatia: 200–201, 230–231, 255, 267; 277–278.

Cromwel, Oliver: 10.
Czartoriski (Prince of): 262.

D

Dacia: 266.

Dalmatia: 66, 92, 199–200, 211, 232–234,

Danton: 48,

Daszynski (MP): 34–35,
Decomposition: 25,396.
Dechristianization: 158

Deckert (anti-Semitic leader):
169,

Moral degeneration: 190,
Public debt: 79,
Deutschland über alles: 208.
Human dignity: 157, 249.

Doszy (civil servant)
Austrian): 317.

Human rights: 46, 123, 152.

Drouyn de Lhuys: 251.
Drumont, Edouard: 159–160.

Dunajewski (Minister of Finance): 80.

Paul Dupont (Printer):
HE. –

396 INDEX

E

Catholic Church: 129, 158, 185–186, 210, 279, 344.

Egypt: 162.
Elisabeth (Empress): 20, 21.
Elisabeth (princess): 21.

Emancipation of Christians:
173.

Emancipation of the Jews: 316.

Empire (monarchy)
polyglot: 15, 25, 59, 312
326, 328, 388.

Dying Empire: 315.

Children–childhood: 71, 97, 100, 104–106, 113, 115–116, 128,
136, 141, 143–144, 147, 149–
150, 152–157, 168, 190, 247, 248.

Teaching and training: 70, 96, 247–248, 250, 253.

Savings: 70, 81, 84.
Epirus: 321.

European balance: 1, 220, 321.

Ernest Louis: 185.

Slaves-slavery: 98, 153,
155, 180.

People's esteem: 172.
Dying states: 27-28,
Living states: 27-28.
United States: 89.
United States of Europe: 189.

F

Bankruptcies: 117, 125.

Family: 46, 71, 107, 129, 131
133, 149-150, 179..

Federalism: 12, 199.

Women: 92-93, 103-106, 109-115, 130, 135-136, 143, 148-156, 158, 160-162.

Plutocratic feudalism: 72-73, 95, 98, 124, 142.

Ferdinand (Archduke): 22.
Ferdinand I: 17-18.
Trusts: 60, 63, 65.
Fiume: 201.

Freemasonry: 25, 174, 187.

France: 75–76, 78, 89–90, 92,
95, 98, 101, 115, 120, 191, 197,
250–251, 271, 275, 295, 296
304, 307–315, 322, 343, 350, 368.

French in Austria: 92.

François Joseph: II, 8, 15, 17– 18, 21–23, 26, 33, 240, 292–293,
298–299, 316, 393.

Francis I: 17.

Fraternity: 145.

Frederick II: 302.

G

Galicia: 62, 104, 134, 139, 143
147, 152, 155, 174, 199–200,

INDEX 397

211, 220, 239–242, 245, 247–
248, 250–253, 261, 277–279,
296, 392.

Gautsch (President of the Council):
359,

Gendarmerie: 164.

George of Greece: 320.

Germain Henri (banker):
379.

Germania irredenta: 204, 216,

235.

Dr. Gessmann (leader) anti-Semite): 169.

Ghettos: 172.
Girondins: 10.

Gleisbach (Count, Minister of Justice): 366.

Gniewosz (Galician MP):
247–248.

Count Goluchowski (minister) Foreign Affairs): 88, 306.

Gortschakoff: 252, 338.

United Greater Germany: 170, 204, 220, 228, 312.

Greater Serbia: 268.
Great Jews: 165.
Grebert (Dr.): 156.

Greece: 189, 288, 320–321, 328, 333.

Gregorig (anti-Semitic leader, deputy of Vienna): 151, 169.

Gross-Hoffer: 152.

Grunhut (specialist in Finance): 85.

Civil War: 164.

Race war: 182, 186.

Religious war: 158.

William (Archduke): 20.

William I: 291–293, 297, 299, 304.

William II: 96, 204, 281, 303.

Gutmann: 165.

H

Harems: 153.

Dr. Herold: 225,

Hertzka (Theodor Herzl) 173, Hirsch, Baron of: 166,

Hungarian: 4, 126, 137, 148, 201, 232, 244, 257–261, 264–
268, 283–285, 316, 327, 393.

Holland: 371.

Honor: 156.

Honveds: 280, 281, 283–284.

Immorality: 150.

Imports: 88–89.

Taxes: 75, 80–81, 101, 117
173.

398 INDEX

British India: 89.
Innocence: 152.
Fiscal Inquisition: 80.
International Gold: 188.
International Red: 188.

Psychiatric hospitalizations:
45–47, 140.

Iro (nationalist deputy): 363
Istria: 236, 267.

Italia irredenta: 195, 198, 231, 235–236.

Italy: 89, 224, 275, 277, 288
294, 301, 312, 322, 358.

Italians: 148, 196, 205, 230
231, 234, 277, 278, 392.

J

Young Czechs: 223, 225, Croatian youth: 267.
Johann (Archduke): 20.
Joseph II: 17.

Joseph (Archduke): 21.
Joshua: 187.

Journalism: 136, 186.

Judaism: 1, 25, 27, 140, 152,
170, 182–183, 186, 206, 331–
332, 353, 394.

Judeophilia: 182.

Jews: 68, 70, 94, 117–120, 123,
125–127, 131–133, 137–143,
146–158, 162–166, 168–171, 175,

180, 182–183, 193, 261–263,
274, 316, 339, 390.

Jurascheck (statistician): 132.

Justice: 18, 31–33, 37–41, 98,
146, 164, 177–178, 212.

K

Kalnoky (count of): 306.

Kaunic (MP): 100, 106.

Khevenhüler, Count of: 318.

Kœniggratz: 284.

Kozciusko: 240.

Kozmian (journalist): 250– 51.

Crash: 145.

Kronawetter (Dr.): 68.

Kulturkampf: 211.

L

Landsturm: 269–270.

Landwehr: 269–270, 272, 283.

La Rochefoucauld: 317.

Laurans Albert: 92,

Leopold II: 17.

Freedom of trade: 156.

Lichtenstein, Alois de, Prince:
169, 214.

Balkan League: 330.
Lombardy: 231.

INDEX 399

Lombroso: 178–179.

Dr. Charles Lueger, Leader antisemitic, Mayor of Vienna:
159–161, 169.

Eupanars: 155.

M

Macedonia: 326, 328.
Machiavelli: 43.
Magenta: 278.
Magistracy: 37–41.

Magyarization: 255–257, 264–
265.

Masters of Europe: 123, 183, 190.

Mallet Charles (banker):
379.

Manlicher: 271.

Marriage: 151.
Marie-Thérèse: 17.

Karl Marx: 14, 94.
Materialism: 127.

Mathilde, Archduchess: 20.

Maximilian, emperor: 20.
Mayerling: 20.

Medicine, doctors: 136, 139– 140

Messiah: 187,
Metternich: 27,
Michel of Serbia: 330.

Milan (Obrenovitch): 318,

326.

Semitic Minotaur: 148,
Mirabeau: 160, 346.
Moldova: 266.

Mommsen (Theodor): 330.

Montenegro: 268, 320–321,
326, 328, 331.

Montesquieu: 2,

Moravia: 44, 61–66, 104, 133,
199–200, 203, 216, 219, 224,
306, 346.

Mosaism: 132, 158, 183, 188.
Moser (banker): 382.
Middle Ages: 185, 253

N

Napoleon II: 19, 251.

Nathalie (Queen of Serbia):
318.

Nationalism: 72, 170–171,
191, 196, 198–199, 202–203,
206–208, 215, 222, 229–230,
260.

Navarre: 19.

Nelidow (ambassador): 311.

Nepotism: 140.

Nicholas II: 192, 241, 308, 317.

Nihilism: 127.

Feudal nobility: 59.

400 INDEX

0

Othon (Archduke): 22.

Orléans (family of): 312.

Obrenovitch (the): 318, 328.

P

Bread (wheat): 143–144, 151, 164.

Pascal (Blaise): 309.

Palacki (politician)

Czech): 222, 344.

Pan-Germanism: 14, 22, 170–
171, 198, 202, 206–207, 209–
211, 214–220, 225–226, 230,
289, 303, 306, 323.

Pan-Slavism: 226–227.

Catholic Party: 206, 257.

Socialist-Christian Party: 159, 163, 165, 170, 206.

Homeland, patriotism: 126, 128,
138, 140, 147, 159, 235, 262,
272.

Pattai, anti-Semitic leader: 169.

Peasant, peasantry: 134, 138,
142-144, 147, 152, 162, 164,
179, 212, 247, 249, 261, 340, 349.

Jewish peril: III, 162, 246.
Semitic plague: 124.

Pfaf (Finance Specialist):
185.

Plener (Minister of Finance):
180.

Police, police officers: 135, 137, 140, 153-155.

Polish: 58, 164, 201, 233
239, 240-248, 251-253, 277, 306, 344, 358, 392.

Poland: 130, 133, 153, 165
249-250, 252-253, 346, 392.

Poncins, Léon de: III, IV.

Anti-Jewish press: 353-358.

Jewish Press: 198, 346–352.

Lemberg Trial: 153–154.

Prochazka (statistician): 63.

Program

173.

Proletariat: 69.

Prostitution: 35, 70, 115, 135,
149, 152–154,

Protestantism: 14, 137, 210– 211, 217,

Protocols (of the Elders of Sion): II.

Prussia: 205, 219, 229, 302
304, 327.

Dr. Psenner, anti-Semitic leader:
169.

Purity: 152.

antisemitic:

Q

Querétaro: 20.

Jewish Question: 128, 160, 173, 192–193.

Social question: 183.

INDEX; 401

Balkan Question: 330.

Eastern Question: 330, 394–395.

R

Radetzki Joseph (Count von): 270, 277.

Rabbi, rabbinism: 127, 151, 168, 183, 191.

Race: 124, 126–128, 133–134, 136–137, 144, 155–156, 158, 160, 170, 172, 177–178, 182, 185, 187, 190, 207–208, 236, 274.

Census: 147.

Monetary reform: 82.

Regnier (Archduke): 21.

Reitzes: 165.

Retz (Cardinal of): 47.

Reuss (Prince of): 292.

Nationalist Revolution: 195, 199.

Richelieu, Cardinal of: 313.

Rieger (man)
Czech): 222, 344.

Rodolphe (Archduke): 20–21.
Rohling Auguste: 167–168.
Rome: 189–190.

Rothschild (Baron de): 133, 165, 180, 375.

Romanians: 45, 126, 196, 201
244, 255–257, 264–266, 392.

policy

Romania: 74, 89, 130, 196

264–266, 322, 324, 326, 332, 392.

Kingdom of Saint Stephen
(Hungary): 73–74, 87, 130,
133–134, 142–143, 155, 165,
220, 252, 255, 258–265, 283,
294, 337, 379, 381.

Czech Kingdom: 259.

Russia (Russian Empire): 25, 74,
89, 130, 192, 226–228, 230, 240–
241, 246, 250–251, 279, 285,
291–298, 300–301, 308–311, 316,
318–322, 325, 328, 337, 339,
349, 392.

Ruthenians: 58, 196, 201, 223, 239, 244–247, 306, 344, 392.

S

Sacken (Baron of): 296.

Human sacrifice: 167.

Sadowa: 2, 17, 19, 258, 269
279, 289, 304.

Holy See: 185.

Salary: 100–111, 116, 145, 147
150.

Thessaloniki: 92, 320, 323, 332
334–336, 383, 394.

Salzburg: 199, 217, 219,
San Stefano: 315, 320.
Sarajevo: 340.

Saxony: 205, 219.

Schafenstein Isaac: 154.

402 INDEX

Scharf (philosemite leader):
363.

Schei (Finance specialist):
85.

Scheicher (anti-Semitic leader):
169.

Schiel (journalist): 364.

Schlesinger (anti-Semitic leader):
169,

Schmerling: 27,

Schneider (MP, leader)
anti-Semite): 169,

Schœnerer (leader of the 'Party' German nationalist): 37, 170, 204,

Schwarzenberg Karl: 276, 286.
Safety: 98, 135, 140.

Sedan: 289.

Semites: 126, 128, 172, 183.

Serbs: 264–265, 268, 320–321
329,

Serbia: 89, 318, 321, 326, 328.
Shakespeare: 100.
Siberia: 349.

Silesia: 61, 64, 66, 104, 133,
151, 199, 200, 203, 217, 219,
279, 297.

Slavs: 2, 4, 9, 76, 126, 137,
148, 198, 203, 205, 207, 210,
213–214, 221–223, 257, 259,
261, 268, 278, 284–285, 307,
320, 326, 391.

Slovaks: 201, 264, 265.

Slovenians: 195–196, 201, 219
229–230, 232, 267, 306.

Slovenia: 200–201, 230, 264, 267, 278–279.

Sobyeski Jean: 240.

Socialism: 93–100, 117–120,
150, 159, 167, 174, 183, 189,
263, 356, 368, 389, 390.

Stein–Hardenberg: 302.

Steinbach (Minister of Finances): 80, 96.

Stephanie (Archduchess): 21.
Steyskal (police prefect): 54.

Styria: 62, 155, 199–200, 203,
213, 219, 229.

Suicide: 70.
Universal suffrage: 8–9.
Switzerland: 89, 371.

T

Taafe (Count, President of the Council): 6–7, 93, 157, 307, 325, 347, 353,

Talmud: 127, 151, 154, 156, 160, 167, 183, 187.

Taussig (banker): 379, 382.

Czechs: 8, 12, 58, 139, 195–
196, 201, 208, 219, 221–228,
233, 242–243, 267, 277–278,
282, 285, 306, 344, 346, 358.

Teifen (writer, sociologist):
101, 200.

INDEX 403

Teutons: 75, 195, 203, 207, 221.

Thessaly: 321.

Thun (Count, President of the Advice): 234.

Tiberius (emperor): 29.
Girl trafficking: 35, 153–154.
Trajan (emperor): 266.
Transylvania: 126, 200.
Trentino: 233.

Tricste: 92, 137, 199–200, 226, 231, 235–236, 312, 375.

Triple Alliance (Triplice): 211, 295, 299, 306, 311, 314, 326.

Tunis: 294, 313.

Türkiye (Ottoman Empire):
89, 153, 166, 195, 220, 233,
321, 324–326, 336, 338.

Tyrol: 199–200, 219, 232, 234.

U

University (higher education institutions):
135–136, 138, 173, 210, 216,

233, 266.

Usury, usurers: 129, 135, 139
143, 165, 182,

V

Vampire (vampirism): 154, Golden Calf: 162,
Veneto: 231, 233,

Verkanf Dr. (sociologist):
105,

Vergani Ernest (MP, leader anti-Semite): 169, 355.

Victor Emmanuel: 19.
Villafranca: 19, 279.

Villagos: 252, 293.

Vogules: 256.

Vambéry (ethnologist): 256.

W

Wenceslas: 227.
Walewski (minister): 251.

Wolf (nationalist MP):
282, 363.

Z

Zang (journalist): 361.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

CHAPTERS

I. The Destinies of an Empire: General Overview; The Dynasty; The Agony.

II. Administration: Civil Service; Things and others; Justice; The State Police; The Bastilles; The journalists.

III The economic and social state: Large property; The political influence of large landowners; Debts land; the welfare state; agriculture and industry; the Public finances; The monetary system; Trade outside.

IV. Socialism: Socialist Unrest; The State socialism; Workers' wages; The work of women; Public officials and the little The bourgeoisie; Socialism and the Jews.

V. Jewish Austria: General Overview; The Conquest of Austria by the Jews; Exploiters and exploited; The Seductions; The anti-Semitic movement; The pleas For the Jews; Will the Jews be the masters of Europe?

VI The Nationalist Movement: Propaganda Pan-Germanist; Slavs and Teutons (the Czechs); the Slovenes; L'Italia irredenta.

406

VII The Poles and the Ruthenians: Exclusivism Poles in the Empire; The Ruthenians; Education public; Reminiscences; Overview.

VIII Hungary: General Overview; The Union of the Hungary with Austria; Jewish Hungary; The struggles nationals; The Romanians; The Croatians.

IX. The Austro-Hungarian army in case of war:
General overview; Military reorganization after Sadowa;
The maneuvers; Jews in the army; The Austro-
Can Hungary escape the influences of the struggles?
Nationalists?

Austria on the European Chessboard: Austria and the nationalities; Austria and Germany;
Germany; The influence of domestic policy Austria on its foreign policy; France and the Russia; Italy; Austria and France; Russia and Austria; The Christian East.

XI The Push to the East: General Overview; The unrest in the Balkan states and countries; Jews in Thessaloniki; Bosnia and Herzegovina.

XII The Austrian press: A retrospective look;
The Jewish press; The anti-Jewish press; The current attitude of The Viennese press; The administrative system.

XIII. French capital in Austria-Hungary:
The importance of investments; The Vienna Stock Exchange; The annuities and various securities. 5 to

XIV Summary and conclusions.

L, VIAL

THE SECTARIAN JEW

or the

TALMUDIC TOLERANCE

THE MYSTERIES OF KAHAL – AUTHENTIC DOCUMENTS –

THE SECTARIAN JEW

or the

Talmudic tolerance

THE MYSTERIES OF KAHAL — AUTHENTIC DOCUMENTS —

TREASON AND CORRUPTION,

PRINCIPLE AND MEANS OF GOVERNMENT.

"We

Jews, with our mercantile spirit,

we know that each written word

in our favor brings us back usurious interest.

<“Also do not neglect-Let's not get any sacrifice spread, to en-encourage the author and reward
the publisher.

“Yes, on the contrary it appears a a book that is ours hostile,
Let's not buy it and
The edition will be released soon.
not to pass from the maculature at pestle...

we do not

“...The is nothing anymore
we only have to organize him, the conspiracy silence.

against

(THE JEW SAULUS, Wücherpille, Mainz newspaper, January 1895.)

FOR SALE

AT MR. FLEURY'S
16, RUE RAVIGNAN, 16
PARIS

THE SECTARIAN JEW

or the

Talmudic tolerance

THIS BOOK IS IN THE ADVERTISING FREE

This work took us a lot of time in research and for its digital relaunch.

Its author deserves our esteem and respect in the work of layout of this digital edition. We have striving not to distort the typographic work, as Some book buyers know how to do it.

We will not hesitate to put all the books online.
any publisher who uses our work, as well as our other previous uses, for commercial purposes. We don't we do not work so that they can profit from this work the use of the most disadvantaged. Contact us before acting in this way...

That has been said and will be said, because it is enough...

Jean LAGRANGE (1831-1908)

The Sower

Those who find without seeking are those who have long searched without finding.

A useless servant, among others

March 2011

Scan

LIBRARY JUDAICA FRANKFURT

ORC, layout

LANCULUS

For the Excommunicated Digital Bookstore of Curious Readers of the Commons

TABLE OF CONTENTS

DEDICATION

PREFACE

The Prophecy of the Jew Mires

Enisemihsmenestpisaneoenerelgielse: se nemannranement manne

Semitism is a religious war.

Lésémibsaiesttne crier dé race manie mbamnieneaure

Intismismdisappoints hisuereditié se bentabennannentene state

We must support antisemitism..... Mu eu ue eee eee eee

LÉ PSS year of birth of birth on men

PART ONE

THE SECTARIAN JEW IN HIS DOCTRINE

CHAPTER ONE

THE JEWS AND THE TALMUD

The Talmud has never been disavowed.

The Al Es RTS Os nn nana

THE laut sense Re re asmauen drama

CHAPTER II

THE TALMUD AND JESUS CHRIST

Lee Nobe-SeBRSE need benne

The name "Jesus >

The contempt of Our Lord has Mae a de Lee RD net a ds ete

Various insults: 4 near Rae BR di RAA nl de entre has es une tr

IN

O \ O \ O \ O

THE SECTARIAN JEW

CHAPTER III

THE TALMUD AND THE VIRGIN MARY

CHAPTER IV

THE TALMUD AND CHRISTIAN RELIGION

The Gospel is "a heresy": _.

The Christian religion is "the religion of madness"

CHAPTER V

THE TALMUD AND THE SACRAMENTS

The Talmud and Baptism

The Talmud and the Eucharist

The Talmud and the ceremonies of the AA Church ne ie.

CHAPTER VI

THE TALMUD AND THE CHRISTIANS

"The Nazarenes $ asus os néos ass eme opte os din oi deonsierse dnanie ous Joue déinégis ones dede ip itncn"

17

"Christians are idolaters."

CHAPTER VII

THE DUTY OF JEWS TOWARDS CHRISTIANS

They must be raped on Sunday.

I AE les maddiré bol iois by OUT knots swimming:

TAUÉIÉSNOIRR Se A a tu de ee

They must be treated like brutes us uen uen uni un.

It is a duty of THE Ur 22 2nd nu naaduen em an de nain dwarf int

It's anal insacmice GOD. eee dance an one era

CHAPTER VIII

THE REWARD OF THE TALMUDIIST JEWS

They will live in the "4th Palace of Paradise"

And the 5th commandment of the Decalogue?

CHAPTER IX

NON-JUDIS ARE PROHIBITED FROM READING THE TALMUD UNDER PAIN OF DEATH

Jewish excommunication a do den ililes eo sn ati cie connected ee DD os de cent ones Len en dow ne aie ie Li nn

+ 13

13

#3 IS

. IS

1S

17

19 20

20

20

20 20

23

23

25

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PART TWO

THE SECTARIAN JEW IN HIS CONDUCT

CHAPTER ONE

THE JEWS IN APOSTOLIC TIMES

ESA LUS A TTC EE AA

The Het ADO Len aan tes

The Jews and Saint Stephen

Les ie etetine PAU En nur dede nbnuunRRhaauinin

Les puseties premieres 2 nee annteeen mana

CHAPTER II

THE JEWS DURING TIMES OF PERSECUTION

Some Neon (08) eee nunntuue en Ouch

Les uit sous Donmiten (I) es nm eee teens

The uifsous Antonin the pious (101) in aunt

The uit under Nate Year (OT SO) If em yeare year

Les Miso Cia OM Se ne han emamamatie

Lessons Diiéten(288 08) 2 nas ten caen.

CHAPTER III

THE JEWS IN THE MIDDLE AGES (475-1453)

Ritual murders: sant ss ananas da nafenhennete da nant et uesateats

Lesprafinatons Dilidiques sans een entend

CHAPTER IV

THE JEWS IN MODERN HISTORY

The jbrdoeteur déMnéredile sen aan es manon

Father Voltaire and freethinking. Tennis.

CHAPTER V

THE JEWS AND THE REVOLUTION

The Revolution is Jewish in the Declaration of the Rights of Man and of the Citizen

The Revolution is Jewish in the "Decree on the Naturalization of Jews"...

"The right of citizenship, refused to God, granted to AuE Rs, a hundred new ones"

WITH RSS sn pregnant

33

33

34

34

36

37

37

38

38

38

38

42

43

47

47

. IF

s2

S3

53

THE SECTARIAN JEW

CHAPTER VI

ALL REVOLUTIONS ARE JEWISH

The Revolution of 1848 was Jewish

"Modern ideas are the future of Judaism."

The internationalist revolution will be Jewish

Revolutions are the revenge of the Talmud on the fals a md

CHAPTER VII

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

Governmentally secret of its, < the Kahals 5 és ne mnneebnns

The Code of Kahal . .

The power of the Kahal

Letter of onadebble sense remains nsmbaenmdo.

Derjawine is cursed in all the synagogues of the world.

One million rubles spent to have him expelled from the Commission

The head of Dé MIBe IS A DRDE. dd a pets dla Lada de un né eur 6 es à

62

Meanwhile, muddying the Jewish question

The whole world set in motion mu un din eve ee ce ee nee ee vue ee me eee

Last Maneuvers. eu neue ve ve ee ue vue ve nee ue ven ee une ee veu ne ane vu ave où eue ee ne ue vue ee ane ee ee ee vue ee à

It is forbidden to denounce Kahal to the Christian authorities naked.

It is forbidden to insult a member of the Kahal

The Kahal's Judiciary. A

It is forbidden to denounce the Jewish person to the Christian authorities.

Against the recalcitrant 22 admin yeah tomorrow

ILE PerséCUtEUR SCORE LR ane en et ne ner tonne one

... 67

The Kahal secret police

Kahal taxes

The tax on commercial transactions, etc. ...had a problem.

The kosher meat tax

The universal property right of Kahal

Led dé selOn eadeaee

The right to exploit the property of a non-Jew. or of "gold"

Sale of the right to operate a hospital belonging to Catholic monks

Sale of the operating rights for the stores of the Christian Baïkoff

On the suppression of the right to exploit the property of a Christian

To support Jewish tavern owners against Christian suppliers

To ruin Christian suppliers, um. uuuuuuuuuuuuuu.

“+ 70

ss VA

TT

To corrupt a Christian municipality

To bribe the Christian secretary of a prefect (or a men.

To corrupt a Christian court

Pour corrompre les agents chrétiens de hpolies suisses

To understand Christian civil servants is. hs nisam antennas

78

To mitigate the effects of a revision that was disadvantageous to the Jews

To escape a potentially unfavorable statistic...

— Vi —

+ 59

5.99

56

56

59

... 61

61

61

62

62

62

62

63

2-03

... 64

65

65

66

69

... 70

7

V2

72

73

74

74

76

76

77

17

TABLE OF CONTENTS

To bribe an emperor and avert a threatening imperial decree;

First tax

To bribe an Emperor;

Second tax I;

Against Jews who resisted these extraordinary tax levies;

Third order, an im

To crown the success of the corruption of L r Émbaeut, ;

Fourth order

The Kahal in France mu um un.

Central Consistory of the Israelites of France

WORDS OF HATE FROM THE JEWS

Crime is common among Christians, extraordinary among Jews...

"The little buns they call their good God via SMS"

"The filth they put in there >

<Clerical cockroaches, church clowns>

The Jewish doctor Lombroso and the Gospel D

Jewish doctors and baptism...

How the Jew Bernheim judged Bernadette and Joan of Arc

Bernheim and the miracles of Lourdes

LedoceurpFtemlelhospieedesmennmbles usure smumanuutass

<You are a cleric>

< The Jesuits on strike >

"<Didicimemiuentie Rome enemies

<The persecution against Dreyfus came from the Church>

And all those who don't believe it are delusional, worn-out swamps

<Mr. Brunetière, the Pope's missionary>

<The Jew Dreyfus and the Catholic Bazaine>

"Anti-Semites are misguided minds. D Lo riens nec Loiane ture es een due De Gus dass des de drone ut es"

D

“Jesuits and anti-Semites$ sine nue de iienenn lancer at dns domatoe euaiane

He

THE ACTS OF HATE BY THE JEWS

The Judeo-Masonic-Protestant triplicate

Essreddisand AD Ses en nm

The confessions of Chief Rabbi Isidor

és endies Prés CuyOl us hante Renan

The confessions of the "Israelite Universe" >

LestrétedéRTAnemnes Ne. ER Ne

The Grand Orient's Confessions

— VII —

78

579

80

81

..... 81

84

85

86

86

87

87

88

88

89

90

91

92

92

95

THE

93

94

95

97

97

98

99

99

101

101

101

102

THE SECTARIAN JEW

The confession of f+. Brisson, chairman of the council.

Jews, Protestants, and Freemasons form the backbone of the public party honored “<svenlent tous enorme ue

"We must grant it to them > ue ue ue ue nue ve ae nee ee ce ee ou ne eue ou

The 1st arrondissement headquarters RDS ins dns ed

ES uen sine TOR, An dan de Au demandes

The Jew Crémieux, Generalissimo

The Universal Israelite Alliance one one one.

The Jew Adriano LEMMI aa

Rothschild residence.

The Grand Orient of France of the Jewish ee LeMMI mue eee to the ue ve

The f + Brisson, president of the Chamber, obeys the Gr +. Or «.

Universal Freemasonry at the command of the Jewish generalissimo...

The two Jewish lodges of London

Eos te de Bone ee coated Nit

The praises of Germany, born in the world

"The atiscourementi mondes Links"

The Ja assault on freedoms mftholiqués sement hsdhiiet

Jewish Eetheon, Eduprétren ik, sensible, unes Emma in Léjuetie der atholic sum endentademesia

The Jew Reinach and "existing laws"

Less tale of lereposdudimanthe suisse nusemamasuseieneniaét

Jews and the School Law

The Jew Camille Sée and the girls' high schools

Their Naques canvas Wedding, your

The set déSopulihon ss meme naenniaedi ie

We need to create more refined needs for ourselves.

+ lentjourenplenelhenése san Me ren

Nutella Henri

<I] must occupy sumptuous residences >

This doctrine is practiced ad to dede

Four and a half million childless households or those with DNAUE eo

The Prncequdemermndelhaialé ss ann rs

France ranks fifth in population nd MULS Shine sn maso

France will be last in population tomorrow... muuuu

The depanion prochanedet Anse ns ts ane nu

What is the Jewish response?

The SpSÈme THAT its "Recalcitrant priests, rabbis of SC

— VIII —

102

102

103

103

103

104

105

105

108

110

111

112

114

114

114

114

115

117

118

119

122

123

125

130

130

131

133

133

133

133

133

135

136

136

137

137

138

139

140

TABLE OF CONTENTS

He

THE PRIVILEGES OF JEWS IN FRANCE

French Episcopate and Chief Rabbinate

Rabbiné erre resto ques ana ne eee

Churches and synagogues

Clones JUS COMOROS CIDOMQUES nec med uemnuss tenta

FabriqueseEconsstomesiSatbtés nues um su ameomaatnesadn

Catholic seminaries 42nd ummntentates dauira mem

SOU SORA NO QUES ns den

Ealoipourles jui et la loipourles catholiques suisses

First hypothesis

+ Jewish law, which is subject without consent

Second hypothesis

"The law, while not Jewish, is favorable to the Jews."

Third hypothesis

"The law is neither Jewish nor favorable to Jews."

IV

HOW FAR DOES TALMUDIC TOLERANCE GO?

Jews steal from Christians

<CTOIS OR MILLS Se LEARN Mn DR Ernie onde ouiis

LÉ Ra des CRÉMeNS ne daumoeue

V

RITUAL MURDERS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

Murder of a Russian child in 1831

Murder of Father Thomas in 1840

This Hours CON OMNS 44 in na ei

Memoed'EMier ob ne rade dre cre menes

MIÉUTESS LOS DIU WRITE ie in the streets

VI

JEWISH TOLERANCE TOWARDS FRENCH CHRISTIANS

NO ne ee a de na aa as doom ed

The Association "dead the beast, dead the venom" > mu neue meneur ue ue

Waltzes of Death

The death of Félix Faure uen ue eee ee ve ae ane ue ane ve ave ee ane an ann ee ven ee ce where ane un eee ee ce where ane un male apnea dd der er mcm ben

Is this "the tragic surprise I sc eleconp enemies boredom a

141

142

143

143

143

143

144

146

147

147

148

149

149

151

153

154

ISS

ISS

157

163

163

164

166

167

167

168

THE SECTARIAN JEW

CHAPTER VIII

A LOOK BACK

CHAPTER IX

CONCLUSION

Oueliels 2nd

If we were to do black and white!

the order to evacuate Fashoda.

What if the Jew is a scourge of God?

"Why single out the Jew in particular?"

"What would we do without the Jew?"

"And the conversion of the Jews?"

< Pushing citizens to war = AUTOS 2 De es ardine ns mranedars

UMON Ltd.: 2. ai nd ane Nues den nig die Ris

Victory ! !!

ALPHABETICAL TABLE

Names contained in the volume ue Mu eue nu eee eee ee meneur à 175

176

177

178

179

179

180

182

183

184

187

DEDICATION

This volume is a broad outline of Jewish tolerance across nineteen centuries, to with regard to Christians, especially French Christians, whom it is fashionable today to accuse
every day of intolerance towards Jews¹.

The tolerance — or intolerance — of some towards others will stand out clearly, we believe.
we, from the situation made today by a minority of about one hundred and fifty thousand Jews to a a majority of thirty-eight million French people, Catholics of all degrees!?, for having pushed a hundred years ago, there was tolerance towards these foreigners, even admitting them on the strictest footing equality, among the members of the greater French family.

In the blinding clarity of contemporary events, the inevitable results of a century of experimentation

Therefore, a first conclusion is necessary:

France is lost if it does not break, and quickly, the network of cosmopolitan tyrannies in which it is stifled and struggling in the throes of agony!

— By what means?

— Through the ACTIVE union of all French people without distinction on the ground, the only practical solution at this time

ment, patriotism, that is to say ANTISEMITISM.

This will be our final conclusion.

We dedicate this work to Édouard Drumont as an affectionate tribute from his disciple to Master, as a tribute of admiration to the initiator of the providential movement on the path to salvation towards Algeria and who will save France, if, in God's secret plan, France is to be saved!

L. VIAL.

Paris, June 2, 1899.

1 — We read in the Yearbook of Jewish Archives (1895-1896), under the signature of Mr. Prague, director-

Author: "Religious intolerance directs a barrage of calumnies against Israel, its age-old adversary, and of his insults, etc. >

It's just a single note amidst the chorus of curses with which the Jews deafen us every day. Christian ears! Unfortunately, there aren't only Jews at this concert!

A committee (supposedly Catholic) for the defense of rights was founded in March 1899, based on a program, he too fulminated "against the spirit of intolerance." This is not about "Jewish intolerance," of course.

Yes! That's great! We'll clear things up once and for all!

2— Catholics by baptism, first communion, and marriage, who are the vast majority, if they

They do not practice their religion assiduously, at least they have never renounced it and are happy, for the most part, to do so.

to return at the hour of death, like our late presidents Carnot and Félix Faure!

They would even be proud to live there, as would our forefathers before Voltaire (who nevertheless asked, but in vain, a priest on his deathbed), as well as Catholics around the world, today, outside of

In our country, if the Jew had not paid for the fraternal hospitality he received in France — in France only — by imposing on the French the shame of this religion of charity which welcomed him!

7 XI —

Photo by P. NADAR.

ZADOC-KAHN

MEMBER OF THE CONSISTORY CENTRE ISRAÉLITE

CHIEF RABBI OF FRANCE

— XII —

PREFACE

The prophecy of the Jew Mires

If you haven't hanged us in fifty years, you won't have enough money left to buy the rope.
to do it.

— Who said that?

— The Jew Mirés, in 1860.

— Who did he say that about?

— From his fellow believers.

— To whom?

— To General Turr, who repeated it at the "Spartan dinner" at the Goncourt's, who had faithfully...

(This is reproduced in their newspaper, which is being published right now!)

"In fifty years!" he said in 1860.

But we are in 1899! So in 1910! So the deadline is in eleven years!

But given the way events are unfolding, especially with the Dreyfus affair, it could very well happen that the prophecy did not wait for him, to be fulfilled in one way or another!

Not that we wish for the massacre of the Jews; on the contrary, we condemn it in every way. our forces; it is not by crime that one should repress crime!

But we condemn with no less vigor the growing and criminal audacity of the Jews who do everything necessary to explain, if not justify, the bloody reprisals, in case they occur would produce:

What Jewish audacity justifies, in any case, are the ever-increasing advances of the anti-Semitism, which, at least, whatever one might say, does not demand the death of the Jews, but their simple amendment fl.

3— It was the same Jew, Mirés, who received a severe rebuke from the Archives israélites (June 1867), for having said that "Israel owed gratitude to the popes." It is known that the Jews, in the Middle Ages, called

Rome, "the Paradise of the Jews."

Mr. Rouanet, the deputy, favors the Jewish Archives against the Jew Mirès and the Jews of the Middle Ages.

since he accused the Church, from the tribune, on December 22, 1898, of "not doing its duty towards the Jews".

4— Never has Mr. Drumont, leader of anti-Semitism, the only one qualified to speak on behalf of the party, advocated the violent death of the Jews!

On the other hand, the leaders of Semitism welcomed with sympathy—if they did not instigate it—the founding of

The Society "Dead the beast, dead the venom" which "aims to fight by all means, whatever they may be,

THE SECTARIAN JEW

In any case, he demands this amendment, determined not to capitulate to injustice. criminal resistance, even if it means taking refuge indefinitely in the "maquis of the procedure" lasts > ».

So what exactly is antisemitism?

Antisemitism

this is not a religious war

"Antisemitism," said the likeable deputy from Espalion, Mr. Massabuau, "is not A doctrine is a protest, so that if, tomorrow, the legitimate causes of protest- "If antisemitic practices were to disappear, there would be no more antisemitism."

Antisemitism, in its current form, is entirely contained within this definition.

"It is not a doctrine."

If it were a doctrine, indeed, it would be fighting against the Jewish doctrine contained in the Talmud.

He would condemn your rabbis charged with teaching this doctrine, in the name of the State, in the seminaries.

rabbinical courts and synagogues.

It would disgrace the State, which is not ashamed to pay for these documents with the money of the French people.

proponents of a religious doctrine hostile to the religious doctrine of the vast majority of French people.

This is what anti-Semitism would do if it were a doctrine.

But it is not a doctrine; it is and only wants to be a protest against the abuses of against the anti-Semitic mob and its devoted president >".

Furthermore, they pay Sébastien Faure's anarchists, commonly known as "the forty," every day.

under" and whom we call the knights of the truncheon and revolver.

S — Or rather, he doesn't want to be, although deep down and despite his denials, he is a doctrine:

The very doctrine of Catholicism, which so profoundly shaped the French temperament for eighteen centuries, that he is compelled, if he wishes to remain French, to instinctively become Christian again in opposition to the Jew cosmopolitan!

This is the idea expressed in Lille last March by Mr. Brunetière in his conference, which can be summarized as follows:

Thus: "France; it is Catholicism."

This was the idea expressed by the Russian correspondent of La Libre Parole, who wrote to him from Saint Petersburg.

January 9, 1899

"Whatever the enemies of France may say, the eldest daughter of Christianity has always enjoyed in our country..."

Russia has a reputation for being devoted to the divine faith of the Savior, and the Russian people have always been touched by these qualities.

essential elements of the French national character.

That is why the alliance concluded by our government with the French Republic was so warm-approved and ratified by our popular masses. > (Libre Parole, January 15, 1899.)

A recent event has highlighted the accuracy of this assessment.

The President of the French Republic, Félix Faure, had just died a Christian death.

The House was debating the vote on the necessary funding to ensure he had a religious funeral and national, in session of February 20, 1899.

“I protest,” cried Mr. Dejeante, “against the religious nature of these obsequies, which is contrary to sentiment.”

national! o

— “I cannot allow it to be said,” replied the President of the House, “that the feelings of Mr. Félix’s family

Faure's actions may not be in line with the nation's sentiment.

He could have added: "AND FROM MR. FÉLIX FAURE HIMSELF" who "in full knowledge, when his word was still free and clear, addressed me on two separate occasions, asking me to call a “priest >”, said Mr. Le Gall, chief of staff to the late President, in an official note on February 20.

Without realizing it, Messrs. Deschanel and Dejeante had simply demonstrated, one "the quality

— XIV —

PREFACE

power of an oppressive minority against an oppressed majority.

In accordance with Article X of the Constitution on the Rights of Man and of the Citizen:

“No one should be persecuted for their religious opinions,” the anti-Semites say, leaving the Jews to the full benefit of this clause of a constitution inspired, however, and prepared by them — we will see it later — and wrested by force from the vote of the Constituent Assembly.

Jewish doctors can freely teach their doctrine of hatred against Catholic doctrine.

lic; Jewish believers can learn about it at their leisure, every day, in rabbi seminaries niques and synagogues.

The anti-Semites—we're talking about the leaders—never even conceived of a bill aimed at even if only to diminish this religious freedom, however exorbitant, of a Jewish minority.

Could Jews say the same about the religious freedom of the vast majority of French, Catholics?

Semitism

is a religious war

While Jews freely practice their religion in France, that is to say outside of their homeland

How can they let us practice ours at home?

This article x of the Constitution, which they impose on us to respect when it concerns them, com-

How do they themselves respect it when it comes to us?

They respect it so little that, in the arsenal of exceptional laws forged over the last twenty years against Catholics, there is perhaps not a single one where you would not discover the secret hand of the Jew.

So that while we, the majority, respect their religion, they, the minority, do not.

Not ours.

If we don't wage religious war against them in their own lands, where we are not, they will... are waging religious war in our country, where they are.

And with all the more determination and success because, through a kind of mental aberration inspired and carefully maintained by the press under their control, on the very ground where they...

They attack, we have decided not to defend ourselves!

Our condescension goes that far!

It is admirably formulated in the definition of antisemitism: "A protest,
"Not a doctrine."

"Essential to the French national character," the other... the opposite!

Ah! If only we weren't afraid to demonstrate this quality everywhere and always!

A curious thing indeed! This fear of confessing to being a Christian, inspired by the Jews whose interests she serves so well, the Jews criticize the anti-Semites for it: "You have no doctrine," Mr. Rouanet told them from the podium on the 24th.

December 1898, in the name of the Jews!

But if the anti-Semites admitted to being Christians, the Jews would cry out against religious intolerance! To the Inquisition!.. Torquemada!.. Let the music play!

Whatever they say, whatever they do, in the eyes of Israel, anti-Semites will always be wrong.

This should be a good reason for them not to be so embarrassed with the Jews and to boldly assert their sympathies for the divine doctrine which, whatever the synagogue may say, made France great and gave to the world what the world itself is proud to call "French civilization".

We owe to this "affair" a marked return to this very path, especially in Paris where the crowds have never been so large.

No more men were involved than in the year 1899, in fulfilling their Easter duty.

Do we need to recall the extraordinary pilgrimage of seventy thousand men to Lourdes, from April 17 to 21?

6— Count X., living in Russian Poland, not far from Wilna, expressed the same idea in an inter-

THE SECTARIAN JEW

Mr. Brunetière agrees with us when he shows, in the Revue des Deux-Mondes, March 1898, justice for the claims of anti-Semitism and its adherents.

"I understand that people are angry about it, but not that they should dispute their right and shout and Intolerance.

Especially since, over the past twenty years, we have exhausted ourselves against these thirty-eight million (of French) all measures of persecution compatible with appearances or hypocrisy peace.

The so-called "inviolable" laws are there to prove it, especially the school law; or rather—core the accusation of clericalism leveled at any government that even appears less "persecute" than another.

Consider also how the "reconciled" are treated and ask yourself what is being done to them.

Fight against them!

I agree that it's about the actual possession of power, and no doubt it's worth it!

But above all, it's a set of ideas and, if I may say so, it's an anti-creed!

An anticredo! Let us remember the word by which the illustrious thinker observes better than we know it.

Let's make sure that:

Semitism, however, is not simply a protest—against our attempts to escape to its tyranny — that it is indeed a doctrine.

We add: that of the Talmud, which allows us to define it as: "A selected collection of Talmudic principles for the use of the perfect sectarian.

Yes, Semitism is a religious war, whether the Belgian university professor likes it or not Edmond Picard, who claims the opposite in the introduction to the volume, which is, moreover, so well-documented,

From our colleague François Bournand: The Jews and our contemporaries.

We will soon see with what implacable ferocity this war has been waged since... centuries against France, "this living incarnation, among the nations, of the thought of Jesus-Christ, > according to Mr. Kimon's expression.

But Semitism is not just that!

Semitism

is a race war

One of Dreyfus's main defenders, the Jew Bernard Lazare, makes this admission, embellished of a... lie, to a Dreyfusard newspaper, on December 9, 1898:

I defended him (Dreyfus) because, he said, they were hunting down the Jew in him, and I am a Jew.

View to Mr. de Boisandré, of La Libre Parole (February 5, 1898):

"You French make me laugh," he said, "when you let yourselves be accused by all these bastards of doing..."

A religious war!

But it's the Jews who are pulling the wool over your eyes: the Dreyfus affair has been for them the pretext for a veritable crusade.

religious, in which all Jews from all over the world took part.

When will you finally decide to understand that the Jew is the man of the reversed sign and that his tactic eternal consists of blaming you for all the ignominies he himself commits >

We would add that this is the case everywhere: In Austria-Hungary, for example, where the Jews are the masters

As in our country, "they are the instigators, promoters and instruments of anticlericalism..."

All the anti-religious laws passed, whether in Vienna or Budapest, were due to Jewish influence. (Abbot) Kannengieser, Jews and Catholics in Austria-Hungary).

The law on civil marriage, for example, was imposed in October 1895. We will discuss this further below.

— XVI —

PREFACE

Because they were hunting down the Jew >, that's the lie! He knows it perfectly well!

Because I am Jewish, that's the truth! To firmly establish this truth, he adds: "Those among

The suffering Jews bind me with a thousand ties that will never break.

Among these thousand ties, shouldn't we count those of religion and of the Fuel vs

Nothing could be more natural, more logical.

Religion informs the soul, just as the soul informs the body.

And this is true of peoples as well as individuals.

Religious practice instills good or bad habits in individuals, depending on religion, which, passed down from generation to generation, eventually becomes a habit of family, that is to say, of race.

It is in the practice of the Gospel for almost two thousand years that the family, that is to say

The French race II, acquired the habit of charity which still distinguishes it today in the the whole world, despite its shortcomings].

Who could say that two thousand years of Talmudic practices have not permeated the family, that is to say, within the Jewish race, these habits of plunder, theft, treason, etc., which the Tal-

Mud is recommended in a hundred different places, and we are all victims of it every day. the ways l°]?

And that is how Semitism, by virtue of being a religious war, inevitably became a race war; how, after having persecuted the soul of France in its religion, it is

7 — The family, that is the true, the sole foundation of the Fatherland, which is nothing but an extension of the family, as

The family is itself merely an extension of the individual.

An individual founds a family, families found a village or a town; villages and towns constitute the province; the provinces constitute the Fatherland.

The Fatherland? But it is a tree whose provinces are the branches, the towns and villages the trunk, the family the root, the individual, the seed.

This is why the idea of Fatherland corresponds so well to the idea of race: the former being only the latest evolution, the last term of this; why still the Jewish race could not mix with the French race.

These are distinct saps, circulating in distinct trees, and one of them—Jewish sap—refuses absolutely to mingle with the other.

Try grafting a bush onto a vine!

This addresses two things:

1° To the desideratum of “La Patrie française”, formulated by its committee, on April 1, 1899:

More than ever, he said, it is necessary to define the idea of Fatherland and to bring the feeling of nationalism back to narrow limits.

ality. >

2. To the error, in our opinion, of Mr. Maurice Barrès, who asserted (Journal, March 12, 1899) that a homeland is founded on the dead and on the earth.

The dead and the land > are part of the family's patrimony, that is to say, of the Fatherland; they are not its foundation-ment.

8 — She suddenly awoke to the marvelous subscription of 130,000 francs collected in fifteen days against Reinach and the Jews.

9— Chief Rabbi Zadoc-Kahn shared our opinion when, on the occasion of Yom Kippur, speaking of the Zekhout abot, at the synagogue on rue de la Victoire, September 1895, he exclaimed:

Our tendencies and aspirations are a legacy from the past. There is much truth in the idea of moral inheritance and by that very fact, in that of moral progress.

The key is to agree on the meaning of "moral progress." There is, as always, the Catholic meaning and the Talmudic meaning.

THE SECTARIAN JEW

came to persecute the body of France in its patriotism and its material interests [191].

Antisemitism

accepts race war

But here, things don't go as planned for the Jew: he encounters anti-Semitism.

While he was free to persecute the religious beliefs of the majority of French people, he is no longer free to do so in the future.

so much as attacking the homeland, its material interests.

This resistance, although only partial and on a relatively minor point, should not no less than to be applauded, encouraged, supported.

It is better to resist on a single point than not to resist at all, to defend even a

Is it any of our strongholds to capitulate across the board?

We must support

antisemitism

Let's go further: isn't this battleground the only practical one, for the moment, among a people whose

Did the Jew destroy the faith?

Once armed with his Constitution of the Rights of Man and of the Citizen, the Jew said to himself:

"This French people is invincible on the high ground of its religious faith!"

"We need to bring him down from that, to gradually lead him onto the terrain of material interests where we..."

We Jews are kings, and therefore we will surely defeat him.

Like Napoleon at the Tuileries, studying the battlefield of Marengo on a map, "This Poor Mr. de Mélas, he said, will retreat to Alexandria... I will join him there, in the plain of the Scrivia and I'll beat him right there... right there... >

The Jew, too, led us down there... there... into the plain of material interests; he found there His Marengo and us, a complete rout.

So what now?

10 — These are undoubtedly the “persecutions, wars of race and religion” to which MF the Duke of Orléans declared himself "firmly opposed" in his San Remo speech to the royalist groups in the South of France, February 1899.

Because it would not be admissible:

That, in the name of freedom of conscience, the Talmudic Jew can violate the conscience of thirty-eight thousand

Catholic lions;

That, in the name of human rights, the cosmopolitan Jew can place them outside of humanity;

That in the name of citizens' rights, foreign Jews can make them "outlaws" in their own country.

It would be unacceptable, I say, for a Jew to commit such attacks against thirty-eight thousand French Catholics, without them having the right to defend themselves!

But what would be quite acceptable, for them, would be to cede this natural right of self-defense to a head of state whom they would see as truly concerned with protecting it and ensuring it is respected everywhere and always towards and against everyone.

And this would simply be the protection of the natural rights of the French family; it would not be "a persecution" nor a "war of race or religion".

If that is what His Grace the Duke of Orléans meant, he simply expressed the sentiments of the great the majority of French people, which the valiant and likeable deputy from Gers, Mr. Lasies, summed up in two words,

During the visit of the Archbishop of Auch to Le Houga, on March 8, 1899

"My Lord," he said, "we are ready for the utmost sacrifices in defense of our faith and our breed. "

— XVIII —

PREFACE

Go back up to the fortress?

Absolutely! That's our goal!

But that's currently impossible.

The Jew, aided by his obligatory supporters, the Protestant, the Freemason and other "intellectuals" tuels >, are blocking our path. We need to clear the way!

— How so?

— By a resounding victory, not on the lofty peaks of faith, from which the Jew has dislodged us, and that it is precisely a matter of reconquering, but on the hill of patriotism, where the elite of our soldiers still resists, and in the plain, at the same time, material interests, where the Jew has treacherously attracted the bulk of our troops {!!},

Moreover, it was not on the mountain that Joshua defeated the Amalekites, but in the plain.

No doubt, during this time, Moses was praying on the mountain! But Moses' prayer did not...

Joshua did not think at all of the battle, and it was to both that God granted the victory.

The same applies to us French.

A few, despite the Jew's assault, remained on the mountain of faith (the faith practical).

Let them do as Moses did! Indeed, we implore them; without them the battle is lost!

The Master said: "Without me you can do nothing!" (John 15:5)

Let them pray! Let them pray! But, please! Let them not stop praying to dedear piously sharp barbs at the French who have the misfortune, great enough as it is, of Don't do it!

These, alas! in great numbers, tumbled from the mountain, have no other recourse, in Waiting for the hour of grace, rather than fighting like Joshua on the plain!

But this too is a necessity willed by God! That's what too many Catholics forget!

Let everyone do their duty at their battle station!

God will see the goodwill of each and every one. To all He will grant victory!

Furthermore, God, who loves the humble, will only grant this victory to those whose pre-

The main concern is not whether he will devote more time to prayer than to action, or more to action, rather than prayer, and constantly opposing one another to two elements of combat, inseparable

ables in divine thought.

But, to achieve this definitive and imminent victory, we must hope for it, we must know well our enemy — “the age-old enemy,” says Abbot Lémann — who has never laid down his arms since 2,000 years!

11 — Let us admire here the soundness of vision of Leo XIII advocating the union of honest people from all parties on the ground of social salvation, that is to say here of society, of the French homeland.

Indeed, we can only unite where we are, and not where we are no longer!

If we consider that, out of 8 million households, more than 4.5 million are childless or have only one child, who

Can we say that French society is practically at the highest peaks of faith?

But she is still on the lower hill of patriotism! No one doubts that today.

The common ground is therefore ideal!

Let no one say that this is the Republic.

The republic is just a sham.

We do not unite on a fact, but on a principle (religious or social).

But accepting the fact can be an excellent condition for union.

This has been the case since the papal directives.

— XIX —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

A known enemy is a defeated enemy!

It is to make this known that we will outline one of the main features of his physinomy in

The sectarian Jew

We call "sectarian" the follower of a religious or philosophical error who promotes his love of his error to the point of fanaticism, and his fanaticism to the point of proscription, ruin, and even the death to those who refuse to embrace or favor it.

It is in this sense that we call the Jew "sectarian".

He is so, with regard to Catholics, in two ways: in theory and in practice, in his doctrine and in his conduct.

PART ONE

THE SECTARIAN JEW IN HIS DOCTRINE

The doctrine of the Jew is entirely found today, not in the Bible, as Some cunning Jews managed to persuade Him of the naiveté of some Catholics. but in the Talmud, that monstrous collection of Pharisaic doctrine, so much of times scourged by Our Lord himself, a collection that the learned and pious Ger- His son, chancellor of the University of Paris, called in the 14th century "a vast desert dotted with a few very rare, harmless herbs and inhabited by ferocious beasts and monsters of all kinds, which Abbot Lémann today calls "a bristling, impenetrable hedge, favorable to snakes, theft, and plundering.

CHAPTER ONE

THE JEWS AND THE TALMUD

According to the Talmud, Jews are divided into two categories: Reform and Orthodox.

Reform Jews do not accept the divine inspiration of the Talmud; they are of two kinds:

A small number of people reject it entirely as a tissue of errors and lies:

They are the rationalists of the sect.

The others, in large numbers, less rationalistic, admit it, but only "as a Respectable book of Judah >.

Both have as their organ the Archives israélites: director, Cahen Isidore, 9, rue de Berlin; editor-in-chief, Prague, 46, rue Lafayette.

Orthodox Jews, for their part, acknowledge the divinity of the Bible and the Talmud, while nevertheless believing-stating that the Talmud is far superior to the Bible "as much as wine is superior to water" (Soph. 2).

Their publication is the Israelite Universe: managing director, Bloch, 30, rue Victor-Hugo, in Colombes; editorial office, 13, rue Montyon, Paris!121,

In practice, if not in theory, Orthodox and Reformed Jews place the Talmud above the Bible, since they do not fail, on occasion, to swear on the Talmud, which they refuse to do based on the Bible alone 131,

Jews, regardless of their school of thought, are therefore unwelcome when confronted with the Talmud, to invoke the small number of those who do not believe.

For their argument to have any value, it would have to express an official, categorical disavowal.

Risky, complete, Ches of the nation!

We dare them to produce it.

This challenge is addressed to Chief Rabbi Zadoc-Kahn, as well as to the recognized leader of the Judaism in France.

The Talmud has never been disavowed.

We know that Mr. Israël Lévy declared, at the Congress of Orientalists, September 1897, < that no basis should be placed on the Talmud >.

But he spoke of the Talmud from a historical point of view, not from dogmatic points of view.

12 — We are not talking about a third category, which is too small to be taken into account:
the Karaites, in Crimea, who reject the Talmud and follow the Bible alone.

13 — The Jewish Archives state categorically: "As for the Talmud, we confess its undeniable superiority over the book of the law of Moses > ;

In full accordance with the Bossuet of the Jews, Maimonides, who said: "The offender of the law of Moses

He may be absolved, but the violator of the rabbis' precepts must be punished with death.

—

THE SECTARIAN JEW

moral issues on which he knows well, and Mr. Zadoc-Kahn even better than he does, "that one makes a great fund >> in Israel.

Not only has the Talmud never been disavowed, but also...

The Talmud is recommended.

It is by all the bigwigs of Israel and their official press;

By the Israelite Universe, which calls it "the civil and ecclesiastical code of Judaism" and cries out to the Jews freethinkers who distance themselves from it: "Moses and the Talmud are no longer to your liking... You mar-

"at home on the soil of paganism, instead of keeping watch near Jerusalem;"

By Theodore Reinach (brother of Joseph) who, analyzing a book of apology for the Jews by Isidore

Loeb, trusting the author, admires "the beautiful lessons of humanity, charity, and virtue that are revealed" they win almost on every page (of the Talmud). > (Israelite Universe, Oct. 2, 1895);

By the Chief Rabbi of France, Zadoc-Kahn himself, who exclaimed enthusiastically in the Great Metropolitan Synagogue, on Yom Kippur in 1895:

"When one descends from the patriarchs, from Moses, from David, when one has been raised in the school of prophets, nourished by the teachings of those noble moralists who entrusted their doctrines, their principles life lessons in the Talmud..., we must necessarily have taken advantage of this age-old action of the most beautiful souls that humanity has produced. > (Israelite Universe, October 9.)

"Beautiful souls! The patriarchs, Moses, David!"

All right !

But also "beautiful souls" and "the noble moralists who entrusted their doctrines, their principles"

Life lessons in the Talmud! > We'll see that later!...

Mr. Zadoc-Kahn spoke with even more lyrical fervor on September 29th, at the inauguration of the monument erected in memory of the Chief Rabbi of France, his predecessor, ML Isidor, at

Listen to Père-Lachaise:

"The Torah (of which the Talmud is an integral and principal part) is our strength, our life, the light of our minds, the rule of our consciences.

"For centuries, it has been everything to us: our science, our art, our philosophy, and..."
when we did not yet have a homeland, our ideal homeland.

"It was in the Torah that Mr. Isidor drew the profound inspirations that shaped his career."
such a beautiful, fruitful, and honored pastoral life...

"It is there (in the Torah which he had studied in depth) that this life has its unity, its beauty and its moral grandeur.

(Israelite Universe, October 2, 1895.)

It would be difficult, admittedly, to be more flattering and more laudatory towards Chief Rabbi Isidor.

For the Talmud!...

The Talmud is taught

Not only is it recommended, but it is taught. It was taught yesterday.

The learned Rabbi Drach, a convert to Catholicism, has since written:

We have, by virtue of our profession, long taught the Talmud, after having followed a special course in it.

for many years, under the most renowned Jewish scholars of this century.

(Abbé Lémann, Jewish Preponderance, Lecoffre, 1894.)

It is taught today:

THE JEWS AND THE TALMUD

1° At the Jewish seminary, 9, rue Vauquelin.

The official list of chairs and professors includes:

Talmud and Hometics: Lehmann (The Chief Rabbi at the Seminary).

2° At the minor seminary, commonly called Talmud Torah, 9, rue Vauquelin.

The official staff list reads:

“Director: the Chief Rabbi, Lehmann Josephli;

"Deputy director: the chief rabbi, Cahen Abraham;

“Teachers: Rabbis Debré, Kahn and Lambert (Mayer), Bloch, Durlacher, Ernst, Lazard, Le-moine, Salomon, Stein II, »

3° At the Oriental Normal School of Jewish Studies, which trains teachers for Jewish schools in the East and from Africa: Mr. Marx, director, 50, rue d'Auteuil.

The official staff list reads:

Lambert, a rabbi, teaches the Talmud, etc.

4° At the Talmudic Studies Society, 10 rue Cadet, very close to the Gr.:. Or «. which is at No. 16/1,

The staff list includes:

"Dr. Klein, Honorary President (94 rue d'Hauteville), and Mr. Lévy (N.), President:"

Talmudic lectures are held every evening, after the service, under the direction of Mr. Rabbi Weiskopf.

Finally, outside of Paris, the Talmud is taught, to varying degrees, in nearly 150 synagogues or Jewish communities by the Melamed (Jewish schoolmaster), in the school, at the same time prayer house (Bet-Gamidrasch), which is a necessary part of the group of dependent buildings of every synagogue 1.

It is taught in particular:

14— Decorated with the Legion of Honour, on January 1, 1899 (Official Journal).

15— The State, which has abolished subsidies to seminaries and Catholic faculties, has scrupulously-maintained the annual subsidy of 25,000 francs to these two Jewish seminaries.

16— In these Talmudic Societies, members of Jewish communities can draw doctrine from the the very source, that is to say the Talmud, under the presidency and direction of the rabbis.

17 — This perhaps explains the choice made on December 3, 1898, by the Dreyfusard demonstrators in favored by Mr. Picquart, of the Grand Orient, as headquarters.

18 — It is taught to men and women by the sermon in the synagogue, on the Sabbath and celebration, for children in religious classes similar to our catechisms, called Bar Mitzvah.

This religious initiation culminates, at the age of 12, in an examination whose result, if the science of

The child is sufficient, is his official and solemn admission to the synagogue.

It is also taught at all levels of official Jewish education, with the exception of primary school (where one

(simply teaches reading and writing up to age 7):

1° At the school called Houomuche, where Jewish children aged 7 to 10 learn the five books of Moses, with commentaries by Rashi (to introduce people to the Talmud);

2° At the Heder school, where one learns, for two years, the Talmud itself, with commentaries by

Rashi;

3. At the Heder school, where the complete Talmudic Code is studied until the age of 17, usually, and often longer.

Later, depending on the student's social and financial situation, because these courses, especially those taught at home, are very expensive.

Dear ;

4° Finally, at the so-called Talmudor school, which is the public school for the poor, run at the expense of the community

Jewish.

THE SECTARIAN JEW

In Lyon, by the professors of religious instruction, Israël Adolphe, 2, rue du Paradis, for the boys; M^{re} Gerson, 27, rue Sainte-Hélène, for girls;

In Marseille, by the Talmud professors, Barach Eliezer, Sari Moïse, Landeler Maurice;

In Bordeaux, by Chief Rabbi Lévy and Uhry Isaac in their "religious instruction courses" "Gious."

In Besançon, by Lévy Salomon;

In Nîmes, in the Jewish schools;

In Nancy, in the religious instruction courses, by Blum;

In Lille, by Professors Lévy Anselme and Cahen Émile;

In Pau, by Lévy David and Cassid Claire in the school known as "of the Talmud >.

The Talmud, as we can see, is therefore taught extensively in France.

What does it contain?

What the Talmud Contains

It is the famous Rabbi Drach who will tell us this (Harmony between the Church and the Synagogue)

(gogue, vol. 1, pp. 132, 166-8):

After mentioning that he had long studied the Talmud under the most famous rabbis,

He adds that he himself had long professed this:

Now, in the Gemara, there are at least a hundred passages that are extremely offensive to Christians...

The Talmud expressly forbids saving a non-Jew from death or returning his lost belongings. to have pity on him, etc. (See treatise Aboda-Zara, fol. 13, verso.)

The rabbis also say: Since the life of the idolater is at the discretion of the Jew, all the more so his property.

In the 1581 edition of the Basel Talmud, the censors removed the main passages that we have just mentioned, as well as the entire Aboda-Zara treaty.

The Jewish synod, meeting in Poland in 1631, prescribed this seclusion in its encyclical hebraic where one reads:

We enjoin you, under pain of major excommunication, not to print anything in future editions that relate, good or bad, to Jesus of Nazareth, and to replace them with circle like this O, WHO WILL WARN THE RABBINS AND SCHOOLMASTERS TO TEACH AT THE YOUTH: THESE PLACES ONLY BY ORAL SPEAKING. — By means of this precaution, scholars

[1°] among the Christians will no longer have any pretext to attack us on this subject.

The injunction of the Warsaw Synod was duly obeyed.

All editions of the Talmud published since 1631 are truncated.

Here are the main ones:

1° Amsterdam, 1644;

2° Sulzbach, 1769;

3° Prague, 1839;

4th Warsaw, 1863.

Fortunately, only one complete edition, prior to 1631, that of Venice, 1550, has allowed to know the deleted passages that "rabbis and schoolteachers must teach"

19 — There was yet another general synod in 1866, which decreed that "in the eyes of Christians, one rejects-would be the Schulchan-Aruch, but that in reality every Jew should abide by his laws in every country, at all times >.

94 rabbis, 182 lawyers, 45 doctors, and 11,672 Jews of various backgrounds signed this decree. The count rendered was printed in Lemberg in 1873.

THE JEWS AND THE TALMUD

to speak to the youth only in person >.

We explored them in the company of a Hebrew scholar, Dr. Rohling, from the University of... University of Prague (translation, A. de Pontigny) [°°].

What did we find there in relation to all that we Catholics love and venerate?

May Our Lord, the Blessed Virgin, and the Saints forgive us, but it is necessary to to divulge some of these Talmudic blasphemies in order to have a sufficient explanation of the hatred with which the Jew has always pursued us and pursues us more than ever today under the cover of the Dreyfus affair 21].

We are adding subtitles.

20 — Since the Jews were never able to refute it — one cannot refute the obvious — they heaped insults upon him, naturally Really.

The Jewish newspaper L'Univers israélite, on October 25, 1895, called him a forger! Just as the Jewish newspapers call for...

Today the General Staff is "a nest of forgers," but it has carefully avoided taking up Rohling's challenge "pro-offering 1,000 thalers (3,750 francs) to anyone who proves the falsity of any quote whatsoever.

21— "The revision of the Dreyfus trial will be a triumph for the Jews," wrote the Magyar- in September 1898

ussag, newspaper of the Hungarian ministry.

They achieved this triumph on June 3rd at the Court of Cassation by referring the case back to the Council of the War of Rennes.

But he has some surprises in store for them!

CHAPTER II

THE TALMUD AND JESUS CHRIST

The soul of Our Lord

The Talmud, in complete accordance with the beliefs of savages throughout the ages, admits the Metempsychosis, that is, the passage of souls from one body to another.

“Thus,” he said in substance, “Samson received the soul of Japheth, Job the soul of Terah, Isaac the soul of Eve, Elijah the soul of Jael.

Now, do we know the soul that the great Rabbi Abarbanel attributes to Our Lord in his Commentary?

To remain silent about Jesus (f. 54,3)?...

— The soul of Esau, that is to say, according to the Talmud, (Tr. Baba bat. f. 16,2) the soul of “a murderer” and of adultery 1...l21 >»

The name "Jesus"

In the tractate Aboda (17:1), the Hebrew text of the name "Jesus" is truncated in such a way as to to form another Hebrew word which means "may his name and memory be annihilated!"

The contempt of Our Lord

The Pharisees of Nazareth mockingly called Our Lord "the carpenter's son".

(Matthew 11:55).

The Talmud (Aboda, f. 50, 20) carefully preserved this insult, modifying it slightly and

He calls Our Lord "the carpenter's son".

22 — Isn't this the rabbi, finance minister, around 1500, of His Most Catholic Majesty Ferdinand of Castile, which, to justify the king's trust, explained the alleged "right of the Jews to practice usury" in this way.

towards foreigners > ?

“Christians,” he said, “are not strangers to the Heavenly Father.”

But he had to justify this statement to his fellow believers, who rebuked him for it:

"I said it for the sake of peace, so that Jews might live among Christians without being harmed."

All of this is very Talmudic.

THE SECTARIAN JEW

Various insults

The Pharisees accused the divine Master of casting out demons "in the name of Beelzebub, prince of demons" (Matthew 10:25, 11:24).

The Talmud accuses him of "practicing magic and idolatry" (Tr. Aboda sf 27, 2), and calls him

< an idol > (id.), " a madman > (Tr. Schab. f. 104, 2), "an impious and godless man > (Tr. Sanhédrin, 105, 1), <"an apostate Jew" (Tr. Gittin, 57, 1).

Rabbi Fabius, of Lyon (a contemporary, 1840), in his Offering to the God of the Universe,

He draws inspiration from the Talmud, Amsterdam and Venice editions, when he calls Our Lord "a idol born in shamelessness and adultery > (Treatise Sanhedrin, fol. 67 and 107).

If the Son of God is not spared, his most holy Mother, understandably, is not spared either!

CHAPTER III

THE TALMUD AND THE VIRGIN MARY

The rod that God miraculously caused to blossom in the tabernacle to confirm his calling to the priesthood (Numbers 17:8) has always been regarded in the Church as the figure of Mary from which the flower of the Messiah was to spring.

Here is how the old Rabbi Nizzachon appreciates this symbolism, page 47:

"The heretics (the Christians) say that this (verse 8) concerns this Charja (in Latin) (stercus) Mary, who supposedly remained a virgin while giving birth to Jesus: may their spirits perish!

Luther had similar expressions regarding Catholics.

The so-called "intellectuals"—Protestants, Jews, Freemasons—should remember this well. when they remind Catholics of "evangelical gentleness, of humanitarian tolerance."

But let us return to the fine principles of Talmudic tolerance, which we would truly be wrong to ignore.

how to stay away from us for too long.

CHAPTER IV

THE TALMUD AND CHRISTIAN RELIGION

The Gospel is "a heresy"

"The doctrine of Jesus," says the new Talmud (Tractate Aboda, 1 f. 17, 1.), "is a heresy and His disciple Jacques is a heretic. (Ibid, 27, 2.)

In the tractate Tchab (116, 1) the Gospels are called "the books of the heretics".

The Christian religion is "the religion of madness >

In his speech — very Talmudic — on the first day of the Jewish New Year (1842), the rabbi of Lyon

Fabius said that "the Jewish religion has the immense advantage over the Christian religion of not having of mysteries, for everything in it is reason and light, while that of the Christians tells reason to

To remain silent is to be maddened by speaking.

Madness? We might reply to this fervent Talmudist, but it runs through the pages of your Talmud. It is impossible to browse the dogmatic section without constantly encountering abdeafnesses such as, for example, the one that describes "God's amusements in Paradise" (Aboda-Zara f. 3.2; Baba bf 74, 1 and 2).

Nevertheless, the argument of the rabbi of Lyon has been used many times since then against the Catholics by the Jewish Lantern for example, and other Semitic sheets l?*1.

23 — "Priests only teach nonsense," is the common argument of many schoolteachers in their students. They borrowed it from the lodge, which borrowed it from the Talmud:

"Citizens," said Brother Colly at a meeting organized by the Plaisance lodge in January 1899, "tell..."

Your children, that there is no soul, no God, that these are lies the priest wants to teach them, this harmful black beta, etc. >

This was said in front of secular schoolteachers, a primary school inspector, and an editor of the Fronde, the director of secular youth centers in the 14th arrondissement. (See further on.)

+, —

CHAPTER V

THE TALMUD AND THE SACRAMENTS

The Talmud and Baptism

The prophet Jeremiah says (chapter 31, verses 31 and 32): “The time is coming, says the Lord, in which

I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Judah, not according to the covenant that

I was with their fathers on the day I took them by the hand to lead them out of Egypt, because they have violated this alliance.

Rabbi Nizzachon, the insulter of the Virgin Mary, thus appreciates this passage, page 70:

"The heretics say that these words are a prediction of the prophet, which applies to Jesus, who gave them the ignominious baptism (sic) instead of circumcision and instituted the celebratory

The Sabbath was observed on the first day of the week (Sunday).

"The ignominious baptism!" Let us remember this expression applied to a sacrament of the Church!

Does the Talmud treat the greatest of sacraments with more respect? Let's find out!

The Talmud and the Eucharist

In the tractate Aboda (f. 21, 1), the question of whether a Jewish landowner can accept in Regarding his house of pagan (Catholic) tenants, the Talmud responds:

"Yes, because they do not bring their idol (Our Lord as viaticum) into the houses, for that she resides there permanently, but only when one of their own is about to die.

The Talmud would therefore not permit accepting a tenant who wanted to have a chapel where

Our Lord would "reside permanently." That would be accepting "an idol" and surrendering complicit in idolatry."

The Talmud and Church Ceremonies

The same treatise (sf 14, 2) speaks of "priests", "Christian offices", "chalices", "candles, etc." >, describes the whole thing with a single word: "idolatry".

CHAPTER VI

THE TALMUD AND THE CHRISTIANS

"The Nazarenes"

This is the name of contempt by which Christians refer to the one whom Jews regard as the greatest rabbi that France has produced, Salomon Raschi, of Troyes (1040-1105):

"A Nazarene," he says on the tractate Aboda (sf 61), "is one who adopts the teachings of the pronouncements of this man who instructed his people to observe the first day of the week (the di-sleeve).

And the worthy rabbi encompasses in the same contempt "this man" and his disciples "the Nazarenes >

"Christians are idolaters"

The epithet "idolaters" should have come naturally to Christians, since the Talmud calls Christ "an idol".

And it is the famous Kimchi, rabbi of Narbonne in the 13th century, who awards it to us:

[The Christians are idolaters, he says in his Commentary on Obd] (1, 20), because they
They prostrate themselves before the Cross.

P41 Je Bossuet des Juifs, is even more categorical:

The Eagle by Moses Maimonides

Christians, he says on Abedu Mishna (3. f. 78,3), who follow the errors of Jesus are all idolaters, despite the differences in their doctrines, and one must, according to the express teaching

From the Talmud, treat them as you would idolaters.

Well! Do you want to know how "the Talmud wants us to deal with idolaters (Christians)"? hold) " ?

Here it is:

24— Originally from Cordoba, 1136-1209, was chief physician to the great Saladin, and is regarded by the Jews as the first writer of their nation.

neither

CHAPTER VII

THE DUTY OF JEWS TOWARDS CHRISTIANS

They must be raped on Sunday.

The Talmud, which forbids Jews from having as little contact as possible with idolaters, makes this formal exception (Tr. Aboda sf 2, 1):

“Christians are idolaters, however it is permitted to trade with them...”

The first day of the week (Sunday), which is their feast day.

Which means in plain English: "Have no dealings with Christians when these rap-Ports might be useful to them, but you can have them with you when they are harmful to them.

that they cause them to violate, for example, a formal precept of their law.

There is yet another reason,

Sunday is the day of rest for Christians.

However, the Talmud expressly denies them the right to rest on that day, Sunday.

Regarding the passage in Exodus (11:16) where God prescribes to the Jews the rest of Sunday and of Sabbath (Psalm 11:13), it is said that this rest does not concern non-Jews, because "the holy festivals are for Israel, not not for strangers, not for dogs. > (Tr. Megilla, 7, 2) 1.

The Talmud goes further.

25 — "The first day (Sunday) will be holy and solemn, and the seventh day (Saturday) will be a feast

also venerable.

"You shall not do any servile work during these days, except for what pertains to food."

26 — The passage “not for dogs” is found in the Venice edition, prior to 1631; it is superadded in the Amsterdam edition after that date, where the Synod of Poland decided to remove in the Talmud what is offensive to non-Jews, and “that which would only be taught orally, to the future >”.

Jews, however, continue to use this expression, happily, in their partisan polemics. culières.

To the National Gazette of Northwest Bohemia, which had attacked him, the Jew Herman Heller replied

(Oct. 1895) “— I am determined to appeal to the courts against such Christian dogs. — (Here some threats). — Then you will pay us, you dogs, for everything you are guilty of towards us.

AM. Sapin, from Lyon, who published his Jewish Directory, in a letter dated November 24, 1896, said: “I

I swear that if you publish my name in anything, I'll kill you like a dog.

And it was signed: A Jew in the French Army.

A simple effect of Talmudic education!

THE SECTARIAN JEW

They must be cursed three times a day

Sixtus of Siena (1520-1569), a converted Jew, like the abbots Léman of Lyon, like the rabbin Drach and, like them, very knowledgeable about Talmudic matters, moreover a great preacher renowned, he cites these passages from the Talmud:

We order that every Jew curse all Christian people three times a day and pray to God to confound it and exterminate it along with its kings and princes.

But let the rabbis especially recite this prayer in the synagogue in hatred of Jesus. (Talmud: Ordin. 1, leaflet. 1 dist. 4.)

They need to be stolen

“God commanded the Jews to appropriate the property of the Christians as many times as they could.”

may, either by fraud or violence, or by usury or theft.” (Ibid.)

The commandment of the Decalogue "you shall not steal" hardly bothers them, because, says the Talmud,

It means: "You shall not steal from your neighbor."

But only the Jew is the Jew's neighbor, since "the Jews alone are men and the other nations are but a variety of animals > Baba, mf 112, 2); also:

They must be treated like brutes.

"All Jews are ordered to regard Christians as brutes and not to..."

"To treat differently than animals." (Talmud quoted by Sixtus of Siena.)

It is our duty to kill them

The treatise Aboda (sf 17, 1) states explicitly:

"It is prescribed to kill with one's own hand the traitors of Israel and heretics like Jesus of Nazareth [21 and his followers and to hurl them into the pit of perdition.]"

This Talmudic prescription was conscientiously applied, even before the Talmud, to the apostle Saint James the Less, whom the Jews threw not "into the pit of perdition", he there was no pit nearby, but from the top of the temple's frontispiece on the forecourt where he expired.

The famous Raschi, from Troyes (the greatest rabbi in France), whom we cited only one instant, is no less categorical:

“The best of Christians must be strangled,” he said on Exodus (7:1), Amsterdam edition. (1644).

And the Talmud insists on this necessity of putting Christians to death:

It is a sacrifice pleasing to God

He who sheds the blood of the wicked offers a sacrifice pleasing to God. > (Jalk. Schim., £. 245, 3, on the Pentateuch.)

— But who are we to understand by the name of "impious"?

— “Under that name,” replied Rabbi Eliezer, director of the synagogue on the island of Naxos

27 — Other editions say: “Zadok and Baithos and their supporters >”.

28 — In the Venice edition of 1550, we read: “the best of heretics.” Which amounts to the same thing, the

The Talmud calls Our Lord and his disciples heretics.

THE DUTY OF JEWS TOWARDS CHRISTIANS

(archipelago) 1, under this name we understand Jesus and his followers. > (Prof. Rohling p. 54, 3.)

And what will be the reward for these virtuous Jews (!) who have resorted to heroism for having massacred

“Jesus and his followers”

29 — Died in Krakow, 1586.

CHAPTER VIII

THE REWARD OF THE TALMUDIIST JEWS

They will live in the "4th Palace of Paradise"

Moreover, here is the text, according to Dr. Rohling (p. 79, 14)

Those who have put to death Christians, foreigners, and non-Jews will find their re-eternal compensation in the 4th Palace of Paradise.

It is therefore from the Talmud that Muhammad borrowed his paradise for the massacring Muslims.

of "roumis" (Christians).

That's clear!

But there is an objection:

And what about the 5th commandment of the Decalogue?

Here, it is the Bossuet of the Jews, the great Maimonides, who will answer:

"The commandment 'Fu thou shalt not kill' means," he said, "that one must not kill a man." of Israel.

“But those who deny the teachings of Israel, particularly the followers of the Nazarene, must be put to death and it is always a good deed to execute them.

"If we cannot do that, we must try to cause their death." (Prof. Rohling, p. 56.)

And here are some of the "monstrosities" (only some) with which the Talmud > », according to the expression of the famous and pious Gerson.

CHAPTER IX

NON-JEWISHES ARE PROHIBITED FROM READING THE TALMUD UNDER PENALTY OF DEATH

Moreover, a text from the same code protects all these abominations from prying eyes.
crests.

The goy (non-Jew) is forbidden to read the Talmud, under penalty of death.

For, the text adds, it would be just as well to exterminate all the Jews, because if the non-Jews sa-1?

If they knew what we teach about them, wouldn't they hasten to put us to death?

(The Jew according to the Talmud, introduction, p. 9.)

Do not forget that the Talmud is the official code of the Jewish religion.

But while it is forbidden to reveal this teaching to the goy, it is not forbidden to practice it. It is even a rigorous duty imposed under the most severe penalties.

“Anyone who despises the words of a rabbi or of the law is excommunicated; anyone who de-

The others turn to observance of Law D, say the Schulchan. Aruch and the Baba Kouma treaty

(115.6)

Jewish excommunication

It is implemented by the Kahal, or secret government of the Jews. We describe it further on.

It comprises two degrees: 1° the Hindu or (Chamto) 2° the Herem.

The Hindu could be called the minor excommunication and the herem, the major excommunication.

“Whoever violates the herem,” says the Talmud, “violates and offends the entire law.” (Kolbo, para. 139.)

In Hinduism, the excommunicated person no longer has any contact with his fellow believers, except for his wife.

his children and servants, and cannot wash or shave during the entire sentence.

The punishment inflicted by the holy community (ten men), established as a tribunal, lasts thirty days, but can be extended up to sixty and even ninety, if necessary.

to bring the guilty party to repentance.

And if that is insufficient, the herem is applied to him:

30 — Regarding Christians, the Talmud is mistaken. They respect God's commandment:

(You shall not kill >, even with regard to those who teach that it can be violated with regard to them. But they have

The right to defend themselves! More than that: they have a duty to do so. Especially today, in Christian France is dying under the blows of Israel.

— 1 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

The lawbreaker is then completely isolated, even from his wife and children.

The only man allowed to see him was the food merchant.

The holy community, gathered in the synagogue to the sound of the trumpet, lights candles. and then pronounced the great excommunication, the main passages of which are as follows:

"By the judgment of the Lord of lords, may N., son of N... be excommunicated in the two courts, in the supreme court and in the lower court (the small and the large Kahal).

"May he suffer excommunication from the highest saints and excommunication from the seraphim" phins and finally the excommunication of small and large communities!

"May all plagues, all serious and dreadful diseases fall upon him!"

"May his house be a lair of dragons!"

"May her star darken in the clouds, may she become irritated and angry with him, that it may be disastrous for him

"May his body be thrown to the wild beasts and the serpents!"

"May his gold and silver be given to others, and may his children fall into the power of..." his enemies!

"May his descendants abhor and curse his day!"

"May he be cursed by the mouths of Addiriron and Achtariel, by the mouth of Sandalphon and Adramiel, through the mouths of Ansisiel and Patchiel, through the mouths of Seraphiel and Sangasael, by through the mouths of Michael and Gabriel, by the mouths of Raphael and Mescharetiel!

"May he receive the anathema from the mouth of Zaphza and from the mouth of Hafhavif, who is the great God and from the mouth of the seventy names of the thrice-great king and finally by the mouth of Zortack, Grand Chancellor!

"May he be swallowed up like Kore and all his troops!"

"May his soul depart from him in terror and dread!"

"May the Lord's judgment give him death!"

"May he be strangled like Achitophel!"

"May his leprosy be like the leprosy of Giezi!"

"Let him fall and never rise again!"

"May he be rejected from the burial place of Israel!"

"May his wife be given to others!..."

"May this excommunication fall upon N... son of N... and may it be his lot!"

But upon me and upon all Israel, may the peace and blessing of the Lord be!

Amen!

Then the candles are extinguished to signify that the guilty party is excluded from the celestial light.

Finally, if the guilty party dies in their sin, no one, not even their closest relatives, can to accompany him to the cemetery.

His death is not mourned, and a stone is placed on his grave to signify that the dead, deserved to be stoned.

This, we must admit, is a dreadful punishment that hardly reveals this "tolerance" of which Jews like to parade.

As for us — "the intolerant ones" — we wouldn't wish it on Dreyfus!

It is true that the Jews hardly consider applying it to him, since what is "treason" for French Catholic consciousness is merely the simple fulfillment of Talmudic law.

NON-JUDIS ARE PROHIBITED FROM READING THE TALMUD UNDER PAIN OF DEATH

for the Jewish conscience, with, moreover, in the case of Dreyfus, a nuance of heroism which makes it a martyr.

But perhaps, you might say, the Talmud is to Jews like the catechism to so many others. of Christians: a teaching meant to be received, but not practiced.

We would wish that for the Jews!

The truth is that, while Christians too often fail to practice their catechism, Jews, on the other hand, do practice it.

ticks his Talmud, which is much easier, it's true!

This is what Abbot Lémann too charitably insinuates when he says that "behind the hedge of the

The Talmud, bristling, impenetrable, favorable to snakes, theft, plunder, and dangerous decisions

"They may have come to hate Christianity."

"Could have been caught," the euphemism is charming!

They did indeed take each other, we shall see to what extent; which will prove that the Jew is not only sectarian in theory, but it is even more so and especially in practice.

PART TWO

THE SECTARIAN JEW

IN HIS CONDUCT

Sectarian? He always has been, ever since the day he was deceived in his hopes for the advent of a glorious Messiah who was to make him Master of the world, his pride caused him to fail to recognize the humiliated coming of the Messiah foretold by his prophets.

When we say "the Jew," we are talking, as always, primarily about the leaders, the

The people's leaders, those who, in short, assumed the great responsibility before God. the failings of this people.

Of these leaders, the true fathers of the Talmud, what was their conduct towards Jesus Christ?

of his apostles, of Christians throughout history?

Here it is:

CHAPTER ONE

THE JUIES IN APOSTOLIC TIMES

The Jews and Jesus Christ

The divine Master had cursed them: “Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, who Do not enter the kingdom of Heaven (by rejecting the word of God) and prevent others from doing so.

enter.

Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, who under the pretext of long prayers devour

Widows' houses.

Woe to you, blind leaders, who are afraid to swallow a gnat and make no effort to swallow a camel.

Woe to you, whitewashed tombs, beautiful on the outside, full of decay within.

(Matthew 20:111)

Woe to you, experts in the law, for loading others with burdens they cannot bear and that you yourselves do not even deign to touch with your fingertips. > (Luke x1).

How did these proud doctors respond to these reproaches, as bloody as they were deserved?

By sending Our Lord to his death.

— At least they were able to invoke a motive?

— None, except their wounded pride, their hatred exacerbated by the divine word:

"You want to kill me," the divine Master told them on the eve of his Passion, "because my Words find no entry into your heart. (John 37)

The Jews and the Apostles

Since then, she hasn't gone in there any further.

When the Sanhedrin brought the apostles before it for preaching the Gospel, despite the The high priest's defense, which he heard Saint Peter's response: "We must obey God rather than to men, what was the attitude of the Assembly?

At these words, says the Acts (v. 33), the Pharisees in the tribunal consulted among themselves to find a way to kill them.

Did they not find this means, in fact, in Herod Agrippa, the worthy grandson and successor?

ee

THE SECTARIAN JEW

sister of the murderer of the Innocents, who, to savor the pleasure of his omnipotence, had passed off to 31] », had him imprisoned sword of Saint James the Greater and, "seeing that this pleased the Jews!

Saint Peter, with a view to publicly exposing him to torture after the Easter festival?

We know how the apostle was miraculously delivered; he had nonetheless been the object of an attempted murder by the Jews.

The Jews and Saint Stephen

When the deacon Stephen reminded them of God's mercies, with a view to their conversion towards them, that he saw them bothered by this memory and threw the truths in their faces: "Heads hard, uncircumcised hearts, the worthy sons of those who killed the prophets, the murderers of the Messiah > », how will they react to these criticisms?

By stoning Stephen on the spot, without any further ado (Act. 8, p. 11) ; Saul was there, mingling his roars with those of the executioners. But thanks to the prayers for Stephen, he would find his road to Damascus; Saul would become Paul.

How will the Jews treat their former accomplice in their hatred against Christians?

The Jews and Saint Paul

Paul, a convert, preaches the divinity of Christ to the Jews of Damascus; what is the Jews' response?

— Nothing; but “they decide to kill him.” (Act 1x, 23.)

Paul escapes them, comes to Jerusalem and resumes his preaching; what do the Jews do?
Jerusalem?

— Like those in Damascus: “They are trying to kill him.” (Acts 10:29)

Finally, to make himself forgotten by so many relentless enemies, as well as to respond to Responding to the divine call, Paul set out to spread the word of God throughout Asia and Europe, but not without encountering...

towards the Jews in his path as:

In Antioch of Pisidia, where they stirred up a riot of false devotees against him.” (Acts 12:1 50);

At Iconium, where they tried to have him stoned by the pagans. (Acts 11:2);

At Lystra, where they themselves stoned him, leaving him for dead on the field of the riot (Act. xlv, 18);

In Thessaloniki, where they mobilized the dregs of the people against him (xvix, 5). Today they mo-

Anarchists are bilitating this. Nothing new under the sun!

At Berea, where they stirred up another riot (Act. xvli, 13);

In Corinth, where twice they resisted him to his face, with threats and blasphemy on their lips (Acts 13:10).

XVIUL, 6, 122);

Finally, during his sea voyage from Europe to Asia, Paul had to change his route to escape per to the Jews who had resolved to throw him into the sea (Acts 20:3)

Paul returns to Jerusalem!

He left three years ago!

Have the Jews forgotten it?

They recognize him in the temple, based on the directions of the Jews from Asia who came to Jerusalem.

for the Easter holidays and stir up the populace against him who demand his blood.

She would have had it without the intervention of the Roman troops, quickly mobilized for the pro-

31—Videns quia, placementet judæis (Act. x11, 5).

=. A4 —

THE JEWS IN APOSTOLIC TIMES

teger by the tribune Lysias.

Paul is allowed to explain himself under the protection of Roman lances; will the Jews let him?

Speak until the very end?

— No! It's his life they want, not his explanations and shouts, his death cries

They stifle his voice! (Act. xxII, 22.)

Already the Jewish mob rushes upon its victim, whom it believes it has captured, when the tribune snatches him from them.

with great force and, to protect her from an attack, had her urgently transported to the fortress military.

Will these ferocious beasts finally give up on their prey?

— That would be a poor understanding of them; after another attempted riot, during an interrogation-gatory before the High Priest where Saint Paul defended himself with as much skill as courage,

The Jews decided to put an end to it:

"The Sanhedrin would request the tribune to bring the prisoner to them for a final interrogation," who would simply be massacred during the journey!

“Nearly fifty Jews, among the most fanatical, even swore not to take either a not an atom of food, nor a drop of drink until they have carried out the plot > (Acts 20:12-15).

Unfortunately for the conspirators — these precursors of anarchy — the plot leaked out and reached the tribune.

To protect himself from responsibility, he resolved to have Paul tried outside Jerusalem, at Caesarea, by the governor of the province, Felix.

Saint Paul was dispatched there at nine o'clock in the evening, escorted by 200 lances, 70 horsemen and 200 soldiers.

dates.

A veritable imperial escort, indeed!

This was the deployment of forces that the perfidy and ferocity of the Jews had forced upon them.

— Finally, had Saint Paul escaped them?

- Not yet !

The High Priest himself — a precursor to Zola — accompanied by the lawyer Tertullus (his Labori), came to accuse the prisoner before the Roman governor of Caesarea.

Neither the eloquence of the lawyer nor the violence of the High Priest, who called upon Saint Paul, could save us.

< a plague » [2 apparently did not have the power to move the governor, since he asked for a sup-further investigation with the tribune Lysias.

The investigation dragged on for two years, at the end of which Félix, having reached the end of his term, was replaced.

as governor, by Festus.

Will the new judge finally deliver justice, and freedom, to the pretrial detainee?

No! The Jews were watching over him. Festus, touched by their attentions and, no doubt, by their

With compelling arguments, he tried to persuade Paul that it was in his best interest to be tried in Jerusalem!

He understood the trap and replied proudly:

"If I have committed a crime worthy of death, I do not refuse to die! But there is nothing true about it."

In all their accusations against me, no one can hand me over to them!

32— Le grave Temps spoke on October 23rd of "the anti-Semitic plague." It is a remembrance!

33— As today (June 1899) "the delegates of the left wing of the Chamber, constituted in The Committee of Public Safety, along with Mr. Dupuy, acknowledges that the situation, unfavorable to the Jews, com-pays particular attention.

2 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

“I appeal to Caesar!” (Acts 25, 11)

Caesar was Nero, and Nero was in Rome. So Saint Paul would go to Rome!

And he went there

And that is how he escaped the death that the Jews of Jerusalem had in store for him!

Nevertheless, they had sentenced him — failing the death penalty — to three years of pretrial detention.

for an imaginary crime of which he was to be acquitted by Nero himself!

And for more than four years now (1899), the Jews have been pursuing the rehabilitation of the Traitor Dreyfus, without the slightest presumption of innocence.

The Jew's tenacity has not changed.

His hatred of Christians is also evident, as we shall see.

The Jews and the early Christians

The Jews of Rome greeted Saint Paul with this word of defiance:

So you are the one who represents "this sect that is being fought everywhere"?

The apostle tried in vain, understandably, to evangelize people in such a state of mind:

"You are indeed that people," he told them, "predicted by Isaiah, who close their eyes for fear of seeing," to cover his ears for fear of hearing, to close his heart for fear of understanding and converting "tir." (Act. xxVIII, 26-28).

And this people continued to see in the Christians the sect that is fought everywhere" and to be themselves-even "the sect" that is found everywhere at the head of the fighters ll.

Let us follow the Jew through the history of persecutions:

34— Among the charitable works of Israel, there is, it seems, a Saint Paul Foundation.

"It is a scholarship of one thousand francs awarded to the young French Jew who has obtained within the year the di-

Diploma of Doctor of Law, awarded by the Central Consistory. > (Jewish Directory, p. 22.)

Is this in reparation for the past treatment inflicted on the apostle of the same name?

35 — The first missionaries of Gaul, Saints Lazarus and Maximian, Saints Martha and Mary Magdalene came from Palestine, from where they had been driven out by the Jews:

—_ 36 —

CHAPTER II

THE JEWS DURING TIMES OF PERSECUTION

The Jews under Nero (54-68)

We do not know the part that the Jews played in this famous persecution (64) where Nero he threw Christians wrapped in animal skins, which he then smeared, to raging dogs of bitumen, transforming them into living torches to illuminate his nocturnal orgies.

What we do know is that Nero, accused by his people of having started the famous fire from Rome, to obtain from the top of his tower the pleasant illusion of the burning of Troy, Nero thought it very clever to accuse the Christians and, to lend credence to the slander, to unleash the persecution.

Who suggested to him the idea of accusing the Christians?

Courtiers, say the historians.

However, we know that Nero had no more assiduous courtiers than the Jews (*51.

They say today: "It's the clerics, it's the holy water sprinkler, it's the skullcap." [571]

They could well have said then: "They are the Nazarenes." They hardly change their tune.

In any case, the Jews themselves boast of having provoked the persecutions under five emperors.

Roman ancestors.

We will quote their own testimonies:

The Jews under Domitian (81-96)

The Jewish book Sefer Juchasin (Amsterdam 1717) reports that in the time of Pope Clement (91-

36— “The Jew Alitilus then headed the councils of the playful emperor and the empress Poppaea” was entirely devoted to the synagogue. > (Henri Desportes, Mystery of Blood, p. 55.)

37 — The Jewish world particularly favors the expression "the clerics" to designate the Catholics.

Has the anti-Semitic party just triumphed in Vienna?

<Coalition of socialists and clerics,> said the religious paper (Oct. 9, 1895).

Are Hungarian Catholics protesting against the Jewish importation of civil marriage?

"You know the fierce struggles of the Clericals against the new laws," said his correspondent from Budapesth (Israeli Universe, October 25, 1895).

= 37 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

100), the Jews put to death, in Rome and outside, a multitude of Christians "countless as "the sand of the sea," the text says.

The Jews under Antoninus Pius (138-161)

Antoninus Pius, it is understood, tolerated the Christians.

There's even talk of an edict he issued in their favor. But this edict, assuming its authenticity perfectly established, which is not the case, would mean at most that this emperor persecuted less than another.

The edict, in any case, targeting only Christians in Asia, would in no way destroy the following fact:

narrated in the Jewish Seder Hadoroth, page 127, concerning only the Christians of Rome:

Rabbenu Jehuda, it is said, enjoyed the favor of the monarch (Antonin).

He pointed out to him the malice of the Nazarenes as the cause of a pestilential disease and obtained the death of all the Nazarenes who were in Rome in the year 3915 > (155 AD).

The Jews under Marcus Aurelius (161-180)

The same passage from the same book indicates that it was under the influence of the Jews that Marcus Aurelius

he had as many Nazarenes as he could massacre in 177.

Among these "Nazarenes" were Saint Pothinus, Bishop of Lyon, and 47 of his followers, including Saint Blandine with the Christians Macturus and Sanctus.

The Jews under Caracalla (211-217)

Caracalla is the name of this monster who slaughtered his brother Geta in his mother's arms, then 20,000 Romans guilty of having mourned the death of the young prince.

During the reign of this emperor, aptly called by an oracle "the ferocious beast of Ansonia",

The Jews were able to indulge themselves to their heart's content against the "Nazarenes."

The Seder Hadoroth states, in fact, on page 125, that:

“In the year 3974 (214 AD), the Jews killed 200,000 Christians in Rome and all the Christians of Cyprus.

The Jews under Diocletian (285-305)

The edict of persecution promulgated by this emperor (303), according to which "all churches were to be demolished, all Christians refusing worship of the empire's gods, sent to "torture," caused Christian blood to flow freely for ten consecutive years, a bloody period which was aptly called the Age of Martyrs.

What role did the Jews play in it?

Their book, the Sefer Juchasin, will tell us on page 108

"At the behest of the Jews, Diocletian killed a great number of Christians, including the popes."

"Caius and Marcellinus, as well as Caius's brother and his sister Rosa."

38 — Gaius was martyred in 295 and Marcellinus, his immediate successor, in 305. Both are canonized.

It was also under Diocletian that Saint Eulalia, virgin of Mérida, was martyred (308). (Spain).

THE JEWS DURING TIMES OF PERSECUTION

Do we not have, in these confessions of the Jews, conclusive proof that the prescriptions of the San-

The teachings of the Talmud did not remain a dead letter for them with regard to the first Christians 1°]?

Were they later on? Did the Jew become somewhat more humane in comparison to the Christian of the Middle Ages?

For example? Let us judge for ourselves:

39 — Under Julian the Apostate (360-363), the Jews were somewhat forgotten by the Christians.

Had not this emperor sworn to pursue the triumph of Judaism over the ruins of Christianity, by

Are there safer means in his thinking than the shedding of Christian blood?

In the very year of his death, did he not attempt the reconstruction of the temple?

Did he not place at the disposal of the Jews the learned architect Alypius of Antioch, former governor of Brittany, and the materials and the workers and the billions needed? (The old temple had cost 12 billions.)

Did he not even go so far as to resist "the whirlwinds of fire erupting from the rubble, devouring tools and...

vriers, > recounts Ammianus Marcellinus, his biographer.

In short, did he not show the Jews every sign of goodwill?

What more did they need?

Did they need Christian blood?

This probably explains the riots in Palestine that they provoked in Ascalon, Gaza, Berys, etc. under the reign of the apostate.

+

CHAPTER III

THE JEWS IN THE MIDDLE AGES (475-1453)

The role that the Jews had played in the persecutions forced the Christians to take measures of caution.

They cared little about living in the company of people who, far from regretting their past, They spoke only of robbing them, plundering them, murdering them, and had no qualms whatsoever about

Do it occasionally.

Saint Cyril of Alexandria (412-450) had been forced to expel them from his episcopal city, because "they had plotted the massacre of Christians" (#1.

Saint Agobard, Bishop of Lyon (840), one of the most famous prelates of the 10th century, formulated the grievances of Christians against Jews, in vigorous writings.

The Church had already expressed concern about this in various individual councils, and especially at the Second Council.

ecumenical council of Nicaea (787) where it renewed, through the voice of the three hundred and fifty bishops present, various prohibitions concerning Jews, notably those against eating and remaining with them.

Could this good mother, indeed, leave her children at the mercy of the rapacious wolves? sisters?

No doubt she imposed upon Christians the obligation not to seek revenge, and to respect life and property.

(legitimate) Jews, but at the same time it required the Jews to begin by respect the lives and property of Christians.

From there, for the Jews, came the ghetto where their wrongdoing was confined and, if they left it, the obligation to...

the obligation to wear the yellow habit and the yellow badge which made them, against their will, cry out to the Christians lost along the way.

Hence, for Christians, this whole set of canonical provisions which, tending to isolate increasingly, the Christian protected the Jew from each other, the former from hatred (Talmu-the Jew's dic, this one, of the reprisals of the Christians (#11.

40 — <“Judæos qui, furore acti, in cæedem christianorum conspiraverunt, juxta leges, puniri sategit”, said the Roman Breviary in the 2nd nocturn of the feast of the saint (February 9).

41 — The Jewish revolution destroyed all of that.

By granting Jews "citizenship rights" that were not owed to them — any more than they are owed to Greenlandic Eskimos — she gave them the power, which they use and abuse today, to us to deprive us, the French, even of human rights, to treat us, as the Talmud dictates, "as seed"

= —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

Not that the Jew completely renounced massacring Christians, but he had to do it discreetly.

lying, surreptitiously, and being content, instead of the bloody hecatombs of the great persecutions, isolated victims of ritual murders.

Ritual murders

Let's recall just a few facts among hundreds [#2

In 1137, young William was an apprentice to a tanner in Norwich (England).

On the eve of Easter, the Jews lured him into their ghetto; the poor little boy cried out; for

To stifle her cries, they put a gag in her mouth.

Then, the Little Bollandists recount, after inflicting a thousand outrages upon him, they crucified him and

They pierced his side, mocking the death of Jesus Christ.

The body now had to be disposed of: it was carried in a sack, outside the walls of the town, to burn it.

He was already hanging from a tree, above the bonfire that was about to be lit, when visitors

Unexpected events caused the assassins to flee.

Here is a Parisian victim:

We read in the French martyrology (March 25):

“In Paris, Saint Richard, a twelve-year-old child, whom the Jews put to death after having exercised on

He committed unheard-of cruelties against him; the miracles that God performed through his intercession clearly demonstrate this.

the price and glory of his martyrdom (1180).

Father Bivère, SJ, in a work published in Antwerp (1634), Sacrum sanctuary of the cross and patient- tiæ, affirms that the relics of our little martyr were kept in the church of the SS. Innocents where they performed many miracles.

He further claims that he was crucified by the Jews (cruci suffixus a perfidis judæis)

There were many other victims: And the blessed Hugh, a child crucified by the Jews in 1255, to Lincoln, "out of hatred for the Catholic religion"; say the Little Bollandists.

And little Dominique Sancius de Val, in Zaragoza, a choirboy at the cathedral, kidnapped, at leaving the mass, by the Jew Moses Albaicet, dragged by force to the synagogue where he was crowned Covered in thorns, crucified, and pierced with a lance! It was Holy Thursday, around the year 1250. The little martyr was born in 1243.

The body was thrown into a pit on the banks of the Ebro River, which flows a stone's throw from the synagogue.

He was miraculously discovered and honorably buried in the church of Saint-Gilles, with This inscription on the reliquary reads: "Here lies the blessed Dominic of Val, put to death in hatred of Our Lord Jesus Christ.

The miracles performed at his tomb led to his being placed on altars. He converted his assassin, the Albaicet Jewish community.

And little Simon, from Trento (Tyrol), 19 months old, also massacred by the Jews, at the approach of Easter, in 1475.

He was robbed by the Jew Tobias while he was playing in front of his father's house, taken to the synagogue gogue where the Jews had plotted the coup.

On the night of Holy Thursday to Good Friday, the old priest Moses stripped the child, the stranger-of livestock. (Tr. Jebam, f. 94, 2, Tos.)

42 — See The Mystery of Blood, by H. Desportes, at Savine's; Christian Blood, by Job, at Gautier's, Paris.

Mr. Desportes cites more than 200 cases of indisputable authenticity.

of -

THE JEWS IN THE MIDDLE AGES

she half-turned a handkerchief around him to prevent him from crying, and, placing him on her knees, exercised

He was subjected to tortures that modesty forbids us to describe.

Then, with a single knife stroke, this monster tore off his right cheek, while the onlookers, ver-

A pack of jackals tore at him, tearing off strips of flesh and sucking his blood. (We add

(nothing to do with the story of the Little Bollandists.)

Finally, one of the executioners is tasked with holding the victim with his arms outstretched in a cross shape and the others pierced her with needles, from head to toe.

The innocent victim did let out a few moans, but they were quickly stifled under the Hebrew shouts of these fanatics: "Let's kill this one like Jesus, the God of the Christians, and that our enemies may thus be forever confounded >.

This is almost verbatim the expressions in the Talmud on the duty to kill Christians.

The innocent victim died on March 24th.

The grieving parents were searching for their child.

— “Look at the synagogue!” shouted the other children, well aware of the local customs. from the ghetto. They went there, but in vain.

The Jews had hidden the body under barrels of wine.

But, fearing the hiding place was inadequate, they threw it into a stream that flowed below. from the synagogue, and to better track the search, they themselves went to inform the authorities that "they had just discovered the body of a child floating on the water."

The ruse was as plain as day.

The justice system had no difficulty in establishing responsibilities and punishing criminals as they

They deserved it!

There was justice in that country, even though it was in the Middle Ages!

It was not enough, alas! to suppress all the crimes of the Jews, because in addition to the "ritual murders > too dazzling, that is to say too dangerous, "they knew how to substitute the profanations Talmu-discs", easier to conceal.

Talmudic Profanations

Here are a few examples:

The Roman martyrology commemorates, on August 9th, the crime committed by the Jews in these terms.

In Beirut, around 765:

"In Berytus, Syria, the memory of the Image of the Savior, which was crucified by the Jews, shed blood in such abundance that the churches of the East and West were flooded with it. "ly provided".

The account given at the Second Council of Nicaea in 787 motivated the prohibition against Christians.

as mentioned above, "to eat and to remain with the Jews".

Here is the translation by Bishop Athanasius, according to the Catholic Missions (April 1997):

"Berytus is a city dependent on Antioch, located on the borders of Tyre and Sidon.

< There are many Jews.

Now, a Christian who had rented accommodation near the great synagogue held above

43 — This is exactly what the Jews accused Brother Flamidien of, without proof of course, in the sensational Lille affair, February 1899.

We see, however, that these practices were not unknown to the Jews of the Middle Ages; we will see-

They will go further than they are to the Jews of the 10th century!

of -

THE SECTARIAN JEW

on his bed was a full-length image of Our Lord Jesus Christ, suitably painted.

After some time, he went to live elsewhere in the city, and taking his furniture with him

Once settled in his new apartment, he forgot the image of the Savior.

"The abandoned dwelling was rented to a Jew."

"He settled down without paying attention to the image."

One day, when the Jew had one of his coreligionists over for dinner, his host, looking up, saw

the image of the Nazarene:

"How," he cried immediately, "you, a Jew, keep such a painting!" And he flew into blasphemies that we cannot repeat.

Upon leaving the house, he went and reported the matter to the leaders of the synagogue.
They came to the next day... accompanied by a crowd of Jews.

"Upon seeing the image, they flew into a rage against the apartment's resident and declared him..."

rent excluded from the synagogue (excommunication).

"Then they take down the painting and say to each other:"

— "Let us mock this Jesus, as our fathers did in the past."

"And they began to spit on the holy image, to slap it, to insult it with every kind of thing."
manner.

— "We have heard that our fathers pierced the hands and feet of Jesus with..."
nails; let us do the same to his image.

And they drive nails into their hands and feet.

— "Our fathers presented him with gall and vinegar in a sponge.

And they held a sponge filled with vinegar to Christ's mouth.

— <"They struck him on the head with a reed.

And they hit the head of the image.

— "Our fathers pierced his side with a spear.

And, having a spear brought in, the leaders of the synagogue gave it to one of the assistants
to
that he pierce the holy painting.

But behold, blood and water flowed abundantly from the wound. Then the leaders of say :

— <“Christians claim that Jesus performed many miracles; let us bear this blood and this water in our synagogue, let us call the sick. We will anoint them with this blood, and then we will see-

We will see if what the Christians say is true.

A vessel filled with the blood flowing from the wound is carried by them, sneering, to the synagogue.

While witnesses, filled with awe at the sight of the miracle, go to find paralytics, blind people, possessed people, all of whom are healed by contact with the miraculous blood!#].

There are desecrations closer to home: We know of the so-called Miracle of the Billettes, 1290, in Paris, and that of the Most Holy Sacrament in Brussels (15th century).

Consecrated hosts, pierced by Jews with knives or daggers, left blood gushed forth upon the desecrators.

44— The desecrators themselves were converted by a greater miracle of divine mercy than the miracle itself. But we only need to point out here the effects of Talmudic hatred of the Jews.
for Christ and Christians.

The synagogue where the miracle occurred is the current mosque of the seraglio, where the wali goes for prayers.

official.

+

THE JEWS IN THE MIDDLE AGES

The miraculous hosts of Brussels, kept in the church of St. Gudula, were the center of attraction of the Eucharistic Congress of 1898.

The reparation for the sacrilege known as the Billettes has been carried out since 1290. (It is now in the church)

Saint-Jean-Saint-François, in the Marais district, 6 rue Charlot, on the 3rd Sunday of Advent.)

In Paris, a statue of the Virgin Mary, placed in a niche at the corner of the two present-day streets:

Roi-de-Sicile and des Rosiers, in the vicinity of the Jewish street, was mutilated in 1428.

A silver statue was placed there with great pomp by Francis I; it was stolen in 1545.

A new wooden statue replaced it; it was broken in 1551.

Finally, a marble statue of considerable weight suffered the same fate as the silver statue; it was stolen and sold to Jews in Germany.

These are just a few facts among a thousand!

Is it any wonder that, under these conditions, Saint Louis felt the need to keep the Jews at home to seize all copies of their monstrous Talmud in 1254 and make them return the goods they had stolen in 1257;

If Philip the Fair — who was not a “clerical” since he waged war against Pope Boniface VIII — Jes chassa in 1306{*};

If Charles VI did the same in 1394;

In short, if the Jews were expelled from Europe seven times since the reign of Charles the Bald, as Father Maury affirmed to the Constituent Assembly!

The badge and the ghettos were not always a sufficient barrier to Talmudic hatred. Jews against Christians.

45 — Pope Gregory IX, on the proof he had just acquired of a Universal Association of Jews formed with the aim of ruining Christian countries, had ordered, in 1239, the entire Episcopate of England-land and Spain to burn Jewish books.

The Alliance Israélite Universelle, founded by Crémieux, has the same goal as the Association Universelle.

The conclusive proof of this will be found further on (See the note in the subtitle: The Jew Crémieux) generalissimo).

46— Alas! They returned in 1316, under Philip the Tall, and took advantage of it, historians say, to to have the public fountains poisoned by lepers.

It was a way to prevent this clerical king from undertaking the crusade he was planning, through a practical reminder leprosy imported from the East by the crusaders.

There were, it seems, bloody reprisals in which the king took part. It was the Jews who suffered the last-

Not a word! The king died at Longchamp shortly afterwards (January 3, 1322), a violent death! Just like Félix Faure!

He was 28 years old!

ds. —

CHAPTER IV

THE JEWS IN MODERN HISTORY

Moreover, if the Jew has ever harbored only such hatred for the Christian, he has, in order to satisfy it, pl-several weapons at his disposal, the use of which he varies according to the circumstances.

When he cannot shed the blood of Christians, he pours lies into their souls: of bou-
Dear, he's just becoming a poisoner, that's all!

Here we also have the testimony of a famous Jew, James Darmesteter, professor of the State, which paints the following portrait, as true as it is unflattering, of its coreligionists in historymodern tower.

The Jew, Doctor of the Unbeliever

We quote:

"The Jew is very good at exposing the Church's vulnerabilities."

"He is the doctor of the Unbeliever."

< All rebels of the spirit come to him in the shadows or in the open sky!#1.

"He is at work in the immense workshop of blasphemies of the great Emperor Frederick (the vain-

(Queen of Rosbach, friend of Voltaire) and of the houses of Swabia and Aragon.

Father of Voltaire and of freethought

"It is he (the Jew, we always quote) who forges this entire murderous arsenal of reasoning and of irony, which he would bequeath to the skeptics of the Renaissance, to the libertines of the grand siècle.

"And such sarcasm from Voltaire is but the last and resounding echo of a word whispered six centuries ago"

previously in the shadow of the ghetto, and even earlier, in the time of Celsus and Porphyry, in the ber-

that of the religion of Christ[#l. >»

47 — "The unbeliever today, the "rebel of the mind," is Jaurès, it is de Pressensé, it is Trarieux,

It's Scheurer-Kestner, it's Clemenceau, it's Zola, it's "the intellectuals" (the whole union in one word), all rushed, indeed, in the shadows or in the open air," to Dreyfus, to Reinach, to Zadoc Kahn, their new “doctors”.

48 — Moreover, this role of poisoner of souls does not cause the Jews to neglect the practice so advantageous to theft, so much so that, under Louis XII, the grievances of the three estates of the Estates General,

The nobility, clergy, and commoners are once again demanding the definitive expulsion of the Jews.

= —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

A phrase by Voltaire, for example, which became famous: "Let us crush the infamous thing," is only a remi-

Origin of the Talmudic precept commented on by the great Rabbi Rashi: "One must strangle the best of Christians p (On Exodus 7:1, Amsterdam edition.)

Voltaire! A vile plagiarist of the Jews—that, certainly, is a valuable discovery, but one that doesn't...

Not surprising.

In any case, it perfectly explains the admiration of all the "intellectuals," Jewish or otherwise.

Yes, for the friend of the King of Prussia, detractor of the great French Catholic Joan of Arc!

What she hardly explains, for example, are the following lines by which the Universe Israelite (October 25, 1895), tries to cover up Freemasonry for the misdeeds attributed to it, too excluded

Specifically, indeed, in our opinion, by Catholics:

“Freemasonry,” he said, “has become the bête noire of the Catholic party and many Bishops are constantly launching their attacks against this satanic sect.

We have neither to defend it nor to attack it, because we admit to being ignorant of it (how naive!)...

But it seems to us that we are approaching the question from a very narrow angle.

"Instead of recognizing that the vast majority of the people have become Voltairean... they prefer attributing this intellectual revolution to a sect whose mystery lends itself to all sorts of speculation and easily captures the imagination...

"If Freemasonry were destroyed, free thought would hardly be affected..."

That's true! The Voltairean spirit would always remain to uphold the spirit of free thought and the spirit of the Talmud to maintain the Voltairean spirit.

That's something the Israelite world hadn't thought of!

He too had "taken the issue from the small side." In this, he is perhaps excusable.

He certainly is no longer so, when he dares to add the following petty infamy:

"It is to freethinking and atheism, which the Jews learned from the Christians, that we must turn."

to take actions that are criticized in certain freethinking or atheist Jews.

If he had possessed the sincerity of the Jew Darmesteter, he would have said:

"It is to freethinking and atheism that Christians learned from Voltaire and that Voltaire..."
had learned from the Jews that one must attack them, etc.

And to think that it was thanks to Voltaire's Jewish arguments that the Jews conquered not
"the human rights > — which no one denied them — but these "rights of French citizens" to which they could not lay claim, since, by their own admission, they were caught a hundred times under the pen or on the lips of their great men, "the Jews are a people apart."

But they apparently needed the "rights of French citizens" to strip the French of their rights.

French citizens of their "Christian rights".

And they succeeded so well that French Catholics can no longer found a school, an association, any kind of "league," or even organizing a procession, without the permission of the Jews who, moreover, refuse it to them most of the time*1.

49 — It is not today that Jews abhor processions.

In the 6th century, under Childebert, son of Clovis, "they jeered at the faithful who attended," recounts Mr. Ray-Mond Lacan in his History of the Jews.

As for the anti-Semitic "leagues," such as the French Fatherland, the Patriots, etc., Mr. Dupuy's zeal in invokingto oppose them — even if it included the League of Human Rights — Article 291 of the Code

The criminal aspect sufficiently proves that the Jews, whose cause he ultimately serves, do not hold them in high regard any more than they do.

holiness than the corporations of old, "the leagues" of that time.

To be fair to Mr. Dupuy, we must add that he refused to sue Mr. Trarieux, the president

Tr —

THE JEWS IN MODERN HISTORY

French Catholics are reduced to being nothing more than a flock of obedient "pariahs".

to the injunctions imperiously hurled at them by Reinach and other escapees from the ghettos of Frankfurt.

This is not the result the Constituent Assembly expected when it granted Jews "the rights of citizen ".

And since we're talking about the Constituent Assembly, it's time to appreciate its work: the Revolution of the League of Human Rights, while prosecuting the presidents of other leagues and that he does not prosecute not at all the illegal "league" of Freemasonry.

But here, there is a compelling reason: he "is part of it—as a member of the Clermont lodge" The children of Gergovia.

Mr. Jules Guérin, general delegate of the "Anti-Semitic League", humorously reminded him of this in front of the

A court that condemned, for appearances' sake!

HO. —

CHAPTER V

THE JEWS AND THE REVOLUTION

The Revolution is essentially Jewish

It is so in the two major acts that essentially constitute it: the Declaration of Rights of man and citizen and the Decree on the naturalization of Jews.

A word from each of them;

The Revolution is Jewish

in the Declaration of the Rights of Man and of the Citizen

This declaration, voted on August 12, 1789, revised in July 1791, submitted to the declarations of

The assembly, presented to the king on September 3rd, and finally signed by him on September 13th, 1791.

bears the title of

<“French Constitution of September 3, 1791”>

One comment only:

Why was this formula chosen: "human and civil rights," when the notebooks Parisian voters were carrying "rights of the nation" slogans? Because this last formula was not favorable only to the French, while the first was favorable to the Jews and prepared the ground for decree of their naturalization.

Why again? Because the formula "human and civil rights" responded fully committed to the social ideal advocated by the Jewish Freemason Dohm of Berlin, in his pamphlet published in 1781: "On the reform of the situation of the Jews."

And that is why this formula "was adopted in public session," says Poujoulat in his History the history of the French Revolution, under the threat of the tribunes, although it was rejected previously by twenty-eight out of thirty offices of the assembly.

50 — It is for the maintenance of this Jewish formula that, concerning the "affair," the Jews spent nearly of sixty million, founded a dozen newspapers, including one "Human Rights," several associations, including one "The League for the Defense of Human and Citizen Rights," a Jewish league to such an extent that

The Jew Cohen, from the Israelite Universe, recommends it (May 1898) as a good way to unite "the masses of his fellow believers > against... the others.

This does not prevent this league, moreover, from having a primary article worded as follows:

"An exclusively French association has been formed!"

The people were not mistaken when they christened it: "The League for the Rights of the Jew".

ee —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

The Revolution is Jewish in the "Decree on the Naturalization of Jews >

Here is that famous decree, dated September 27, 1791:

"The National Assembly, considering that the necessary conditions for being a French citizen and to become an active citizen are fixed by the Constitution and that any man who, meeting the under the same conditions, takes the civic oath and undertakes to fulfill all the duties that the Constitution-tuition imposes, entitles one to all the benefits it provides;

< Revokes all postponements, reservations and exceptions included in previous decrees, re-specifically to Jewish individuals who will take the civic oath.

< Let us command and order... ..

In witness whereof we have signed these presents, upon which we have affixed our seal.
of the State.

Signed: Louis.

And sealed with the seal of the State.

(Below) Port NLP.

To be thorough, the first recital of the decree should have been amended as follows:

<“...Considering that the necessary conditions to be a French citizen and to become

The conditions for active citizenship are defined by the Constitution, that this Constitution was drafted, that these conditions were imposed by the Jews on the French who did not want them, revoked, etc. >»

How was this decree, rejected in thirteen sessions of the Constituent Assembly, finally adopted?

Weary of the war, on September 27, 1791, two days before the Assembly's departure?

He was, first through pleas, then petitions, then threats, and finally...

appeals to the Commune, conveyed to the Constituent Assembly by the Jews Cerfberr and Berr-Isaac-Berr, in the name of the five hundred Jews of Paris.

"The rights of citizens," they said imperiously to the recalcitrant assembly, "must be granted to the Jews without restriction and without delay. > (Memorandum addressed to the assembly on January 28, 1790) (11,

And they were granted citizenship, because, as the Jewish historian Graetz said, "the Jews were losing patience ".

It is therefore a right they owe to "the threat of upheaval".

51 — The two Jews Cerfberr and Berr-Isaac-Berr, at the head of the 500 Jews of Paris, then dominated the Constitution deadly, by the same means that today's Jews dominated Parliament during the Panama scandal, that they dominated the last Assembly of Versailles (February 18) by imposing the election of Mr. Lou-bet, that they currently dominate the Dupuy ministry, the Chamber and the Senate, and are preparing to dominate

The army... if the army gives them the time! (Sixty million have already been spent and the millions are flowing away) always !)

In a word, Cerfberr was the Arton of the Constituent Assembly and Berr Isaac-Berr was its Reinach.

It is this one, no doubt, that the Duke of Broglie was referring to from the tribune (January 19, 1791), according to the Moniteur.

from January 20th

“Among them (the Jews), there is one in particular who acquired his immense fortune at the expense of the State and who

He is spending considerable sums of money in the city of Paris to gain supporters for his cause.

In short, Cerfberr fulfilled the crucial role of "factor" that we will analyze in the "govern-secret Jewish marriage.

in

THE JEWS AND THE REVOLUTION

In that case, what is its value l°21 2.

“The right to citizenship, denied to God, granted to the Jews”

Herein lies the apt observation of Father Lémann:

While the National Assembly, at the outset of its deliberations, opened its proceedings with the "Declaration of the Rights of Man," in which she excluded Jesus Christ from French legislation

In the French context, she concludes her work by granting the Jew, her murderer and age-old enemy, citizenship.

which she refuses to the God-Man), >

Official confessions of the Jews

This is indeed how Jews who advocate for the "Great Revolution" understand it today.

tion > as their work, the quintessential Hebrew work. We quote:

The Israelite Universe, the official organ of the Talmudic Jews, says that: "The Revolution with its egal-

"Unity and its brotherhood is the star of Israel" (September 1867, page 34).

The Archives israélites, the official organ of the Reform Jews, stated on July 6, 1889, that: "1789 is a new Passover” and that “the French Revolution has a very pronounced Hebrew character >”.

Zadoc-Kahn extolled, on September 27, 1895, at the tomb of his predecessor, the Grand Rabbi Isidor:

52 — A threat reinforced by the still fresh memory of the "upheaval" of July 14, 1789, where one saw the heads of DE LAUNAY, FLESSELLE, FOULON and BERTHIER paraded on pikes!

Note that this preliminary "upheaval" had been prepared and executed by the same sectarian man

Jews whose names appear at the bottom of the naturalization decree.

When, on May 21, 1789, less than two months earlier, du Port presented his plan for a Jewish Constitution to the lodge

“The Philalètes,” LAFAYETTE told him:

— <“Here is a very grand plan, what are your means of execution?

— “I know some for sure,” he said, “but I shudder myself just thinking about it...”

"It is only through means of terror that one succeeds in taking the lead of a revolution and governing it."

Instructions were given to the principal agents of the insurrection committee. (Bertrand de Molleville, Hist. réolut. t. 1v, p. 181.)

And then we had the upheaval of July 14th.

It was to the man who had organised it, "to this terrible sectarian," said Louis Blanc (Révol. février, t. 11 p. 318), that the Jews resorted to in order to exert violence against the Constituent Assembly and to deduce from the declaration of the rights of "man and citizen, its logical consequences," that is to say, the naturalization of Jews.

To do violence to the French nation, which demands the continued punishment of a traitor, the Jews have recourse today to Sébastien Faure and Jaurès.

There is waste in the choice of men; the system remains the same.

53 — It is precisely for this reason that, in light of the "failure of science without God" observed by Mr. Brunetière,

We can add the failure of the godless revolution, which everyone has noticed.

Who today does not recognize in the proclamation of the famous "Rights of Man" the consecration official rights of the Jew to plunder, steal, and extort money from everyone, especially the French?

We have only one way left, but it's infallible, to escape the Jew

A new Constituent Assembly is being planned: let it proclaim the "Rights of God" >

This will be the immediate and irreparable ruin of the rights of the Jew, to whom true human rights will now be denied.

should be sufficient.

54— Because this “equality” has enshrined its supposed “aristocratic superiority” over all the peoples, that this "brotherhood" allowed him to plunder and slaughter "the Nazarene" at will, according to the Talmudic prescriptions.

THE SECTARIAN JEW

"This glorious Revolution, which one can well insult and curse, but which one cannot destroy the charitable work.

< Beneficial!> Certainly, for the Jews! Bernard Lazare wrote in the same vein, 9 December 1898, to a Dreyfusard journalist:

"I am certain, my dear friend, that we will still be side by side... to defend the Revolution-
"a tion that we attack and that we will not defeat."

The Jews "defend the Revolution" which "the French attack". Why?

Because this "Revolution" is anti-French, that is to say, Jewish!

Moreover, all revolutions have this "very pronounced Hebrew character," as say the Archives.

We are talking about revolutions that have been made or are yet to be made, using the same method, that of the anarchists.

not at all those which could and should be done legally, in the French way, in the sense of truth and justice for all.

CHAPTER VI

ALL REVOLUTIONS ARE JEWISH

Who was the driving force behind the revolutions in Portugal in 1820 and Spain in 1830?
The Jew Mendizabal became Minister-President of Spain.

Who was the soul of the 1848 revolution? Wasn't it the Jew Crémieux, Grand Master of the Scottish Rite Freemasonry in France, while Baron James de Rothschild was a prominent figure as 33rd in this year's Masonic directory (Pinon's Directory p. 85)?

And wasn't it because Crémieux was the soul of this Revolution that it made him its minister?

Justice?

To those who might still doubt the Jewish origin of the revolutions, let us cite official confessions.

skies as always:

The Revolution of 1848 was Jewish

"The powerful revolution that was brewing in Germany (1848) developed under the influence of the Jews > said the English Jew Disraeli, in his Coningsby (p.183), London 1844.

"Modern ideas are the future of Judaism"

At a Jewish council held in Leipzig on June 29, 1869 (on the eve of the terrible year), where on behalf of their coreligionists from various European countries, the Chief Rabbis of France, from England, Germany, Russia, the Netherlands, Belgium, Turkey, etc. the agenda

The following was voted on unanimously, on the proposal of Dr. Philipson of Bonn and under the chairmanship of Professor Lazarus's denunciation of Berlin:

"The synod recognizes that the development and realization of modern ideas (imbued with

(of the Talmudic hatred of the Christian) constitute the surest guarantee for the present and for the future of Judaism and its children.

Is it enough to say that modern ideas, that is to say revolutionary ideas, in the Jewish sense of the word, are exclusively Jewish?

And this was said and applauded by the official representatives of all the Jews of Europe, in front of the Chief Rabbi of France, on the eve of the 1870 war which was to unleash all the ghettos in Germany.

55— Lazare Isidor.

56 —We gained Reinach, the key figure in the Dreyfus and Mayer syndicate, from the Lanterne. This-

THE SECTARIAN JEW

The internationalist revolution will be Jewish

But what's the point of insisting?

Do we not see, at the very moment when the so-called socialist Revolution is being prepared under our eyes, the German Jews Lasalle, Aron, Singer, Friedlander, Packuscher, the French sons-in-law of

The Jews Guesde and Lafargue, the son of the Jewish Millerand de la Lanterne, led this revolution, under the posthumous patronage of the English Jew Karl Marx, in the Talmudic sense, which will be like always the beneficiary?

At the Internationalist Congress in Stuttgart (October 1898) what do we see?

The Jewish millionaire Singer was elected chairman of the board, the Jewish Kloss was elected vice-chairman, the Jew

Schoenlank, the Jewish Luxembourg newspaper editor, took an important part in the debates, which Guesdel*¹ attends.

Don't we all see these Jews from the congress, in concert with the Jews of the Dreyfus syndicate, secretly direct the strike of the navvies that they are fomenting on one side, with their gold, while accumulating

On the other hand, were the Jesuits responsible for having provoked it?

Yes, the internationalist revolution will benefit the Jew.

This is the inevitable fate of all revolutions. He who refuses to see it is truly blind!

But why is the Jew the soul of all revolutions? Here it is;

Revolutions are revenge

from the Talmud on the Gospel

"This is the idea expressed by the illustrious leader of anti-Semitism, Edouard Drumont, in his letter to M. de Pontigny, which serves as a preface to Rohling's The Jew According to the Talmud (p. 1.1):

"All revolutions," Proudhon very rightly said, "are theological revolutions."

"The general crisis in which the world is currently struggling can be summarized as a Word: The Revenge of the Talmud on the Gospel.

Grand pronouncements on philosophy, human rights, the regeneration of humanity, which, during the early years of this century, served the Jew as a smokescreen to operate at ease, they no longer fool anyone; it's an old paper set that tears and falls away shreds... >

"Revolutions are the Talmud's revenge on the Gospel!"

Let us remember this word, and here is the unadorned commentary:

He, as we know, ran off with the cash!

57 — At the afternoon session (October 8), Guesde conveyed the congratulations of the French socialists to

German socialists affirmed, in conclusion, "international solidarity among socialists of all countries."

And this at the very moment when the German socialists had just declared that "in the event of war with France they would march against her as one man! See the press of October 9th.

Two years earlier (June 1896), at Marguery's house, the French socialists offered a luncheon to the "grand

German socialist > Liebknecht, Mr. Jaurès declared, to the applause of Messrs. Guesde, Lafargue, Millerand, Jourde, Chamoin, Vaillant, Gérault-Richard, Fournière, etc. that:

The French and Germans, whose respective geniuses are made to understand each other, do not have to take into account the

"Fratricidal struggles provoked by despots."

Two years later, at the Stuttgart congress, German socialists asserted that they would "find > definitely "counts", "in case of war with France".

And Mr. Guesde was still applauding!

Is it any wonder that these people adopted as their rallying cry: "Down with the army!"

— $S6 —

ALL REVOLUTIONS ARE JEWISH

After nearly nineteen centuries of adventurous existence, Christianity is finally on the verge to come to an end...

< In vain the Tiara struggles against the specter of the Jewish Revolution of 1793, in vain he (sic) wants to to free himself from the iron grip of the Semitic colossus that embraces him!

All his efforts are in vain!

"The danger is imminent and papal Catholicism is dying as Judaism penetrates into all levels of society, animates the world and breathes a zephyr of life into the nostrils of peoples (sic)! >»

Who is speaking like this?

L'Haschophet, Algerian newspaper, in an article entitled The Agony of the Roman Universe (April 1894)!

This confession, gleaned from a synagogue leaflet, in a country where the synagogue does not disguise

Isn't his thinking suggestive?

This is just a taste of other, more contemporary confessions that will be found during the course of our demonstration.

This brings us, for the moment, to the Jews of the 10th century.

58 — From these expressions of hatred, these desires for savage destruction, inspired by the Talmud, brought closer-

The program of this "papal Catholicism" was formulated again by Leo XIII on his feast day (11

April 1899) in a hymn to peace, the conclusion of which is as follows:

"It would be a step backward and a ruin to try to remove civilization from the breath of Christianity which gives it its life and which alone can preserve its solidity of existence and the fruitfulness of its results.

On one side, love and peace; on the other, hatred and upheaval.

No, the real enemy is not the Protestant, nor the Freemason, who still, despite everything, a little bit of love in the heart, with a little bit of French blood, that is to say Christian, in the veins.

The enemy is the Jew who has nothing left, nothing in his heart but hatred for the Christian, nothing in his veins that of Talmudic blood, that is to say cosmopolitan, against the French.

+ —

CHAPTER VII

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

It seemed that once the Jew was admitted into the great French family, his hatred against the Christian

He was finally going to disarm.

This is indeed the result that the Commune's commissioners, Godard, Berto-lo, Duvergier, Fauchet, Mulot, president, when they wrote to the Assembly on February 24, 1790 constituent:

<... In the name of humanity and the Fatherland, in the name of the social qualities of the Jews, of their virtues patriotic, out of their fervent love of liberty, we beseech you to grant them the title and the rights which it would be unfair for them to be deprived of any longer >

The social quality of the Jew, we see it flourishing today in his hatred of the Christian; his Patriotic virtue, in his hatred of the army!

As for this freedom for which he professed "such a keen love," he uses it to the benefit of his double hatred against the Church and the Fatherland, against "the sword and the holy water sprinkler".

This "social quality," this "patriotic virtue," this "love of liberty," we will to glimpse them vividly and appreciate them at their true value in the quick, but obligatory description gatoire, which we will outline here from the secret government of the Jews.

Because they have a government, to which the secret government of Freemasonry and the The official government of the Republic itself is nothing but a bauble!

The secret government of the Jews, "the Kahal >

This government is called Kahal.

It is universal. Its center is in Paris, at 44 rue de la Victoire, headquarters of the great synagogue, and its circumference nowhere, for if it had one, it could only be that of one of the two hemispheres of the globe and it radiates over both at once, through its extensions natural elements, the Kahals of the large and small synagogues that go from one end of the world to

The other route is from Paris to Sydney via New York and San Francisco, and from Sydney to Paris via Alexandria.

59 — It was “in the name of humanity and the fatherland” that the Communards addressed their adju-rations, in 1790!

It is "in the name of civilization and humanity" that Mr. Dupuy, on January 20, "in the name of freedom and of justice >, that the f.: Barthou, May 20, 1899, addressed them to the Chamber, in favor of the Jews of Algeria!

Always the same old story!

— S0 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

Constantinople, Vienna and Berlin l5°1.

It is absolute, with an absolutism that surpasses that of Louis XIV and Napoleon, since Louis XIV and Napoleon at least left Parliament the right of remonstrance, which the Kahal does not recognize to no one.

He holds both legislative and executive power in his hands.

He has the power of life and death, his decisions are infallible and his rulings are final!

He has, at his command, always discretionary, a judiciary to impose them, a police force to monitoring its implementation, a budget to fund its police and civil servants, a tax for to fund its budget, which tax is voted on without the taxpayers' opinion, distributed without control and paid without complaint.

"The decisions of the 'Kahal' are not subject to any control and do not require approval."

"Whoever it may be," says an official document from the Holy Bet-Din dated 26 Nisan, Minsk (Russia).

5,560 (April 1800).

This is the power of the doges of Genoa and Venice, extended and exercised by the Jew over the world whole; we are realizing this today in France!

This secret government, an old memory of the all-powerful Sanhedrin, in the days of glory of Israel, has always functioned, since its dispersion throughout the world, insofar as the

This allowed him, of course, what he now calls "medieval intolerance," which was only the very limited use of the right of self-defense.

Napoleon I restored its lost glory by reconstituting the Grand Sanhedrin in 1806.

France, which was to have a profound influence on all Jewish people, just as Napoleon had his influence on Europe.

and the world.

He thought he had enslaved him, but he had just given himself a Master.

From the day the Emperor decreed (1808) that "Jews were forbidden to lend on pledges;

"That the bills of exchange issued by Christians in favor of Jews, for loans made by these latter were to be limited to a certain amount;

"That the relocation of Jewish families had to be surrounded by precautions and difficulties," etc. >

From the day Napoleon decreed these just restrictions against the Jews, the Sanhedrin (the Kahal), for its part, decreed the downfall of Napoleon!

“God will send our enemy so much sorrow,” said the Jews in their traditional prayer, that he will no longer be able to think about tormenting us!

Indeed, Napoleon fell at Waterloo (1815), while the Kahal remained, more vigorous as ever [1]!

60 — The Chief Rabbi of France, Zadoc-Kahn, sends circulars to Jews around the world: his circular to the Jews of America, for example, published in New York, on July 1, 1898.

His predecessor, Chief Rabbi Lazare Isidor, acted in the same way.

And on his tomb, inaugurated in September 1895, the Chief Rabbi of Paris, Dreyfus, was able to celebrate "the damned-

the power of his influence, of his credit which was so successfully asserted in all spheres, in all

In circles where Mr. Isidor's personality and name were surrounded by respect and veneration.

IT exalted "its effective intervention in favor of... all those who, in France, as throughout the world, addressed themselves to him >. (Israelite Universe, Oct. 2, 1895).

61 — "The all-powerful Emperor had against him this mysterious force of finance to which

"One cannot resist, even when one is Napoleon F," said Mr. Léon Say one day from the Tribune. > (France Jewish, vol. 1, p. 327.)

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

We feel it all too clearly, alas! in contemporary events. But it is not enough To feel it, you have to see it; that is why we are going to show it in all its hideousness.

The Kahal Code

We know this code.

It's the Talmud! We talked about it in the first part.

The Talmud is indeed the fundamental constitution of the Jewish people, whose supreme aspiration:

THE],

"His conquest of the entire world"

But this Constitution, in practice, needs to be interpreted. It is interpreted by the laws of the Kahal.

The Kahal enacted a great deal of legislation, especially in Russia, from 1790 to 1833.

A converted Russian Jew, Brafmann, had the idea of publishing all these ordinances (more than a thousand) in his Book on the Kahal, published in Vilna in 1870. It is a faithful summary of the customary law of Israel, its code of jurisprudence.

It moved the Russian authorities to such an extent that they seriously considered abolishing it in 1871

Kahal, in the northern provinces.

It moved the Jews much more, who succeeded in suppressing the work and the author.

However, a copy fell into the hands of another Russian, Mr. de Wolski, who published, in French, in 1887, the summary of the Book on the Kahal, published by Savine, under the title: Jewish Russia.

The Jews succeeded in ruining the publisher, Mr. Savine, who filed for bankruptcy in 1898.

As for the book, the bulk of the first edition went into the hands of a Jewish bookseller.

pornographer, well known in Paris; another part, about 200, await in the hands of the Jews of the pawnshop, with the end of a trial against them, the time has come to join the other exemto please the pornographic Jew, where the pestle in turn awaits them.

Happier, a dozen copies, sheltered in a suburban bookstore, for a moment

Sniffed out by our Jew, they managed to escape him. They were asking too much!

They are safe now; one of them has come into our hands.

This has given us the good fortune to be able, as we do, to throw to the four winds from the sky the impenetrable mysteries of this cave of brigands called the Kahal.

We will explore it together:

The universal and absolute power of the Kahal

This is proven beyond a reasonable doubt by the following fact:

The Emperor of Russia (Alexander II) had established a Commission for the Study of the Jewish Question in his states.

"Mr. Derjawine, a Russian writer and member of this Commission, published the report" in Moscow, 1860.

"He recounts, on pages 796 and following:

A letter from a chief rabbi

"A letter seized from a Jew in White Russia, written by a chief rabbi of that country and"

62 — "The Messiah will return the royal scepter to the Jews, all peoples will serve him, and all kingdoms will be his."

subject to. > (Treaty of Schab., fol. Z20,1. Treaty of Sanhedrin, f. 88, 2, 99, 1.)

+

THE SECTARIAN JEW

addressed to a very influential Jew from Strasbourg, enjoying immense wealth, attested to the power-health, organization of the Jewish people, and the immense financial sacrifices that the Jews were prepared to make to support, in order to paralyze, by all possible and, admittedly, dishonorable means, the action of the Commission established by His Majesty the Emperor.

Derjawine is cursed in all the synagogues of the world

In this letter, it was stated that the Jews cursed Derjawine as their greatest enemy.

and persecutor of the Jews, and pronounced upon him a Herem (anathema) which is repeated by all the synagogues throughout the world, to which this fact has been communicated;

One million rubles spent to have him expelled from the Commission

"That, in order to settle this 'affair', that is to say, to leave the Jewish question in the status quo,

All the Jews from all of Russia and other countries contributed and sent 1,000,000 rubles, silver, to bribe anyone corruptible and to get dismissed from the Commission instituted by the emperor their mortal enemy, the Attorney General Derjawine;

A bounty has been placed on Derjawine's head

"If, however, all means proved powerless to obtain his expulsion from the Commission, poison or any other means must eliminate this great persecutor from this world and an enemy of the people of Israel;

That, in order to execute this order, the Jews of Saint Petersburg were assigned to carry it out tion a period of six years;

Meanwhile, muddying the Jewish question

"In the meantime, it was necessary to use every expedient to make money —" which would not be lacking — the high-level influences aimed at dragging out the issue

[63]

Jewish 1, because all hope of an advantageous solution was illusory, as long as Derjawine would participate tie of the Commission or would not have ceased to exist;

The whole world set in motion

"In order to aid the efforts of the Jewish Committee of Saint Petersburg to obstruct and confuse"

Regarding the Jewish question, the Commission established by the Emperor would receive written submissions from all countries in all languages, written by the most capable Jews, addressing the issue and demonstrating how

6] ; a serious question indeed for the Jews, since it was not a matter of it had to be resolved in Russia nothing less than taking away their right to sell brandy in the taverns of small towns and countryside, where, for them, the art of stupefying the peasants through drunkenness, abuse and adulteration of Alcoholic beverages have become the most profitable form of speculation.

Final maneuvers

Derjawine then recounts how "the emperor was indeed flooded with a deluge of mis-

63 — This "affair" has been going on for two years now here, and it's not over yet!

64— The Bjærnsens, the Conybeares, and other Jews "the most capable in the whole world" have succeeded so well

In our country, we've made things so complicated that many French people can no longer see clearly!

The light is starting to come through, and it's brilliant!

Er —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

memoranda, brochures, etc., in French, German, English;

How the Jew Notko, who had gained Derjawine's trust, offered him 200,000 rubles in exchange for his commitment not to oppose the conclusions of his colleagues the commissioners;

How Derjawine had kicked away what he considered to be a betrayal;

How, in order to punish him, the Jews had ruined his influence with the emperor;

How they had finally managed to buy, through the influential Jew Peretz, for 30,000 ducats each (approximately 300,000 francs), the vote of the majority of the Commission members for the status quo that the Jews were demanding.

This is the counterpart to the "Dreyfus affair," which may not achieve the same success, but This also explains the Kahal's absolutism, which doesn't even allow for suspicion of its Infallibility. Consider the following official documents:

It was forbidden to denounce Kahal to the Christian authorities.

No. 134

Saturday, 25 Sivan 5562 (June 1802).

The members of the Kahal, after deliberation, decided:

Considering that it was proven at the previous session that Rebe Josée, son of Aviel, by his
The denunciation against the Kahal had exposed this Jewish institution to bear very large expenses, in order to mitigate the effect of said denunciation;

Considering that, for this reason, the Kahal has decreed to remove half of the said Rebe Josée's place

at the synagogue;

Having acknowledged that this punishment is not severe enough, the Kahal, in its session today,

wishing to increase it, decrees: that the said Rebe Josée, son of Aviel, shall be deprived forever of the title

[de Moreinel®], Therefore, when he arrives at the synagogue to pray, he will be invited to approach the Torah after all the others, and whoever calls him must precede his name of Habor (boor, ill-born).

Furthermore, Rebe Josée, son of Aviel, is forbidden ever to appear before the holy tribunal Bet-Dinel®l.

It is forbidden to insult a member of the Kahal

No. 170

Monday, 22 Elivat 5562 (October 1802).

65 — We are talking about the final success.

The Jews achieved a temporary triumph through the referral of the trial to the court-martial in Rennes.

delivered on June 3, by the combined chambers of the Court of Cassation.

This is just one episode; the outcome can only be a definitive victory for the French!... unless he

We must not seal the tomb of France and inscribe there the end of Galliae, the end of despair!

No way! That's impossible!

66— The document classified in Brafmann's Book on the Kahal, under number 132.

67 — Title of nobility awarded by the Kahal, essential for being elected a member of this all-powerful body court.

68 — This means: subjected to all possible and imaginable vexations from his coreligionists, against to which he no longer has any recourse before any Jewish court.

= =

THE SECTARIAN JEW

The members of the Kahal, considering that the Rebe Haim, son of Abraham, having insulted once already the president of the Kahal, an offense for which he was punished by the loss of the title of Moreïne and a fine of 5 ducats for the benefit of the Kahal treasury; that the said Rebe Haim, instead of to correct, had the misfortune again, upon approaching the holy table, to insult in a manner serious, and this in the presence of several people, several members of the Kahal;

The Kahal, in its entirety, decides that the said Rebe Haim, son of Abraham, will be excluded for all-days of the funeral brotherhood, of which he had been a member until that day; that, moreover, he is condemned to a fine of 10 ducats, which he must pay immediately into the Kahal treasury. — As for his title of

Moreïne, from whom he was already deprived in the previous session

[70

, the notaries of the city [7] not to include this title, even in written documents, when they are required to mention the Rebe Hahn's name, son of Abraham.

The Kahal Magistrates

It is called the Bet-Dine.

It is merely the judicial section of the Kahal to which every Jew must blindly submit.

Let us judge, according to the Hoschen Hamischpat of the Israeli code, how exclusive it is in its responsibilities:

Jews are forbidden to have a trial before Christian courts, to prosecute a interest before the civil and administrative courts of the goim, even in cases where Jewish law and

The views of the goyim would agree, even if both sides demanded a judgment from the courts.

Christian.

Anyone who violates this decision will be considered a criminal, because such an action would be a blasphemy against the law of Moses (ch: xxvi, p. 1).

In this case, one must pronounce against the guilty party a Hindu (minor excommunication) which will weigh on him until he withdraws his complaint filed in the Gentile courts, and if he

If he persists in his crime, he must be anathematized by the Herem (major excommunication).

The same punishment will be applied to any supporter of the guilty party, and even to one who would employ a non-Jewish authority to force his opponent to appear before the Bet-Dine.

Especially in the present times, when Jews remain subject to the laws of foreign domination and cannot have their judges, the Bet-Dine court must interfere in every matter, every interest, of every question, every difficulty that arises between Jews. Thus he must judge: loans and borrowings, Marriage contracts, donations, inheritances, claims concerning losses!" etc. He must to set fines for damage caused to livestock belonging to another individual, etc.

It continues the restitution of stolen goods and plunder, but not punishment through corporal punishment.

which is not within his jurisdiction.

However, if it concerns the morality of the Jewish people in general (Talmudic morality being the case)

(tend), the BetDine has the right to deal with offenders through fines, corporal punishment, and even death.

If the culprit is influential and wealthy, the Bet-Dine must reach an agreement with the Kahal, in order to bring forth an opportunity to hand him over to the Christian courts.

His fortune is declared Hefker (available to the first buyer who comes along), in order to arrive at the

69 — Book on the Kahal, by Brafmann, under number 167

70 — This refers to the Israelite city, of course, the city that the Jews consider their own, if they are in majority, or as belonging to them, if they are in the minority.

71—Hoschen-Hamischpat, ch. 1, p. 1.

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

as quickly as possible to completely annihilate and destroy the one who disobeys the holy laws from the Talmud > interpreted by "Bet-Dine the holy > and "Kahal of the infallible > .

"If it concerns the trial of two Jews whom the Bet-Dine could not reach an agreement on, it refers them to the Gentile courts, not through incompetence on their part, but to punish two recalcitrants who have deserved this humiliation.

In any case, the authorization he gives them to appear before this foreign court does not must not be revealed to the Gentile judges, under penalty of the offender having to pay the opposing party

(ch. xxvi, p. 4) the excess of the fine that could have been imposed by application of Jewish law, by the Bet-Dine.

“Even in this case, the final decision rests with the Bet-Dine and the Kahal, who, before sending the

The litigants before the Goy court had them both sign blank bills of exchange, by which they will modify at will the sentence to be handed down: >

And woe to the Jew who would denounce such practices!

It is forbidden to denounce the Jewish court to the Christian authorities

It was for having forgotten this, in 1802, that the Jew Meer incurred the following condemnation:

No. 146.

“Saturday, second day of the passage of Kouczhi, feast of Tabernacles, 5562 (1802).

"Since Rebbe Meer, son of Michael, had the insolence to denounce the saint!? Bet-Dine to Christian authorities, the representatives of the Kahal decided to punish him by stripping him of his title of Moreïne, and henceforth for all eternity his name shall be preceded by Havera (malborn). >

Against the recalcitrant

The sanctioning of the Bet-Dine's judgments is enshrined in the following official regulations: "dis-

cut and approved by the general meeting composed of representatives of the city, members of the

The entire Kahal, members of the Bet-Dine, published by Brafmann, under the

No. 148

Here is a summary:

"1. If someone of the Jewish religion, summoned by the Samoche (synagogue usher) for to file before the Bet-Din, does not obey...

If he does not submit to the judgment rendered... a Herem will be launched against him (excommunicated). :
major tion).

If Sile Herem had no result, the Bet-Dine drew up a report and recorded it...

After which the Samoche will have to consult the Secret Persecutor (Feigah-Gamel) about what he

It is appropriate to do this to bring the guilty party to repentance and will scrupulously observe his instructions.

cations.

2. If the persecutions are useless, after three days he is declared to have forfeited his title of member of the synagogue and the owner of all his movable and immovable property which will sold to compensate the Bet-Dine.

72 — In official document no. 23, it is entitled "the infallible and Saint Bet-Dine" and in twenty places different.

—_0—

THE SECTARIAN JEW

The surplus, if any remains, will go into the Kahal's coffers.

3. If one party summons another before the BetDine, let only three judges be present, these three judges, except in exceptionally serious cases requiring the presence of the full court. must immediately investigate the case and render a judgment, without appeal.

4° If one of the parties, dissatisfied with the judgment, summons the other before the Christian tribunal, the Ka-

Hal and the Bet-Dine warn her that she will have to pay all the costs of the new trial and will incur plus the Herem (major excommunication).

S° Before the Christian court, it is forbidden for any Jew to testify against a coreligionnaire; but every Jew who is in a position to do so is commanded to testify for it.

(QE

FE

8. The Samoches must meet once a month to elect a secret persecutor, and this one-
He must solemnly swear that he will spare no one in the world, not even his closest relatives.

parent... that he will do everything in his power, in short, to ensure respect for the holy tribunal of Bet-Dine, instituted by the Talmud.

The Secret Persecutor

Here are his main duties towards those who resist, according to the official document:

No. 149

1° Ensure that the excommunicated person by the Herem no longer holds any position in the Kahal or in the Herveis (brotherhoods).

2° Ensure his complete exclusion from the confraternities

This

4. Ensure that he is not invited to any general meeting, any special party, under Herem's punishment for the inviters.

S° Ensure that no one rents him a bedroom or dwelling where he can practicecer a trade ..., excluding his wife herself from the Purification ceremony.

For it is understood that at the supreme and fatal hour all misfortunes must befall like lightning on the guilty party (Upchito chebeïam pokdaî infkadlolo of vasteï).

6. If he has a job, make sure that no Jew gives him work.

7° To allow the father who had promised his daughter in marriage to not keep his promise.

8. To allow everyone in the synagogue to accuse him, even falsely, of having eaten trif (non-kosher meat), violated the prescribed fasts, in order to incite fanaticism among the Jewish people and to subject the guilty party to all forms of persecution.

< All of the above (nos. 148 and 149) was decided unanimously by the general meeting comsubmitted by members of the Kahal and the Bet-Dine and approved by Chief Rabbi Garof-Gagadol.

And all signed under the required oath, so that all this would be followed up punctually.

ment. >

We see that the Kahal and the Bet-Dine are not kind to their subordinates, that their

This method of governing is not without analogy to that of the Terror (which was, moreover, inspired by the Jews Cerfberr and Berr-Isaac-Berr).

But one would shudder at the thought of seeing a police force like the next:

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

The Kahal secret police

In cities inhabited by Jews, such as Paris, Lyon, etc., you find at every turn, at street corners, in front of shops, hotels, police stations, administrative offices, etc., suspicious-looking individuals who are quick to offer you their services.

They are the police of Kahal, their real name being its messengers.

They are an anthill, unleashed by him daily, like a pack, on the trail of all business.

They are mainly concerned with finding applicants for positions, jobs, posts, etc.

business start-ups, to enter into negotiations with them, to gauge the benefit they can derive from it through their mediation.

This benefit belongs to the Jewish community or to them, and often to both.

In the first case, they are paid by the Kahal; in the second case, they pay the Kahal their right to mediation; in the third case, everything is to their advantage; they have nothing to pay to Kahal, which, on the contrary, pays them directly and, in addition, leaves them their potential share of the profit.

in the case.

This mediation is carried out in four main cases:

1° Between two goyim;

2° Between two Jews;

3° Between a Jew and a goy;

4° Between the Kahal and the goyim.

And here are the solutions for each of them:

1° Between two goyim, they are both rolled;

2. Between two Jews, it's more delicate, obtaining the most advantageous solution for the Kahal or

"For oneself, depending on whether one is paid by him or has paid him!"

3° Between a Jew and a goy; it is the goy who must be tricked;

4. Finally, between the Kahal and the goyim, there is no possible hesitation; the Kahal is infallible, it must Therefore, to be right.

The Dreyfus affair offers us a striking example of the latter case.

On one side, the Kahal, represented by Rothschild, president of the Central Consistory, and the great Rabbi Zadoc-Kahn!

On the other hand, the General Staff (of the army of the goyim).

Postman Reinach doesn't hesitate; it's the Kahal who must be right!... or beware of "the chaos-

Crazy!

We have just named Reinach, because there are factors at all levels of the social scale, from fairground runners to check dispensers in the corridors of Palais-Bourbon! Reinach the uncle, Arton, Cornelius Herz, were postmen!

73 — We find the case in the following order of the Kahal in order to settle a dispute that occurred between him, Kahal, and a Jew, on the sold right to exploit a goy.

No. 177.

"As a consequence of the dispute that arose between the Kahal and the sons of the late Aria, regarding the right of ex-

Regarding the exploitation of stores belonging to Arbirei (an Orthodox prelate), the representatives of the Kahal decided to assign the power of the seven representatives of the city to Rebbe Moses, son of James, so that he might arrange and pleads the interests of the Kahal, either before experts chosen for this purpose, or before the tribunal of the saint

Bet-Dine >

=

THE SECTARIAN JEW

They exist at all levels; they cater to all specialties: agriculture, commerce, industry-sorting, businesses of all kinds.

Some provide servants; others arrange marriages; these corrupt the police of the goyim, some of them the judges, others the deputies, etc.

Once the postman's operation is complete, he must submit a detailed report to the Kahal, which then classifies it.

in the archives and finds it there when needed:

1° An excellent practical lesson for the apprentice "postmen" of the future;

2° A powerful means of action against the "goy" who used the "good offices" of the Jew/11.

We draw this last point to the attention of Catholics who believe they have excellent reasons for not to refuse money from Jews under the pretext of "good works".

When we reproach these Pharisees for their persecution of the Church, they are not not embarrassed to respond like the Israelite Universe (October 25, 1895):

"Our hatred of the Church is so evident that in many parishes around Paris, the Priests do not hesitate to resort to Jewish charity for restoration, embellishment, or maintenance of their churches.

"An even more ironic sight! We sometimes see our fellow believers begging in churches" for Catholic charities and to contact us to request our assistance.

This competition is very costly for us, decorating a criminal hand with the appearance of charity.

who plunges the dagger into the heart of the Church and of France every day!

We excuse the good faith of some; this does not exempt us from condemning monstrous hypocrisy.

true to others, to point out the audacity with which they succeeded in extending their cor-system

an eruption even within the sanctuary!

Gold! But it is with gold that all the Jews owe all their decisive successes, in Russia, in France, Poland, Algeria; it is with gold that they may finally be right, in a moment.

Alone against all of France in the "Dreyfus Affair"!

That's because the gold, wisely channeled from all points of the Jewish world into the Kahal's coffers, ensures a formidable budget of secret funds in perpetuity, which he uses to pay his agents.

and provides them with the irresistible weapons of corruption.

But where does he get this gold?

In taxes.

74 — This is the explanation of a passage from the famous Jewish program published by Sir John Readcliffe, attacked with so much violence by the Israelite Universe, October 95.

We understand his fury!

Here is the passage:

“All public jobs must be accessible to Israelites, and, once they have become permanent employees, we

Through the perspicacity of our FACTORS, we will be able to penetrate to the very source of true influence and true power.

They are there today, with Mr. Loubet at the Presidency of the Republic and Mr. Dupuy at the Presidency of the Advice, thanks to the "insight" and also the dishonesty of the "postman > Reinach!

This is what Mr. Quesnay de Beaurepaire proved, without any possible refutation, in his book "Panama and the Republic > and in his deposition at the assizes court where Messrs. Déroulède and Marcel Habert were appearing,

May 30th:

"Mr. Loubet was Reinach's accomplice in the Panama trial," he said, in essence.

This is how Mr. Reinach, the nephew, controls Mr. Loubet! This is how Mr. Loubet presides over France, under the

The "postman" Reinach cut, on behalf of the Kahal presided over by Mr. de Rothschild!...

Er =

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

Kahal taxes

They are of two kinds: ordinary taxes and extraordinary taxes.

We are not talking at all about the fees levied on Jewish religious ceremonies: circumcision, purification, funeral rites, etc., these rights being assimilated, rightly or wrongly, to factory revenues.

We are only talking about the secret taxes collected by the Kahal, without the knowledge of the French government.

or at least without him being aware of it and to which he did not for a moment consider applying the subscription law.

Business transaction tax, etc.

PS] is still making it

The Kahal, "sovereign master of the property and persons of non-Jews > dispenser to the Jews. We explain the operation further on.

But in return for the right granted to this or that Jew to exploit this or that property, this or that person

From non-Jews, he levies a tax of one percent on each commercial transaction.
industrial, etc., etc., of the exploiter.

He declares, under threat of excommunication (from the herem), the exact state of his situation financial matters before the Kahal, which immediately taxes its lucrative operations: pawn loans, letters of currency exchange, promissory notes, sales, rentals, etc.

Attached is an order from the Minsk Kahal, showing the nonchalance with which the Jews know how to establish a new tax.

It is classified by Brafmann under the

No. 57.

"Thursday, the fifth day of Easter week, 5558 (1798). Because of the great expenses that the Kahal has been forced to make recently, expenses for which it cannot repay account... the members of the Kahal decided that a new tax on trade will be levied, calculated on the same basis as that which was instituted by the Kahal of the city of Sklow, without any variation tion in the mode of perception.

We must start paying this tax from the 1st of next VAT year (June)...

Furthermore, 800 silver rubles must be collected to cover the deficit in the Kahal treasury.

The sum that each taxpayer pays for the aforementioned contribution will be considered as a advance payment on the tax known as the company tax.

If the civilian governor of the city of Minsk does not approve this new tax, the members of the Kahal instructs the distributors to collect it despite the governor's opposition.

These last words need explanation.

In Russia, the Jews reduced the government to choosing its tax collectors from among themselves.

He approves of the Kahal's taxes, but on the condition that the Kahal collect the taxes from government over the Jews, its subordinates.

If the government does not approve the taxes levied by Kahal, Kahal, as we can see, knows how to manage without them.

his approval.

In France, it's nothing like that; the government ignores the taxes of Kahal, which votes on its own taxes.

75 — “His (the non-Jew’s) life is in your hands, all the more so his money,” says the famous Bechai (on the Pentateuch, 214, 1).

= Ed —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

He sees things as he pleases, forms his own perception, and doesn't need anyone's approval.

The tax on commercial and industrial operations, etc., is a first and abundant one source.

There is a second one, no less abundant, in the tax on the box we have just... to speak, in other words, the tax on kosher meat.

The kosher meat tax

It is known that Jews cannot eat certain animals considered unclean (pork, for example).
for example), following the prescriptions of the Bible (Leviticus and Deuteronomy).

They can no longer eat pure animals that are not killed in a certain way.

The Schulchan Aruch (general collection of Talmudic laws) describes it in this way.
It devotes 56 chapters. We make it possible thanks to our readers.

Its meticulous execution requires special tools and special butchers (the shochel) special slaughterhouses, which are strictly controlled by special agents of the Kahal.

Under all these conditions, the meat is kosher and can be eaten by Jews.

Woe to the butcher who omits a single one of these prescriptions in the slaughter of his Stupid, woe to the Jew who would buy it! Fines and excommunications would rain down upon them!

This ensures that the Kahal receives the full amount of its tax, which is distributed across these four main points.

1. So much on each animal slaughtered in the Jewish slaughterhouse;

2. So much on each bird killed;

3. So much on each pound of meat sold;

4. As for the fines imposed on lawbreakers.

It is difficult to get a precise idea of the richness of this source:

But we can get a rough idea.

Let's say that in Paris there are only ten thousand Jews (there may be 50,000)!

Let's say that the sixty (approximately) kosher meat butchers each issue one pound of meat per day on average, taxed at only 10 cents.

That would be exactly: $0.10 \times 10,000 = 1,000$ fr.

That's a thousand francs a day or 365,000 francs a year! for the benefit of the Kahal fund.

But our assessments are clearly and excessively inadequate. And there would be nothing exaggerated about that.

to the point that the Kahal's revenues in Paris, from this source alone, amount to millions!

We say "on this basis alone," because we must add the tax on the slaughtered animal, the tax on the Poultry killed, the tax comes from the fines!

You can just imagine the fabulous sums of money provided each year to the Kahal's central treasury.

by the sole tax on kosher meat, in Paris.

What if this tax is collected in all the synagogues of France, in the synagogues of the the whole world?

This explains the fury of the Jews of Algiers against the young tribune Max Régis who had the audacity to demolish, with a stroke of the pen, as mayor of Algiers, not their ritual slaughterhouse, but a a simple shack where the rabbis calculated the profits!

Just think! To dare to touch, even indirectly, a slaughterhouse supplying the largest ap-no point in the two hundred thousand francs that make up the annual budget of the Consistory of Algiers! the budget

Admitted, of course!

“70. —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

Note that all these taxes are strictly payable and indeed required.

Mr. Marchal, deputy for Algiers, speaking about this tax from the rostrum, session of May 9, 1899, said:

I demonstrated (to the General Council) the necessity of putting an end to rabbinical preaching, to these tax levies carried out by the Consistories on the Israelites.

I cited examples of these Jews punished for not eating kosher, others harassed for to keep their stores open on Saturdays.

Under the pretext of voluntary contributions, the Consistory lists taxes of which it alone is responsible.

sled and he shows little mercy to the Israelites who claim to be free from his tutelage.

Undoubtedly, the Consistory does not have the material means of coercion against the fellow believer who

He refuses to pay the tax, but they are waiting for the opportune moment to force him to pay it.

When a Jew has just lost one of his relatives, the Consistory, which is in charge of the cemeteries, forces him to bury her in the section reserved for the damned.

This is freedom as the Jews understand it.

Let us supplement this information, which confirms our thesis, with the indication of a means wonderfully used in Russia — and in France — for the collection of overdue taxes

We are waiting for a family celebration for the latecomer, wedding, circumcision, etc.

While the guests indulged in the outpourings of family merriment, suddenly the room of The feast is invaded by two stern-looking strangers!

These are two inspectors from Kahal who have come to conduct a thorough inspection of
the

Food laid out on the table, utensils used to prepare it

Woe to the poor Amphytrion, if they discover the slightest trace, however fleeting, of fish-bran or non-kosher meat!

Fines will rain down on him like a deluge! A deluge that will eventually overwhelm him, but who will roll the gold, in a flood, into the Kahal's coffers!

Let's now talk about two other inexhaustible sources of wealth: taxes on rights exploitation of such and such territory where the Jew settles, of such and such Christian who resides there.

The universal property right of Kahal

These taxes are a consequence of the "universal property right over men and the things that the Talmud attributes to the Jews:

<God gave the Jews all power over the possessions and the blood of all peoples> (Sepher Juchasim, cf 25) — (Jalk. Schim. f. 83, 3, n° 563).

In practice, this Talmudic law is applied by the law known as: Hezkat-Ischub.

According to this law, the Kahal claims supreme authority over the people and things of the district, of the constituency where he settles.

For him, these people are nothing but "animals" (Jebam. fol. 94, etc.) inhabiting territories. territories "likened to a desert". (Baba Batra, p. 59, etc.)

Or, if you prefer, these people are "fish in a vast open lake."

He has the right to fish for these fish, and therefore to sell the fishing rights in such or such a place.

such part of the lake

He has the right to hunt these "animals," and therefore to sell hunting rights in such a way. or such and such a part of the forest or desert.

This is the tax known as: Meropiié.

Since the lake and the forest belong to him, he can also sell water intakes from the lake, or lots of the forest.

THE SECTARIAN JEW

This is Hazaka's tax.

These, in their simplicity, are the ideas that guided the establishment of a Jewish colony on a any point in the world.

And this is the idea that the secret government of this colony is striving to realize to the extent of his absolute, discretionary power.

Having established this, the following will be easy to understand:

The right of residence

According to the Hezkat-Ischub:

"Every Jew who wishes to leave his current residence in order to engage in commerce in the whether in his place of birth or any other city, he would be placing himself in vain under the protection of the laws of the country...

"It would not succeed if it did not first obtain the double permission of the "Kahal" of the circumsdescription he wants to leave, of the "Kahal" of the constituency where he wants to come.

The Hoschen Hamischpat (Jewish code) gives the reason as follows:

"In the present times, especially when we are forced to live under the influence of..."

of Christian nations and in the restricted area where Jewish dwellings are generally located

In large cities, it could happen that, with some unrest occurring in the city, a Jew who came from another locality, unaware of the community's secrets, unwittingly denounced facts that should be kept hidden from Christians... every Kahal has the right to close the door to any Jew who is not a resident of the district, of whom he is the representative and absolute master.

To achieve this result, the Kahal can employ all the means at his disposal, resorting to even to the influence of the local administration of the goyim.

A temporary stay is permitted to merchants who have arrived in the city to carry out the sale momentary of their merchandise.

But it is forbidden for any Jew to establish his residence in a city where he was not born, without a selfformalisation of the Kahal of this city.

"There is only one exception to this rule in favor of the Talmud Hahan (a learned interpreter of the Talmud) which allows one to settle wherever one pleases.

As for the others, they must pay for the authorization granted by the Kahal.

That's the right of residence! Let's talk about the right of "Hazaka" which is attached to it.

The right to exploit the property of a non-Jew or "Hazaka"

Based on the principle that "it is easier to catch one fish at a time, with a single hook-

It is dangerous to catch several with multiple hooks on the line, thus exposing it to breaking under the weight", the Kahal never issues a Jewish fisherman more than one hook and for one fish, to at the same time.

In other words, he sells only to one Jew the right to exploit a single property belonging to to a single Christian, or to a single Christian family.

But then, once invested with this right, this Jew, to the exclusion of all others, can rent the house, if it is one, to conduct business there, subletting available apartments to other Jews;

He alone can lend at usury to the owner as well as to all the tenants of the house.

In short, "he alone has the right to use all possible and imaginable means to make himself
He will take control of the property as soon as possible, having purchased the rights to exploit it.

HT). —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

Here are some official ordinances on this subject, quite eloquent in their simplicity, published by Brafmann.

Sale of the right to operate a hospital owned to Catholic monks

No. 261.

“Thursday, eve of the new moon Acra 5562 (1802).

"The representatives of the Kahal and the general assembly, composed of all the Jewish authorities" from this city, they decided:

"The right to operate the hospital and the adjoining square, properties located at one end of Kaïdany Street, belonging to Catholic monks, was sold to Rabbi Izaak, son of Guerson.

It is also sold to the same Izaak; son of Guerson, the right to exploit the place belonging to the city municipality and located in the vicinity of the above-named properties.

"This right to exploit the properties of Christians is sold to the said Rabbi Izaak, to his descendants" ascendants or agents, from the center of the earth to the highest clouds of the sky, without per-no one could ever contest his right to acquire the property for which Izaak paid into the Kahal treasury.

the agreed price.

"Consequently, this right is inviolable for eternity and the said Izaak may dispose of it at his will, that is to say, to resell it, to pawn it, to give it away to whomever he pleases, in short, to dispose of as he pleases. If Rabbi Izaak comes to an agreement with the members of the municipality of the city to obtain permission to erect some building on the square of which he acquired

Kahal has the right to exploit the land; he will be able to build houses or any other type of building.

either in wood, or in stone or brick.

"If the government were to seize these places to build barracks or anything else in any other public building, it is strictly forbidden for any other Jew to enter into any commitment whatsoever with the government and only Izaak, son of Guerson, will have the right to enter into negotiations with the gov-government to secure the award of all the works.

"Furthermore, it is expressly forbidden for any other Jew to assume any commission and only Izaak, son of Guerson, will be able to be the postman for either the government or the municipality, for everything concerning the venues for which Izaak has purchased the exploitation rights...

"Every Kahal throughout the world is enjoined to protect this right acquired by Izaak, son of Guerson, for himself, his descendants or his agents.

And every Kahal and every Bet-Dine must prosecute any individual who would want to put something obstructing the full and complete exercise of this right, treating him as an enemy and forcing him to pay any damages which could result from his hostile interference.

In case of negligence on the part of the Kahal and the Bet-Dine, to prosecute the offender and to to compel him to compensate for the losses he will have caused to Izaak, son of Guerson, or to his descendants, the Kahal will be required to reimburse all damages from its treasury as soon as possible.

suffered by Izaak, son of Guerson, his descendants or his agents.

<The notice of this sale will be sent to all synagogues.>

Note the expressions: "the deed of sale will be sent to all the synagogues," "each Kahal worldwide will have to protect this right, which singularly illuminates the narrow and uni-universal solidarity of all synagogues, of all Kahals in the world first among themselves, and with the central Kahal next.

THE SECTARIAN JEW

The latter Kahal now resides in Paris, at 44, rue de la Victoire.

Let us also compare the contemporary method for ruining the old methods to the contemporary method for ruining the Monks: The subscription law!

Here is the method to ruin a Christian:

Sale of the operating rights for the Christian Baïkoff stores

No. 77

“Saturday, section Émor 5559 (1799).

< In accordance with the decision of the city representatives, it was sold to Johel-Mihel, son of Aaron's right to operate two stone-built stores belonging to the Christian Baïkoff which are located on the city's high plateau. The adjoining carriage entrance, as well as the cellars and Le

The first level, that is to say, all the space from the center of the earth to the clouds in the sky, is also included in this sales agreement.

"The deed of sale, in any form required, will be drawn up by the Kahal and approved by the holy Bet-Dine and placed in the hands of the aforementioned Johel-Mihel, son of Aaron, who must, for this, to pay the sum of 200 silver rubles into the Kahal's treasury. All of this must be done without publicity.

prior tion. >» Two hundred rubles! About 1,200 francs. And with that, one has the right to ruin

A Christian!

It's for nothing [76]!

However, let's say that Kahal has the right to revoke these exploitation rights, as a measure disciplinary, as can be seen from the following document:

On the suppression of the right to exploit the property of a Christian

No. 239

76— This explains how, in France, 80 billion of the movable and immovable assets are passed into the hands of 150,000 Jews; how 200,000 hectares of land became the property of a the only Jew, Mr. de Rothschild; how Mr. Morinaud could cite the following analogous examples to the tribune, May 19, 1899:

I find in the Echo of Oran, which is not one of ours, the example of a native who had borrowed from a Jew

1,000 francs and had sold him his property with a right of redemption.

The Jew rented it to him for 200 francs.

The native was able to repay 500 francs the following year; although he only owed 500 francs, he continued to pay for several years 200 fr, so that when it came time to pay back, he had paid 2,115 fr. for 895 fr.

which he had actually received, and the Jew was still demanding a large balance from him.

And people are surprised, the newspaper said, that the Arabs are revolting!

The lender I just mentioned thus acquired more than 2,000 hectares; he is now a wealthy capitaltalist.

Shall I recall the speech given in 1898 by Mr. Jaurès, when he pointed out the unjust role played by the Jews?

in the dismemberment of property, the series of judicial spoliations, as evidenced by the registration, who transferred rich estates to bearers of miserable debts.

This, he said, partly justifies the accusations levelled against the Jews. (Very good! Very good!)

various benches.)

The Zermati family, in Setif, has made more than 128 acquisitions and today owns more than 10,000 hectares;

It is true that its Chief is a recipient of the Agricultural Merit award!

This Zermati and all his ilk must have paid dearly to the Kahal of Algeria for the right to dispossess the Christians.

Hey, or the Arabs, with these thousands of hectares!

HAS -

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

“Thursday, 23 yar 5562 (May 1802).

The representatives of the Kahal decided that all those who show disobedience and Those who rebelled against the decrees issued by the holy Bet-Din would be deprived of the right to exploit the properties that they had acquired from Kahal since the beginning of this year and the deeds of sale attesting

This right, which had been granted to them, would be considered null and void and would resemble shards.

from a broken pot.

This does cause some inconvenience for the dispossessed Jews. But it always benefits the Kahal.

who has collected the sales rights once and can collect them a second time.

Exactly the same as in the contemporary method of dispossessing monks.

Furthermore, there is this striking analogy that in France as in Russia, it is the government official that the Kahal has reduced to carrying out its own orders.

It is in the name of French law that the Kahal is expropriating the monks and Christians, in the name of French law, that the Jews share the spoils, in the name of the law of Kahal, this time, that the Jews reserve the best part of it for the Talmudic Ogre, the central Kahal, or that of their constituency !771.

Now those are sources of wealth!

What could he possibly use all those mountains of gold for?

To complete the ruin of the Christians who remained standing, to complete his dominion over the ruins from all over the world.

Judge for yourselves:

77 — We must touch here a word about the Jewish districts of France.

The organization of the Grand Sanhedrin, established by the assembly of notables in 1806, recognized by the two imperial decrees of March 17 and December 11, 1808, did not have for a long time, until towards the end of the second-tenth Empire, than seven consistorial districts.

It currently has twelve, each headed by its own Kahal and chief rabbi, under the domination sovereign of the Central Consistory, in other words, of the Grand Kahal and the Grand Rabbi of France, 44, rue of Victory, and 17, rue Saint-Georges, Paris.

Here they are:

1st District of Paris, Chief Rabbi: Dreyfuss Jacques, 12, rue de la Victoire.

2° — Lyon, chief rabbi: Lévy Alfred, 13, quai Tilsitt.

3° — Marseille, Chief Rabbi: Weyl Jonas, 5, Boulevard Notre-Dame.

4 — Bordeaux, Chief Rabbi: Lévy Isaac, 213, rue Sainte-Catherine.

5° — Lille, Chief Rabbi: Cahen Émile, 20, boulevard Victor-Hugo.

6° — Nancy, chief rabbi: Bloch Isaac, 18, rue de l'Équitation.

7th — Vesoul, Chief Rabbi: Schul Moïse, in Épinal

8th district of Besançon, chief rabbi: Auscher, 6, rue Nodier.

9° — Bayonne, chief rabbi: Lévy, Place Saint-Esprit.

10° — Algiers, Chief Rabbi: Honel (Worshipful Master of the Lodge).

11° — Oran.

1? — Constantine.

The Grand Kahal of France is pending with the government for the creation of a constituency in Tunis.

What are they waiting for to give us, if not an organization similar to that of the communities of France or

From Algeria, at least regular institutions placed under the control of the French authorities? > wrote one Tunisian Jew in the Israelite Universe (October 18, 1895).

The control of the French authorities is, of course, that of the central Kahal, which is the sole authority effectively recognized by Jews in France and around the world.

nn, —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

To support Jewish tavern owners against Christian suppliers

No. 260

<“Wednesday, Matat-u-Mese section, 28 Tamouz 5552 July 1792).

"The representatives of Kahal have decided to come to the aid of the brandy retailers in the during their legal proceedings with the spirits entrepreneurs, by providing them with the necessary money to defend their interests.

"Therefore, the money needed to complete the sum of 100 ducats (400 francs) approximately) that the tax box was required to provide for illuminations according to Behaltaart's law, will be collected and given to retailers for their immediate needs.

To ruin Christian suppliers

No. 284

"During the same session, the question of Jewish-run cabarets and suppliers was raised."
beverage suppliers.

"And it was decided that any damn Jew who did business with these suppliers would be at the mercy of seven dealers chosen by the Kahal who will pursue him with their persecutions, will incite him

misfortune, fines and humiliations of all kinds.

"The power of these seven elected retailers will have the same value as that of the general assembly"

rate. >

This means that he will have as much power over the Jew as the Kahal and the Bet-Dine, etc., combined.

recalcitrant l]!

That's how you ruin a Christian!

But the aim is to carry out the operation reliably, which is not always easy in a government country.

governed by a Christian administration.

Therefore, for the Jew, it is a matter of obtaining the cooperation, or at least the neutrality, of Christian agents.

Here is the method:

To corrupt a Christian municipality

No. 21

"Tuesday, section of 5 pounds Schelah 5555 (1795).

"The representatives of Kahal having recognized the need to give some gifts to the leaders the municipality of this city, decided that the funds intended for this purpose should be- will be supplied by the butchers who are indebted to the Jewish community, through the contribution they must, as a result of the concession made to them of the right to slaughter livestock.

The money intended for these gifts will be paid to Samoche, who must take this into account exactly.

expenditure > ».

78 — This is the peremptory explanation for so many seemingly inexplicable contemporary bankruptcies.

The bankrupts were boycotted by the Jews!

These people are now talking about boycotting France at its Exposition in 1900! They will certainly try it.

nement!..

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

To bribe the Christian secretary of a prefect (or governor)

No. 33

“Thursday, section of 5 books Noach 5555 (1795).

"The representatives of the Kahal decided to allocate the sum of... 50 silver rubles to secretary to the governor, in reward for his goodwill towards the Jews (71. »

To corrupt a Christian court

No. 37

“Wednesday, section of 5 Vaicei books, 5558 (1798).

The representatives of the Kahal authorized the Kahal treasury to provide the necessary funds for to celebrate, with a splendid luncheon and the finest wines, the judges of the Christian tribunal who must

"To render a verdict in the case of the Jewish workers!*1."

To bribe Christian police officers

No. 4

“Saturday, Noah section, 5555 (1795).

The representatives of the Kahal decided that a bonus would be granted to the three sergeants.

police for the entire time elapsed, at the rate of one ruble (4 francs) silver per day to each.

“This sum must be handed over secretly, to each one separately, by the Jewish jurors and taken from...”

the funds from the butcher's tax®!] ».

To bribe Christian officials

No. 156

“Saturday, 21 Tebeth 5562 (December 1802).

< In view of the very large expenses required for the donations to be offered to the Christian authorities on the occasion-

In preparation for the Christmas celebration, the secret tax collector for the Jews is ordered to employ all means in its power to pay all tax arrears into the Kahal treasury called interest tax.

When the coffers of all ordinary taxes have been thus scraped to ruin the Christians, corto break the Christian officials, if an extraordinary danger is seen on the horizon to combine rer, then the Kahal employs extraordinary means:

Eliminating spending where it can be done safely, to strengthen the threatened point. For example:

Because the review of the Dreyfus trial was favorable to them, the Jews wanted it and obtained it.

79 — Here is an ordinance whose timeliness the prefects or governors should appreciate during election periods.

torale!

80 — In the “affair” — which was not that of the Jewish workers, but of a very wealthy officer — there was Obviously bribes, but commensurate with the eminent quality of the judges, naturally!

81 — The public facility, 130, boulevard Richard-Lenoir, of the anarchist recruitment office,

The Loubettist demonstration of June 11th proves that the Jews, in our country, no longer even take the

It's hard to hide.

THE SECTARIAN JEW

If it hadn't been that way and we had wanted it, here's how they would have gone about it.
mitigate it:

To mitigate the effects of a revision that was disadvantageous to the Jews

"Monday, 23 Tebeth 5562 (December 1802).

"Given the need of Jewish society for a large sum of money to mitigate the consequences of a revival"

sion which is to take place among certain Jews by the Christian authorities, the Kahal orders that this

The necessary sum will be drawn from the funds already collected from the kosher meat tax.

long available and currently available in the Kahal crate.

"The representatives of the Kahal and the Bet-Dine agree to prohibit the use of this argent a d'autre usage qu'à la cause qui il questione. >

Finally, if the cause is serious, and the gold of Kahal, however abundant, is insufficient, recourse is made to general subscriptions.

An example:

To escape a potentially unfavorable statistic

No. 17

< As a result of the new law which mandates the census of the population, as well as the recording of accounts from the cabarets where brandy is sold, the Kahal and the general assembly decided to choose eleven trusted members who will follow this operation carried out by the Christians step by step, in order to counter, where applicable, to the damage that might result for the general cause of the Jews.

"The expenses incurred will be covered by a general subscription."

Finally, if the danger grows and becomes threatening, if the general subscription, optional in a

Measures are no longer sufficient; the Jewish homeland is declared to be in danger and a compulsory tax is voted in.

Tsar Alexander I, in the fervor of his twenty-five years, having decided to settle the matter Jewish in its states, in 1802, the Kahal responded with mass tax levies in four orders, which followed one another in ten days, with the speed of lightning in a storm!

Savor the scent of terror that emanates from it!

Here is the first one:

To bribe an emperor

and to avert a threatening imperial decree.

First tax

No. 280.

“Saturday, 1 Tebeth (December). The week according to chapter Mikoë 5562 (1802).

“At the extraordinary general meeting convened, and in the presence of the members of the Kahal at

It was decided, in full force — due to alarming news arriving from the capital, to announce-while the fate of the Jews inhabiting all parts of the great Russian Empire was entrusted to five great figures at the court of Saint Petersburg, with full power to decide what they deemed appropriate in favor of or against the Jews of this country — that a delegation composed of some Israelites

one of the most learned will be sent to Saint Petersburg, with the mission of throwing herself at the Emperor's feet

—_ 78 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

reur, — may his glory be eternal! — to beg him not to allow any introduction innovation in the lives of the Jews, who are his most loyal subjects.

And given that this approach, as important as it is essential, will cause immense expenses in donations, gifts, and other means of corruption, and that, to cover all these expenses, it will be necessary

a very large sum of money, the members comprising the Kahal, as the supreme authority

Jewish people decided that an extraordinary tax, called a tax, would be levied on every Jew living in this country.

of interest, and that it is regulated as follows:

"1° Capital, whether in money, goods, or mortgage-the thèque that each Jew possesses, one must pay 12 percent.

"2° Of real estate, each Jewish owner will pay 44 percent.

"3° Of the various other incomes, such as rents, etc., 10 percent will be paid.

"4° Young couples who remain with their parents will pay 1 per 100 of all their goods.

"Every Jew must confirm by oath the valuation of his wealth, for which he must pay a certain amount for 100 according to the above-mentioned rate.

"However, if someone offers 50 ducats for this tax, he will be relieved of the oath, nothing more."

to determine whether the interest demanded on his capital, according to the tariff, should exceed the sum of 50 ducats that he pays-would immediately \®?1.

<“Among the sworn officials charged with collecting all the taxes that the Jews must pay to the

Within the Israelite community, six members will oversee this important tax, and these six members will hold. of the Kahal the power to employ, if necessary, all the servants of the Kahal, who, in

In this case, they must obey their orders blindly.

This was voted on the 1st of Tebeth (December).

Three days later, another meeting of the Kahal and a new decree.

To bribe an Emperor.

Second tax

No. 281.

<“Wednesday, fourth day of the month Tebeth, week according to the chapter Vaigah. 5562 (1802).

Like the seven deputies chosen from among the most prominent Jewish figures, they must soon to return to Saint Petersburg, in order to implore His Majesty the Emperor and beseech him that nothing not to change the current position of the Jews in Russia, and as, for this important and Urgent action is needed; money is required, and more money is needed. A full meeting of members is required.

The Kahal decreed the following:

A new extraordinary tax will have to be paid in the Kahal at the rate of one silver ruble per Jewish inhabitant without distinction of sex or age.

"Small towns, as well as district towns, must contribute to the coffers of their sy-respective nagogues the money from the tax, called interest tax of so much per 100, which has been ordered in the session of last Saturday, the first date of the month of Tebeth, of the week according to the chapter Mikoë, and the coffers of these synagogues must send this money into the general treasury of the Kahal!%l by ensuring that the sum of silver rubles sent by the treasury of each synagogue-

82 — This oath, under threat of herem, is the terror of the Jews. There is no abuse of power that they do not accept in order to avoid it.

83 — The Kahal's general treasury is now located in Paris, at 44 rue de la Victoire, or, if you prefer, in

E..

THE SECTARIAN JEW

gogue, corresponds to the total number of individuals in the Jewish population belonging to this synagogue; that is to say-to say that if the Jewish population consists of a thousand individuals, for example, including women and the children, the synagogue of this city must send 1000 silver rubles to the Kahal treasury.

As for the inhabitants of the city where the Kahal is headquartered, they must scrupulously and under the

by oath to make the tax payments, called interest tax, of so much, as a percentage, between the hands of the cashier chosen to collect the money from this extraordinary tax.

"This cashier is the extremely wealthy Rabbi Wolf, son of Hirsche, very well-known and respected, assisted for the operation of bookkeeping, as well as for the preservation of all deeds and documents comments relating to this tax, by the very wealthy Aizil, son of Judel.

"The cashiers and envoys from all the district synagogues, upon their arrival in our city, will be able, at the general meeting and with the consent of the members of the Kahal, to change the seven deputies who will have been chosen to go to Saint Petersburg and replace them with others,

"We could also change the cashier and the bookkeeper."

But the previous orders needed to be sanctioned.

Here it is:

Against Jews who resisted these extraordinary tax levies.

Third order

No. 282

“Saturday, the seventh day of Tebeth (December), according to the chapter of Vaigah. 5562 (1802).

“At the extraordinary session of the general assembly and members of the Kahal at the grand com-

The following notice was published:

Any individual from the Jewish population who, by next Tuesday, has not paid their share of the so-called interest tax of so much per 100, which was decreed by the Kahal for sending 7 delegates in Saint Petersburg, in order to paralyze the government's project concerning the Jews who live in the

Russia, will be considered by Jewish society as a renegade unworthy of any pity, and will be persecuted, badly-treated by all the faithful children of Israel. He will be liable to various fines and punishments.

of all kinds.

"It was also decided that no negotiations would be entered into with anyone who refused to lend."

the oath relating to the valuation of wealth, this valuation being the basis of the share that each the individual owes the tax ordered by previous decisions — decisions which do not release them from oath that those who, from the beginning, have paid 50 ducats.

"As for those homeowners who wish to appeal before the Bet-Dine of the Kahal decision regarding the 10 percent tax levied on shop rents or apartments, and which seems excessive to them, they are warned that the lawyers of the Kahal will be the extremely wealthy Wolf, son of Hirsche, and Aïzik, son of Judell, and that the plaintiffs must appear before the Bet-Dine court no later than tomorrow; that, after this deadline, the complaints and the prosecutions will be dismissed.

One day's grace period! Take it or leave it!

Finally, to seize victory by storm, in the fight against corruption in major prizes, we must add the adjoining building, 17, rue Saint-Georges.

This is where the compulsory subscriptions from Jews around the world for Dreyfus ended up; this is where that they may radiate, in beneficial rains, upon all union members.

84— That is to say, Rothschild types, darlings of the Kahal, to whom consequently one does not

He never resists with impunity.

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

the great means of penance and prayer, not forgetting, of course, the persecution against negligent debtors of the Kahal treasury.

Hence this last order:

To crown the success of the Emperor's corruption.

Fourth order

No. 285

“Tuesday, tenth date of Tebeth 5562 (1802).

"In accordance with the orders of the seven delegates, the following proclamation was published:"

A strict minimum wage is prescribed for all Jews in general, without exception for women and children, to know: Monday the 16th, Thursday the 19th, and the 23rd of the month Tebeth.

<"This lean period must be strictly observed, just like the great Efizy Lent.

<"This meager offering has as its purpose, the prayer for the success of the steps that must be taken by the seven delegates in Saint Petersburg, all the Jews must go to the Great Synagogue to Let us pray together, in order to avert the government's plan hanging over the heads of the Jews.

in Russia.

The Jew who, until these days of prayer, has not paid the tax intended for para-to lyser the government's plan concerning the Jews, will be persecuted by all possible means and, in addition

The fines he will have to pay on every occasion will lead to his rejection from Jewish society.

Notice the ease with which these people know how to combine ferocity and prayer for the triumph of their appetites.

This is Pharisaism in its splendor!

But let's not be told that this is "tolerance >

The truth would compel us to answer that there is no tyranny in the world capable of rivaling it.

with that kind of "tolerance"!

Jews will try to say—how audacious they are!—that this secret government, flo-

Rising under the autocracy of the czars, is unknown under the Jewish Republic, known as the French Republic!

— Unknown? Yes, since it is secret, but also flourishing, we shall see to what extent!

The Kahal in France

We talked about the division of France into twelve constituencies or districts, under the depend-dance of the Grand Central Consistory of Paris.

This means, according to the Hezkat-Ischub law, that in each of these districts there is a Kahal, who claims sovereign control over non-Jewish persons and property in this circumstance...

description and the right to dispose of it, in whole or in part, in favor of this or that Jew, under the authority sovereign and universal of the Great Central Kahal which, for its part, claims the domain of France and the world 5),

Read now these words of Mr. Laferrière, Governor of Algeria; in session of the Chamber of May 25th.

Responding to Mr. Rouanet, the synagogue's lawyer, he said:

“On March 24, I sent a circular to the three prefects of Algeria instructing them to...”

85 — Which explains why the Jews do not want a French homeland. They have done — or they want to make — Paris the capital of the Jewish homeland, which is “the whole world”.

— BI —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

provide information about the instances of pressure exerted on Jewish proletarians that were discussed in your request for questioning.

"I invited them to consult the Jewish notables on this point if necessary and to transmit to me this information after having personally verified it.

"What more could I do? (Very good! Very good!)"

"Following this circular, very few new facts have been reported to me by the prefects;
None of them reached me from Oran.

"Why? The explanation is provided in the two letters addressed to the prefect of Oran by the president of the Israelite consistory and by the chief rabbi. It is stated in these two letters that the administration

The Central Jewish Administration was informed, in a timely manner, of the facts of pressure or other matters relating to Israelites.

Mr. Morinaud. — "That is a state within a state, clericalism.

Mr. Laferrière. — "What would Mr. Rouanet think of French citizens who, having something to complain about, in France, they are subjected to pressure, instead of complaining to the administrative authorities.

or judicial matters, would address themselves to their priest who, in turn, would bring the matter to the attention of

The bishop? (Applause.)

< For us to pay attention to such acts, I would at least like us to secularize the denunciations. (Renewed applause).

Mr. Etienne. — "We need to know why the consistory and the chief rabbi did not respond-due to the prefects.

Mr. Charles Bos, a friend of the Jews, replied:

"Because the prefects of Algeria are anti-Jewish."

That's false! We know perfectly well that prefects like Mr. Lutaud are not anti-Jewish.

The real reason is this:

Because prefects are servants of a government that CAN DO NOTHING without the government

Jewish secret.

"The government can do nothing without warning the major Jewish bankers > (who identify themselves-

(They are here with this secret government) said Mr. Hérissou, former Minister of Commerce, according to Mr. Quesnay de Beaurepaire (January 28, 1999).

With the official government powerless, the Consistory and the Chief Rabbi of Algiers have addressed to the secret government that can do anything: "Central Jewish Administration of France."

It's clear !

Mr. Larrière's mistake is to believe that this administration is purely religious, ecclesiastical in a way.

It probably is, since the Chief Rabbi of France, Zadoc-Kahn, is part of it.

But he only holds the second effective rank, although he is in the first rank of honor.

The first effective rank belongs to Mr. Alphonse de Rothschild, President. [#6]

86— We would have gladly included his portrait here. Unfortunately! it was impossible for us to to obtain his photograph from none of the ten or twelve great photographers of Paris to whom we we asked for it.

Two of them even gave us this answer, identical in meaning:

"We have been asked for it several times, but it seems that Mr. Alphonse de Rothschild had it removed from the circulation. > [Note from Lenculus: We were able to obtain this photograph.]

—_ 82 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

James de Rothschild, the baron's eldest son, he married in 1857 Leo-Nora de Rothschild
(1837-1911). The
The couple will have four children: Bettina
(1858-1892), René
(born and died in 1861), Beatrice (1864-1934)
and Édouard (1868-1949).

Naturalized French citizen, he can access the regency council of the Bank of France
(1855), of which the Rothschild bank is the largest shareholder.
In 1855, he financed the wheat purchases that were born require bad harvests and manages, in 1871, to be reduced

war indemnity demanded by Germany and contributes to its settlement by ensuring the entire broadcast of a first loan of two billion and by participating in the additional three billion loan for the liberation of the territory

He created the company "Caspian and Black Sea Naphtha Commercial and Industrial Company

Anonymous" to exploit Baku oil, which his family had to sell in 1911 (see Archives of the World of Work in Roubaix and all the books on the French branch of the Rothschilds.)

He initially lived in a private mansion built for him at 47, rue de Monceau, before inheriting it upon the death of his father of the Hôtel de Saint-Florentin where he had major transformations carried out in 1868-1870 by the architects

E. Petit and Léon Ohnet. He also owned the immense estate of Ferrières (Ferrières-en-Brie, Seine-et-Marne), on which his father had built under the Second Empire the most luxurious castle of the 19th century.

A major collector of Old Master paintings (de Hooch, Rubens, Rembrandt, Hals), member of the

Alphonse de Rothschild, a member of the committee for the Universal Exhibition of 1867 and elected to the Academy of Fine Arts, was a an important donor to French museums; among other things, he donated some twenty items between 1888 and 1904.

paintings in the Soissons museum.

Furthermore, here is the complete staff list, in hierarchical order:

THE SECTARIAN JEW

Central Consistory of the Israelites of France

+ __1'Zapoc-KAHN, Chief Rabbi, 17 St-Georges Street.

+ 2° ROTHSCHILD (Baron Alphonse de), member of the Institute, delegate from Bordeaux, president-tooth, rue Saint-Florentin.

+ 3 BÉDARRIDES, Honorary President of the Court of Cassation, Delegate of Marseille, Vice-President, 83 rue de Montceau.

+ 4 Lévy (Maurice), of the Institute, Chief Engineer, Delegate of Algiers, Avenue du Trocadéro, 15:

+ 5° Lévy (Théodore), chief engineer, delegate of Nancy, rue Chauveau-Lagarde, 14.

- + 6° MANUEL (Eugène), Inspector General of Public Instruction, delegate of Lyon, rue Raynouard, 6, in Passy.
- + 7° MASSE (David), lawyer, delegate of Lille, rue d'Antin, 19.
- + 8° PÉREIRE (Eugène), delegate from Oran, Faubourg Saint-Honoré, 45.
- + 9° RODRYGUES (Ely), engineer, delegate of Bayonne, boulevard Henri-IV, 2.
- + 10° SÉE (Léopold), Major General, Delegate of Paris, Place des Ternes, 9.
- + 11° SÉE (Abraham), lawyer, delegate of Vesoul, rue Villerséxel, 7.
- + 12 Worms (the D'), of the Academy of Medicine, delegate of Besançon, rue Pierre-Char-ron, 12.
- + 13° ABRAHAM, general, delegate of Constantine, boulevard Saint-Germain, 112.
- + 14 CAHEN (Abraham); Chief Rabbi, secretary, 9, rue Vauquelin.

These are the official members of the Grand Kahal who govern France and the world against the France itself and against the Church.

Our description is finished; it is the X-ray that will shower light into the darkness where envelops itself in the Talmudic hatred that springs forth, continuously, from the words and deeds of the Jew against the French Christian. We'll see.

I

THE WORDS OF HATE FROM THE JEWS

At the head of these words, which respond to the Talmudic precept: "Christians must be cursed"

"Three times a day," we can place the official admission of this hatred.

This is a letter from a converted Jew, Alphonse de Ratisbonne, to Mr. Dufriche-Desgenettes, parish priest.

of Our Lady of Victories, dated from the college of Juilly, April 12, 1842 and published in the Relation authentic account of his conversion, by Baron de Bussièrès, page 57 (Retaux-Bray, rue Bonaparte, 82):

"There was only one member of my family who was hateful to me," he said, "and that was my brother Theodore. (converted to Catholicism and became a priest).

"And yet he loved us too, but his clothes repelled me, his presence offended me,"

His grave and serious words stirred my anger...

"He continued his relations with the rest of my family; as for me, I no longer wanted to see him; I

I harbored a bitter hatred for priests, churches, convents, and especially for the Jesuits.

whose very name provoked my fury... (71 >

87 — Little Jacob Libermann, as a child, had such a horror of clerical garb that one day at the sight

From a priest carrying the Holy Viaticum, he climbed onto a wall to flee at full speed across the fields.

Having since converted, he became one of the founders of the Congregation of the Holy Spirit and appointed himself to the...

Today, the Venerable Libermann. Let one nevertheless judge the horror of the Christian name, drawn from his

— SA —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

This "Talmudic" fury is found in the writings and on the lips of Jews, under all forms: slander, insult, blasphemy, sarcasm, scientific falsehood, etc.

Just a few samples:

"Crime is common among Christians," extraordinary among the Jews >

We read in the Archives israélites, organ of the reformist Jews, year 1868, pages 199 and 200:

When a member of the Anglican Church, or an Anabaptist, or a Methodist, or a Catholic-

A Roman cleric or a member of any sect, robs travelers, or steals an object, whether by forcing a lock, minting counterfeit money, or receiving stolen goods, he commits an act which is can say that several other people of his faith are perfectly capable.

"We generally see nothing extraordinary in the commission of a fraud or a crime committed by a Christian.

But if it happens that an assassin or a brigand professes the Jewish religion, this circumstance appears to be truly extraordinary.

<"It is as such that she captures the attention of the Attorney General.

When he notes that the accused is Jewish, he means that he has before him a scandalous exception.

for the general Israelites #1, >»

We shall soon see if the sheet is Jewish and with what impudence!

In any case, it couldn't be said better: "Crime in our country is an exception, in yours it is the rule.

From the Talmudic point of view, nothing could be truer, since the most abominable crimes in-

Forbidden by Christian law are permitted by the Law of the Followers, as indifferent, if not recommended like virtues.

In this way, whatever one does, one cannot fail to be virtuous, especially if one does not Don't let it be taken, which, according to Jewish law, is the essential point.

For "to be taken in," says the Talmud—but this alone—"is to profane the name of God!

(Baba Kouma f. 113; Chagiga f. 16, 1; Kiddusch f. 40, 1 etc.)

It is in this spirit and according to this rule that a Jewish newspaper, of which we have before us the prospectus de diffusion, praises "the morality of Jewish female workers among whom illegitimate births are education

88 —With the same Pharisaical modesty, the chief rabbi Zadoc-Kahn said in his Yom Kippur sermon

in the Great Metropolitan Synagogue, in 1895:

"The Jews... who are sometimes so severe, and rightly so, with those among them who are a cause of scandal... of whom

Do they then possess this delicacy of feelings, this high morality, this repulsion for evil, if not from

Judaism itself?

The chief rabbi forgot about Dreyfus; it is true that Dreyfus "was not a cause of scandal in the Tul- sense

"Mudice du mot >".

The "scandal" would be, for example, if they failed to definitively exonerate him!

Elsewhere, the Israelite Universe (October 9, 1895) complacently quotes this Melbourne judge, William Hartby, who had just judged "for the first time in his long career, two Jewish criminals >.

Its code, it seems, is the Talmud!

“ss —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

"less than among French female workers," he said.¹

It was in this spirit and according to this rule that, on the occasion of the assassination in Damascus in 1840, of

Father Thomas, a Capuchin friar, and his servant, Ibrahim Amurah, by the Jewish merchant Harrari and seven Rabbi Fabius of Lyon dared to impute this crime to his accomplices — who confessed to their crime.

to the Jesuits, in his speech on the first of the Jewish year, 1842! He would specify more today and would say: "He is the Father of the Lake!"

It is in this spirit and according to this rule that Jews currently uphold innocence.

Dreyfus: The traitor has confessed his crime! No matter, the Jews proclaim him innocent—because that he is Jewish — they accuse the "Jesuits of the General Staff" of having orchestrated the coup and denounce

"The alliance of the sword and the holy water sprinkler."

No matter how many times we tell them, "Just because he's Jewish doesn't mean he's innocent," they don't understand.

Not at all, not at all; what they understand and shout from the rooftops is that the

Being Jewish is enough to absolve one of all crimes, just as being Christian is enough to justify presummation of the most heinous attacks.

The contrast stands out brilliantly in the two pending Dreyfus and Flamidien cases;

Dreyfus may be guilty, but the Jews proclaim him innocent; Brother Flamidien may be Innocent, yet the Jews proclaim him guilty!

There was the Jew caught red-handed in an act of impudence.

His pride goes that far, but he doesn't stop there!

To slander, he adds insult and blasphemy.

A few seemingly insignificant facts will reveal more than more spectacular ones, but also less spontaneous, this habitual state of hatred of the Jew against the Christian.

"The little buns they call their good Lord >

A letter was written to La Croix in February 1897:

"The daughter of a Jewish merchant, a dealer in religious silverware, was recently visiting among Catholics.

"Here's what she said"

What is unusual is that Catholic priests come to us to obtain supplies.

But what's even more remarkable is that they come to buy rolls from us, which they call their Good God, and let them eat what we make with our unclean hands (textual).

"The filth they put in there"

Another fact that was recounted to us by the eyewitness:

A clergyman had commissioned a Parisian goldsmith to create a reliquary to be delivered on November 5th.

1896.

At the time of shipment, the goldsmith's Catholic worker (who brought it back to us) made him

note that the sacred vessel lacks a small, agreed-upon improvement:

— “It is not appropriate,” he added, “to send it off like this.

— “Oh,” replied the boss, “that’s fine for those people! For the filth they want!”

put it in! ... (0) »

89— This is issue no. 1, second year of the Hygiène usuelle, widely distributed in January 1896, and particularly in Côte-d'Or, at the same time as the Jewish brochure: "Anti-Semitism and History >.

90 — Note this reflection in the subscription lists of La Libre Parole (December 19) for M"*

= a —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

This boss is Jewish and, as we can see, knows his Talmud.

<« Cleric-cockroaches, church clowns »

After blasphemy, sarcasm:

The Jew may go to the synagogue whenever he pleases, but woe to the Catholic whom the Jew over-takes to entering the church!

Let us judge for ourselves by this article by Edouard DRUMONT from June 29, 1893:

For fifteen years, the (Jewish) Lanterne had dragged our French officers through the mud.
only able to go to mass.

She called them every morning: Cleric-cockroaches, Church Pierrots, Sacristy Punchinellos.

Slaves to discipline, the unfortunate officers were forced to endure everything.

La Libre Parole published a series of articles: "Jews in the Army," which was little more than a study of statistics in which no one was named.

"We know the rest. Captain Mayer fell... in defense of his race..."

Since the Mayer affair, there hasn't been a single attack in our country against a Jewish officer regarding his religion.

Do you want to know the result?

"It's because the Jew Mayer, seeing that we are no longer attacking the Jewish officers, is starting to..."

attack the French Catholic officers in the Lanterne.

"The 8th Line Infantry Regiment, garrisoned in Saint-Omer, has just celebrated the anniversary of the Battle of Solferino.

"We conducted a review on the Esplanade..."

Then, at ten o'clock, after the review, the officers attended a mass celebrated in the church.

Our Lady, for the repose of the souls of those who died for France.

"This happens in every country. German officers go to the temple or the church."
Catholics, Russian officers at the Orthodox church, Muslims at the mosque.

"That's what the Mayer of the Lanterne said, and it doesn't concern him at all, since he was born in

Cologne, and that he is Jewish, calls it a Capuchinade today; tomorrow he will call it a masquerade and after-

Chaos tomorrow...

But it is not only the religious practices of Catholics that the Jew attacks, it is
The Gospel is the sacraments, it is Our Lady of Lourdes, it is our charitable institutions Tables, these are our Catholic and French glories.

But here, where sarcasm would fail, the Jew employs scientific falsehood.
The Jewish doctor Lombroso and the Gospel

The Gospel law rests entirely on the freedom of human actions and responsibility individual.

"Their works (good or bad) accompany Christians to the judgment seat of God."
said Saint John 11.

"God will repay each person according to their deeds," says Saint Matthew.²¹ This refers to all the

Henry: "An employee at a Jew's house who is furious to see him exploiting the French clergy."

91 — Opera eorum sequuntur illos (Apoc., xIV, 13).

92 — Reddet unicuique secundum opera ejus (Matt., xvi, 27).

THE SECTARIAN JEW

works, even the most secret ones.

Yes, but this severely condemns the Talmudic doctrine of the Jewish Pharisees who do not-
They don't assume that a hidden work can be bad, as long as it remains hidden! Hence this stern word from Our Lord to them: "Do what they tell you, but do not not what they do. > (Matthew 21:3).

And this, the Jew cannot tolerate; that is why he wants to destroy the Gospel.

It is for this purpose that the Jewish doctor Lombrosol, an Italian criminalist, who is admired by

Zola invented his theory of the born criminal, which, along with the Gospel, erases human freedom.

the responsibility for human acts, internal or external, public or private, hidden or revealed.

This theory, it is true, had little success at the International Congress of Critical Anthropology.

the Geneva minelle, in August 1896, where it was rejected by almost unanimous vote of the members, the

Most of them are free thinkers!

Let us note, however, the Talmudic intention of the Jew dear to Zola.

Jewish doctors and baptism

We know what the old Rabbi Nizzachon, the insulter of the Blessed Virgin, calls this sacrament: "the ignominious baptism >".

Here is what a Jewish, supposedly medical, journal, No. 1, second year, 1896, says about it, which we

we have the leaflet in front of us:

"The high mortality rate among Catholic children has been attributed by several doctors and stat-technicians in the practice of exposing newborns, in all weathers, to the outside air, to go to the church, to have them baptized.

Needless to say, these "doctors and statisticians" are Jewish, as was undoubtedly Jewish.

the doctor who inspired a father, from the vicinity of Paris, to make the following remark (which we have (heard) addressed to the priest who administered baptism to her child, on August 21, 1898:

— "Sir, do not put salt in his mouth, it interferes with the medication"

Written by the doctor!

To which the priest quite rightly replied:

— "Sir, the Church is a good Mother who is not in the habit of poisoning children!"

How the Jew Bernheim judges

Bernadette and Joan of Arc

Dr. Bernheim, a Jew and Freemason (who resigned some time ago because we have re-rocketed to admit a Jew to the Nancy lodge), claimed, in an issue, from the early days of November 1894, from Le Figaro, that:

“Bernadette Soubirous and Joan of Arc were visionaries, certainly respectable, sublimines even, if you will, but that, moreover, their pathological case differs in no way from those which he has observed many times in a multitude of other subjects.

To which a distinguished clergyman from Paris responded spiritually in La Croix on November 5th.

November:

"Error! Dear Sir, error!..."

93 —Prof. Rohling, p. 65. — “Tr. Baba-Kouma (£113.1).

94— Convicted in 1896 and ordered to pay 500 francs in damages for literary plagiarism... to teach him

Responsibility!

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

"To study them, we must not remove Bernadette and Joan of Arc from their environment, especially

They should not be separated from a series of facts that shed a bright light on them.

"When did your delusional women make a miraculous spring gush forth from the earth, like Bernadette

"When did your poor hysterics lead the French armies, like Joan of Arc?"

French women to victory, by outlining a campaign plan so marked by the seal of genius military man, who still, to this day, inspires admiration in our most skilled strategists?

"Your poor madwomen, sir, have never done anything or have only done trifles."

Our clairvoyants have changed the face of the world...

We know very well that there are hallucinating women in Nancy as well as at the Salpêtrière, but it doesn't...

It never occurs to us to take them seriously, because we have enough criticism to dis-surround a poor madwoman with a soul favored by heaven.

"Believe me, Doctor, you should make the same judgment."

Your supposed science is no reason to abandon common sense.

Alas! Being the good Jew he is, Bernheim does not listen to the answer that condemns him, but he will-follows the Talmudic idea that is dear to him.

Bernheim and the miracles of Lourdes

According to him, "the healings obtained at Lourdes are of a natural nature".

"We treat the same morbid conditions in Nancy that Lourdes treats."

Here again he finds his witty opponent:

"It's easy to write these things in one's study, facing a sheet of paper in front of the- something we have nothing to be ashamed of..."

"Perhaps it would be a little braver to come and say these things directly to D' Boissarie's face."

and some other Christian doctors in a public conference.

"D'Bernheim may, and for good reasons, have only a mediocre desire to do so.

Is there no way to force him to do it?

"For quite some time now, freethinking (and Jewish) doctors have been mocking Lourdes;

Isn't there a way to poke fun at (Jewish) freethinking doctors?

No, there's no way! They have even more hatred than fear of a miracle.

If it were to become apparent to them, they would do as the Pharisees their ancestors did, they would attribute it to Beelzebub!

Was it in this context that a Jewish doctor refused to take responsibility for the trip?

from Lourdes, with the national pilgrimage of 1898, of a sick woman suffering from "a stomach ulcer" with considerable anemia]?

This person, M^{re} Schèque, 4 years old, rue d'Artois, Paris, returned cured.

What does the Jewish doctor think? No doubt, what Dr. Bernheim thinks, what everyone thinks good Jew of the Catholic religion, of its marvelous manifestations, of its results: "idol-sort, superstition, hallucination! >

Perhaps the results, no less brilliant and no less wonderful, in a sense, of the Catholic charity will find favor in the face of Jewish criticism.

95 — He certainly would not have refused, had he known that his client was to make the pilgrimage in the company of the famous Magistrate Dreyfus's defender, Mr. Manau, came to Lourdes to obtain healing from the Virgin Mary.

his daughter's voice (see Libre Parole).

= E9 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

We're going to see it!

The Jewish doctor Herzl and the hospice for the incurable

This Jew, Director of the Neue freie Presse, a major Jewish newspaper in Vienna"] and promoter of the

The Zionist movement appreciates this creation of Catholic charity in the following way, in

The New International Review, January 15, 1897, p. 27

"The hospice for the incurable is one of the cruelest acts of kindness that our foolish goodness has ever invented."

lady !

"In the hospice, the old man dies of shame and mortification."

"To be honest, he's already buried."

The Jew might almost add, which is undoubtedly what he was thinking: "These incurables, we must Kill them, since they can't afford doctors to come to their homes!

One could not say it better:

Poverty is the only crime to be ashamed of; wealth, the only virtue to be admired.

to honor"1, »

And, true to this principle, the Jew honors the millionaire, especially if he stole his money, while that he despises the poor, even if they are honest.

To the poor whom the divine Master has blessed, "blessed are the poor!", Christian charity gives an asylum.

The Jew, for his part, wants him to die on the highway like a piece of human refuse.

Is it any wonder that Our Lord, who blessed the poor, cursed the rich (the wicked)?

Was the proud Pharisee, father of the Talmud, enveloped in this curse?

The Pharisee here is Dr. Herzl, it's the Jews, it's their unwitting accomplices, "the Intellectuals from all countries who, under the influence of Jewish pride, whom they admire and imitate when necessary, fully justify this assessment of the famous jurist and publicist

German Kliiber in his Proceedings of the Congress of Vienna (1814-1815):

"The spirit of Judaism is generally recognized by religious pride."

"The Jews imagine that they are God's chosen people, above those who are not Jews,"

They are physically and morally different and must be completely exterminated.

(IL, 375 et seq.)

"Exterminated" also, as unjust holders of the portions of wealth belonging to the Jews

< are the only true owners >

While awaiting the opportune moment for this extermination of non-Jews — which we are,

96— He had nothing but praise for France in 1870, when it allowed Crémieux to emancipate the Jews from Algeria; he no longer has enough insults for her now that she is rejecting Dreyfus.

However, he returned to praise, for the election of Mr. Loubet to the Presidency of the Republic.

97 — Curious thing! This selfishness, as fierce as it is Talmudic, rubs off on all the peoples where the Jew lives at ease, in England, for example, where Jews and Anglicans are on excellent terms, both equally far removed from the source of charity: Catholicism.

Hence Nelson's remark: "Lack of fortune is a crime I cannot forgive."

And this other quote from Admiral Sydney: "Poverty is appalling in England."

One could add: "It is infamous wherever the Church of Jesus Christ has not introduced the love of poor."

98— The Talmud admits it (Tr. Beza 25, 4) when it says: "Three beings are shameless: Israel among the Peoples, the dog among quadrupeds, the rooster among birds."

— 0 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

We French Catholics—they exterminate, as much as they can at least, anything that affects us

On closer inspection, what we love and venerate above all else: our charitable works, our sancour pilgrimages, our Catholic glories, our Christian faith, in a word, only because, while judging this faith worthy of us who are "a variety of animals!",

They judge it at the same time to be a hundred cubits inferior to the Talmudic faith, which is that of the <“men, that is to say, only Jews 19]”.

This is the exact measure of "the Jew's religious pride, that is to say, his religious hatred of the non-

Jewish.

This explains the senseless judgments of this people, who, seeing nothing except through this hatred reduces everything, absolutely everything, to the religious question, even the questions that are the more foreign.

Mr. Drumont is criticized for seeing Jews everywhere.

Alas! The Dreyfus affair proves abundantly that he didn't even see it everywhere he is, at least as much as it is there.

On the other hand, the Jew can boast of unearthing "the clerical," that is to say, the Christian, the Catholic, even and especially where it is not present. A few examples among thousands:

"You are a cleric >

Mr. Boysset, a radical deputy from Saône-et-Loire, in a speech in Chalon (June 1893), had fla-tri.“the brazen high speculations, the grandiose financial manipulations >”.

In response, the Jew Dreyfus — yet another one — called him in the Courrier de Saône-et-Loire “clerical sect” >.

Mr. Denis, a radical deputy from Landes, having taken it into his head to find, in 1896, at the time of death from Baron Hirsch that:

A man who leaves behind 750 million, not counting "the 100 million given to his co-legionnaires of "Argentina" (fortune earned in "financial" operations that everyone knows), that this man, by himself, is more dangerous from a "social point of view" than all the congress-congregations and all the congregants of Francel (1), »

The Jewish community of La Petite Gironde had no reply to Mr. Denis, except: "You are a cleric."

In May 1898, Mr. Ferrette, an anti-Semite, was elected deputy in Bar-le-Duc, against Mr.

Develle, an opportunist; how did "the Jewish-influenced Independence of the Meuse" view the election

In short, "It's the triumph of the holy water sprinkler."

Last June, French interns at Tenon Hospital complained bitterly about the conduct Jewish interns.

What was the response from the Jews of the Echo de Paris? — “Fanaticism, superstition, intolerance... passions” nuns buzzing under the velvet cap of the intern®, »

99 — Akum (Animals with human faces, so as not to revolt the eyes of the chosen one with horror.)

100 — Treatise Baba mf 114, 2.

101 — Mr. Drumont wrote on March 9, 1899: “One of the major financial backers of the treason syndicate

It is, apparently, Baroness Hirsch.

"Hirsch's estate was valued at 800 million; in reality, it is worth one billion."

We have not yet heard of the congregations being "funders of the union >".

Mr. Denis was right.

102 — This paper, which has supported the army with such ardor and so readily received Mr.

Quesnay de Beau-repaire, in his fight against the infamies of the Criminal Chamber, did not, however, succeed in...

You

THE SECTARIAN JEW

And Mr. Drumont? When he ran for parliament against the high-ranking thugs of the Jewish community

From Algiers, he received a shower of epithets: "priest, Capuchin, good-faith man, etc."

Let us note those awarded to him by a sheet in the service of a Kabylie trading post which lends to 15%, or even 20%: "Reactionary, clerical, Jesuitical joker."

But when the candidate had achieved the colossal success we know, the Jewish newspaper, using the Talmudic permission for opportunism, that is to say hypocrisy, burned a grain of incense right under the nose of the man she had called the day before "a vile cleric".

It was ghetto incense; Drumont turned his head away as one does when passing by a
A cabin of necessity.

Nevertheless, the Jewish chalet continues to exude, both in the metropolis and in the colony, smells that are not precisely those of incense, let us summon our courage and continue-

Let's continue our exploration.

“The Jesuits on strike”

The famous navvies' strike has just broken out (October 1898), quickly, a union newsletter Dreyfus appears with this headline: "The Jesuits on strike" and explains, during his slight exhalation, that the Jesuits lead the strike as they led Spain to ruin, in the Spanish-American War, etc.

But it is primarily about the anti-Semitic campaign, especially in the Dreyfus affair, that this rage to reduce everything to the religious question erupts with even more fury.

Nothing stops him, neither the implausibility of the accusation, nor the abomination of the slander.

As always, we quote the opinion of the leaders of the people.

Here is that of the Jewish doctor Max Nordau, whose real name was Jacob Sudfeld!¹, according to an interview published by Mr. Robert Sherard, English publicist, in the Review of Reviews at the beginning-

year 1898

"The anti-Semitic idea originated in Rome."

"...It remained for the Catholic Church, at the end of the 19th century," said Mr. Nordau, "to direct the reaction against us, to incite the populace to cleanse the face of the earth of our race persecuted by the Violence and fanaticism.

— "Are you seriously accusing the Catholic Church of being at the head of this anti-agitation?"

"Mythical ?" asks Mr. Sherard.

— "Very seriously! God forbid, I, whose person and family have suffered persecution all their lives, to persecute in turn anyone, by directing against him false accusations.

But I cannot reach any other conclusion in the face of this obvious fact that everything is being raised

This was prepared and fomented by Rome.

The fact is so far from obvious that Mr. Nordau, himself astonished by his absolute assertion authentic, when he saw it published, hastened to correct it as follows:

"I never considered accusing the Catholic Church of such a monstrous crime..."

“What I actually pointed out to Mr. Sherard was that the promoters of the movement,” to make people forget that its director was the Jew Valentin Simond and its other directors were the Jews Henri Baüer and Alfred Capus.

103 — Right-hand man of Dr. Herzl in driving the Zionist movement.

— D —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

The current anti-Semites in France are fanatical Catholics.

"I've said that, but nothing more."

But Mr. Sherard maintained, under oath if necessary, the accuracy of his interview, which was heard

Moreover, by another witness, Mr. Frank White, 80 Fleet Street, before whom he posed more than six once the question was posed to the Jewish doctor:

Are you really accusing the Catholic Church?

To which Mr. Nordau invariably replied in the affirmative.

"The persecution against Dreyfus came from the Church."

Furthermore, Mr. White of the New York Journal supplemented the doctor's statements as follows:

Jewish author in his diary (January 31, 1898):

"I formally accuse the Catholic Church of the crime of inciting a general massacre," he said.

Mr. Nordau,

"...I repeat that the persecution against Dreyfus is the beginning of a concerted effort"

té; on the part of the Catholic Church to bring about a massacre of Jews in France...[1®%4
»,

"All those who don't believe in it are clerics."

And these are the absurdities that they are trying to spread among the people, through newspapers and posters, members of the Dreyfus Syndicate.

Don't ask them for proof! Do they even need proof?

Come on! They dogmatize, they define, and their definitions are final, like their judgments are infallible.

The people must bow before the oracles of treason!

Woe to anyone who does not bow down! He will be excommunicated as a "clerical"

Hence the anathemas hurled at "the clerical" Rochefort, "the clerical" Drumont, "the clerical-rical > Judet, on all those in a word who have the misfortune, if it is one, of not sharing the Dreyfusard faith in Picquart's "honesty," Reinach's "civic-mindedness," and patriotism. Dreyfus 95],

On all these points, there is no room for doubt:

"All those," said Mr. Labori, "who do not march with us are either fools or scoundrels."
(October 1898).

"< Mr. Brunetière, the Pope's missionary >

Mr. Brunetière, of the Revue des Deux-Mondes, having taken it upon himself to find the rail-
The evidence presented in favor of the revision of the Dreyfus trial was described by Mr. Yves Guyot — of union of treason — of "missionary of the Pope".

To which Mr. Brunetière replied quite rightly, but with proof, that it is quite simple-the missionary of patriotism, common sense, and the well-understood interests of France and

104 — Mr. Fred. C. Conybeare having republished these gross lies in the Times, Mr. de Mun thought it best to respond with a long and eloquent correction in this newspaper, January 1899.

This is quite an honor for a character who deserves so little!

105 — Mr. Daresté, advisor to the Court of Cassation, having shown himself to be unfavorable to partiality with the-

The magistrates Loew, Bard, Manau, and Dumas, who conducted the review of the Dreyfus trial, were dismissed.

as “clerical” by all the Dreyfusard newspapers (January 30, 1899).

THE SECTARIAN JEW

of humanity.

But Mr. Brunetière's answer, like any sensible answer for that matter, should not have...

Stop.

They don't listen to anything and, to be even more sure of not hearing anything, they plug their ears, everything by continuing to deafen those who do not take the same precaution with their shouts hateful towards the Church, in favor of Dreyfus.

"The Jew Dreyfus and the Catholic Bazaine"

“Even in the event,” they say, “that Dreyfus is guilty, which we do not admit, is it that all Jews should be held accountable for his crime?”

Have we made Catholics complicit in the betrayal of the Catholic Bazaine?

This nonsense has been circulating throughout the Judeo-Masonic press.

The answer is easy, here it is:

The traitor Bazaine was condemned, although a Catholic, by Catholics; and not one of these 36

Millions of French Catholics found nothing wrong with it.

The traitor Dreyfus was condemned, although he was Jewish, and the one hundred thousand Jews residing in France, of

A concert with Jews from all over the world, they're turning France upside down!

It is not we "who make you," it is you who make yourselves complicit in the betrayal.

from your fellow believer Dreyfus,

And that's because the Talmud requires it.

Our law, as Catholics, obliges us to condemn crime wherever it is found, even in a Catholic.

106 — The Israelite Universe has admitted it (August 1898):

"We may declare," he said, "that we do not condone the crime of any Jew,"

We feel this solidarity no less, even if non-Jews do not impose it on us.

What does this Talmudic jargon mean? If you "feel this solidarity," then it's not us who are... we impose it >.

Another Jewish newspaper, Ibacfira, from Warsaw, to which "non-Jews have not imposed this solidarity,"

He admitted it much more categorically, by publishing the prayer recited every Saturday in the synagogue,

Regarding Dreyfus; here it is according to Le Petit Journal (November 17, 1898):

“God, have mercy on the Lord, honorably known to all, even to the ends of the earth, who presents—” tement is overwhelmed, persecuted, bent like a reed in the wind, locked in a strong place and whose name

Alfred Dreyfus is pure.

Our hearts burn for this dear gentleman — Alfred Dreyfus — who has long been imbued with stunned, crushed under terrible evils, and in which all Israel is persecuted, oppressed, and humiliated in the eyes of peoples.

A simple thought: Did Catholics offer a similar prayer in churches for Bazaine or Anastay?

On this subject, a journalist, whose ideas we are far from sharing entirely, wrote with good sense, he

It must be acknowledged (December 2, 1898):

"If we had believed Dreyfus innocent, we would have never stopped repeating it; and if we had supposed Picquart

If he were not guilty, we would shout it from the rooftops.

The imposters of Dreyfusism know this well, and they have placed on religious grounds a question that has no

There was nothing to be done, except in the vague hope of justifying the unavowable motives to which they were obeying!

“To embrace Dreyfus’s cause because he is Jewish and Picquart’s because he is not, me
This seems to be the height of inconsistency or bad faith!

Er

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

And we branded him in the bad Catholic Bazaine, as we would have branded him, more recently, in Brother Flamidien, if his innocence had not been obvious to everyone.

Yours obliges you, when a Jewish criminal is brought before the courts, to deny the crime.

"to circumvent the judges by means of intrigues" until the profit remains with the Jew (Tractate Baba

Kouma, f. 113, 1).

And, as scrupulous observers of the law, you denied Dreyfus's treason and you have wanted to buy, if not his judges who were beyond your reach, at least those who were supposed to judge his judges, because you wrongly believed them to be more susceptible to corruption.

"Ten thousand francs were promised to each of the jurors who voted in favor of Zola against the State-"

"major," admitted the jury president himself, Mr. Dutrieux.

The jury having rejected your "gifts from Artaxerxes," you brought the case forward, thanks to the f. Brishis, before the Criminal Chamber of the Court of Cassation, populated by your creatures Lœw, Bard, Manau and Dumas.

This Chamber, having been "removed from jurisdiction" due to legitimate suspicion in favor of the Plenary Court of Cassation,

You had already expressed suspicion about her judgment and stated that you would not accept it.

that "subject to inventory >".

“If we fail on Article 443 (on which the proceedings are based), Article 443, thus-Reinach's nuait on March 2nd (Century), is not the entire code of criminal procedure.

Thus proclaiming, in every way, that in fact, you only recognize one law:

The Talmud interpreted by Bet-Dine "the holy one" and Kahal "the infallible one"!

That is why you proclaim Dreyfus's innocence, why do those who do not proclaim it Not with you — and like you, without proof — received on their heads the garbage can that every good

The son of Israel always holds in his hand.

Even Chief Rabbi Zadoc-Kahn felt compelled to weigh in, too, with his own opinion.

projectile stakes.

"Anti-Semites are misguided minds."

In a circular addressed to the Jews of America and published in New York on July 1, 1898, under the pretext of collecting alms for "the poor Jews of Algeria", in reality for [to fill the union coffers 1°], the old Pharisee utters this phrase of hypocritical tenderness:

107 — Wouldn't he himself be the treasurer?

Nevertheless, at the private residence of the Chief Rabbi, 17, rue Saint-Georges (building of the City of Paris) is home, along with the Society for Jewish Studies, to the Grand Consistory of Israelite Jews (President: Baron

Alphonse de Rothschild);

That this Israelite Consistory has as its general treasurer the Jew Heymann Léon, subordinate of the chief rabbi;

That at the Consistory's treasury "various individuals involved in the Dreyfusard campaign regularly receive their prebend," said the Antijuif of October 16, 1898;

That in the last legislative elections, the same newspaper said, a candidate, G., from the 20th arrondissement, embarrassed to pay for his posters, he went, armed with a recommendation from the director of a Dreyfusard newspaper, to-near the chief rabbi Zadoc-Kahn, who gave him the necessary sum;

The following letter, initialed ZK and sent to the National Agency, reached L'Éclair, which published it.

March 11:

THE SECTARIAN JEW

"This will be an act of charity and patriotism 15] because it should not be said "Some Men, women, and children are condemned to die of hunger because of misguided minds

They deny them the right to exist because of their origin and religious beliefs!

The word is there, this time, from the pen of the head of Judaism in France: the anti-Semites are doing the war on the "religious beliefs of the Jews."

We accuse Dreyfus of having sold out France: "war on religious belief of Dreyfus > ».

We accuse the Jews of Algeria of monopolizing the colony and plundering it: "war to the religious beliefs of the Jews of Algeria.

The entire fighting system of the Jew is there.

That's why his only response to all arguments is always: "You are a cleric-

cal. H09!

THE ISRAELITE UNIVERSE Paris, March 8, 1899.

WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

Founded in 1844

Appearing every Friday

EDITORIAL NOTE: "A sum of two thousand five

13, Rue Montyon, one hundred francs (2,500) will be given

PARIS tomorrow to Mr. Montagne.

The same amount will be sent to him during the second half of March. (The points

(The suspension points indicate a cabalistic paragraph.)

108 — Further proof that the Jews of America, like those of France, have a common homeland, which

It is neither France nor America.

This is so true that on the occasion of the quintessential Jewish patriotic festival, Hanukkah (Feast of the Maccabees), who fought for the independence of the Jewish people), the Chief Rabbi of France, Zadoc-Kahn, invited,

On December 11, 1898, his flock "came in great numbers to celebrate one of the most important religious anniversaries" rich in lessons of patriotic loyalty...

To clarify the homeland in question, in the "lessons of patriotic loyalty," the chief rabbi added-tait, alluding to "the case", those of "persevering faith in the final victory of law, of justice" and of the truth.

We add this comment, certainly in line with his thinking:

<«Of Talmudic law» which has reserved France for us;

"Of Talmudic justice > which made us conquer it" "Of Talmudic truth > which gives us the right to govern it.

This explains these other statements — seemingly contradictory — from the same chief rabbi, two years earlier, on the occasion of the same celebration, at the end of a ball in the salons of the Grand Orient:

“Let us never let a day pass,” he said, “without claiming the title of Frenchman, and let us never let slip an opportunity to protest and vigorously combat the anti-Semitic sect. > (Jewish Archives, December) 1896).

As if to say: "France no longer belongs to the French, but to the Jews, therefore only the Jews are French!"

Consequently, those who fight us (the anti-Semites) are not French, but vile thugs ricaux! >

And there you have it!

109 — The Dreyfusard senator, Joseph Fabre, enemy of the French army, of the French leagues which support, invoked the argument of the Jews from the tribune, on March 21, 1899, against the popular subscription for Colonel Henry:

"This subscription," he said, "was leading us down to the anarchy that characterized the..." religious wars of the 16th century. >

It is true that Mr. Papillaud, of La Libre Parole, wondered if the honorable senator had been drinking that day.

— 96. —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

But :

The Jewish weapon is worn out.

This is spiritually proven by the distinguished and learned director of the Revue des Deux-Mondes, M. Brunetière, in his response to the Dreyfusard Yves Guyot, on the question of revision:

"In all of this, sir, it is neither a question of anti-Semitism, nor clericalism, nor counter-revolution"

lution..." "You have only yourself to blame if, from a purely legal matter, it

You enjoyed asking a political and social question.

You come back to that again when you say this morning:

And why do we find on this side the Cross, the Universe, Truth, the Newspapers of Lyon, Bordeaux, Rouen, Nantes?

“Why? Well, sir, because all these newspapers don’t believe there’s any reason to...” review the 1894 trial.

And you, if you see something else in what they say about this, if you want them to do “political work”, if you link the Dreyfus affair to anticlericalism, don't you see
So, it's you who are preventing us from getting out?

But this does not stop Yves Guyot for a moment from continuing to "show solidarity to the extreme."

the Dreyfus affair with anticlericalism,” while insinuating that it was clericalism that was solidifying darise.

“Jesuits and anti-Semites >

German Jews themselves came to the rescue, as evidenced by the poster addressed to them.

From Germany to General Lambert, around October 12, 1898, where we read:

Just published: New illustrated brochure. Captain Dreyfus saved... Zola's victory...

THE GREAT CRASH OF THE JESUITS AND ANTI-SEMITICS IN PARIS... THE SCUM, PATY DE CLAM

"FLEPT TO ROME", etc.

Needless to say, this absurdity was met with tremendous laughter in France!

It does not bring to a close the series of expressions of hatred, as blind as it is Talmudic, towards Jews.

against the Christians!

It remains for us to see how this hatred managed to move from words to actions, from the precept of the

A curse upon the one of persecution.

R. That would have been an excuse!

Unfortunately, the question, brought before the Assize Court, could not be resolved! Mr. Papillaud was acquitted...

Too bad for Mr. Fabre!

Moreover, these differences in reason are common to him and to Jews throughout the world.

The Jews of Budapest, for example, had just imposed civil marriage on the Catholics of Hungary, in October 1890. The Catholics protested, as was only right.

On October 25th, the Israelite Universe hurled the obligatory epithet at them: "You are aware of the struggles relentless as the clerics, etc. >

Two weeks earlier, on October 9th, the same newspaper had just learned of the triumph of the anti-Semites in Vienna.

by the election of Lueger to the City Council, and had greeted him in the same way:

"Coalition of socialists and clerics."

SR

THE SECTARIAN JEW

He

THE ACTS OF HATE BY THE JEWS

The Jews know that, in order to effectively attack an adversary, one must have force at one's disposal.

tion: that of number or that of gold.

They don't have the numbers, at least not in France, since out of 38 million inhabitants, they are barely 140,000, compared to 37 million Catholics! But they have gold: 80 billion for-movable and immovable property tax, just in France.

Add to that the billions owned by Jews worldwide, which are, to the extent of the

Talmudic solidarity, entirely at the disposal of fellow believers, through the intermediary of the whole powerful Kahal.

And you might ask if, with that, it's difficult to "buy competitions," provided there are any.

found for sale! (See above for how to bribe a Christian, a civil servant, a emperor, etc).

That's what happened [C2]

The Judeo-Masonic-Protestant triplicate

In France, apart from Catholics and Jews, there are 650,000 Protestants, Lutherans, or Calvinists, or Huguenots of various sects, and 25,000 renegade Catholics enlisted in the Freemasonry or freethinking.

The Jew hates them all equally, some as Christians, others as non-Jews, all as French. It is the Talmud that demands it. It is the Kahal that imposes it.

However, these French people have one thing in common with the Jew that makes them tolerated and even that he uses it.

They all want the annihilation of Catholicism in France, even at the cost of annihilating...

Francel!!3l,

110 — The statistics published by Le Matin give 71,000 Jews; but this newspaper is too obviously biased

Jewish influence is needed to be taken seriously.

We are keeping Mr. Thiébaud's more impartial figure, 140,000.

111 — Under the name of Catholics, let us repeat, we include even those whose conduct does not correspond not to faith, but who, if they do not often affirm this faith, have never denied it, any more than baptism who instilled it in them; that is to say, those who retain at least the principal outward signs of Catholicism.

lic: fidelity to baptism and religious practice in the major circumstances of life, the first communion, marriage and the hour of death.

112 — It is known that Mr. Henri de Rothschild (husband of Ms. Wesweiler, a German Jew) paid 250,000 francs to the Dreyfus syndicate, by the admission of his great-uncle, Edmond de Rothschild.

113 — We have clear evidence of this in this comparative table of the two official programs of the

Freemasonry and Judaism:

Masonic Program Jewish Program

“There are three infamous assassins who are: the law, | “A Jerusalem of a new order, holy as-property, religion. Of these three enemies, situated between East and West, must be replaced by Famous people, it's religion (in France, Catholicism) | the dual city of Caesars (fatherlands) and Popes

which should be the constant focus of our attacks | (on Catholicism). > deadly, because a people has never survived | This program was formulated in 1861, for the use of to his religion. > the newly formed Universal Israelite Alliance (President of the 33rd degree (1860), by his Jewish founder Crémieux, Grand Master of the Scottish Rite.

- of -

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

But for this war of destruction, you need the sinews of war.

Protestants and Freemasons do not have it. Protestant fortunes go unnoticed.
aunts.

As for the Freemasons, their concern for parading "the widow's trunk" through the ranks
The presence of the Brothers at each lodge meeting sufficiently demonstrates their indigence.

How to do it?

This is where the Jew victoriously intervenes.

— “You have no gold,” he said, “never mind! Here is some!”

"And the alliance was sealed!"

It is the Judeo-Masonic-Protestant tripartite of approximately one million foreigners and bad

Citizens II against thirty-seven million French Catholics!

For those who desire proof of the alliance, here it is in the official confessions and in the facts!

The confessions of Chief Rabbi Astruc

On the occasion of the death of the Jew Bérend in Brussels in 1866, the Chief Rabbi Astruc, who presided over the proceedings...

He held the funeral, he said at his grave:

“Berend was able to become a freethinker while remaining Jewish.”

That is why Freemasonry and also freethinking were able to intervene without any obstacle

At the foot of Judaism, on the tomb of a brother, a friend, a fellow believer whom all Israelites, Freemasons and freethinkers also expressed their regret.

They all regret it equally, because he also served hatreds and interests that are, in fact, common to all.

And when there is a community of hatred and interests, there is always a community of efforts to

to make them prevail, that is to say: alliance.

And that is why "Freemasonry and also freethinking were able to intervene, without any "Obstacle, alongside Judaism on the tomb" of the Jew Berend.

But we have more contemporary confessions.

The confessions of Chief Rabbi Isidor

The Committee of the Jewish Vocational School [119] gave, on December 27, 1879, its distribution dating the Scottish Rite, founded by the Morin Jews and Franken, according to Bishop Meurin: The Freemason-(Nerie, p. 333.)

114 — We use this term primarily to describe the leaders, the principal officials, and by no means those who follow them.

in good faith and, without knowing it, are doing the work of bad citizens with them.

115 — This thesis and the following one of “the preponderance of the Jewish element over the Protestant and Masonic elementsnique. >» are fully confirmed by that of Mr. Ernest Renault in Le Pêril protestant, where the author reveals the following plan of France's enemies:

1° The dismemberment of states too heavily influenced by Catholicism;

2° The domination of Protestant states over Catholic states;

3° The supreme domination of the Jews over the Protestant states.

116 — Director: Reblaud, 4 bis, rue des Rosiers.

Honorary members: The Chief Rabbis of France and Paris, Messrs. Alphonse and Gustave de Rothschild, Cohn Léon, treasurer-paymaster general in Mézières; Hendlé, prefect of Seine-Inférieure; Javal, former deputé; Manuel, Inspector General of Public Instruction.

THE SECTARIAN JEW

prize ceremony in the Grand-Orient ballroom, 16, rue Cadet.

Now, Chief Rabbi Isidor, Mr. Zadoc-Kahn's predecessor, delivered the following address there:

reproduced in the Bulletin du Grand-Orient (January 1880), based on the report by F. Dalsace and the vote of the Council of Gr +. O +.

Here it is without comment, according to a correspondent of the Moniteur universel, March 22, 1899:

“Listen, my friends, there is a coincidence in this meeting that strikes me and that I hold to inform you of:

"Do you know where you are, where we are?"

We are in the Freemasons' lounge. They kindly made it available to us.
tion. I send them my gratitude.

The Freemasons! What hasn't been said against them? They've been called the troublemakers of the Public rest, for the impious, for atheists! I don't know what else!

"They have been subjected to misery! They have been slandered and persecuted!"

"We tried to drive them out, to exterminate them like us!"

"But they are standing there, just like us!"

"They are, as you know, neither rebels nor atheists. I know many of them; there are some even among us in this meeting, and I assure you that these are people of heart and honor.

"They preach, like us, tolerance and charity; they preach, like us, brotherhood, Work, human solidarity, and that's why we live, and that's why

We live against all odds.

[117]

Thus spoke the great rabbi Isidor "1.

It is true that in his closing address at the 1881 Convent, Brother Bénat seemed to contradict the Chief Rabbi:

The Catholic, Protestant, or Jewish temples of the religions, he said, but it is against them
Specifically, it is against the priestly work of all times and all countries that the Freemason-
The deception was established. (Official report.)

This manual is the same one that was sent last March to all the teachers in France and Navarre.

circular which read:

"I am descended from those unfortunate people who were robbed, hunted down, and burned alive in the Middle Ages!"

Let's play the music!...

He then pointed out, among the anti-Semites, "the enemies of freedom of conscience" and among the anti-Semites ism, "the awakening of religious passions".

His implied conclusion was this:

"Please welcome the speaker's manual entitled: 'The Dreyfus Affair', which has just been sent to you."

sent by the League for Human and Citizen Rights, under the patronage of the League for Education and

The Society for Elementary Education, both protected by the Freemason government.

Mr. Drumont condemned, as was fitting (April 1, 1899), this "Official Hiring of Teachers".

117 — Chief Rabbi Zadoc-Kahn professes exactly the ideas of Chief Rabbi Isidor, on the tomb of which he exclaimed on September 27, 1895:

"The day after (September 16, 1888) when we had the sorrow of collecting his last remembrance-

Pir, we tried to pay a legitimate tribute to the beautiful life that had just come to an end.

We then made a solemn commitment to follow his example, to be inspired by his spirit.

Today (Sunday, September 27, 1895), thanks be to God, after the seven years that have passed on his

As a mortal body, we believe we have the right to bear witness that we have kept our word.

The doctrines he preached, we preach; the ideas he held dear, we hold dear.

This is the whole explanation for the current sympathies of the Grand Orient for the Chief Rabbi, we want to say: of their alliance.

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

But we will soon see that this denial was just for show.

Let us note for the moment the gross error of F+. Bénat who calls "priestly works" two religions that do not have a priesthood.

The confessions of the f: Yves Guyot

This influential member of the Dreyfusard syndicate wrote in Le Siècle on May 29, 1897:

Since Freemasons have the same enemies as the Israelites, a tactic is hardly understandable.

which puts them at the mercy of their adversaries, instead of uniting them against them.

And Yves Guyot, understanding that the true tactic is that of union with the Jews, hastened to join the syndicate of treason as one joins family. Welcomed at Open arms!

Following the Masonic confessions, here are those of a Jewish newspaper:

The confessions of the "Israelite Universe" >

We find them in the enthusiastic appeals addressed on several occasions by this newspaper to the

the name of the Talmudic Jews, of which it is the organ, to the entire coalition.

“We Jews, Protestants, Freemasons, must stand shoulder to shoulder,” he exclaimed.

January 1898.

Then, upon learning that in June of the same year, the cry had been raised in the very Chamber of Deputies:

<Down with the Jews!> After giving free rein to his "legitimate" indignation, he renewed his an appeal "to the solidarity of the Jews, to the spirit of justice and freedom of the French, which has not been contaminated"

the poisonous breath of savage hatreds, to oppose the reopening of religious wars > ...

Those "who have not been contaminated by the poisoned breath of savage hatreds" are natural-the small million Jews, Protestants, Freemasons of the anti-Catholic syndicate.

As for the others—the 37 million Catholics—they are all infected! ... natural-ly!

The confessions of the Jewish "Lantern"

This newspaper, where the Jew Péreire reigns supreme, formerly run by the Jew Mayer (who ran off with the money), today, by the son of the Jewish Millerand, published, in his editorial of September 17, 1897, the

The following are significant lines:

The anticlerical (read: anti-Catholic) terrain is perhaps the only one on which they can today all Republicans, from the Progressive Party to the Socialist groups, must agree.

(read: all republicans of the Judeo-Masonic-Protestant republic).

But this ground, fortunately, is less shifting and even more solid than one might imagine.

They are our opponents.

They will be able to experience it at the first opportunity.

The experience has been gained over a long period; we know what to expect regarding the perfect en-tent of members of the anti-Catholic triplice.

And we had no need for a "first opportunity" — which is the Dreyfus affair — to note it once again.

Don't forget that La Lanterne is the official popular newspaper of Freemasonry in

THE SECTARIAN JEW

France and is written, for this purpose, at 18, rue Richer, a stone's throw from the Gr. O.: 16, rue Cadet},

But here are even more official admissions, those of the Grand Orient itself.

The Grand Orient's Confessions

The Grand Orient, which was under no obligation to intervene in the Dreyfus affair, since it was uni-necessarily a patriotic matter and that patriotism in no way concerns a cosmo- society politely, he felt it necessary to take a stand – for which we thank him – with the following statements to

Grand Convent of September 1898:

"The Freemasons of the Grand Orient of France, represented by the members of the Assembly" general of 1898...

Faithful to the principles of the Revolution, which proclaimed the equality of men before the law, regardless of their race, regardless of their philosophical or religious beliefs, and promised to all guarantees of equal justice...

"They point to the conspiracy that has been hatched against legality and that openly appeals to the force¹¹

against the defenders of the law, they denounce the clerics as architects of the conspiracy and Cesarean sections.

Let us note the pharisaism with which Freemasonry confuses "law" with "legality" and reproaches the French, "the clericals and the Caesarians," for waging a war "of race" and "religion", when they wage war on him solely because he is a traitor.

This is Israel's eternal argument, which comes back at every moment like a refrain on a bar organ.

Barie: "You are a cleric."

But this return of the refrain of their shared song, which this time "lulls," not "the middle-class", but "human" stupidity is also proof of the community of their ideas and unfair weapons which they employ to make them prevail, that is to say, their close alliance.

However, there is even more striking and recent evidence that all of this is in

The confessions of Mr. Brisson, president of the council

We know the arguments by which Mr. Brisson forcefully prevailed in the council of ministers, the vote which was to bring the review of the Dreyfus trial before the Court of Cassation.

Here they are, without the genuine tears, of course, that so copiously watered them! We Let's add the subtitles:

<“Jews, Protestants and Freemasons form the backbone of the Republican party”>

"The country is, in its vast majority, republican.

“But, if I may put it this way: the backbone of the Republican party, since 1870, has been formed by the Jews, Protestants, and Freemasons.

118 — The distinctly Dreyfusard character of the two main organs of Protestantism in France, the

Time and the Signal would sufficiently demonstrate this sect's alliance with the other two, anyway.

"The Jew Salomon Reinach would not have paid 1,000 francs for the privilege of being a founding member and subscriber" perpetual publication of the Protestant organ Le Signal, by Pastor Chastang. »> (Croix, March 25.)

119 — The members of the congress of Parisian lodges, held in 1894, expressed the wish that “all the lodges... are organizing themselves in order to oppose the demonstrations of the clerics with force).

In 1898, they accused the clerics of "appealing to force!"

Jokers!

— 102 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

"It was with them that the republicans fought under the Empire, with them that we have defeated on May 16th and May 24th, it was with them that we carried out the republican reforms (laws intangibles against the clerics, that is to say, in the Masonic sense of the word: the French).

"They are the most authorized and influential members of the Republican Party."

"They all want the review"

However, I am struck by the fact that Israelites, Protestants, and Freemasons have always been committed to the re-

I have a vision of the Dreyfus trial, and I know that, to achieve it, they are determined to go to the worst extremes.

<“We must grant it to them”>

Is it possible to take action against them, to bring legal action against them?

< That would be the Republican party committing suicide.

In my view, a transaction is necessary, and this transaction can only be obtained by forwarding the case to the Court of Cassation!

>

And that's how the Protestant Freemason Brisson, to appease the factious minority of a little over a million foreigners and bad Frenchmen, sacrificed to them the rights of thirty-seven thousand lions of good Frenchmen, that is to say, of France itself.

Let them now deny the close alliance between Jews, Protestants, and Freemasons!

Let us especially deny their preponderant influence on the destinies of France, at least in the future.

then 1870, according to the confessions of F. Brisson!

We wouldn't dare! Especially if we add that the allies have a general staff that crowns them and what connects them is that this general staff has its headquarters in the very heart of Paris, in the 9th arrondissement.

ly!

The 10th district, headquarters of the Triple Alliance

Let's review it.

In the first (Israelite) body, we find:

1. The Universal Israelite Alliance, central office, 35, rue de Trévis, Faubourg district Montmartre, 9th arrondissement;

2. The Central Consistory of the Jewish Faith in France (Chief Rabbi, Zadoc-Kahn; President, Alphonse de Rothschild), residing at the private residence of the Grand Rabbi, building of the city of Paris, 17, rue Saint-Georges, Saint-Georges district, 9th arrondissement;

It is to these two addresses that millions of dollars, demanded for the union, are pouring in from all over the world.

by the Kahal.

In the second (Masonic) body, we find:

1. The Grand Orient of France, 16, rue Cadet, Faubourg Montmartre district, 9th arrondissement-

ment.

2. The official journal of the Grand Orient (owned by the Péreire Jews), La Lanterne, 18, rue

120 — He had the cynicism to admit it from the podium, during the session of December 19, 1898:

Mr. Cavaignac, he said, came to announce the false Henry to his colleagues; and from that moment, I took opposite to

I myself commit to doing the revision.

Mr. Cavaignac retorted: "Yes, but after refusing to review the evidence of the secret file.

And Mr. Brisson didn't reply!

THE SECTARIAN JEW

Richer, Faubourg Montmartre district, 9th arrondissement.

In the third (Protestant) category, we find:

1. A Protestant youth organization, on rue de Trévis, near the Alliance Israélite Universelle, Faubourg Montmartre district, 9th arrondissement.

2. The Journal of Evangelical Missions and the Little Messenger of Evangelical Missions, directed and written by Pastor Bœgner, 9, rue Laffitte, near the Rothschild bank, district

Chaussée-d'Antin, 9th arrondissement.

Note that four phalanxes of this army are quartered in the same barracks, we mean the same district: Faubourg Montmartre.

These are: 1° the Israelite Alliance, 2° the Grand Orient, 3° La Lanterne, 4° the Protestant Youth Work

Aunt. Could there be a more intimate alliance?

The Jewish Strauss, deputy for the district, crowns it all, as is only fitting, since he symbolise the Jewish unity of command.

Which of the three parties, in fact, dominates the other two, which one directs the war operations?

against the common enemy, the French Catholic?

It's the Jew!

The Jewish commander-in-chief of the Triple Alliance

He was the one who sealed the alliance and drew up the battle plan.

Therefore, he is the one who must be commander-in-chief.

There are other reasons:

Hatred of Jews is more intense than that of Protestants or Freemasons.

In French Catholicism, Protestants and Freemasons hate Catholics, but one does not one could say that they positively hate the French as such.

The Jew, on the contrary, also hates the Catholic and the Frenchman, the Catholic cursed by his Talmud, the Frenchman who owns the plot of land that, in his religious dream of domination universal, he believes he belongs to it.

His hatred is therefore more intense than that of the Protestant or the Freemason.

Its power is also greater, as it has the now predominant power of gold, which neither of his allies possesses to the same degree! 1211, 121 — This power must be quite predominant, to have allowed the Dreyfus syndicate to Mr. Judet said on October 28th that 37 million should be devoted to the rehabilitation of the traitor!

Where does the money come from?

Jews from all over the world, in every corner of the globe, are collecting donations like those of the Jewish community.

German in Strasbourg, of which a witness wrote (February 1898) to Franche-Comté:

"For some time now, collections have been taken up among all the Israelites, in favor of Dreyfus... madmen are giving according to their means: they even respond to new requests, provided they are justified by reasons such as the following, the authenticity of which I certify: "This affair is swallowing up enormous sums of money.

We have spent at least ten million so far.

The Paris correspondent for Magyar Ussag, an unofficial newspaper of the Hungarian ministry, written by Jews, said almost identically (September 1898):

The Jews spent fabulous sums on revisionist propaganda and on Dreyfus (Unsummen). » In February, it was “ten million”.

In October, it was 37 million!... that's 27 million in 9 months, or three million per month!

How many millions since then? The calculation is easy!

— d04 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

More intense hatred, greater power, these are titles that sufficiently designate him to functions of commander-in-chief.

It is, indeed!?! Here is the material evidence:

The Jew Crémieux, Generalissimo

It is said and repeated everywhere that it was Freemasonry that brought about the Revolution of 1848.

What is often forgotten is that at that time the Jew Crémieux was President of the Grand-Orient of France and, as such, gave effective impetus to the revolutionary movement, which the billionaire Rothschild was listed as 33rd in Pinon's Masonic directory!¹ and don-From this arises the pecuniary impulse.

He was the finance minister of Generalissimo 11241.

Crémieux was commander-in-chief in 1848.

He was also so at the time of our disasters in 1870, although he concealed himself in the second plan.

It was in this capacity that he installed himself, without any mandate, in the Provisional Government and took refuge-was behind the scenes at Gambetta, to publish, almost without his knowledge, this disastrous naturalization decree Jews, among whom Algeria is dying [¹].

The decree is null and void, since it only bears 4 of the 8 signatures required to constitute the majority of a 14-member government; that of these 4 signatures, 2 are denied, with evidence to the support; that finally, it is impossible even to find the text.

But a commander-in-chief doesn't look at things that closely... Let's talk about:

The Universal Israelite Alliance

This is the quintessential work, where its founder (in 1860) Crémieux survives as general-extremely.

His goal is "to build Jerusalem on the thrones of the Popes and Emperors," the Jew claims.

We have since learned from a stockbroker that: "The offerings of Jewry from all over the world, centralized at MZ, which distributes them on behalf of MR, of which he is treasurer (for his charitable works).

of charity), equivalent to approximately three million per month.

"That is, in February 1899: 454 million!"

To find out how these millions are obtained, see page 119 and following, the Ordinances of the Kahal, regarding new taxes.

122 — “It is he (the Jew) who inspires the sect, he who directs it and who, through it, revolutionizes the world for a century. > (Claudio Jannet, The Precursors of Freemasonry.)

123 — Quoted by M. Rouyer, Question judéo-maçonnique, p. 85.

124 — This function, no doubt, is hereditary in the family, since Mr. Henri de Rothschild (husband

(of a German Jew) paid 250,000 francs to the treason syndicate, according to his great-uncle, Mr. Ed-

Rothschild's world, himself.

125 — To the Algerian delegates protesting against the Crémieux Decree, presented by Mr. Glais-Bizoin to Gambetta, at the archbishop's palace in Tours, on October 23, 1870, replied:

"What do you want? I have other concerns besides Algeria right now, sort it out with Crémieux better. > (Henri Pujade in a letter to a friend, dated Algiers, February 14, 1898.)

What to think of this man, a friend of the Jew Crémieux, if one considers, moreover, that he made the political fortune of Beinach the Jew?

THE SECTARIAN JEW

Disraeli. (Coningsby, p. 183).

Put simply, it consists of these two points: 1. Establishing the universal republic; 2. Placing this republic under the domination of the Jews.

It is for this purpose that the Alliance founded the republic in our country in 1870 and plans in this at the time of the founding of the Italian Republic and the Spanish Republic.

But all of this is carried out, of course, under the high and infallible direction of the central Kahal, 17, rue Saint-Georges (or 44, rue de la Victoire).

For the speed with which its sovereign orders were transmitted and executed, throughout the world

The Alliance, in its entirety, established its central headquarters at 35, rue de Trévise, second floor, two not of the Kahal and its messenger for France, the Lantern, and of its faithful ally, the Grand Orient.

Alliance leaders' meeting: 3 times a month, chaired by Mr. Goldschmidt (6, Champs-Élysées roundabout.

It is from the Kahal that inspiration is drawn, and it is from the Alliance that slogans like the next, where the Jews would completely unmask their batteries, if they hadn't already done so.

This is an appeal to Polish Jews, November 1898, worded as follows:

Brothers and fellow believers!

< This country (Galicia) must become our kingdom.

< Make every effort to gradually drive Christians out of all their positions and concentrate them in your hands all the factors of social power (die gemmasat macht).

"Everything that belongs to the Christians must become your property."

"The Universal Israelite Alliance will provide you with the necessary resources. We have already begun the process."

large fundraising campaigns that succeed beyond all expectations.

"To carry out the plan to definitively wrest Galicia from the Christians, all our great men and our

The wealthy have already subscribed considerable sums.

"Baron Hirsch will give (alas! the baron and baroness are dead, what a loss!) and the Rothschild, the Bleichroeders, the Mendelssons, and others. "Brothers and fellow believers, all your efforts "to achieve the goal we propose." > It's the same goal they are pursuing

in "the case >".

Dreyfus's betrayal having awakened patriotism and disconcerting patriotism in all its projects of universal domination, the Israelite Alliance strives to stifle it under millions, of less to intimidate him with threats of "upheaval".

Nothing could be more curious than the method she used to collect money in the worldwide.

Listen to this authentic dialogue between the Polish count of X and his Jewish farmer; he feels his Kahal, a league away!

— “The rabbi,” he said, “hit me with a tax of 25 rubles (100 francs)!”

— “Why?” I asked.

— “It’s an extraordinary tax levied on Jews worldwide to cover the costs of the campaign in support of Dreyfus.

I am taxed 25 rubles, but every Jew is subject to a proportional contribution of its resources.

Many Jews would have liked to avoid this costly loophole.

Unfortunately, that was impossible: Anyone who refused to pay would have incurred the consequences.

The harsher rigors of the Kahal. > (Excommunication, see p. 31).

— 106 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

Count X added that in Vilna, the capital of Lithuania, there are 140,000 Jews out of 160,000 inhabitants.

Let us judge whether the extraordinary tax has been fruitful! (Interview with Mr. de BOISANDRÉ, (see Preface).

There are other methods besides direct taxation: the Picquart lottery, for example, of which "each

A tobacconist in Amsterdam offers a ticket to his customers for 25 cents; the collection, every Saturday di, in all the ghettos of Europe in favor of the outlawed brother; the voluntary contributions of rich, etc.

Here are some of the tricks of the Universal Israelite Alliance.

The stated goal: "To provide effective assistance to those who suffer because of their Jewish identity."

Members: 28,000, including Messrs. ZADoc-KAHN and REINACH.

Membership fees: 6 francs per year (minimum).

Budget: 1 million (this is the official budget; the actual budget is unlimited, due to extra taxes) ordinary votes arbitrarily cast by the Kahal).

President: SH GoLDscHMipT, 6, Rond-point des Champs-Élysées; Paris.

Treasurer General: PM OPPENHEIM, 11, rue Taitbout; Paris.

In the heat of the "affair," the Alliance noted with dismay the gaps created in the ranks of the Central committee.

The following eleven members were absent:

Joseph DEREMBURG (Paris), dead.

Edouard KAHN (Paris), deceased.

Baron de Hirsch (Paris), deceased.

G. WoLr (Paris), resigned.

Israel Costa (Livorno), deceased.

BAMBURGER (Køenigsberg), dead.

AA DANIELS (Amsterdam), resigned.

Sir Julien GoLpsMip (London), died.

Deutsch from VARAN (Budapest), dead.

Benjamin LuriA (Hamburg), dead.

Joseph PELLEES (Munich), deceased.

We highlighted the foreign members.

But they had to move quickly onto the battlefield. All's fair in love and war! The Kahal had no
No hesitation.

It was the committee that held the election last March, and instead of eleven members, it appointed...

Here are fourteen of them:

We highlight foreigners as above:

Alfred BECHMANN, banker, in Paris.

DREYFUS-BRISAC, in Paris.

Xavier LÉON, director of the Revue de Métaphysique, in Paris.

Sylvain LÉVI, professor at the Collège de France, in Paris.

Camille LYON, city councillor, in Paris.

Joseph DEUTSCH de HATVAN, president of the Alliance Committee, in Budapest.

Isaac FERNANDEZ, President of the Alliance Committee, in Constantinople.

M.-H. GOLDSCHMIDT, banker in Stuttgart.

M.-TY. HINRICHSSEN, Chairman of the Alliance Committee, in Hamburg.

Claude MONTEFIORE, president of the "Anglo-Jewish Association" in London.

— 107 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

Vittorio de Rossi, lawyer, in Livorno.

SAMUEL, president of the Jewish Community of Königsberg.

Alexandre SIMON, banker, in Hanover.

WERNER, rabbi, in Munich.

With such an organization and such resources, it is not difficult to understand this as La Libre Parole wrote (March 22, 1899): "Gold is pouring in from Galicia, Hungary, Germany, from Krakow and especially from Mainz, Amsterdam, London, Odessa and Geneva >.

Good heavens! All these cosmopolitans of the Alliance are the designated tax collectors of the taxes voted by Central Kahal!

This is Crémieux's work, the work he described as "the most beautiful and most fruitful of modern times" and where he rightfully survives as commander-in-chief, since the February 10, 1880, the day of his death.

Nevertheless, he had an effective successor.

This is the Jew Adriano LEMMI (for the gallery).

The Jewish generalissimo Adriano Lemmi

This swindler, Mazzini's impromptu successor on March 11, 1872, to the Supreme Pontificate of the universal masonry, could not decently submit to a power of recent foundation [1%]

Crémieux, who had in fact exercised it, and brilliantly, for nearly fifty years, after having climbed all levels such as:

— Lawyer, member of parliament, senator, minister of justice;

— Member of the provisional government of 1848;

— Founder of the Alliance Israélite Universelle in 1860;

— Member of the Government of National Defence in 1870;

— Vice-President of the Central Consistory of French Jews (Alphonse de Rothschild, 2, rue Saint-Florentin is president);

— Grand Master of Freemasonry of the Scottish Rite.

Faced with such titles, Lemmi understood that he had to step aside, leave the stage to Crémieux, to to hold himself backstage.

But with Crémieux gone, Lemmi had to appear! And that's exactly what happened!

This is how this perverse Jew became, on February 18, 1880, the official commander-in-chief of the tri-Judeo-Masonic-Protestant accomplice.

We say official, because there is another commander-in-chief who, while not official, is not less effective.

This forces us to clearly define Lemmi's role.

Crémieux, a Jew by birth, was a true commander-in-chief, acting on his own, although under

126 — It dated from 1870.

MAZZINI wrote from London on January 22nd to Albert PIKE, President of the Supreme Council of Charleston:

“Let us create a supreme rite that will remain unknown and in which we will summon the high masons of our choice by imposing on them the strictest secrecy with regard to their other brothers of the ordinary rites.

By this supreme rite, we will govern all of Freemasonry; in it will be the unique, universal center,

The more powerful it is for management, the more it will be ignored.

The supreme rite was created on September 20, 1870, the day of Cadorna's entry into Rome.

Pike had supreme dogmatic authority, Mazzini had supreme executive authority.

Mazzini died on March 11, 1872, naming Lemmi as his successor. But Crémieux was still alive!

— 108 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

the senior management of the president of Kahal, Mr. de Rothschild.

Lemmi, on the contrary, a smuggled Jew—he was born an Italian Catholic—is merely a gene-a highly decorative display, intended primarily to serve as a link between the Jew and the Freemason, being itself-even both of them.

While Mr. de Rothschild remains the effective commander-in-chief who commands both the other one!

Lemmi sends the order to lodges around the world, but it is Rothschild, President of the The Central Consistory of the Israelites of France (of the Kahal), which drew up the plan and is executing it!

Lemmi urged the Grand Orient to support Dreyfus's innocence! (See "The Confessions of Grand Orient. (page 102.)

But Rothschild, an influential member of the Alliance Israélite Universelle (Regent of the Bank of France, King of all Stock Exchanges (or of thieves), collects the millions intended for to assert this "innocence"; Rothschild, president of the Central Consistory, is tasked, at Less unofficially, Zadoc-Kahn tasked his subordinate with distributing the funds. (See the (Note: "— Wouldn't he himself be the treasurer?", page 95.)

In Lemmi the fugitive influence of the plume; to Rothschild "this mysterious force of f-"An incentive that one cannot resist, even when one is Napoleon I," said Mr. Léon Say one day.
the platform.

But panache is nothing without gold, and gold can do everything without panache; likewise, Lemmi cannot

Nothing without Rothschild, Rothschild can do anything without Lemmi, even and especially overthrow him from his throne ephemeral, when it pleases him!

A phone call to London, Vienna, Berlin, and Lemmi collapses, along with his pension and his Italian monarchies!

But Rothschild does not want to overthrow Lemmi at the moment, because Lemmi is Rothschild's business is too good.

Rothschild dreams of a universal Republic of which he will be King, as he is already King of
the

Jewish Republic, known as French, founded with the all-powerful support of the Jew Crémieux, of the pe-

Gambetta, grandson of a Jew, whose grandfather was the Württemberg Jew Gamberlé.

Now, it turns out that this dream is precisely Lemmi's; it is even with this intention that he
He became Jewish so that he wouldn't have to change when Rothschild's dream and his own were realized.

We owed these clarifications on two seemingly contradictory roles, which in reality are complementing each other, just as the decorative role complements the effective role.

We can see that between these two generalissimos, there is no other difference than that which distinguishes the Master of the valet 1271,

Leaving aside these explanations, let's talk about Generalissimo Lemmi.

It was as commander-in-chief that he sent, on November 21, 1894, to the lodges of France a circular where we read:

The eternal adversaries of reason and progress... want to glorify a hysterical girl [2] whose existence was a bigoted and vicious deception, and to impose it on universal admiration...

"For some time now, chauvinistic French people have been using this girl's name as 127 — We will see in the plan below (pages 186-87), of the residence of the Master or generalissimo effective-tif, in the 8th arrondissement, that his dynasty radiates around the Élysée Palace like the Power executive branch around the representative power (French section).

128 — The Jew Bernheim, said to be "hallucinating." (See "How the Jew Bernheim judges Bernadette and Jeanne") d'Arc", page 88).

— 109 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

from a banner...

We invite the true experts of France... to react against the agitation of the priests under the
the name of this Joan of Arc.

This movement must be paralyzed by any means necessary...

< Spread the word everywhere and show that joining in the exaltation of this Joan of Arc, Under the guise of patriotism, that would be falling into the clerical trap (the old song that keeps coming back)...

We date this encyclical vault to the anniversary of the initiation of the immortal Vol-silence... "Let's contrast Voltaire with Joan of Arc..."

"Written and given in a solemn vault and signed with the reed pen... on the 1st day of the moon of Ni-

san[1#1, 17th day of the 2nd month of the year 000.894 of the True Light. >

"Give the order everywhere," said the Italian Jewish generalissimo in 1894.

We'll see if the order was given and followed! 131

ROTHSCHILD RESIDENCE

to ; 41.35.3 1 F4

[Ke]

at $

| Z7ysée è

Gabriel Avenue, RU, C9

Charnps A Elysées

Avenue des Champs Elysées

Here is the legend:

1. Alphonse de Rothschild, head of the house, lives at 2, rue Saint-Florentin, the former Talley palace.

Grand-Périgord.

2. Nathaniel (deceased), his widow, mother of Edward (deceased), grandmother of Henry, lives in the magnificent hotel at 33, rue du faubourg Saint-Honoré, with ornamental woods on Avenue Gabriel.

129 — According to the Jewish calendar, adopted by Freemasonry, proof of the antiquity of the alliance.

130 — In the same year, 1894, the Parisian lodges had expressed the wish, in congress, that:

"No national holiday other than July 14th shall be instituted."

To underscore their obedience to the orders of the commander-in-chief, they repeated it at the 1896 congress and "the submitted to all the SS+ Lodges so that a similar resolution might be voted on in their respective lodges.

They added: "But that will not be enough. Faced with the mobilization of clerical forces, it is necessary to mobilize-to protect our own and prevent street demonstrations at all costs...

It therefore seems to the Parisian lodges that all the lodges, that all Freemasons, must immediately...

directly with all republican societies to ask them not only to engage in propaganda energetic in combating, through words and writing, the clerical movement and the celebration of Joan of Arc, but still to organize themselves in order to oppose the demonstrations of the clerics with force.

< We are the number (1st lie), we have the people with us (2nd lie).

<“Let’s put an end to the Joan of Arc of the clerics.

< No Joan of Arc celebration.

"Long live July 14th, the only national holiday!"

This is the document that the Parisian lodges addressed to all the lodges of France, in the name of the Generalissimo.

Lemmi, in 1896, to prevent the celebration of Joan of Arc.

They met on March 13, 1899, but this time undoubtedly to "expose the traitor's innocence."

"Dreyfus," still on Lemmi's orders, himself acting on the orders of the Kahal!

— 110 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

3. Salomon (deceased), his widow lives at 11, rue Berryer, a house with a garden, for the expansion of which

She had Balzac's house demolished.

4. Gustave lives in the princely mansion at 23 Avenue Marigny, a true counterpart to the Élysée Palace, with which he communicates via two corresponding gates across the avenue, next to the Ministry of the Interior, in charge of the Jewish police in France.

S. Edmond lives at 41, rue du Faubourg Saint-Honoré, in the former Hôtel Pontalba, with its ornamental woods. like the neighboring hotel of Baroness Nathaniel.

These are, in order of birth, the five sons of James, head of the dynasty (French branch), who died in 1868.

6. At number 38 Friedland Avenue lives the widow of Édouard, who committed suicide in 1881 at the age of 37, for Having lost ten million playing against the Union Générale: the resounding revenge, which one

It was known, but it arrived 6 months later! Madame Edouard de Rothschild, the widow, is the mother of Henri, who gave birth to...

250,000 francs to the treason syndicate.

Is this a sequel to the revenge story?

7. Finally, at number 6 on the Avenue Royale des Champs-Élysées, Salomon Goldschmidt closes the circle of the the Rothschild dynasty around the Élysée Palace and, at the same time, links it to the Jewish race in the the whole world by his title of: President of the Universal Israelite Alliance!

This, in its simplicity, is the situation of the family that governs France and the world!

In the share she acquired of the most beautiful hotels in the most beautiful district of Paris, she carved out a small share very kindly to his extremely wealthy coreligionists, the Péreire family, who reside:

8. Gustave Péreire, administrator of the Austrian and Spanish railways (Compagnie du North) and the "Spanish Phoenix" >, 35, Faubourg Saint-Honoré.

9. Eugène Péreire, president of the "Steam Navigation Companies, Canals, Ports and Docks", administrator manager of the "Parisian Gas Lighting and Heating Company", president of the "Com-Transatlantic Company >, several saltworks and insurance companies, $4, Faubourg Saint-Honored.

All the Rothschild and Péreire mansions in the same suburb have ornamental woods overlooking

On Avenue Gabriel, in the middle of Paris, please!

The Grand Orient of France obeys to the Jewish Generalissimo Lemmi

The day before the day when Mr. Abbé Lemire's report on the Petitions from the women of France in favor of the national holiday of Joan of Arc, the f.:

Edgard Mon-

Teil, the venerable master of the lodge La Clémentine Amitié (a sort of annex of the Gr. Or.), sent "to all the ff +. and in particular to the ff . of the Chamber of Deputies > a circular dated "Or ". of Paris,

February 2, year cvi > (1898).

We note the following passages:

We do not need to discuss the history or legend of this heroine; we find it simple-

It is difficult to make her embody the idea of homeland, since she lived in a time when the homeland did not exist...

"The idea of homeland, that the homeland, in its unity and indivisibility, dates from..."
the French Revolution

"Let the Chamber of Deputies, if it is republican and patriotic, institute the commemorative holiday-

rative of the volunteers of 92, but that it does not fall into the crude trap, opened under its seats

by the Jesuits (the same old refrain), to institute the festival of the monarchy with Joan of Arc soon

canonized by the Church.

131 — As we can see, for them the Fatherland only existed from the day the Jews invaded it!

— 111 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

Open your eyes, TT +. Cc +. FF *, to those who do not want to see.

The Chamber is today considering a sentimental report, supported by petitions from women, peddled by the priests in the alcoves.

"The bill for a Joan of Arc celebration bears numerous signatures from members" parliaments, blind or complicit in the clerical reaction (the refrain).

"Address the blind and lift their eyelids."

The accomplices of the Pope and the Jesuits, that's our business...

But we beg you, Republicans, without sordid compromises, to impede dear to the Institution of a national holiday of Joan of Arc.

<“On several occasions, the Clement Friendship has strongly opposed this celebration.

"She shouted and she's still shouting: 'This is the clerical reaction. This is a civil war celebration.'" <“Declare that the Republic has enough of a national holiday and that July 14th celebrates the fatherland in at the same time as freedom.

"We are counting on you."

"Greetings and Brotherhood."

“By mandate of the L + Edgard Monteil, ven.l.#21 >

The f: Brisson, President of the Chamber, obeys the Gr -. Or:

The Gr + Or +. had said: "We are counting on you!" The Protestant brother Brisson was faithful

(at the 1% deposit)

No one has forgotten how the Speaker of the House, in one of the last sessions, before the elections of May 1898, at the time when he noted the majority committed to the discussion

The immediate response to the Lemire report on the petition from French women, at just the right time, signaled distress to the members of parliament and obtained the referral of discussion #1,

This was the definitive triumph of the Jew Lemmi. Note the simplicity with which he had achieved it.

tenuous.

He had launched the watchword at Gr+. Or: in 1894, which had passed it on to Brisson in 1898, which 132 — Today prefect of Creuse, appointed by Brother Brisson.

133 — The Jew Naquet, from Panama (50,000 francs), had not waited for the order to carry it out.

An obscure Freemason named Louis Martin, having published a pamphlet against Joan of Arc, Naquet he hastened to write to him:

October 8, 1896.

"...I read Joan of Arc. It's perfect! Your ideas are in line with mine!"

"What a great nation England and we would be if Joan of Arc had not existed."

This is Naquet's patriotism, an exact reflection of Jewish patriotism.

134 — He repeated the procedure with the same success at the session on Monday, June 27.

The aim was to secure a majority for the Waldeck-Rousseau-Galliffet cabinet, which was running for re-election.

Bedroom.

Mr. Mirman had just struck him down with an indictment, which went unanswered.

His situation was more than compromised.

Brother Brisson went up to the tribune and during his most urgent appeals to the brothers and friends, we saw him five times (we counted them) make the distress signal, permitted only to high-ranking officials and in high places circumstances !....

The socialists, who wanted to vote against the cabinet, abstained!

He obtained a majority of 23 votes!

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

had passed it the same year to the Masonic majority in the Chamber, which had executed him the day before of its dissolution!

It's not more difficult than that.

What happened with the Joan of Arc question also happens with all questions.
according to the Jewish slogan.

On the eve of the 1889 elections, for example, the same Jew Lemmi sent his circular to lodges in France, inviting them to propaganda "which, according to him, would not fail to send to the "Room of 400 Freemasons."

Etil got them!

This is how the Jews dominate Freemasonry. A word about their domination over the Protestantism.

Isn't the supremacy of Jewish influence over Masonic and Protestant elements... proven, thoroughly proven L15$1?

135 — We would have nothing to say about the two factions of the Triplice's vanguard, Jaurès-Millerand-Vi-

Viani of the Socialist Party, Sébastien Faure of the Anarchist Party, recruiting from all corners of the Jewish community, the Protestants and Freemasons, if the Jewish world had not insisted on giving them a separate place in the flat-his numerous appreciations bestowed upon friends of Israel.

During the questioning of Hugues-Denis regarding Jewish preponderance in September 1895, Mr. Rouanet had clearly took a stand for the Jews against the sole capitalist preponderance and Mr. Jaurès had applauded.

The Israelite world was beside itself with joy.

< At the beginning of the current legislative session, he said (October 2), the Socialist group seemed to be in contradiction blatant in its origins, principles and aims.

"The socialist idea, at least in this century, largely originates from Jewish thinkers.

"It was Jews, Karl Marx, de Lasalle, who founded the doctrine, laid down the rules and charted the course.

"It was Boerne, Meissner, etc., who, in Germany, from 1830 to 1850, led the republican movement," grouped and organized the party's forces.

"Therefore, German socialism was careful not to fraternize with anti-Semitism.

“By continuing to march with the leaders of French anti-Semitism, our socialists would at least failed in the duty of gratitude.

"They would have shown a singular lack of logic."

It is for having lacked neither “logic nor gratitude” that Jaurès and Rouanet earned this formidable a dazzling blow of the censer which, at the same time as it broke their noses, scattered luminous sparks on "the origins, principles, and aims of socialism" (Semitic), which have been prudently left in the shadows by these so-called friends of the light.

The satisfaction of the Jewish organ is poorly concealed in its conclusion:

"Those French people," he said, "who are Jewish are not subjected, in that capacity, to any particular status."

particularly with regard to socialism.

Conversely, the Socialist Party declares itself indifferent to their religious affiliation.

We simply add that this veneer of pharisaical "indifference" between socialism stemming from the Jew and

The Jewish father of socialism, but conceals the fervor of the affection that rightly unites them both, as the father and child, against the object of their shared hatred, which they call "clericalism" and which is not other than "Catholicism," or the religion of France for the past 1,400 years, the religion today of Thirty-eight million French people!

It is clear that the socialists have as much, if not more, reason to obey the orders of the commander-in-chief as the Protestants and Freemasons.

Let us not be pitted here against the scattered and often obscure dissidents of Judaism and Protestantism.

and Freemasonry! They only prove one thing: that the exception proves the rule.

The rule is that influential members of Protestantism or Freemasonry obey the influential members of the Jewish community.

— 113 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

However, we still lack categorical and official admissions.

Here they are:

Universal Freemasonry

under the orders of the Jewish commander-in-chief

We find in Blaetter's political history, 1862 (a very serious work), the official admissions of followers of a Freemason, disillusioned by Alban Stoz's pamphlet on Freemasonry.

We are adding subtitles:

"The power that Judah acquired through Freemasonry is now at his apogee.

"She is currently just as formidable for the throne as for the altar."

<"Although excluded from some lodges, Jews sit in all the lodges of the world.

The two Jewish lodges of London

"In London, there are two Jewish lodges that gather in their hands the threads of all the elements revolutionaries existing within Christian lodges.

"It is Judah who constitutes the head of all the lodges, and the Christian lodges are nothing but..."

blind puppets that are set in motion by Judah and that most of the time do not have the slightest suspicion.

A simple thought: Is it any wonder, then, that England played such a considerable role?
in the Dreyfus affair.

Let's return to our quote.

The Jewish lodge of Rome

"There is also a ruling lodge in Rome composed entirely of Jews."

"It is also one of the supreme courts of the revolution and governs the other lodges, at average of unknown heads.

Jewish lodges in Germany

"In Leipzig, the secret Jewish lodge operates continuously during the fair#]

"Not a single Christian has access to it."

To prove the case for those who invoke them, these dissidents would have to be leaders of sect, party or religion! Which is not.

This is a response to the Gaulois of the Jew Meyer, who complained, in December 1998, about the tendency of anti-Semites.

to include all Jews in the same condemnation; Protestants and Freemasons of good faith can use the response, with regard to their fellow believers.

Because Freemasonry is a religion!

136 — We find in the National Archives, General Police (EF. 7, 6575) the following curious observations:

boasts of a policeman of Napoleon I' on a letter dated Frankfurt, November 1, 1811, signed O ::

H :: and intercepted in Hamburg:

"It is said that the Rothschild family monopolized the last Leipzig fair in September 1811," many gold ducats and frederics, and that she carried out various operations at the same time through the-

which she drew considerable sums of money from in Paris, to the point of influencing the exchange rate.

(Edouard Demachy, the Rothschilds, 48, rue Pergolèse, Paris)

—{id —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

"In Hamburg and Frankfurt, only secret emissaries are admitted #1,

"May the powerful finally understand that the Lodges do not work to sow revolution"

LUTION THAT IN THE INTEREST OF JUDAISM the %#1, »

This confirms what we said earlier: All revolutions are Jewish in their results, but also what we are now saying, that they are Jewish in their impulse.

We have the official confession of a Freemason. All we need now is the official confession of a Jewish.

Here it is:

<"The Jews rule the world">

The Jews! The Jews! Do you see any intellectual movement emerging in Europe?

151 of some importance without Jews featuring prominently? (This reminds us

(The first aristocracy in the world) (of the Jew Isaiah-Levaillant.)

"Upon my arrival in Saint Petersburg, I had an interview with the Minister of Finance of Russia, Count Camcrim: he was the son of a Jew from Lithuania.

"In Spain, I had obtained an audience with Minister Mendizabal; this Mendizabal, he is this that I myself am the son of a converted Jew from the province of Aragon.

"In Paris, I wanted to seek advice from the president of the council; I found myself in the presence of a

Marshal of the Empire who almost sat on the throne of Portugal one day, Soult, the son of a Jew who settled in France #1,

"— What! you will say to me: Soult a Jew?"

“— Yes, certainly, like several other marshals of the Empire, foremost among them Masséna, which in our culture is called Manasseh.

“I left Paris for Berlin and the minister I had to visit, Count Arnim, was none other than a Prussian Jew.

"In truth, the world is governed by very different people than those who do not
They don't see what's happening behind the scenes.

Who said that?

The Jew Disraeli, also known as Lord Beaconsfield, Prime Minister of Her Majesty the British Empire, in his novel Coningsby, published in 1844.

137 — Rothschild, who is from Frankfurt, must have been a secret emissary, judging by the report of the same politician see that above.

He wrote, regarding the official report he was requesting of a home visit conducted at the banker's residence

Rothschild, in April and May 1809:

Above all, do not ask anything of the Frankfurt city police, with whom she (the Roths-family) is in contact.

child) is affiliated through its relationship with German and French lodges.

138 — This is exactly the meaning of the word in the Revue des questions historiques (April 1, 1882):

Judaism rules the world, and one must necessarily conclude that Freemasonry has become Jewish.

or that Judaism has become Freemasonry.

139 — The author does not say: “revolutionary movement”, but the idea is implied, if one considers that revolutions for Jews are always intellectual movements.

For example, the revolutionary leaders of the Dreyfus affair who dreamed only of "upheaval" are classified among "intellectuals >

140 — It was in this capacity that, on January 6, 1842, Baron James de Rothschild “appeared resplendent in his golden halo, amidst Marshal Soult's salons, bearing on his chest the spittle of Grand Officer of the Legion of Honour (Edouard Demachy.)

— 115 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

He had just described the Kahal, but vaguely enough not to reveal it to the eyes of the simple... that we have been until now, alas!

Have times changed today?

Does the Jew govern the world less? Does he govern France less?

Ask the "Dreyfus affair," in which Jews occupy France and the world, despite the France.

Ask about how they managed to turn European opinion against France, especially... element of Germany, Austria, Russia.

Mr. Chéradame, a graduate of the School of Political Science, who has traveled through these countries as appointed to missions in 1897 by the Ministry of Commerce, and in 1898 by the Ministry of Colonies, in fact, in his remarkable pamphlet: The Dreyfus Affair Abroad, the Painful Findings following:

"A mysterious power has been at work in Europe."

"It is not possible that, in such diverse countries, with such different interests, where we Given the large number of friends, the observed unity of opinion is a natural result.

"It seems certain to me that the intelligence agencies that give newspapers their news-

They were in the hands of this occult power.

"Everywhere the dispatches were sorted. Only those in a Dreyfusard direction got through
[1]; the

141 — On October 28, 1898, a group of French people from Buenos Aires wrote to Mr. Drumont:

Sir,

"As you know, the Dreyfus-Zola affair is being judged very harshly abroad; the Argentinian newspapers..."

Those who are enlightened are insulting us...

"There are many French people here, former soldiers..."

"At a meeting held last night, we resolved to write to you; you will inform Paris of what
In the way a French agency publishes the news it receives from France..."

"The Director of the Havas Agency in South America is a Swiss Jew, Mr. Henri Gasser, who describes himself as protesting.

"The Director of the Havas Agency branch in Buenos Aires is an Italian Jew, Mr. Daniel Baccani, the even the one who gives banquets for the German consul..."

"When Zola was condemned, the Havas Agency published the news in such sickening terms that the ind-
The genocide was general.

This morning, October 28th, I am sending you the telegrams published by Havas. It's a disgrace!

"There's something even better: French newspapers that receive Havas telegrams pay 600 piastres a month!"

"The German newspaper 'Deutsche Plata Zeitung' pays only 300!"

And here's an agency that calls itself French!

Note the date of this letter, October 28th.

Two days later (October 30), the aforementioned Italian Jew Baccani published this dispatch in Buenos Aires.

Ayres:

Paris, October 30.

"The anti-Semitic press is making a futile effort to attack and accuse the judges of the Court of Cassation..."

"The people are much more willing to admit the guilt or the stupidity of the chiefs of staff."

The people demonstrated their intentions through the Henry subscription.

As for "the guilt or imbecility of the chiefs of staff," we know what to think about that.

The deposition of General Roget!

This, in real time, is the criminal way in which the Jews stirred up Europe and the world against France. They

They are now threatening to incite half of the French against the other half, through the constitution (June 22nd).

to the applause of the Dreyfusard press, of the Waldeck-Galliffet-Millerand cabinet, in replacement from the Dupuy cabinet, resigned.

— 116 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

comments on which they are based were necessarily Dreyfusard, and this resulted in the uni-

Dreyfusard opinion group.

"I therefore firmly believe that foreign opinion has been corrupted..."

The Rovssky Twoud, of Saint Petersburg, said the same thing on March 25, 1899, from the press

Dreyfusard:

Thanks to the Syndicate's inexhaustible millions, Dreyfusism found supporters in Russia.
as elsewhere.

They insert knowingly false correspondence from their correspondents.
his.

They translate selected fragments from French Dreyfusard newspapers.

This is how the Jew governs the world and France! Does he govern the Protestant any less?
ism?

Ask the Huguenot newspapers Le Temps and Le Signal, ask the Protestants of Pressensé, Monod, Scheurer-Kestner, Trarieux, etc., all staunch defenders of a traitor, because that he is Jewish!

Does he govern Freemasonry less?

Ask Freemason Pasquier, clothing captain in the 58th Line Infantry Regiment, Venerable Master of the lodge of Avignon and member of the council of the order of the Gr «-Or +, who at a Masonic banquet, to those who congratulated him for having voted in favor of the agenda item in favor of Dreyfus at the 1898 convention, answered:

"THE SUCCESS OF THE REVISION IS A MATTER OF LIFE OR DEATH FOR THE MASONRY. (Courrier du Midi, Nov. 1898.)

Why is it a matter of life or death?

Because Dreyfus, that is to say, in this instance, the whole of Judaism, is truly the head and the heart of Freemasonry, and to touch only one of these two essential organs,
even more so for both of them at the same time, it is indeed a matter of life or death for her.

So, it's not "the bricklayer who's leading the charge" as he claimed on December 23rd <1898, the Jew Meyer of Gaulois, in the interest of his race; it is indeed the Jew and the Jew alone!

He alone is indeed the commander-in-chief of the Judeo-Masonic-Protestant army.

We will see how he knows how to lead her in the assault on Catholic liberties according to
the inspired by his eighteen-century-old hatred of the "Nazarene" and under the impetus of the Kahal!

The Jew on the attack against Catholic liberties

There are two ways to carry out an assault: one, openly, boldly, in the French style;
the other, crawling along the winding path that leads to the citadel.

As we can see, the Jew alone is right against everyone else!

Why? Because of one of the two flaws that were pointed out to us five years ago by the Jew Saulus in the Wücherpille of Mainz and here it is:

< It is to live from day to day, without lofty views on causes and effects, on the past or on the future.

"How else," he said, "could they have allowed us (Jews) to be seized with such indifference?"

The press, this crucial means of domination?

Because it is from this vantage point that we can signal the slightest hostile phenomenon and suppress it in its germ. > (January 1895).

Today, "the hostile phenomenon" is the belief in Dreyfus's guilt; "the observatory"

It's the Havas Agency!

— 117 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

The Jew, not being French, only uses the second method l1#1,

Instead of walking with his head held high, in the straight and wide path, he prefers to crawl along the trail ambushes.

That's his way and he feels no need to change it #1,

This is how, under the treacherous appearance of moderation, so aptly called by Mr.

Brunetière, in his critique of "the hypocrisy of peace," has been one of the most persuasive arguments he has been making to French Catholics for the past 20 years.

the deadliest sects they had remembered since Julian the Apostate!

But this hypocrisy is entirely Talmudic. The iniquities it harbors do not

They are no less so.

Judge for yourselves:

The Jewish theory "from priest to sacristy"

The Catholic priest has a duty of state to proclaim the word of God everywhere, to "preach it" over the rooftops." (Matthew 10:27)

It is the order of the divine Master; he cannot disobey it.

Yes, but that doesn't suit the anti-Catholic tripartite faction, which forbids it by using... denunciations and suppression of treatments, in the name of the theory accepted today, even in certain Catholic circles, of the "Priest in the sacristy >.

142 — This does not prevent him from sounding the charge, but he has his own way, Talmudically discreet, quite well rendered by the subsequent echo of an appeal from the Chief Rabbi, trumpeted in his 150 synagogues or communities of France.

This is a letter from Bayonne dated the 6th and published on October 9, 1995 by the Israelite Universe.

We read there:

"On the first day of Sukkot, our chief rabbi ascended the pulpit and read the letter from the chief rabbi."

Zadoc-Kahn.

This circular... recommends arming our coreligionists in the fight against ignorance and slander.

legionnaires, etc.

Our pastor then stated that he is ready to bring together members of the Community in conferences which will allow us to give our fellow believers this additional instruction.

"He added that, at his request, Rabbi Bloch of Pau and Dr. Delvaille, vice-president of the Consistory; Jacob Lambert and Jules Delvaille, professors, the former at the Bayonne high school, the latter at

The students of the Mautauban high school will lend their support to these conferences, which will be held monthly.

year...

Furthermore, why doesn't Chief Rabbi Zadoc-Kahn organize a central committee to which would be

Send the conferences held in all parts of the territory? This committee would choose twenty or thirty of them.

would publish, at the end of the year, a collection at a price accessible to all budgets... >

143 — This method was perfectly demonstrated to us by the Jew Reinach in January 1899, during his trial filed by Mr. Henry.

Knowing the colonel's widow was defenseless, Reinach had insulted her husband's memory and put her...

even though it is required to bring her before the assizes.

He was indeed brought to trial there, contrary to his expectations; but then the slanderer thought only of escaping the

the court he had petitioned, and to flee at full speed into the "thicket of procedure"!

144 — This emperor (360-363), from whom the Jews borrowed their current method of persecution

(the strangulation of Catholics with velvet cords), showered them with favors, as we know: he tried to rebuild their temple destroyed during the siege of Jerusalem by Titus (70); he relieved them of the taxes imposed on them by Constantine and Marcus Aurelius allowed them to draw freely from the state treasury! etc.

It is in memory of so many acts of kindness that the Jews of the treason syndicate considered erecting a statue to him.

In front of the Palace of the Baths! That makes sense! (February 1899).

— 118 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

Let's tell these Catholics that this theory is not Catholic at all, since it is Jewish.

This is indeed how the Jewish doctor Herzl, leader of Zionism, understands the social role of clergy, to whatever religion they belong:

We will not allow the theocratic ambitions of our clergy to take root.

We will know how to keep them in their temples, just as we will keep them in their camps. [We are our professional soldiers]...

"The army and the clergy, in their respective states, have nothing to say, for they would provoke..."

external and internal difficulties. > (New International Review, January 15, 1897).

Which is to say: "So as not to disturb the digestion of the sated bourgeois of the triplice"

Internally, the army and the clergy will have to peacefully endure whatever indignities these gentlemen deem fit to inflict upon them.

Water them.

Or again: "The sword should only be drawn for the defense of the Jew and the word of "God," from the priest's lips, "only to protect the plunder of Israel."

This is precisely how the Dreyfusards understand it today in their campaign against "the sword and the aspergillum."

And, to this strange Jewish conception, Mr. Drumont gave the popular formula when he wrote-

On February 22nd, Mr. Loubet was forced to shelter his election to the Presidency behind the army.

contested by the people, the following lines:

"The ideal of devotion among men of duty serves to preserve the skin of men of greed and profit.

"These are thoughts that come along the way, to the upstarts of the plot and the triumphant"

of Dreyfusism, especially when the road is stormy, difficult, and arduous.

But when the road "is neither stormy, nor difficult, nor rugged," when it is only a

A banal campaign against "the clericals" saw the Jews regain their courage and disregard the appeal.

to the saber whose "humiliating protection" they had endured the day before, and they put their point of honor they only resort to their usual weapons: lies and mudslinging.

Here is a sample:

The Jew and the Catholic clergy

A hateful pamphlet against religion and the clergy, but favorable to Dreyfus, was distributed in February 1897, in the Lyon and Lille regions, and particularly in Roubaix, where it was slipped under the doors and stuck to the walls, during the night of Saturday 6 to Sunday 7 February.

On the red paper cupboard, it read:

"To the agitation fomented by the cassock-wearers and their acolytes, let us oppose the energetic propaganda-great that will be inspired by the strength of our anti-religious convictions.

"Let the conferences multiply; let the meetings follow one another; let our manifestos..."
be on every wall and in every hand.

145 — This explains the recent and painful observation by Leo XIII:

"In recent times especially, there has been a real effort to erect a kind of wall between the Church and society."

civil.

"In the Constitution and administration of States, the authority of sacred law is not counted for anything and divine; the aim is to remove all influence of religion on the course of civil life.

"As a result of this way of acting, we have the almost complete disappearance of the law of Christ in society.

"If it were possible, we would drive God himself off the earth."

(Encyclical on the Consecration of the Human Race to the Most Sacred Heart of Jesus).

THE SECTARIAN JEW

<“This manifesto is the first of those that the newspaper Le Libertaire intends to publish.

"Le Libertaire has opened a subscription, the proceeds of which will be entirely devoted to the campaign"

anticlericalism, which he initiated... >

This pamphlet was signed "Le Libertaire" and came from the presses of "Le Stéphanois" in Saint-Étienne.

However, we know that Le Libertaire was then the newspaper of Sébastien Faure, official defender of the traitor Dreyfus and Jewish billionaires.

What is less well known is that the Saint-Étienne club's manager was the Jewish L. Dreyfus (yet another one!) who is, moreover, one of the influential leaders of the Saint-Étienne lodge!

Another pamphlet against the clergy and congregationalists, entitled "The Schools of Christ > and surmounted by the crucifix of the Cross, came out at the same time (February 1897) from the printing press of Awakening of the North.

On the back of the paper, in red letters, one could read:

"Don't forget that the Church teaches in order to dominate."

"The La Fidélité lodge has distributed 25,000 copies of this circular in Lille.

To give this anti-clerical propaganda the desired scope, a subscription is open and an appeal is made to all Freethinking Societies and to all Freethinking Societies and to all Masonic lodges.

"Any society, any person who sends a money order for five francs, will receive one thousand francs free of charge."

to link these printed materials (10 francs, 2,000: 15 francs, 3,000).

"Send postal money order to Mr. Télidéfi (Éidélité), 24, rue de Lens, Lille."

This address, crossed out in some copies, was replaced by the following one written at pencil: "Daillet. 28 (street of) Fives."

This leaflet, distributed throughout France in a million copies, via of the most ardent brothers, reported to Le Réveil du Nord the following condemnations, before the tri-

Lille correctional court (January 1897):

1° 25 francs in damages, a 25-franc fine, and an advertisement in Le Réveil for having slandered the Brothers of the rue de Fives;

2° 50 francs in damages, 50 francs fine and an insertion in l'Ilion, for having slandered denied Mr. Morel, sacristan in Ronchin;

3° 25 francs in damages, a 25-franc fine, and an advertisement in L'Égalité (edition of the Réveil for Roubaix-Tourcoing), for having slandered Mr. Joly, director of the weaving of Mr.

Motte, in Roubaix;

4° 100 francs in damages, 100 francs fine and publication in five newspapers choice of the plaintiff, for having slandered Father Barjaud, vicar of Thiviers (currently in Aurillac).

This latest condemnation indirectly affected Le Réveil and directly affected its printer. Lagrange.

Le Réveil du Nord, thus amended, reprinted its pamphlet in 100,000 copies, also amended - on the occasion of the Flamidien affair (February 1899).

But his amendment is superficial, judging by the convictions he cites, including Some of them, 25 years old, will not see those concerned, probably dead, claiming...

damages, many of which are false and apply to congregations Nists expelled from the Congregation for 20 years.

— 120 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

At that rate, he might as well add to his list the name of the former "money-bearer-tane » Sébastien-Faure [#1 whose criminal record is certainly not as clean as that of Brother Flamidien #1,

What must be noted in this document, amended or not, is that it is the work of the Awakening of the North and the Fidelity lodge of Lille.

However, one man serves as a link between this newspaper, which he inspired, and this lodge, which he is the pontiff.

It is the Jew Welhof, former manager of the Réveil, speaker for the Fidelity, currently head of compauthorized to the Lille City Hall.

And now, the result of so much anti-clerical propaganda, so many subscriptions, so much of appeals to lodges and freethinking, do you want to know about it?

It was about highlighting the official crime statistics in France, which are shining brightly.
to speak precisely of this morality of the clergy that the Jew wanted to tarnish.

This statistic, from Mr. Tarde, head of the statistics office at the Ministry of Justice, was produced at the International Congress of Criminal Anthropology in Geneva, the same Congress which condemned, in 1896, although partly composed of freethinkers, the theory of the born criminal,

dear to Lombroso and his friend Zola.

Here is this statistic l1##

CRIMINALS BY THE HUNDRED THOUSAND SOULS AND BY PROFESSION:

Liberal professions:

CRE aan nn nie nee 7,1

Teachers, primary school teachers 15.8

MÉGÉCIRS M Ra nd bon Din 18.6

Pharmacists. I felt sovus secs one seven vues anves aune 37.9

ATTISÉES in aide ereleaué etat dasen een nat cran nee Can aies el 40.2

Men of letters, scholars 44.9

SADES ÉD name nent dis 86

Ministerial officers (Solicitors, Notaries, Bailiffs) ... 281.33

146 — We know that Sébastien Faure was a novice in a religious congregation.

147 — The innocence of the accused is now evident to all.

The assassin himself recorded, anonymously, the previously unpublished details — which were subsequently confirmed as accurate by the investigation.

— of the execution, or account of his crime, in three letters to the brothers of Lille dated May 18 and 23, and June 2, 1899. We

We'll talk about that later.

With the Flamidien case collapsing, they had to look for something else. That became the Trouville case!

Abbot Lacroix, vicar at Notre-Dame des Victoires in Trouville, was arrested for shameful acts.

The prevention argument failed: the victim of the lodges and the synagogue was released.

But their newspapers, the Trouville-Gazette and the Radical, had been able to display to the eyes of their naive readers (3 and April 4th) titles such as the following:

"The Trouville scandal. A Flamidien imitator... Abbé Lacroix, etc."

That's their way!

148 —Mr. Abbé Bertrain, professor at the Catholic Institute of Paris, published in Christian Education

(October 1898) a comparative criminal statistic between the clergy and religious orders in general and the principals main liberal professions, according to official statistics.

But it is a bit more scholarly and complicated for the masses than Mr.'s simpler statistics.

Tarde will have a greater impact, besides appearing more disinterested. Mr. Tarde being a freethinker.

— 121 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

Other professions

Group 2nCOIE us aan 8,4

MUST rump sas of the girls 13.2

Commercial Group to if dedenanéenherans 10

Let's focus on the extreme figures: 281.33 on one side, 7.1 on the other.

What does that mean?

That the clergy is on the right track;

He is therefore unjustly attacked by Jews who certainly could not be included in the same rank;

Therefore, he does not deserve the reproach of teaching virtue and practicing vice;

This reproach should be directed solely at the Pharisees, the fathers of the Talmud, including the divine Master

he said:

<“Do what they tell you, not what they do”;

The Jews would therefore do well, in the future, to scrutinize, if they so choose, the conduct of their rabbis.

bins, but to leave the French clergy alone, as well as the religious congregations.

Unfortunately, they leave him so little peace that, on the contrary, they pursue him in every way.

They hunt him down like gallows fodder, in concert with their footmen, the Protestants and Freemasons.

The illegal method is slander, we just talked about that; let's talk a little now about the legal way:

The Jew Reinach and "existing laws"

These famous laws, under the Ferry ministry in 1880, marked the first stage of the persecution of religious cult.

Under these "existing laws," nearly 50,000 French religious were expelled from their homes. On the same day, March 29th; at the same time, five o'clock in the morning, in the circumstances of the Dreyfus case, the brutality still present in everyone's memories.

Who had pointed out the "existence" of these long-obsolete laws, in the middle of the 19th century, to the freemason Jules Ferry?

A Jew from Frankfurt, naturalized since the war (June 26, 1871), who became a deputy through the support of a few voters;

In short: Joseph Reinach, nephew of the notorious Panamanian swindler of the same name, the protector-

Dreyfus's father, the prophet and initiator of the "upheaval" >

A curious thing! This newly naturalized Frenchman, who began the war against "the goyim" is the same one that leads her today against "The Sabre".

That's in order!

The same Jew, driven by the same hatred, was to be at the beginning and the end of the same

Talmudic work of destruction, first against religion, last against the Pa-sort [S01,

But there were intermediate blows that also did not escape notice, believe me.
from the master, we mean to the direction of the commander-in-chief.

149 —In the Breton style, actually a first cousin.

150 — The ministry intended to save Dreyfus from the Rennes court-martial was the personal work of Reinach. So much so that patriotic newspapers did not hesitate to call him "Triumph of Waldeck-Galliffet-

Reinach!

— 122 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

Let's review them.

Jews against Sunday rest

A law was passed in July 1880 "abolishing Sunday rest for public work" blics.

It was, sang the pro-Israel newspapers in every tone, "the conquest of freedom" work!

In reality, it was "the theft of the freedom of rest," the only day the worker could have it.

enjoy.

And this benefited the Jewish capitalist, who gained an extra day's profit per week, while continuing to...

nuant to enjoy, himself, his Sabbath day rest.

This was the application of the Talmudic text that forbade Jews from trading with Christians.

except on Sundays "when it is permitted to prevent them from observing their feast day." (Tr. Aboda s. 2, 1.)

Curiously enough, the workers themselves were quick to swallow this crude farce!

"We must eat on Sundays like any other day," they say!

— Hey! No doubt, but it's the Jew, for whom you work, who will feed you that day without work, not for you to sweat another day in his pocket!

— The means?

— It's very simple: a weekly commitment, instead of a daily commitment!

— But the Jewish boss doesn't want it, a weekly commitment!

— That's precisely how the Jew tricked you: he imposed a day's commitment on you, to the double benefit of his hatred and his greed: his hatred that robs you of your day of rest, which he does not

He doesn't refuse the beasts of burden in his stable, his greed that fattens itself on your sweat, this day-

BT

This explains the countless difficulties encountered in the railway companies of iron, to the suppression, even partial, of the slow-speed service in stations.

Influential board members are Jewish [51]

This explains the pleasure felt by the Jew Maurice Lévy, a member of the Jewish Consistory. elite of France (Rothschild president) and university professor, to pass on to his students Examinations on Ascension Day 1897, contrary to immemorial custom (Libre Parole, May 31) 1897).

This day is "a Christian holiday"

This is the explanation for the answer given in 1893 by Mr. Lambert de Rothschild!¹⁵¹, all-thena shareholder of Belgian Independence, to the typesetter Magdelyns, who came to ask him,

On behalf of his comrades, Sunday rest.

Here are some excerpts from Le Patriote de Bruxelles (December 1893):

"I have always fought against Sunday rest and I always will, because (here are explanations)" cations that poorly disguise the real thing).

151 — However, the decree abolishing the slow-speed service on Sundays, obtained with so much difficulty-

The cult, almost had to be reported by the Minister of Public Works, upon request, on October 21, 1898.

of Mr. Viger, Minister of Agriculture, in the Brisson-Dreyfus Cabinet, who wished to please the Jews of Companies.

152 — Son-in-law of Mr. Gustave de Rothschild, 23, avenue Marigny, whose daughter Lucie he married. (See the Rothschild family portrait, "Rothschild residence", page 110

THE SECTARIAN JEW

“Mr. Lambert then declared that Sunday rest, as in England, is odious; he has blamed the Havas agency for partially closing on Sundays.

Mr. Lambert added:

<“I have an employee here who has been attached to my house for forty-five years.

"He entered our service when our poor father was still alive."

"I am forty-three years old: I must therefore consider him as my older brother.

"Well! If this employee told me: 'Master, I am old, worn out, I can no longer provide as in the past, the same amount of work; please let me begin in the morning

"Later and finish earlier in the evening," I would grant him that favor on time.

But if he comes to me asking for Sunday rest, I will absolutely refuse him!

— Why? Mr. de Rothschild!

— Why? Ask the Talmud (Tractate Megilla 7, 2, Venice edition).

A recent event has brought to light this odious application of the Talmud.

On Tuesday, March 28, 1899, the Paris Municipal Council discussed Article 7 of the regulations concerning the Displays, designed as follows:

"Permissions to display merchandise against shop fronts, granted" to merchants of novelties, clothing, shoes, lingerie, haberdashery, fashion, articles travel goods, bazaar items, etc., must bear the sign that displays "will only be tolerated, the di-sleeve, until noon, and on working days, from eight o'clock in the morning to eight o'clock in the evening).

Essentially, it was about the employees' Sunday rest.

Mr. Veber, a socialist, to whom we owe this justice, courageously demanded it for the excellent-

the following reasons, which he was able to put forward:

We want Sunday rest for employees, not weekly rest, which is left to their discretion. bosses.

Furthermore, the promises made by employers to grant two days of rest per month do not... They argue that with limited trust, this variable rest period would not satisfy employees.

Like you, these men have families; like you, they want to be able to get back in the game one day.

per week in family life.

"Will they be able to if the day off granted to the mother falls on a different day than the one granted to the father, on a day other than the one on which the son will rest?

Without Sunday rest, there is no family life.

"Alone at home on his day off, the head of the family gets bored and seeks distractions."
at the cabaret.

"He spends money that could have been used to usefully provide for his entire family."

"Sunday rest is observed in England and Switzerland."

"Religion prescribes it and makes it a divine law."

The Catholic congresses of Reims and Avignon agreed with the workers' congresses to demand...

Sunday rest is... >

Here's a small point to note:

It was rather the workers' congresses that agreed with the Catholic congresses, to re-to claim a right, so in line with the interests of the workers — of all workers — that the Church has never ceased to to claim it for themselves and to impose respect for it, for nineteen centuries, to the extent of its power, to the powerful whom their greed drove to violate it, in the weak.

In any case, the municipal majority disagreed with both the Church and the socialists, and workers' congresses!

(0) —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

She reflected, with Mr. de Rothschild who inspires her and the Talmud which inspires Mr. de Rothschild, that "Sunday rest is not for dogs," and denied it to shop employees.

Parisian 1S31,

Jews and the School Law

This law, known as the "school neutrality" law, was passed on March 28, 1882, and implemented immediately.

by suppressing catechism and removing religious symbols from official schools first, the gradual elimination of religious personnel, then, finally, their definitive exclusion from education, on October 30, 1886, this law, we know the results of it today.

Here they are:

1886

Juvenile criminals (aged 16 and over):

For boys: 4,937 criminals. For girls: 659 criminals.

“Among adults, religious faith is also put to a severe test. During the days

On Saturdays and Sundays, Christian servants are prevented from attending church:

on Saturdays, because they are obliged to work, to do sales, given that the Jews observe

The Sabbath rest is strictly observed; Sundays and holidays are also observed, because Jews need of them and would dismiss them if they abstained from the services; so that the Christians who had fallen into Jewish communities no longer attend churches, are losing the habit of seeing holy images and observing

Christian holidays and the precepts of the Church.

The priests hear with horror in confession the declarations of these servants, the blasphemies that

The Jews profess against Christianity, the Savior, and the Virgin Mary.

"These blasphemies spread among the people and destroy the faith..."

1889

Criminal children (three years later):

For boys: 6,743 (nearly 2,000 more). For girls: 1,097 (nearly double).

(Official Journal.)

1893

Criminal children (four years later):

"From 1883 to 1893, the number of juvenile delinquents increased by a quarter, the figure of the population-lation remaining stationary.

(Alfred Fouillée, of the Academy of Moral Sciences, in the Review) of the Two Worlds (free thinker) (January 15, 1897, p.126).

153 — The same intransigence was shown in January 1899 at the Frankfurt City Council.

Inspired by the city's wealthy Jews, the majority rejected a partial limitation of the work of the Sunday, proposed by the executive committee.

In Russia, where Jews do not, however, dominate, the same sectarian spirit prevails, as can be judged by this extract from the official report of the president of the Holy Synod (Russian) Mr. Pobedonotsef to the Emperor, on the an-

born 1894:

"The influence of the Jews in religious matters is strongly felt, especially among the Christians of the Church"

Russians who are employed in their homes as domestic servants.

The miners, when they remained in service with the Jews for a few years, completely forgot Christian beliefs.

154— "In the single year of 1887, we had 375 suicides of young people (aged 16 to 21) and 87 of children under 16 years of age. > (Alfred Fouillée, Revue des Deux-Mondes, January 15, p. 426.)

THE SECTARIAN JEW

1897

Criminal children (four years later):

“Seven million children aged 7 to 16 commit almost twice as many (recorded) crimes” than twenty million adults over the age of 16.

(Same as above.)

Which school do criminal children come from?

Here it is for Paris:

Of 100 children prosecuted, barely 2 come from a religious school, 98 come from other schools neutral.

(A. Fouillée, ibid. as above.)

Here it is for the Seine:

“Of 100 children detained at La Petite-Roquette, 89 come from neutral schools; only 11 Catholic schools.

(Statistics from the public prosecutor's office of the Seine court.)

These figures, let us not forget, come from statisticians, most of them freethinkers like Mr.
Searched.

What is true of Paris and the Seine is also true of the whole of France.

From this we conclude that the Neutral School must be called the School of Crime, if not because it

the brand, at least because it doesn't know or can't prevent it!

That's obvious!

Only one thing keeps the child from the path of evil that tempts him, like everyone else:

Belief in God "who sees all, who hears all, who punishes or rewards all" >

But this belief is forbidden to be taught to him by the neutral school!

This is the only effective barrier removed from his bad instincts, and it's surprising that he slips to that side.

Where are they training him? It would be surprising if it were otherwise!

— But how many children, you will say, succumb despite this faith!

— Yes indeed! "despite this faith," which proves not the ineffectiveness of this faith in itself, but its insufficiency in the heart where it resides only in small doses.

The torrent swept away a fefu, who wouldn't have swept away a dike!

It is precisely the duty and concern of the congregational master to build this dike faith in the hearts of his students.

Sometimes he only manages to place the straw there, but more often it's a solid dike!

And then the child resists!

The secular school, for its part, doesn't even want a straw! And we're surprised that crime roams there?

Like in conquered territory?

This is the whole explanation for the child crime statistics, which are so disastrous for her!

— But there are other criminal statistics, you might say, those of teaching staff and

Aren't these disastrous for religious schools?

They are so few that we cannot resist the pleasure of placing one here, provided by the reports from the Ministry of Public Instruction, which were featured in the Journal official, on the occasion of the sensational Citeaux affair.

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

Here it is:

Criminal secularists, criminal members of religious orders

LROS. issassessmes 2 ... 4

LRO suture 9 ... 6

LS72: sissiusssueus TO ... 4

1878: ssacsssusasass 19 ... 6

LS7Æ ss ussés ue LS S

LS7S: LS TT scissor-type

L87O sida 028 is

1877, ssscssnsasase 28 Fe

LS7S sisi 26 Li

1879. isacsniau sais 22 LS

ESSO sssreersusssss 2 ... 8

LS8L ss. LG . 6

In other words:

73,906 laypeople incurred 268 convictions over thirteen years, or about 3 per year, out of 10,000 teachers.

$49.74 members of religious orders incurred 72 convictions in thirteen years, or about 1 per year.

out of 10,000 teachers.

Which means: for a crime committed by members of religious orders, the laypeople involved...

They put on cold.

A curious thing indeed! At the very moment when there was so much fuss being made about the Flamidien affair (February 1899) this proportion was maintained.

For every unjustified accusation against the religious order, we have had justified ones against

The secular ones! All three from the same month of February.

These are: 1° The attack on his young daughter by Henry Albert, a secular schoolteacher from Châtelus (Loire), 33 years old] ; 2° Public indecency, by Surin, a secular schoolteacher from Beslé, in Guémené-

Penfao (Loire-Inférieure); 3° Abduction, on February 13, of his pupil Pierre Papin, 12 years old, by Moriceau, a secular schoolteacher from Pin-en-Mauges.

There have been new crimes since then, an attempted assassination, for example, at the teachers' college from Clermont.

As we can see, from whatever angle we consider it, from the teachers' perspective or the students' perspective, the secular school

The School of Crime still remains:

Of the crime that it does not repress or of the crime that it teaches through the object lessons of its unworthy masters [Hey],

155 — Was sentenced on June 14 to six years imprisonment, at the Loire Assizes.

156 — This is not enough for the vassal of the Jews, Freemasonry, which demands direct instruction from the crime, which the Talmud, it is true, calls a virtue!

Read this instead:

In our schools, they still teach about the existence of God, the soul, and morality. That's clericalism.

This has to end!

"We must teach that there is no God, no soul, no eternity."

"A secular school cannot be neutral, it must be atheist!"

Our teachers need to declare themselves as they should be.

— 127 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

To whom do we owe this school of crime?

To the Freemason Jules Ferry who inspired it? To the Protestant minister Sfeeg who supported it?

Chamber as rapporteur [1#] ?

No doubt! But let's not forget that they both belonged, one to the right wing, the other to the wing left of the grand army of which the Jew is commander-in-chief;

That the rapporteur of the law was supported by all the Jews in the Chamber, from the Jew Lisbon in particular-particular;

That the father of the law, Jules Ferry, was himself the perpetual chosen one of the Jews of Saint-Dié, walking for him at the ballot box, at every election, as one man, "in a herd" as in Algiers

rie, under the watchful eye and pastoral staff of the four rabbis of the four synagogues of his electoral fiefdom

ral: Saint-Dié, Gérardmer, Sénonès, Raon-l'Étape LS]

Ah, it would have been nice to see just one Jew defy rabbinical injunctions, I'm not saying Vote against Jules Ferry, but simply abstain!

All the excommunications of the Great and Lesser Kahal would have fallen upon him in the blink of an eye.

with your eyes!

“Citizens! Always tell the child in the cradle that there is no soul, no God, that they are...”
lies that the priest wants to teach them, this nefarious black beast whose hatred is eternal.

“And then, when these children come home from school, ask them what they were taught;
if he gets involved...”

If there is any error, clearly show that they are lying and denounce the traitors who dare to teach these things in secular schools.

truths from another age.

“Don’t let your children be baptized!” etc.

— Who could have spoken like that? A cannibal from equatorial Africa?

— No. Citizen Colly, of Paris, before an audience composed of secular schoolteachers, Paris city councilors, presided over by Mr. Bauson, with a primary school inspector at his side, a

Editor of La Fronde, director of the secular youth centers of the 14th arrondissement.
(Public session)

organized by the Plaisance lodge, January 1899.)

It seems that this teaching is practiced, even in preschools, judging by the fact following what we saw with our own eyes, three times in a few weeks, including once on February 25th 1899, Passage du Saumon.

A small child, no more than 3 years old, clinging to the arm of his nurse, meets a priest.

He stops, despite the arm pulling him along, and right in front of the clergyman shouts at him, at the top of his lungs, from his Child's voice: "Quack! Quack! Quack!"

Poor little thing! The priest is already his worst enemy!

157 — It was Jules Steeg who had the article passed allowing the Protestant clergy and rabbis to do what he-prohibited members of the clergy and Catholic congregations from teaching in official schools.

History tells us that Julian the Apostate "removed from Christians the right to teach in schools."

But he maintained this right for the rabbis, whom he showered with favors. Nothing new under the sun!

Let us emphasize here the admiration of the Jews for Julian the Apostate, to whom they want to erect a statue at the Baths!

(February 1899).

Since admiration is inseparable from imitation, the Jews wanted to imitate "the great man" whom they honor!

That's the whole explanation for the school law!

158 — In the Seine there are seven synagogues, four of which are in Paris.

In the department of Jules Ferry, there are twelve of them, which are as follows: Epinal, Saint-Dié, Gérardmer, Sénonès, Raon l'Etape, Remiremont (district of Mr. Méline, a friend of the Jews), le Thillot, Rambervillers, Bruyères, Charmes, La-marche, Neuf-Château.

So here is a department entirely under the control of the Grand-Kahal, 44, rue de la Victoire, Paris.

Should we be surprised by the disasters caused in France by the elected officials of this department!

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

This conveniently explains Mr. Marchai's words from the podium on May 9, 1899:

Many politicians who came to Algeria, I note with regret, did not see this aspect of the Jewish question; they refused to believe in the political influence exerted by the consistories.

"Jules Ferry himself turned a blind eye to this."

I believe so! Jules Ferry was their chosen one, to ensure these two special points of their Program: The school law and the destruction of religious communities.

And we wanted him to fight in Algeria against the Jews whose mandate he was carrying out in France?

Jules Ferry was more than just their chosen one, he was their student.

It was at their school that he learned the word spoken at the Senones Town Hall which made his fortune and theirs:

"There are three cancers eating away at France: the army, the judiciary, and the clergy!"

The judiciary, having been purged of Catholics and populated by Jews, ceased to be "a chancre >» [160],

Thanks to Jules Ferry, the "cancer of the clergy" ceased to be contagious for schools, which had been victims of it.

is true at this moment of another "canker" which is by no means clerical, which we have just described.

As for the "canker of the army," the Jews are remedying it, with Zadoc-Kahn at the forefront, by the Dreyfus affair.

Israel can be pleased with itself and its faithful servant Jules Ferryl'5!

159 — Brother Bourceret, 33rd degree and editor of the Lanterne, repeated the word at the Grand Convent in September

1898:

These men (the clerics) are, for us Freemasons, irreconcilable enemies, whatever or even the form of their costume, whether they wear a toga, a cassock, or even A sword. > (Thunderous applause.)

(Closing remarks. Report, p. 14.)

160 — The purge law was removed from the Senate on July 31, 1883, do you know how?

1° By the observed manipulation of the votes of Messrs. Martel and Dieudé-Deffly, who were made to vote for them when they wanted to let them vote against;

2° By the illegal vote of the Jew Naquet, who did not have the right to vote in the Senate, as he was not yet a deputy resigned and whose ballot was nevertheless submitted by the Jew Millaud.

This did not prevent President Humbert, of the Union Chain, from declaring the vote won, the simplest...

world satisfaction

This is the law that drove the Catholic magistrates from their seats and installed their successors in their place.

Jewish families of the Beer, Alphanderry, Eliacin Naquet, Léon, Bloch, Katz, and Rosenfeld families, Anspach, etc.

This is the law that populated the Paris Court of Appeal and the Council of State with Jews, that raised the Jew

Durand to the presidency of the tenth Chamber of the court of first instance, and the Jew Loew to the presidence of the Criminal Court of the Court of Cassation!

In the provinces, it's much the same.

161 — A word from the Levraud bill, presented to the Chamber on November 22, 1898, worded as follows:

ART. I. — Members of religious congregations and the regular clergy may under no circumstances occupy cuper of teaching and in particular of modern secondary education.

ART. 11. — They may not have any establishment where, outside of school hours, they may gather middle and high school students.

Mr. de Mun and Mr. de Cassagnac victoriously fought against this draconian bill.

But someone wanted to show him some sympathy, by singing to him from the podium, at the moment where he thought it was lost, the old refrain of the "song that lulls human stupidity": the clerical peril.

This person is Millerand, the son of a Jewish woman.

— 129 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

The Jew Camille Sée and the girls' high schools

We borrow from the Jew—State Councillor—promoter of the law that created the lycées of girls, the following figures, for the year 1898:

they

2

c)

4

ITS

Girls' high schools and colleges: 63;

Professors: 809;

Students: 10,413, including 1,692 boarders and 410 day students;

Budget: Forty-nine million, forty-four thousand, nine hundred and fifty-seven francs, quafifty-two cents (49,044,957.42);

Cost of one student per year: four thousand seven hundred and ten francs (4,710).

This is what it costs and what the result is.

The following statistic from the public prosecutor's office and the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences:

tics, concerning women or young girls holding more or less advanced certificates, for-would tell us:

This statistic establishes that in 1889;

Out of 30,000, who have long been requesting to become official schoolteachers:

NA se Se RE

The State could only appoint 400 per year, i.e. 2,000 in five years;

The postal and telegraph administrations, etc., collected 3,000 of them;

The hospital, 1,500 people, who died there in misery.

Prostitution, 3,500;

The seamstresses' guild: 5,000;

The paternal home: 15,000;

Was it a similar result that the Jew, Camille Sée, had in mind when he created the girls' high schools?

In any case, he surely obtained the right to prepare the impious, the outcasts, the proud-learned women, in short, whom France has no use for, instead of excellent mothers of family, which she so desperately needs!

But what do the needs of France matter to the Jew, provided he carries out his work?

a song about the destruction of the Christian family, that is to say, the French family?

Moreover, for this infernal work, he has other means at his disposal; let us examine them:

The Jew Naquet, and the divorce law

The Naquet law was passed on August 14, 1884.

Let's follow its results year by year; here are the divorce figures obtained:

Year 1884 (end of year)... 1773 (official journal).

— 1885... 4227 (various statistics).

SC cum eue 000 (M)

— 1887... 6505 (official journal).

— Jesus C7 (id)

— Swiss 71076 (4)

— 1890 sussmimaens 7486 (id)

— 1891... 5752 (statistics from the Ministry of Justice).

= NS am (8772 (di

— 189 eusumass 6184 (dd)

— 1894... 6419 (statistics from the Ministry of the Interior).

— HS9S.isss

— 130 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

— 1896... 7051 (official: direct. office of labour).

— 1897... 7460 (official: direct. office of labour).

Total: 74,871 divorces granted!

Because this is not about divorce applications, which are far more numerous and have been for Paris alone, the figures rose to 21,000 from January 1, 1888 to January 1, 1892!

Let us add that in the single year of 1896, 1,998 divorces were pronounced there (in Paris), in figures

Round 2,000!

For the year 1895, for which the official figure is missing from the general statistics, let's say 7,000 divorces.

So, over a period of about thirteen years, that makes a total of approximately: 82,000 divorces!

And the year 1898 is missing.

In total, we must be close to 100,000! And what results have been achieved?

Alas! Absolutely negative results, if they are the good ones, painfully affirmative, if they are the bad ones.

Read this distressing observation:

It was believed that the permission to separate and form a new union would put an end to the domestic violence, to dramas of jealousy.

"That's not the case at all!"

"Crime statistics and news stories prove that divorce had no influence on the..."

adultery, suicides, crimes of passion.

Nor can we attribute to it any action on the population (I believe)!

< In most cases, the action of the Naquet law has been rather destructive to the family;

"She drove so many women into adventure who bitterly regret it today!"

"The major flaw of this matrimonial revolution lay primarily in what it offered a

"This greatly facilitates the breakdown of households, a legal incentive for frivolity and inconstancy."

Who speaks like this?

A freethinker, former supporter of the law, Mr. Edmond Lepelletier, of the Echo de Paris, in the Masonic newspaper Lyon Républicain (February 1898).

"In most cases," he said, "the Naquet law's impact has been rather destructive to the family."

Let us remember this word which leads us to the observation of a new Jewish scourge: depopulation.

Jews and Depopulation

We say: Jewish scourge, because this scourge was unknown in France before the Jewish invasion, by the Jewish gateway to the Revolution.

Before 1789, our forefathers said with the Church: "Duty before pleasure, pleasure for the Duty, never pleasure versus duty.

They raised many families, placing France at the forefront of the population in Europe.

Since 1789, we have been saying, with the Jew who taught it to us: "Pleasure before duty, pleasure

For pleasure, pleasure itself, against duty.

And all the statistics from the latest censuses agree in placing France first ranking of depopulation in Europe.

— 131 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

Marriage today is nothing more than a "race for the dowry," which itself is nothing more than a form of appetite, the dowry having no other purpose than to fuel "the race for pleasure" > invented by the Jew.

Yes, invented by the Jew, that is to say, raised by him to the level of a doctrine.

Throughout history, there have been pleasure-seekers, but never have "these pleasure-seekers had the front of presenting themselves as role models to future generations and telling them: "Good is to imitate us; the evil is not to do so. > They were content to enjoy themselves, hiding their ignominy.

It was reserved for the Jew to do in our country, with his Talmudic conscience, what the French

They had not dared to do it at home, given their Catholic conscience:

Rehabilitate pleasure.

He stepped forward and said to them with his usual impudence:

But what's the point of hiding? It's us, the brazen ones of vice, who are right, it's you, the Ashamed of the enjoyment, you are wrong.

"Life is but a game of pleasure; happy are those who know how to play the most cards in their game!

This is how the Jew spoke, faithful in this to the teachings of the Great Masters of the Talmud who they say:

The Talmud rightly permits a man (a Jew) tormented by temptation to give in.

With pleasure, and without sin. > (Rabbi Kroner)

It is enough to hide "so that the name of God is not discredited," meaning "among the weak-minded. > (Tr. Berach., f. 17,1. — Tr. Baba b., f. 10,2)

<One has the right to abuse a woman in a state of unbelief>, that is to say, a non-Jewish woman (Maimonides

Jad. ch. 2, 2, Kings, 2, 2) #1,

Out of respect for our readers, we cannot reproduce the numerous passages that self-expressly mention the crimes of Sodom and Gomorrah II,

This is the doctrine that has killed respect for marriage!

In the past, marriage was still, for each person within their social sphere, the search for a great name and the concern to propagate it among many descendants.

It was, if you will, "the race for honor," which is still one of the forms of duty, honor.

the neur being merely the splendor of duty fulfilled.

How do Jewish doctors speak now?

This is the language of the enemy of charitable institutions, of the Jewish doctor Herzl, director of the Neue

Freie Presse, of Vienna, to the people of Israel whose reconstitution through Zionism he dreams of.

It will be easily recognized as the ideal towards which the Jew has been driving France for a hundred years.

We are adding subtitles.

162 — Among the subscriptions for Mr. Henry, at least half a dozen are accompanied by reflections such as the following, which is not the most categorical:

A poor schoolteacher, deceived by rich Jews. (December 27, 1998.)

163 — Let us simply say that the Jews have always made use of authorization, especially by means of Age, as evidenced by the historic judgment of the Trévoux court, March 25, 1429, expelling the Jews from this city (where they had taken refuge since their expulsion from Lyon nine years earlier) "to have admitted, among other things, says Raymond Lacan (History of the Jews), that the sin of Sodom was theirs permit. "

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

"We need to create more refined needs for ourselves."

Gradually, through the army of employees of the Company (for the transport of Jews), more needs arose.

refined products will be imported (into the reconstituted Jewish homeland).

The refined needs of well-placed employees will once again produce a richer market which will continue to develop...

However, luxury is what we need in various respects, particularly with regard to art, industry, and, in the more distant future, the decline of great fortunes (to be prevented, without doubt).

"One must enjoy oneself in complete freedom"

Because the rich Jews who are now forced to anxiously hide their treasures and give

Their somber celebrations, with the curtains drawn, will be able to be enjoyed "over there" in complete freedom.

"We need to rehabilitate capital >

"If this emigration takes place with their support, capital will be rehabilitated in our country, in the new country, given that it will have shown its usefulness in an unprecedented work.

"We need to occupy sumptuous residences"

"If the richest Jews start building their castles 'over there,' then we will re-already keeping such a jealous eye on Europe, it will soon be fashionable to go there and occupy sumptuous dwellings." (New International Review, December 31, 1996, p. 860.)

Needless to say, this ideal of enjoyment has long been realized in countries where it reigns the Jew.

This doctrine is practiced

We hope you will forgive us the following description, necessary today, of the historian J. Gross-

Hoffinger, in the "Historical and Political Leaves of Munich, a very serious and very good review" informed.

It refers to the Jews of Austria

Their own wives (bankers, speculators, stock market kings in Vienna)

They seem too good to be sacrificed for pleasure.

"They keep them safe and are careful not to seduce or dishonor them; that is why they

They seek, among the races they consider destined to be enslaved by them, the young girls the purest and most pristine...

As for the lower classes of Judaism, they excel in the practice of matchmaking.

and similar businesses, as seen in Hamburg. (Reinach's homeland) 161.

164 — Are these not the kinds of businesses that Saint Paul was already condemning among the Jews of his time?

"There are several among the Jews... who seduce souls.

"We must silence these people who are corrupting entire families, teachers, for their own gain."

Shameful, something that should not be taught. (Titus, ch. I, 10 and 11.)

The Jews have progressed since then; today they practice what could be called "the slave trade."

whites.

The major Wadowice trial (1892), in which 40 Jews were condemned for these infamous trades, did not...

— 133 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

The most obscene books and engravings are put up for sale by the Jews" [65,

Are we better divided in France?

We know that corrupt agents are plentiful there, and that the most active are ordinary people.

The Jews are lying!

The Jewish author Henri Meilhac, for example, of the French Academy — he has just died — author of demoralizing pieces, glorified by Jewish art critics and delivered by censorship, populated from Jews, to theaters run by Jews!

Not corrected. We stop fifteen to twenty of them per year.

Recently, on March 24, 1899, the Austrian Jew Banda, a landowner in Jaroslaw (Galicia), was arrested again.

beyond the Franco-Italian border, on the road to Genoa where he was driving three unfortunate victims, including one of her own nieces, destined for Buenos Aires.

He was imprisoned in Vienna on March 26 (special correspondence from La Libre Parole, dated Vienna, March 26).

March).

165 — Let us note here the particular pleasure that Jews experience in displaying to the scandalized eyes of Catholics-religious images, the ones they venerate most, amidst scandalous nudity!

The devout Christian buys Christ, the image of the Virgin Mary, or images of the Saints to protect them from this shameful promiscuity.

And the Jew rubs his hands together at having managed to steal from the goy, by insulting his belief!

We could mention such and such a shop on rue Etienne-Marcel, on rue de Valois, or in the Palais galleries-

Royal, where things happen this way.

It's absolutely tumultuous!

No less significant is the following event which took place in Versailles, around mid-April 1898.

A Jew, in possession of Marie Antoinette's absolutely authentic Book of Hours, presents himself at the home of a bookseller, relic in hand.

"Could you," he said, "without damaging the binding, insert these pages of engravings into this small..."

book ?

The engravings were taken from La Pucelle, Voltaire's obscene work.

"But that's very wrong, what you're asking me," replied the bookbinder.

— You don't care!

— Excuse me! I don't want to be complicit in a wrongdoing. Would you then have us believe that Did Marie Antoinette spend her time at church leafing through such filth?

"That's none of your business," replied the Jew, "as long as I pay you!"

"However rich you may be," retorted the Frenchman, "you are not rich enough to buy my conscience."

tez!

And the Jew was promptly shown the door. This Frenchman was not for sale...!

This rather unedifying story came directly from Versailles to Mr. Albert Monnier, to whom we have borrowed.

This does not exactly highlight "this delicacy of feelings, this high morality, this repulsion" for evil > attributed by Chief Rabbi Zadoc-Kahn to his coreligionists, on Yom Kippur.

1895.

But they make us wonder why our Catholic MPs don't imitate the MP of the Diet of Galicia Kramarczyk, who did not hesitate to submit, in March 1899, a strongly motivated by a desire to prohibit Jews from trading in religious objects.

It seems that, over there, Jews routinely practice this lucrative promiscuity!

They even went so far as to sell images of Crémieux, of Dreyfus and Zola!

These are, it is true, the saints of the devil, or, if you prefer, of Devil's Island! But they have little of connections, even distant ones, with the saints of God whom Catholics venerate.

That is why it would be good to prevent Jews from benefiting from the confusion.

— 134—

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

Wasn't it the Jew Mussay who ran the Palais-Royal, the Jew Nunès who ran the Folies Drama-ticks, whose secretary general is the Jew Mayer?

Aren't they Jews, Millerand, director of the Théâtre de la République; Marx, director of Cluny; Franck, director of the Grand-Guignol; Abraham, general secretary of the Gymnase; Lionel Mayer, Secretary General of Nouveautés; Lévy, Secretary General of Ambigu?

If everything had to be said, one page wouldn't suffice! This prompts the anti-Semite to make this very strong reflection.

"And we're surprised that French art is increasingly descending into pornography!"

Isn't that the special kind of Jews? Wasn't it that of the Jew Mayer, who distributed the "Garbage in his hands, to his readers, in the supplement to his Lanterne?" (November 13, 1898.)

And this organizer of the scandalous mid-Lent "vachalcades" in Paris, who had, a while ago

A few years later, a high-profile trial for embezzling funds from the student association's fund,

Wasn't he Jewish? [166]

And these home deliveries, by mail, in France, of filthy leaflets defying all Modesty, who initiated it? Nine times out of ten, Jews.

At least, this propaganda was fought against?

Alas! She found unexpected allies in a certain school of economists.

dernes who preached, also with the Jews, the necessity of "more refined needs (the toilet (for the ladies), sumptuous residences etc. », luxury in a word, this Oath of Lust, that is to say, excessive pleasure.

Some have even gone so far as to advocate, against God's law, the limitation of number of children in the family!

The people, "who are a terrible logician", drew their conclusions.

Since the primary goal is enjoyment, and enjoyment requires resources, if the resources

They cannot suffice to satisfy both pleasure and duty; it's very simple, we will subtract them from duty.

to give them pleasure.

That's what happened!

Here is the result:

Four and a half million childless or only-son households

This table was published in March 1897 by Dr. Bertillon, director of municipal statistics.
capital in Paris, according to the 1895 census of the French population.

Out of 8,30,000 French households,

166 — On Shrove Tuesday, February 14, 1899, a scandalous procession took place in the streets of Valréas (Vaucluse), through the initiative of the Jews of that city.

Another equally despicable incident took place in the streets of Roubaix, during the mid-Lent period.

We will not ask the synagogue at 51 rue des Champs to what extent it has been there foreign...

Sixty fathers of families invoked, before the public prosecutor of Douai, the law of March 16, 1898 which Offending public morals is punishable by one month to two years in prison and a fine of 100 to 5,000 francs.

through the sale or distribution of obscene writings, through licentious songs in the street.

They also reminded everyone of the law, which punishes the illegal wearing of religious clothing and insults to religious worship.

recognized.

We do not believe they achieved much.

— 135 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

There is:

Childless households... .. 2,000,000

— to the child 2,500,000

— with 3 children... 1,500,000

— with 4 children 1,000,000

— to 5 children... 500,000

— to children..... 330,000

— 7 children..... 200,000!

At the same time, the number of illegitimate children has doubled in the last fifteen years. It has reached 75,989.

In 1897, almost one-tenth of total births, according to the official report of the director of the Of-work fee.

It is true that these children of crime cost the criminal less punishment than his victims,
the mother and child.

What is the consequence of all these attacks against the family?

France ranks last in birth rate

Here is the official comparative table of population movement in Europe, published in August

1898: Out of a thousand legitimate marriages, he was born:

In Germany, Sims has 270 children.

In Scotland 269 —

In Beloit... Sims D —

In England, above 280 —

In Austria... 250 —

In Sweden 240 —

In Ireland... 240 —

In Switzerland 236 —

In France 163 —

France in fifth place of the population today

France, which held first place in Europe in 1789 with 26 million inhabitants, does not hold more than:

1. Third place, in 1815, with 29 million;
2. The fourth, in 1880, with 37 million;
3. The fourth, in 1891, with 38 million;
4. The fifth, in 1896, with 38,200,000.

Italy, which occupies sixth place, is itself on the verge of supplanting us, since the its birth rate per thousand inhabitants is 36, compared to 25 for France in 1883. decreased to 24, then 23, then 21 in 1890 (perhaps to 20 in 1898)...

167 — The Jews, for their part, have numerous families, destined, according to their Talmudic hopes, to to overwhelm the non-Jews. This explains the apparent contradiction between their own conduct and the one they teach us and which, alas, is followed by practically pagan families, although officially Christian women. For these wives, for example, are not Christian, forgetful of the duty that their

Saint Paul states: “A woman will be saved through childbearing.” (Tim. 11:15)

Those who refuse to wear them will not escape!

— 136 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

(Census for the period from 1865 to 1883, published in August 1896.)

The proportion was 22.4 in 1897, according to the report of the director of the Office of Labour in l'Officiel (December 1898).

The statistics by Mr. Edmond Théry, published since in Europe et États-Unis d'Amérique, rencruelly undermines the eloquence of previous statistics.

As a result, from 1875 to 1897:

1. European Russia... increases by 44 percent;

+. L'Allemaone sure: — 27.3 — ;

3. Austria-Hungary..... — 21 — ;

4: Lltalésssnsssn = 167. — ;

Hence: France, which ranked third in population in 1876, with 36 million

With 102,900 inhabitants, it now occupies only fifth place in 1897, with slightly more than 38 million inhabitants, after England and Austria-Hungary!

France will be last in population tomorrow

It is with such statistics, unfolding from one year to the next, with such consistency, a ruthless logic, which the Economista, May 1898, was able to establish the following picture of the population-

Approximate representation of the various states of Europe at the end of the 20th century:

European Russia : 228 million inhabitants;

Germany..... : 105.5 million;

Austria-Hungary : 79 million;

Russian ANPIETÉTÉE TOSOMIIONS;

Italy..... : 44 million, 700 thousand;

France. : 41 million, 500 thousand.

The impending disappearance of France

These figures, understandably, elicited this cry of anguish from Mr. Bertillon (March 1897):

"I see in this, with deep sorrow, but with certainty, proof of the impending disappearance" of our country.

"Germany, to speak only of it, had, in 1841, roughly the same population as the France (I am referring to the current territory of the two countries).

Today, Germany has 14 million more inhabitants than France.

"For the past five years, in particular, Germany has gained three million inhabitants (twice the Alsace-Lorraine) and now the Official Journal informs us that during these same five years, Our population has decreased by 175,027 inhabitants.

In the aftermath of the war, in 1873, the number of young men for recruitment was almost the same in France and Germany, and France could hope to resume in the world its former situation.

Today the number of German conscripts (450,000) is about a third higher than that of the French (330,000) [16%],

168 — The Naquet Law alone (August 1884) deprived us of more than 100,000 conscripts in the 100,000 divorces that she caused.

— 137 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

France is lost if we don't wake up

THROUGH ENERGETIC MEASURES, HIS SLEEPING OR UNENLIGHTENED PATRIOTISM.

"The magnitude of the danger must be made known to everyone!" > We add: everyone must be informed the enemy who put us there, the Jew, with his subordinates the Protestant and the Freemason.

This, in hatred of the Catholic name, in accordance with the Talmud which prescribes to Jews to "soul-to lead Christians to violate their law (Aboda s. f 2, 1.), thus causing them to consume themselves even their own ruin.

Has this hatred already piled enough ruins up in our country?

Not yet !

But it is impossible to list them all; it would take volumes!

Let's quickly recap:

The Jew Hérold, prefect of the Seine, carrying away in carts the Christs removed from hospitals, in 1881! (died suddenly 8 days later);

The law of the "priests with their knapsacks" voted by the Jews, and received by them, we know, with what transports of joy!

The laws of increase and subscription against religious congregations, voted and accepted by them, with no less effort, often even carried out by them!

We remember the Lisbon Jew, for example, a lawyer, son of the deputy who had voted for the law, in charge in September 1897 to seize the property, in Mondragon, of the nuns of the Holy Sacrament-the Bollène den, to have it sold at auction before the civil court of Orange!

But we must end this painful series here; however instructive it may be.

What is the Jewish response?

And if you please display it before the Jew's eyes, to confound him, you think he will lower his gaze?

The head?

He will straighten her up, fix his gaze on yours, and sing a hymn to the glory of the Jew

"Servant of the law," to the shame of the Catholic, "his detractor!"

In October 1895, Mr. de Cassagnac, during a parliamentary debate, took the liberty of...

to remain silent on the law of increase, to note that "the same atheists, "Freemasons, Jews, who present themselves as representatives of a Catholic people, and are the same ones "who make laws" against Catholics and "impose their application on the government," Mr. Léon Kahn replied to him-said in the Israelite Universe (October 25):

We say 100,000 conscripts, because it is not an exaggeration to assume that with 100,000 marriages maintained, we would have had 200,000 more children, including 100,000 boys, that is to say 100,000 conscripts.

Mr. Edmond Théry established that Germany, which had only 41,060,800 inhabitants, opposed the France's population of 36,102,900 inhabitants in 1875 contrasted sharply with its 52,279,000 inhabitants in 1898.

900 Germans out of 38,518,000 inhabitants of France.

So that currently there are 100 French people against 135 Germans, and that at the end of the 20th century there will be 100 French against 236 Germans.

169 — Not in other countries, which denied them the rights of active citizens, like Germany, where the Jew

He became a sergeant, then went to Russia, where he became a corporal!

In our country, he becomes a general!

This justifies the words of the poet and songwriter Goudeski:

"Driven from all countries, it is in France alone"

"They moved in to ruin it."

Note that in Germany a Jew cannot be a civil servant!

— 138 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

"The joke is not new."

It flourished particularly during the Revolution, at the time when the National Assembly, defending its work against the priests, The factories sought to maintain the clergy under their laws and to discipline them.

< To the decree on the civil constitution of the clergy, the religious and "monarchist" gazettes responded with virulent attacks against the Protestants who had just returned to their property and their rights taken away by the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes and against the Jews who had obtained the rights of active citizens.

What particularly exasperated these newspapers was that the people's representatives never stopped

To draw a parallel between the attitudes of Catholics and those of Protestants and Jews.

Indeed, when in 1791 French Catholics were outlawed, as in...

Today, through a handful of sectarians and foreigners, they cried out as they do today:

"It is the Protestants who are putting the Catholics in chains!" (Journal of Louis XVI and his people.)

"It seems that the Assembly only has any compassion for Protestants and Jews!" (The Abbot)

Th.-Ma. Royou, in L'Ami du roi, January 11.)

What was the Jews' response?

No other religion presents this system of resistance to the law; Protestants, Jews, etc.

They have religious maxims different from ours; but they are subject to the law, but they respect all constituted authorities.

Who was speaking like that?

François de Neufchâteau, Voltaire's friend, the Clemenceau of the Jews of that time.

Nothing new under the sun!

And we fully endorse the conclusion of Mr. Léon Kahn's reply to Mr. Paul of Cassagnac

The hatreds are the same as they were a hundred years ago; the attitudes are the same; the lies are the same.

That's absolutely right! Except that "hatred, attitudes, and lies" are not of those that Mr. Léon Kahn thinks!

The Jewish system

That's the Jewish system, in its simplicity! It boils down to two points:

1. To impose his Talmudic legislation on the Catholic country that welcomed him, by all means,

Lies, corruption, threats, and even upheaval. (See above, the Kahal.)

2. The imposed legislation, if this country does not want it, denounce it as "refractory" > alongside of Israel, which he presents as a "paragon of obedience."

The system is well-known! 1900 years ago, the Pharisee applied it to the tax collector, in the Temple !

Curiously, it is applied everywhere today with the same success.

In Hungary, for example, where Catholics lived as we do, before the Jewish revolution, Under the regime of purely religious marriage, the Jews, with their usual means, come from- to introduce civil marriage into legislation.

— 139 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

The law was applicable from October 1, 1895. It was inaugurated on the same day by a marriage of extremely wealthy Jews, 1701

Here is the description by dispatch to the Israelite Universe:

“Budapest, October 2nd,

"The first civil marriage was celebrated in Budapest yesterday."

"The civil registrar in full national costume, breeches with tall tasseled boots, wearing a tricolor sash embroidered with the arms of Hungary, he read the provisions of the law to two spouses belonging to the Jewish upper class of Budapest, etc. ...

"The very large crowd repeatedly shouted 'Eljen!'"

Naturally, Catholics mostly groaned.

A letter to the Israelite Universe tells us how our "good Pharisees" pushed them back in. their untimely sobs in their throats; here it is:

Budapest, October 22, 1895.

"The new politico-religious laws, and primarily the institution of civil marriage, are effective since October 1st.

"You are aware of the fierce struggles that the clerics, who have granted themselves the name seductive People's Party¹}, supported against the new laws.

"This struggle continues, and almost every day the authorities are forced to wear..." harsh judgments against recalcitrant priests.

The rabbis, on the contrary, being respectful observers of the laws, conformed to the new instructions.

institutions. >

"Recalcitrant priests, obedient rabbis"

This is a variation of the famous argument: "You are a cleric!"

This is the only argument, let us repeat, with which the Jews made the Revolutions of 1789 and of 1848, with which they have been passing their entire Talmud into our legislation for the past 20 years, with their school, military, growth laws, etc.!

That's the refrain they're using to try and save their Dreyfus!

"All those who do not believe in his innocence are clerics," he proclaims daily.

union in its thousand and one leaves of Devil's Island!

That, in a nutshell, is the refrain with which they legally demolished France, on the ruins of which they formed, no less legally, always with the same refrain, the situation exceptional and privileged, of which here is a sample:

170 — The following day, October 2, the recognition of the Jewish religion in Hungary, in the Official Gazette, rewarded

The Jews, in their obedience... to their own law!...

171 — This title that they refuse to the Hungarians of the soil who are, as in our country, the majority, they do not lack not to attribute it to them, a tiny handful of foreigners.

Exactly like in France today, where the Dreyfusard party claims for itself alone the title of Party of the people, as in 1789, when a friend of the Jews wrote: "The representatives of the people never cease to put in parallel, etc. > See p. "What do the Jews answer?", page 138: the quote from Mr. Léon Kahn.

— 140 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

III

THE PRIVILEGES OF JEWS IN FRANCE

The Concordat concluded between Pope Pius VII and the First Consul and signed by them on July 15

In 1801, it ensured "decent treatment" only for bishops and parish priests stripped of their property.

by the Constituent Assembly.

It was a simple presentation in the form of an annual budget, the total of which was quite variable.

Ridiculous until then, it never, moreover, equaled the simple interests of the property of which the clergy had been Stripped.

In any case, the Constituent Assembly had taken nothing from the Jews and had left them, as was only right, to their their own resources, with regard to their worship.

Wasn't it already enough to have made them French citizens against all justice?

No, that wasn't enough for the Jews. In any case, they weren't satisfied with that.

Upon coming to power, with Louis-Philippe as their henchman, they obtained the royal decree of the 8th

February 1831, by virtue of which the Jewish cult was henceforth salaried by the State.

From this perspective, what is the exact situation of Jews in France today? Here it is:

French Episcopate and Chief Rabbinate

The Chief Rabbi of France, who is not a priest—there is no priesthood among Jews—has sovereign authority, in a sense, over all synagogues or Jewish communities of France (approximately one hundred and fifty) and the world.

The watchwords he sends them by secret circular, like the Grand Orient to all its lodges, without effective control from the Minister of Religious Affairs, who was already committed to the Jewish cause, are still

I obeyed punctually.

Bishops, on the contrary, who have received the fullness of the priesthood, cannot receive from their

Supreme leader, whatever the watchword, the official enemy of Catholicism will allow to pass...

cisme, who today is called Mr. Dumay, director of religious affairs, "the gray eminence of all past, present and future ministers, against the Catholic faith.

For example! The same Mr. Dumay who will "condescend to let the Catholic slogan pass" lique, will strive to limit its execution to the extent of its own pleasure.

While he always prefers to allow the most complete freedom of movement and execution to the slogans of Israel 1721,

It was under these conditions that the first day of the Sukkot festival, Thursday, October 3 (15 Tishri)

In 1895, the Chief Rabbi of Bayonne, Lévy Emile, read from the pulpit the circular from the Chief Rabbi of France Zadoc-Kahn "recommending arming those of the fight against ignorance and slander" our coreligionists, etc. > and whose immediately practical conclusions were:

1° The organization by the Chief Rabbi of Bayonne of monthly conferences, with the support of the 172 — All the enemy slogans circulating in France come from two distinct sources: 1° of Zadoc-Kahn on behalf of the Kahal, for the Jews; 2° of Adriano Lemmi, through the Grand Orient, for Freemasons and Protestants.

What needs to be noted is that these keywords, which vary in form, are always identical for The bottom line. Why?

The two sources are identical! Zadoc-Kahn and Adriano Lemmi are marked with the same sign: the circumconciseness, and could just as easily be called in France, one of them the Grand Rabbi of Freemasonry,

The other one is the Pope of the Jews!

— JA —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

Rabbi Bloch, from Pau, Dr. Delvaille, Vice-President of the Consistory, Jacob Lambert and Jules

Delvaille, professors, the first at the Bayonne high school, the second at the Montauban high school;

2° A request, seeking to obtain from Chief Rabbi Zadoc-Kahn the organization of a central committee

tral, to which would be sent the conferences held at all points of the territory and of which this committee would publish the twenty or thirty best ones, in a collection accessible to all budgets.

Israelite Universe (Oct. 9)

Can we foresee the unleashing of ministerial fury if a single French bishop had dared to...

He has put into his diocese what Chief Rabbi Zadoc-Kahn allows himself with impunity throughout France!... with the support of state teachers 171 1...

Catholic rabbis and priests

The rabbis' salaries, according to the 1898 budget, ranged from 1,750 to 2,500 francs.

A Catholic priest's salary varies from 900 to 1,600 francs, with an average difference of 825.

francs.

And this treatment, again, although legally unseizable, is often suppressed, under the slightest pretext.

However, we have never heard of a rabbi's salary being withdrawn.

under some pretext, that of the Grand Rabbi Zadoc-Kahn, for example, for his interodious action in "the case" [174,

In addition, a bill was introduced in the Chamber on July 5, 1898 [1175]

The rabbis of Paris (along with the pastors) receive housing allowances from the city, which they refuse.

It follows that

moreover, to Catholic priests.

In 1894, they received nearly 500,000 francs in back pay and continue to receive annual payments.

for 40,000 francs.

173 — With a logic that would be admirable, if it weren't criminal, we see the Minister of Religious Affairs to stud Zadoc-Kahn's chest with decorations (including that of Officer of the Legion of Honour), which he never thought of offering it to the venerable Cardinal Richard!

To further emphasize the contempt, the two names appear side by side in the Admi-Yearbook

Administration of the city of Paris!

174 — He intervened at the Criminal Chamber to obtain a copy of the file, according to Mr. de Beaurepaire (February 3).

He intervened with the Jewish lieutenant Cahn, of the 74th Line Infantry Regiment (Esterhazy Regiment), who was at his home.

by telegram card, dated January 8, to obtain the answer to this question:

"Do you know if Commander Esterhazy went on training maneuvers in 1894?"

It appears that the President of the Council issued a reprimand on January 17th to the Chief Rabbi... for the shape !

This intervention, unjustifiable in a minister of a state-recognized religion, is nevertheless explained by the perfection through racial affinities:

Mile Berthe Zadoc-Kahn, second daughter of the chief rabbi, is Dreyfus's first cousin, through her husband

Mr. Henri Bruhl, first cousin of Lucie Hadamard, wife of Dreyfus!

175 — Signed by the following names, hardly suspected of “clericalism”: Charles Bos, Clovis Hugues, Fournière, Alphonse Humbert, Millerand, Dejeante, Viviani, etc.

It is true that at that time these gentlemen had no reason to sympathize with the chief rabbi. That is no longer the case.

The same is true today, it seems, ever since they learned of the Chief Rabbi's sympathies for Dreyfus!

—

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

Churches and synagogues

Has the Paris municipality been in the habit, at least for the last 30 years, of providing subsidies?

tions to the Catholics of this city, to build churches there?

In any case, she provided one million for the synagogue at 44 rue de Victoire, which cost two. Inaugurated on September 8, 1894.

She provided 500,000 francs for the synagogue on rue des Tournelles, which cost one million.

Inaugurated on September 30, 1876.

In the provinces, the synagogue in Senones (Vosges) received aid a few years ago. governmental.

On what grounds?

Senones is in the district of Saint-Dié, former electoral stronghold of Jules Ferry.

Jewish oratories and Catholic oratories

Catholics cannot have private chapels, under penalty of being expelled by the Armed force, even with revolver shots... Châteauvillain, April 5, 1815

Meanwhile, Jews have private prayer rooms as many as they want, in Vichy, for example.

where the Grand Rabbi Zadoc-Kahn celebrates during the summer season; in Chantilly (nearby) where

Mr. and Mrs. Lambert, from Brussels, son-in-law and daughter of Baron Gustave de Rothschild, come to pray at their own discretion.

This oratory, built in 1893, was inaugurated the same year, without the government seeing the the slightest obstacle, by Chief Rabbi Zadoc-Kahn.

Jewish factories and consistories

We know that members of parish councils must be approved by the prefectural authority.
rally, in each department.

Throughout Algeria, members of the Jewish consistories are elected by the Jews, to the exclusion from any prefectural or governmental interference.

Factories have less personal control over their assets than ever before, since the

The government has introduced the tax collector in place of the churchwarden and threatens to introduce the francmason, in place of the priest, to represent "Masonic solidarity", in place of the "Catholic rite.

Throughout Algeria, the Jewish Consistories, until August 1898, had free disposal of their assets (200,000 francs annual budget for Algiers alone).

And Mr. Drumont had no difficulty in noticing, during the May elections, the rather inconsistent use of historical that the great rabbi Honel (Venerable of the Lodge of Algiers) had made of such riches.

A decree by Mr. Laferrière regulated its use for the future... in theory, as always.

Jewish seminaries and Catholic seminaries

The Jewish state does not provide subsidies to Catholics to build their seminaries: the new True nature compels it.

However, this same neutrality obliges it to supply them to the Jews; the Jewish seminary, 9, rue Vauquelin was built in 1881, with a large state subsidy.

Attached to this building is the minor Jewish seminary, for introducing young people to the study of science.

Talmudic.

— 143 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

Both groups receive an annual state subsidy of 22,000 francs, always in the name of neutrality.

In return, in the name of the same neutrality, the government first reduced, then eliminated subsidies similar to those given to seminaries and Catholic faculties.

To cover up this outrageous bias outside the justice system, Mr. Dumay, director of Cults, decorated it, from the tribune, on January 31, 1899, with an ingenious explanation:

"We grant," he said, "to the major Catholic seminaries the use of the Doma- buildings" in the areas where they are located, and this represents a considerable subsidy.

The truth is that this actually represents a saving for the government, which only has this a way of using former monasteries stolen from the Church, which are most of the major seminaries, and often avoid the very costly maintenance.

Furthermore, is it not right that the enjoyment of property stolen from the Church should revert to the Church?

Was anything stolen from the Jews and Protestants?

No! In that case, why make available to them, in addition to the refused annual subsidies For Catholics, buildings just as "state-owned" as our major seminaries?

The Protestant seminary in Paris, for example, which belongs to the State; the rabbinical seminary, 9, rue Vauquelin, built with a large state subsidy.

We see that "the considerable subsidy" represented, according to Mr. Dumay, by "the enjoyment-

The use of state-owned buildings granted to Catholics actually represents nothing of the
All of this is just another example of government hypocrisy.

This, in full accordance with the hypocrisy of the parliamentary vote of July 15, 1889, which required Catholic seminarians to undertake an additional year of priestly novitiate... to the barracks, but in the name of Equality this time.

Did they at least find there that equality in the name of which they were sent there? Let the judge.

Jewish soldiers and Catholic soldiers

Jewish soldiers have 29 days of leave per year to fulfill their religious duties, which distributed as follows:

Rosh-HASCHANA (new year: beginning of September) 1%]... 2 days.

Yom Kippour (Great Pardon: mid-September)[171..... 2

Sukkot (Feast of Tabernacles): end of 11th

SCHMINI ATZERETH (end of mania =

SIMCHAT TORAH (late September) |

Hanukkah (Feast of the Maccabees: beginning of the month). 8

Purim (Festival of Spells: mid-L

PEḤAH (Passover: around mid-April)..... 10 —

SCHABODOTH (Pentecost: beginning of the satn D

176 — These dates are approximate, like those of our movable feasts, which vary from year to year the other in the Gregorian calendar.

177 — At the request of the Chief Rabbi, in 1893, the Minister of War granted during maneuvers a leave of absence from September 10 to 21 for all Jewish soldiers to celebrate these two holidays.

— 144 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

These leaves are often mandatory, as evidenced by the following circular:

“Paris, March 23, 1897,

"MY DEAR GENERAL,

According to an opinion from the Central Consistory (President Baron Alphonse) of the Israelites of France, the

The Jewish Passover celebrations will take place this year from the morning of April 16th to the morning of April 25th.

"I have the honor to request that you kindly take this opportunity to assure me of your commitment to..."

the military personnel under your command belonging to the Jewish religion, the execution of the regulations of the cir-

Ministerial decree of December 10, 1888 — Official Bulletin, regulatory section, 2nd semester

1888, page 935 — relating to permissions to be granted during the holidays! 175]. »

Signed: "Billot."

And this other circular from the Ministry of the Navy, at the end of February 1899

"The Ministry of the Navy sends a circular to the vice-admirals and maritime prefects, which relates to the leave granted to military personnel of the Jewish faith on the occasion of Easter.

"The minister has decided that permits for the entire duration or for part of these Festivals may be granted, upon their request, to those men who are deemed worthy by their good conduct and if, moreover, it should not result in any disruption to the service.

Signed: "Lockroy."

We know that Mr. Lockroy is Jewish; he thinks of his coreligionists, which is good, but he is wrong to open-forget that he is also the minister of the "military of the Catholic faith".

Why doesn't he mention it in his circular? Because he doesn't want to grant them these...

Holidays, even optional ones!

Therefore, while leave was optional for Jewish soldiers, Catholic soldiers did not have it.

not, and when they are obligatory for Jews, Catholics then have optional ones 171,

We are talking here only about Catholics in the army, whose leave is much

Furthermore, more limited options are optional, meaning they can be granted, but also refused.

by the colonels who, in fact, often refuse them.

We remember the severity with which Colonel Froment was treated some time ago, of the 27th Artillery, in Douai, for having submitted to the decision, according to custom, that "facilities should be granted to the soldiers of his regiment who wished to follow religious instruction.

"Greeting during part of Lent."

Le Réveil du Nord, the organ of the Lille synagogue, treated General Billot, Minister of the war, of "old fool >.

To escape the epithet, the French general, of the 1st Army Corps, reprimanded the colonel Froment and General Billot relieved him of his command (April 11, 1897).

Finally! Jewish soldiers can serve at the synagogue, in uniform, this artillery lieutenant, by for example, who could, without causing any stir in the Jewish press of Lyon or Paris, chant the Office at the lectern, in the synagogue of this city, in August 1893.

178 — Note the expressions: “ensure the execution of the regulations... during the holidays” (of all

(the holidays mentioned above) were in no way used for granting leave to Catholic soldiers. (See the comparative table, page 168).

179 — The blatant injustice will become apparent from the simple comparison of the following two letters.

We are not blaming General Zurlinden, who is the one at fault, but the tyrannical necessity he had to to suffer, both as Minister of War and as Governor of Paris.

Here are the letters:

THE SECTARIAN JEW

In July of the same year, a seminarian who was also a soldier was sentenced to 15 days in prison for having served mass in uniform, on the denunciation of a provincial Lantern.

It took a threat of questioning from the right wing of the government to get an investigation.

as a result of which the punishment was undoubtedly lifted; but we are not certain of this, he did not

He wasn't a Jew #1

Furthermore, a ministerial circular formally prohibited officers and soldiers to attend, dressed up, a simple celebration of Joan of Arc.

Joan of Arc, too, was not Jewish.

The law for Jews and the law for Catholics

We see that the famous "Equality before the law", inscribed at the beginning of the Declaration of the Rights of

The concept of man and citizen was, ultimately, merely the application of this concept to French Catholics by the Jews.

of their Talmudic law of domination.

However, we must admit that it has never been applied with more cynicism than in the Dreyfus affair!

The Christian captain Anastay, convicted of murder, was tried and executed; not a Christian

The French had no objection to it!

The Catholic Bazaine, guilty of treason, was condemned to deportation; not a single Catholic-

No Frenchman who did not applaud the sentence and its execution!

Mr. President of the Consistory of the Israelites-lists of France (Baron Alphonse),

Paris, March 4, 1899.

“General Zurlinden, military governor of Paris to Abbot Binz, a military man, vicar at Saint-Philippe-du-Roule, 8, rue Frédéric-Bastiat.

"By letter of the 15th of this month (February 1999), you ask me to have permissions granted gifts to the soldiers of the Israelite faith, in order to their SON RRRRE allows us to celebrate with family... the annual holiday

"In response to your letter of February 24th,

I have the honor to inform you that I have invited,

As in previous years, the corps commanders to be given to the troops under their command, all facilities for the accomplishment of their religious duties and in particular, to allow them to go out, as soon as they wake up, every five Sundays of Easter time, from March 19 to April 16 inclusive.

"Please accept, etc."

<< P-00. : The dear staff officer,

CE. PERBOYRE. »

Note: 1° On one side 6 days; on the other 9.

2. On the one hand, the 6 days are spread over a month,

Easter, which for this cult takes place from March 25th to April 3rd.

< As well as one of my predecessors, the general Zurlinden has already informed you of this by letter of
On September 8, 1898, a ministerial circular...
The matter is settled once and for all...

"It is therefore up to the military of the Israelite worship to place itself pending a permit sion for holidays specific to their religion.

"Receive, etc."

“DE FREYCINET. >

do not allow stays outside the barracks;

the other, the 9 days are consecutive and allow the stay "with family >.

3. The 6 days are optional, "commanders are invited, etc."; the 9 days are mandatory, "a
The circular has settled it; all that's left is to file a motion.

And if we want to quibble over the text, we cannot quibble over the facts that victoriously comment on it!

That's what equality of religions means in the regiment!

180 — Speaking of prison, let's just say that even there, Jews are privileged!

For example, in Nîmes there is a central prison for all Jewish prisoners in France. (Gard Yearbook)

(Published in Montpellier by Fadat et Roche.)

Are there, in France, central prisons specifically designated for Catholic prisoners?

146

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

The Jew Dreyfus is convicted of the same crime; he confesses; he is sentenced to Bazaine's softened approach, when he deserved Anastay's! And Jews all over the world are putting France and Europe turned upside down!

How can the mystery be explained?

According to the following Talmudic rules for the use of the Jewish magistrate:

"In disputes arising between Jews and non-Jews,

"1° Or else Jewish law governs;

"2° Or, the law, without being Jewish, is favorable to the Jews;

"3° Or finally, the law is neither Jewish nor favorable to the Jews.

<"In the first case, you help your brother win by saying: this is OUR law.">

"In the second case, you again let your brother win and you say to the foreigner: This is what YOURS wants their own law.

"In the third case, it is necessary to outmaneuver the foreigners, by means of intrigues, until the

The Jew retains the profit.

"But in these kinds of matters," said Rabbi Israel, commenting on Rabbi Akiva, "one must be careful."

to let themselves be taken, for fear that the Jewish religion might lose some of its renown. > (Tractate Baba Kouma, fol.

113. 1)

We will see if these rules were observed on a case-by-case basis in the Dreyfus affair.

FIRST HYPOTHESIS

<“Jewish law governs”>

That's not the case, since the law is military and interpreted by military personnel. It's impossible to...

find a Jewish magistrate to "make their brother win" and say: "This is what our law requires > #1]

SECOND HYPOTHESIS

The law, while not Jewish, is favorable to the Jews.

This is the case with "this admirable Roman Civil Code," exclaims an enthusiastic Zadoc-Kahn, "so well

"Made to please the keen and penetrating minds of the authors of the Talmud!"

We add:

"In such perfect harmony with the Jewish Constitution of the Rights of Man and of the Citizen, on-all if it is to be interpreted by a Jew like Mr. Loew or, which amounts to the same thing, by a A judiciary purged of Catholics and populated by Jews!

And that is why, for almost two years now, the Jews have moved heaven and earth to establish, without...

To succeed, the indignity of the military tribunal that condemned "their brother"!

But thanks to the complicity of Brother Brisson, they succeeded in having the judgment referred to the Chamber Criminal Division of the Court of Cassation. President: Mr. Lœw

This chamber was in Dreyfus's pocket.

However, everything had to be planned for.

In order to protect her from any access, however fleeting, to loyalty, the Jews piled up the so-fallacies, to establish in advance the incompetence of the future military tribunal, the need for tra-

181 — However, a Jewish officer was a member of the military tribunal that was to try Dreyfus; he had the

It is common sense to recuse oneself, in order to ensure the impartiality of the judgment.

How ill-advised Mr. President Loew was not to imitate him in the Criminal Chamber of the Court of Appeal!

— 147 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

bringing the accused before a purely civil court, the High Court, for example, "the only one to competent, they said, to judge a crime that is not against the Fatherland, but only against the "State security!" (See the Dreyfusard newspapers.)

That's one of their discoveries! It's certain that with the High Court populated by Panamanians and chaired by the Dreyfusard Fallières, the Jews would have had a strong hand and could have said with certainty confident of Dreyfus's acquittal:

<That is your law.>

Unfortunately for them, they did not anticipate the vote by the House first, by the benefit of the Court of Cassation, all Chambers sitting together.

Then, on March 1, 1899, the Senate passed the law removing the "case" from the Criminal Chamber.

On June 3, the Supreme Court referred Dreyfus to the military tribunal in Rennes.

Which brings us back to the

THIRD HYPOTHESIS

"The law is neither Jewish nor favorable to Jews."

This hypothesis, which has become a fact, is the nightmare of the Jews.

In the dazzling clarity of the 60 million spent to date (see above), we can see if they have prepared to apply to him the only means of resistance that suits him: "Circumventing foreigners, until what profit remains for the Jew.

The Jew Reinach made this clear to us. Anticipating the case where the procedure initiated under that article 443 would not succeed, he wrote on March 2nd in Le Siècle:

<Article 443 is not the entire code of criminal procedure!> As if to say:

"The procedural maze is vast; we haven't explored it all yet!... [#21]"

It's obvious, no law holds. Laws are for the French, they are not for the Jew #3!

Is that all? Have we exhausted the list of Jewish privileges?

This is only a sample, but still sufficient to establish the practical implementation, in

In the mid-10th century, the Talmudic precept that commands "all Jews to look upon Christians" like brutes and not to treat them any differently than animals >.

Animals, in fact, do not have the right to be treated on an equal footing with humans [1%].

182 — A few days later, on March 16, the same Reinach, in the same Century, with a nonchalance

— we won't say charming, since it borders on indecency — displayed her profound respect for the judgment, whatever it may be, to be rendered.

What had happened?

Mr. Dupuy was clearly leaning towards the union, as evidenced by the scandalous retention of Mr. Manau as rapporteurthe Jew before the Plenary Court of Cassation. He could parade impartiality.

183 — A word from Prosecutor Manau requesting the recusal of Councillors Messrs. Petit and Crépon, Lepelletier, on March 24, emphasized this Talmudic spirit.

As Mr. Desjardins pointed out to him the "confusion" — whether intentional or not on his part — of two completely separate commissions:

— “What do I care?” replied Mr. Manau.

What do the laws of logic, like those of code, matter to people who don't want them?

The illegal publication of the secret investigation by the Criminal Chamber proved it once again.

She did not demonstrate the traitor's innocence, but rather the absolute contempt these people had for any legislation.

tion other than the Talmud, interpreted by the Kahal!

184 — We bring this situation to the attention of Mr. Bourceret, editor at La Lanterne and “33rd of the

— 145 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

That's not all.

The Talmud says that one must steal from and kill the Christian! We shall see if the Jew, even in the 19th century, stops halfway through his Talmudic duty.

IV

How far does Talmudic tolerance go?

Jews steal from Christians

Did the Jews steal from us?

Ask Panama, which has swallowed up one and a half billion of savings.

popular (Reinach de Nivillers, Arton, Cornélius Herz)!

Ask the crashes of the Union Générale (Law and Rothschild), of the Comptoir d'Escompte (Rothschild), who have sown ruin and death in thousands of French families!

Ask the Southern Railways (Reinach) 20 million swallowed up!

Just ask the 20 monumental crashes that erupted in ten years across all sectors of the economy.

France, and whose wreckage was collected by the Jews!

Ask those subscribers for Mr. Henry against Reinach, who accompanied their

a small amount of reflections such as the following:

"From an Alsatian family, expropriated and ruined by the Jews, 1 franc! > (23 de-December.)

"Three francs recovered out of the 712,000 francs stolen from a family by the Jews!" (22)
December.)

Ask the eighty billion in movable and immovable assets (a third of the (total wealth of France) owned by Jews who came to us in rags a hundred years ago!

Ask the 60 castles or hotels, on the 200,000 hectares of French land, owned by
The one and only Mr. de Rothschild!

And let all this tell you whether the Jew observed the precept that commands him to steal from the Christians.

hold !

"Believe or die"

The Talmud also says to "kill the Christians" (Aboda sf 17, 1, etc.).

Did the Jews kill us?

For Christian France, it's practically a done deal. Listen to them grumble, right under their noses, about the last poison they administered to her in "the affair" > But couldn't she recover? Her vita-

Vigorous velocities have so often deceived the hopes of his enemies!

This is precisely what the Jews fear, and in this fear they thought that he would not be poisoned

Perhaps it's not a bad thing to join the famine.

Grand Orient of France > which exclaimed in the closing speech of the September 1898 convention:

Our enemies are the ambitious and selfish who want to dominate their fellow human beings, to create castes and maintaining privileges in society. > (Convent Report, p. 14.)

Who are these "creators of castes and privileges"? The Jews?

No, said Brother Bourceret, those who "wear a toga, a cassock, and even a sword!"

He was unknowingly repeating the word learned by Jules Ferry in the synagogues of Saint-Dié: "Three cankers"

They are eating away at France: the army, the judiciary, and the clergy.

All this to leave the field open to the Jewish "cancer" from which France is dying.

THE SECTARIAN JEW

But how?

It's very simple:

It is counting on its Universal Exhibition of 1900.

In our opinion, she would have been better off relying solely on her own resources, from the very beginning.

sufficient for his needs, rather than those of the cosmopolitans, who only bring him gold at the condition of carrying away remnants of one's patriotism, independence, and glory!

But come on! She's counting on it, and the Jews know it, they who have managed to divert her in that direction concerns and its activity!

She must go all the way!

What are the Jews doing? Blackmailing!... as is their custom.

Do you think I'm making this up?

Read :

The Jews of Broken Hill (New South Wales) recently held a meeting to discuss the Dreyfus affair.

“Several speakers vigorously expressed the opinion that Dreyfus had been unjustly sentenced.

"The meeting decided to refrain as much as possible from trafficking in French products and not to recommend the 1900 Exhibition, which some of the attendees had promised to attend.

"We have also decided not to do business with French insurance companies.

It was also proposed to encourage Jews in other colonies to follow this example.

— Who is speaking like this?

— The South Australian Register, of Adelaide (Australia), September 29, 1898.

— An isolated initiative, you might say, without possible consequences!

— Isolated? In any case, not from the Jews of England, America, Austria, who were opening so-simultaneously a campaign, aimed at distancing their respective nationals from Nice and Algeria, to the benefit of Monaco, San Remo, Abbazia "where we don't know," said the Allgemeine Zeitung (March) 1899), neither party struggles nor racial hatreds >

— What did that mean?

— Quite simply, they were obeying an order. The order was indeed given, by Rabbi Bloch of Vienna, undoubtedly inspired by the great Kahal of Paris.

Here it is, according to a private correspondence from La Libre Parole dated Vienna, March:

We simply have to help ourselves, based on the principle that the best Parade is attack.

Thus, a break with France from an industrial point of view.

< It is through its exports that we can most significantly reach this country.

"If all the Jews of the globe unite, they constitute a powerful force, a factor 155)

; with which will have to be taken into account in the international relations of peoples.

“If our merchants, if our women were to ban all French fashion items, they would feel—”

They would quickly feel the effects of this boycott down to their very bones, over there in Paris!

And what Jewess who truly feels Jewish, who hasn't lost all thought, all honor, dares-would wear on her body (auf ihrem Leibe tragen) lace, fabrics, textiles, ribbons, Feathers from France?

185 — The term is familiar to him: he remembers the Kahal's agents (see "The Kahal's secret police.", page 67).

— 150 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

A break with France, that should be the watchword.

But we know our people too well.

< This Dreyfus is a nice topic of conversation for the living room.

<“That’s where you elicit sighs and show your sensitive little heart.

"But striking our enemies, our enemies, is out of the question!"

At least there is one thing that all Jews, united and by common agreement, must agree on:

The solution: stay home during the Expo, and let not a single person go to Paris!

At least this will prove to them that we are not a race without nerves and without honor...

Let them make their preparations and installations, but not a single Jew shall go there.

"Let them all stay home and save their money for people better than the French."

çais. >

(Israelitische Wochenschrift).

This is exactly the same language used by Rabbi Fleischer of America at the meeting in March 1899.

(Kahal and Bet-Dine)!['%], at the Boston synagogue Adath Israel, and which the Boston-Post thus reports account

"Rabbi Charles Fleischer, introducing the guest speaker, Mr. Godefrey Morse, has said:

“I had planned to go to Paris for the Exposition, but it will only be as long as the France will redeem itself by doing justice to Dreyfus.

"Otherwise, I will deprive myself of it, and I believe that such a boycott should be practiced by all friends of freedom and justice throughout the world.

< Thus we will show our contempt for this country which has so blatantly trampled underfoot the straightening, etc. >

"Mr. Godefrey Morse, in response, informed us that the Jewish house Stock, Place du Théâtre-

French, Paris, published 78 volumes on the Dreyfus affair 1%" and that "a government that cannot

To render justice to the citizens of one's country, has no right to exist, etc.

In other words:

"You don't believe in Dreyfus's innocence: you won't get an exhibition... to appease you."
Take it!

This is the renewed argument of the Grand Turk to the Christians of the Middle Ages:
"Believe or die!"

This is the perfect expression of Talmudic tolerance towards France!

— But what about Christians? What about the French?

— For the Christians? We'll see if the Jews deprived themselves of their corpses!

The Jews who massacred Christians

The list of Christians who died at the hands of Jews in our century would be too long.

Just a few facts:

We know that the Jews attributed "the fourth pa-" to the Muslims, "massacrers of the Roumis."

lais > of their Talmudic paradise (see "They will inhabit the "4th palace of Paradise >", page 23).

186 — The Kivia-Nesseman, by Fino, collection of historical facts of the municipality of Vilna (1860), provides this detail on the recent organization of Jewish communities:

“Every three months,” he said, “the members of the general assembly meet in Kahal to examine the situation.”

Jewish tradition in the world and to consider it, depending on whether it is in decline or progress!

187 — The Rennes section of the League of Human and Citizen Rights flooded the department with these brochures, with the aim of influencing the Rennes War Council!

THE SECTARIAN JEW

They also attribute to them the means of achieving this, in the hecatombs of Christians who are the prizes and that they help them achieve them.

Who doesn't know the story of the massacre of Christians over several weeks in 1824 by the

The ferocious Abouloubob, with the help of the Jews?

In Naoussa, 600 Israelites placed themselves at his disposal, and one of them boasted of having alone

64 Christians executed!

In Thessaloniki, they were no less cruel!

To force Christian women to apostatize, they locked them naked in sacks, some of them...

Folds of rats, the others of hungry cats!

Captain Tussos's wife, however, died in a bag full of vipers, invoking the

In the names of Jesus and Mary!

Six women condemned to die of starvation in a dungeon, having had the misfortune of being found

They were brought back alive after 12 days of starvation and captivity — they had eaten coal!

— were severely punished, first by the deprivation of coal, then by whippings then, until death ensued!

These events are recounted by Pouqueville, a member of the Academy of Inscriptions and consul of France near Ali-Pasha of Tebelen (Albania), in his History of the Regeneration of Greece (1825, 4 vols. in-80).

This takes us, therefore, well beyond the Middle Ages, to the time of Nero's ferocity. to which, moreover, the Jews lent their support.

But perhaps, since 1824, the Jews have become a little more humane, we dare not say civilized his ?

In 1896, for example, during the Armenian massacre?

Who doesn't remember that in Constantinople, in the Halidjiaglou district, "the Spanish Jews"

"They pointed out to the Muslims the houses inhabited by Armenians and helped them to loot"?

(French news agency correspondent, September 4.)

That, in the Haskeuy district, they demanded from the cutthroats, as a price for their information-gnements, the right to "move" the victims' homes. They thus looted 600 May-sounds, so much so that the government had to impose an indemnity on the city's Chief Rabbinate 600 Turkish lira (one lira per house).

In Aleppo, a private, unpublished letter from Doctor Zakzzenski to his sister M"W. (January 1896),

He learns that "the streets are streams of blood, that the Jews celebrate and rejoice that

They massacred all the Christians, and before his very eyes, four Bernardine monks were cut down in pieces. >» [8°]

188 — A letter from Türkiye to La Croix (October 13) stated:

"The Jews applaud the mass murderers and calculate the profits they will make from the looting."

We have not sufficiently condemned the ignominy of their conduct in the dreadful slaughter of Haskeuy where they led the Turks went house by house to gain the right to loot after the massacre.

"Judas betrayed Our Lord to his death for 30 pieces of silver; the Iscariot still lives with the same hatred and the same greed.

189 — Meanwhile, a Parisian committee sends to the press, with an "urgent request to insert" a cha-their appeal in favor of the Christians of the East (March 3, 1897).

Among the committee members, we note: the Jews Bréal, Maspero, H. Pereire, Salomon Reinach (brother of Joseph), H. Veil.

And among the signatories of the appeal: the Judaizer Leroy Beaulieu as president, the Jew Théodore Rei-

Nach (another brother of Joseph), as secretary!

The only thing missing was Joseph!

— 152 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

But the Jews do not only massacre on behalf of the Turks, they also massacre for their own account. Which brings us directly into the question of ritual murders.

V

RITUAL MURDERS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

What? "These practices are from another age!" as the intellectuals say (speaking of Catholics).

(licics) are they still in use, in the midst of civilization, at the decline of the Enlightenment, at the dawn of the

A century of electric splendors?...

Chief Rabbi Zadoc-Kahn did try to protest in Le Temps; in 1892, against this imputation 1%],

But what can platonic protests do against facts whose authenticity is also Their multiplicity is undeniable?

They number almost in the hundreds in this century.

Here are a few of them in chronological order:

Murder of a Russian child in 1831

A sensational trial in Saint Petersburg revealed the following circumstances of the assassination of the son of a Russian soldier

1. Two judges acknowledge that the murder was committed by the Jews for superstitious purposes.

2. Two other judges declared the defendants absolutely convicted of the crime, but with this mitigating circumstance that <“they believed they were serving God”>

3. A fifth judge notes that "these crimes are common among Jews," but does not consider not sufficient evidence in this case.

The Attorney General requests the same outcome as the first two judges.

The result: the Jews are acquitted!

(An Klagen der Juden in Russland, aus den Criminalacten, Leipzig, Engelman (1864).

190 — To Mr. Drumont, who demonstrated by a text from the Talmud that the Jews are accustomed to sacrifices "Humans," Mr. Zadoc-Kahn replied.

< I am a little more competent than you here, and I have the right to protest. >

This earned us the following lines from an eminent Jew, admitted to the School of Neophytes in Rome, but whose Former coreligionists, through their usual intrigues, managed to divert them. We will discuss this further.

far.

This multilingual Jew (he knew five languages) wrote to us about Mr. Zadoc-Kahn's response to Mr. Drumont:

"Thessaloniki, July 22, 4892."

"I have been reading Hebrew newspapers for twelve years and I have never seen a single line from Chief Rabbi Zadoc-Kahn.

"Does he not know Hebrew?"

"Some claim it, but I don't believe it and I ask him to please explain this Talmudic text to me."

from Mohet-Katan (17-1). (Here is the Hebrew text):

"For sixteen centuries, Christians have been saying that Jews need their blood."

Well! For sixteen centuries the Jews have remained under this accusation, without ever having dis-guilty.

Therefore, they are guilty, according to the very text of the Talmud: "The suspected person is guilty" (implied).

"if he does not exonerate himself >."

It is certain that in trying to exonerate his fellow believers, Zadoc-Kahn would lose his bearings, we mean

His Hebrew!

That's why he's just protesting. It's not very compromising!

— 153 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

Murder of Father Thomas in 1840

This murder caused almost as much of a stir in Europe as the Dreyfus affair!

We know the circumstances; let's briefly recall them:

Father Thomas, a Capuchin friar from Damascus, was lured into the Jewish quarter on February 5, 1840, and massacred.

by the merchant Harrari, aided by several accomplices, his coreligionists.

The flesh was detached from the victim's bones with a razor by a Jewish barber; the bones were crushed and the flesh thrown into a cesspool where a piece of the jawbone with the beard was found, a section of the scalp with the tonsure.

However, the Father's servant, Ibrahim Amurah, worried about his father's failure to return

The master went to look for him in the Jewish quarter.

He too was not supposed to return! He was assassinated!

The justice system was concerned with finding and punishing the guilty parties.

It was quickly done: seven Jewish merchants confessed to the crime, declaring that they had committed it on the chief rabbi's demand "for Christian blood for the next Passover" >.

The confession was as clear as Dreyfus's. What did the Jews do?

They were outraged throughout Europe, like the Grand Rabbi Zadoc-Kahn in 1892, that dared to suggest such bloody practices to them and outright denied the crime, despite the confessions of guilty, but without providing the slightest proof of innocence.

Exactly like with Dreyfus!

They offered sums of money to all members of the French and Austrian consulates: 200,000 piastres to the French chancery and 500,000 to a lawyer, just like before. Dreyfus!

In the meantime, the rabbi of Lyon, Fabius, blamed the affair "on the Jesuits and the Jew Cré- better, on "the Christians of the East" (Journal des Débats, April 7, 1840).

It was "the bottle brush!" > just like with Dreyfus!

The only difference is that we didn't talk about "his alliance with the sword."

When everything was deemed useless, Crémieux, Vice-President of the Central Consistory of Israelites-

Members of France, Grand Master of Scottish Rite Freemasonry, future Father of the Alliance

A universal Israelite and a Jew of Algeria, Crémieux went to Muhammad Ali, from whom he obtained an audience, with the support of England [1°1]

Mehemet Ali was suffering from a fairly common illness, but serious for a sovereign: impecuniosity.

Crémieux gave him the remedy in banknotes. For the price of the medicine, the sovereign Egypt in turn issued the following decree:

At the urging of Crémieux, delegate of all the European senators of mosaicism, we recognized that they desire the release of the prisoners.

"And since it would be inappropriate to refuse to grant the wishes of such a large number of people..."

population, we order that the prisoners be released.

And so it was done...

However, a volume was published in 1846, containing documents relating to the murder of Father Thomas:

Syrian Affairs, by Achille Laurent, Paris.

191 — England has been fraternizing with the Jews against us for a long time.

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

The Jews made it disappear: it is nowhere to be found!

However, in 1897, the English orientalist and archaeologist Sir Richard Burton, former consul in Damascus, expressed the intention to republish Achille Laurent's story, at Hutchinson and Co., in London.

The Jews outmaneuvered the publisher. The book was not published.

.1 Three months ago, says the Welt, a Jewish newspaper and organ of Zionism in England, a committee specially appointed, he endeavored to prevent a certain anti-Semitic book from being published in London and Latest news indicates that this book will be published in New York.

It was in August 1897.

However, in July 1899, nothing was published!

So the Jews have outmaneuvered or bought off publishers in New York as well as those in London!

This is how they have managed to cover up a nasty murder story for 59 years!

They haven't yet put as much effort into rehabilitating Dreyfus here! But it will come... if the French are giving them time.

"They'll have to kill us!" said Mr. Clemenceau, the spokesperson for the Union.

But let's get back to the matter at hand, I mean the ritual murders which, moreover, are being carried out-formerly knew about sheep, in the temple of Jerusalem, but that the Jews have the misfortune-a common practice today, especially against Christians.

Some contemporary murders

In 1875, Anna Zamba, a 16-year-old domestic servant, was killed by Jews in Zboro, Saroch County (Hungary). She was able to denounce the assassins.

In 1877, Joseph Klec of Szalacs, Bihar County (Hungary), sold his niece and his nephews who die in cruel torture.

In 1879, Lidi Sipos, 15 years old, servant of a Jew in Piros, Batsch-Brodogher county (Hon-Grie), is murdered by her master; another young girl suffers the same fate in Buda-Pesth.

In the same year, a 6-year-old girl, Sarah, was murdered by four Jewish plasterers in Kutais.

(Caucasia).

The same year, ritual murders in Tallya, Zemplin County (Hungary).

In 1880, ritual murder in Komorn.

In the same year, the son of a ship's captain from the island of Cyprus was immolated by Jews, in Alexandria (Egypt).

In 1881, young Evangelio de Fornoraki, another child from Kaschau, was murdered by... Jews.

In the same place, Steinam-Anger (Brandenburg), four young girls disappeared successively sively at the time of Easter, in the years 1878, 1879, 1880, 1881, recounts Mr. Onody in Tisza-Eszlar.

In 1882, the sensational Tiszla-Eszlar affair took place in Hungary.

Here is a summary:

Murder of Esther Solymosi

A little girl, Esther Solymosi, from Tisza-Eszlar, disappeared during the Jewish Passover (April 1st).

— “Another Jewish trick!” cried the popular voice.

192 — Except at the National Library, which possesses a copy. (Gaume, 1846, 2 vols. in-8°)

— 1SS —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

And the justice system investigated that aspect.

However, dispatches from all parts of the world announced, and the Jewish press...

The child's discovery resonated.

They were naturally refuted the next day.

But the Jews did not lose their composure.

Confident in their innocence (as they all were), they offered five thousand florins to whoever would find him

M" Solymosi.

And five people who had received an advance on the florins, but probably hadn't They did not bother to consult with each other, and at the same time declared that they were sheltering the missing girl at her home.

Five for one was too much!

After the investigation among the living, the investigation among the dead, at the Marmaros hospital.

Among the fifteen corpses that were presented there in twenty-four days, one of them bore
the

The victim's clothes!

Was it really her?

Vain hope! It was soon discovered that his body had been stolen, that his clothes had been sold,

were meant to serve as a substitute for the corpse that was right in front of them.

This was confessed by the perpetrators of the attempt, who were arrested.

What had become of M^{re} Solymosi?

The investigation, meticulously conducted to its conclusion, revealed the whole truth, which is as follows:

The child had been lured to the synagogue "to light the Sabbath candles," they had told her the Talmudic Pharisees.

And they had bled her and collected her blood in a vessel.

How did we find out?

The young son of the synagogue sexton, Joseph Scharf, had seen so many on Easter Eve people going to the synagogue that he had wanted, with the natural curiosity of his age, to have the clear heart.

He came to the door, heard whispers then muffled cries and finally looked—da by The keyhole.

— What is he experiencing?

— The Jew Salomon Schwarz, armed with the sacrificial knife, in the act of immolating the little girl, solitary demented by the Jews Abraham Buxbaum and Leopold Braun!...

Overwhelmed by his secret, he confided in a neighbor who informed the authorities.

The revelation was devastating for the Jews!

The affair had to be hushed up at all costs! They paid a price, indeed, and that's how the press...

Silence! Public opinion calmed down and the crime went unpunished!

He was a rabbi and not a "common" Flamidian brother [198]

193 — “The last word in this matter was spoken by a high-ranking figure, closely connected to the Minister of justice; to the deputy in the Reichstag: "The interest of the Hungarian state and of the entire Austrian monarchy demands imperatively that the truth of ritual bloodletting cannot be demonstrated and verified, for we are of

All sides are engaged with the Jews, and in many respects it is impossible for us to do without them. > (The (Mystery of Blood, p. 256.)

Don't you think you hear the Waldeck-Dreyfus ministry saying in turn?

The interest of the Jewish state, in the Jewish Republic, imperatively requires that it cannot be demonstrated

AND TO ASCERTAIN THE TRUTH OF DREYFUS'S TREASON, because we are engaged on all sides with the Jews, and in many respects it is impossible for us to do without them.

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

But we're eager to finish this bloody list. Let's conclude with a few.

of the

Most recent murders

The Rome Monitor, June 15, 1883, reports two murders of children, committed by Jews of Galata, a suburb of Constantinople, in 1882; one of them was massacred in a Jewish house where he had been lured.

In 1883, a child from a good family in Smyrna, who disappeared around Easter, was re-Found dead, his body pierced with a thousand pinpricks; this is exactly the torture inflicted by murderers.

rituals of the Middle Ages (see "Ritual Murders," page 42).

In 1885, in Mit-Kamar, Egypt, a Coptic Christian fattened the cake of the Jewish Passover.

In 1886, Agnes Marcus, in Hungary, was bled dry by two Jews who left her for dead.

Revived against all hope, she denounced her assassins, but did not obtain justice.

On February 21, 1889, a rabbinical candidate was convicted by the First Chamber of the court

Breslau correctional court sentenced him to three months in prison for bleeding a Christian child.

eight years, from which he collected blood in a vial.

In 1893, news agencies announced the following:

Prague, April 18. — "The body of a woman has been discovered, and rumors are circulating that she was victim of a ritual murder.

"There are fears that the population will resort to violence against Jews."

On the other hand, the Wiener Tageblatt, a liberal, that is to say Jewish, newspaper, is forced to announce for

On Thursday, September 21, 1893, the case of the murder of a woman was brought before the Rahowo court.

Young girl, clerk in Wratza (Bulgaria).

We do not know the judgment rendered; we would be very surprised if it had not been favorable to the Jews.

Another event recounted in the Holy Land, May 1895:

"On March 19th, in Damascus, a Muslim timber merchant saw a Jew passing his shop and carrying a bag on his back. (Easter fell on April 14th this year, so in three weeks later.

Imagining that the Jew had stolen some kindling from him, he apprehended him and demanded to see the contents of the bag. The Jew resists, the Muslim holds firm.

"I only have a small dog in my bag," said the son of Israel.

The bag is opened despite the Jew's pleas, and the Muslim sees a poor child.

A 3-year-old Greek boy fainted, his mouth full of dirt.

Crowd gathers! The Christians lead the Jew to the police chief.

They are locked up and the Jew is released!

The Muslim is ordered to remain silent, under penalty of exile.

Let us remember the Talmudic saying of the assassin caught in the act: "I only have a small dog > in my bag.

This is a reminiscence of the passage commenting on Exodus where it is said, concerning the rest of the Sabbath-bat, that this rest is not for the goyim, for "the holy festivals are for Israel and not for the dogs >". (Tr. Megilla, 7, 2.)

This murdered little child was truly nothing more than a little dog to the Jew.

— 157 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

Two more very recent facts, published in L'Antijuif (May 7, 1899).

“On Holy Saturday, April 1st, the corpse was found in a wood near Polna (Bohemia) of a young girl, missing for fifteen days, Agnès Hruza, a seamstress, aged nineteen.

Any idea of theft was ruled out from the start, because her wallet and her... were found near the dead woman.

modest jewelry and all she owned. Death was due to severed arteries and hemorrhage—the resulting state of disintegration. The corpse had almost no blood left, and the surrounding ground showed none.

of traces significant enough to suggest absorption by the ground. Therefore, only one remained

The hypothesis is that of a ritual crime, for which blood would have been collected to be used in sacrifice of a Christian at the time of the Jewish Passover.

Suspicion immediately fell on a Jewish man, a shoemaker by trade.

Léopold Hulsner, who was arrested and against whom the most serious charges are brought.

"Following this horrific murder, the Jews of Polna were the target of demonstrations" hostile behavior is quite explainable.

"The second ritual murder was committed near Erzhausen, in the Duchy of Brunswick. There,

A small child was the victim. On March 13th, a Jewish man and woman, bringing with them a child, they went from Einbeck, where they had stayed from the 11th to the 13th and celebrated a ritual ceremony at the local Jewish butcher's shop in Erzhausen.

Between Freede and Erzhausen, they were met by several workers returning from their work Vail, around six o'clock in the evening. Upon arriving in Erzhausen, they no longer had the child. The little one was found.

corpse in a fairly deep stream that cut off the road between Freede and Erzhausen, April 8 only. He had a deep incision in his neck, over the carotid artery, which had caused the hemorrhagerhagia and death by blood exhaustion, as is the custom for ritual murders.

Less fortunate than in Polna, Brunswick's justice system has so far been unable to find the two assassins, whose trail is completely lost from Erzhausen onwards, and who will have, without Doubt, they found refuge among their fellow believers with whom they had celebrated the bloody sacrifice.

We're far from having said everything!

But there are other cases besides ritual murders.

The Jew does not kill only for the needs of his Talmudic liturgy, he also kills for the pure satisfaction of his hatred, also Talmudic, towards the Christian.

This rabbi, for example, from Gitomir (Volhynia), Shleink Berditchewski, who did not hesitate to poisoned with strychnine, in 1894, his daughter and son-in-law Goncharenko: his son-in-law because that he was a Christian, his daughter because she had become a Christian in order to marry him, despite her father.

The rabbi thus confessed his crime to the investigating judge: "I preferred," he said, "to kill my daughter (and her husband with) than to see her deny the faith of her fathers.

"I curse her and do not regret my actions."

(Pawloff, special correspondent for La Libre Parole, June 11, 1894.)

This rabbi had obeyed the Talmudic commandment which states that a Jew who converts to Christianity let him be treated like the Christian, that is to say, "pushed into the pit from which he will never be pulled out."

(Polemik, etc., pp. 14-15.)

This is the cemetery grave.

When it's not the cemetery, it's the prison or dungeon.

Witness the following story of the young Jewish man, B. Mandassy, on the occasion of his conversion to Catholicism.

licism.

His protector, Father E. Denoy, a French missionary in Thessaloniki (the preserved Jewish city)

(from the bombardment of the Greek fleet by Jewish financiers during the Greco-Turkish War), the

— 158 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

Father Denoy wrote on August 3, 1892, about the new convert:

This young Israelite, admitted to the catechumenate of the Pia Casa dei neofiti in Rome, must embark

I left Thessaloniki on the 10th of this month, to be in Rome on the very day of the Assumption.

“I can say nothing more about him, except that he is truly one of the Lord’s chosen.”

can call a good Israelite, in whom there is no duplicity.

"I have no doubt that one day it will be the instrument of the greatest good, where the good wind of the Providence will guide him after his baptism.

He was supposed to be in Rome on August 15th!

But on the 16th, he wrote from Smyrna, in a letter which we have before us:

"I am taking the liberty of telling you why I am in Smyrna and not at the neo- seminary phytes of Rome.

"Only God knows the persecutions I have been subjected to for the past four years, concerning my conversion, since the missionary, my best friend, doesn't know a word about moral torture.
all accepted for the love of Christ, whose holy baptism will make me a child again.

This hope is my only consolation!

And yet this is the second time I have been sent to Rome and this is the second time my My enemies prevented my departure!

"The first time, under threat of arrest as a deserter: it was in Fume (Austria-Hungary).

The second time, a few days ago, was under threat of arresting me as a criminal: it was in Piraeus (Greece).

Completely unknown in this country and without any means of defense, I came to Smyrna,
And to make matters worse, the Turkish police are in the hands of the Jews!

"They stole my passport, which at least guaranteed me a certain degree of freedom in Thessaloniki, and

Here I am in Smyrna, without any resources, knowing six languages (German, English, Romanian,

Spanish, French, Hebrew) and ignorant of those of the country, Greek and Turkish, and reduced to selling my books, almost as precious as my life, to sustain this painful life!

Oh! How can I escape from this city?

"In the name of Jesus! Come to my aid!"

This cry of distress, alas! was destined to remain unanswered!

But it is interesting to note how the Jew, readily a freethinker in religion

He becomes fanatical towards others who abandon his own religion!

This is far from an isolated incident!

Not so long ago, on October 29, 1898, a young Jewish woman from Manchester, by

For example, Miss Annie Pattherorkas, for converting to Catholicism, was thrown into a cellar

by the Jews Maurice Thomson and Wolf Cohen, who held him there for five days!
(Correspondence)

(particularly England's letter to the Cross, November 22.)

They are in the hands of the justice system, fine! But isn't justice there in the hands of the Jews?

like in Thessaloniki, Smyrna or Paris?

— You will say, such things would never happen in France, against French Christians!

— French Christians, let's talk about them!

— 159 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

VI

JEWISH TOLERANCE

TOWARDS FRENCH CHRISTIANS

They were French Christians, these soldiers of the Grande Armée whom the Jews of Vilna saw

In retreat in 1812, wounded and lacking everything, they lured people to their homes with the promise of relief.

infamous, in reality, to strip them of their clothes and then throw them away completely naked like garbage.

through the door and the window, in the snow, where they still came to torture them until their last breath!

This is recounted by General de Ségur in his History of Napoleon and the Grande Armée. Book XII, Chapter II.

This is how the Jews understood, with regard to French Christians, these "human rights" > that these same Christians had just solemnly recognized in France, adding "stupidly > citizens' rights!"

It was a French Christian that Gougenot des Mousseaux, author of the book The Jew and Judaism-tion of Christian peoples, at Pion 1869.

In this book, we read on page 186:

"One cannot imagine the considerable number of men, women and children who, in Some major European cities disappeared forever, to the great dismay of their surroundings. rage, without leaving the slightest trace.

On April 15, 1870, he was met with an eight-page article of invective, without a word of refutation.

by Rabbi Isidor Weil, in the Israelite Universe.

This minister of a supposedly "tolerant" religion begins as follows:

"The opening of the (Vatican) council has both excited and shaken more than one mind..."

He continued:

Ah! Your ancestors, the knights, were better than you: they swore to fight everywhere. injustice, but you are merely the blind and heartless instrument of the sons of Loyola, that the mouthpiece of those who have trafficked in their faith and their good faith... >

Then, towards the end of the article:

You are nothing but a delusional person, a visionary, a possessed person.

Well, I won't refute you. Washing a donkey's head is like wasting your laundry detergent! (sic).

"However, beware! A bow drawn too tightly will break, and the arrow will rebound off the one who drew it."

It was launched! It was an undisguised threat!

Moreover, the author had transgressed "the prohibition against reading the Talmud, under penalty of death." He

He was therefore destined to die.

< Or, Des Mousseaux, says Alfred de Pontigny in his Introduction to the Jew according to the Talmud, p.

10, received notice of his sentence and impending execution on a Sunday morning, and he died suddenly the following Monday.

As for his book, the first edition disappeared almost entirely in the back room of a bookseller on Casimir-Delavigne Street, S, from which she no longer ventures.

Being too favorable to Christians, the book and the author had disappeared!

194 — Mr. Gaston Méry gave the following details on March 19, according to a close friend of Gougenot des Mousseaux:

"The Jews deprived the publisher Plon of the Northern Company's clientele..."

"In 1871, the edition was sold en bloc to a wealthy financial baron, who had it pulped.

"It was going to be destroyed at the bookseller's on Rue Casimir-Delavigne, but I was able to save six copies-please, which I handed over the same day to Mr. des Mousseaux, rue de la Ferme-des-Mathurins.

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

It was a French Christian whom Brother Photius, of the Christian Schools, arrested as a hostage during the Commune, although equipped with a pass from the prefect Raoul Rigault, by the Jew Lisgood, from whose clutches he escaped only by a miracle!

Formerly headmaster of the Vaujours boarding school (Seine-et-Oise), he is now retired in Issy.

As for the Jewish Communard, he is a tax collector in Dunkirk:

Has his thirst for Christian blood been somewhat appeased?

— Not so sure, judging by the following words of one of his high-ranking coreligionists, regarding of the Dreyfus affair:

“It’s a struggle,” he said, “between the Catholics and us, and if we come to power, the Terror will not—”

It was but an idyll, compared to what awaits the religious. > (Croix, November 1, 1898) 1951.

That's because, in fact, the religious figures are French Christians!

He was a French Christian — whatever the Jews may say — that the young tribune of Algiers, Max Régis, that "a Hebrew newspaper recently created by the Israelite Consistory (with a budget of 200,000 francs) engage-

"He was urging the Jews of Algeria to be murdered," said a dispatch to La Libre Parole on August 13, 1898.

"The author wanted to republish his book, but he encountered a categorical refusal from Mr. Plon, who justified it by his publishing rights, according to the agreement made with the author; This fact was confirmed to me by Mr. Plon himself in 1885.

"In 1876, Mr. des Mousseaux had succeeded in re-publishing his book in Romania and Austria.

"That same year, during his talks, which were ultimately unsuccessful, with Mr. Plon, the rumor spread..."

nevertheless, the reprinting of his book.

"He was living in Coulommiers at the time; he wrote to me at the end of September, asking me to come and see him. I went there on October 4th.

"The next day, a Sunday, after Mass, where we had gone and where he had received communion..."

As was his custom, he showed me, among the threatening letters he had received, this one which confirmed them with a in a sinister way. She said:

You were sentenced to death by a meeting that took place yesterday (probably the Kahal).
Take it from a friend.

If unknown, do not eat or drink anything without letting your dog experience the effects of your food. The stop will be executed promptly.

"Mr. des Mousseaux just laughed!"

The next morning, at eight o'clock (October 6, 1876), on returning from mass — he went there every day
— he suddenly fell dead!

"A case of cerebral congestion," the doctors of that time must have noticed!

The Russian Jew Brafmann, who had converted and exposed the Kahal, died in the same way.

195 — One more proof that "the matter" is above all religious.

It is the final episode — the denouement, if you will, of a war that we are enduring, but that
the

The Jews, for their part, have been doing this to us for a hundred years, with a weapon as old as the flintlock rifle, and yet until now

Effective: clericalism! 11...

As for threats, Dr. Rohling, author of "The Jew According to the Talmud," received similar ones:

"An anonymous Jew," he said, "wrote to me from Hamm that I should die hanged like Haman."

Another wrote to me from Kreuzthal: "We consider it a work pleasing to God to remove you from our Way; it is by our hands that you will be taken from this earth.

"I received a flood of similar letters."

Who doesn't remember the death threats and assassination attempts that Mr. Edouard Drumont was subjected to?

during his only electoral campaign in Algiers, on the part of the Jews, or at their instigation? and again-recently in Grenoble, May 16, 17 and 18, 1899, at the Max Régis trial?

We have not forgotten the way in which Sébastien Faure, in the name of the Jews, tried to impose on him, on October 16th

1898, an article was published in La Libre Parole (which was, incidentally, rejected):

"Anarchists, as you know, know how to do without the bailiffs' ministry. But I hope that You won't force me to go that far.

THE SECTARIAN JEW

It was a French Christian, Mr. de Méritens, inventor of these electric lighthouses which pre-Today, shipwrecks have claimed so many thousands of sailors on all the seas of the globe!

Why did he not draw upon his Christian sentiments, on October 27, 1898, to find the strength to resist the suicide, into which this Jew had driven him, who "left him at 65," he wrote on the very day of his death, "neither

A bed to sleep in, nor a plate to eat on!

This Jew will say that he was exercising his right.

No doubt!

But when one exercises all one's rights, one loses the right to proclaim oneself a friend of tolerance, except,

of course, the Talmudic tolerance we are talking about, which this Jew can claim, in

Indeed, like all his coreligionists.

Was this Algiers Jew, Samuel Sudaka, also exercising his right, who, during the electoral period...

rale of 1898, fired a shot at the house of Mr. Riboullaud, captain of the gendarmerie in retirement ?

Was this Jewish court exercising its right to punish the perpetrator of the attack with a fine of 6 francs?

for "projection of hard bodies" and sentenced the Frenchman Tartarin to a year in prison, guilty of having struck the Jew Serron Nathan with a stick (Libre Parole, November 22)?

We are not talking about three assassination attempts, which are still fresh in everyone's minds:

+ The first, with revolver shots, by the anarchist Lucas against the French of the "League of patriots", December 6, 1898, Pré-aux-Clercs hall, under the benevolent gaze of the Jew Natanson, originally from Warsaw;

+ The second, with blows from a truncheon, against Mr. Lerolle, Member of Parliament, three days later, on December 9th,

Thomas room, La Bourdonnais avenue;

+ The third, with revolver shots (12 shots fired) at the patriots, on February 5, 1899, at Marseille 1%),

Let us judge the impudence of these litanies of Christian hecatombs perpetrated by the Jews.

of the Jew Bernard Lazare expressing, on the very day of the attempted assassination of Mr. Lerolle, his desire to defend the unfortunate Jews of Algeria, the Jews of Galatia who are being killed, those of Russia that we cloister >.

"Unhappy," no doubt, not to devour Christians according to their appetite!

This did not, moreover, prevent the Dreyfusard Freemason Poulain from throwing at Abbé Le-mire, recalling from the podium "the Church's perpetual concern to protect Jews against "Popular fury," this foolish interruption: "Tell us about Torquemada! The Church has a A bloody story! > (December 23, 1898.)

"Torquemada" was not the Church! But the bloody story we are telling is indeed that of the Jews!

Should we add to this the bloody episodes of the "Dreyfus Affair" alone? "Affair," don't open it...

Let's not be fooled, treason exclusively for the French, religion and race exclusively for
The Jews!

196 —An anarchist placard signed by a Protestant: Falæsil, and three Jews: Natan, Alphandéry, Lévy,
had provoked the blows.

During the trial of Jules Guérin-Philibert Roger, at the Assizes on February 13, 1899, "they arrested," said the "Libre"

"Speech," seven anarchists carrying knives and revolvers. How many Jews were there!

Finally, the instigator of the brawls in which Mr. Drumont nearly died in Grenoble on May 17th was the Jew Samuel David, from the house "Au bon génie".

— 162 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

Unexplained deaths

Commander d'Attel, director of the depot, acting as adjutant of the garrison, at the parade execution, had received the traitor's confession!

Found dying in a railway carriage on October 1, 1895, "green as a lamppost," said a witness, at Ermont station, returning from Triel where he had left in good health.

Mr. Chaulin-Servinière, deputy for Mayenne, had made this declaration on February 7, 1898 to

The Intransigent One:

Captain Lebrun-Renault informed me that he had obtained from the traitor the pa-

following roles:

"If I handed over documents to Germany, it was in order to obtain others."

"Mr. Lebrun-Renault also assured me that, the day after he heard this confession, he addressed a letter to the Ministry of War in which Dreyfus's exact words were related.

This statement was made on February 7th.

Six months later, on July 25th, Mr. Chaulin-Servinière was found in pieces on the railway line.

Paris to Laval, very close to Le Mans where he was supposed to get off.

Accident or crime, his death remains unexplained. 1°]

The Association "dead the beast, dead the venom">

We read in a leaflet from the Syndicate of Treason, December 1898:

We learn that a league — or rather a Black association — is forming under the title:

"The beast is dead, the venom is dead."

Its aim is to fight by all means, whatever they may be, against the anti-Semitic mob and its devoted president.

"The performers of the dance, whatever it may be, will be chosen by lot during secret meetings."

kept secret.

We don't have many details about this association, but, instead of some "People, we would be wary of them."

197 — From an interview with Colonel Deniéport, an old friend of the deputy:

— "The suicide hypothesis is inadmissible, refute it with all your might.

<"Without being rich, Servinière had a very large amount of money.

Furthermore, he had no serious concerns. If he had, I would have known. He hid nothing from me.

I don't believe it was an accident either. Cautious and circumspect, Servinière certainly didn't fall.

By chance. Very flamboyant, he may have been dizzy. I admit, however, that he was difficult-

The possibility of a crime remains.

"—Does it seem plausible to you?"

"You know that Servinière was one of Captain Lebrun-Renault's confidants!..." (Free Speech, Gaston Méry, July 26, 1898.)

The tragic death of Colonel Henry at Mont-Valérien would find its place here if, in support of the insinuations following, which everything justifies, even the silence of those concerned, we had material proof:

Wasn't Colonel Henry invited by a so-called friend, in reality a friend of the Jews, to manufacture what they

They called it a fake, and it was merely a popular reproduction of an authentic secret document?

Once the deception was discovered, wasn't the colonel, in despair, invited, more or less directly, by...

Union agents to take their own lives?

This has been said and written and has never been denied!

— 163 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

Mr. Guérin, "the devoted president," referred to in this note, has shown himself ready to welcome, as is fitting, the master dancers," who could just as easily be called the "masters singers >.

Didn't that prompt them to look elsewhere for less recalcitrant student-waltzers?

This may explain some death waltzes, such as the following:

Waltzes of Death

It was at the beginning of February 1899. The "trio of scoundrels Loew-Bard-Manau", in charge

The Dreyfus trial review began to waver under the pressure of public opinion, outraged by the cynicism that guided the conduct of the investigation.

On the other hand, a bill "removing the case from the Criminal Chamber" appeared
It had to be favorably received by parliament. All was lost!

To dampen the reception, as at that moment a clerical scandal would have been welcome!

Indeed! On Sunday, February 5th, the little Christian boy, Gaston Foveaux, a student of the Brothers of the Street from the Mint in Lille, disappeared at nightfall.

The following Wednesday, his body was found in the visiting room of the boarding school where he had been thrown.
brepticement.

The house was immediately dismissed, the staff were thoroughly investigated and held in custody for three weeks!

Brother Flamidien, arrested, was subjected for many months to the promiscuity of common criminals.

mun, was eventually recognized as innocent by public opinion—and nevertheless kept in prison.

his by the investigating judge Delalé!¹⁵¹,

But, in the meantime, Sébastien Faure had been able to denounce "the infamous clericalism" in a meeting anarchist on February 11; the Dreyfusard Carnaud, to submit a bill to the Chamber on the 12th tending to "exclude from teaching those who take a vow of chastity"; the Dreyfus-municipality

Sardinians from Lille, insulting them with filthy posters; the Jewish press, spreading filth to the

The last hamlet in the last village of France!

198 — The three letters (see "The Jew and the Catholic Clergy," page 119) discovered in the establishment-

The accounts of the Brothers of the Rue de la Monnaie are so precise regarding the circumstances of the crime that they leave no doubt as to their origin, the assassin himself.

The investigating judge could not help but acknowledge, in front of the brothers Achille and Adelmir, that these letters are very much in the same style as the note placed near the child's body (to detect the search).

This note, in which the assassin ostentatiously confessed, is therefore not by Brother Flamidien, since the letters of

In the same style, recently discovered, they were written since he's been in prison!...

Mr. Delalé did consider this consequence, but he did not dare to draw the conclusion!

Would this contradict the "infallible" judgments of the Kahal of Lille and that of Paris?

Brother Flamidien was released on July 10 by the Douai Court of Appeals, more impartial and less enslaved by Talmudic doctrine!

199 — A sample of the comments that street vendors used to accompany the sale of garbage:

“Fathers and mothers, you who are listening to me and who have children, know that in Lille a horrifying crime—

vantable was committed to the Brothers!

Little Foveaux, a child as beautiful as an angel (!), was defiled and strangled by his teacher, Brother

Flamidien! "There's no denying it anymore!"

< The clerics, the Jesuits, the friars and the priests are caught red-handed.

"The brother went down on his knees, he asked forgiveness of his Institute; he confessed everything in recent days; the

The monster will be executed.

"Yes, fathers and mothers who will listen to me, it is time for this to end!"

— 164 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

Futile uproar! Pointless scandal! Sterile assassination! The law divests the Criminal Chamber of jurisdiction was voted on in the House on February 14th!

But it was possible to prevent him from being so in the Senate!

How ?

With another brilliant move!

This was the sudden death of Félix Fauré, President of the Republic, on February 16th at 10 o'clock in the evening.

"Beware! Beware of sending your children to the Brothers' school! Beware of letting them pass the door to these dens of hypocrites, liars, and brigands!

"The Brothers and all those who support them are scoundrels and murderers."

This was heard on March 23, 1899 (when the brother's innocence had long since been proven), at Xertigny (Vosges), by Mr. Louis Colin, of the Universe, who added in a postscript:

"I've been told at the last minute that the sinister-looking man is an old Jew who sells paper instead of..."

rabbit skins.

No wonder! Jews are plentiful in this department where they have twelve synagogues (see "— In the (Seine there are seven synagogues, four of which are in Paris.>, page 128).

The peddler was, moreover, admirably supported in his campaign by the Havas Agency, including La Croix wrote, on March 25, regarding the flagrant irregularities committed in the handwriting analysis of the Brothers of the Mint:

Why does this Agency limit itself to reproducing false information (which it knows to be such)?

from the Grand Echo du Nord, disregarding the formal and precise denials from the Croix du Nord, of the News from Lille and the Journal de Roubaix? >

We should ask her why she is distorting public opinion worldwide regarding the Dreyfus affair!

If she could answer, she would say: "Because I am a Jewish Agency and I act in the interests of Jews. » (See note «— On October 28, 1898, a group of French people from Buenos Aires wrote to Mr.

Drumont: », page 116 and following).

200 — We know the circumstances:

At 4 a.m., when nothing suggested the imminent death of the president, who had received until that moment...

This telegram was sent from Paris to Brussels and reproduced by all the Belgian newspapers.

"Faure's resignation is imminent, Loubet's election is assured."

On the same day, at 2 or 3 o'clock, Mr. Henri Despretz, 24, rue d'Inkermann (Lille), according to a correspondence particular dance of the Cross (March 4), received from Antwerp "a telephone communication by which

A business transaction was cancelled due to the potential consequences of the resignation of President, as Mr. Faure had given >".

Two other telegrams, one in English and the other in French, were sent from Liverpool to Tourcoing.

said the Northern Cross (March 10). Here they are

“Liverpool, February 16, 4 p.m.”

Is there real unrest in Paris? Telegraph with full details.

“Liverpool, February 16, 5:27 p.m.”

"The market suddenly fell following rumors of complications in Paris."

At ten o'clock, the President breathed his last.

In such cases (sudden death), the law requires a period of 48 hours before burial or embalming.

Mr. Félix Faure was embalmed 10 hours later (the next day, at 8 a.m.).

At least the autopsy was expected, much more so than for Mr. Carnot or Queen Elizabeth, who were indeed autopsied.

that their death was without mystery.

Mr. Félix Faure was not autopsied!

The putrefaction was so rapid that, despite embalming, he had to be placed in a coffin without delay!

Was the embalming done incorrectly?

We could not find out, since no embalming report was published, contrary to custom!

THE SECTARIAN JEW

The death of Félix Faure

When we say "sudden," it's a figure of speech, because it wasn't sudden for everyone. the world, especially for this Freemason from the Far East who knew her for eight days at the advance!... and about which a subscriber to La Croix wrote to him from there on March 22nd:

“We learned of the death of the President of the French Republic through telegrams.” the day after it took place. By "we," I mean "we newspaper readers on this part of the globe >

“But we (personally) learned about it at least eight days before she had...” place.

"I was there when a letter arrived from one of our French compatriots: in this letter, we he essentially said, and this is news that is more or less questionable:

<“Do you know that the President of the Republic is dead?”>

"We laugh about it and joke about it, because the compatriot in question is deep in the countryside and the News by mail or telegraph takes time to reach him.

< So, imagine our surprise when, a few days later, we learned of the death, not old, but brand new from President Faure!

"We wrote to our compatriot to request further information on this..."
that he had written.

"He replied that before writing his last letter he had received a visit from a European or descendantdant of European (whom he named) and that this person had told him that President Faure should be assassinated that same day.

"It seems the visitor is a Freemason."

"In any case, there is a Jewish family nearby that the aforementioned visitor could have had met.

Mystery everywhere; question marks all around!

And to these questions, there is no other answer than the following, which we give for what they are.

worth:

First response

So, it was the thunderbolt of Henry's death that finally struck their stone heads (of patriots).

"Then came the even greater and more terrifying death of the head of state, who overturned the plot that was..."

plotted around him, with his help, against justice and freedom.

"If you only walk out of necessity, under the sway of force, there is a kind of fatal logic to things."

which means that the blows will always increase until your obstinacy is defeated.

"As it is absolutely necessary for the course of worldly affairs that truth always ultimately prevails..."

To gain the upper hand, these blows must be repeated and intensified when your resistance persists.

"If you had done justice a year ago, the whole course of events would have changed and followed a different chain of events."

Due to different circumstances, the fatal opportunity might not have arisen, where this great figure met his death.

"Since everything in the order of things had changed, this too would have been changed."

Who is speaking like this? An opportunistic Dreyfusard, in a Jewish newspaper, reported by La Libre Parole (February 26).

frier).

Second answer

We are saved! We had no greater enemy than Félix Faure, and God is with us...

Since he is dead! > (Libre Parole, February 28.)

Who is speaking like this? A former subordinate of Cornelius Herz, a friend of Reinach and Dreyfus, openly exhaling his joy in a boulevard cabaret.

— 166 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

Whatever the truth of these gloomy predictions, unanimous regrets greeted the news of the death of President Faure.

The people of Paris, in particular, did not hold back their sympathies!

For eight days, crowds filed past his mortal remains displayed in the main hall of the Elysée Palace!

A curious thing! As you left the presidential palace, street vendors were offering you, for ten cents...

Times featured a superb photograph of the deceased, framed in mourning and recounting significant events.

of the Franco-Russian alliance, for example the toast aboard the Pothuau, August 26, 1897 and the appreciation-tions of the newspapers.

Instinctively, we searched for the name of the author, so inspired by his patriotism!

And in the right-hand corner we read:

<« Edited by Joseph Aron, 23, rue Boileau, Montrouge!... »

After the funeral, on February 23, the famous divestment law came before the Senate.

The struggle was desperate! The entire Dreyfusard reserve gave its all!

The single article of law – it took three tumultuous sessions to discuss it!

Weary of the struggle, the President of the Cabinet called for a vote of confidence!

He won the vote, but by only 27 votes! on March 1, 1899.

Was it really over, truly over, this time?

This was just the beginning.

A prophet of doom

On March 3, Mr. de Pressensé wrote

"It's too late, Mr. Dupuy, you've fallen into your own trap."

"Your law (of divestment) discredits you, it covers you with ignominy, it does not would be more helpful.

And then, look! I'm no prophet, but let me tell you that there are times when one vaguely expects something unexpected, or one senses some thunderbolt which would sweep through the atmosphere.

"Who knows if, at the very moment you hold the beveled cards with which you have prepared the game, this the same fate that laid Félix Faure on his deathbed, on the eve of perhaps criminal decisions

new and surely irreparable, does not hold some tragic surprise for you, after which it does not

All you'll have to do is pass the baton to a happier or more honest player?

Note the two points of the prophecy: 1° "a tragic surprise", 2° "a blow of Thunder swept across the atmosphere.

Now let's continue.

Is this "the tragic surprise"?

Mr. Laurenceau, prefect of the North under the Brisson cabinet, had, in this capacity, brought to his attention the existence in Brussels of a fund centralizing the funds that flow in from all over the world, to supply the Dreyfus campaign!

He lost his position there; but, with the advent of the Dupuy ministry, he obtained the general treasury.

from Nîmes!

However, Mr. Laurenceau, already listed among the prosecution witnesses for Mr. Henry against Reinach, — 167 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

was summoned to Paris by Mr. Dupuy, who was eager to find out more about the "slush fund" in Brussels!

His mission accomplished, he was preparing to leave.

Found dead on March 4th, at the Terminus Hotel where he had stayed!

Mr. Fédée, former head of the research brigades, had once arrested anarchists (the current allies of the Jews); had, moreover, followed the plot of the Dreyfusard conspiracy very closely.

He died suddenly on March 4th, the same day as Mr. Laurenceau!

Is this the tragic surprise?

Both had worked for the Ministry of the Interior!

And Mr. Dupuy was Minister of the Interior!

Is this "the thunderbolt"?

The following day, March 5, at 2:25 a.m., 80,000 kilograms of gunpowder exploded at the powder magazine.

of Lagoubran (between La Seyne and Toulon)?°1!

The impact was heard in Nice (200 kilometers) and the shock was felt more than ten kilometers away.

meters around!

As for the location of the powder magazine, it was "swept away" like "the atmosphere," leaving no trace.

showing no other trace of sweeping than the rubble of demolished buildings, strewn with corpses,

It was a beautiful "thunderbolt"!

Was it insufficient? Apparently so!

Since the day after tomorrow, Tuesday, March 7, "between six thirty and seven o'clock, six individuals

201 — He didn't mention the "slush fund" in Brussels, the existence of which he had proof of in his drawer, that was to say that he knew nothing.

Perhaps it's thanks to his discretion that he's still alive!

Mr. Krantz, who fell from power with him on June 12, was less discreet.

He has since affirmed his conviction of Dreyfus's guilt!... However, on Thursday, June 22nd, Mr. Krantz, his wife and her children were victims of an attempted poisoning!

The pro-Dreyfus press didn't breathe a word about it!

Only the Havas Agency said of Mr. Krantz, while the poison writhed him, that "he presented (on the 23rd) to the general-

General de Galliffet, the director of the Ministry of War.

That's all!

Agent Guénée had stated that "if he were called to testify before the Court Martial of Rennes, he would reveal in detail the results of his surveillance of Dreyfus in France and abroad.

He will not be called to testify! He just died suddenly on July 5th!

Yves Guyot's newspaper was the first to report it!

Let's just note that the anti-Dreyfusards are dropping like flies... right at the psychological!

Dreyfus had demanded three years to establish his innocence!

That was exactly what was needed to make the witnesses to his crime disappear!

He wasn't demanding!

The Kahal of Russia had granted six years to eliminate Derjawine, "this great persecutor of the People of Israel! (See "Derjawine cursed in all the synagogues of the world," page 62.)

202 — We have learned from a secretary of the Toulon General Staff that in 1896, anarchists, deceiving the surveillance of the posts, were able to break into a powder magazine and write there, in verse, a threat of "explosion."

The photographed document is kept as evidence in the General Staff's papers.

Let us not forget that in Toulon, Sébastien Faure achieved his greatest successes in anarchist propaganda.

— 168 —

THE JEWS IN THE 19TH CENTURY

They fired two revolver shots at the sentry positioned above the melinite store.

"Private Guy of the 111th Line Infantry Regiment," said the official report;

That very morning, sixteen packages of dynamite were found at that location!

This is where we are! Or rather, this is where the Jews are with their bloody practices!

It was in the Middle Ages, it's happening today outside our own country: ritual murders!

But in France, the revolver, dynamite, and poison would apparently be the last resort.

Talmudic civilization!

We see that in the 20th century, the Talmud was practiced as much as, and even more than, in any of the preceding centuries.

predecessors, that it has been in France as much and more than in any other country in the world!

— 169 —

CHAPTER VIII

A LOOK BACK

Let us take a quick look at the ruins accumulated in our country by the last twenty-five years of Talmudic domination!

We say Talmudic, agreeing this time with the Chief Rabbi of Paris, Dreyfuss, who

He confessed it thus on the tomb of the great rabbi Isidor, on September 27, 1895:

"It was under the leadership of Mr. Isidor, we can say, that our Community had its constitution-definitive tuton, that she was endowed with most of her organs which, by him and by the one who collected

Its pious heritage has grown and been constantly strengthened over the last half century.

It was Zadoc-Kahn who inherited the "pious legacy!"

But to the "definitive constitution of the Jewish community," to the "growing fortification of its organs in this last half-century > what have we gained?

Here it is:

— Expulsion of fifty thousand French religious, by force, through the broken gates of their convents, on March 29, 1880, by virtue of the "existing laws drawn from their centuries-long neglect by the Reinach, a newly naturalized Jew from Frankfurt, was the one who insulted Colonel Henry.

— Abolition, in July of the same year, of the Christian law guaranteeing French workers Sunday rest, but in violation of Talmudic law which forbids it: "The rest of Parties are not for dogs. > (Megilla: 7, 2, Venice edition.)

— Votes on the increase laws (December 1880), and the subscription law (April 1895), which affect of an exorbitant tax on the property of the poor, in the 500 million legitimately acquired from 200,000 reli-

French nobles (2,500 francs each) and respect the 80 billion, mostly ill-gotten, of approximately 100,000 foreign Jews who use and abuse it for their exclusive benefit.

— Vote, on March 28, 1882, under Jewish inspiration and with the support of the Jews in the Chamber and from the press, especially from La Lanterne, regarding the law on neutral education by the Judaizing Jules Ferry, the clearest results of which are seen after ten years:

1. "The number of juvenile delinquents increased by a quarter, the population figure remaining stationary. >> (Alfred Fouillée.)

2. "The figure of seven million crimes committed by children aged 7 to 16, reaching approximately the double the crimes committed by twenty million adults over the age of 16. > (Alfred Fouillée.)

3. God erased from the hearts of 10 million children who went through school without "God.

— 171 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

4. These 10 million children are preparing five million households without God, that is to say, without children, that is to say, consuming in short order the ruin, three-quarters already accomplished, of the family and France!

— Vote, on July 27, 1884, on the law concerning the divorce of the Jew Naquet, which provoked one hundred thousand disputes.

Voces prevented the birth of 200,000 French people, deprived our army of 100,000 soldiers!

— Vote, on July 15, 1889, of the law "priests sac to the cloister" or "the priestly novitiate to the Barracks D, to the unanimous applause of the Jewish people in France!

— In 1892, the finance law was passed which maintained subsidies to Jewish seminaries.

where hatred of France and the French, and suppresses them in Catholic seminaries where they teach, with love of the France, the religion of 38 million French people!

— In the same year, a course on positivism or irreligion was created at the Sorbonne, completed in 1898 by its introduction into official education, on the initiative of Mr. Bour-Geois, a close friend of the great Jews, was a proponent of Darwinism, which teaches that "man descends of the monkey >> 1205),

— Should we add the suppression of official prayers, processions in towns and villages?

laws, arbitrary prosecutions against the clergy, cynical salary cuts, the seizures and sales of the property of the congregations, etc., etc.!

And, what is far more serious! the doctrine of excessive pleasure taught by economists Jewish mists, propagated frenetically by newspapers, posters, and filthy leaflets, usually Jews, and the current of corruption, under the cover of postal freedom, even in the last hamlet of the last village

Age of France!

Results :

Out of eight million French households, there are:

1° Two million childless (ONE QUARTER)!

2° Two million 500,000 with only sons (MORE THAN A QUARTER)!

That is: FOUR MILLION FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND FRENCH HOUSEHOLDS WITH AN ONLY SON OR WITHOUT

ONE CHILD OUT OF A TOTAL OF EIGHT MILLION EIGHTY THOUSAND!

Annually: 350,000 conscripts in France, compared to 450,000 in Germany! ...[041,

France has the LAST birth rate in the world!

France, ranked FIFTH in population today, will be last tomorrow, even after Italy, according to the rigorous figures in the statistics!

This explains England's insolence, Germany's joy, even their impertinence.
of Italy, Menelik's vanquished!

This also prompted Mr. Bertillon, the French statistician, to raise the alarm, which all echoes

203 — This can only flatter the Talmudist Jews who themselves teach that “only Jews are Men, the other nations are but a variety of animals. (Tr. Baba. mf 114,2.)

204 — Vorwaerts, the official organ of German Jews and socialists, congratulating the Jews and the so-called

French socialists, in their campaign for Dreyfus against the army, exclaimed with undisguised joy,

November 15, 1898:

"France can no longer compete with the German army, because Germany counts today it has 12 million more inhabitants than France.

"The French army must therefore be transformed into an army of militiamen; our comrades
in France

(Reinach, Jaurès, etc.) understood this and followed this path.

The Münchner Neueste Nachrichten reinforce these assessments regarding the evacuation of Fashoda:

"Marchand is recalled unconditionally! France has become a Portugal No. 2!"

— 172 —

A RETROPECTIVE GLANCE

should be strolling across France, with thunderous accents:

< FRANCE IS LOST IF WE DO NOT AWAKEN ITS PATRIO-

Drowsy or poorly lit environment if,

One could conclude that England doesn't just know how to show its fist to the weak, but also to the strong, since France is ranked among the great powers.

In fact, England took no more risks than with the Portuguese, because the French Republic did not

than the appearance of great power.

This cruelly underscores the words of the heroic commander Marchand in Toulon:

Peace has been maintained! But I think I can say that peace like this is not something to be repeated.

France wouldn't deserve two per century!... >

In reality, France is weak! concludes the German newspaper.

It is to weaken it further—that is the explicit aim—that the Jewish syndicate of treason pursues his campaign with the cry: "Down with France!"

Wake him up? Will we even have time? The Jews are slitting his guardian's throat, the army, who can cry out, like Elijah of old, precisely because of the Jewish people “Lord! They have killed your prophets, demolished your altars.”

“I was left all alone and they seek to take my life.” (III Reg. xlx, 10, 18.)

The altars? There is hardly more than one left standing, the altar of pleasure, erected by the Jew, where the Frenchmen flock to his call, to sacrifice duty!

While on the horizon of all our borders the harbingers of the

A rain of fire that, as in Sodom and Gomorrah, must consume the idol and its worshippers!

A "Sodom and Gomorrah" — Mr. Drumont says: "The brothel of Europe," but a brothel whose keys they hold and whose profits they collect — that's what the Jews did from France!

Alas! They made it in their own image, the image of impure vice, whose... Saint Paul already noted reflections on their physiognomy 6]!

At least, that's what they intended!

And this! We must not, we can no longer tolerate it, under penalty of becoming a finite people.

doomed to all the future destructions of iron and fire!

205 — Mr. Bertillon was dismissed on July 5th by the Municipal Council for failing to file in favor of the traitor.

His cry of pain is all the more justified!

It prompts us to reflect:

— What accounts for this appalling decline, the likes of which France has never known, at any time?

of its history?

The only fact is that at no point in its history did France surrender itself to the Jews.

AS SHE ENGAGED IN 1791, BY THE DECREE OF SEPTEMBER 27, WHICH GRANTED THEM THE NATURALIZATION!

For a similar decree granted to Algeria in 1870, Algeria died within thirty years!

France can consider itself lucky not to have died after a hundred years!

This answers the defrocked Loyson, who stated in Bayonne (November 1898) that "Judaism is the basis of Christian civilization >".

The Judaism of the Bible, yes, which Jews no longer follow, but not the Judaism of the Talmud, the only one practiced today, and France is dying!

206 — “If the Lord of hosts had not reserved for us some of our race (to make them miserable (regarding mercy), we would have become like Sodom and Gomorrah. (Rom. 1x, 29.)

— 173 —

CHAPTER IX

CONCLUSION

"What should I do?"

A Frenchman from the "crusades", if there were any left, would not "let the answer rot"!

— What to do? But to chain the criminal hands that opened the floodgates to this new deluge!

— But these hands are so powerful!

— Yes, powerful because of the gold they handle, which is nothing, but above all powerful because of the-bought where they managed to reduce us with this gold!

Back when the French weren't for sale, objection was unknown!

207 — In this regard, Mr. Rochefort wrote, quite rightly, on July 1st:

What they (the Jews) were keen to establish, and what they did establish, is that since the death of Robespierre

the incorruptible, all Frenchmen have ceased to be so, and that a certain number of millions skillfully dis-

Tributes have the right to the Chambers, the judiciary, the administration, the ministers, the presidents of Republic and Freemasonry.

That being said, we do not see how the election by the people of the President of the Republic, following

The idea, so dear to the chivalrous Mr. Déroulède, would change the situation.

The Jews, powerful enough today to buy the election of the Chambers by the people, would be all as much to buy the presidential election by that same people.

What would be needed is to eliminate contact between the Jew and the voter; this can be done in two ways.

ways:

Or, to make the voter capable of resisting the lure of the forty-cent piece;

Or, make it impossible for the Jew to offer it to him. We do not believe in the effectiveness of the first.

a way that requires too much heroism.

The second option remains, which would be achieved by depriving Jews of their rights as active citizens!

The Jews proclaim themselves "a cosmopolitan race by necessity" (Theodore Reinach).

We would take them at their word!

Could they complain about that?...

All the less so if we respect in them more those "human rights" to which they are attached. so much, but which they themselves respect so little among the French, who were the first to solemnly bestow them upon them. recognized!

For us, this is the solution, the only immediate solution to the appalling crisis that France is going through!

Take away the rights of active citizens from Jews!

THE SECTARIAN JEW

— They were swordsmen! And we are friends of peace! Are there no other ways?

In short? Diplomacy, for example!

Let's engage in diplomacy!

Diplomacy?... let's talk about it, it will always please the Jews!

Diplomacy is conducted between honest people, solely seeking to enlighten one another.

They lie about their rights in order to respect them, and about their duties in order to fulfill them!

But between the French and the Jews, diplomacy is no more easily explained than between the thief of the great path and its victim, for whom diplomacy can then be defined:

The art of surrendering indefinitely, gracefully, "like a good sport who loses the game," as the Figaro, regarding Fashoda, faced with the dishonest demands of an enemy, to whom one cannot

Not, or we don't dare, or we don't want to resist.

When "one cannot," one must admit one's powerlessness and resignedly accept the conditions.

enemy actions!

When "one doesn't dare", that's called cowardice!

When "you don't want to," that's called betrayal!

It's up to us to choose the adjective that suits us!

Diplomacy? But it's diplomacy that started the fire that's consuming France!

She was the one who broke the news — taking perverse pleasure in embellishing the picture — throughout the world and even to the unexplored sources of the Nile, where the aim was no longer to light, but to extinguish, here, at the same time, the patriotic flame in the heart of a hero and the pure ray of glory which he had just attached to the brow of the Fatherland!

This criminal diplomacy, masked as usual in "humanitarian" trappings, a Frenchman uncovered it with a now famous stroke of the pen.

This was a balm to the hero's wound, who was then able to exhale his pain with his thanks.

comments, in a letter that needs to be reread.

Here it is:

“Cairo, November 6.

"To Mr. Forain, artist."

"MY DEAR FRIEND,

You don't know me. We've never met; but as I come to sense, strangely, in the penetrating acuity of your vision, our two patriotisms intersecting,

I wanted to give you this title that you will not disdain.

This is a preamble that should surprise you.

"Now, listen:

“On September 21st, in Fashoda, it had been almost ten months since we had had any...”

News from France and Europe: the Anglo-Egyptian army had arrived 48 hours earlier.

from Omdurman and Sir Dar Kitchener was going back down to Khartoum.

< Wingate, by order of his superior and no doubt with a laudable intention, handed me over before the

at the start, a collection of English and... French newspapers, which we hadn't dared to ask for, but which we received with gratitude.

The French newspapers were the August issues of Egyptian Progress.

This must be the first article of the revised Constitution!

— 176 —

CONCLUSION

"I only have two more lines to add: one hour after opening the French sheets, the Ten French officers were trembling and crying.

"It was there that we learned that the Dreyfus affair had been reopened with the horrific campaign of the infamous.

"And for thirty-six hours, none of us was able to say anything to the others. — We does not share such impressions.

"I haven't increased anything, exaggerated anything, changed anything... on the contrary.

"I simply want to tell you, while watching the latest October Fairground show, that in order to have

To have foreseen what happened 5,000 kilometers away, you must possess a great soul. of proud patriotism. It would be impossible otherwise.

"Because of this, I ask your permission to kiss, if you would be so kind."

"With all my heart."

"Commander MARCHAND. >"

We will not ask anyone who possesses even an ounce of patriotism what they think of this letter, of which one can also say that "one does not exchange such impressions" >. Let us simply note that it is the result of... English diplomacy.

Here is the one from French diplomacy:

THE ORDER TO EVACUATE FACHODA.

When the captain Baratier brought it to the commander, freshly plucked from Del-Broken, here is the poignant scene that took place, according to an eyewitness:

“At this moment, the spectacle is most moving. Baratier is heartbreakingly sad; it is he barely dares to look at Marchand.

“He has a premonition that Baratier is bringing bad news; his gaze is energetic seems to be searching his dear comrade to the very depths of his soul...

Suddenly, unable to contain himself any longer, he rushed at him and dragged him aside, to the bottom of the canoe that had brought. I see Baratier let his arms fall in discouragement.

Marchand seems beside himself and clenches his fists in rage; it is only too easy to guess what that's what Baratier told him.

"From that moment on, Marchand became silent; during the dinner offered to him by Mr. Thé-

Venet, head of the Suez Canal Company service, the brave officer, whose face is overcome by grief, she cannot hold back her tears!

These are the results of... French diplomacy!

This is the diplomacy with which the Jews forced their way into the French family a hundred years ago.

French! With which they dominated it, with which they trample it today! With which they

They haven't given up hope of making her sign her own death warrant tomorrow through acquittal.

[of Dreyfus 2] 1...

208 — Needless to say, this diplomacy, whose favorite motto is: "Might makes right, the "Lies take precedence over truth," is neither Christian nor French, since it comes from a dishonest Florentine.

Machiavelli.

To those who employ it, Jewish or otherwise, the French must oppose only French diplomacy: "The honesty in the resistance.

It was for having forgotten this and for having wanted to play an instrument that French probity forbade us to
to know, with enemies whose total lack of scruples allowed them to know them thoroughly, that

— 177 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

And this is the kind of diplomacy that the French would still dare to entertain?...

To these good-natured Frenchmen, we dedicate the following lines:

This concerned Panama, definitively buried by the bill passed in the US Senate.
another interoceanic canal.

A newspaper announced it to the ruined French in these terms:

"The 870,000 gullible people caught in the immense swindle known as the Panama Canal scandal must have felt..."

These days, a final pang of sadness.

"The telegraph came to them bluntly, announcing that the American Senate had passed the law."

Morgan; that is, the construction of an interoceanic canal by Nicaragua.

— Who blew that whistle?

The newspaper L'Aurore (January 28, 1899), commissioned by Cornelius Herz, the former grand fli-

Panama bustier, belonging to Reinach's friend, nephew of the great Panamanian buccaneer of the same name,

In short, Clemenceau, the former Director of Justice, who recommended more than anyone else "im-

"Message of piracy > to the 870,000 gullible people" that he mocks today.

It is with such whistles that the Jews have been welcoming for a hundred years what we

We like to call them "our diplomatic successes"! They even created a special body for this purpose.

cial: "The Whistle."

And we still want to engage in diplomacy?...

Would we surrender to everything, to the whistle?

Never !..

What if the Jew is a scourge of God?

The objection was made "very seriously."

— Should we therefore resist the “scourge of God”?

— The plague is a scourge from God! Must we capitulate to the plague and not call the doctor?

cin?

Famine is a scourge from God! Must we surrender to famine and let ourselves die of hunger ?

— War is a scourge from God! When it is declared on us, should we raise our rifle butts in the air?

— Attila was a scourge of God! Should Saint Leo have let him pass over the eternal city?

— The English were a scourge of God in the time of Charles VII! Did Joan of Arc really have to...

to please the "intellectuals" of the University who demanded the reign of English in

We played it badly and we were tricked.

Our diplomacy with the Jews has achieved exactly the same results as our governmental diplomacy.

with England, regarding "Fashoda >.

We capitulated in Egypt, by the Anglo-French convention of March 21, 1899, sacrificing the conquest of the heroic commander Marchand.

England is preparing new capitulations for us, in China, Siam, and Newfoundland.

The Jews, after seizing the Church's property through their "law against factories," without finding active resistance groups are preparing to expel Catholics from their churches. The threat was recently made to the manufacturers of Montpellier.

This is an example, on one point, of what is happening on all the points where Catholics have sought diplomacy.

with the Jews or their representatives.

Here, as elsewhere, punishment accompanies wrongdoing!

209 — Our Jewish governments have done it too often, that's why we are becoming, at all times

Points of view: "a Portugal No. 2 >" say the Germans.

— 178 —

CONCLUSION

France, as they are demanding today that of Dreyfus, was it necessary that Joan of Arc not Did he not drive out the Englishman?

— The German was a scourge of God in 1870! —Was it necessary that our heroic and unfortunate

The army did not try to block the invasion.

And then they would tell us that we must not resist the Jew, under the pretext that he is the "scourge of

"God," the slow but sure work of destruction he has been carrying out on us for twenty years

Above all, is it a work willed by God?

Come now! There is something more surely willed by God: it is the instinct for conservation. a vation that God has placed in the hearts of peoples as well as individuals, and of which we are sure, when we follow the impulse to do God's will.

What? Job on his dung heap!/?!*1, undergoing God's trial, was removing the worms from his wounds!

And France wouldn't have the right to remove the Jewish vermin from its wounds?

— “Well, so be it! Yes, let us clean our wounds, let us remove the vermin, but all the vermin!”

But among the vermin, there are not only Jews, there are also Protestants and Freemasons!

"Why single out the Jew in particular?"

— Do we need to say it again?...

It can't be said enough!

But because in the invading army that is devouring us, more than locusts devoured In Egypt, the Jew holds the reins through his secret government, the Kahal.

May this head command the Protestants and Freemasons who obey like... subordinates to their commander-in-chief

That this generalissimo, Rothschild's lackey, is the Jew Lemmi.

That, in this capacity, he imposed on the Grand Orient of France (not the Grand Occident) and speaks Grand-

Orient to the Protestant Brisson and by the Brisson in the Chamber he presided over, to reject the National Joan of Arc Day!

Because this commander-in-chief uttered this symbolic cry of hatred: "I have two hatreds in my heart:

God and France.

That this cry of hatred is the watchword today of the Dreyfusard army, in the rejuvenated form-

denies "war with sword and holy water sprinkler";

"To the aspergillum," which blesses France in the name of God; "to the sword," which bows before

God protecting France!

Because the Dreyfusard army, in order to reach "the holy water sprinkler", strikes the Pope and the Bishops;

to reach the "saber," strike the General Staff; that the French army, to reach the army Dreyfusard, following his example, must strike at the head, that is to say, at the Jew.

"What would we do without the Jew?"

But he's the one who feeds us!

— Yes, like the cook feeds the bird he intends for the spit; like the butcher, the beef or mutton he intends for the slaughterhouse, but with this difference entirely to the advantage of the farmyard animal or the butcher's animal, whether they are fed, one with the cook's grain, the other with the butcher's hay, while we are with the bread, that is to say, the money that The Jew stole from us.

210 — Let us say in passing to those who seem to be completely unaware of it, that Job was not Jewish, but Idumaeen, that is to say, from a country absolutely hostile to Jews.

— 179 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

— In that case, you are giving up on the conversion of the Jews?

This is the objection of devout Catholics, and it must be addressed!

"And the conversion of the Jews?"

Is this the moment, when it is in the wolf's mouth, to worry about

The conversion of the wolf?

Is this the moment for us, sheep of Catholicism, to be concerned about conversion?

of the Jewish wolf, in whose mouth we are up to our necks?

We grumble, and our last bleat would be: "Pity the Jew > 2.

Let us instead bleat: "Have pity on us!"

Our Lord did indeed cry out: "Forgive them, for they do not know what they are doing."

He said it about the executioners of the Jewish sentence, who were not Jews since they were

Romans, and indeed did not know what they were doing, since they were blindly carrying out a instructions, like today's low-level officials, who throw the monks out the door

And the Catholics, outside the law, on orders they are unaware of, most of them coming from the Jews!

Our Lord also implores forgiveness for them, for "they do not know what they are doing,"

But He does not implore it, He has never implored it for the leaders of Judaism, the Princes of the priests,

The Scribes, the Pharisees, who had voted for his death with good reason, precisely because he had cursed ones, who continue to vote for her every day, because He maintains His curses against them.

tions!

— However, mercy is due to every sin?

— Yes, to every sin one repents of! Show us the signs of repentance of the Jew!

Are these Reinach's threats of "upheaval"? The promises of terror — "to-near which the old terror will have been but an idyll > — of one of his high coreligionwhat if he comes to power?

Until you give us further proof of repentance, allow us to think carefully—

It is more a matter of defending ourselves against the Jew than of granting him a pardon he does not believe he deserves.

if he thinks of asking with his usual impudence!

Moreover, while one shouldn't be more Catholic than the Pope, one shouldn't want to be more

How merciful is God, lest we fall from mercy into stupidity!

Now, what does God say about the Jews?

That they will only convert en masse at the end of the world!

Until then, they will continue to crucify Christ, following Talmudic tradition, in his adoration.

Catholics, who will therefore have one more illusion to their credit, if they continue 211 —That is why we fully support the program of a new league (March 1899) which, "vigorously condemning the spirit of intolerance, denounces the profound harm done to the country by these two scourges (which are in fact one): anti-Christianity and Semitism.

— What is this league?

— Its name is: Catholic Committee for the Defense of the Law!

— Excellent!

— Alas, we changed one word of her program! The two scourges she condemns are: "Anti-Christianity and anti-Semitism! >

212 — "I will send you the prophet Elijah before the great and terrible day of the Lord comes, and he will reunite the Fathers (the patriarchs) with their children (the existing Jews) and the hearts of the children with their Fathers (Malachi 1:5 and 6).

CONCLUSION

They still hope for the conversion of the Jews in 2151.

We are not talking about individual conversions, which will continue to happen, "but in "A small number," said Saint Paul to the Jews of his time 211,

— Must we then sacrifice this small number?

— No, but we must sacrifice far fewer of our Catholic brothersliques whose souls perish by the millions under the blows of the Jews!

In short, when the wolf invades the sheepfold and devours the sheep, it is for them the mo-
It is about resisting, not bleating.

Or rather, you have to do both, not one to the exclusion of the other, otherwise you won't make that half of his duty.

Duty begins with prayer, but it ends with action.

While it is true to say that "any action is null and void which is not supported by prayer," it is not

It is less true to say that "all prayer is in vain which does not lead to action."

And each must be done in its own time.

When Joan of Arc charged at the English, crying "Jesus! Mary!", she did not stop the momentum of his horse in order to pray for or against the English.

She prayed before and after the assault, but not during it; she placed her actions between prayers.

To put it better, she combined her actions with prayer; she did not replace action with prayer!

She knew that it must also be said of France that "God who made it under us does not want it."

"To save without us."

That's how, with God's help, she routed the English battalions!

This is how, with God's help, we will rout the battalions of Judaism!

— And what about charity?

Charity commands us "to hate not the Jew, but the evil that is in the Jew and that

213 — To those who would nurture this generous illusion, such as the members, no doubt, of the Catholic Committee a lique for the defense of the law in which abbots appear, we dedicate the following lines from a Jew to the Cross,

January 7, 1899:

< It is our empire that is being prepared; it is the one you call the Antichrist, the Jew you fear, who will profit of all the new paths to quickly conquer the earth.

This is the justification, at the end of the 10th century, for the words of Saint Paul to the Thessalonians around the middle of the 1st century.

century (52):

“The Jews who killed the Lord Jesus and the prophets, who persecuted us, who do not please God” and ARE ENEMIES OF ALL MEN, PREVENTING US (STILL) FROM ANNOUNCING TO THE PAGANS THE WORD THAT MUST SAVE THEM, TO FILL UP WITHOUT INTERRUPTION THE MEASURE OF THEIR SINS.

For the wrath of God has come upon them until the end (of the world). (1 Thessalonians 2:15-16)

From the words of Saint Paul: "they are enemies of all men," let us compare the words of Edouard Drumont in his masterful article of March 28th "Our work:

"The Jew has been considered a public enemy by all peoples and in all eras, because..."

all these peoples and in all eras he has been an agent of dissolution, corruption, division, treason and of ruin.

Will the (supposedly Catholic) Committee for the Defense of Rights say that Saint Paul was intolerant?

In any case, we know very well what Saint Paul would say about the Committee!

214— “Even if the number of the children of Israel were equal to the number of grains of sand in the sea, there would not be any will have only a small remnant saved. > (Rom. 9, 27.)

Moreover, for the small as for the great number known only to God, we will always be able to do the Church's prayer on Good Friday "for the perfidious Jews," adding to it the prayer against the persecutors of the Church > and the invocation of the Litany of the Saints: "Lord! deign to humble the enemies of the Church!" >

— 181 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

PIS] with his Talmud, interpreted by his abominable Kahal!

The Jew makes us >

If we do not hate with all our might this Talmud and this Kahal which are destroying France Christians for a hundred years, we do not love France, we do not abandon our brothers, we
We do not love Our Lord.

And if we love them, our hatred of the Talmud and the Kahal will be the measure of our love!

Under no circumstances should we hate the Jew!

THERE IS AN EXCEPTION THAT IS TOO FORGOTTEN TODAY, almost to the point of crime!

Here it is, according to the gentle Saint Francis de Sales, disciple of the gentle Saint Augustine and Doctor

like him:

"I exclude, above all, the declared enemies of God and his Church, for these MUST BE DE-SHOUT AS MUCH AS YOU CAN, AS THE SECTS OF HERETICES AND SCHISMATICS ARE
AND THEIR LEADERS (to you, gentlemen rabbis and other doctors of the Talmud, to you, gentlemen
members of the Kahal).

"It is charity to cry wolf when he is among the sheep." (Introduction to the devout life.)

"What a lovely devotion for Catholics!..."

"To incite war,

Citizens against each other?

This is the eternal objection—too self-serving to be sincere—of the Jews, the Protestants, Freemasons who spend their lives, I'm not just saying "pushing for war," but to do it, with the cunning of the fox, the ferocity of the wolf, to the Catholics whom they know to be disposed to all the capitulations.

It's always the same old story — as old as the devil who invented it for his own benefit. fit — of the “rabbit that started it”, of the “sheep that muddles the wolf’s drink”.

There is only one answer: Redouble your energy in the resistance, even if the wolf cries out in protest.

air of a scandalized Pharisee:

"This animal is very nasty! When attacked, it defends itself!"

And if "the animal" does not defend itself, it justifies the following lines, which we dedicate to it:

Despite all the philanthropists and charlatans of liberalism, we maintain that

All these nations (which welcomed the Jew) must cruelly atone for the wrong of their charity towards the

Jewish;

215 — This is the saying of Saint Augustine: "Let us love those who are in error, let us hate the error that is in them."

This word constitutes the essential difference between Catholic tolerance and Talmudic tolerance.

One imposes love for man, whose error is detested!

The other imposes an equal hatred of man and of what is called "his error".

The Catholic loves the Jew whose Judaism, or rather Talmudism, he fights against.

The Jew also abhors the Catholic and his Catholicism, and this is in full accordance with the Talmud which encloses in the same proscription "Christ and the Christians, Jesus of Nazareth and the Nazarenes, whom he

"We must steal, plunder, and massacre at every opportunity and in every way."

This is why the Jew cannot respect, in the Christian, those true "human rights" that the Christian Respect the Jew!

This is blatant proof of the tolerance of one and the intolerance of the other.

Submitted to the deliberations of the Catholic Committee for the Defense of Law.

— 182 —

CONCLUSION

"Imprudent charity, deplorable charity, which the great thinkers of all centuries have..." had, in advance, warned of the dangers;

"For Tacitus, the most illustrious of ancient historians, is already rising up against the indomitable pride and the spirit of deceit of the Jewish people.

Bossuet cannot help but write that the Jews are no longer anything to religion and to God, and that it is just that their ruins should be spread across the earth, as punishment for their stubbornness
ment... >

Who is speaking like this?

A vile cleric? A reactionary? An ally of the "sword and the holy water sprinkler"?

— No, a socialist and phalansterian freethinker: Toussenel, a disciple of Fourier, in his Book: The Jews, Kings of the Era.

What will Mr. Jaurès say?

However, there is another answer to the Jewish wolf:

"Citizens' War!" you say? Pardon me! Sir of the Synagogue, to speak here-toys, you have to be!

"Are you? In what capacity?"

— "By the title conferred by naturalization!"

— "That's not enough! You can spread out your scrolls, carry them, if you wish, onto all the seams of your clothes will make you no more a French citizen than the skin of The sheep that the wolf adorns itself with does not make it a sheep!

Therefore, you are not entitled to accuse us of pushing for "war of the citizens.

That's what we could answer.

But what's the point? Have we ever seen a wolf bow to the sheep's reason?...

Our duty therefore remains entirely intact:

Crying wolf about the Jewish wolf!... who has invaded the French sheepfold!

This is precisely the act of charity that we have just performed.

We will complete it, adding to the cry of alarm the indication of the terrain on which we are de-let us unite [216],

The common ground

For we must unite! according to the words of the heroic Commander Marchand, on the balcony of the circle

military,

June 1st: "My friends, LET US BE UNITED!"

And let no one say that this is only possible for Jews, Protestants, and Freemasons!

It would be very surprising if the charity that built France were incapable of rebuilding it!

That our enemies can concentrate their hatred, that we cannot the concentration of Christian and patriotic brotherhood!

That the hatred of 100,000 Jews is more powerful in destroying France than the love of 38
Millions of French people to rebuild it!

In that case, we would justify the following words from the Vaterland of Bavaria, June 1899:
216 — This refers to the immediate assault, not to protracted warfare, the method of which is indicated in detail, in the 2nd part of The Jew King, at Lethielleux's, 10, rue Cassette, and at the Antisemitic bookstore, 14, boulevard Levirid Montmartre, Paris.

— 183 —

THE SECTARIAN JEW

"If the French allow themselves to be controlled by this band of Jews, it is because their energy is no longer at"

A day worthy of a better fate...

But we cannot believe that the French people have fallen so far as to allow themselves strangled by those people.

"The hemp for the rope that will be used to hang them is probably already out of the ground."

We're not asking to hang them!

We just want to "not let ourselves be strangled by these people."

But for that, once again, we must unite!

— But finally, on what ground can we unite?

— We have no choice! On the ground where our enemies are attacking us right now:

the terrain of Patriotism, that is to say of Anti-Semitism '##] 1...

VICTORY !!!

On this ground, the only practical one today, let's take a firm stand behind the rampart.

threatened by the Jew: THE FRENCH ARMY, and let us open fire on the enemy as heavy as possible.

sorting, a veritable salvo of fire, from all our batteries at once:

Large-caliber batteries, in the plain of material interests!

Light batteries on the hill of patriotism, mystical batteries of prayer on the mountain of faith!

We've already heard all those batteries thundering, in the subscription to Libre Words, on the face of Reinach, one of the captains of the Jewish army.

Let us redouble, retriplate the fire on the entire army, with the desperate energy of a people who wants to win... because he doesn't want to die.

Who could withstand the vigor and sheer force of such an assault by thirty-eight million Frenchmen? Will it be the small million foreign mercenaries, Jews, Protestants, Freemasons, even supported by the cavalry of Saint-Georges 21°]

, even galvanized by the artificial audacity of his Jewish commander-in-chief, Adriano Lemmi? Victory is at hand!

French people of goodwill, don't you already feel it hovering over our heads, carried by the God's compassionate hand, foreshadowed by his Vicar who tells us that: "France cannot perish!

It is up to us to seize it in a supreme effort, as if at the point of a sword!

— So what?

217 — Let us not forget what we said at the beginning, that: The republican constitution cannot not to be a ground, a basis for union, in the strict sense of the word, but only a condition for union, if excellent as it may be, moreover, from the papal directions.

We only unite on a principle, such as: Religion, the Fatherland (which is simply an extension of the family) and not at all on a contingent fact, such as a constitution, which is today and may no longer be tomorrow.

218 —All the leagues of "Prayers", of "Patriots", of "The French Fatherland", etc., come to an end inevitably to the "Anti-Semitic League," that is to say, to Anti-Semitism which, for us, is, from the point of view of action, the highest expression of Patriotism, just as Semitism is the lowest expression of Internationalism and perversity.

219 — A curious coincidence. She is quartered at 17, rue Saint-Georges, at her private residence of Mr. Chief Rabbi Zadoc-Kahn, treasurer of the syndicate of treason, we mean the Kahal central, of which Rothschild is president!

— 184 —

CONCLUSION

— So! The enemy defeated, the ground cleared of the debris of his defeat, trophy of our victory, we will return, hand in hand and song on our lips, to the fortress of our faith religious, bulwark of the Fatherland, refuge of French liberty, impregnable to the intolerance of the Jew, which will not try to make us get down from it this time!

Adveniat regnum tuum!

— 185 —

ALPHABETICAL TABLE

n We will consider the Jew so little from a religious point of view-
7. It is more important that we do not say a word about the theological code.

We momentarily regretted that the question was Thus posed; for the struggle that the Jew wages against the Gentile is indeed, Ultimately, a religious struggle is nothing more than that;
It therefore seemed at first glance that it was on this ground alone that we had to defend ourselves; but, on reflection, we
We quickly realized that this point of view is too...
Eleyé for the people materialized by Judeo-Masonry:
Talk to him about religion, he'll listen, but without making a Not to follow in your footsteps: the lever of faith no longer has eat A Re enr té CAN QC nee Re en cu mm my tien de ne en ten ne me bé ao en ee om

10 INTRODUCTION

The Jewish doctrine, Ze Talmud, on which, however, we
We would have so much to say.

Moreover, the point of view of race, which inspired some volumes, – which will inspire again, – the illustrious leader of Anti-Semitism, Édouard Drumont, is quite sufficient for us-
The question is: it's an inexhaustible topic for reflection.

It is of the Jewish race, not of the Jewish religion, that to gain control over his weakened will; speak to him of subdued interests On the contrary, you overexcite everything that can be still had energy within him.

But the Jewish race, as a race, has existed for eighteen centuries, informed in a way by the Talmud, which preaches the men-Dreams and theft: this doctrine of the Pharisees, transmitted from generation after generation and which, at the present time, makes still the core of rabbinic teaching in the semi-Jewish immigrants instilled in this race habits of theft and robberies that are transmitted through the blood, like the habits of Christian studies are transmitted, to a large extent, from generation to generation, with the blood of Christian parents Here, to their children.

But Christians are victims of bad habits of this race; it is therefore on the question of race that we must to invite the people to the battle, the only one they want.
to follow us, a question that does not exclude the point of view more elevated religion, but on the contrary, it presupposes it.

We will say: "But what about the converted Jews?
TO DO ? ".

—Those who, through their conversion, renounced the habits of the race and pledge to fight within themselves all the tendencies dances. They are therefore, in fact, with us and for us, and we have no reason to wrap them in the pros-General description. Let all Jews convert: the
The race will be transformed by the grace of God, through practice of the 7% commandment; then the race will let us trans-Bowling pins: we'll pay for it in return. Peace will be made. x

Until then, she can count on us fighting her.
with all our strength.

| INTRODUCTION

Napoleon I* said in the middle of the Council of State, on April 6, 1806:

"We must consider the Jews not only as a distinct race, but as a people foreigner; it would be too great a humiliation for the the French nation to be governed by the most "lowest point in the world."

It is from the Jewish race, not the Jewish religion, that the Elected Council of the Jewish Nation Student Body said, in a statement published in Prague, in the month of March 1895: 1

"Jews are neither Germans nor Slavs;
"They are a people apart."

Finally, it is the Jewish race, not the Jewish religion, that the Theodore Reinach, the Jewish man, in his study on the Jews at Rome, in the eyes of public opinion, calls for "a cosmopolitan race"
"Out of necessity."

"A race!" The word, this time, came straight from the pen.
of a Jew.

However, to this "cosmopolitan race by necessity", not to this religion, we have to reproach today the same harmful influence that he has been accused of everywhere and always all the ancient peoples, since its dispersion throughout the world up to the present day.

From this we infer that, if the Jews – insofar as race, – were driven out, serf kings of Europe, since the reign of Charles the Bald, as the abbot affirmed Maury at the Constituent Assembly, we still have today, equally peremptory reasons, otherwise to drive them out once again... or at least to annihilate them _ their influence.

SN

The Jew produces nothing; this is a truth that has become 4 Joseph's brother, the slanderer of Colonel Henry.

42 © INTRODUCTION

commonplace, given the overwhelming evidence; but on the other hand, it is found posted to all avenues of production in Sucking up the profit; like a leech!

The Jew is everywhere, absorbing the lifeblood of France; that's it. which we will prove in the first part, below.
The title: JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE.

de D artoué But in what way?

This is what we will see in the second part under:
The title: Morex TO ANNIHILATE JEWISH POWER. "te

PART ONE

JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

PREAMBLE

+ – What was the Jew in France before the decree of naturalization?
: creation of the Constituent Assembly (September 27, 1791)?

- Not much.

-- What is it today?

- All.

- What should it be?

- Nothing!

What could be more natural! The Jews, according to their statistics-
The ticks themselves number barely 150,000, out of 39,000,000 inhabitants. Mr. Georges Thiébaud speaks of -400,000; but let's be generous, and put 430,000 for
- simplify.

Their rigorous share of influence should therefore be of :

430,000 40,000. _ 1

39,000,000 3,000,000 7,300

... One three-hundredth! That's mathematically the share of influence that is rightfully theirs.

But they have it all! And they know it perfectly well.

Let us meditate on the following highly suggestive passage from an
"A recently published book by Mr. Édouard Demachy on {es Rothschild, 1st series, p. 487:

JEWISH IMPOTENCY

"The Rothschild family has done a lot for Egypt;
"She still has very strong interests there and has expressed all
"most recently to the English government that she "desired that the occupation be maintained; she added" that, if France were to allow itself to find the thing - bad, she would write to the Paris office to METTRE

THE PRESS, THE MINISTERS AND THE PARLIAMENT ARE REASONABLE

MENT. »

The ministers! It's barely been a year since the minister Radical Doumert was on his knees before the baron”

Alphonse II?! | A

The omnipotence of the Jews is thus perfectly summarized in this simple phrase: TO STOP THE PRESS IN REASON, MINISTERS AND PARLIAMENT!

– But perhaps, despite everything, they are deluding themselves about their power!

– Alas! Everything proves them right: nothing proves like facts and figures.

Let's provide facts and figures and prove that the Jews are the true, the only, the unique kings of France.

Let us successively examine the movable property of France and 41 The same Doumer sent, in 1896, as viceroy to Indochina, with a salary of 300,000 francs from the minister– supposedly moderate Méline (note added since the Concourse).

The same baron, whose false news of death, disseminated for only half an hour on the Stock Exchange, there
Three years, almost caused a national disaster!

3 They did so in the case of Fashoda, since "the Roth–

The Rothschilds of London were informed by the Rothschilds of:

Paris' evacuation was decided upon, even before the minister of British Foreign Office” (According to Mr. Maclean, member) influential of the English Parliament, October 21, 1898).

In the wine industry, France is not the only industrial France.
trielle, mineral France, forested France, the Colonial France, financial France, administrative France administrative, political France, everywhere and always us we will find the guiding and preponderant hand of the Jew.

CHAPTER ONE

Movable and immovable property (land and buildings) struct) is estimated at around 260 billion at the maximum-mum. |

"11. You don't need to be a great arithmetic scholar. :: said MA Robert (Croix, February 26, 1896), to ascertain that the consolidated assets of movable and immovable property The tier's gross capital amounts to less than 260 billion.

Jews could therefore normally own them 4/300, or one billion at most!

They own 80 billion (eighty) according to Mr. Édouard Drumont (Jewish France, passim). This An overall assessment makes it unnecessary to list them. princely and historic residences of our ancestors. now in the hands of the Jews, who continue, moreover, to acquire them every day, in Paris and in province! We will address the issue at its proper place.

For now, we're looking forward to moving on to the Franco military. -

9

4 Baron Gustave de Rothschild acquired (end May 1896), for 495,000 francs, from the Fraville property of Mr. Anatole de la Forge, avenue de la Grande-Armée.

CHAPTER II

MILITARY FRANCE

The Jews hold it in four ways: 1° the invasion of ranks; 2° invasion of the ministry of the war; 3° the hoarding of supplies of the army; 4 the occupation of important positions on the lines of Railways that lead to our borders.

4. The proliferation of ranks. - Out of 18,000 officers approximately those who command the army in peacetime, the Jews (1/300) would only be entitled to 60 officers.

We don't think we're exaggerating when we say that we counts in the thousands:

Reinach, Dreyfus's protector, former aide to – General de Galliffet's camp, was still yesterday an officer of reserve and member of the Army Commission.

The Dreyfus, the Meyers and other Jews are a nuisance the advancement tables and the envied positions of pro-teachers in our military schools.

Everyone remembers Captain Mayer, the professor At the École Polytechnique, killed in a duel by Morès.

. entrance examinations to this school, one of the important sources–

“regarding the recruitment of our officers, it is not It is rare to see two Jewish examiners out of four.

© Under these conditions, nothing could be easier to explain. that the following monstrous anomaly:

A statistic compiled from the Alumni Directory students of the École Polytechnique (1893) established that from 1876 to 4893, that is, over 17 years, the total and average number of students

The number of students entering the School each year amounts to 460.

JEWISH KING. – 2

st

min

JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

The Jews (1/300) would therefore be entitled to entry every two years, i.e. 9 ENTRIES in 17 years.

Statistics reveals 410 confirmed names!

The protest followed in the Henry subscription, d

December 23, 1898, explains everything:

"Hoche High School, group of students from special vocational programs" test against the often favoured admission of candidates. Jews at the École Polytechnique, A1 francs. |

At Saint-Cyr, we have no reason to believe that. Things happen differently, but we have excellent to believe that they do without the last one even :. manner.

This fact, for example, that in 1895, at an examination of admission to Saint-Cyr, all candidates find themselves unanimously found it impossible to respond to a question asked by the examiner, all, only one Except!

This candidate was Jewish, as was the examiner. With We would be very surprised if our schools used such methods. "The military were not, in fact, invaded by the Jews." L

% The invasion of the Ministry of War. – It's "{ General Riu, who told a reporter from the 4th Libre Parole, regarding the traitor Dreyfus, that "this Jew He was not the only one attached to the General Staff, because, for a long time, since Freycinet, he said, they are in number at the Ministry of War.

The general added: "They prefer to be there, naturally" Actually, only in the garrisons. Advancement is possible there. faster. Here's an example: A Jew, N..., entered 1 This is probably why Freycinet, who had introduced– Dreyfus, who had been assigned to the General Staff, became a minister again for the to get out of this mess!

18

MILITARY FRANCE 49

At the General Staff, a few years ago, as . captain; and, without ever having left it, he has just come from it | leave again, colonel" (Libre Parole, November 1894). 3. The hoarding of army supplies. – Tan– Early on, it was the butchers who poisoned the troops. . average of spoiled meat and then console themselves for their facts like the butcher of Saint-Mihiel, who said to a ... farmer, at the end of his sensational trial with the Marquis de Morès: "It is to you that Morès jokes about the

"Wrong, you had a cow that was going to dream, I'll tell you the
"I was drinking for 50 francs. Now I no longer drink..."
"to sell, since I no longer drink it, to feed it" (Croix Meusienne, March 1893).

'Sometimes it's the saddlers or the wire drawers like Sarda, Hermedinger, Cerf and Co., who, by means of false punches, manage to deliver damaged supplies to the troops and thus expose them to ana- disasters, longings to those of our brave reservists of 1870, forced to marching to defeat, with their cardboard shoes (See.
the debates of the Hermedinger and Co. trial* in La Libre Words, end of July 1895).

Here they monopolize the food supply. In oc-
In October 1893, the supplier for the 69th Line Infantry Regiment was the Jew.
Gustave Cerf; the one from the 37th and 39th Line Infantry Regiments, the Jew Wormser; that of the 26th, the Jew Salomon Dreyfus.

The supplier to one of the regiments in Toul was the Samuel Worms, the Jew; the one from the Montmédy square, the Jew Maurice Schever (recently sentenced to six to days in prison and a 30-franc fine for theft on the (where: © weight of deliveries).

There, a union of Jews (German and Russian) obtains the monopoly on the supply of hay and oats, is:

- equips in Germany and delivers at exorbitant prices a

POS ee PLAN

20 | | JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE
food that horses don't want (Jules Seten, | Libre Parole, May 9, 1893).

4. The occupation of important positions on the lines of:
railways leading to our borders. - The Jews _occupy in particular the Northern and Eastern lines.

At the starting point, the barons Alphonse and Edmond.
de Rothschild occupy the administration of the Company: Eastern gentry; the barons Alphonse, Gustave and Arthur residing in Paris, Lord Nathaniel and Baron Alfred residing dant in London, Baron Lambert, Rothschild's son-in-law, residing in Brussels, they hold the administration of:

Northern Company. 77

At the arrival point, the Jew Gerschel is the stationmaster of.”
the border station of Pagny-sur-Moselle.

As a special pledge of patristic trust that we can have in this last one, we need to know, he said Mr. Gaston Méry, in La Libre Parole, that he was accused by Colonel Teyssier, commander of the garrison of "4 Bitche, in 1870, in its report of December 18, 4878, ; for having abandoned his post in the face of the enemy, on the evening of & The Battle of Fräschwiller!

Suppose war were to break out suddenly—

So, we can sleep soundly, can't we?

The Jew Gerschel is watching!

And that's how far our valiant army is abandoned to the hands of cosmopolitan Jewry!
Let us move on to another and, alas! no less sad subject.

1 We read in La Libre Parole, of November 25, that ia the supply of meat to the École Polytechnique has just been awarded to someone named Lazarus.

What's so surprising? The Jewish trade unionist Dreyfus, Erlanger and Co.,
. owner of the famous Gorbeil mills, isn't he successful bidder for the supply of wheat and flour to the flat
From Paris, during wartime?

CHAPTER II

| AGRICULTURAL FRANCE

| Jews hold it: 4° by the appropriation of the pro-
: agricultural products; 2 by usurious loans to farmers
| reurs; 3° by substituting the machine for man,

4. Hoarding of agricultural products

They who produce nothing – they are incapable of it due either to their unsuitability or to the small size of their , number (130,000), – do not blush to constitute themselves
'in unions to monopolize the production of 93 million of French farmers.

We are familiar with the famous international syndicate of hoarders urement of wheat, thus composed!

1° Ephrussi, a Hungarian Jew (by origin);

2° Thalman, Prussian Jew;

3° Negropontes, Wallachian Jew;

1 According to Renault-Morlière, deputy for Mayenne, in his speech to the House on June 1, 1897.

On the same day, Mr. Rouanet, who has since converted to Dreyfusism, – he pointed out from the tribune that in 14891 one of these houses where
:' & supplied the Minister of War, had refused to provide him–

[. "to commission certain supplies that it had bid on at the "German War Ministry, under more –.u _Advantages".

n

'OMNIPO''ENCE JEWISH If

4 Leduc, a Jew who became a naturalized French citizen;

5° Waller, Prussian Jew;

6° Bamberg, German Jew;

7° Herkelbout, Belgian Jew;

8 Dreyfus brothers, Jews:

9° Louis Dreyfus, Jewish.

We discussed the Syn on page 20 (see "note"):
dicat Dreyfus, Erlanger et C!°, for flours, proprié–.
to remain silent under the title of Société anonyme des fameux moulins.
Corbeil, one of the main centers of the flour mill French.

... Another union of Rhine Jews also makes fruit– killer operations on hops. This syndicate bought,
For example, all the hops from Alsace, six months before

The harvest, in 1893, at a price of 400 francs per quintal, made dE
He harvests it himself and resells it for 250 to 268 francs.
that is, a net profit of at least 150%!

Wheat, flour, hops, military supplies, nothing

"does not escape them; that is not enough for them, nor is it for them."
means of transport are needed.

A French landowner had made a com-Order for 40,000 kilograms of hay: the order does not He wasn't in a hurry to arrive; he wanted to know the cause and discovered that "the Jews had monopolized all the "Forage baling machines" (Libre Parole, 15 no: .

November 1893).

2. Usurious Loans to Farmers

Farmers in general need credit.
to cultivate his field.
The Jew, who knows this, finds himself there at just the right time for him.
to offer; but he sets his conditions; they are always:

you

AGRICULTURAL FRANCE

| :. hardness: : 40, 20, 30, sometimes 50, 400 and even 200 0/0. .

- "I borrowed from a Jew for 200,000," wrote a subscriber.

"For Mr. Henry, December 22, 1898,"

The farmer thinks he'll get away with a good harvest, he accepts. The harvest fails, the Jew does not

Don't miss it, there's the farmer reduced to straw!

Blessed indeed if the Jew agrees to keep it like a farmer!

Mr. Louis Milcent, in his report to the Assembly

- General Assembly of the Union of Agricultural and Winegrowers' Unions of Burgundy and Franche-Comté, in Dijon, on the 24th of November November 1894, on the amortization of mortgaged debt rural, noted that "the average of small landowners dispossessed people, consequently falling into the pro

"The number of unemployed is approximately 15,000 each year."
Is it an exaggeration to say that most of these properties
Are the dispossessed victims of the Jews?
No. No, if we consider the words of Mr. Lasies, deputy E,s du Gers, at the podium, December 6, 1898:
"Since 1883, there have been fifteen million hectares"

; expropriated, 200,000 families thrown out of their homes.

"And these fifteen million hectares were bought."
Apart from the major financial syndicates, behind which "You will find Loujo: *s the Jew."

3° Substitution of the machine for man

There is a third way to ruin the agricultural worker-
'cole (or industrial), the substitution of the machine for The man.

In this regard, we note a valuable admission from a Jew in the New International Review, issue of December 31, 1896. From

GORE Ron:
n

Pr er bo

2% JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE.

min

Here is this gem: ;
"We have powerful working tools" unprecedented, whose appearance in the civilized world... At cons-
A DEADLY COMPETITION FOR JOBS.
MANUAL, THESE ARE THE MACHINES.
"To set the machines in motion, the - workers, it is true, are also necessary, but for "These needs... we have enough men, too many even."
(From Herzl, literary HReIor of the NeHs Freie Press.) :

"That's progress," say the Jews! Certainly, that's the progress of methods which make the 1st century active in the Jewish purse; but it is at the same time progress of destruction of the agricultural or industrial worker, condemned to die of hunger!

"We have a 'rRoP of men,'" said the Jewish doctor.

This is a statement that should be embedded in the certificate worker's life, whoever he may be; this would contribute perhaps to distance him from Jewish socialism, which is only this, in essence, despite the snoozy periods of which we The decor is designed to better attract onlookers.

The same Jew wrote, in the same Review (January 1997):

"The peasant is a historical category."

"In most countries, his costume is old..."

several centuries, as well as its tools.

"The agrarian question is merely a question of man - China.

"America must defeat Europe, just as the Large landholdings destroy small ones.

"The peasant is therefore a type destined to disappear."

"Do we want to ask the Jujf who is regent (sic) of

"To become a peasant of old rock?"

What contemptuous pride is contained in these few lines!

CHAPTER IV

FRANCE VITICOLE

While the Jews own agricultural France, they do not have . neglected more to settle comfortably into the Wine-growing France:

We have a vineyard in the South of France whose wines are exquisite.

nicknamed its owner, in the last century,

*. Mr. de Ségur: the king of the vineyards.

Mr. Danflou, in his excellent work on the people of Bordeaux,

He speaks of it in these terms:

"In the annals of viticulture and oenology

"The name of this vintage is prominently featured. This name is

"which has become, for the most distinguished gourmets, a point

"A reminder, a kind of flag. Who says Château-La-

"fite says great wine par excellence; the French vine"

"I know of none more beautiful. The nature of the soil, the exposure-

"The 'position of the hillsides, the choice of grape varieties, the pro-

L.-. "cultivation and winemaking rights, everything contributes to the

"Maintaining this unshakeable monarchy!"

Unfortunately, this royalty crowns the brow of a . Jewish, and the "King of the Vineyards" today is none other than 'the king of finance, Mr. de Rothschild, owner of Château-Lafite! (433 hectares!)

3° the acquisition of national or exotic products;

CHAPTER V

COMMERCIAL FRANCE

The Jews hold it by: 1° the hoarding of... means of transport and communication; 2° the monopolization-covering the entire French market. ne '.

4° Means of transport and communication take: the land routes or railways, the: sea routes or maritime transport.

The land routes or railways are roughly all under the control of the Rothschilds. Judge for yourselves." by the following necessarily incomplete table, but suggestive nonetheless:

Railway companies

4° Norp: as

Chairman of the Board of Directors: Baron Ai-PHONSE DE RorHscurLp, ET

Administrators: Baron Gustave de Rorascurvo, baron ALFRED DE Rorasemiip, lord pe Roraschnio (English)', -
Baron Anraur De Rorsscmizp, Baron Enmoxo px Ror- |
SCHILD.

4 We are now in a good position in case of war with An-.
England. It is an all-powerful Englishman who will be in charge of Our mobilization!

20 Vassy TO SAINT-DIZIER

Chairman of the Board of Directors: Baron AL-PHONSÉ DE RorxscaiLo.

3° Esr

"5

Administrators: Baron Alrmonse De Rortascuirn, – Baron Evouarp DE Roruscuilp. Ed

P.–L.–M.

Administrator: Baron Eomono De RoTascrilo.

5th Large Belt

President of the union: Baron ALPaoxse pe Roruscxitp.

This, of course, only refers to the Companies
French, because the Rothschilds are at the head of other Companies, such as those of Spain and Austria, for example, where they exercise brilliantly, as in our country, their Financial royalty; but here we are only talking about it
French railways, on which the present ta-Bleau has sufficiently enlightened us. Let's leave it at that.
Let us now consider the land routes and move on to the sea routes.

Seaways

They no longer belong to the Rothschilds, but to a family of the same race, the Péreires, principal shareholders of the Compagnie générale Transatlantique.

The Panama Canal, still a project, alas! having the same object as railways and transport

+

JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

maritime, also had the same 'destination': to bring out the Jewish feudalism.

There is no doubt that he would be today – if he had succeeded –
– the hands of the Arton, Reinach, and Cornelius families
Herz, Oberndærlfer! – E

But he failed; the Jews lost nothing by it, the Jew |
–never lose!

Instead of a profit spread over long periods years of regular exploitation, the Jew and his friends swallowed up one and a half billion in one fell swoop Popular savings, that's all!

The Southern Railways suffered the same fate. Delivered Reinach was there for regular operations.
collect the profits: 20 million remained broken down.
were swallowed up, no one could say precisely in which pockets, not even the judicial investigation com-Meñcée, never completed; but we suspect it all likewise,

– 2° Hoarding of national or exotic products

–: While the Epürussi union was hoarding the wheat, that the Erlanger-Dreyfus union was monopolizing the flour,
Some have hops, others have baling machines fodder, etc., meanwhile:

The Rothschild, Deutsch and Co. syndicate monopolized the oil mines in America and around the world.

4 This union carried out a small operation in April, at 189%.
a ration of the kind we will describe below regarding the Stock Exchange and which was supposed to quato double the price of oil in Belgium.

The Belgian newspapers threw up a firestorm, which...

COMMERCIAL FRANCE 29

"The financial companies' union, Anaconda, under es. auspices of Rothschild of London, monopolized the brass, to raise them by 46 pounds 4/2 sterling
: at 80 pounds, which she poetically called regularizing
The production and price of the metal.
Finally, the Jew Schwob monopolized all the assets in Le Havre (1887).
The world's cafes, of the present and the future: 70 million
"pe bags, while the average production of a year does not exceed 12 million and that in that year, 1887, the
The harvest amounted to only 92,500,000 bags! according to "Mr. Aristide Dody:"
We know the catastrophe that resulted in May 1893:
Hundreds of shopkeepers ruined because of one... Jew who became richer.

. gained the invaluable advantage of finally getting to know the members of this so-called "Russian-American" union.

Here they are, according to the Belgian Official Gazette (April 1895):

"Messrs. de Rothschild, brothers, in Paris:"

4° A. Deutsch and his sons, in Paris;

2° Maurice Ephrussi, in Paris;

ë 3° Léon Lambert (son-in-law of the Rothschilds), in Brussels;
rs At 4° A. Gansi, in Amsterdam;

Lt. «+ 5° P. Tambour, in Paris;

6° J. Aron, in Paris.

- "All these gentlemen are Jewish. Except for Mr. Lambert-Roth... . schild, who is registered in the civil registry as Belgian, all are
* ". foreigners.

"The capital is 2 million, half of which has been * paid, :

"The Rothschilds of Paris subscribed to three-quarters of the capital. » We add this simple thought: For Ephrussi, Rothschild's son, the profit of the operation

It was supposed to be used to pay for the wedding expenses of dogs, used in the family.

EE nn EEE RR RER ne EE EE ES nt

30 – JEWISH OMMIPOTENCE

3. Monopolization of the French market

It's no secret that the Stock Exchanges of the.
trade in Paris, Le Havre and the main cities parts of France are in the hands of the Jews, who are doing their own thing there.
Regardless of whether it rises or falls: the rise when they want it:
selling, the drop when they want to buy.

They are sometimes wrong, rarely. But then if One Jew falls, another Jew triumphs over him.
debacle, as in the Le Havre café affair.
We were just speaking when the Jew Schwob succumbed, but by surrendering the victory to a Jew from Hamburg, who had monopolized all the 'one-month' contracts for strangle the market. Schwob, this time, had found more that's enough!

4 This was written in May 1896.

Now, here is what happened in September of I same year at the Paris Stock Exchange. This allows us will give an idea of the scandalous gambling dens that take place, won't it?
not once by chance, but hundreds of times a year in major markets in France and abroad.

For the Jews, this was a two-pronged operation:

4. To hoard the flour stockpile; 2. To drive up prices.

How did the Jews do it? Let's follow the operation day by day.
day.

September 9

There is a STOCK OF 34,000 5408 at the Bourse du Commerce.

DE VARINES said: twelve brands, at varying prices

40 francs. 90 to 41 francs. ue

A significant portion belongs to the Corbeil mills, that is to say, it is in the hands of the Jews (in charge of supplies):
(formation of the Paris city center during wartime).

The rest must pass into the hands of other Jews. Here is

The thing is:

The Jews do not disdain any source of profit ccaparent not only the large markets, but Even the small ones, you can find them at all the fairs of "towns or villages, in the forms and under the names

j

40 SEPTEMBER

'House L... (in collusion with them) sells to a house Follow 50,000 bags (there are only 34,000) at #1 fr. 75. The

"The increase is accelerating.

... But with the option, for the Jewish household, to withdraw from the -marketed with a premium of 20 cents per bag, i.e., In total, 10,000 francs for 50,000 bags.

The Jewish house will give the L... house a ne
The final decision will be made on September 29th.

September 12

The L... company still sells 20,000 bags of flour to another Jewish house, at the price of 42 francs, without any suspensive conditions-This time, the increase is progressing. That makes 70,000 bags of sold from a stock of 34,000 bags.

SEPTEMBER 16 |

There's a clearance sale of approximately 14,000 bags. A portion
-one remains at the Corbeil mills, the other passes to the two Jewish houses, to which a third had been added.

14,000 removed from 34,000, leaves 20,000.

So there is a stock of 20,000 bags of flour to make faced, in light of the September 20th event, with a commitment to 10,000 bags.

Bets are being placed on the possibility of this operation miraculous and raise prices to 42.25 francs.

49 SEPTEMBER. ©"

The Havas Agency inquired with a commission agent and learns that the settlement of the case has been postponed to a later date later,

– SEPTEMBER 20

The Jews are observing a moment of silence: it is Sunday.

32 JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

the most varied: cattle dealers, lorgnette sellers, new items, made of rags or rabbit skins.
After street vending, fixed commerce;

QA SEPTEMBER:

Jews learn early in the morning to the bettors that the... market of 50,000 bags, from: September 10, awil was defeated | secretly, # hours after it was concluded. The 20,000 bags of stock passed to the Jewish household that had bought them on: *,

September 42.

It's no smarter than that.

First results

For LA MAISON L...: 4° 10,000 francs bonus on the market a fictitious 50,000 bags; that is, 10,000 + 20,000 (1 franc profit) (per bag sold) – 30,000 francs bonus.

For the following houses: They paid 10,000 francs for a fictitious market, which brought them nothing: in return, it made them owners of the entire stock of 34,000 bags.
Upon hearing the news of the termination of the fictitious contract, the prices...
they told to lower it.

The Jews, who controlled the market, maintained their firm grip on it.
and increased them, on the same day, from 42 to 43 francs.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22

The Jews who own the 34,000 bags are displaying a stockpile of 40,000 and do not sell flour for less than 43.75 francs,

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23

The flours are at #4 fr. 25.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 24

They reach 44.50 francs.

Epilogue

The Jews earn 4 francs per sack on 34,000 sacks of fa- ."

rine, or 136,000 francs in less than fifteen days: all of this, through a fictitious market for fictitious goods.

ladies ue de dre donnee ne die nie einen de mier eee mme à ne de tte menait

: + FRANCE COMMERCIALE 33.

'No branch is neglected. After the fairs, here's

The big and small shops.

We know those in Paris, who are spreading their net over

'All of France.'

In Lyon, out of 15,000 businesses, approximately one

"A good thousand belong to the Jews," he told us, "there is..."

Some time ago, a Lyon merchant. Here we are:

far from three-hundredth (1/300) of commercial influence which belongs to them!

A few more details about customs, to finish this chapter...

clown, on the commercial honesty of the Jews.

Jewish agents of the Chemical Fertilizer Syndicate from Paris spread into the North and the Somme to

-to sell their merchandise, reports Agricultural Progress

(May 1896).

a .+ . (According to the Messenger of Commerce, by Mr. Hervé Breton, of (Free Speech, here, verified the information itself.)

t | In October, the Jews carried out a similar operation on the wheat which grows from 19 to 22 berries.

A wealthy miller from the area around Lille, whose house existed for over fifty-eight years, lost – 500,000 francs and filed for bankruptcy.

(HB., Libre Parole, November 16.)

Another Parisian firm, H..., was threatened with liquidation.
tion by the Jews (who had just inflicted a loss on him considerable), if she did not agree to pay, in addition to her debt, a sum of 400,000 francs.

© Another Jew, in whose house this same house was losing _ "600,000 francs, demanded this sum in full and refused—
' knows to be content with the 9 0/4 that she could give.
' : Same daily operations of hoarding and ruins on sugars, alcohols, rapeseed oils, etc.
(Hervé Breton)... |
"Here's Mif from the Bourse du Commerce!"

VUIF R0, "= 4

34 JEWISH OMNIPUTENCE

In Bavay, they got orders accepted and signed commitments.

The recipients received some [information] a few days later.
fertilizers other than those they had ordered.

Complaints! |

Bold response from the agents, threatening the farmers farmers of lawsuits if they maintain their claims—tions! Isn't that the operating system in action?
of the Jew?

– Could this Parisian union have some kind of intimate relationship?
mited with the Belgian Jewish union, including France du

North recounted the misfortunes (after our competition) in this way.

"The Kortrijk criminal court has just..."

cuper of the fertilizer falsification case of which we we have addressed this issue with our readers on several occasions.

Nineteen defendants, almost all Jewish; they are:

Elie Vermeyen, manufacturer in Brussels: Theodore

" Duchâteau, id.; Lévy Kortenhout, ambulant in Brussels; David Kortenhout, id.; Adolphe Kalkoen, traveling salesman, in Brussels; Herman Loodsteen, id.: Abraham Pypendorp, id.; Leonard David, id.; Marcus Demarck, id.; Abraham Velleman, id.: Moïse Kortenhout, id.; Jacob Kortenhout, id.:

Moses Goldstein, id.; Jacob Davids, id.; Joe Polak, id.;
Henri David, id.; Abraham Vastenbond, id. ; Hartog Kortenhout, id.; Salomon Baruch, id,

The witnesses are mostly farmers from canton of Vaerehem. They declare that the brokers in fertilizers presented themselves to them equipped with a small boo-bottle of genuine guano... [they claimed to have been sent by the government; some add that the preventive
They have used the name of Minister De Bruyn,

Commercial France 35

"whose compliments they were giving to the farmers; they claimed that the fertilizer was only payable in the event of success of the harvest and the. committed to taking "a few bags of guano for testing; then they would apply-ser or affixed the buyer's name themselves to a blank contract that they filled out afterwards; the Most of the quantities purchased were marked up by the brokers and the payment date was postponed; when The purchased fertilizer reached the farmers, they observed they stated that it did not conform to the sample in any way:
"It was gravel," some of them declared.

The audience is greatly amused by the way in which, according to the witnesses, those who were approached by the brokers of Vermeyen. Some treated the peasants like old women knowledge; others were asking to see their heads vaux; one of them even started by buying the a farmer's dog at an exorbitant price before first-der the sale of fertilizers.

The matter took several days.

All the defendants were sentenced to prison terms ranging from six years to fifteen days in prison.

Only one was acquitted.

Let's conclude with this true anecdote from {a Northern Cross, March 7, 1896:

"A very wealthy Jew, a grain merchant, it seems," always directly informed by telephone of all the market fluctuations in Paris, one day learned that the Wheat had suffered a decrease of one franc per hectolitre.

What to do? Because at his place, there's no shortage of wheat.

Quickly, without even taking the time to eat dinner, he runs at a miller's.

– I'm going to offer him a magnificent gift, him he said; are you going to throw me four hundred hectolitres of wheat?

mean nr canne rome mon en ED a En RE >. OR Er:

36. JEWISH OMNIPCTENCE

Good heavens! A good deal is not to be refused. The good
The miller is persuaded, and the deal is done.

Pon Chuif, having rid himself of his wheat, returns home:
He was overjoyed. The next day we learned from the Bulletin des Halles that there is a decrease of 1 franc per hectare tolitre.

The miller had lost 400 francs.

He swore he wouldn't be caught again; but, alas! too much late.

Attention all enthusiasts.

These are the methods by which the Jews conquered.
Commercial France, |

CHAPTER VI

INDUSTRIAL FRANCE

The Jews hold it by appropriating our most 'major national industries. Here are some examplestillons concerning, for example, oil refineries, sugar, tafta, match manufacturing, factories gas-powered.

4. Oil refineries

There are twenty main ones in France:

'1° The German Jews possess three: those of Pantin, Rouen, Saint-Lcubès ;:

2° Jews, under the name Ptuche and Co., possess those of Balaruc-les-Bains;

8° The Standard cil and C'° (where Rothschild reigns), brand Belford & Co." owns two raffia mills, one in Rouen, another one in La Palisse.

In total, six refineries belong to the Jews who would not even be entitled to a single {4/300}.

2° Sugar refineries

»

This word naturally evokes the name Lebaudy.
well known to be, if not Jewish themselves, at least the friends, the associates of the Jews.

There's nothing to say that our readers don't already know.

3° Tafia refineries

The trial of Jif Péreire with Mr. Val-Roger in Villers-
. on the Marne (August 4894) revealed to us that this one, for

38 JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

not being the owner of the Tafia refinery, nor:
is no less the biggest beneficiary. This trial has proven it.

that Mr. Péreire obtains exorbitant profits.
The Jew harvesting 600,000 liters of tafix annually in Santo Domingo, costing him:

0.45 market value

0.29 preparation

4

Total: 0.74 L |

The profit per liter is: 3.20 in the warehouse, which is a profit of:
of 2.46 francs and per year of 1.45 million.

4. Match factories

There are six major match factories in France.

The Jews, with their three-hundredth of influence, did not-

They wouldn't be entitled to just one; they have them all.

. 4° In Aubervilliers reigns Île Juif Cahen;

g In Pantin reigns the Jew Brandéis;

% In Marseille, the Jew Carvalho reigns;

4° In Aix reigns the Jew Weil;

In Saintines reigns the Jew Mayer;

6 In Trélazé, the Jew Bloch reigns.

In these factories, a phosphorus is used which-

This leads to necrosis and the death of the workers.

La Libre Parole, to give it its due, has led a vigorous campaign to force directors to em-to bend a harmless phosphorus.

We do not believe she obtained a large

result. | :

The phosphorus used is cheaper; we have some stocks that must be depleted; this makes him forgive many of flaws, even that of a poisoner, in the eyes of the good Jewish directors! 7

| INDUSTRIAL FRANCE

8" Gasworks

Bordeaux has a gasworks; that's its right.
Unfortunately, this gas plant has a Board of Directors.

4° Ed. Kohn, president;
Fr. 2 P:-M. Oppenheim;
: 8° Halphen;
- ' & Ed. Romberg;
£, 3° J. Propper;
[3 6 Georges Kohn, commissioner;
1° Adolphe Oppenheim, commissioner.

All seven are Jewish, of course.
Don't forget that Bordeaux is the fourth largest city in France.

CHAPTER VII

FRANCE MINERAL

It seems that the only nickel mines that it possesses France, the mines of New Caledonia, should to be among the French!

They belong to Baron Rothschild! At least he pays-
Is he generous to the miners? The official report-Heaven will tell us; we read there:

"In New Caledonia, where convicts are exported,
"The Rothschild family was awarded the concession"
"Mines. And for the exploitation of these mines, she has "obtained that thousands of transported people would be affected"

"They were committed to this work for a negligible fee"
"(Approximately 34 cents per workday!)."

Fifty-four centimes! Poor convicts!

Mr. Henri Le Charlier, former secretary to the admiral of Pritzbuer, then governor of New Caledonia, confirmed these details to us at the beginning of 1898. adding the following:

"The 34 cents are distributed as follows: 25 cents of pay, the rest for food.

"Since then, Mr. de Rothschild and his son-in-law Ephrussi they handed over the nickel mines to a syndicate of Jews English! "

We have phosphate mines in Algeria.

rich enough that they could fertilize France for 4 – 800 years old! There's nothing like it in the world!

FRANCE MINERAL N7|

– This time, it was the French who obtained the concessions?

– Yes, as with nickel mines, Fran-
So-called French, but in reality Jews, Bertagna, Thompson, etc., who had nothing more pressing than to "to sell, like Rothschild, their concessions to the English.

Thanks to Libre Parole, in particular to the vigorous denunciations by Mr. Jean Drault, these concessions and sub-concessions have been cancelled.

But what's the point? If, as we are assured, the Interested Jews haven't given up yet...

Let us recall, for the record, regarding copper mines which we have spoken of, – not French, but where s-
France lies, – the transformation of the Anaconda which transferred into the hands of the Rothschilds, under the pretext of "to regulate the market", the Ris- copper mines

- Tinto and allows them to raise the copper as they please from 46 pounds, the current price, to 80 pounds sterling, their price desire.

Guess who will pay the difference? The miners, the consumers, everyone except the Company, which will pocket the profits.

But let's leave foreign matters behind and return to France.

se 2

Isn't she the finest prize of Jewish exploitation?

D

CHAPTER VI

FRANCE FORESTIÈRE

The most beautiful forests in France are:

1° Fontainebleau (22,000 hectares);

9 Saint-Germain-en-Laye;

3° Compiègne;

4 Chantilly;

3rd Rambouillet (45,000 hectares);

6 Orléans (43,000 hectares);

7° The Grande Chartreuse.

_ Gold: 4° Fontainebleau, which the Jew enjoyed yesterday Ephrussi, has become today the enjoyment of | Lebaudy, friend of the Jews;

2 Saint-Germain is the preserve of the Bamberger Jews, | Hirsch, Oller, Raphaël Cahen, |

3° The main lots of Compiègne go to Louis Cahen d'Anvers, Jew;

4 Rambouillet belongs to Arthur de Rothschild.

Only the forests of Orléans, Chantilly, and the Grande-Chartreuse has escaped the Jews until now.

They therefore enjoy 4 out of 7 of our most beautiful forests, that's more than half of France's forested area!

We could mention the castle of Ferrières and its dependencies belonging to Alphonse de Rothschild; the Lys forest, to Henri de Rothschild; the royal castle of Champs and “el its dependencies, to Louis Cahen d'Anvers; the castle of 'La Marche and its dependencies (800,000 francs), to Michel Bloch; : the hunt of the forest of Hallate, to Gustave de Roth-child. .

But we must limit ourselves.

In short, let's say that the Rothschild family alone – owns around fifty hotels in Paris, and in France : a dozen castles with 260,000 hectares of land-rain!

The other prominent Jews are following suit!

FRANCE FORESTIÈRE | 43.

pe ES

nn ares eme qe

CHAPTER IX

COLONIAL FRANCE

It is entirely in the hands of the Jews, except perhaps... to be Madagascar and Tonkin; but, patience! that will come as in Algeria for example, where the Jew: reigns as undisputed sovereign; let one judge by the following table of the city of Oran, borrowed from L'Étoile Africain, December 1894:

ORAN

Jews Non-Jews Jews

New arrivals and fabrics..... About 20

Furniture..... 43 1

Representatives of com-

Merce and agents..... 87 55

Native tissues. 12 0

Merciëgrs At 29 43

Oenanneurs.. ss... 2 0 4

Upholsterers.....: 15 8

Grain traders... 27 43

Shoes..... : 40 4

Antique dealers..... 3 9

Bankers..... 3 2 =

Totals..... 235,122

Furthermore, one-sixth (at the rate of one three-hundredth) of the civil servant is Jewish.

COLONIAL FRANCE 45

The same applies to Algiers, Constantine, Philippeville, Bône, etc. Furthermore, everyone knows this, it is the Jews who do the necessary support of majorities in elections; the previous deputies emerged from a vote formed through illegal electoral registrations for the three-quarters!

According to recent corrections, 1,127 out of 1,600 ins-Jewish inscriptions were irregular. The lists, fortunately-the singement, have been revised, which has already produced results for the municipal elections: the anti- list Semitic has completely passed to Constantine, Oran, Phi-Lippeville, summer.

In the legislative elections of May 1898, Algiers, and on Algeria, one might say, was conquered by Mr. Drumont: at least the initial victory was complete.

The antisemitic movement cannot stop in this way. good path and must go all the way through the sweep which net-Algeria will be torn for a long time by the Jews who defile it. and dishonor her,

Let us say that they have a monopoly on falsification.

elections!

This is not the only one they enjoy. They monopoly-

They also read the wheat fields, just like in mainland France. Example:

These two Jews were summoned to the court in Blida, said Z Étoile.

African (January 1893), for theft committed against the com-the municipality of Djelfa, in the delivery they had committed to ges to make him 12,000 quiniaux of wheat.

They monopolize the forage baling machines (See France agricoie).

They monopolize capital, which allows them to...

naturally leads to a monopolization of usurious loans to the colonists and the Arabs.

Mr. Chabry, the illustrious promoter, in France, of cam-

46 JEWISH OMNLPOTENCE bone

bimetallic loincloth, we assure you, after an investigation.
sonnelle that he made in Algeria, that the Jews present to the Arabs at rates that vary from 12% to 600%, -
"From 450 to 800 0/0!" he said from the podium on December 23rd.
December 4898, Mr. Firmia Faure, deputy of Oran.

That's for Algeria. In the other colonies, we
He also notes the malevolent invasion of the Jew; the Even simple counters are not exempt.

In Brazil, in particular, the a so-called French committee, which was formed in 1895 to celebrate the anniversary of the President's death Carnot, and which was composed of the following names:

4° Arthur Kahn, German Jew;
g Maillet, Cosmopolitan Jew;
3° Léon Dreyfus, German Jew;

& Pierre Bloch, Italian Jew;
8 Jules Cahen, German Jew;
6° Armand Lévy, German Jew.

The Jew Albéric Neton is head of the secretariat of Mr. Delcassé, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

The Jew Dreyfus is vice-president in Cambodia.

The Jew Brunswick is a sales representative of the France in Morocco.

The Jew Hirsch, to Lourenzo Marquez; the Jew Lévy (Henri), in Tripoli; the Jew Lévy (Lucien), in Glasgow

|

(England).

Finally, the Jew Meyer is France's representative at Haiti. The same one that lowered the French flag to half-mast.

for the death of Bismarck!
We're forgetting some!

COLONIAL FRANCE

* Just one more small detail:

We have a college in Berlin exclusively dedicated to the French Huguenots.

It includes 165 Protestants and... 152 Jurrs!

Tell me about the Jew as the embodiment of the patriotic ideal.
French K-ism. In Berlin!

(% . : These are the ones who call themselves abroad the represso many from France!

CHAPTER X

FRANCE FINANCIAL

That's where the Jew swims like a fish, above all else. in the water; there he reigns, not as a Congolese king but as an absolute monarch.

On the stock exchange, he raises or lowers prices at will. receives the eager homage of governments including He holds his fate in his hands; have we not seen one day Finance Minister Doumer begged on his knees and hands clasped SM Rothschild of wanting to raise well courses whose depression was becoming threatening to the government.

The prayer, being humble, was bound to be answered: Elijah was: prices gradually recovered, but with emphasis- 'gnant to the same extent our growing abjection'. That's it for the Stock Exchange!

For the banks, they are also in the hands Jews, from the Bank of France, where the baron Alphonse is regent, down to the last bank of pro- Vince, usually held by one of his coreligior naires, pardon! of his race: it is not a question here of reh gion.

4 We must add, along with Mr. Denis, the Member of Parliament, that, "on "97 backstage houses in value, there are 53 of them between the "hands of foreigners, mostly Jews; that, out of 368 commands- "Backstage figures in values, 225 are foreign, the magpie" "Jewish share":

Lu ve ttecmermnance moe donne mamans

FRANCE FINANCIAL | 49

In Paris alone, there are 102 Jewish bankers out of 282: almost half, instead of the required 1/300!

In the provinces, it's much the same.

Nothing more to add about the Jewish bankers of Algeria, including : we have just spoken.

What about financial companies, also known as interest companies? ... in general? Naturally they are of private interest, the most, and that Jews are included there as everywhere else in scandalous proportions.

For example, we see:

COMPANIES

4° Savings and Provident Fund in Paris: Director-

Author: ALpHoxse De Rorascuizp!

2. General fire insurance: Vice-President from the Board of Directors: RARON ALPHONSE!

3. General Marine Insurance: Vice-President of Board of Directors: #anoN ALpaoxse!

4. General life insurance: Vice-President of Board of Directors: BAnoN ALPRONSE!

5th National Fire Department: Administrator: CGUSTAVE DE

Rornscuip!

6° La Nationale-Vie: Administrator: GusravE pe

Roeruscnibp!

A word about the Monte Carlo Roulette, which is not in France, but which has already claimed so many French victims gays that a French newspaper recently proposed to to establish a special obituary.

This gambling house, which is really just a ma-

Ms.'s financial support, to the benefit of the owner and to the detriment of

The necessary players, who benefits from it and the | protector?

| JEWISH KING, - 4

The Prince of Monaco, husband of a Jewish woman!

Regarding games, the 19th century itself pointed out
La Libre Parole (November 1893), the Neuilly circle,
"Jewish," he said, "to put the fencing master to shame."

He added: "The gaming commissioner is a man named Atbert Lévy; the money changer, who is also a lender, is called 5
Lévy too, but Lucien, to make a distinction. » ee

Enough of this financial companies and gambling dens, and let's move on to administration.

CHAPTER XI

FRANCE ADMINISTRATIVE

M. de Marcère, in May 1895, noted the following fact:
from the podium, that at the end of the government of ... July "there were 450,000 civil servants, while at-
"Today there are 900,000 of them!"

This figure is exaggerated, but it cannot be denied that it either to the advantage of the Jews: the more officials there are and The fewer Jewish officials there are, the more exorbitant the appearance of... so much. Let us therefore give the Jew his due and put;

This would entitle the Jew to exactly 3,000 functions.
tionaires.

Without giving the precise number, we do not believe exaggerating by saying that there are perhaps fifty thousand of them.
They can be found everywhere, just look at the evidence:

In Aix (Provence), where there are exactly 300 Jews out of 30,000 inhabitants and wouldn't even be entitled to a Functionally, they have 43 of them, which are as follows:

4. The mayor: Benjamin Abram (removed from power in the last _ elections);

D 2 The Attorney General: Eliacin Naquei;

L. 'ge The city's lawyer: Adrien Créinieu;

4° Court Advisor: Valabrègue;

D: According to the 1896 budget, the exact figure is:
44 6,000 civil servants.

52 JEWISH OYTNIPOTENCE

Her advisor at the court: Lyon:

President of the Aix Agricultural Union: Naquet:

: Advisor to the Commercial Court: the Jew:
Lionel;

8. Advisor to the Commercial Court: The Jew
Bédarrides; |

9 Substitute judge: the Jew Gabriel Milhaud;

10th President of the Oil Traders' Union: the Lunel Jew;

41° Vice-President of the Administrative Commission hospices: the Jew of Lisbon!

12° Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Fund savings bank of Aix: the Jew Laroque;

43rd President of the Chamber of Arts and Manufactures
tures: the Jew Laroque.

In Avignon, in August 1893, we read on a letter from a Jewish family announcement, said {a Croix d'Avignon, 12 names, among which we noted eight functions-naires where members are honored with honorary distinctions, know :

A tax inspector;

A former president of the Chamber of Commerce;

Two investigating judges;

An artillery officer;

A president edits the Court of Cassation;

A knight of the Legion of Ilonneur;

A Commander of the Legion of Honour.

In Issy (Seine), there aren't even half a dozen Jews;
One of them, Mayer, was, before the May elections, mayor of:
the municipality.

In Mouriès (Bouches-du-Rhône), there were two Jews -

Appointed judge to the court in March 1896 by Mr. Ricard.

FRANCE ADMINISTRATIVE 53

out of 4,900 inhabitants in 1894: one, Millaud senior, private of his civil rights + the other, Millaud son, mayor of the country (Libre Parole, March 23, 1894).

In Paris, the king of gold, Mr. Alphonse de Rothschild, 2, rue Saint-Florentin, holds multiple functions and titles 'following:'

4° Commander of the Legion of Honour';

2° Regent of the Bank of France;

8th Chairman of the Council of Road Authority
North iron;

4 Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chemin of iron from the Great Belt;

5° Administrator of the Eastern Railways;

6. Director of the Savings and Provident Fund from Paris;

7° Treasurer of the Pasteur Institute 2.

His brother, Baron Edmond, #1, Faubourg Saint-Honoré, is more modestly:

1° Administrator of the Northern Railway;

2° Administrator of the P.-L.-M.

But these are just the small parts of the issue. Not-

We'll review the ministries; that's where we'll see the true administrative situation of the Jews.

We saw earlier that they are clogging up the ministry of the War, that they are absolute masters in the Ministry of Finance, where Rothschild reigns.

4 Decorated by the Tsar of the Order of the Eagle, holding September 1896.

3 This explains Mrs. Hirsch's recent generosity to the Pasteur Institute; the millions were only changing hands cash register; but the cash register always remained Jewish. Same explanation - tion for the enthusiasm of Mr. Duclaux, director of the Intitut, for the cause of Dreyfus.

54 JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

We must add that in the same ministry of Finances there are, apart from the king of gold, or rather under its dependency, twenty-seven Jewish officials, |

We know of the appointment, last February, of the an-Former Jewish prefect Cohn in the position of treasurer-paymaster general - the Ardennes region, the appointment in April, by the Jew Lockroy, in the sub-directorate of general accounting and the salary of 12,000 francs, of the Jew Tréfen, who benefited from a special treatment after six months of Service only. What do you want? Why also the Aren't the others Jewish?

However, it should not be forgotten that the Jews were civil servants are not always models of delicacy in the fulfillment of their functions: as proof, the Jew Jacob Veil, former treasurer-paymaster general of Belfort, Dismissed for misconduct. Furthermore, here is the published memo. by the Truth (August 44, 1894):

"Mr. Jacob Veil has been suspended for fifteen days from His position, disgraced for his culpable maneuvers on the occasion of the last loan from the City of Paris.

"He had received them, to distribute them among the subscribers-testators, eight hundred irreducible certificates: instead of to put them into circulation, he allocated himself six hundred quarters of these certificates, the Jew's share.

"It was the employees themselves who affixed the false signatures on receipt stubs.

"At 30 francs per share, Mr. Veil achieved, to the detriment of public funds, a bonus of 20,000 francs in just one day, and without having run a single race. risk.

"It is regrettable, for the sake of state finances, that..." the right of increase, so difficult for congregations, saves money from these lucrative operations.

FRANCE ADMINISTRATIVE 55

La Croix added this word:

'It is clear that this Jew deserves more than a dismissal.

"It is the same Jew who, at a banquet with him..."

: offered his fellow religious and political believers, complained bitterly of the Cross, which had denounced the envelopment of the territory of Belfort by the functions Jewish 'tionnaires. |

"Weren't we right?"

At the Ministry of the Navy sits the Jew Lockroy, with, For chief of staff, the Jew Ignace, decorated with the Legion of Honour . of Honour, January 4, 1899.

Under the authority of the Ministry of Religious Affairs, we Let us note, among the Jews of the synagogue, the Great Rsbbin Lehmann Joseph, director of the Tal- Seminary Mud Torah, also decorated with the Legion of Honour, January 4th, 1899.

At the Ministry of the Interior, where the Jews would have to one-third of the prefect (1/300) according to the expression of Mr. Denis, Member of Parliament, they are more rent-seeking, prefects and sub-prefects. We know of the Isaacs of Fourmies, the Torrès du Blanc, the Vel-Durands of the North, the Cohns of the Loire, the Strauss family of Drôme, the Hendlé family of Rouen, the Salmon family from Le Havre, the Weil family from Meaux, etc.

Hendlé Jr. is the secretary general of the prefecture of Calvados: Edmond Aaron Cahen is commissioner of the government near the prefecture council of the Seine.

We know of the Jewish Grumbach police officers in Paris, Schramech in Marseille.

At the Ministry of Justice, the number of Jews
It becomes really cumbersome; there are multitudes of them.
like Dreyfus, investigating judge in Le Havre; Naquet Eliacin, prosecutor of Aix; Carcassonne, substitute judge at Alais; Durand, president of the 9th chamber of the court of first instance of Paris; Lisbon, judge at the tribunal—.

56 JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

nal d'Aix! This Lisbon was a friend of Crémieux, the author of the decree naturalizing the Jews of Algeria. That's it.

his main title in ministerial favor!

Finally, there are 40 Jewish advisors to the Court of Appeal of:
Paris, 9 Jews at the Council of State², and the Jew Léow at the Court of cassation.

At the Ministry of Agriculture, there are 41 Jews, a little almost as many farmers as Mr. de Rothschild, the former Treasurer of the French Farmers.

At the Ministry of Public Works, there are 30 Jews, plus eight general inspectors of Bridges and Roads. That's the Jewish engineer Cohen who oversaw the construction of the famous Bouzey dike. "It's the cold," they say.
Cohen's Jewish comrades, which caused the break of "The digester!" Known!

At the Post and Telegraph Directorate, there are 21 Jews.

At the Ministry of Public Instruction, there are 30 of them, without of course, this includes the Jews who populate the outskirts dances of this ministry. For example: the Jew Weill, director of Chaptal College; Moïse Petit, professor at Janson high school and Inspector General of Education public (primary education); Cahen Albert, professor ser at Rollin College; Charles Salomon, at Con- High School Dorcet; Dauriac, at the Sorbonne: these last three professors sisters at the same time at the Rabbinical Seminary, 9, rue Vauquelin; etc.

The Jacques Amyot middle school in Melun is run by Jews.

4 Appointed last March by the radical Bour- ministry guois.

One more, since the recent appointment of the Jew Vel-Durand, former prefect of the North.

FRANCE ADMINISTRATIVE

&t
i

Monge school is a Jewish institution!

A large number of philosophy professors in The high schools or universities are Jewish: for example, the Juif'Milhau in Montpellier.

At the Beaut-Arls ministry, we find the Jew Salomon Reinach, curator of the Saint-Ger- museum main. It was he who proposed to the government, in 1893, to have it razed, under the pretext of archaeological excavations, the convent and cathedral of Cardinal Lavigerie, in Carthage?

This convent, as we know, houses the illustrious religious figure, ar-
Father Delaitre, geologist and correspondent of the Institute, which Congress of Learned Societies has just decorated of the Legion of Ilonneur, for its valuable discoveries in North Africa.

Discoveries for disappointments, the Jew Reinach had preferred his own. Naturally, even at the cost of The ruin of one of our African glories. Ousted, the Jew, this time.

To this rather unfriendly name, we can add those of Judah, says Colonne, famous for his "spiritual concerts

4 We read in Le Croix (October 31, 1896):

"A municipal faculty has just been created in Marseille."
by right.

She has twelve teachers.

Three are Jewish: Messrs. Bédarrides, Alphandéry and David.

A quarter of the Jews, as if the Jews constituted a quarter of the Marseille population (they number 5,009); by what right?

their right to omnipotence with which they crush us methodically for a century.

"It's just another turn of the screw, that's all."

2 His brother Joseph is the inventor of the laws existing in under which 50,000 French religious figures were expelled in 1880. What a nefarious family!

A 2 1

58 JEWISH OMNIPITENCE

"Good Friday rituals," the show-off Sarah Bernhardt. (Jewish by race), from Catul e Mondès, art critic;

Theatre directors: Mussay of the Palais-Royal, Nunès of the Dramatic Follies with Mayer as secretary General, Millaud of the Théâtre de la République, Marx of Cluny, Franck of the Grand Guignol;

Theater general secretaries: Abraham du Gymnasium, Lionel Mayer des Nouveautés, Lévy de l'Ambigu, etc. |

Regarding art, let's say right away that the critic Jewish is only judicious on the condition, of course, to eliminate any artistic piece that is not glorious of Israel.

Mr. Edmond de Goncourt knew something about it, at the occasion for a distinctly anti-Semitic literary work, that Jewish art critics have completely discredited their power.

The author, confiding to Mr. Gaston Méry the sorrow of his a minor mishap, he added (Libre Parole, March 7, 1806):

"Oh! I'm not asking for them to be hanged, shot,
– only once, I jokingly asked that
The Rothschild family celebrated dressed in yellow, – but I

I would like measures to be taken, laws to be passed, for the prevent the accumulation of all wealth nationaale... But that's not my business; I can't what to fight with the phime of the novelist and the author dramatic.

We are here with Mr. Edmond de Goncourt, with no more hope than he has of winning our sympathy art critics in Israel; but we will have, in On the other hand, those of all good French people, and they... That's enough. With that, we move on to the next chapter.

CHAPTER XII

POLITICAL FRINGE

It is composed of the Executive Branch and the Branch legislative.

We have seen, in administrative France, the power-see executive branch in the hands of the Jews. It remains to examine the legislative power, consisting of the Chamber of Deputies (approximately 580 members) and the Senate (300 members).

Strictly speaking, the Jews (1/300) would not be entitled than a senator and a few deputies at most.

The elections of 4898 eliminated Reinacà ct Naquet. But we also have Raynal, Thompson (submitted) (to the investigation), Lockroy and Klotz. One too many!

They also have the leadership of the political parties in The two Chambers. Mr. Loubet, Arton's official protector and of all the Jews of Panama, presides over the Senate! Mr. Brisson, the one who stifled the investigation into the Chéquards, yesterday he was covering the Jews of the Chamber with his protection.

They say: Freemasonry, that's the enemy! It's possible, it's even certain! Which is also very certain- Damn, Freemasonry isn't the only one. nor even the most powerful enemy.

She is merely the puppet held in the hands of the Jewish community. the strings.

That one, performed on trestles, for the gallery,

IN

60 JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

She remains behind the scenes and gives him the impetus.

Furthermore, the head of Universal Freemasonry,
The inspirer of Freemasonry in France was Jewish.

This man who said, "If I weren't Italian, I would want to—
I should be Prussian; I have two hatreds in my heart: God and the "France," this man did not believe in Freemasonry.
sufficient to symbolize this twofold hatred, and, of
Although he was a Catholic, he converted to Judaism...

Nathan, head of Italian Freemasonry, is Jewish.
as in France all Jews are Freemasons.
At least, that's what the little note tells us.
following, highly suggestive:

"One of our friends told us some time ago that one day, While talking with a Jew he knew, the latter asked this question: Why wouldn't you do it?
Also, part of Freemasonry? You would go further "Conveniently your path; you will be protected."

Our friend replied, "You know that I am Christian: I do not wish to apostatize. But you, Mon—
"Sir, you are therefore a Freemason?"

"Yes," his interlocutor replied, "I am a Freemason;
All Jews are equally so.

(Croëe de l'Isle de Groix, December 1894 issue.)

A slanderous pamphlet against the clergy has been circulating.
France for six months in all the sect's newspapers.

La Croix du Nord (February 4, 1897) revealed to us the author of This initiative: the wise Weznor, pontiff of the Hioise lodge
"Fidelity",

A new clerical factum, just as mendacious as the one
The Jew Welhof, but more impious, came out of the presses from Saint-Étienne, where Sébastien Faure prints his blasphemies.

But this newspaper is managed by L. Dugvrus, one of the leaders of the lodge of Saint-Étienne (Northern Cross, 7 f6-February 1897).

{

+

FRANCE POLITICS 61

And that's how the Jews control Freemasonry!

They also hold socialism through Jules Guesde and Lafargue, both sons-in-law of Jews, as they all political or religious parties hold this view.

"During the Boulangismie era," wrote Mr. Edouard Drumont (February 25, 1896), they held the cards in all games:

"Reinach represented the opportunistic Republic," Naquet the revision, Arthur Meyer the monarchy and the Catholicism...

"The same applies to the socialist movement which takes his motto, "The Jew Singer of Berlin."

That's why the socialists of France refuse!
to march against the Jew, and when you ask them
Why do they give you this answer to which they

We are only talking here about the leaders and, indeed, the soldiers who follow them, most of them in good faith and in all sincerity. Let's pay tribute to this sincerity; it puts us at ease. to better condemn those who abuse it for their own benefit.

The following table, from the Croix du Dauphiné (May 4, 1896), is a faithful portrayal of the socialist leaders:

The "singer, Adler, Liebknecht and other big names"
The top brass of Austro-German socialism are millionaires. Singer is even a large factory owner who is starving his workers and loudly declares that he finds it perfectly natural that his female workers ask vice for the extra bread which

It is necessary for them to live.

Citizen Vollmar owns a splendid villa on the banks
Alpine lakes of Upper Bavaria,

Citizen Bebel, deputy of Strasbourg, has just acquired a splendid property on Lake Zuri* and will make cons-to build a magnificent terrace on the banks of his villa of the lake.

The father of contemporary socialism, the German Karl Marx, – another Jew – was rich enough to live off his investments in

62 JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

do not believe it themselves: We only go the capital without examining whether he is Jewish or Catholic.

As if capital had a religion, as if the

The word "Jew" did not designate only the race!, as

England, and to write his so-called books there in complete comfort. scientists. His nephew and disciple, the Jew Lasalle, was not no less wealthy than his uncle.

In France, too, the friends of the people are safe from the misery, which they only know from the novels of another good friend of the people, the arch-millionaire Eugène Suë.

Citizen Jaurès is a large landowner in the Tarn, if he Please! Citizen R. is wealthy enough to dedicate...
Easily create hundreds of thousands of francs from the purchase of old paintings.

Better than that! One of the most ardent socialist deputies, Citizen Berteaux, deputy of Paris, is not only millionaire, landlord, capitalist, well-fed, etc., etc., but, the evil-Happy! He even lives off speculation: he is one of the principals stockbrokers at the Paris Stock Exchange and, in that capacity, Knight of the Legion of Honour.

I assure you that he/she should care little about the Four-economical skins and that he is much more concerned with the decline of the Italian and Pamplona rivers, the rise of the Suez river and of the Transatlantic as of the Three-Eight,

The last elected socialist, citizen Louis Sautumier, de-
The prostitute from Neuilly is, it seems, a good-sized, fat, plump boy.
and very eccentric... (He has since died a Christian death: peace be upon him) memory !} :

We could multiply the examples endlessly. These ones are enough to show a people these puppets who can so generously spending a louis to collect a banhnote, in pheasant: to shout at the top of one's lungs: "Long live socialism! Death "To the rich!"

4. The Jew D° Herzi, in his masterful article: The Jewish State (December 31, 1896), makes many errors favorable to Jews; but he nevertheless has this significant phrase, To Regarding mixed marriages between Jews and non-Jews:

"A Jewish man who had been arrested married a Jewish woman."

î
î

FRANCE POLITICS 63

that this race was not the eternal enemy of the race
French, which it supplants everywhere, which it steals and ruins
In every way imaginable for the last hundred years!

– You say you are only attacking capital; have at least have the decency to attack first the one who is wrong acquired.

Look, among the ill-gotten fortunes of 38 million of French people, if there is one that equals the billions held in the hands of a single Jew.

From an overall perspective, see next if it is It's just that 130,000 Jews own a third of the property in France (80 billion) of movable and immovable assets including
They leave the other two-thirds at only 38 million.
French people?

The Jew controls all parties in France: Freemasonry, socialism, monarchism, etc.; he controls parliament, he
He holds the government, he holds power in a word, by This very simple reason is that power comes from public opinion.

that public opinion is shaped by the press, THAT THE PRESS IS A Almost entirely in the hands of the Jews.

So one can be Jewish and baptized at the same time. EL there is many Jews were indeed baptized.

But baptism is a renunciation of the Jewish religion.

So the word Jew does not mean the religion, otherwise we would not could be both Jewish and baptized,

And, sine does not signify religion, or it means nothing of everything, where it means: THE RACE.

Chapter XII

THE PRESS

The press? It is the necessary instrument of domination.
political nation, that's why we owe it a place apart from the political sphere in France.

What would the Jews in France be without the press? Nothing.
nowhere.

What are they with the press? – Z/s are everywhere.

Ah! How right the Jew Crémieux was when he
He knew, 50 years ago, to those of his race: "Look at everything
"the rest as nothing, money as nothing, the consi-
"Degradation or contempt as nothing, places as "Nothing; look at Dr. Coïnme loul, because with the "Press, we'll get everything else!"

Today, they have the press... and everything else.

They hold the press in three ways: 4° by the Owners, directors, editors or administrators of newspapers; ® by the "Cominerctales or financial announcements"
3° subsidies (or monthly payments),

1° By the Owners, Directors, Editors, etc. – Bernard Lazare, a Jewish publicist, writes pamphlets liars in favor of the traitor Dreyfus.

Just yesterday, the Jew Mayer was administering {a Lanterne, Le

The Jew has departed. His spirit remains. The Lantern is not there.
He lost nothing, except the cash register.

THE PRESS 65

_: The Jew Reinach collaborates, at will, with L'Aurore, with the Century, to Human Rights and to Le Figaro.

The Jews Arthur Meyer and Ferdinand Block lead

Let Ze Gaulois write.

The Jews Camille Dreyfus, Paul Dreyfus and Bernheim

. reign over the Nation.

The Jews Valentin Simond, Henry Baüer write

Echo of Paris.

__ The Jew Franck, who committed suicide (August 43, 1898), was in charge of Za Liberty of the Juils Péreire, where the Jew Cohen collaborates.

"The Jews Strauss and Klotz are in Paris."

The Jews Abraham and Rosenthal were yesterday, the Jews Wolf and Emile Berr are now at Le Figaro.

Abraham Dreyfus is at the Gt Blas, Bernheim at the Journal; Schwob Lazare and Cerfberr are at the Event;

Strauss is in the 129th Century, Crémieux in the Petite Presse, Hément at the Recall; Victor Simond and Hirsch are at Radical: Hément collaborates with Le Temps, Klotzau Voltaire.

Singer at the True Word, Weil at the Debates, and finally Strauss to the National Agency (formerly the Dalziel Agency); etc.

The Havas Agency is Jewish in many of its correspondents.

The Nationa!, a Jewish newspaper, was rented to Mr. Bourgeois and the Radical Party (May 189%).

The Little Republic may not have a person Jewish, but its editors openly submit to the inspiration Jewish ration, especially Mr. Jaurès.

Isn't socialism, par excellence, a Jewish idea?

Isn't the German socialist school Jewish with the Jews Lasalle, Aron, Singer, Frie Hander and Packuscher?

with its Jewish organ, Worjaerts, which had as collaboratorthe writer the Jew Cronheim, whose editor is Jewish Schœnlank? Isn't the French socialist school

JEWISH KING, - to

HAS

not Jewish with her chel the Jew Karl Murx, with his main champions (Guesde and Lafargue, both ' _*
Sons-in-law of Jews?

Guesde took part in the 1st Internationalist Congress of Stuttgart (October 1898), presided over by the Jew Singer, at
On the Jewish side: Kloss, vice-president, Schænlanck, etc.

By working for the socialist ideal, the editors of The Little Republic therefore works, in France, as Woriwaerts in Germany, for an exclusive idea-Jewish and thereby align themselves, perhaps, with their unaware, in the category of Jewish journalists or domes-
They were put off by the Jewishness. But the Jews have another.

- a way of keeping a journal devoted to them:

2. Through financial or commercial announcements.

We know how it's done. A newspaper needs to live, and sometimes bread is lacking in the editorial staff.
Alert to this very legitimate need, the Jew presents himself:
"Here! This is gold, but... insert this ad!"
The ad is inserted, and the gullible readers rush to read it.
to empty their wallets into the Jew's pocket, who
He, for his part, quickly emptied it into his safe, and everything
The world is happy: the sucker has "his good deal"!
The Jew with his gold, the journalist with his piece of bread.

And that's how the Jews maintain the stomach
a large number of newspapers that escape their notice writing. They have yet a third method:

3. Through subsidies or monthly payments. - The Jew has seduced many fools through financial or commercial announcements;
But he has not deceived them all; yet he wants to deceive them.
Everyone wants to steal them! How to do it?...

It's very simple: he's going to find the director of a journal: |

- Mr. Director, I need a heartfelt compliment, born of ere one she

on the front page of my financial company or commercial!

"Very well!" replied the director, who had, not . hunger, but thirst. The unquenchable thirst for gold; but How much will you give me?

– Ten thousand, one hundred thousand, a zillion / (Ask the Time, if this last figure, to be fantastic, is imaginary!

– High five! You'll get your heartfelt praise!

The next day, the newspaper reported on this company.
"a real jackpot that will put gold in their pockets"
"Subscribers!" Let's play the music!

It's the subscribers who are being ripped off!... for the benefit of the Jew.

This is the story of all Panamas, past and present.
and to come, committed or to be committed by the Mayan Jewrybraid of the press!

'Just as the Jews sell their praise, they
They also sell their silence.

We read in the financial report of the Company
Monaco for 1895 that the net profit of this year has been over 13 million, but we also see under the heading "Press Subsidies" a "distribution"
1,160,000 FRANCS TO THE FRENCH PRESS.

Why this distribution? To silence the suicides.
frequent at the price of which these scan- gains are realized Daleux!...

We published the following fact in 1896, which says:
long on the Jewish conspiracy of silence.

The announced second volume by Mr. Fdouard Dema-
The book on the Rothschilds has just been published. It's the history of... started, but not exhausted, history of the French branch Caise. Without wanting to appreciate it for the moment, let's point out some interesting passages on press content in the preface:

Rothschild and the press

"The press," the author says, "is not dependent on than newspaper editors.

As for the latter, they are, for the most part, under the dependence of the Rothschilds, of financial institutions cens and Freemasonry, which is all one.

The press in general is not venal, but the RARE
Some newspaper editors are absolutely...

I had met R... in L...

So I thought I had all the advantages...

The day before I was planning to bring him my book
At the Bank of France, I met, upon leaving at Savine's, an important figure in this house.

After having undergone a series of reprimands that his
His age allowed him to do it to me, he added:

"Besides, your book will be no success, you will sell-print barely a few hundred copies, and the press
She will not breathe a word of it.

"I know," I replied, "that the tickets from your establishment-"
They are pleasing to the eye and soft to the touch, but they there are still some pores that resist your arguments comments.

- And which ones then?

- But even if it were only at (this newspaper name).

- Would you like to bet that he won't announce your book?

- How much?

- C'ngq louis?

– The deadline?

– Thirty days.

THE PRESS 69

– Heard

On the thirtieth day, I had to admit that I had

I lost my bet!

Mr., it seems, had given orders that had not

He was not obeyed. I then asked him to announce the Rothschilds.

H promised me!

I've been waiting for over twenty days! Nothing has been published.

Rothschild and various newspapers

“

MV., director of the x... socialist newspaper, replied that he did not want to publish absolutely anything about the Rothschild,

Same result at /a Petite République, at Le Figaro; this
This proves that collectivists, like boulevardiers, are devoted to the Jewish community.

Rothschild and the Catholic newspapers

Therefore, only the purely Catholic newspapers remained.
and a few very rare independent newspapers.

"I want to express here my sincere gratitude to them that I'm saving some for them, and first and foremost, thanking the Courageous Crosses that are not afraid to attack vigorously the Jews and the Freemasons, the only and true enemies of all that suffers, of all that work and of all those who still have some nobles left Feelings in the soul!

1 Mr. Édouard Demachy, from whom we asked for news-new to its volume, will not mind us publishing a part of his reply (dated October 27, 1896):

"I am very disgusted, because sales are going very badly; I have to
"to fight against apathy and the ill will of all."

soft at 7 RE mm
: Ge Der at rarely

70 JEWISH OMNITOTENCE

Is it any wonder, then, that:
I, the Jew Saul, addressed, with the indecency of a monkey, the omnipotence of his race, in January 1895, in the Wücherpille, Mainz newspaper: É

"No people has succeeded in acquiring domination"
"on others as easily as we Jews,
"he said. g

"Apart from the press clique (implied:
"which belongs to us"), the publicist is no longer anything. We
"We only need to organize a conspiracy against him"
"Silence. Thus our domination seems assured."
"still for a long time, despite the anti-Semitic current"
"which is now making headlines around the world."

Faced with such an admission, no one has any more trouble understand how the press shapes public opinion party-
the government, in short, through parliament, how Jews govern France through the press.

Not so long ago, as we were saying higher up, than the Finance Minister, Doumer, was kneeling before Baron Alphonse |

Mr. Quesnay de Beaurepaire, regarding bias outrageous decision by the judges of the Court of Cassation, for Dreyfus, against the General Staff, published on January 28, 1899, the following terrible confession, according to a letter dated from Nice and received in Paris on January 20th:

"About twelve years ago, Mr. Hérissou, former
The Minister of Commerce, being on holiday in Grasse,

"BOOKSELLERS ARE DOING WHAT THEY CAN TO AVOID SELLING" AND DISCOURAGE THE BUYER.

"J4 HAS NOT YET SOLD 500 COPIES OF THE 2ND VOLUME.

"So I don't yet know when I will publish the " third. "

THE PRESS | 71

said this (or at least that was the gist of it) in the conversation between friends:

– "Ah! Gentlemen, you advise us to do this what we want, what we believe is good for the : country!

"But if you only knew!... We are not free."

"Thus, in any question, I do not say that the gou-
The government should seek advice from the major Jewish bankers.
But he can do nothing without warning them.

Such a tribute obviously crowns the demons-'Traction of Jewish Omnipotence'. We have nothing left than to talk about the means of destroying it.

[#1] does not fit into our plan, and that is not the question-
| tion, to list here the social or individual crimes of which

Jews make themselves guilty every day, thanks to This Omnipotence. Mr. Édouard Drumont masterfully described it. done so far in his books, and his journal continues valiantly
It is important to do this every day. Let us simply note that in
In ten years, thanks to the Jews, we had 20 cracks who have cast ruin, desolation and death upon thousands of French families.

PART TWO

MEANS OF ANTICIPATING JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

PREAMBLE

There are two types of means: immediate means and the remote means. These are, to varying degrees, within everyone's reach, according to their social condition; These are rather within the reach of the nation itself, in its entirety.

The available options are limited to two, which we
We will call them, if you will: MEMORY, ACTION,

CHAPTER ONE

FIRST METHOD: MEMORY

To firmly engrave in one's memory the evidence of omnipotence Jewish tence. The idea alone engenders the acle, The Frenchman does not He does not commit acts of hostility against the Jew, because he has He had no specific idea against him that carried his conviction. tion,

He can feel that he is being devoured little by little, but he doesn't The Jew Saulus doesn't quite know how it happened. had an intuition of this ignorance when he wrote in Wicherpille, in January 1895:

"Today, people suffer from two shortcomings."
* which we will summarize: one is to live each day

P0 ea A

FIRST MEANS; MEMORY 13

"the day without lofty views on causes or effects,
"about the past or the future..."
"The second drawback is the difficulty with which the "Non-Jews decide to make a financial sacrifice"
"To support their cause in newspapers, etc."
What foresight, indeed, in this Jew!
The people are excusable, to a certain extent, for not – to not have it to the same degree.
To have a high view, one must raise it our gaze.

'To make a sacrifice, one must know what one owes to succeed.

The people will find, we believe, this double clarity clairvoyance in the painting of Jewish Omnipotence, which has not its other merit, ultimately, is to synthesize these traits of Semitic customs that Mr. Drumont has thrown into full hands throughout all his works and in his diary.

Now that the people can see, if they refuse to see and to act, he will truly be without excuse! But come— How to act? We'll see.

man 2 os 4 nn me se en nt ed dR de du done en

CHAPTER II

SECOND METHOD: ACTION

Against perfidious Albion he imposed the continental blockade: against the perfidious Jew (per fidis Judæis, sings the Church) Let's implement a national blockade.

The Jew proclaims himself a foreigner: "The Jews are neither "Germans, nor Slavs (nor French): they "HIS x people apart", declared the EU council of the the body of students of the Jewish nation, in a statement published in Prague, in March 1895.

Let's take them at their word: if they are foreigners, let's treat them in el'angers; we can even add a little no more restraint, because we are not bound by the rules ordinary acts of hospitality towards a people who do not demands that in order to abuse it against those who gave it to him give,

Let the watchword be Parlout, from top to bottom of The social ladder: No more dealings with Jews!

More Jews in the ranks of the nobility: more Nobility in the Jewish salons! The last wedding The 'last Rothschild warns us, alas! that it is necessary For now, relegate this practice to the nobility. Among our distant hopes,"

This was written in May; we have since had

Mr. Ephrussi's dog weddings and the funeral of

SECOND METHOD: ACTION 75

More Jews in bourgeois businesses financial, commercial or industrial!

More Jews involved in daily transactions the craftsman and the farmer!

Mr. Chäbry proposes the following method, which is equally ingenious that simple: "Replacing the ghetto and the special costume—
"...formal measures formerly imposed on Jews by a public list"
"very comprehensive and constantly updated in each "town hall, of all the Jews living in the town, with "Addresses and information so that everyone can "Recognize them."

"A copy of this list would be provided free of charge to
"Who would ask for it; if the Jews do not abuse this
"During their incognito period, they have no reason to complain"
"of this measure, that no one prevents them from
"to take up in turn against all the French, if the heart
"They told him."

We are pleased to note that an analytical work
The log has just been completed, from a commercial point of view, by The anti-Semitic Lyonnais Indicator, erected under the direction of...

Harrone Leonino, double ceremony, one of joy, the other of deail, to which a good part of the nobility did not disdain to lend his assistance. We re par—Your not here, of course, from the truly distinguished part and seriousness of the French nobility, which reserves for others works, at other ceremonies, otherwise worthy, but none—Semitic ment, the convergence of his sympathies, his gene—
The stinginess of its presence. This frost, it is true, partially repairs it.
the mistakes of that one, but without managing, however, to erase completely the stain which nevertheless rubs off on the entire class.

1. Let's discuss here how the work is carried out.
Let's just say the idea itself is excellent, so much so that the Jews are doing everything to prevent him from rebuilding.

tion of the Anti-Semitic League of Lyon and containing the names and addresses of all the Jewish houses in the city.

We note especially with particular pleasure the following wishes were issued by the Catholic Youth, gathered together at the Congress in Reims, May 13, 1896, and which respond in so well to the present desires:

4. Catholic newspapers will publish the most comprehensive list possible of the Freemasons and the Jewish residents in their respective regions;

2. Conferences will be organized in the cities and in campaigns on the political and social role of Freemasons and Jews!

* We cannot resist the pleasure of pointing out here the excellent organization of these conferences in Poitou.

Mr. d'Elissagaray, lawyer at the Court of Appeal of Paris, Henri de Coursac, the abbot of Lestang, Etienne Marsac, M. de Curzén gave lectures for three days consecutive (January 1897), in Migné before 500 voters, in Lusignan in front of 300, in Saint-Sauvan in front of an audience of 300 men, Everywhere, the speakers were frantically applauded!

On the fourth day, a large anti-Semitic meeting took place in Vivonne. where a resolution, denouncing the Jews, was acclaimed by 1,500 citizens.

Other speakers will appear, we know that,

Isn't one of them the perfect person to revive the France, asleep, shake off your torpor and rekindle within yourself. you: a supreme assault against the enemy, the evil woman extinguished of its old religious and patriotic enthusiasm

Listen to this advice for young people, on the occasion of the death of the heretic of journalist Vivar, recently assassinated by the Masonic government of Ecuador:

They tore off, one by one, the five fingers that had testified to his faith and their wickedness, then they shot him.

SECOND METHOD: ACTION 77

All Catholics, and in particular the establishments religious groups will carefully refrain from addressing to serve Freemason or Jewish suppliers, UNDER | whatever the reason;

4 A general league of all merchants and Catholic industrialists of France will be organized for the to fight effectively on the economic front;

"H seems to hear the martyr's last prayer:

"Thank you, God! for allowing my fingers to be so-
But the useless ones fall first. I'm sure, before "They'll fall completely, how well they've served you!"

"Ah, what a beautiful death! How much better it is, young people, to leave like that, vomiting in his bed for having The party was a total fail! The noblest of labors rewarded by the noblest of joys: the joy of having freed one's soul, by the purest of glories: glory, by serving as a lesson to the elite as well as the crowd, angels as well as men:

"Who says that self-denial and sacrifice, contempt for others..."
Slander, suffering, and death are nothing but deception.
And unnatural solitude? A glance through the pages historians and poets, the monuments erected by the "artists, who remain in admiration and recognition-the wisdom of peoples. Ever since historians and poets have learned to tell stories and sing, the artists to breathe life into Marble, I see nothing but magnificent tributes to effort, to work, to pain, to heroism:

One must die for having escalated the facts.

Expand horizons, or break the bars!
We have our gallows erected for our prophets,
And the slaughterhouse of the world, populated by heroes *

"The Force is but a passing vibration, which exhausts itself and transforms! Only Truth and Justice are immortal.
Tice! A time always comes when humanity, so base and so Wicked as she may have been, she feels remorse and avenges the martyrs.

on the memory of the executioners, when she has not avenged on their own soil. Alfaro, like the others, will replace Victor Vivar at the gallows and the slaughterhouse! And the five

ER names ce racer er ere eme ene

DA

From nm nn

78 MEANS OF ANNIHILATING JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE.

5° In all legislative elections, department-local and communal elections, Catholics will impiously refuse to give their votes to Freemason candidates and Jews.

All these wishes, these projects that complement each other by the others, fit perfectly into the vast project of the national blockade against the Jew.

But this blockade, in order to be effective, will, in our opinion, need to attacking the Jew in each of his hiding places, that is to say to reach him on each of the avenues of France where he is posted to suck up the national life in passing.

Hence, the need to subdivide this second means into as many parts as France has main arteries: pales. We will review them as in the pre-Part one.

fingers on which his butcher's hatred was satisfied, the Posterity will never cease to slap his cowardly face. Who is speaking like this?

The whistleblower from Pañama, at the podium, the former deputy Mr. Juies Delahaye from Chinon.

CHAPTER II

HOW TO DEPLOY THE JEW FROM FRANCE MOBILE ERA
j AND REAL ESTATE

"The Jew steals from us under cover of darkness," he said. Mr. Chabry, let's force him to act in full view: that can be done in two ways: 4° by creating a movement-opinion tending to eliminate all modes of transmission secret mission of securities and movable assets, by example: the liters to the bearer; ® while fighting at our-trance the bill, drafted in the lodges, sucker-synagogue halls, tending to mobilize wealth iminobilier herself.

So much for the shadowy flights, and so much for the flights in broad daylight (the Jew steals in every way):

1. Obtain the removal of the mortgage owed by the Jew uses it to seize what little land we still have left of France. The Steator estimates mortgage loans at 13 billion library assistants. Would it be an exaggeration to attribute one to the Jew? half?

2. To prohibit Jews from owning land, except within the limits of which each municipality would be judge and, above the municipality, the department and the State (Chabry).

PT NN Te RNA D Le Pope T ag ee

CHAPTER IV

HOW TO DISMISS THE JEWISH FROM MILITARY FRANCE

4. To expel the Jews from the ministry as quickly as possible of the War, where the love of profit inspires them to traffic-To quarrel with the enemy of our military secrets. Dreyfus!

% Not to admit them to teaching or examination positions better in our military schools than in the proportion-tion of their number, one in three hundred and not two in four, as has been seen, not so long ago-time, at the École Polytechnique exams.

3. To avoid preferential treatment, never grant to Jews preferential treatment in admission to grades.

4 For those who have legitimately earned their ranks, to keep them as far away as possible from the garrisons of the front whole, all the more so, never invest them in it from-superior command'; we can guess why!

5. Never admit them into the secrets of our Military organization: port defense, mobilization plans Lisstion, naval arsenals, foundries, cannons, ma-arms manufacturing, etc.; especially the ministries of the War and Navy, once purged of Jews, did not no longer admitting them, under the pretext of politics, as Bourgeois made the ministry for the Jew Lockroy*.

6. That the military administration avoids conceding to Jewish trade unions, such as the Hermedinger trade union, Sarda And here, for leather, summer, like the Dreyfus syndicate

{ As the Jew Lockroy does today for the Jew Ignace, his head of the kennel,

HOW TO ELIMINATE THE JEW 81

Erlanger, etc., for forage and oats, the mono-military supply hub that it is impossible to to obtain them other than damaged and at exorbitant prices, 'Above all, in the best interests of the nation' to the Jewish Dreyfus syndicate, in short order "owner of the Corbeil mills, has supplies of wheat and flour wartime.

Should we even need it?

Would he have an ounce of patriotism?

7° That the military administrations, with regard to their jurisdiction, avoid, especially at the German border order, to obtain meat from the Jews, who all | hold the specialty of {soldier meat.

8. Promote by all means, press, conferences, etc. rences, etc., adoption first by public opinion, by the Chambers then, of the Michelin bill, which aims to purpose: 4° to declare inaccessible to military employment naturalized French citizens and their descendants of foreigners up to the sixth generation; ® prohibit to state dignitaries, to army officers land and sea and to certain officials to contract Marriage with foreign women, even salaried ones, and descendants of foreigners up to the fourth generation.

That's all for the defenders of the ground, let's move on to those who
They cultivate it at the cost of their daily sweat.

N, remove Erlanger, etc., auction of 8 instead of Paris, in to insinuate it to whom

{ When they do not refuse to "submit a bid to the minis-French wartime supplies that they submitted
"They are assigned to the German War Ministry," as if that arrived at a trading house in 1891, as witnessed by Signing of Mr. Rouanet, at the podium, on June 1, 1897 (See "France ay ricole)."

in

JEWISH KING, – 6

A me marne mme en neneee Le à

CHAPTER V

HOW TO EMPTY THE JEW FROM AGRICULTURAL FRANCE

The farmer needs three main things which.
provide the Jew with the opportunity to ruin him: 4° means production {chemical fertilizers, seeds, tools agricultural); 2° money to buy them; 3° a com-honest merchant to whom he could sell himself in a remunerative manner nératrice the product of her field and her work.

The means of production? The Jew is there to provide them.
to offer at three times their value. Money? The Jew has plenty of it
His pockets are full; but he only gets out at 40 or 20 0/0 (600 0/0 in Algeria). The purchase of the products? The Jew still takes care of it, but at a price that suits him.
comes, thanks to the hoarding unions.

How will the farmer get rid of this?
vermin?

It's very simple: I will flush out the Jew from the first position (means of production) through the intermediary, disinterested in this law, from the agricultural union, which will provide everything he needs, at exorbitant prices advantageous arrangement, on the express condition that the Jew
He himself is not in the union, of course.

11 will dislodge the Jew from the second position (borrowings of money: through the rural fund. This fund, which does not function-ordinarily functions only within the limits of a com-municipality: 4° only admits honest people, known for such as: done, no Jews: 2° it offers loans at will so much father er

EE
SP AA 9 mem forward.

has

HOW TO EMPTY THE JEW 83

in the short or long term, depending on the interests of the em-lenders. So it excludes Jews who only lend to long term and with a view to their personal interest; 8° it never lends at a rate higher than 5%, but often lends at a lower, ordinary rate.
4 0/0. So for the third time she excludes the Jew whose Loans typically vary from 12% to 30%, when they do not exceed it, as in Algeria, where the average rate varies from 450 to 800 0/0.

While the rural bank has nothing in common with the Jew,

This does not mean that the Jew is uninterested in the rural bank.

He's even too interested in her. Sensing the truth in her, the only solution from Crédit Agricole, he has already considered it to seize control of the leadership and the propaganda movement, to the detriment of Mr. Louis Durand, the producer and the Promoter of these wonderful cars in France!

Unfortunately for him, fortunately for us! the Jew showed the tip of the ear, which allowed Mr. Louis Durand to oust him definitively of his work.

It was at the Crédit Agricole Congress in Toulouse. in 1893.

The Jew Benoît-Lévy made Mr. Louis Durand laugh the most a picture of France's future, which would inevitably result- blement, he said, of the union of their common efforts to improving the lot of the agricultural class!

Mr. Louis Durand, who loves the people, was for a moment touched by so much concern; but only for a moment: he he soon realized that the Jew's concern for the plowman there was a lot of analogy with that The wolf for the sheep! And he separated himself from this strange creature. friend of the people!

TRUE mn a AA +

8% OF THE MEANS TO ANNIHILATE JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

This did not bring him bad luck: the monthly Rulletin | from the Union of Rural Credit Unions, dated May 1896, recorded the foundation of the 441st rural bank and the following result of one year (1895) of operations of the first funds

founded:

4° Number of meribres: 5,479;

2. Total operations performed: 1 million 466 mize
744 francs 94 centimes;

3. Number of loans to members: THIRTEEN HUNDRED AND FOUR RANTE QUARE (4.344);

& Profits from the funds: 3,553,000 FRANCS 24 CEN*
TIMES:

For his part, the Jew Benoît-Lévy was doing well at to found, within the same timeframe, a dozen cash registers at maximum capacity, which we do not know, and for neither the number of members nor the number of operations. The Jew was beaten down, this time, by a Frenchman and a good French.

It goes without saying, in praise of Mr. Durand, that one of the last-last assemblies of French Farmers (the one which thanked Rothschild; proclaimed in his system Rural credit unions: the solution from Crédit Agricole!

4 On December 15th, Mr. Méline, President of the Conseil, recommended the Bank of France, forgetting that the Bank of France is Jewish.

The following day, December 16, Mr. de Claye replied to Mr. Méline, in the Moniteur universel, in a masterful article which is almost entirely here:

"While the ministries have always promised, without never hold, the private initial would get to work.

"Mr. Milcent fonilail, the bank of the district of Coligay in the Jura, others were founding trade unions,

"Finally, the so-called faitfeisen system, which had already given in neighboring countries the measure of services that it is

HOW TO REMOVE JULF 85

Finally, the farmer will dislodge the Jew from his third position (purchasing monopoly) by obtaining power
"public views the pure and simple application against all -hoarding syndicates (of wheat, flour, called upon to render, found in Mr. Louis Durand, of Lyon, a ardent supporter; the advantages of the "Rural Funds" of this type made a strong impression; their development was fast. .

"Yesterday, Mr. Méline said before the committee of the Chamber that "about a hundred small local banks"

"They exist and are functioning." The information is inaccurate. given that it is incomplete: not to mention the institutions established on different bases, the Union of Rural Credit Unions that Mr. Louis Durand heads counts on its own, from the outset presently, approximately five hundred affiliated branches (more precisely- tement, 546, on January 1, 1897).

"The solution lies in development and popularization" of these free works. This is about the Bank of France and the renewal of its privilege that the problem of Crédit Agricole is in turmoil again right now. Well! It is not possible for the Bank to enter directly into rapport with the cullivaleurs; she doesn't know them, nor can she to know them,

"Where we understand that here we are thinking mainly of small-scale cultivation" vateur, the one that seems to us most worthy of interest. The large landowner whose estates cover vast areas Expenses of territory find and will always find credit: it is not at his occurrence that the question arises in complex terms. May: here is the owner of some hectares of land; he works his plot by the sweat of his front; a portion of his gain, and the net one, is absorbed burdened by taxation: add that, when he inherited this plot of land or that through persistent labor he succeeded in the increase to begin a new field, he had to fight against rapa- cited by the tax authorities, which, in the form of transfer taxes, has awarded the revenues for one or more years. A bad- The harvest is coming: this farmer needs to find a He doesn't have much money, otherwise he'll be forced to sell his property.

8 M one does not

D

86 MEANS OF ANNIHILATING JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

oats, hops, etc.) of the existing just law designed as follows:

Ant. 419. - "All those who, by assembly or coalition

A ridiculously low price. Or perhaps he needs an advance payment to... procure either fertilizers that will double the yield, or remedies that will preserve his vine: or, if one prefers—brother, he would like to take advantage of a favorable circumstance to buy animals that he will care for and then work with a profit. This peasant, make no mistake, is Jui which makes the country's fortune; it is the true strength of France; It is the number. But how can we expect the Bank of France, which is opening its borders? The operation should be supported. subjecting it to formalities that would most often make it impossible and outside of which, however, the Bank would expose himself to perilous adventures,

“But that the loan, instead of being requested by the only—Hivateur fui-même, le soit par un de la caisses locales don: il was mentioned above, acting on her behalf for her account in Jui, Easy test to inquire about solvency from the cash register; those we mentioned a moment ago offer by their very constitution the most absolute and which can be called superabundant. The Bank of France can complete their paperwork under certain conditions. Complete security.

Let us hasten to multiply them, to make them accessible (all those concerned, and there will no longer be any excuse to do State intervention regarding agricultural credit. Mr. Méline left Seeing yesterday that he was haunted by the thought of establishments of the state; he would want one or more. For us, who doesn't We will not see this news without serious concern. We take note of state interference in our affairs. Words from Mr. [Name], President of the Council, to urge friends of the grievance of redoaber of activity for the creation of prized crates. 1 depends on enx, and it belongs to them to to take the initiative so that, on the day the State wants to dra extends his heavy and sterilizing hand over this domain, finds the space taken.

The small local banks, the rural credit unions, will not have

HOW TO EMPTY THE JEW 87

'between the main holders of the same brand—merchandise or goods, tending not to sell it or not selling it at a certain price will have brought about the increase! due to the drop in food prices (this is the case for the "Agricultural exploiters will be punished with an em—

"imprisonment for at least one month, at most one year and "A fine ranging from 500 to 10,000 francs."

There is another decree that we do not want to invoke—querici, although it has not been repealed, as far as we know.

He was a member of the Convention (July 26 and 28, 1793).

Here it is:

Anr. 4e. — Hoarding is a capital crime.

Anr. 2. — The following are found guilty of hoarding those who divert goods from circulation or basic necessities that they buy and hold locked up in some place, without putting them back in daily and public sale...

Anr. 4. — Goods and foodstuffs of the first order
The necessities are: bread... grains, flours, ... oil (the oil), copper, electricity.

We issue this decree without comment and without requesting its application, which would be contrary to our motto: Servetur J'udinis vita, auferalur eis pecunia.

But we invoke Article 419, which is clear and has It needs no comment. It only needs to be applied.

Until the judiciary decides to do so, we advise the farmer to follow punctuality—

AREA

only then returned to the farmers F'inappréi ble service of providing them with useful credit; they will have rendered Island an even more valuable service, perhaps, of having prevented a State control over agriculture, »

And even more so, we might add, the control exerted by the Jew, eu mms arme mom n ed

HAS
Mr. RM

88 MEANS OF ANNIHILATING JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

ment, with regard to the sale of its grain, *
Mr. Cevaux's excellent advice in his brochure: the Bié at 27 francs, advice which obtained, like the cash registers:
rural areas, the approval of the entire ARR of France, and here is the substantive:

"The farmer, by letting his own people eat his wheat
"Livestock, instead of selling it to the Jew, will find in "This food, the considerable profit that the Jew makes "was allocated to the sale price: 27 francs instead
"49, or 8 francs per bag taken from the Jew."

The demonstration that follows seems conclusive. A word to the wise.
farmers that we leave, on this precious indication, to move on to the merchants. (Versailles, printing press) merie Luce, 7, rue Saint-Pierre. Price: 1 fr. 50.)

CHAPTER VI

HOW TO OUT OF FRANCE THE JEW COMMERCIAL

Here, we must admit that it is currently quite good
It is difficult to completely eliminate the Jew from commerce or companies designed to promote it.

It was only at the time of the great liquidation that one will be able to remove its acquired monopolies: for example, means of transport: shipping companies, of railways, etc.

But, apart from acquired monopolies, there are monopolies to acquire, and that the Jaifs are indeed thinking of acquire, commercial projects, channels, railways, etc., to be built, for example, in Tonkin, in Algeria, and especially in Madagascar.

Now, from these monopolies, the Jews can and must be
They have been dismissed as of today.

This is what the nefarious [people] in Madagascar failed to understand.
Laroche, who was in no hurry to give in to ridiculously low prices for huge land concessions.

the Englishman Coriolis, to build railways there.

(Juan to the commerce itself, apply to 'syndicates for hoarding raw materials, where Excellent, the Jews, Article 419 above of the law against the hoarders.

Moreover, under pressure from public opinion, a good little
The article must be voted on by the Chambers and inserted in the Official Bulletin.
The fate of the laws concerning the stock exchange. This

EEC

90 MEANS OF ANNIHILATING JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

The article could, for example, punish with forced labor.
in time those who, through unfair maneuvers, falsify
The courses: this would prevent similar catastrophes.

to that of the coffee crash in Le Havre, the wheat crash in Paris, etc.

Finally, it is necessary to obtain, by all means, what we have found power, the elimination of 6 futures markets, including the
The only result is to encourage Jewish speculation.

In less important places, at fairs and markets, in large and small stores and bazaars, and no prices will be dealt with by Jews. Signa-Let us mention here several good initiatives: 4° the Directory of Fraternal Union of Commerce and Industry, inau-managed by Mr. Léon Harmel, who offers every year to all the Catholic clientele of France, more than 40,000 names Catholic merchants or industrialists;

2 Similar directories published in the departments ments for the special needs of customers and Catholic merchants or industrialists of these departments tements, in the ÆRhône and in the Isère for example:
Excellent idea that we would like to see become more widespread.

throughout France t.

A group from Lille has just launched a project in the North.
an appeal that we would like to see acclaimed from one end of the France to the other, through all the admirers of Jeanne d'Aré, sincerely jealous, like her, of returning France to French, here it is:
or, confident in your traditional valor, we come to warn you of a formidable enemy and to beg you to...
to help fight it.

That enemy is the Jew!

The Jew, -- whom you enrich, women and daughters of somuereants, -- and which, by the establishment of devastating bazaars teurs. fa inise implementation of unfair methods, the opening of irregular liquidations and scandalous bankruptcies, led your fathers and your husbands to ruin.

HOW TO EMPTY THE JEW 94

The day when there is in each department a Catholic directory of Commerce and Industry, the large and small Jewish businesses, large and small Jewish industry will have survived; but on one condition

The Jew, -- to whose crooked fingers you leave the gold of your alms-grooms, patronesses, and nuns of all Orders, -- and which, in the Press and the Public Authorities, by hateful incitements and legal persecution, porno-writing and divorce, strives to reopen the wounds that you you want to heal and pile up moral ruins on our soil, alongside the material ruins of the Gold Mines and Panama.

The weapon to fight him is in your hands; oppose him
Jewish solidarity, Christian and French solidarity.

Address yourself exclusively to your fellow citizens; spread our ideas, and use the best means of propaganda; pr-
For example,

Thanks to you, the insolent Jewish predestination Stern turned around-nera against those who brandish it over our heads. In
In twenty years, if they want to live, the Jews will have taken to the road again.
ghettos in Germany, from where, most often, they were
Out! » |

(A group of French people from France.)

1. We should mention here the directory intended to complement that of Mr. Harmel: the French Jewish indicator with the names and Addresses of all Jews living in France, published by those who have already published the Lyon Israelite Indicator {See p. 71}. We refrain from judging the method of execution of the project. But the idea is excellent, judging by the fear that it inspired in the Jews, even before it was realized:

Five Jews, Dreyfus and Simon (from Lyon), Salomon, Weil and Deutsch (from Dunkirk), obtained from the civil court of Lyon that their names do not appear in the Indicator.

Here are the considerations:

"Whereas Dreyfus is justified in preventing a publication Inpiscukre penetrates his private life and does not betray the secret of his religious beliefs;

That this advertisement, from another point of view, in a a time when religious and political passions are often

has

92 MEANS OF ANNIHILATING JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE -

However, the essential point is that the big and small Catholic merchants and industrialists will themselves have-Even union members, to do their shopping like the Jews.
In large quantities, deliver them to the scrap yard as cheaply as they do.
"Impossible," a shopkeeper recently told us.

"in Lyon silks to compete with the Jews,

"With their capital they buy huge stocks"

"of goods and at a price like no other"

"can deliver to other retailers who take

"smaller quantities: hence the Jewish superiority in the

"Cheap at retail!"

That 1:3 non-Jewish merchants unionize their capitals rates for making such large bulk purchases than the Jews; they will be able to sell retail at just as good market than them. And then the Catholics will be truly-consciously obliged to approach the merchants sure.veitées, could, by reporting him as an Israelite at Lanino-city (some people, harming their interests, pro professional and financial, he declares, 'summer.'

*

La Croir du Var adds this reflection to which we we ass0Cions:

"The Jews are therefore exactly like the Freemasons,"
We harm them as soon as we make them known. Their pro-professional and financial considerations urgently demand that you to mistake them for what they are not, one cannot therefore-how to crack down too hard on indiscreet people (the word Isn't he charming?) who betray them.

They are, damn it! not flattering to the Jews, you know, the judges of Lyon. They teach us, in fact, without To be clear, the Synagogue is like the Lodge, that the Talimidian cult is as unmentionable as Freemasonry-naughty and that on pain of discrediting oneself It is irrevocably something that can only be practiced in secret.

Thank you for the information!

(January 19, 1897.)

of ar ne

HOW TO EMPTY THE JEW 93

Catholics! Otherwise, the obligation is less strict-reuge.

This is one side of the issue, too generally neglected, and we would gladly see the Catholic congresses _ the events that are taking place, right now, pretty much everywhere,

- to consider it with all the importance it entails.

At the same price and with the same quality, it is quite obvious that non-Jews will have to abandon the Jews to go preferably to those of their own race.

Until then, they might well continue to say: The sympathies after money, like the pagans of Rome, who used to say: virtue after money.

However, the Jews speak and act differently—ment: Tauberbote Island, cited by the C'oix (September 28, 1893), assures that the head of the Jewish community of Jerusalem forbade his fellow believers from buying from Christians or Muslims, whatever they could to obtain from the Jews 7...

In the meantime, the means for merchants, I:
you ask, to compete with the Jews in | provincial cities, such as Nevers, for example, where the Cohn & Co. Company, at the carrar. bE 44 MILLIONS, è has just installed a bazaar designed to absorb all the Customers of other merchants? This method? Outside
We do not see the one we advocate.

ER me fo me eee à

=

er mm

CHAPTER VIII

HOW TO OUT OF THE JEW OF INDUSTRIAL FRANCE

Here are the monopolies by which the Jews ruin the France are of two kinds: those attributed to them by government and those they assign to themselves, of by the right of the strongest.

In the first case, to create, as is mainly done by Free Speech, with independent newspapers, a mou—a shift in opinion that forces the government to remove them to these monopolies or at least to demand that they apply tion of strict regulations concerning the hygiene of their monopolized farms? Regarding the manufacturing—For example, why not require the use of matches?
the use of a harmless phosphorus instead of that who claims so many victims every year?

The Jews resist, they have the press; but they do not have Not quite all of them, thankfully! May the press be free shouts, storms, sings to them daily in their ears
Their abuses; they will eventually be moved by them.

In the second case, where does the hoarding of mines and sugar refineries, the monopolization of brass instruments, etc., apply purely and simply to the accessories pareurs the existing law against monopolies (art. 419 of the { Penal Code). to

To prevent capital syndicates aiming at the seizure-facing of an industry, such as refineries, oil- r Xe ries, sicarinerics of Le Havre, Quévilly, etc., their pres- a

|
|
|

To A rt AGP SE A arr as ta FTURS è Era

HOW TO EMPTY THE JEW 95

; 'write a maximum capital amount (in cash or real estate) that the Society will never be able to exceed under penalty very severe: for example, the confiscation of sums
- exceeding the authorized capital. This project is otherwise benign than the decree of the Convention (July 26 and 98, 1793)
-'establishing the penalty denort.

CHAPTER VIII

HOW TO ELIMINATE THE JEW FROM MINERAL FRANCE

To detach the Jew from it: 1° Dispossess him of all the mining concessions where procedural flaws will be discovered,
And we'll always find some, it's so easy!

We started with the Bertegnas, the Thompsons of Al.
management for the phosphate mines, thanks to the energetic
Mr. Jean Drault's campaign; continue with the concessions- | nickel mine workers in New Caledonia, if possible.

go Obtain, through a good little law, the prohibition at% Jews, whoever they may be, new mining concessions.

Perhaps in this way we will save what remains of us. Mineral wealth in French soil. We save- We will surely find those that our new colony holds. of Madagascar, unless the officials protest- tants (friends of the Jews) do not meet Englishmen, | like Coriolis, on their path!... i.e. I

3. Eliminate public limited companies, which allow the shareholders and especially directors to assign themselves the 99 hundredths of a profit obtained primarily by the the miner's work, to whom only the last cent- tième (Canon Dehon, Usure au temps présent, p. 39). :-

Or, these companies could be regulated as in England. where they must draw up a list of their shareholders. at least once a year, establish the amount of capital the company's nominal value, and how many shares it is divided into. the number of shares already subscribed, the amount of calls made on each one.

In this way, Jews operating openly will be able to dif- easily fiddle with at their leisure (Wear in the present tense).

CHAPTER IX

HOW TO OUT OF COLONIAL FRANCE THE JEW

How to remove it from Algeria specifically? How to... preserve Madagascar?

In Algeria, effective means have been emerging since the municipal elections, which brought in majorities- anti-Semitic rituals at the councils of Biskra, Tébessa, and Batna, Philippeville, Constantine, Ain-Beïda, Bordj-Bouïra, etc.*.

The Constantine city council has just addressed another, even more effective, means in the vow issued by him on May 18th regarding the repeal of the Cré- decree better.

Until then, let the Jews be rigorously required to...

conditions which, according to this decree, allow them to benefit from the title of French citizen.

Especially since the government itself is giving the nod: for example, and stop sending Jewish officials there. or friends of the Jews; better than that, that he operate gradually- ...the replacement of those already there. Alas! the rap-

Mr. Humbert's pel, the anti-Semitic prefect of Constantine, of Mr. Cambon, Governor of Algeria, highly esteemed, his replacement by Mr. Lépine first, then Mr. Laferrière Especially since the legislative elections of May 1898, truly triumphant, through the election of the leader of the anti-Semitism.

Bat 7

ENA YOUR ss

98 MEANS OF ANNIHILATING JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

that there is nothing to hope for

Then, all of this warns us
Deo-Mason, even if it's a half-:.

similar to a government ju

Dupuy ministry.
Against Jewish bankers, we would know nothing.

recommend better options to Algerian settlers and to:
Arabs that the rural funds that will allow them to ob-" to hold, at most, the money that they do not:
lend only at least 300 0/0.
As for the government, let it remove the Jews from Algeria.
So be it! And we will applaud it, but let it not be, of Thank you! To send it to Madagascar, otherwise the Queen the islands would, after ten years, be nothing more than a colony-Jewish church under the control of Jewish France.

The government will especially have to refuse to Jews any concession of colonial territory or businesses in the public interest, at any price; that price would be: always lower than the postage price than the The colony would cost us more later. He will still have to... to monitor Jewish land grabs with all the rigor of Article A9 of the Penal Code.

The natives or the French colonists will have to- to follow everywhere, like Mr. Jean Drault in Algeria, a an anti-Semitic campaign, which is bound to succeed to the same result: the Jewish debacle.

Generally speaking, the French of the colony should draw inspiration from all the methods recommended here to kill Jewish influence or prevent it from arising among them. But let's get back to the Metropolis, which we are...

we are "in a distant infant.

ms

CHAPTER X

HOW TO REMOVE THE JEW FROM FINANCIAL FRANCE

This, above all, as we have said, is the true throne of the A Jew, a throne where he reigns as an absolute king. Let us restore his kingship. constitutional, by submitting its financial operations subject to draconian regulations, either at the Stock Exchange, either at the Bank of France, as in the Banks | individuals and all financial companies, whatever that is, the name with which the Jew decorates them.

For the Stock Exchange: 1° Impose heavy taxes, even better eliminate futures markets, which only benefit Speculation: 2° imposing exorbitant fees on brokers amounts on each operation, which will slow down their zeal to luring the gullible with the bait of the Jew.

For the Bank of France: since it has been renewed its privilege, expiring on December 31, 1897, to issue banknotes with a value exceeding its cash balance, at least expel the regent baron as soon as possible Alphonse de Rothschild.

We agree with the anti-Semitic MP here.

Boisset, who was saying in Chalon-sur-Saône, at a meeting public (June 1893):

"Mr. de Rothschild has a fortune of 3 billion (rather the double).

"He has the Bank of France right under his feet." (Lively) (Applause.)

100 Ways to Annihilate Jewish Omnipotence

"He is cosmopolitan, he is in London, in Vienna, in | Berlin. | ;

"Many companies were created that stole
The money of the naive.

"We must fight this entire horde of Jews. (Applause)" (dissements.) |

"We must destroy the power of these wretches."
Israelites.

"They are not French!" (Unanimous applause) (ments.) They are German, English, Austrian.

"Focus your efforts, not only between Republicans, but among all honest people for prepare and peacefully carry out the transformation social. »

We remember this phrase: "Rothschild owns the bank."
of France beneath his feet."

Therefore, he must be dethroned.

For individual banks: 1° impose on
The chambers steal it and the government applies it.
new laws aimed at severely punishing dishonest operations, however rigorous—"compliant with the letter of the law, if they are not in accordance with its spirit; 2 to divert by all means the farmer of these banks, which are ruining him, and bring him to the rural banks, which will save him.

The day there is a rural savings bank in every village,
Let us repeat, the Jewish banks will have had their day.

For public limited financial companies, the regulations-ter as mentioned above (France minérale);
Better yet, delete them.

Finally, regarding the values directly:
monétaires, working with Mr. Chabry and the National Leaguebimetallic joint, to the prompt recovery of the bimetallic

HOW TO OUT OF THE JEW | 101

Talism, which, establishing a fixed ratio between gold and
The money will prevent its depreciation in favor of
... of that one, therefore, the meddling of the Jews who
* benefit from the difference, in perpetual exchanges
: relations between countries with gold currency and countries with currency of money: triplantations which have as a counter-coup, as well as Mr. Chabry proved it, the depreciation of agricultural products _schools, that is to say the ruin of our 23 million farmers French authors.

CHAPTER XI

HOW TO ELIMINATE THE JEW | OF ADMINISTRATIVE FRANCE

© Here, we will say only one word: No more Jews in
"Of Administration!" That is the cry that must resound from the top.
at the bottom of the social and administrative ladder, until this that satisfaction be given!
"Out with the Jews!" That is the mandate the voters gave.
must impose on their members of parliament that the members of parliament must impose on the government.
No more Jews in government ministries! No more Jews in...
The judiciary! No more Jews in public education!
to the War Department, to the Fine Arts Department!, to the Roads and Bridges Departmen
No more Jews at Polytechnique or Saint-Cyr! No more Jews in the Council of State!
At most, the French will be able to momentarily-how to tolerate Jews in their synagogues, and again, ':
on one express condition, that their rabbis be appointed on the basis of strict equality, from the point of view of the treaty-liar and government favors, with the priests of the French clergy! Tux
This is the necessary purification that we must solicit-to quote, which we must obtain and which we will obtain when we wish, by our sole right of Sovereign People! It will suffice for us to will it, through that.

Thank God! | ë

3. It is said that "art has no homeland," which is possible; but The artist has one, and if this artist does not love the Fatherland, who.

'I welcomed him, the Fatherland must reject this artist as the prince
The main point rejects the accessory, just as need sacrifices pleasure.
The nation needs French people and has no need for artists.

CHAPTER XII

HOW TO OUT OF THE JEW POLITICAL FRANCE

'Political France understands, as we know:,, the Pou-See the executive and legislative branches. We have just seen in administrative France the means of purging the Pousee exculif.

The legislative power remains! It resides in the municipality, the | municipal council and its mayor; in the borough borough council; in the department, the council general; in the Nation, the Chamber and the Senate.

For all French voters of the first or the Secondly, the watchword should be something like "more"
Top: More Jews in the nation's councils!
last council of the last commune in France until-than at the Palais-Bourbon and the Palais du Luxembourg!

Let us hasten to add that the thousands of Jews defeated in the last municipal elections are a a valuable clue that the watchword has already been sounded and that The execution period begins!

But, let us hasten to admit, none of these means none of the recommended methods, without exception, will be effective unless supported, fortified, encouraged by a means that dominates them all, who governs them all, who gives them all life, and without which they all fainted.

This powerful tool is the PRESS!!!

CHAPTER XI

HOW TO REMOVE THE JEW FROM THE PRESS

Crémieux said it to the Jews, we repeat it to the French çais: Look at everything else as nothing, the consideration Or contempt as nothing, positions as nothing. Look:
the press as a whole, because with the press we will have everything else.

They have the press and everything else. With the others, we
We have just seen it, alas! Is it not right that we Should we have the press and everything else at home?

But how do we take back this press that they gave us?
stolen, with which they stole everything else from us?

By correcting ourselves of the two flaws that the clear-Jewish divination itself has pointed out to us what we
We thank her at the beginning of this second part, and that We repeat here, completing the passage:

FIRST DEFECT =

"It's about living day to day, without lofty views of The causes or the effects, the past or the future.

"How else would they have allowed us (that's the.
(A Jew who speaks of what he knows) with such indifference, to seize control of the press, this crucial means of...

domination? . ;

._"Because it is from the top of this observatory that we can

HOW TO OUT OF THE JEW 105

we will report the slightest hostile phenomenon and suppress it in its germ.

SECOND FLAW

This is the difficulty with which non-Jews decide to make a financial sacrifice to support their cause

| in the newspapers.

We cannot limit ourselves to one thought here: who are we will never reveal the sums spent by the Jews on Saving Dreyfus, the traitor? 37 million in October 1898.

according to Mr. Judet!

1 A hostile phenomenon is, for example, assassination in Ecuador, by journalist Vivar, August 6, 1896.

His crime? He had fought against Judeo-Masonry, like Garcia Moreno, twenty-five years ago.

He was therefore destined to die like him, and on the same day (August 6).

He did indeed die, mutilated by government assassins—" rate, of the five fingers that had held the pen for Islands

To fight: he was refused a priest!

... This "phenomenon" was indeed hostile to the servants of the Jewish community; therefore, to the Jewish community itself; and it had to be stifled

But not a single Jewish newspaper—not one, do you hear?—did any of them whisper a word.

It took the publication of the crime by Croix for it to be recognized.

nût in France.

Another hostile phenomenon is the danger that Europe

And the world believes in Dreyfus's guilt!

And then the Jewish news agencies published it worldwide, — news like the following, from the Jew Baccani, correspondent-reporting from the Havas Agency in Buenos Aires:

Paris, October 30.

"The anti-Semitic press is making a futile effort to attack and to accuse the judges of the Court of Cassation... The people are indeed rather willing to admit the guilt or imbecility of the leaders

'From the general staff.'

—The people showed it in the Henry subscription: nearly

The francs collected in ii Lab LEE

106 MEANS OF ANNIHILATING JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

And if they only succeeded partially, it was because they had

This time, the case will be heard by a military tribunal!

Now let us hear from: the Jew Saulus:
"We Jews, with our mercantile spirit,

we know that every note written in our favor, brings us usurious interest. Also NE NÉGEI-LET US MAKE NO SACRIFICE TO SPREAD IT, TO EN-ENCOURAGE THE AUTHOR AND REWARD THE PUBLISHER.

"If, on the contrary, a book appears that is Hostile, we do not buy it, and the publication is delayed:
"NOT TO GO FROM SCUMATURE TO THE PULLING!" (Wücherpille, Mainz newspaper, January 1893).

That's clear! Nothing paves the way better.

4 Another admission, from the same author, in the same article. and the same line of thought, is as follows: "Apart from the
The press clique has rendered the publicist meaningless. We have nothing.
"to organize a conspiracy of silence against him."

See above (p. 63) how the Jews were able to condemn
"To the pulping" Mr. Edouard Demachy's book, on {es Rothschild.

The Jewish press is not only against publicists.
organizing the conspiracy of silence, it is also confringing the social or personal crimes committed by those of his race.
Here is a striking example:
On May 28, 1896, four guards of Baron Henri de Roth-Schild shot a lumberjack around two in the morning without

"work, which involved catching rabbits in the Lys forest (Seine-et-Oise). {They abandoned their victim. Cenefutqwäseptheures
The body was brought to the town hall of La Morlaye that evening.

A crime so contrary to all humanitarian laws

"should have had, it seems, a significant impact."
'But two days later, May 30, 1896, not one. Paris newspaper not a word had been breathed, to our knowledge, not one, if cè-n'est la Libre Parole, d'après le Petit Pontoisien et la Croix.
There she is, caught red-handed, "the conspiracy of silence"
The Jewish press. Re DD te Fun ue

HOW TO OUT OF THE JEW; 107

\
does not better indicate the duty to journalists and readers French newspaper publishers.

Neither group should live without views high, on the causes or on the effects, on the past or about the future.

Both sides should be able to decide without difficulty to make financial sacrifices to support their cause
in the newspapers!

For both sides, it seems to us that these Two tasks must be specified in practice as follows:

4 The French Journalist, whatever his Attributions in the journal, must be seen in this journal a body of work – on which he must undoubtedly live – but a work of art, not a business.

The Administrator must not be at his desk.
like the Jew at his counter; he must be there like the mechanic in front of the firebox of his apostolic locomotive lique (excuse the word!), intended for strolling through the France, the necessary expression of Truth, of Justice
Tice, Fraternity, Charity! | '

The Administrator, imbued with these sentiments, will be able to– Will he then welcome these Jewish announcements (financial or commercial), which reek of lies and iniquity–and give birth to ruin and desolation? PU |

Let us mention here some commendable initiatives taken by several several newspapers, including: {a Croix du Dauphiné, which writes at the top of its columns that "it does not accept at any price
...The announcements of the Jews and the Freemasons"; the Cross
. valenciennaise, which writes at the top of its fourth page:

4. Let us not forget that the Jews are, at this very moment, spent . nearly forty micturations to save the guilty Dreyfus! – :
And we spent one hundred and thirty thousand francs to taüver
'army, which rightly condemned him, from the attacks of the Jews 7

108 MEANS OF ANNIHILATING JEWISH OMNIPOTENCE

"The Valenciennes Cross does not deal with at any price with Jewish houses.

There are still other newspapers, we cannot list them all Name them all.

The French editor should not see in his article daily or weekly, the means to satisfy his glory or ambition, but only to find there the satisfaction of his desires for an apostolate in favor of justice and truth against the Jewish apostolate of theft and lie.

To nurture other concerns is, whether you like it or not willingly, to act not like a Frenchman, but like a Jew... That's for the journalists, let's move on to the readers of newspapers. 4

2 The French Lecteur must never buy, never Read, never distribute, a leaflet written by Jews or drawing inspiration from their feelings. To act differently, under Any pretext, whether we like it or not don't want to, supply the Jews with ammunition war, which they bombard us with daily, is—that is to say, to commit an act of cowardice, compounded by treason. We all, French readers and journalists, must to introduce us to sacrifice, in all its forms: sacrifice— a matter of time, money, goodwill, initiative, of activity, talent, etc., with a view to founding, spreading New anti-Semitic organizations are appearing everywhere. May not a corner of France remain untouched by our zeal. unexplored! and that "the Jewish press, according to the express— Louis Veuillot's slightly modified version, or finally "_drowned in the French press." On that day, Jewish power will have ended; everything will be. ready to erase the last vestiges by the application— "tion of the following remote means:

CHAPTER XIV

DISTANT MEANS OF ANNIHILATING JEWISH POWER

These measures are aimed more specifically at France of soil and large financial or commercial companies ciales, that is to say, France's real estate, agricultural, and viti— Cole, colonial, etc., the major shipping companies

...and railways, etc. They can be reduced to three:

FIRST MEANS

REVISION OF TITLES b & JEWISH PROPERTY, enterprise through the efforts of the anti-Semitic government, which will end soon. or eventually by inevitably coming to power.

SECOND MEANS

© Withdrawal of the decree on the naturalization of the... September 27, 1791, exactly the same as for the decree Crémieux, including the municipal councils of Constantine and Oran have just requested the repeal in Algeria.

THIRD MEANS

For Christians, RETURNING TO THE LAW (not abolished) by the Concordat, which forbids them, among other things:

4. To serve among Jews or to take Jews into service their service;

29 To consult Jewish doctors or to receive them : medicines. Maimonides, the Bossuet of the Jews (and first Saladin's doctor), said: "When one sees an idolater "A Christian in danger of death should not be saved."
:{Jad. Chas., 4, 10.1, f. 40.1); |
Or

_ 440. MEANS OF ANNIHILATING THE OMN GALLOWS

3° To allow oneself to be removed from public office

IN THEIR RESPECTIVE HOMELAND, BY THE FOREIGN JEWS

4° To attend Jewish weddings and their festivals;

8° To accept invitations to dinner or to them.

offer, etc. ns |

If these conditions displease the Jews, who...

to seek a more hospitable land, England 0%

The United States, for example, where customs have so many...

logic with those of Israel? CPE

Curiously enough, this idea is far from displeasing to one a significant portion of the Jewish people, considered, it is true, to from a special point of view of the reconstitution of this people.

Let us listen to Dr. Herzl, promoter of Zionism, to whom |

We leave the unexpected honor; for him and for us,

German

English

Full text of " German Nationalism 1900 "

See other formats

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Part I Page

Early period to 1290: Expulsion of the Jews
Introduction . 3 . 36 Rs et Sk ae a ee at hk oe a ee 0B Early period: mW he Bea Boks Ge Se ye odd
First immigration. go ES "yet e Sey HY cg EB
Kings favor the Jews .. I5
The Church against the Jews. 17
Ritual murders. . ; bi! se ake a aua e Ode Se Ao 8
Advantages come at a price... 2.2. a Nie at a C0
Aaron of Lincoln. foes good a 0L
People and Church in the hands of usurers "20
Popular anger erupts (e.g., ep 8).
Legal status of the J ndgn We ie a Ue we n ES Sek ee a 80 Population figure . . Br er er Au BG
The Jews under John I...» 22... Dr nn. 87
It continues to fester 480
Scandals Goo eee we At AS "Nuremberg Laws" around 1230. 0o he ae a aie Caps tg RS YA
Persecution of Jews... ee ey Ber Lee tee – B0 Harsh laws. . Re 0e GP a ee ae "BD Edward I. in the fight against usury "de, e 0F, a ek 0B0 Judas' answer e ET ;'
The church intervenes. . E ao Sada a eh Be se GN ae a ae er 07.
The expulsion of the Jews 69

Part II

1290 to 1658: The Return of the Jews under Cromwell

5 and without Jews ac e Se es T0
Rigo Lopez – Personal physician to Queen Elizabeth. 0114
Return and second n be ie > ae! ae AD
The Jewish Question in the World in the 17th Century. oc de Ht Amsterdam – Headquarters of World Jewry. . "0
Morrans in England. . 81
Antonio Fernandez Carvajal, the Rothschild of the 17th century 83
Puritanism in favor of Judaism . . 88
Oliver Cromwell ty Bde Re cs like RE ID
Jewish Spies in Cromwell's Service; 388

General support for Cromwell by the Jews 104

Menasseh Ben Israel .

World Jewry at work

Menasseh Ben Israel as spokesman for world Jewry.
The Whitehall Conference. 2
Intermezzo: Prynne, the anti-Jew, and his Wirkea.

Pores of the Whitehall Conference i

The fight continues f

Part III

1658 to 1714: Royal Protectors of the Jews

Jews ally themselves with the Royalists

An attack by the City is repelled.

Charles II, Protector of the Jews

Other friends of Jews: J neo' H, and Wilhelm I.

Renewed fighting . ;

Jiiddic successes = 5

Customs are becoming increasingly uncivilized.

Marlborough, the ancestor of "Winston Churchill's

Part IV

Page

108

114

119

127

185

140

144

157

1714 to 1753: First struggle for emancipation and defeat

of the Jews

The South Seas Scandal

Jews in the Colonies

Preparations of the Jews for their First Emancipation Struggle A

Year of struggle 1753.

Background to the original creation of the Ge-sets;

Sampson Gideon, "The Pillar of Public Credit* .

General Corruption . :

Part V

1754 to 1830: Increasing Influence of the Jews

Judaization of Leading Circles

New wave of immigration

Jews are reorganizing...

Jewish crimes are getting out of hand

Financial Jews . .

Nathan Mayer Rothschild and associates:

Propaganda! – Propaganda! ; ;

Freemasons:

Napoleon and the Jews

London Society for "Promotion of Christianity under"

to the Jews

Laws of Attrition

The City of London – the bulwark of the anti-Semites – falls

Bibliography

Index of persons and subjects

INTRODUCTION

With Edward I, England had a king to whom nothing more could be done.

was closer to his heart than the well-being of his countrymen, who had his own
I put the national interest aside, which was its pursuit sealed the deal with the financially disadvantageous expulsion of the Jews.

The Puritans, inspired by the conviction of being chosen and of divine grace, who bore the lion in their banner
Judas led and many of their teachings in the Old Testament-Those who saw themselves anchored were not only motivated by idealism, but equally for realistic reasons for close common-Society and friendship with their Hebrew brothers. The
The all-powerful Cromwell had to recognize that one power was stronger.
was when he was: the people.

There were rulers in England who offered their favor in exchange for ringing
They sold coins to the Jews, thereby receiving support from a corrupt upper house and parliament, a rotten clergy-
They found it. But the people once again triumphantly prevailed.
Defense – as long as it was strong and healthy and before the seeds sproutedwent, which the Jews had sown.

Judah is the master of the hour in Great Britain.

The doctrine that the English people are one of the lost ten
The existence of the tribes of Israel is not considered a legend there;
It doesn't just haunt the minds of scholars. And for good reason.
There are still countless sects and associations today that serve to
The spread of this belief is based on the fact that its speakers...
The edification of idlers in Hyde Park with angelic tongues that
The theory seeks to prove that Englishmen and Jews only have one They had a father. All people are brothers. Racial terms are dead.

And the English royal family?

Jacob, his head resting on a stone, had a dream, so
The Old Testament reports that this stone later served as an altar.
in the Temple in Jerusalem, and when it was destroyed, An- rescued Members of the tribe of Dan took the stone and carried it on their They fled with them. They tried to reach England by sea.
They were rich, and only an unfortunate accident forced them to land in Ireland.
When the beautiful Jewish princess, happy about the happy over-
The journey, to which the Irish chieftain was married, served Jacob's Stone as a coronation stone. From this connection of the
The Jewish princess is said to be married to the Irish chieftain.
The current English royal family originated from them. Descendants of the lineage of David...

Jacob's Stone is now located in Westminster Abbey in London.
Judah triumphs. Who still asks why?

And yet, here and there, the old ways are sometimes resurfacing.

Wake-up call loud:
England, wake up!

10

PART I

Early period until 1290 – Expulsion of the Jews
Early History

The beginnings of Jewish immigration to England remain shrouded in complete darkness to this day. Nevertheless – or perhaps precisely because of that – a great deal of effort has been expended.
was done to shed light on the matter.

It was likely due to a clever inspiration from the Jews-lead to, if many English writers') are of the opinion, that the Jews had already travelled by sea in the time of Solomon came temporarily to England to trade. Yes, even serious scientists?) have, under the influence of these ge-Propaganda claimed that the British were protecting themselves from immigration the Angles and Saxons descendants of the so-called lost ten tribes of Israel were, who were taken by the Assyrians into the Ge-were taken prisoner.

It may be briefly mentioned that the word "Britain" according to Jews and friends of Jews, of Semitic origin
It is said that Herodotus referred to the English islands as "Cassiterides". draws, which means something like Tin Islands. This is later in the The Greek language word "Biravvixi" (Britannike) is merely a mutilation of the Hebrew word Barat-Anach had been and must also be translated as Tin Islands').
However, all of this is probably nothing more than speculation, and much-
It is easy to wish that the idea is already there.
Old England had very close ties with the original Jews under-
It should have held.

The first documentary evidence of a Jewish presence in England – very likely as permanent settlers –
They can be found in a law from the year 669. This law, Liber Poenitentialis Theodori Archiepiscopi Cantuariensis Ecclesiae named after the then Archbishop of Canterbury, Theo-

1) Hyamson: History p. 1 ff.

Hyamson: Lost Tribes, Margoliouth Vol. I, p. 1 ff., cf. especially the one in Hyamson
The writer mentioned on page 6.

*) Hyamson: History p.3, and Lost Tribes p. 673 ff., Margoliouth Vol. I p. 22 ff.
Margoliouth Vol. I p. 22 and Hyamson: History p. 1.

11 issued there, and stipulated, among other things, that a Christian woman who accepts gifts from unbelieving Jews or voluntarily with

If they sin (e.g., extramarital sex), they are exempt from the [relevant authority/regulat
To be expelled from the church, to live in the greatest possible sorrow, and then She is to serve nine years. If, however, she marries a heathen, she...
(one, she should be seven years old'). What is interesting here is besides among other things, that associating with a Jew was punished more severely than the one with a despised heathen.

Another regulation stated that anyone who entered the address-contrary to the instructions of the Nikene Synod, Easter with the Jews on Those who celebrate the 14th day of the moon will be excluded from the church.
(which he shall do if he does not repent before his death). Furthermore, a Christian who has eaten meat or unleavened bread from unbelieving Jews accepts bread or drinks with them and adheres to their godless-involved in doing penance for 40 days on bread and water®).
However, if one Christian sells another Christian – even if who is his slave – to a Jew, he shall be unworthy for so long to be among Christians until he redeems the Christians has. If for any reason this is not possible for him, then he should he could spend the prize money he received to buy another person out of slavery.
to redeem and abstain from all meat and wine for three years included").

Finally, it was not permitted to celebrate Mass in a place where Jews or unbelievers were buried').

Under Egbert, the Archbishop of York, who in the time of The period from 735 to 766 is also found in a decree issued by him.
Law, called "Excerptiones Egberti Eboracensis Archiepiscopi", References to Jews. It was determined that no Christian was allowed to do this.
should dare to profess Judaism or to adhere to its principles to participate in festivals'). It was also planned that a Christian, who sold another Christian to Jews, excommunicated
" is done!"). ;

Some argue that these laws are not referred to Jews who had settled permanently in England-held), but then one cannot see why the there-the previous legislature deemed it necessary to enact such far-reaching regulations.
to meet moods. Moreover, this point of contention is likely to be practical-
The matter will be settled by the fact that the aforementioned laws are included.

into the official English collection "Ancient Laws" have found, from which the need for a permanent Regulation results.

) Ancient Laws (Rec. Com.) p. 282, Liber Poenitentialis XVI. § 35
s) Ancient Laws (Rec. Com.) p. 295, Liber Poenitentialis XXX. § 4.
) Ancient Laws (Rec. Com.) p. 300, Liber Poenitentialis XLII. § 1.
7) Ancient Laws (Rec. Com.) p. 300, Liber Poenitentialis XLII. § 3.
8) Ancient Laws (Rec. Com.) p. 303, Liber Poenitentialis XLVII. § 1.
2) Ancient Laws p. 340.

10) Ancient Laws p. 340.

11) So Jacobs p. 3.

I2

In a Jewish book from the year 1575, there is a reference to the fact that in the year 810 many Jews from Germany came to England and fled to Spain to escape persecution'). In-
We will leave open the question of how accurate this information is.

Finally, a law was also to be passed under Edward the Confessor. existed, according to which the Jews were considered the property of the king. and consequently were under his protection), Margoliouth) will not recognize this as valid. A more detailed explanation will follow. However, it is missing. His point of view is likely incorrect, since also This provision has been included in the official collection of laws!

First Immigration

In 1066, William the Conqueror came to England, and after only a short time, a change in the entire English life can be observed. Until the conquest by Wilhelm I. only had very loose ties with the festival-country. Relationships within the country also extended trade hardly extends beyond the individual counties. This took place in the form of the exchange of goods, and the money-
Therefore, circulation was very low.

Wilhelm came from France and therefore laid the foundation stone for the following close relationships between these two countries. Under Norman rule, the Civilization in England, which in turn led to an increase in needs-caused problems. In the following period, difficulties arose. to satisfy these solely through exchange, and the subsequent The demand for readily available cash increased.

In addition, Wilhelm was as a result of the initially still existing hostile attitude of the English population after the Er-
The conquest forced them to have a larger standing army, for what purpose?
But he needed money, which was only available in insufficient quantities.
was available in the country. Also, the funds used to finance the army.
The barons brought in could barely raise the necessary money.
bring about the desire for a monetary economy all-was mean.

The Jews of that time had to an even greater extent than today, trade and finance are in their hands.
However, the number in England may not have been sufficient to...
to meet the demand. It soon became known in northern France, where large settlements of wealthy Jews were located,

Apparently, these Jews followed William the Conqueror.
applied and asked for permission to immigrate to England

- 12) Hyamson: History p. 5, Jacobs p. 4.
- 13) Ancient Laws p. 19.
- 14) Margoliouth: History Vol. I p. 49, Anglo-Hebrew p. 5.

13

to be allowed to"). Various writers") believe that they were even invited by William to do so. You can do this Although they cannot prove it with official documents, they infer it from the host's... economic situation of the country.

Others maintain*) that the Jews should give the king a
A sum of money was paid for immigration.

Most of them came from Rouen. After a short time we find numerous Jews in the cities of England. The first larger ones Jewish colonies were probably located in Oxford and Cambridge was founded, as evidenced by a record of it dating back to 1075.
Remark in a document signed by a "larger number of Jews in Oxford" is mentioned. A similar reference is made regarding Cambridge (existing). That Jewish immigration was considerable was, it follows from the fact that it apparently already in year 1070) proved necessary to change the legal status of the Jews through to determine the law. It was then stipulated that the Jews settled in the kingdom under the protection of the king stands and are his property.

Even at this time, the same signs of the ge-
The behavior of the Jews, which is not unfamiliar to us even today.
Until their expulsion from England, they were a people for themselves. They remained true to their entire way of life, which was fully-They come from the English difference. Without any coercion and Of their own free will, they settled in a special district, and if possible always near the marketplace"). They never cared about the most honorable and the most important concern of a nation: the defense of the Landes?t). In those times of strictest Christianity, they

 They also showed no consideration for the feelings of the people.
 They showed neither the necessary respect for the cross, nor did they allow themselves to hold their religious service with all that is foreign to the British to follow their habits. The deceased Jews were laid to rest.
 buried in special cemeteries, initially only in London."
 The food and drink were also completely different from those of their compatriots.
 Christian neighbors. They declined invitations to a meal.
 to take, which is taken by a Christian in a Christian home-was prepared"), The slaughter cattle had to be under certain conditions Jews were killed during rituals. It was not uncommon for Jews to manage to do so.
 to reject any spoiled food as inedible,
 "However, they offer them to Christians as perfectly good for purchase."

15) Jacobs p. 39, Gross p. 172, Rigg p. 10, Freemann Vol. V p. 818 ff.

15 Margoliouth: History Vol. I p. 50.

17) Prynne p. 2, BB Historical and Law Treatise p. 4.

18) Jacobs p. 4, 5.

19) Margoliouth: History Vol. I p. 52.

20) Abrahams pp. 6, 7, Hyamson: History p. 10, Rigg p. XI.

n? Rogeri de Houedene Vol. II p. 261, Gesta Henrici Vol. I p. 279.

22 con Aa Vol. I p. 182, Rogeri de Houedene Vol. II p. 137, William Malmesbury

23) Abrahams p. 6.

24) Jacobs p. 54, 178 (reference to related documents).

14

There were already many Christian maids and wet nurses in the households of the Jews, who told terrible things about their habits reported").

The Jews of this period are also hardly ever found in any handwork. Even if they are subject to certain provisions.
 the guilds' rights as merchants are subject to restrictions.
 "Laying," they were nevertheless, according to a law of King John I, from

In the year 1201, they were generally free to buy what they wanted. brought, with the exception of certain church properties. It was them However, they are permitted to retrieve the items pledged to them after to sell in one year and one day:").

Kings favor the Jews

Such favorable treatment of the Jews can only be explained by explain their relationship to the royal family at that time. As property They were subject only to the king's jurisdiction. Furthermore, They occupied a special position insofar as they were in Unlike the English, it was permitted to charge interest on loans. to take. Under the protection of the king, the Jews therefore practiced almost exclusively the business of money lending, yes, they They were even encouraged by the king, because he in turn relied on their businesses demanded a certain percentage as a tax. As a result, the Jews were one of his biggest sources of income. sources. Given the scale of their business and the level of interest rates The Jews made huge profits. No law imposed any limits on them. The interest rate was high, and usury was given free rein. Interest rates of 4376% were considered quite common?) and 50 to 80% were by no means rare?). It is therefore not surprising that that the wealth of the Jews was described as quite striking will. They inhabited the most magnificent and at the same time the most stable Houses in the cities of that time, some of which were even intended for shorter stays They were able to withstand a siege. Therefore, the – The population viewed the Jews as intruders and foreign elements. down, especially since the individual Englishman is among the high He was indebted with interest and thus completely at the mercy of the Jews. It is therefore understandable that the outrage against the Jews lasted a long time. sam, but steadily, it rose, although it was not openly displayed, since the Jews as the property of the king, unrestricted protection nossen®), This even went so far that during the time of William the conqueror (1066–1087) and his successor William Rufus ) Gesta Henrici Vol. I p. 230, Rogeri de Houedene Vol. II p. 180.

Cunningham, p. 336 ff.

2) Hyamson: History pp. 8, 9, Rigg p. XII, Select Civil Pleas Vol. I p. 3, Case 7.

28) Rigg p. XIII, Leonard p. 104 ff.

2) Belloc p. 218.

00 Hyamson: History p. 5 ff., Belloc p. 216, Prynne p. 3. `

(1087–1100) the Jews—apart from their fixed taxes—unlike the English, no special had to pay taxes?). William Rufus favored the Jews also generally everywhere, indeed he even occupied himself with their doctrine and came to the decision to convert on the Jewish religion from the result of a scientific study Dispute between bishops and rabbis dependent to do, which he only attended as an observer®?).

The content of the negotiations has been partially preserved and is presented as a time-
"Very interesting document." Even back then, there were arguments about... the value or worthlessness of the Christian and Jewish religions, and both parties claimed victory in these learned Conversations.

In the last years of William Rufus's reign, the Jewish colony of Rouen approached him, requesting to convert to prevent the local Jews from going to the church, since they had made their request with William, who had supported the project with a large sum of money, hesitated. Rufus refused to comply with her wish. Through the strictest He tried to use threats to convert the baptized Jews to their faith. to return*). On this occasion, a single A Jew sixty silver marks if he converts to Christianity- would bring his estranged son back to Judaism. The king was agreed to this deal and had his son presented to him- lead, but he remained steadfast and bravely explained to the king that He didn't understand his attitude towards him. Would he really If he were a Christian, he could not make this request of him. The king then abandoned his plan. The father was However, he became angry and demanded his money back, which he refused. It was refused. Only after lengthy disputes was an agreement reached. (one expects repayment of thirty silver marks®). Prynne®), a 17th-century historian breaks down when recounting the The deeds of the Jews are expressed in the following words: "We may from this learn about the dominance of Jewish money... and work the Jewish money machine has not been used to this day. "So?"

During the reign of Henry I (1100-1135), one hears almost nothing about the Jews, which should be a sign that they continue to pursue their trade and accumulate wealth could. The first documented evidence of this dates back to this period. The presence of Jews in London, as documented in a document, (First time there was talk of a Jewish street?)

In the first years of King Stephen's reign (1135-1154) he-

20 Hyamson: History p. 1

Margoliouth: History Ba. IS

Jacobs pp. 7-12, Holinshed Ba. 8 p. 27 ff.

34) Hyamson: History p. 11, Margoliouth: History p. 54.

35) Margoliouth: History Vol. I 8 56, Hyamson: History p. 12, Prynne p. 5.

36) Prynne p. 6.

Price p. 17.

The Jews continued to enjoy the favor of the royal house and were consequently able to increase their wealth through usury and to increase, but soon a complete change in the situation occurred. conditions.

The Church against the Jews

The Church had initially been quite indifferent to the Jews survived, but in a certain way their early beginnings Settlement in cities is favored. With increasing civilization,- Money transactions were increasingly proving necessary. Since Christians were forbidden from charging interest on loans, Since this was forbidden by church law, it was left to the Jews. Businesses, so that the church was spared having to deal with the matters in question. To amend laws to meet the demands of the times. With In other words, economic development would have led to the up- Lifting the prohibition of interest required, but with the arrival of the Jews It had become unnecessary, as it was preferred to give them the field- (let), This stance of the Church led to the fact that, on the one hand, the Jews increased their wealth day by day through incredible usury. increased, but on the other hand the English were estranged from them- were sucked up and already upon Stephan's assumption of power were completely indebted. The Jews ruthlessly withdrew their payments when they were due. The demands were met and thus the English were driven out of the country. their ancestral lands. Even if they are not They were allowed to be landowners, but that was... The right was granted by the king to pledge land as collateral from their to accept debtors." The Jews could even to appropriate half of the land until the debt is paid off. was"), The Church could not have prevented this impoverishment of the English not indifferent to its own material interests- stand, since under these circumstances they can hardly obtain the rights to which they are was able to collect taxes.

She had probably secretly hoped that, in the course of the Time to convert a large part of the Jews to Christianity. Around the year 1140, and even before, the church had to recognize that their expectations in this regard are not only mistaken were, but that the Jews, in turn, used their money had made successful attempts with the English, to convert them to Judaism*). This led to the dispatch of Priests who, in the cities where Jews lived, vehemently opposed the They preached Jewish doctrine.

p. 8 ff.

a? PC Webb: The Question p. 10 ff., Madox Vol. I p. 168.

41) Hyamson: y p. 22.

Two Jews conquer England in 17

From all this it becomes clear that the church now began to advocate for the to be interested in the Jewish question and the people's aversion to it to exploit purposes. She also encountered other circumstances. benefiting those located outside England.

The movement began at the end of the 11th century. Crusades on the mainland, especially in Germany and France, to spread. There, too, the population was against it. Everything non-Christian was viewed with hostility, and as a result, Everywhere, the long-dormant hatred against Jews was being unleashed. Outbreak, because the Jews also played the role on the continent. Role of the usurer,

The first Norman kings were still too preoccupied with the Consolidating their power in England occupied them more than that could have devoted much more attention to the Crusades movement, but this should have already been done in the first years of Stephen's government They will change. A change was also noticed in him. towards the Jews, especially given the growing aversion of the The people's opposition to them could not remain hidden, even though it Initially, Stephan did not take any major actions. He made it quite clear that he was respecting the wishes of the Be- The population would no longer be an obstacle. The ver- The king's changed attitude resulted from the following:

In 1240, some Jews were implicated as accomplices in a manslaughter. They were found guilty, although they denied the act. The king had However, they were not deterred and were sentenced in London to a Total fine of £2,000, a huge sum for the time. Total,

However, this intervention by the king should be the end of it, although it should not be overlooked that the kings of England at that time financially dependent to a considerable extent on the Jews were.

Ritual Murders

The sources tell us the following incident from the year 1145:

A twelve-year-old boy, the son of a widow in Norwich, was Stolen from the Jews, or, as others say, bought from them – as a sacrifice for their Easter celebration. He was martyred and crucified.
like Jesus Christ; after Easter the body was taken from the cross, put it in a sack and made off with it secretly set off towards a forest." On the way they encountered a

4) Margoliouth: History Vol. I p. 265.

4) Jacobs p. 19 ff., Chronica Jocelini de Brakelonda p. 114.

") Rigg p. XIV, Abrahams p. 10, Hyamson p. 20, Margoliouth: History Vol. I p. 65, ye = af Prynn p. 6, Brompton Col. 1048, Fox Vol. 1 p. 302, Holinshed 00.

18

Birger of the city, who discovered its gruesome burden. The Jews
They fled, taking the sack with them, and hanged the body.
somewhere in the thicket, near a tree. After returning to the
They immediately rushed to the sheriff (justice of the peace) in town, to whom they hun-promised the silver marks if he protected them from the impending de-
The cover-up of her murder protected her. The sheriff's help was bought.
He ordered the citizen who had witnessed the crime, to himself and forced him to swear an oath never in his life to hear anything from to make known what he had seen. Out of fear of the judge.
The citizen remained silent until immediately before his death.
A boy in spirit appeared and asked him to confess everything, since he was no longer bound by his oath. He did as he was told.
be called, and the shameful crime of the Jews was revealed.
covers.

A riot broke out in the town. The sheriff tried to protect the Jews, but was powerless against the mob's fury
And while a large number of Jews were being killed, the
The rest found refuge in flight. The remains of the body were-found and the boy was canonized by the Church®).
Many writers have suggested the truth of this story-doubted. Jacobs") believes it was invented by the church;
Through canonization, she would have achieved that annually-
Many English people would have made a pilgrimage to Norwich, which would have from which they generated large incomes. Any evidence is available.
However, he was unable to present other accounts to support his view.
"state," the story is merely for the simple people.
told, while also often referred to only as a legend.
will be.". However, old sources report unequivocally about that, and also other historical facts.
The accusations leveled against the Jews here appear to be justified.
confirm. On the mainland, the Jews were also subjected to similar treatment.
Accused in a manner that is not uncommon in England either.
Similar atrocities are lacking. Other such murders are also absent.

in Gloucester in 1168), in Bury St. Edmunds in the year 1181%), in Winchester in 119151) and 1232%), in London in Years 12445) and in Lincoln in the year 1255").

The discovery of the murders each sparked a great uproar. in the cities in question, and the Jews suffered considerably to suffer the wrath of the people.

a) Hyamson: History p. 20.

40) Jacobs p. 21. f

7 Rigg p. XIV, Abrahams p. 10.

% Hyamson: History p. 20 ff.

") Historia et Cartularium Vol. I p. 20, Fox vol. I p. 302 col. II.

®) Chronica Jocelini de Brakelonda p. 12, 113/14.

51) Annales Monastici Vol. IV p. 24.

3) Annales Monastici Vol. II p. 86.

) Matthaei Parisiensis Vol. IV p. 377. similar

%0 Annales Monastici Vol. I p. 340, Fox Vol. I p. 423 col. II.

19

Advantages come at a price

Although the Jews still enjoyed the full protection of Henry II (1154–1189) enjoyed®), they were sometimes even forcibly brought to him They were subject to special taxes. In 1168, they were supposed to to raise 5000 marks, which a large part refused to pay, until they saw that the king was serious and, in order to fulfill his demands– To give emphasis to the movement, some rich Jews were exiled.” As early as 1188, they had to pay the enormous sum of £60,000 as pay a special tax to the king.”

Since sums of money will be mentioned several more times in the following, A comparison between then and now would be appropriate. Value is of interest.

Jacobsss) states, with reference to various experts very long and detailed considerations and comes to the conclusion that The result is that the values from back then are now about thirty times higher. correspond. He himself admits to not being entirely sure what it is. also showed in that he had, on another occasion, with fifty multiplied"). l

Despite the aforementioned tax levies, the Jews enjoyed not only continued the protection of the king, but he also approved. They are even granted special privileges by law.

They were placed solely under the jurisdiction of the king and his Judges were appointed and not, as is often the case with the English, under the rights of their respective feudal lord. In legal disputes Among Jews, they had the right to their own judges, as they called their own. They were allowed to swear an oath on the five books of Moses, and only then Jewish law, and not English law, was applied."

In legal proceedings between Christians and Jews, the negotiations took place lungs before mixed courts'), which with an equal

The number of Jews and Englishmen occupied the area. Furthermore, they had the Jews had the decisive advantage over the English-part that "a Jew's oath was worth as much as the oaths of twelve Christians). This different treatment and standard-

The validity of the oath is completely incomprehensible and can probably only be explained

This can be explained by the fact that the king significantly favored the Jews.

pulled to participate in their usurious businesses through their taxes. to have.

Furthermore, the Jew was favored by the fact that in monetary matters he only had to prove the disbursement of the loan, during which the defendant Christian was responsible for all emerging questions. He bore the full burden of proof. These advantages granted to the Jews-

3) Chronicles of the Reigns of Stephen Vol. I p. 280.

36) Gervase of Canterbury Vol. I p. 205.

57) Gervase of Canterbury Vol. I p. 422, Radulphi de Diceto Vol. II p. 4, Tovery p. 14.

58) Jacobs p. 316 ff.

5) Jacobs p. 44.

0) Henriques: The Jews, p. 54.

61) Belloc p. 218.

e) Hyamson: History pp. 9 and 27, Rigg p. XII.

20

The people grew increasingly bitter, and hatred increased day by day. The clergy also addressed a petition to the king and complained (about the fact that the Jews had such privileges-right comrades®),

In 1177, the king showed the Jews further favor, they the burial of their dead in various places in Eng- to allow land, which until then only applied to London®). The historian Prynne expresses his surprise that This required the king's special permission. But, so it goes he continued, "it seems that the Jews at that time throughout the entire nation so hated that they were not allowed to bury their dead to bury her in English soil, for fear that she would thereby being desecrated."

The Jews, however, did not care about the hatred of the population. As long as they were under the protection of the king, they were allowed to still hope to continue their profiteering business successfully to be able to pursue it.

Aaron of Lincoln

The wealth of the Jews increased particularly under the government of Heinrich Heine. The riches of IJ. reach enormous proportions. The richest and most famous The Jew of that time was Aaron of Lincoln® (1125–1186).

Nothing is known about his early years. We only hear about... (from him between 1166 and 1186). It's worth doing some research. to stay longer with him, because one learns from his business dealings- knows how, even back then, a Jew knew a significant part of the controlled the entire monetary economy of England at that time. His money funded numerous Cistercian monasteries, including... those of Rievall, New Minster, Kirkested, Ruford, Kirkestal etc. was built, as can be indirectly seen from a chronicle?). After that, the aforementioned abbeys and others owed Aaron large sums. sums of money, of which only a significant portion This debt may have been related to the construction costs of the monasteries. After Aaron's death, power had passed to the king, who a considerable portion of it was waived for the abbeys. It is true- probably happened from the perspective that a large Part of the claim consisted of accrued usurious interest. Fer- ner 'were the Abbey of St. Albans, the Minster of Lincoln and "The Peterborough Cathedral was built with Aaron's money," and “) Prynne p. 7.

Thomas 1 Vol. IV p. 148.

Hyamson: History, p. 23 ff.

*) Jacobs: Abraham of Lincoln p. 157.
Memorials of Fountains Abbey Vol. II p. 18.
Hyamson: History, p. 23 ff.

We find him mentioned further in connection with the announcement, that his pledged church property was redeemed."

However, the church did not only play the role of borrower.

— she was also not averse to doing business with Aaron, about which we have a particularly revealing case handed down"),

A certain William Fossard near the monastery of Meaux was indebted to the Jews to the tune of £1,200. For

He had given them this sum as part of his land holdings.

seized. Aaron had bought up this claim and was ready to to waive almost a third of the total debt if the

The abbot of the aforementioned monastery took the blame. William was not averse to this change of creditors, especially since his school—which rose so dramatically as a result of the enormous interest rates that he never

The amount could be repaid. The transaction was apparently quite successful.

This was advantageous for the monastery, because in addition to the land it also received two villages located there. That's how the deal came about; the

The monastery paid the debt, including interest, to Aaron.

But William had lost his country.

The document relating to this transaction shows that Aaron numerous demands from other Jews against William had bought. Consequently, his willingness also becomes clear, to reduce the sum by a third. Most likely—

He has not yet exceeded the original total claim of £1,200.

bought below value from the various creditors, so that he

Even with the aforementioned discount, a good deal was still made.

likely had.

Aaron had branches or agents in all parts of the country

A significant portion of the Jews were in his service, and the Most seem to have business relationships with him.

have"),

Among his numerous debtors were leading men of the time, including the Earls of Leicester and Chester, the bishops of Bangor and Lincoln, even the archbishop of Canterbury"), There is a careful, from old

Documents containing a list of his demands.

The result is astonishing, as it best demonstrates the influence.

Aaron's"). The size of his fortune can likely be deduced from this,

that at his death in the year 1186 in the royal finance—the ministry established a special department for the administration of its estate was established"),

We have an example from this period as well, in what way Jewish money is involved in military entanglements

13 Giraldi Cambrensis Opera Vol. VII p. 36.

ae 8 05 N can be found communicated in Chronica Monasterii de Melsa Vol. I

1t) Hyamson: History p. 23

7 Jacobs: Aaron of Lincoln pp. 166/67.

Jacobs: Aaron of Lincoln p. 169.

74) Jewish Historical Society of England (Sessions 1896–1899) p. 174 ff.

75) Jacobs: Aaron of Lincoln S.

22

was involved and interested. A powerful follower of the king raised an army without his knowledge or consent from and conquered Ireland in 1170. According to some The king was outraged by this act because he had seen this (as a historian). viewed conquest as an unauthorized act by a vassal. In- Consequently, he had the Jews who, according to the documents that had come to him, Reports that had financed the company, with serious Fines were imposed. What facts support this tradition? The underlying cause could not be determined.

People and Church in the hands of usurers

We see the wealth of the Jews increasing and as a consequence of that Their influence grew. This was countered by the poverty of the people. about, which had to helplessly watch its exploitation.

It's not easy to get a sense of it, how far the debt had already progressed at that time, so that we can discuss this in more detail using source evidence. want to go.

The subjects were obliged to pay taxes and other legal duties Taxes are mostly paid in cash. The money circulation was still not very significant, and so the people had to When making such payments, they usually turn to the Jews, who then only too readily. From a detailed account can we see how a man named Richard of Anesty in Richard quickly became indebted. He owed the sum of £91,680. borrowed and had to pay 60% usurious interest on it. That he was ruined in a very short time hardly needs mentioning. is believed to be.

But it is not only the individual among the people who seem to be suffering from usury to have suffered the Jews, and the Church was also affected throughout. especially dependent on the Hebrews.

When in 1173 an illegitimate son of King Henry II was born for the Bishop of Lincoln was appointed as his successor, It was one of his first official acts to "remove the ornamentation from his to trigger the church, which his predecessor had done with Aaron the Jew, had pawned!").

Another case sheds an even harsher light on the situation at the time Time period. In the year 1175, Archbishop Richard of Canterbury to the Abbey of Peterborough, to see the local to depose Abbot William of Waltham because he used the help of Soldiers invaded the monastery against the will of the monks.
was and used armed force to remove the bones of the saints

1) Hyamson: History p. 26.

77) Giraldi Cambrensis Opera Vol. VII p. 36.

23 had, which he pawned to the Jews for money." What might the morality of the people have been like, if even the highest dignitaries

The Church committed such acts!

What state were the monasteries and abbeys in?

must, is shown by another snapshot of the times, which is reflected in the chronicle of a
It is a monk's story.

The Abbey of St. Edmunds was located around the year 1180.

in a deplorable state. The forests were devastated.

The buildings fell into increasing disrepair. There was nothing for the prelate to do.

Therefore, there is only one way out: more money from the Jews.

to borrow. He hadn't been able to pay the interest for a long time. At

The due date was instead the sum of the accrued interest.

each added to the capital and a new debt instrument issued issued. This was repeated at each due date.

And the debts kept growing. The individual monks believed they could claim the same right for themselves like their prelate for the abbey, and so it was not uncommon that They borrowed money from the Jews for personal purposes. Without

With the approval of the convention, they pledged golden tankards in return.

and other decorations of the church. The chronicler recounts that he had a School certificate in the name of William Fitz Isabel (probably a monk) in the amount of £1,040 and other debts—

I have seen documents for £400.— without knowing the surrounding circumstances to be able to understand the reasons that led to the issuance of these documents—

ten. Finally, he had a third document regarding a debt.

of £880 in favor of a Jew, which was seen as follows—

They stood:

The hall of their monastery was destroyed and William, the sacristan,

She had to restore it, whether he wanted to or not. Secretly

He therefore borrowed £40 from a Jew, and since he

Since he could not pay interest on this, the debt quickly became over.

already increased to £100. The Jew who was making the repayment not wanting to wait for the money, he therefore contacted the abbot. wandt, who was so outraged by the sacristan's secret act, that he intended to dismiss him without further ado. It had happened Someone was appointed as sacristan and persuaded the abbot to grant mercy. to let it take effect, The Convention then imposed a new debt-document signed, according to which after the expiration of four years-repayment of the interest accrued during this period and Compound interest would mean the sum of £400 should be paid. But After this time, neither the sacristan nor the convent was in-I was unable to pay off even a portion of the debt. Again. A document was drawn up in which a promise was made to follow For another four years, instead of £400, double the amount, also, £800 to be paid, The Jew still owned various smaller items Debt certificates against the monastery, amounting to a further £400

78) Gesta Regis Henrici Secundi Vol. I p. 106.

24

amounted, so that, as the friar complains, the Jew would have had a claim of £1200,
The monk also reported that the cellar master was also... further details, considerably indebted to the Jew had been."
When the tormented Abbot Hugo closed his eyes in 1180, the friar William had hoped for his position made it. But the monk Samson would have had to join him too. recruited, but one that was acceptable to neither Christians nor Jews was. "Yes, Jews, I say," the chronicler continues, "because William was their father and patron. The Jews rejoiced. completely under his protection and could come and go as they pleased in the monastery. They even wandered around the altars and the They passed the holy shrine. Their money would be in the treasury. the monastery kept, and in times of war their wives and welcome children in the shared dining room®).."
Samson was elected nonetheless. His first official act was the removal of William as sacristan, who, however, did not to accept this and in the year 1182 together with other dissatisfied monks plotted against Samson forged. Samson discovered it, and to thwart the conspiracy... He encountered a large number of debt certificates. which were mainly exhibited by William. The total amounted to £3,025 including the barely calculable usurious interest rates, for which William received the silken caps and robes The clergy pledged silver candlesticks and golden vessels had done so without consulting the convention. This evidence did not fail to impress. its effect on the monks, and Samson was appointed to office. leave), ö
These old traditions are not only interesting because they the general indebtedness towards the Jews, but because they also teach us how their influence is used with help their money went even beyond the monastery walls. Yes, the Jews even interfered in matters unfamiliar to them—the monastic community. For “they were not in agreement with Samson’s choice.” “Approved,” because he did not collaborate with them. And Finally, this tradition shows us the arrogance of the Jews: They dared to do it, during the church service. to wander around. A similar case shows another frightening—of the time, Aaron of Lincoln came to the Abbey of St. Albans, which owed him a large sum for (the construction). Aaron is said to have appeared there and boasted that he had raised the money for the abbey's windows—to give and to have ensured that this place was dedicated to the saint erstand®),

m) Chronica Jocelini de Brakelonda p. 1 ff.

9 Chronica Jocelini de Brakelonda p =

Chronica Jocelini de Brakelonda p. 22

"j Gesta Abbatum Monasterii Sancti Albani Vol. I p. 198.

25

When Henry II died in 1189, the Jews expected from his successor Richard, called Lionheart, not only the not to maintain the status quo, but they hoped even improvements. The king had already agreed to this. He showed great generosity when he took office, granting all Those imprisoned, including Jews, were given freedom).

Popular anger erupts.

On September 3, 1189, Richard the Lionheart became King of England crowned*), a day that is significant for the history of Jews in was of extraordinary importance in ancient England. From this From that point on, they lost power and wealth until they closed—had to leave the country.

From all parts of the empire, including the then English territories. Possessions in France, the subjects were in London streamed in. The Jews had also sent their leading figures to sent out for this event. For some reason — some claim, out of superstition®) —, others out of aversion to the Judense) —, the king issued at the instigation of Baldwin, the Archbishop of Canterbury, a law according to which the Jews at (Death penalty) was forbidden, Westminster Abbey during the coronation or to enter his palace during the banquet. This order was made public on the same day. announces®), by having heralds proclaim it in the streets and It was also posted in important locations so that everyone—a man in the city was informed of it in time. A large A crowd had gathered near the church and the palace. found, including numerous Jews. They led rich families. They gave gifts to the king and were present despite the prohibition. willing to present him with this as a tribute on the same day— It is not entirely clear whether they only extend as far as the gates of the Palace came) or had already reached the king were”), when foreigners”) or the mob?) attacked them. On In any case, the crowd was outraged by the Jews' presumption. the king's prohibition against mifachten, Margoliouth®) breaks down

8) Margoliouth: History p. 83.

84) Grafton's Chronicle Vol.I p. 219 ff.

85) Chronicles of the Reign of Stephen Vol. I p. 294/95, Margoliouth: History Vol. I p. 86

88) WH 8 9.

we Chronicles of the Reign of Stephen Vol.I p. 294 ff.

9 The Metrical Chronicle of Robert of Gloucester Vol. II p. 690 ff.

Radulphi de Diceto Vol. II p. 69.

82) Rogeri de Houedene Vol. III p. 12.

#3) Margoliouth: Anglo-Hebrew p. 12/13.

26

complains and laments that "the greatest English patriots, the oldest settlers in the country, the most loyal and faithful subjects were expelled with brutal force"; for they They would have had nothing to do with what had only been announced the day before. The law can be known; this is determined by the behavior of the crowd. refuted, which also knew the prohibition and therefore because of the He was outraged by the behavior of the Jews. Threatening fists were raised. themselves, and soon blows were raining down. The crowd grew ever larger. agitated and finally attacked the Jews with sticks Spectators who stood further away saw and heard the Tumult in the belief that the king himself had been accused of over— Violation of his prohibition, they were ordered to be withdrawn. tried to escape, but most of them were already they were killed." It spread like wildfire However, the false news that the king himself had ordered the killing ordered. The population had been waiting for this for a long time. the king gave her free rein, and now what had seemed inevitable has come to pass. The atrocities had to come: The people armed himself and killed every Jew who appeared, unless, He was baptized®). Among those baptized was one the leading Jews of York, named Benedict. When he A short time later, when he was brought before the king, he described himself as again as a Jew. Out of contempt for his fickleness and He was allowed to live because of his cowardice. The unrest in London They continued even the day after the coronation. The king's attempts to suppress them were thwarted by the fury of the The people's efforts were in vain. The Jews retreated to their fortified houses. back, which the people have often tried in vain to break up They tried, then fires were thrown onto the roofs, the Jews were murdered Their houses burned down; in some cases, the fire jumped on English buildings, and the commotion in London was un-describable®®).

William of Newburgh, the chronicler, sees this outbreak of The people's anger is presented as the will of God, because the punishment of the "arrogant and wicked Jews had to come,"

The king was very angry about the incident, as he was currently on his coronation day, however, he undertook in the aftermath His attitude towards the incidents was very little towards the people; he let only three [participants] are involved in the tumult; one because He looted the house of a Christian during the unrest. had, the other two, because of their carelessness the Homes of Christians threatened by the spread of fire were").

= Radulphi de Coggeshall pp. 26–28, Matthaevi Pariensis, Chronica Majora Vol. II p. 350
Chronicles of the Reign of Richard I. Vol. I p. 142.

60 en Pres Henrici Secundi Vol. II p. 84, Matthaevi Pariensis Historia minor
27) Chronicles of the Reign of Stephen Vol. I p. 296

28) Rogeri de Houedene Vol. III p. 12, Fox Vol. I 8. 304 col. 2.

27

A wave of Jewish persecution swept through England. The people gave free rein to their long-suppressed feelings. Where Whenever Jews were found and could be captured, they struck They killed them. Many saved themselves and their valuable possessions by doing so. that they sought refuge in the royal castles which were provided to them was largely granted by the king's governors. Warriors who were part of the uprising were particularly involved in the riots. They had followed the call of Richard the Lionheart to go to Palestine. go. In Norwich), Lincoln), Stamford?®) and St. Edmunds“ The persecutions were particularly severe, and many Jews found themselves in dire straits. death.

The reason for the persecution of the Jews in Lynn is interesting. There a Jew had converted to Christianity, which the other Jews were very angry. When they saw the baptized Jew one day they met him on the street and tried to kill him, but he found refuge in a nearby church. The Jews did not allow it. They even attempted to close the churches closed by the refugees to break down doors by force. Other Christians in the church called in alarm to their fellow countrymen for help, who armed themselves, to drive out the raging Jews. However, they did not retreat. And a scuffle ensued in which many Jews were killed. The fleeing Jews were pursued, their houses were plundered and burned down. The next day, a Jewish doctor returned to Lynn, who insulted the people and swore revenge. The agitated populace then seized him and killed him^{8°}).

The persecutions were probably most intense in the north of England, but especially in Western Europe. Here, usury was rampant, worse than anywhere else, and in no other place was there more wealth. There were more wealthy Jews than elsewhere. Their houses resembled palaces. Their lifestyle was regal for the time. And all this at the expense of the population. Nowhere else was there such a thing. Misery. The common people, the church, and the nobility all suffered equally. Dimensions. Anyone who had once started borrowing money was at the mercy of the law. Jews are hopelessly expelled due to the enormous interest rates. delivered. Several nobles had already received their entire land. They lost their land. Bitterly, they gathered the equally unsuitable. Peaceful people surrounded themselves and awaited the day of reckoning. nung), warriors on the crusade who were through the city. The city was invaded, and they did the rest, and at the beginning of March 1190 they stormed the agitated crowds at night the house of one of the richest Jews – of the aforementioned Benedict. What was found alive.

8°) Annales Monastici Vol. IV p. 42.

100) Radulphi de Diceto Vol. II p. 75, Rogeri de Wendover Vol. I p. 176, Chronica Jocelini de Brakelonda p. 33.

191) Chronicles of the Reign of Stephen Vol. I p. 312.

102) Radulphi de Diceto Vol. II p. 75, Chronicles of the Reign of Stephen Vol. I p. 310.

03) Radulphi de Diceto Vol. II p. 76. .

) Chronicles of the Reign of Stephen Vol. I p. 308.

105) Chronicles of the Reign of Stephen Vol. I p. 313.

was slain, the house looted, and later set on fire. Most of the Jews of York reached the Castle, where the royal commander granted them refuge. When he left the castle for a short time one day, they refused. The Jews were reluctant to let him back in. They had... has since become the lord of the castle. The Be-Faultsher summoned royal troops, and together with The castle was stormed by the angry citizens. After the besieged Jews had to realize that their situation was hopeless. Some killed each other, while the rest yielded, but were killed by the enraged populace. Immediately afterwards, the crowd hurried to the cathedral, where their guilt-documents were kept there. She appropriated them and misappropriated them. It burned, but the king was particularly upset by this, because the debtors of the Jews, after their death, to the king for payment were obligated (de). The debt instruments, however, were the proof. for the claims, and in the event of their loss the king had nothing in hands to determine the amount of wealth of the deceased Jews to ascertain. He therefore sent a punitive expedition to Vork, je- However, most of the rebels had already gone to Scotland. fled). Of those who remained behind and were involved in the tumult, Be-Fifty-one citizens were convicted and sentenced to a total fine of £228. judges),

The never-ending series of riots and the associated losses of debt instruments apparently prompted King Richard, to issue a law to protect the Jews. The The loss of such documents affected him personally, as the taxes the Jews paid him according to the size of their wealth. Incidents in York probably further accelerated the legislative process. publication, which took place at the end of March (11%). Following this, assured the Jews that they had the right to live in England live. In addition, their assets were guaranteed and furthermore expressly confirmed that after one year and a They were able to sell the items they had pawned. And Finally, there was the drastic measure, which, however, also was already in practice and there was endless bitterness in the which had provoked outrage among the population: "that all Jews in England and Normandy should be free from customs duties and taxes. "given." Finally, the ceremonial awarding of the certificates followed once again. to speak of protecting all Jews.

As is well known, Richard participated in the Crusades in 1190. and only returned to England in 1194. His predecessors Preparations for the Crusades had left him no time. to allow the entire Jewish question to be settled to a sufficient degree.

an Chronicles of the Reign of Stephen Vol. I p. 323.

1) Chronicles of the Reign of Stephen Vol. I p. 312 ff., Radulphi de Diceto Vol. II

75176.

10) Chronicles of the Reign of Stephen, Vol. I, p. 324.

10) Rymer Foedera, Vol. I, p. 51

29

Legal Status of the Jews

Upon his return, he sent officials to the various Cities where Jewish persecutions had taken place. He wanted to to obtain an accurate picture of the number of Jews killed, to determine the extent of their estate." The successor-Research in York proved unfeasible, as a a significant portion of Jewish assets consisted of claims against-over Englishmen whose debt instruments were seized during the unrest They had been burned by the enraged populace. This showed him that he had to take measures to prevent similar situations to avoid incidents, because he considered the Jews and Consequently, their assets also become his property. Furthermore He believed, according to the legal opinion at the time, that the Jews were not not for themselves, but lived for others and thus also provided them with material resource acquired goods).

Abraham's") concluded from this that the Jews were only serfs in their relationship to the king. A similar The viewpoint is also shared by Rigg, Stokes, and Sir Frederik Pollok or Professor Maitland) taken. Piciottolle) believes to have to reject this opinion. He concludes this from the fact that In his view, the Jews were entitled under the law to To be a landowner. This question, however, is currently being debated. The first half of the 19th century was very contested and in-Consequently, this line of reasoning is unlikely to be convincing. be. We also believe that the Jews are probably They were considered serfs of the king. Upon their death Therefore, by law, the estate passed to the king. who usually did not exercise his right but left the estate to the natural heirs and only one a considerable inheritance tax was levied. As a result, the The king always feels disadvantaged when, due to a lack of [something], he The exact amount of assets is not specified in debt instruments. was able to determine this. He published a remedy for this over-The state already had laws in the year of his return, according to which once Participation in uprisings should be punished, to However, all obligations towards the deceased remain unaffected. Jews were to be registered z). This was important for the future. Law, called Capitula de Judaeis, stipulated that from now on all claims, mortgages, houses and other assets of the Jews should be registered. Everything they did not tell the truth-

110) Hyamson: History p. 42.

111) Henrici de Bracton p. 51.

112) Abrahams p. 13 ff.

113) Rigg S. XIII.

114) Stokes: Relationship p. 161.

15) Pollock & Maitland Vol. I p. 471.

116) Piciotto p. 70 ff.

117) Rogeri de Houedene Vol. III p. 263.

30 according to the information provided, should be considered forfeited, including her personal assets

Furthermore, six or seven places in the kingdom were presented-seen where all debt contracts were carried out with the participation of four Notaries - two Englishmen and two Jews -, two statutory to be prepared for registrars and other employees.
Documents should be issued in multiple copies.
one of which remained in the possession of the Jew, while a second was safely stored at the state depository.
The chest intended for this purpose was equipped with three locks, for which two Christians, two Jews and the officials each have a key.
possessed.

The execution of these documents should continue to be of a kind
They are subject to stamp duty. For their legal validity, it was necessary-necessary that they depart in the presence of the aforementioned persons-were closed. The same applied to any changes. such as increasing or decreasing the amount of debt or Changes in the interest rate. A detailed register was also kept.
a report was given on the payments made. At the end, the Jews were once again urged by the king to protect their assetsto specify it appropriately so that it can be registered accordingly, and "to him all forgers of contracts and counterfeiters, insofar as to report them as they were known" 8)

If such orders prove necessary,
There have been quite a few cases in which the Jews, like
It was common for many to be involved in such crimes.
Finally, this seems to be the first place where Jews publicly linked to coinage crimes in a law brings. We will see below how this Jewish wickedness—These practices degenerated more and more in the next century and led to... contributed significantly to the expulsion of Jews.

There should be no doubt that this law will gradually—lich to the so-called “Exchequer of the Jews” (Jewish tax office). The basis for this was the public Registration of debts and an already existing department in the Ministry of Finance, which is responsible for managing the enormous It was established as part of Aaron Lincoln's legacy. King Henry II had, upon Aaron's death in 1186, granted him the right The confiscation of assets was made full use of, the size of the estate necessitates the creation of a special Department in the Ministry of Finance (conditional). The exact time The establishment of this Jewish tax office is unknown. However, it certainly did not occur before the year 1194, the year of the decree. of the aforementioned law, but also not after 1198, because in this In recent years, we find in documents mentioning “judges”. of the Jews”), 118) Rogeri de Houedene Vol. III p. 266, Twysden p. 1258.

115) Hyamson: History p. 43

12) Madox, Forms Anglicanum p. 77.

31

This “Exchequer of the Jews” or “Saccarium Judaeorum” or “Thesauraria Judaeorum”!?1) had two main tasks to be dealt with, which is based on financial and judicial considerations The area was located there. The Jewish tax office handled all the transfers, on the one hand The king's actions with the Jews, such as the collection of a Types of inheritance tax, penny tax, wealth tax and Confiscations. On the other hand, justice was administered there. and not only between the king and the Jews, but also between the King and the English, insofar as it concerns It dealt with Jewish businesses. Finally, it also handed down judgments in Legal disputes between Englishmen and Jews??). The ge— All negotiations were documented in the so-called “Pipe Roles” (Treasury Roll on the Capture of the Empire) laid down and are still largely preserved today”), so that to get a fairly accurate picture of the activities of the Jewish tax office results.

The first-mentioned department was responsible for ensuring that, upon deduction— The assets of a Jew were determined or estimated during his lifetime. which was not difficult after the law of 1194 came into force was, since documentary evidence existed to this effect. On the subsequent— Generally, an inheritance tax of 34% was then levied.

levied"),

The so-called confiscations were a tax term that encompasses a wide area. It mainly referred to He refers to fees on the granting of licenses of all kinds. Some- They were sometimes also invoked when entering into a marriage. Finally, this also included the costs for legal proceedings between Creditors and debtors and vice versa, Closely related to this concept of taxes was also the person who, in the commission of capital crimes, such as... Counterfeiting or clipping of coins, etc., under simultaneous- criminal punishment was applied. The amount of this The latter type of tax was said to have been quite considerable!").

However, the most lucrative taxes for the king were the so-so-called poll taxes. They were regularly levied whenever-withdrawn when the king's coffers were empty – a frequent occurrence stood –, and in the years 1194 to 1290 the Jews Enormous sums were paid in this way. It still is to this day. It is not entirely clear how much the annual average of this has paid taxes. The well-known judge Coke speaks of approximately £50,000 annually, while Gross (?) only £5,000–10,000 will use it. The sum between Both are located; but even if one considers the one cited by Gross 121) Gross p. 175.

122) Pollock & Maitland Vol. I p. 90.

183) Rigg: Exchequer of the Jews Vol. III p. XIII.

124) Gross p. 192 and the documentary texts printed there in footnote 54.

125) Hyamson: History p. 45, Cross p. 193, Abrahams p. 14.

126) Coke p. 506.

127) Gross p. 195.

32

The amount was already considerable in relation to the king's other income. King Edward I, for example, of which (as we will hear below, it only had a budget of £65,000¹⁸). so that he could largely count on the Jewish taxes. (The poll tax was either levied per capita???) or a specific sum was set, which was to be paid by the The entire Jewish population of England was to be paid. The distribution was to be divided The individual members were then left to their own devices (??).

It was not uncommon for the richest Jews to be ordered to hand over their wealth-
They requested a sum, and it was up to them how they would pay it.
raised money

Tax office possible, because only according to the registers kept there.
The king was able to determine the wealth of the Jews in each case and 'correspondingly determine the amount of poll tax, could or
The Jews did not want to pay the sum imposed on them from their own Paying current revenues, the king confiscated short-term
They handed over their demands and asserted them in their own name.
A payment from the debtor to the Jew after confiscation was not recognized). It was not uncommon for the Jews to
They did not pay the required poll taxes, whereupon their entire fortune was confiscated.
Assets confiscated and often an entire family taken hostage sent to the tower").
The Jew himself could never legally establish

The debt was forgiven, but the consent of the tax office, as is also the case for a legally valid assignment of a (Requirement also to obtain such approval)
During the 13th century, another change occurred, namely, that the Jews should only settle in such places could, where branches of the Jewish tax office existed – a Regulation of far-reaching importance, since until Richard Löwen-such provisions were lacking." After the careful-According to numerous studies by Gross!), there should be 26 such places.

It was planned to include London, Bedford, Lincoln, Oxford, Cambridge and Western Europe. Numerous cities had by then even requesting and receiving the privilege from the king, from any even requesting and receiving the privilege from the king, from any to be exempt from Jewish settlement. These included, among others...
Derby, Leicester, Newcastle-upon-Tyne*'), On the other hand 128) Stubbs Vol. II p. 595 ff.

12) Madox: Exchequer Vol. I p. 257, Prynne Vol. II p. 32.

= Madox: Exchequer Vol. I p. 224, Prynne Vol. II P. 32, 39, 76 ff.
The documents obtained concerning these events are still in the Record today.
stored in the office. In addition, there are other documentary evidence.
divisions, such as armen Foedera Vol. I p. 337, 407, Prynne Vol. II p. 51, 77, 86/87, 89, 104, 112 and

182) Chronica maiora Vol. V 8. 441, Madox: Exchequer Vol. I pp. 230, 258, Prynne Vol. II
7 75

13) Madox: Exchequer Vol. I p. 248.

1%) Prynne Vol. II p. 64

1 aymar. Foedera Vol. I p. 634, Prynn Vol. I p. 39.
Gross, p. 187.

(in) Gross p. 190.

3 Jews conquer England 33

Jews were permitted to enter cities only in exceptional cases.
settle where there was no special branch.").

The aforementioned second department of the Jewish tax office had the functions of a court.

Legal cases between Jews were not within his jurisdiction.
keit, because we have already explained above that they are involved here a completely separate jurisdiction based on its Ge-Legal provisions were granted. Only in some criminal cases, which
In cases involving Jews, intervention was reserved for the court.
In such cases, jurors consisted exclusively of Jews").

In legal disputes between Englishmen and Jews, a mixed court was established. Among the first of its kind Two of the four appointed judges were Jewish, however, it seems to have later abandoned that approach."

The court had to decide all cases related to the laws concerning Jews.
laws enacted and which were often related to them
They were ignored. By the church courts, indeed by their own courts.
The king was forbidden to pass judgment on this matter.
This was not always heeded, as can be seen from warnings of the King's words to the latter not to concern themselves with it").

There were likely also a very large number of cases that resulted from disputes between Englishmen as debtors and Jews as creditors). Had King Ford-Having had his belongings confiscated from Jews, he too sometimes acted as a party member.
in court.

According to the historians we know, the activity of the courts
The department was limited to the above matters.
However, it seems necessary to point out other functions as well.
assign tasks that are undoubtedly the responsibility of the judges in question-were practiced.

Instructions from the king to the judges are often found, certain to absolve the English of guilt and to remove the Jews from the Return of the debt instruments in their possession to demand").

However, with regard to any further activity identified, it is
It is doubtful which of the two departments it belongs to.

King Edward I learned one day that the Jews had a certain Robert Sturmy was under intense pressure because he was fulfilling his obligations to them
He was unable to comply with his obligations. He was only able to do so because of the un-
The Jews got into this situation due to exorbitant interest rates. The Jews intended-
They apparently used the Jewish tax office against him

138) Gross p. 189.

13) Rigg: Exchequer Vol. II p. XV, Rigg: Select Pleas p. XXI.

140) Rigg: Exchequer S. XV, Rigg: Select Pleas S. XX.

141) Prynne Vol. I p. 34.

142) Gross p. 204.

14) Rotuli Literarum Patentium p. 31, Rotuli de Liberate p. 24, 34, 35, 38.

34 to proceed, however, the king instructed the judges to grant him a reprieve to do so."

The king's motive for his orders is clear-pointed out, because he justifies them by stating that the debtor is "dis-Reasonable installment payments should be granted to him in order to repay the to enable payment without jeopardizing his existence").

The king's leniency is shown even more in a another case, in which he demands that "through investigations
The purpose should be to determine whether the debtor is able to pay, without having to provide for himself and his family endanger").

Rigg) has in extraordinarily arduous and exhausting
The formal side of the court proceedings, i.e., the civil-Rules of procedure of the court division of the Jewish tax office,

His findings, which he researched, should be of interest to lawyers of all kinds.

of particular interest. Within the scope of this work, it may be relevant-However, it suffices to state that the regulations concerning the-action, service of complaints, etc., with the then all-common civil procedure codes largely agreed,

The headquarters of the Jewish tax office was located there They were in Westminster, near London. The top officials were mostly "Justitiarii ad custodiam Judaeorum assignati", with In other words, "Jewish judges." The number of these
The judge has been constantly wavering; the positions must be filled by the entire must have been of particular importance, because they were used by be-interpreting men of that time"),

Their appointment was made by the king. They had appointed the finance minister.
ministers each have over all financial transactions within their department to provide an accounting, whereby fraud is not infrequently discovered.
were, which were mainly due to bribes on the part of the Jews-were attributable to)

In addition, there was the so-called "Presbyter omnium Judae-orum Angliae", which was written by the successor of Richard the Lionheart, King John, had been appointed. This "Presbyter of all Jews"
England's" was assured of very special protection and all Englishmen, under threat of punishment, were asked to respect him, since he was "the royal Jew, whom one could employ for the services of the king"
"I have employed." It almost seems like a joke that the respective Appointment of this archpriest of the Jews by the archbishop from Canterbury.). He was chosen from the ranks of the leading-elected the Jew and probably appointed him for life

105 Madox: Exchequer Vol. I p. 252

145

14) Madox: Exchequer Vol. II p. 208 Note L

147) Rigg: Exchequer Vol. III p. XXXI ff

% Madox: Forms Angl. p. 77, Chronica Majora Vol. V p. 261, Foedera Vol. I p. 362, Chronicles of the Reign of Edward I. Vol. IS
Vol. II, pp. 80, 84, 98.

u.) Madox: Exchequer Vol. I p. 252 ff.

1%) Rotuli Chartarum Bå. I Part 1 pp. 6, 7.

345, Rymer:
. 95, Prynne

2 35

since only six holders of this office exist between 1200 and 1290 encounter), His rights and obligations are not detailed below.
no further details are known. He probably attended the festival-have advised on the translation of the poll tax and assisted the court with the translation have been helpful in drafting and interpreting Jewish contracts his),

The king, as well as the Jews, derived great advantages from the establishment of the tax office. The king, in particular, could always determine the amount of their assets from the registers and they tax accordingly. Furthermore, he always possessed a copy of the debt instruments, so that he is protected against their destruction, as in The case of York was secured.

Furthermore, he was granted the taxation of the individual businesses relieved, as he could easily read the documents and entries. The register was able to identify the completed transactions. Apparently, the king made a single decision when concluding the deals. A one-time tax of 10% is levied, certainly a worthwhile investment. Source of income: s®). The Jews were provided with funds through the Jewish financial system. The office legally guarantees their usurious business practices. The only one The people suffered the consequences; they had to pay the exorbitant interest rates. either to the king or to the Jews, with the only The difference was that the former sometimes showed leniency.

Population figure

Before we discuss the term of office of Richard Lowen's successor— To treat the heart, we would like to consider a few more points about the Jewish population at the end of the 12th century employ.

Jacobs) has undertaken, with great care, the time-consuming effort of making findings on the number of people in England to meet living Jews of the 12th century. He did this at Hand of documents, in which in any combination— Jewish names are mentioned. The compilation It covers the entire 12th century. His list then contains approximately... 750 names. He rightly notes that these relate to four gene groups. rations refer to, but only to the heads. the families. All in all, Jacobs comes due to his festival— positions leading to the conclusion that at the end of the 12th century (around 2000 Jews were in England'), In doing so he took into account— It is estimated that approximately 500 Jews perished during the described unrest.

15t) Rymer; Foedera Vol. I pp. 95, 362, 591, Tovey p. 59, Prynn Vol. II pp. 54, 80. us Prynn Vol. II p. 71.

Rotuli de Oblatis et Finibus pp. 197, 202, 210, 231, 236.

1) Jacobs, pp. 345–383.

155) Jacobs p. 381.

may have been killed. If we now assume that the then Given that the English population was approximately 1% of the millions,
 The Jewish population accounted for approximately 1% of the losses.

The Jews under John I.

The aforementioned successor of Richard the Lionheart, King Jomann I (1199–1216) was initially sympathetic to the Jews. After immediately after taking office, he appointed the archpriest of
 He had employed Jews, and continued to show himself to be friendly.
 opposite them.

In a law dated April 10, 120118, he confirmed the Jews' right to–

...explicitly their former privileges. They remained unaffected.

Exempt from customs duties and taxes, as is generally the case with any kind of
 They were assured of protection. Furthermore, they were allowed to take items.
 all kinds of property, with the exception of church property, may be mortgaged and sell after one year and one day. Besides that, they had They retain their own jurisdiction. The established practice, upon the death of a Jew, his estate is generally not to be inherited.
 The intention was not to attract, but merely to impose a high inheritance tax.
 enshrined in law,

However, two important procedural innovations appear to have been introduced
 Having been accomplished, an Englishman wanted to after this time
 If he filed a lawsuit against a Jew, he had to accept it.
 to be tried by Jewish judges. These, namely the Rabbis then generally spoke according to the Talmud!
 In this procedural situation, it usually looked like the English would prevail.
 The situation is not favorable for the countries, especially since the law further stipula
 The rule was that one Jew should not testify against another.
 needed and that a Jew's oath was worth as much as twelve Christian's Oaths®), Where might such laws lead?
 This has led to unprecedented legal rulings! The victim was once again...
 The people alone.

Of course, the king had not intended this law to be so favorable to the Jews.
 (for nothing, in fact they had to pay him 3200 pounds').

But even this sum ultimately had the people's support in the election.

to pay off the exorbitant interest rates.

The obvious favoritism prompted a large number of Jews, to come from the continent to England'), This renewed Immigration drove the population to despair. They- rebellion erupted, and unrest broke out in London in 1203. We find a letter from the King to the from this year.

157) Margoliouth: History Vol. I p. 123.

156) Select Civil Pleas Vol. I p. 3

1) Rotuli de Oblatis pp. 133, 402, 418.

: Rotuli Chartarum Vol. I Part 1 p. 93.

19) Hyamson: History p. 48, Margoliouth: History Vol. I p. 124.

37

Citizens of London, that he would under no circumstances tolerate any excesses against the Jews, but if necessary the citizens would hold accountable with armed force." An- This strict order apparently had the intended effect. because nothing more was heard of uprisings in the near future. against the Hebrews.

Surprisingly, however, the following years already brought a changed attitude of the king towards them. Many Jewish historians conclude from this that King John J. only out of diabolical calculation, initially friendly towards them- I have shown that. It may be true, but it hasn't been proven. Much- Another explanation would likely be at least as valid. his: that once again the Jews themselves because of their bad Their behavior alone was responsible.

As always in history, they apparently had the advantage of being able to control the situation could not tolerate the favoritism shown to the king and He thereby forfeited his goodwill, as can be seen from the following. results in:

One year after the London riots, King John I issued an amnesty law ('®) on the occasion of It was largely orderly, since all criminals, regardless- valid, what kind of crimes they had committed, from custody were released; only the Jewish criminals were released by This legal benefit is excluded, which certainly has its reason. This may have been due to the fact that the criminality of the Jews was completely had gotten out of hand. Already the following year... the publication of a special law is necessary"), the for them a harsher penalty for circumcision of mummification Zen provided for. The main reason was probably that

Jews were primarily considered suspects in such crimes. This assumption is further reinforced by a legal provision, where, in the presence of coins, which are marked by Be-cutting was devalued, in case of doubt the Jewish owner of considered the perpetrator from the outset until proven otherwise. It should be, of course, they will maintain their monopoly as money-lenders have not infrequently used this to rent out items they themselves own. to force devalued coins on a loan applicant. The fact that this law has not had the intended effect is evident. resulting from a renewed order (of the king from the year 120610), according to which the authorities will conduct thorough investigations into renewal to commit coin-related crimes that had occurred. So, even already. Back then, even harsh laws apparently couldn't stop it. to prevent Jews from committing crimes that endanger the general public. Given these facts, the thought immediately arises that that the king does not have goodwill towards the Jews

N Hardy: Description p. 61, Tovey p. 67.

162) Rymer: Foedera Vol. I p. 90

163) Rotuli de Oblatis Vol. I Part 1 p. 47.

14) Rotuli de Oblatis Vol. I Part 1 p. 54.

38

lack, but the opposite. He had considerably

avored them through the law of 1201, and it is therefore not to assume that he would emerge from the situation under his control just three years later. His motives completely changed his attitude. The assumption. It is much more likely that it was only the Jews who... embittered by their behavior. Thus, one must consider the following: evaluate events solely from this perspective. In 1210, all Jews were arrested and taken to Bristol.

In 1210, all Jews were arrested and taken to Bristol. gathered!®). Apparently, the king suspected that that the debt entries in the registers are not true corresponded. In any case, he raised the issue immediately after the ver-liability a poll tax of 66,000 marks or around £53,000 (a Marks were then equal to £0.80, and it required the sharpest medium-ancient torture to gradually obtain this amount. Here- This should confirm the assumption that the registers actually exist. had fallen into disarray, for in the year 1188 the A larger sum of £60,000 effortlessly and without the use of Violence was paid for by them.

11%, i.e., for 20 years, under the explicit protection (of the This allows the king to pursue his usurious business dealings. Time must be allowed for them, as well as for later payments, taking into account the individual time periods show, have been sufficient, a far larger to extract that amount from the people. In these violent situations, It seems that a pretty harsh approach was taken in the applications, so It is reported that a Jew from Bristol who refused to to pay the sum of approximately £7,330, one tooth every day. was moved out, and that he only just got around to making the payment. to promise when he only had one tooth left). Deed- The sum was then paid quite soon. A few years later, a revolt of the barons against the King instead; the nobles were generally hostile towards the They hired Jews to whom they owed money. The war ended. with the victory of the Barons and the subsequent proclamation the famous Magna Carta, which laid the foundation for free The rights of the English were established. This was due to the hatred of the barons. Against the Jews, it is not surprising that in the matter in question Law provides special protection provisions for English citizens in return- "View of the Jewish usurers were inserted." They saw e.g., that the heirs of an estate burdened with debts against- was implicated in Jewish crimes during their minority. They had to pay interest. In the event of a debtor's death His widow should have free disposal of her assets. have and are in no way liable for their husband's debts. Finally, it was planned that the debts of an estate would be paid against-

6) Gervase of Canterbury Vol. II p. 105, Rogeri de Wendover Vol. II p. 54, Chronica Majora Vol. II p. 528, Madox: Exchequer d. I p. 223

1000 Rogeri de Wendover Vol. II p. 54, Chronica ale Ba. II p. 528.

167) Magna Carta p. 2 ff.

39

concerning Jews in general only gradually from the surpluses should be eliminated

However, peace in England was only to be short-lived. In 1216, war broke out between the Scottish King and John I. During the capture of Berwick, King Johann tortured prisoners to death in the most gruesome ways. (From) (from a trusted source?) has been transmitted to us, that "the king brought Jews with him, who were his people in this They should teach depravity." It is, after all, remarkable- It is worth noting that even in those times the Jews possessed the necessary inventiveness for this. This too has changed until now. Nothing has changed today, because their role in such crimes This is all too well known in Red Spain and Russia.

The statement by the Jewish historian is interesting.

Hyamson!®) to this. He claims that the Jews were appointed to this office—
They came because the English rejected such cruelties. and the king then forced the poor Jews against their will would have forced us to, despite diligent investigations we were unable to but this account is not found in the chronicle. Rather, it—
The only text found is the literal note reproduced above.
tradition.

It continues to fester

King John I died in 1216 and his nine-year-old son
He was succeeded as Henry III (1216–1272) on the throne. The regent—
The company was led by men who supported anti-Semitic policies.
the last years of King John's reign and the
On the contrary, Jews were afforded every protection. Thus one can observe that they repeatedly implement numerous orders who stood up for the welfare of the Jews?""). The result was, as always, a stronger increase in their wealth as well as further income—migration from the mainland on the one hand," exploitation of the people and its growing bitterness, on the other hand. The goodwill
This guide went so far as to include an amnesty—
"The law stipulated that all Jews were released from prisons."

In 1218, a law was promulgated according to which they had a right of ab—
"They had to wear marks to identify their race!"), that made from two strips of white linen or parchment, on prominent—
The sharp point of the clothing was present. Historians disagree.

168) Chronica de Mailros p. 190.

169) Hyamson: History p. 50.

170) Patent Rolls Vol. I pp. 23, 30, 59, 157.

171) Margoliouth: History Vol. I p. 133 ff.

172) Hyamson: History p. 51.

118) Rymer: Foedera Vol. I Part 1 p. 151.

40 debated whether this law was to the advantage or disadvantage of the Jews. However that may be, there was undoubtedly a reason for the enactment of the law, which we can only guess at today.

In 1208 it became necessary to exterminate the Jew Isaac of Norwich to be sentenced to a fine of approximately £6,000." More details
The reasons are unknown. However, it was certainly about...

a serious crime has been established, since the king or rather, its rulers, indisputably at that time, gave the Jews every Favor shown and this action therefore not by general It may have caused a hostile attitude.

Immigration to England must continue to be significantly reduced. It may have been. On the other hand, the authorities apparently had the The need to stem the influx arose, and it frequently occurred. The plan was that the Jews would not be allowed into the country, but rather put in who threw him into prison in the ports of the south coast." The king was disagreed and issued an order to all in The question for the port authorities is whether all foreign Jews should have free access'"). In order to also include the newcomers- linge into the financial system of the Exchequer of the Jews- to include, it was further determined that they should use their name and title. They had to inform the judges of their place of detention, as they also did not know. Land above were allowed to leave with royal permission.

The more Jews came to the country, the greater the usury became. The more unfortunate the situation of the people became. With the return- With regard to the protection of the king or his advisors, they dared to venture The English, however, did not take any action. Unexpectedly. The church came to their aid, which – as already explained – laid – had suffered greatly from the usury of the Jews. Their Efforts to convert Christians to Jewish teachings were undiminished, and even a deacon, out of love for a (a Jewish woman who converted to her faith). The Church therefore believed, Having to act on one's own initiative. (At the Synod of Oxford?) In 1222, under the leadership of the Archbishop of Canter- bury, Stephen Langton, the hero of the Magna Carta, how to used to call him), determined that the Jews were not Christian They may keep slaves and may not build any more synagogues. ten. Furthermore, they were forbidden "any contact with Englishmen of either side- "Prohibited of both sexes." To prevent Christians from the outset from... To enable people to get to know Jews, it was pointed out once again- expressly referring to the King's decree that they should the- They were required to wear badges. Finally, the Hebrews were given forbidden to "enter any church or sell their goods there"

116) Tovey p. 81 ff., Hyamson: History p. 52.

13) Margoliouth: History Vol. I p. 136, Rye p. 152.

176) Rye p. 151.

177) Hyamson: History p. 52.

170) Patent Rolls Vol. I p. 180. . . . ,

17) Annales Monastici B. IV p.62, Chronica Majora Vol. III p. 71, Chronica Minora Vol. II, p. 254.

m Tovey p. 81.

in) Leeming p. 164 ff.

41

to store". In case of non-compliance, the responsible bishop should be contacted. What conditions must have prevailed, if these latter provisions were necessary! Simultaneously with this law, the Archbishop of Canterbury and the bishops of Lincoln and Norwich issued a decree whereafter all Englishmen in their territories were forbidden to be of gender-personal relationships or any dealings with Jews entertain. In accordance with this regulation, it was further forbidden to buy anything from Jews or to sell them anything for a fee food or other necessities for subsistence left to

However, the king regarded these measures as an infringement on his rights and apparently feared that the dis-Boycotts were sufficient, a gradual starvation of the Jews which could arise. As a result, he published a law¹), after the Church's decrees were declared repealed, At the same time, he instructed the relevant officials to all to request subjects to distribute food, etc., to Jews Buy. Violators were punished with imprisonment.

The Jews continued to enjoy themselves in the following years as well. of the king's special protection. As long as that protection is still afforded to him. The current regent, Hubert de Burgh, was in office, and it remained so. this favor, however, was immediately after its The process was different. An outward sign of this was initially the The imposition of a poll tax of 4000 marks (£3,200) in the year 1226, and soon after another of 6000 marks (£4,800), which the latter, however, was only paid in 1230![®]). Tovey![#]) be-even claims, citing the monk Matthew Paris, in This year, one third of the total assets of the Jews dispossessed by the king. However, this does not appear to be the case. because the following years show far higher sums, which were- It would probably have been impossible to drive them on if they had already in the year 1230, a third of their possessions would have been taken. The timeframe was also too short to account for the loss due to usury. to make up for it, because already in the years 1232-34 further poll taxes totaling 18,000 marks (£14,400) er-lifted?[#]).

It did not remain hidden, of course, that the king gradually withdrew his favor from the Jews. It is therefore not surprising that, in addition to the The church reaffirmed the people's rights vis- from them.

The leadership came from both the strengthening cities and also from the increasingly powerful barons.

The fact that the cities were the first in this struggle is only This is understandable, because only there were the Jews permitted to stay. – with a few exceptions – allowed, and so the 18) Tovey p. 82/3, Rotuli Litterarum Clau: around Vol. I p. 567.

188) Rymer: Foedera Vol. I pp.-503, 634, Madox Vol. I pp. 224, 260.

18) Tovey p. 88, Chronica Majora Vol. III p. 194.

185) Rigg: Select Pleas p. XXVI, Hyamson: History p. 54.

42

Inhabitants not only had to endure its presence, but they also feared that it would infringe upon their new rights and freedoms to be affected. At the beginning of the 13th century Many cities faced significant costs and corresponding challenges. Victims bought their self-governance from the king or nobility. Freedoms consisted mainly of no longer having to royal courts, but only their own sub- stood. However, the Jews were explicitly excluded from this. sen and as the property of the king, subject only to his jurisdiction- thrown. Consequently, they also had no taxes to pay to the cities. to accomplish what is always a particular cause for bitterness of the The people were. Within the area of the cities, the king had No violence whatsoever!®). In various locations, such as... London, Oxford, etc., it was also planned that the Jews could use the king's authorities to obtain their forde- to collect debts. However, such actions were prohibited by the cities are most feared and rejected, because one is currently (felt his rights threatened as a result). When the king Preventing the riots in various cities authorities had explicitly recommended the protection of the Jews, (the resentment of the population was particularly strong).

Therefore, the first attempts can be traced back to the beginning of the year 1234. of the cities, the Hebrews, who were foreign to them, to expel. When the king did not sufficiently fulfill these wishes- When this happened, riots broke out. For example, in Norwich... Houses of the Jews were plundered and burned down). Hyamson') It is known that the Bishop of Norwich has contacted the The king's advisors turned to take action against them. to request. However, the requests had been in vain! And so the outraged people had thereby forfeited their own right. creates the possibility of their forcible removal. Something similar er- was also suitable in Oxford in the year 124312. With the growing We then experience the king's aversion to the Jews when...

he granted more and more cities the right to settle to refuse entry to Jews or to expel those already present. 1245
He even issued a general law that applied to all Jews – with the exception of those who have already received a special payment from the King– whose residence permits were prohibited from residing elsewhere to settle rather than where their fellow believers already reside.
found),

Even among the barons, fierce anti-Semitism was evident early on The first beginnings of which we already

1%) Chronica Jocelini p. 2, De Antiquis Legibus p. 16, Tovey p. 50.

107) Abrahams p. 18.

188) Patent Rolls Vol. 1281–1292 p. 15, Tovey F. 77–79.

16) Tovey p. 101.

1) Hyamson: History p. 54.

101) Abrahams p. 20.

wt) Annales Monastici Vol. 4 p. 91.

19) Prynne Vol. II p. 75, Madox: Exchequer Vol. I p. 248/49.

43 in the second half of the 12th century. Although the participation of the English knighthood in the Crusades was not as large as that of the continent, so we find including numerous nobles, especially during the time of Richard.

Lionheart. However, such long expeditions proved too much for him.
many purchases deemed necessary, which involved large expenditures of money.
were connected. In addition, however, the crusaders had to carry a considerable sum of money to cover living expenses to contest it. They had hardly any liquid assets of their own. The large
To serve their cause, they were prepared to make any sacrifice. They pledged– Therefore, they left their possessions, especially their land, without return.
view of the exorbitant usurious interest rates. The Jews took advantage of this.
exploiting this economic situation ruthlessly, and laying the foundation for its Wealth is likely to be largely due to such transactions.
(be laid'), Repayment of the debts was almost always un– possible, since their lands don't even yield that much.
They threw money at the knights just to pay the exorbitant interest rates.
therefore, the mercy of the Jews or the king is at stake.
delivered, once he had expropriated their claims. They er–
They therefore knew that they could only stand together in a common front.
were able to defend themselves against exploitation by the king and the Jews.

It is therefore not surprising that they already included the Magna Carta in the had already included the aforementioned provisions. The circumstances However, things had increasingly developed to their disadvantage, and Thus, in the so-called national council of 1244, they opposed- The right was exercised over the king by one of the judges in the Jewish to be allowed to appoint the tax office. In this way, they had through not only give their chosen representative an insight into the Jewish financial transactions, but also a share in the Rege- lung (the same?®). They had further realized that they were in the fight against the king for an expansion of their privileges only succeeded- They could be rich if they simultaneously defeated the Jews. would, because the king was engaged in his warlike conflicts negotiations with them enabled them to repeatedly draw on the wealth to resort to the Jews').

Thus, this time the people, nobility and church were all in the same camp and It was only necessary to persuade the king to address the Jewish question. to win him over or to force him to adopt the desired policies. It is It is astonishing to find time and again in history that the Jews in times of severe distress and imminent danger their situation was exacerbated by wickedness that was obvious to everyone. deteriorate and almost exclusively contribute to their own downfall contribute. This should also be the case in England during this time. After the year 1230, they kidnapped a boy in Norwich. of about five years old and circumcised him. The child escaped, however.

uo Hyamson: History p. 11, Gross p. 173, Abrahams p. 23.

18) Chronica Majora Vol. IV p. 367. 3

1%) Hyamson: History p. 62/63.

44

of Jewish captivity and found shelter with friends.
The Jews arrogantly demanded under Andro-
The boy was returned from violence. When the English
When the Jews refused to hand it over, they turned to the Jews.
They even contacted the relevant authority and asked for support.
However, she apparently refused to intervene. Further over-Records concerning this event in the year 1230 are missing. Only one Some time later, the boy's father filed a complaint because of the offenses. By the parties involved who were cited in court Only ten appeared. The preliminary investigations ended with the fact that The burden of proof was sufficient to open the main proceedings and to take the perpetrators into custody, who will then be sent to trialsent to London by a court of the king were. The king apparently presided himself. in the hearing, but explained himself in the presence of the arch-Bishop of Canterbury, numerous nobles and bishops for not competent, as this case belongs before the ecclesiastical courts.

After this decision, it was clear to the Jews that they would have to... the well-known attitude of the clergy from the ecclesiastical. They faced a harsh sentence in court. Therefore, with the help of other Hebrews, they appealed to the king, asking him to... to reverse the decision and reopen the hearing to schedule a court specifically for them, which also achieved through numerous bribes. The now-implemented The court took no action, and it was not known for several years. Nothing more about the case. But suddenly the king, out of incompetence, intervened. For well-known reasons, the criminal case was reopened and the local authorities were referred to the secular courts in Norwich despite previous and new Be-stabbings – like Hyamson!?) accuses – to abort the crime– Judging by the year 1241, we then hear that a portion of the Jews has been executed!®). Rye') has endeavored to explain in detail to prove the innocence of the Jews, which he particularly from He believes he can deduce this from 23 documents. He has these documents. studied in detail and discussed in a special essay. His statements cannot be followed, however, because his Justification – the boy was a child of baptized Jews– The nature of this is neither conclusive, let alone proven. Apart from that, Rye also doesn't have the other contemporary Sources can refute this.

From the excellent records of Matth. Paris, a Monk, is also a report from the year 1241 about a The incident in Germany and other countries attracted extraordinary attention. conclusive?%),

1) Hyamson: History pp. 58/59.

198) paora. oe Vol. II p. 375, Vol. III p. 271, Chronica Majora Vol. III p. 543, 1%) Rye: Norfolk Miscellany Vol. I p. 340.

) Chronica Majora Vol. IV p. 131, Pryne Vol. I p. 18.

45

Around this time, fierce fighting took place in Palestine with the Tatars – as these peoples were called. Probably These were Turks, the Jews in Europe, in particular in Germany, they were of the opinion that these savage peoples– descendants of lost Jewish tribes They met in secret assemblies and made decisions. the decision to support these Tatars. "The time was– "Come," they argued, "that they could free themselves, And not only that, they could also subjugate the whole world. "Do this." This would finally be an opportunity to turn to the Christians to avenge, they founded – nothing more and nothing less – a secret league with the so-called Tatars. As first aid for It was decided to purchase and send weapons. However, this must not under any circumstances affect the Christian peoples. It became known, which is why the following idea was conceived:

The rumor, which was all too readily believed, was spread that she had received an order for wine from the Tatars, which however, one must be concerned about the Jews. They intended to... to deliver wine. But in order to serve the Christian world If they proved it, they would poison him so that a large part of the Tatars must die from it.

The Christians agreed and had no objection to the plan. the Jews. In reality, however, they secretly packed weapons from all sides. Art in the wine barrels, and only through the attention of The crime was discovered by customs officials and punished accordingly. Under the circumstances described above, it cannot be-wonder that the situation of the Jews in England was caused by their own Guilt became increasingly heavy. One poll tax triggered another. From. In 1236 they had to pay about £13,000, in 1239 a to cede a third of their wealth to the king or in the way of a waiver- They were forced to leave the country to avoid the risk of falling through. They chose the Despite this drain on resources, they were able to achieve, in the years 1241, In 1244 and 1245, a tax of approximately £15,000 was levied each year. or to raise £44,000. Despite these huge payments They paid approximately £7,500 in the years 1246 and 1247. or £4,000, in 1249 approximately £7,300, and in 1250 They were once again deprived of part of their assets, the The exact amount, however, is not fixed. For the period from 1251 to 1269, they had (to pay the Jews another approximately 20,000 pounds). These sums can be determined with near certainty from documents. The up- Bringing these amounts, which, compared to today's Purchasing power, which must be multiplied by at least 30, is hardly believable. Ben, but it was only possible because of the Jews (up to 86% interest has been charged). In this way 201) Chronica Majora Vol. III p. 220, 292–296, 308, Vol. IV p. 88, 260, Vol. V p. 115, 441, 487/88, Rymer: Foedera Vol. I p.274, 293, 315, Prynne Vol. II p. 30 ff., De Antiquis Legibus p. 19 ff., Madox: Exchequer Vol. I p. 224–261, Hyamson: History p. 57, Margoliouth: History Vol. I p. 152 ff., Rye p. 155 ff.

20) Palgrave Vol. II p. 9 ff.

they were always able to make up for the damage suffered through taxation again

The king had meanwhile appointed a new tax office to the Jewish tax office. A complete facility was created, which is briefly called the "Jewish Parliament",

An overhaul of the documents laid down in the various branches Debt certificates made it seem desirable to the king, further measures for the comprehensive registration of Jewish assets to ensure this through taxes. Therefore, in 1240 he appointed certain officials who compile a list in the individual cities to make off the assets of the Jews).

This must have been done relatively quickly, because Most of the sheriffs were appointed by the king the following year. instructed to name six of the richest Jews in their district and to take them to Worcester for negotiations with the king send. Only two representatives from small communities had voted. appear?®),

The Jews had endured times of heavy taxes to the king and therefore hoped for only good things from the summons their representatives. Also the content of the various instructions. to the sheriffs this was to be expected, since the purpose of the enforcement was stated in The collection stated: "Negotiations with the King regarding his and the Jews' benefit." Immediately upon the meeting of the However, "Parliament" showed that it was only a new The method involved collecting the taxes of the Jews in a secure manner. to introduce. The members of parliament were obliged to act as representatives- The king's powers determined the fixed sums from their race- to collect the profits. They alone were responsible for the success. Literally. In case of failure, they had to expect that her entire fortune was confiscated, through the documentary evidence Submitting the attendance list should be by far the biggest Some of the names of the members of parliament have been preserved, it (There were about 100 of them).

The members of parliament had also immediately demonstrated their competence under the instruction to point out. Already in the first session they received the order- The goal was to raise approximately £16,000 for the king. In fact, it broke- if they did not pay this sum by the specified date- The king then confiscated the assets of the individuals concerned. Expropriate members of parliament and imprison them and their families. value,

The Jews did something further to harm the king, the people, the barons, and the church throughout the year 1244 to turn against oneself. The items found on the corpse The characteristics left the judges in no doubt that it was had committed a Jewish ritual murder. The child was considered 2) Close Rolls Vol. 1237-1242 pp. 202 ff.

) Close Rolls Vol. 1237-1242 p. 346, Prynn Vol. II p. 43/44.

- 1s) Close Rolls Vol. 1237-1242 p. 354155
- 2) Chronica Majora Vol. IV p. 377.

47

Martyrs buried near the high altar of St. Paul's Cathedral.
The Jews were fined approximately 48,000 pounds

Shortly afterwards, a new poll tax was demanded. This time
It was simultaneously threatened that in the event of non-payment the Jewish families were to be brought to Ireland.
Hebrews now set about sending their families in England to exiled people.
to accommodate borrowed spaces. To counter this, the King instructed the relevant authorities that every Jewish
The family must register in the district where they are staying.
Otherwise, they should be placed outside the law and their Assets will be confiscated?").

It is also not without interest that in the year 1245 the Jews were stopped to complete most of the work required for renewal to provide the necessary funds to Westminster Abbey (presenting).

Scandals

From the year 1250, we have a revealing story about the behavior and morals of the Jews of that time are documented been),

A rich Jew named Abraham was the declared broomstick of the King's brother, Duke Richard. The Jew's wife, Flora,
She is described as very pretty and obedient. Abraham allowed himself to be
To create a statue of the Virgin Mary with the Christ Child.
He brought the statue to his toilet and performed his daily rituals.
The need to express his boundless contempt for the to show Christians. He also forced his wife to do so. Finally But Flora not only refused to comply with his request, but she was supposed to have cleaned the statue after each use.
When Abraham realized this, he strangled his wife. The deed was but he was discovered and Abraham was brought to trial. He was thrown into the dock.
He was summarily arrested in the Tower and sentenced to life imprisonment.
Prison. However, he turned to his patron, the Duke.
Richard, who promised him, after payment of approximately £500 to help. He also managed to get Abraham the freedom-Approval was promised. However, before that could happen...
When he arrived, other Jews informed the king that he
He used to be particularly keen on coin theft. Equal-Early on, they offered Duke Richard about £800 if he would help Abraham would withdraw his support. They justified their

The statement that they naturally have such a

297) Close Rolls Vol. 1242–1247 pp. 275, 339.

2) Chronica Majora Vol. IV p. 427, Patent Rolls Vol. 1232–1247 pp. 474, 478, Madox:
Exchequer Vol. II p. 3, Margoliouth: History Vol. I p. 175/76.

100) Chronica Majora Vol. V p. 114 ff., Tovey p. 128, Prynn Vol. I p. 20 ff.

48

no longer tolerated criminals in their ranks. In fact, they actually wished to get Abraham as quickly as possible to render them harmless so that he can no longer harm their numerous was able to divulge details of rich crimes. Apparently, however, they
The Jews were unsuccessful in their efforts, because Duke Richard continued to advocate for the murderer Abraham. The latter
He then launched a counterattack himself and offered to help the king to prove that the Jews in England were the ver-
The most notorious criminals and traitors were apparently successful.
This is because he was not only released, but immediately Afterwards, thorough criminal investigations were launched throughout the country.
employed who confirmed the accuracy of his claims and to resulted in severe punishments.

But the very next year, the Jews caused new scandals.
stories. Despite the recent harsh punishments, they had the Church in the Jewish tax office Philip Luvel and Nicholas of St. Albans was bribed to act to the detriment of the Crown!
Here too, all those involved were severely punished.

In 1252, a new incident occurred. The Jews be-
They blamed an official who was inconvenient to them, who was busy with the task.
He was entrusted with Jewish affairs, that he relinquished his office to them
I abused her. Her accusation was so cleverly disguised-
It is understood that the friends of this official only after long efforts were able to prove his innocence. Here, too, the deliberate-(The false accusation of the Jews, their just atonement). Apparently They didn't even make the slightest effort to ensure flawless Responding to the growing anger of the people.
to reduce. Just a year later, news of a nefarious scheme across England. Jews in Northampton had then hatched a plot, both to set this city and London on fire. Fortunately.
The conspiracy was discovered in time. In retaliation
For this purpose, fire was set on the houses of the Jews and they burned them.
(at the same time the perpetrators), a harsh but just punishment for such a project. 1

Nuremberg Laws – around 1230

Apparently, King Henry III had been accustomed to such events.
no longer comply with the pressure from anti-Semitic circles.
They can close themselves off by issuing sweeping regulations. It
It is very interesting that this law contains partly the same content

ue) Chronica Majora Vol. V p. 261, Tovey p. 132, Prynne Vol. I p. 22.
m Chronica Majora Vol. V p. 345.
21) WHS 16/17.

Four Jews conquer England in 49 has similarities to the Nuremberg Laws of 1935. Consequently, it should

The following are quoted verbatim, insofar as they are of interest:"):

"...and that no English wet nurse will in the future employ a male wet nurse
No Englishman or Englishwoman may breastfeed a Jewish child.
to serve a Jew or a Jewish woman in the future, or with them to eat or to stay in their house... No Jew is allowed to do that permitted to denigrate or publicly criticize the Christian religion to discuss, and no Jew may be of any gender-Intercourse with an Englishwoman, and no Englishman such with We spoke with a Jewish woman. Every Jew clearly displayed his badge.
to be worn visibly on the chest, and no Jew may enter a church or enter the chapel – unless for the purpose of transiting gangs – or remaining in them to the desecration of Christ.
Furthermore, no Jew may be admitted to a city, it unless with the special permission of the King, except only in those cities where the Jews had already been lived.

Apparently, as far as is known, it is not recorded why this law was enacted. Most likely, however, it is the-
The same reasons led us to publish the Nuremberg Berger laws were enacted.

Persecution of Jews

The people had only partial protection against the law the Jews received, because usury still weighed heavily on them him. This led to further major riots. Jewish Historians pity their fellow race members and condemn them.
Englishmen. But they didn't even bother to...

to investigate the reasons, because otherwise they would surely have come to that. The conclusion must be reached that the cause lies solely in the fault of the The reason lay with Jews.

In 1254 they sent a delegation led by their High Priest Elias to Duke Richard, who was sent by the king with was tasked with collecting a new tax. She- clarified for a longer stay for those unable and asked to be allowed to leave England:"). To Duke Richard They had placed all their hopes on him, since he had already promised them had shown his goodwill on several occasions, but he too rejected their request, especially since the Jews had also been granted Frank- was richly secluded, where they were found in the year 1253 with with a few exceptions, the country had been expelled.

213) Rymer: Foedera Vol. I p. 293, Close Rolls Vol. 1234-1237 pp. 13/14.

214) Hyamson: History p. 64, Margoliouth Vol. I p. 181 ff.

215) Chronica Majora Vol. V p. 441.

50

Just one year later they repeated their request, but again without success. Since the king was suffering from a great lack of money, In 1255, he leased the Jews for about £4,000 to a a number of years to his brother, Duke Richard, who which was granted according to the agreement, but approximately £13,000 was received. to draw on their obligations to the king to compensate for that." Under Richard, they had full capacity despite everything. They received protection and recovered considerably financially.

But the Jews themselves were to be reprimanded once again in the year 1255. To give rise to new punishments and disturb their own peace. They stole eight-year-old Hugh in Lincoln, locked him up They put him in a room and fed him childish treats. Then they sent to all the Jewish communities and requested 'Their presence at the intended crucifixion of the boy. Jews streamed in from all over England. The crucifixion took place. also takes place, again with all individual phases of suffering. of Jesus Christ. The mother had desperately searched for the loss of the They searched for their child and learned that the boy had been found. I last saw Jewish children playing. At home- During searches, the body was found under the floor of a buried in a Jewish house. A Jew then also revealed to the The investigating judge was made aware of the entire crime and received a warrant for it. Exemption from punishment, insofar as he had been involved,

The king had just come through Lincoln and taken himself In this case. Even if the Hebrews, after their lease, immediately- They were subordinate to his brother, but it was still the case that

The power to punish lies in his hands. Bitter about this new disgrace— He immediately dismissed the eighty people who were considered suspects in the murder. arrest up to ninety Jews, most of whom were executed was"). Only some of them were later released. Since Ab— Representatives from almost all Jewish communities in England were present. Persecutions broke out everywhere, and despite the Under the protection of Duke Richard, the year 1255 became one of the hardest).

The suffering of boy Hugh has given rise to a number of folk songs and ballads in England and Scotland, indeed in the French Normandy was given.

Times were about to get even worse for the Jews. worse. The lower circles of the nobility were still the indebted to Jewish usurers, and it was only a matter of time before... It's time they took the law into their own hands. From Her growing unease is evidenced by a memorandum to the king. around the year 1259, in which they complain that as a result of the It is almost impossible for usurers to meet their ongoing obligations—

you) Chronica Majora Vol. V p. 487/88, Tovey p. 135.

7) Annales Monastici Vol. I p. 340, Holinshed Vol. III p. 253, Fox Vol. I p. 423 col. II, Royal and historical letters Vol. II p. 110, Chronica Majora Vol. V p. 516 ff., De Antiquis Legibus p. 23.

218) Chronica Majora Vol. V p. 558.

#0) Chronica Majora Vol. V p. 537.

ae 5 1

to come. In addition, it would be a further problem if the The great figures of the empire had the demands of the Jews transferred to them. and expelled the indebted landowners from Haus and Ilof, (to acquire the country).

Apparently, this request was unsuccessful. In any case, It was soon overtaken by internal political events. The tensions The conflict between the king and the barons led to the following in 1262: (so-called War of the Barons). The king had initially focused on to limit the defense and therefore had to include parts of the country. The Hali, nurtured for decades suddenly, the persecution of Jews came to the forefront of the debate. Break. Everywhere the barons were in control, they took hold. bitter revenge for the abuses suffered by the Hebrews for years, which were plundered in London in the years 1262/64 and destroyed by the hundreds were killed??). The chronicler in the Annales Monastici states regarding the events of 1264 that the barons were particularly bitter because the Jews intended would have set the city on fire. Whether this will be repeated.

of the aforementioned attempt in 1253 was or only a
There are different traditions regarding the dates
This could not be determined with certainty. However, it can be found that... we found the same thing with another historian regarding the year 1264 history, so that it can be assumed that there are two various attempts. Also in other cities, such as Canterbury, Northampton, Cambridge, Worcester, Lincoln, Winchester Did the persecutions repeat themselves??®). Everywhere one found er-beat Jews, and all their assets were seized by the Barons seized. In Cambridge, they succeeded in seizing the items there.
to obtain the deposited debt instruments, which they later destroyed. They achieved the same in Lincoln. They proclaimed publicly in the parts of the country they initially occupied, that all debts to the Jews are to be considered settled-
All of this can only be understood if one er-knows how the barons gradually came to this through usury Steps had been taken.

Finally, the power of the barons was broken and...
Peace returned to the country, just as the Jews were for a time left unmolested. But it's always the same story:
In good times, the Jew forgets his role as a guest and thus calls out through his behavior, new measures of retaliation against him-
This also proved true in England.

On the occasion of Ascension Day in the year 1268, a celebratory event took place.
A religious procession takes place in Oxford. The significance of the procession reveals m? Stubbs: Select Charters = Ti Annales Monastici Vol. I p. 442.

Annales Monastici Vol. II p.

222) Florentii Toru nis roi Vol. II p. 192, owe of 9 de Rishanger pp. 24, 126, Annales Monastici Vol. III 8. 230 pp.

223) Annales Monaste Vol. II pp. 101, 363, 371, Vol. IV 8. 142, 143, 448 ff., Liber de anne: TETERE p. 62, Holinshed Vol. III p. 267, Chronicle of Pierre de Langtoft

52 from the presence of the heir to the throne, Edward, and other high dignitaries. When the train reached the point where Each time the sermon took place, a Jew broke through the audience.

The crowd stopped the worshippers and grabbed the item they had brought on the train.
Crucifix from the bearer's hands, before the dismayed crowd
By the time he managed to wrest it from him, he had broken and trampled it.
The heir to the throne, himself a witness to this incident, reported it to the King. This event deeply impressed him and probably-Did this guide his entire future policy towards the Jews??*),

The people's anger was indescribable; they had a tremendous-He expected a terrible punishment, but was very disappointed by the extraordinarily moderate reprisals. The Jews had merely to erect a valuable cross at the site of the incident-to direct and to the university another portable silver cross to make available?®). Probably the same ones.
or similar influences as were at work in the case of the murderer Abraham was done to prevent just retribution.

Harsh Laws

The people, led by barons and the Church, could not do anything on their own at the moment, but were nevertheless powerful enough, probably with the help of the heir to the throne Edward, whose mother and the then Chancellor Walter de Merton, very soon to pass laws directed against the Jews??°), Perhaps it would not have been necessary to enact these provisions-come if a united anti-Jewish front does not form People, nobility and church had come together, whose education accelerated by the arrogant behavior of the Hebrews was. Despite the fact that in some cases they had already pledged land as collateral.
held on to something that had recently been taken away from them, believe-
They completely misjudged their situation in England at that time.
Time has come???)", the privileges associated with real estate-to demand rights for themselves. These consisted, among other things, of the fact that a Landowners automatically assume guardianship of minors exercised on his property, the permission to marry granted and could be the patron saint of a church. While the
The first two privileges were already confirmed by feudal law.
The Church, in turn, recognized the latter as inseparable.
associated with the real estate. Regarding the claim of the Jews These privileges sparked a storm of indignation in

#4) Leonard S. 127. : 1

) Tovey p. 170, 173, Lyte p. 67, Leonard p. 127, Hyamson: History p. 72, Rye p. 165.

22) Rigg: Select Pleas p. XXXVII. ee.

27) Gesta Abbatum Monasterii S. Albani Vol. I p. 401, Liber de Antiquis Legibus
p. 234 ff.

would curtail their monopoly, and the population-rung rejected the idea of being patronized by Jews with great resentment.
Instead of accepting their fate after the previous hard years
They believed they were satisfied, and now they had even more of a right to beto have special privileges. They raised their claim in in all forms at the Council, which participates in legislation had, and some of its members, who were probably in some-which had connections with the Jews, seemed to be their own Not averse to sayings. A Franciscan monk who somehow Having had access to the relevant council meeting, spoke with The archbishop vehemently opposed the proposal.
of York and the bishops of Litchfield, Coventry and Worcester, who made it clear to the Jews that it was solely due to grace They owed their existence to the king, if they were tolerated in England. It was an outrage, an equality with the English to demand of citizens and perhaps even later of the nobility to claim for themselves. The opponents of the Jews received a de-(departing support from the heir to the throne, Edward). One not only rejected the demands made, but also issued a decree at the end of the session to reject the Hebrews into their (with due limitations, the following drastic law???) :

"...that all debts owed to Jews, who were These are pledged fiefs that are currently in their hands are located and not before the law is passed to Englishmen-to or sell and accordingly confirmed by the King or were registered with the Exchequer, the borrowers or whose heirs are exempted along with the arrears.
Furthermore, that the contracts of this feudal debt, wherever one she finds, to return to the English debtors or their heirs-Admittedly... It is further stipulated by law that no Jew under penalty of forfeiture of life, property and possessions, as well as his inheritance claim from the date of the enactment of the law, such Selling a fief to an Englishman is permitted..."

The aging king fell more and more under the influence his son Eduard, who had a great aversion to the Jews had, and it is therefore not surprising that already two years Later, a comprehensive law against the Jews was enacted.
At the beginning we find, as it were, a preamble'), in which the preamble is described as justification for the publication of the provisions which are The Jews caused the difficult situation of the population is. Following this, the goal – the liberation of the People's – proclaimed.

The first thing that is determined is that "no Jew may own free land".
"They could call it their own." However, they were given the houses, in 229) Red Book of the Exchequer Vol. III p. 978.

250) Rymer: Foedera Vol. I p. 489, Liber de Antiquis Legibus appendix p. 234.

54 in which they had lived previously. But under no circumstances was it permitted in the future for the Jews to acquire new houses. Except—

The law emphasized once again that they were neither free
They could neither buy real estate nor have it mortgaged.
Finally, confirmation was found in the second-to-last paragraph.
or a supplementary explanation of the law of 1234 as follows:
"Re: Persons employed as wet nurses, bakers, brewers and cooks in the
We have legally stipulated that the service of the Jews is to be provided... no Englishman or Englishwoman is allowed to enter them to serve the aforementioned properties

Immediately afterwards, the Jews were taxed at approximately £4,500.
to encourage Crown Prince Edward to participate in a crusade possible. However, they only brought two-thirds of the required amount.
The sum was paid up, the rest was paid by the Duke of Cornwall.
As security for his loan, he received a [something] from all the Jews.
Transferred for unrestricted use for one year. Even before the expiry date
He died in 1272, having lost his claim. The Jews thus fell into [unclear – possibly refer the king's property, who then levied another tax on them imposed a fine of approximately £3,600. Shortly afterwards, he too gave his blessing.
the temporal?@t).

Edward I in the fight against usury

After the death of Henry III in 1272, his son Edward I ascended the throne; he was away on a crusade. and only returned in 1274?@). During his Nothing of importance had happened during his absence, as far as the Jews are a possibility. However, before we move on to the following points...
Years pass, it seems necessary to take a moment at Edward's character and his attitude towards the Hebrews to linger.

Edward I was the ideal king. He demanded nothing for himself, so—
He subordinated his own wishes entirely to those of the nation.
(under), He was filled with grand plans, in particular it lay
It was close to his heart to improve the dire situation of his people.
The focus was on the future. To achieve great tasks for
He was prepared to give up immediate advantages for his country.
He was also a pious man and strove to be a faithful son.
to be his church. He was also sustained by the wishes of the people.
and the lower nobility, who were particularly indebted to the Jews was. Among other things, the population hoped for measures against the Jews.

31) Gesta Abbatum Monasterii Vol. I p. 400 ff., Rymer: Foedera Vol. I p. 409
m? Margoliouth: History Vol. I p. 239.
) Abrahams p. 28.

55

One should not wait too long, because immediately after his return he tackled the problems that concerned him. First, he needed a sound financial foundation. He did not want to achieve this by doing what his ancestors had done – unilaterally used any part of the nation's wealth, but All the nation's forces should be mobilized. He sought to achieve this through a strict feudal system. For this purpose However, it was necessary that as much real estate as possible be located in England held by the follower in fief for the overlord was, Now, at that time there were considerable lands, those owned by monasteries or other religious institutions porations were considered non-transmissible and therefore not could be affected by the feudal system. This condition Edward hoped to fundamentally benefit the Crown in the future to change what he undertook with the law of 1279. But the Jews were also there for him to achieve this goal. In the way: as soon as land was mortgaged to them, they seized it. all the proceeds from it and the king received only a fraction of it to what he was otherwise granted under the feudal system would have). Furthermore, it frequently happened that they exercised their rights to education of the land pledged to them in exchange for payment of a (The sum was agreed upon and ceded to monasteries?). This was also the case with this one. The country is no longer subject to the feudal system, but even if it still basically fell under that category, since it was for the entitled parties even with the best will it is impossible to fulfill their obligations as German to comply with the folgsmann as soon as they pay usurious interest rates had. Since they always tended to stay with their master in such traps. They could count on understanding for their economic situation when Among the Jews, the former often came up with his claim In short. This has been the norm lately, since the basic-property was indebted to an unprecedented degree"),

The king was, apart from his own interests in the Feudal system, deeply burdened by the people's indebtedness. The church was still deeply in debt. Which The extent to which this condition had reached in the 12th century is known – As already described above. Nothing had changed in the meantime. improves. The well-known chronicler Matthew Paris once broke into the Words suggest that hardly anyone, especially hardly any bishop, would admit to this. not in the nets of the usurers?'), When the later so When the famous John of Peckham came to Canterbury, it was the cathedral –

The streets are falling into disrepair because there is no money for repairs. was. All available funds were used to pay the usurious interest?®). The Abbey of Glastonbury had such enormous debts, that when revising the budget, the exact number of =) Rotuli Curiae Regis Vol. II p. 62.

235) Chronicles of the Abbey of Melsa Vol. I p. 173, 174, 306, 367, Vol. II p. 116.

2%) Patent Rolls Vol. 1281–1292 p. 25, Madox: Exchequer Vol. I p. 227.

237) Chronica Majora Vol. III p. 328, Vol. V p. 189.

238) Letters of John of Peckham Vol. I p. 203.

56

Meals for the abbot, which he served in his private quarters was served. Urgent savings to pay off exorbitant debts. Did debt make this necessary?®). The Bishop of Norwich He no longer had the money for basic living expenses. He had to (Therefore, borrow £480 from the Archbishop of Canterbury?%) The church in Newnton was unable to do so due to a lack of funds. (Clergymen) The Prior of Lewes asked for permission to to rent out the church for any secular purposes (to pay his urgent debts?). Partially They resorted to ruthlessly sacrificing the funds belonging to the monasteries. ...cleared the forests and made money from them." Even the usual stuff. St. Swithins Monastery, rich in natural products and income, in Winchester was constantly heavily in debt. The Bishop of Hereford had even sought the mediation of King Henry III. must seek to obtain a moratorium from the Jews?®). Similar conditions also existed among the barons. grasped and it was therefore one of the most important points in the program Edward's goal was to free his people from the shackles of usury. In addition, the king could no longer rely on financial assistance. of the Jews. Their heavy reliance on them by His father had greatly diminished their wealth and the royal The resulting income had therefore declined considerably. The king's income had increased significantly in recent decades. increased from approximately £35,000 to approximately £65,000, but this did not apply to but was due to other sources of income. Jewish taxes had not only increased relative to income The king's was reduced, but they also had an absolutely smaller value. Height").

Apart from that, however, the importance of the Jews for the money market had also declined sharply. In 1235, in fact, Italian merchants and bankers, called Caursini, e.g. from Florence, Milan, and Rome came to England. They delighted enjoying the special protection of the Pope, who even signed treaties with had concluded agreements with kings that obligated them to commit themselves to the er- to serve significant portions of these bankers." They were un- doubtful they were as shrewd in banking as the Jews. Chronicler Matthew Paris has given us, among other things, a perfect loan- contract communicated which they concluded upon handing over money (e).

As Christians, they were not permitted under canon law. They were allowed to charge interest. On the other hand, they naturally wanted to... Lending money makes a profit. They now helped themselves with the out-

23) Letters of John of Peckham Vol. I p. 261.

24) Letters of John of Peckham Vol. I pp. 177, 187.

24) Letters of John of Peckham Vol. I p. 194.

2) Letters of John of Peckham Vol. I p. 380.

24) Letters of John of Peckham Vol. I p. 244.

24) Obedientiary Rolls of St. Swithins pp. 10, 18.

sue} Excerpta e Rotulis Finium Vol. II p. 68.

24% Jewish Encyclopedia Vol. V p. 165.

27) Abrahams, pp. 35/36.

#8) Historia Minora Vol. III p. 272, Chronica Majora Vol. III p. 328.

emphatically stating that they would give the money without interest. If Now someone wanted a loan of £100 for six months, It was agreed in a contract that the money would only be used for the The duration is three months to give and take. However, it should the amount will not be refunded after this period, The lender would have to receive some form of compensation for this. He was paid that he would not receive the money back in time. 'had. This so-called compensation for damages then amounted to sometimes- Sometimes up to 50%, and practically represented the interest rates. Bankers from Italy soon became significant competitors of the Jews, although the latter, with regard to the protection of the King's certain advantages, such as enforcement measures through the Jewish tax office, delighted. The Caursini soon had just- in case the hatred of the population is directed against him, and already King Hein- King III had considered making them the country. to refer, but he had the power to protect them (Feared by the Pope and therefore refrained from doing so!). This is yet another example of the policies of the Catholic Church. The Church not only tolerates the circumvention of its laws, but even promotes it.

The Jewish historians believe that Edward solely reliant on the financial assistance of the Caursini family, therefore the Jews were no longer needed, and now they, his poor victims, were.

But they overlook and forget to mention that the Caursini also became "victims of the king" the moment they Wealthy interest rates were charged. Edward's measures were aimed without difference compared to the usury under which his people were so significantly affected to suffer. As a devout Christian, he didn't even consider the He complied with the given regulations with a clear conscience under any circumstances. which circumvention to set aside, as the head of the church-lichen institution, the Pope did every day and more In 1274, at the Congress of Lyon, the Christian world against the ever-increasing usury?). Perhaps the then Pope Gregory X was more honest than his Predecessor and truly desired the fight against usury. Be that as it may, Edward was wholeheartedly willing to to put an end to usury in his country. It is surprising. Therefore, it is not the case that he issued an order in 1275 which... Usury was initially only forbidden for Christians." Furthermore, it emerges that in June 1275, January 1276 and July 1281 Court proceedings against Caursini must have taken place, because, according to the available reports, her pardon was granted on the condition that they do not engage in usury-

29) Hyamson: History pp. 73, 74.

250) Hyamson: History p.73, 77, Abrahams p.36, Margoliouth: History Vol.I p. 241 ff. etc.

251) Abrahams p. 34.

252) BB Appendix p. 13 No. 18, Rymer: Foedera Vol. I Part 2 p. 539.

58

operate more businesses?®), It can be seen from this that Edward regardless of race and religion, those affected equally punished those who charged usurious interest rates to his people. It can So there is no question that only the poor Jews are affected by this. "Barbaric Edward" would have suffered and all his hands-lungs were dictated only by blind hatred against them. However, it is true that he condemned the Jews with all decisiveness. He rejected it. He was influenced in this by his mother and not most recently through the abhorrent incident in Oxford in The year 1268 was deeply impressed by his life. Despite everything, he, as his actions soon afterwards clearly show, through special legislation, the Jews became a people and tries to maintain a life of tolerable wealth. With which

We'll see how it goes.

The relevant law was called: "Statute de la Jeuerie" or "Statute de Judaismo"?), It is extremely important and It should therefore be discussed in detail.

The first part contains the provisions regarding the Prohibition of usury, and it is first explained why Edward who deems this necessary, "Many honorable men", will executed, "had lost their ancestral property through usury by Jews lost." Many other unpleasant things resulted from this. arose, and so he ordered it "for the general good of the people". that no Jew may practice usury anymore. Also already ab- closed, historical representation up to a certain point in time Loan agreements are only legally binding with regard to the principal sum. binding.

This is followed by the explanation of his principle "No more usury for the people". He promises not only to stop the usury of the Jews not only to punish him, but also to stop him in any way. to support. In doing so, he gives up the more than two hundred years old policies of his ancestors in favor of the people and for the future part of the royal family and the Jews; he himself now had to expect no further significant income from the To have Jews.

Following this principle, it is then ordered that the people- As debtors, they enjoyed every protection against ruthless... Executions of Jews were to be carried out. Numerous security measures were in place. Measures are planned for this purpose. For example, "honorable men" are to be... First, the movable property of the respective debtor is seized. knowledgeable assessed. will be before it is due to full- extensions to the Jew in credit against the loan debt- will be given." Only when the value of the movable property does not contribute to If the debt is sufficient to cover the debt, one can rely on the real estate. to resort to, but in such a case individual determinations are necessary. =) Patent Rolls Vol. 1272-1281, pp. 92, 93, 95, 128, 448, also Calendarum Rotulum Patentium p. 46 ff.

24) Statutes of The Realm Vol. I p. 221, Chronicle of Edward I. and Edward II. Vol.I p. 96, Florentii Wigorniensis Vol. II p. 214.

59

provisions designed to enable the debtor to retain his real estate for as long as possible

A review reveals that this part of the law is indeed appears modern and in a certain sense resembles ours Enforcement Protection Act.

Jews have once again been ordered to only enter such to have their residence in cities where the aforementioned royal

The debt documents are located in the relevant offices.
It is further stipulated once again that the Jews after completion of
From the age of 7, a specific badge must be visible on their clothing.
to wear. Upon entering their 13th year of life, they also have to Every Jew, regardless of gender, pays an annual poll tax to be paid from 3 pennies.

These regulations were intended to protect the lives of Jews within the to regulate the body politic in a very specific way, indeed, one could with Respect for the prohibition of usury and their dominance
Those in this industry say that they had to completely change their approach.
Now, the efforts, which were hopeless from the outset, were discontinued.
This great English king, the Jews in his country to improve. He wants to show them what is despicable and for the People are thus detrimental to the usurer's trade, but a new, better existence through the enactment of legal provisions to manage. But the king hadn't dealt with the true character.
That includes the Jews. The improvement of a person always involves his good will, which, however, is probably always the case with the Jews as a nation was missing.

At the beginning of this relevant legal provision, the King again gives (the justification for his position. "The Holy Church wishes and permits that the Jews live and be protected should. As a result, the king places them under his protection." He guarantees them full legal protection against all possible actions against them emerging attacks by the population.

"The king grants the Jews every freedom to exercise their rights"
Trade, indeed any kind of employment. To achieve The King welcomes all traffic to these destinations with its subtanen."

"In addition, the king grants the Jews the right to acquire houses for residential purposes within their place of residence."
The extent of the king's concern is further revealed by the last paragraph of the law,

"Finally, the king is looking out for those who are not involved in trade."
or prove their craft, before they first qualify for the highest-to lease an agricultural business for a period of ten years can."

Regarding the legal relationship of the Jews to the king, nothing was changed by the law. They remained his property and Consequently, despite their explicit authority to Trade, etc., did not make citizens of the cities. At the same time, determined that they were not liable to the cities, but only to the king for taxes

In the following we will see whether the Jews were affected by them Made use of the given opportunities of an honorable profession have. To put it simply: all of Edward I's care was In vain. Jewish historians are making great efforts to...
to prove precisely to each individual that the Jews came from different
No use was made of this goodwill of the king.
were able to do so and were thus driven to commit crimes.

It is especially BL Abrahams (ss) who provided this proofren tried. Since the other historians (?) more or less on Going back to him, we will only deal with him in the following:
confront each other:

Abraham takes the position that it was impossible for the Jews to conduct honorable trade because, according to the law, they were not citizens could become a municipality. However, this made them from the so-called guilds and thus from the merchant class-closed, for which membership in a specific-
The ten guild was a prerequisite.

This opinion cannot be accepted for various reasons.
To refute this, it is necessary to briefly explain the legal nature of the Guilds, or as they were also called, "Gilda Mercatoria" is treated.

With William the Conqueror, not only did orderly relations return-nises in England, but closely connected with them, they stood out trade and commerce also flourished. This led to the end of the 11th century. for the formation of guilds?"), to which the king granted very special privileges-legien were awarded.

It is difficult to give a general definition for the most frequently repeated to find the recurring special rights of the guilds, since the latter are in their practical handling almost never agree.
Gross*5*) has undertaken to examine the individual award certificates to compile carefully. It follows that in general-
The members of a guild are generally exempt from city taxes.
were and a monopoly on a large part of the goods in
They had small businesses. Almost nowhere was it forbidden to be without a permit.
(belonging to the guild of wholesale trade), yes, it was at various locations on market days, usually also foreigners which allows the sale of goods in retail trade, and about that Furthermore, in some cities a monopoly was found in retail trade.
only on the pro-
Products such as furs, wool and dyed cloth are limited.

Non-members of guilds therefore had a wide range of activities to choose from.
field left to the Jews, and as a result, they had great opportunities.

2 Abrahams p. 39 ff.

c) see, among others, Hyamson: History p. 80.

287) Gross: Gilda Mercatoria p. 32.

238) Gross: Gild Merchant Vol. I p. 37 ff., Vol

1) Gross: Gild Merchant Vol. I p. 43 ff., Gilda Mercatoria p. 54, 55.

61

possibilities for building their trade. The further fundamental advantage of guild members – tax exemption in the The Jews already enjoyed cities according to the above law. which they owe taxes to only the king and not to the cities were.

As you can see, the members of the guilds had little advantage over the Jews; with goodwill, the latter could therefore easily be im- able to find a sufficient livelihood.

Furthermore, we cannot share Abraham's view that the Jews could not become members of the guilds because they the aforementioned law the acquisition of citizenship rights in the made it impossible for cities.

Gross?®) has now also demonstrated that the guilds are not identical with the city municipalities, but only an important organ the city administration. From this he has convincingly demonstrated, that one could obtain membership in the guild without citizenship to be in the city?). He even managed to make this his The view can be clearly proven by documents. After that, numerous people from neighboring towns, even complete strangers Members of guilds in a city, without having citizenship rights. After all this, the possibility also existed for the Jews to to join the guilds. There is even a recorded case where A Jew became a member of a guild in the year 1268. Thus has it been proven that, with serious intent, they can achieve the Eng- countries were completely equal in trade.

Abraham's statements must, moreover, be interpreted as un- It might be understood by biased readers as if it were happening throughout England. Guilds existed, and thus there was nowhere for the Jews to find a guild. There was an opportunity to act.

Without a doubt, not a single guild existed in the countryside and not even in all cities, but only in those that do. had received a privilege from the king. Again, it is the For- reserved for the use of Grosses) a list of cities to assemble guilds, but it only contains about 100 locations.

The cities of Arundel, Colchester, Exeter, Huntingdon, Warwick etc. are missing?*)). These are only from the number of non-guild members. Cities were singled out because they had Jewish communities. have?®),

Even if Abraham's point of view were correct, there were still enough places in England where the 16,000 Jews" could have traded.

But his view is all the more surprising since he is the one who... has established from documents that the Jews actually m Gross: Gild Merchant Vol. I p. 36 ff., 63, 64.

219 Gross: Gild Merchant Vol. I p. 66 ff., Gilda Mercatoria p. 56 ff. nes} Ochenkowski shares the same view (p. 57).

23) Gross: Gild Merchant Vol. I p. 9 ff., Gilda Mercatoria p. 37 ff.

24) Gross: Gild Merchant Vol. I p. 20, Gilda Mercatoria p. 39.

8) Jacobs, pp. 373–385.

2%) Abrahams p. 39.

62

have traded. He undertook to examine the documents in the Public Record Office and the British Museum in detail to then investigate which values guided the Jews in their Expulsion from England in 1290 was available.

The facts he published on the subject alone should be considered without... further confirms that the Jews mainly in grain and

Wool maintained a good wholesale business that supported them even without Joining the guilds is possible (wart). From his lists

It turns out that the Jews in Bristol, Lincoln, Norwich, Oxford, especially in Canterbury and Southampton"), a engaged in commercial trade in the aforementioned products.

Certainly, many documents relating to this will be lost and

Furthermore, some transactions may not have been recorded.

In any case, there should be no doubt that the Jews without

They could have pursued any difficulty in honest trade.

Abraham's?) has further explained that for the Jews there were hardly any opportunities–

The prospect was to find accommodation in agriculture, which was also granted to them under Edward's legislation was. They were completely unaware of this, in particular

They asked not to be able to acquire any land, as the oath of fealty required a

Christian in character and consequently not of them could be achieved. Abrahams refers here to a

An oath that ends with the words: "So help me God and all his

"Saints." In this version, the Jews would have considered the person in question. However, they could not take an oath. By reviewing the passage quoted by Abraham indicates that this oath is to— at least until the expulsion of the Jews in 1290. may be enacted by a law, which contributes to its effectiveness would have been fundamentally necessary. On the contrary, own follow— Research showed that it was introduced much later. In the sourcebook "Liber Custu—" cited by Abraham "marum" can be found from page 88 to page 239 with a single excerpt— only laws enacted after the year 1297; most date from this period. even from the period after 1300. The oath he sworn be— It can be found on page 215 of the collection and is without indication of the Date of publication reproduced. The preceding The law dates from the year 1306, the following one from the year 1303. With near certainty, it is likely This results from the fact that the aforementioned regulation also applies according to it was issued in the year 1300.

As we have established, the oath is also in another version. (included in the official collection of sources?), In the associated The footnote explicitly states that this legal provision— mung was issued by Edward II in 1324.

2 Abrahams: Conditions of the Jews p. 85 ff.
28) Abrahams: Conditions of the Jews p. 87 ff.
m Abrahams p. 40.

2) The Statutes of the Realm Vol. I p. 227.

63

At least it is now certain that the oath cited by Abraham was only introduced long after the expulsion of the Jews is and therefore no obstacle for them around the year 1276 could demonstrate. Consequently, no reason is apparent to why the Jews could not earn their living in the country— They were supposed to be looking for economic opportunities. But the real reason back then as it may have been today, that they showed not the slightest inclination to felt the urge to take up the plow; a welcome one. This circumstance, because only in this way could an unadulterated Preserving peasantry, the original source of all things national and the revival of birth.

Finally, Abraham claims?), for the Jews there would have been no possibility of becoming craftsmen. To explain In his assertion, he refers back to the point already mentioned. Source collection?") and the statutes listed therein, from which he derives special requirements for the skilled trades determines. With the exception of two laws?"®) but also the

The rest date from the period after the expulsion of the Jews.
The first two laws mainly deal only with which-work is not permitted on certain days and from which materials certain products are to be manufactured. In one of them, it is also
It was stipulated that the apprenticeship period for saddlers should be ten years.
Both provisions therefore do not deal with single-restrictions that made it impossible for Jews to join the trades made. Incidentally, it seems that, apart from Above all else, legal regulations only came into effect after the year 1300.
issued with regard to certain qualifications for the trade were; for example, no records can be found for London during this period.
"instructions in this regard," but they are only available later.
to be found." Furthermore, it is not certain that it exists in all cities.
special guilds existed. Rather, it insisted on the
In flat lands, there is certainly the possibility of practicing the craft.
Thus, the craftsmen who were involved in acquiring a large estate received collected, for their craft service certain land 276), Ab-seen from the difficulty that everyone has to learn The Jews were critical of the fact that his profession required a certain amount of time.
also work in the trades.

We lingered longer on this section because the histo-almost all rikers have unanimously taken the position that that the Jews were given every opportunity by the law of Edward I to was deprived of a livelihood after she
They could no longer practice their former trade – usury.

#71) Abrahams p. 40.

22) Liber Custumarum pp. 78, 80/81, 101, 102, 121, 124, 418–425. Further reference on Riley, pp. 178/79.

213) Liber Custumarum pp. 78, 101.

274) Riley S. 3–61.

275) Ochenkowski p. 64.

27) Ochenkowski p. 51 ff.

64

This previous historical research should now be sufficiently refuted
. It does indeed seem rather peculiar that after
In the view of these historians, a king like Edward I – whom one not unjustly calls the English Justinian – a law er-should have left it, which mostly only existed on paper, because allegedly certain circumstances make practical implementation impossible-made possible.

Judah's answer

It would soon become apparent that the Jews had not the slightest doubt-Acknowledgement of Edward I's efforts to make them honorable people to do, raised. Rather, they saw everything as merely an under-oppression. Although they didn't dare to express their reluctance directly.
to speak out against the king, they nevertheless insulted him They publicly promoted the Christian religion. They claimed that that Edward's law was against the principles of Christian doctrine be: the same justification that Jews and their friends use against to bring forward our anti-Jewish laws. You see, everything repeats itself – only with the difference that today they are confronted with this shouting-especially in the Anglo-Saxon countries, much applause and following-find a position. In England at that time, this position was given to a special-
The foundation apparently received very little attention. During their attacks
The Hebrews didn't even do that in front of Jesus.
Christ stop; her behavior had finally become so unbearable that the
The patient king granted them this in the year 1279 by special law (had to prohibit this activity?). Furthermore, Edward forbade – apparently it had become necessary – to the Jews even-strictly, Christian servants, regardless of whether male-male or female, to employ and in their homes have. It is striking that the mention of this prohibition during-reappeared repeatedly throughout the 13th century, but Apparently, certain incidents must have necessitated it.

However, the Jews were by no means sparing in their insults.
of the aforementioned kind. Rather, they resorted to actions that were temporarily the entire administration, yes, one could perhaps say so-They even threatened the existence of the English economy.

First, it was established that the Hebrews were concerned with the law.
Edward's little concern and despite the threats against them Despite harsh penalties, they continued to lend money at usurious rates. Only a few
"Some of them thought of engaging in honorable activities."

Most of them, indeed very likely all of them, took their Refuge for the worst crimes.

Tovey p. 207, Rymer: Foedera Vol. I Part 2 p. 570, Margoliouth: History Vol. I p. 250.
m Abrahams p. 46, Hyamson: History p. 81.

5 Jews conquer England 65

It has been handed down to us that they carried out raids on the countryside-

Street crimes and burglaries were committed and became a plague in the country. were"). However, their main occupation still seems to be in this. to have claimed that they ruined the country's currency. They cut or polished the gold and silver coins. edges off, and while they use the metal thus obtained for themselves— Those who held them gave the devalued coins their full face value. further.

As early as 1248, mainly Jews had committed this crime and only severe punishments had partially deterred them from it could hold. The currency was so devastated as a result that the Foreign countries were hardly accepting English money as payment anymore?). Shortly after the enactment of the law by Edward I, the following was now presented: same problems were identified – initially only on a small scale, but then more and more – to an unprecedented degree. In the year 1278 Edward had to decide to confiscate all the coins and to have new ones minted. But first he had to try to... The perpetrators suspected of the coin thefts have been apprehended. to do this so that they wouldn't ruin the currency again. From the beginning, Edward's suspicions were based on the Events in 1248 fell upon the Jews. Among those now— Subsequent investigations revealed that they actually were almost solely to blame; apart from circumcision, they had counterfeit coins smuggled in from abroad, which outwardly indistinguishable from genuine English coins— divorced, but actually only weighed half as much?). One observed that the Hebrews were making enormous profits with their activities had done and to such an extent pursued the crime— had gone, that in a short time the English currency every had lost value?).

As soon as Edward I. had sufficient evidence of the Jews' activities Having been presented with them, he had them distributed throughout England one night in t land arrest and at the same time conduct thorough house searches— places?®). A great deal of devalued or counterfeit money was discovered, Yes, special tools for carrying out the crimes). Court hearings were now taking place everywhere, which revealed, among other things, that one or two Englishmen are also involved, however their Participation was completely insignificant in relation to the Jews. Hundreds of Jews were sentenced to death. In London alone... 293 Jews were hanged or drowned, along with three others. English?)

m) 7°) Calendar of Patent Rolls Vol. 1281–1292 p. 98.

2} Tovey p. 109, Chronica Majora Vol. V pp. 15/16, Ruding Vol. I p. 355

2 he Monastici Vol. IV p. 278, Tovey pp. 209, 210, Ruding Vol. I p. 367.

um) Bartholomaei 115 Cotton p. 157, Chronica Jonannis de Oxenedes p. 253, Chronica

Monasterii S. Albani, Thomas Walsingham Vol. 18.

284) Chronica Jchanns de oe p. 252, Annales Mönastiei Vol. II p. 390, Florentii Wigorniensis Vol. II p. 2

285) Holinshed Vol. III p. 277 (it. Tovey p. 210, Prynn Vol. I p. 32, Vol. II p. 81.

This ended this crime, from which the Jews not only derived great material gains, but at the same time deprived them of what they considered to be their great advantage. The king, who had struck the hated king very hard, bringing it to an end. set.

The Church intervenes

One might have expected the king to act on the basis of his bad experiences with Jews, at least passively, towards them how he would have behaved towards him. However, it is indicative of his own-position that, in view of the public's outrage, he These crimes enact special laws for their protection. He continued to see them as his subjects and his He owned the property and therefore prohibited any harassment, as he did about it. Furthermore, it prohibited all interference in their trade. Violations Lungs were made a punishable offense (288). How serious he was about it was, it follows from the fact that in individual cases he had numerous issued special regulations, as we have seen, for example, for the citizens of Hereford finds, which apparently does not comply with the general law. had paid attention?). But all of the king's measures to calm the situation The masses' efforts were unsuccessful because the people were too reluctant to participate 'brought against the Jews. Ultimately, it was they themselves who those who contributed most to their expulsion through their misdeeds, although other circumstances, such as the queen's hatred Eleanor, who may have spoken along:®), The great bitterness of the The people's situation can best be determined from contemporary accounts. ask. Matth. Paris believes they have sinned against their fate. serves, "since it is quite unequivocally established that they continuously the convicted of forgery and coin clipping?®), Even educated circles almost unanimously shared the view of People's?%),

The Church was significantly involved in the fight against the Jews Leading clergymen had left no stone unturned, to reduce traffic between Jews and Christians to the emergency- (most necessary to restrict). The people have so far given free rein to their feelings. not free rein, because the king still protected the Jews, because he still hoped for improvement; however, he was only so long since resolved to pursue this policy, as it served the well-being of the people to reconcile them.

Gradually, the Church became more active. The Archbishop of Canterbury, John von Peckham, demanded that all synagogues in 286) Prynne Vol. II p. 85.

237) Prynne Vol. II p. 100.

88) Annales Monastici Vol. II p. 409.

2) Historia Anglorum Vol. III p. 76.

88) Chronica Majora Vol. V p. 517.

221) Letters of Bishop Grosseteste pp. 33, 318.

80 67 .

London would be closed with a single exception."

The Bishop of Hereford was determined to the utmost to to tolerate no contact between Jews and Christians. When he learned that Christians were attending an upcoming wedding He forbade those who intended to participate in the celebration of wealthy Jews. under threat of excommunication in case of violation. Englishmen who did not follow this instruction were also expelled from the church by him.

In 1286, the church in England received an external upgrade. Support. The Pope sent a letter to the archbishops of Canterbury- bury and York a bull, in which he defended himself with all decisiveness opposed the interactions between Jews and Christians. Should the church has so far tacitly tolerated this practice, He should therefore condemn this and demand its immediate cessation. Furthermore One should also find Christian wet nurses as quickly as possible. remove Jewish houses and remedy the abuse that Christian women and men together with Jews in one lived in the house. This often led to shameless incidents. Things insofar as Jewish men with Christian women and Christian men had sexual intercourse with Jewish women. He demanded strict intervention and subsequent action against everything. Report on the remedy").

That the Jews still do not obey the king's command, a kenn- The repeated reference to the signs to wear, which were followed, is evident. the existing legal provision in a special version order. l

Immediately after the Jews were sentenced for the coinage crimes, Edward set about reforming the currency in 1278 to put England back in order. He moved gradually. all accessible damaged coins removed from circulation and er- He implemented them through new methods. He also set a date from from which point the old coins were withdrawn from circulation.

During the course of the aforementioned year, one can observe the structure of its currency as considered finished?).

In 1282, complaints were again lodged with the king that Numerous coins have been devalued once again. Also, some... Counterfeit coins are already circulating again. The king set by decree of 6 February 1283, a commission was appointed, and The immediate investigations revealed that it was again the Was it the work of the Jews?®). It is certainly also intended to punish the The guilty parties were identified without any mention of the manner in which this occurrence would have been handed down.

Apparently, however, all measures had not had the intended effect Success, because a new regulation was issued the very next year.

22) Johannes Peckham: Registrum Epistularum Vol. II p. 407.
) Richard de Swinefield Vol. II pp. 100, 101.

2) Holinshed Vol. III p. 279.

2) Prynn Vol. II p. 102.

68

ning to the Commission to conduct investigations and carry out further punishments against the Jewish coinage criminals!").

It would be hard to believe, but this new advantage is also... Going has still not yielded the hoped-for result. Some Chroniclers?") speak of a general persecution of Jews in The year 1286, without, however, giving the reasons for this. Again Other sources have told us that in 1287 all the Jews were deported to the They were thrown into prison because they committed further coin theft offenses. would have gone. Only after paying a fine of £12,000 were they released. She was released again.

This process may also have occurred as late as 1288. It has come to a conclusion, because Eduard L. once again on On January 26, 1288, a decree was issued which states that that the Jews were still active as counterfeiters. As a result- The judges were instructed to take all necessary measures against this. to undertake them). Would there have been another major one in 1287? The punishment of the Jews of all England took place, so one should Assume that they had remained quiet for at least a few months, although nothing is impossible for them in this regard- lich is.

Since 1286, the king had been present in Gascony, which at that time was still part of the changes England belonged to it). In 1288 he issued a decree for this part his kingdom the decree that the Jews immediately cease these pro- would have had to leave Vinz?®!), which marked the beginning of what followed measures in England.

The expulsion of the Jews

When Edward returned to London from Gascony in 1289," He was determined to expel the Jews from England as well. But what awaited him here was initially very unpleasant and urgent business dealings. He was informed that a significant portion the judge was bribed during his three-year absence was and no longer subject to sound jurisprudence It could be said. This has already had the most unpleasant consequences. It was born, and he was besieged from all sides, against the Rich- to proceed ter. The Jews were also to a considerable extent involved. involved in these bribes®®) – a miracle in history

(see) Panis Vol. II p. 105. 1
Chronica Johannis de Oxenedes p. 2
m) Florentii Wigorniensis Vol. II p. 238, wen Monastici Vol. IV p. 308, Chronicles of Edward I Ra 2 p. 96.
= Prynne Vol. II p.
Chronicle of 5 de Langtoft Vol. II p. 183.
Gesta Abbatum Monasterii S. Albani Vol. II p. 30

Annales Monastici Vol. IV p. 318, Chronicles of Edward I Vol. I p. 97.
m) BBS 5.

69

of the Jews, if it hadn't been so. Edward immediately dismissed the guilty judges, punished them, and replaced them as quickly as possible as much as possible through new ones. After all, the cleaning of the "12% of the judiciary was claimed by the beginning of the year." Immediately after this matter was resolved, he turned the Jewish question. The barons and the clergy had already In parliament, a motion was submitted to ban the Jews of the country. The motion was passed without difficulty, according to which they still had 12% to leave England during the year." Its contents, insofar as they are of interest, will be reproduced. will be.
"... In the third year of his reign, the king had already ordered that no Jew in his realm should lend money at usurious rates." ... to lend interest ... Furthermore, the king had decreed, that the Jews will earn their living through trade in the future and should earn an honest living. But they fell under agree, according to a well-thought-out, shameful plan, to to continue usury in a different, much worse way. They called this "politeness." Under such a guise They conducted their dark dealings with the people in a Extent that their current criminal activities are twice as extensive It is as disadvantageous as before. In retaliation for their crimes and For the honor of the crucified one, we condemned them as traitors. banished from our realm. In accordance with the previous We expressly reiterate the royal decrees. established that all usury and the disadvantages arising from it to be declared null and void insofar as they were made by Jews towards subjects of our realm from any Ge- Claims of the aforementioned type may be asserted. Englishmen are therefore only obliged to pay those expelled by the Jews. The principal claim received must be repaid. These sums are considered debts to the tax office with reference to on the oath of three Christian men who vowed about the an- They are given the opportunity to state truthfully. Repayment of these amounts may be reasonable for the debtor. Installments can be granted?®),“ The content of this law clearly shows that the king only through the bad will of the Jews to enact it was the reason. How little she herself had done in the last two years. years of their stay were willing to comply with the request of

34) Annales Monastici Vol. II p. 408, Vol. III pp. 355, 356, Vol. IV pp. 319, 324, Chronicle of Edward I Vol. I p. 98, Chronicles of Pierre de Langtoft Vol. II p. 184/85, Flores Historiarum Vol. III p. 70, Speed p. 634, 635. ö

s) Chronica Johannis de Oxenides p. 277, Bartholomaei. de Cotton p. 178, Flores Historiarum Vol. III p. 70, Annales Monastici Vol. II p. 409, Vol. III p. 361/62, Vol. IV pp. 326, 503, Chronicles of Edward I Vol. I p. 99, Chronicles of Pierre de Langtoft Vol. II p. 186, Gervase of Canterbury Vol. II p. 296, Le Livre de Reis de Britanie p. 308, Gesta Abbatum Monasterii S. Albani Vol. II p. 31, Richard de Swinefield p. 101.

306) Close Rolls of Edward I Vol. 1288–1296 p. 109.

70

To do justice to the people, one can see from the fact that as late as the year 1289 all the Jews in London were thrown into prison (who had to) and even in 1290 a Jew opened the sacrament-dared to insult him?®).

The justification for the expulsion law also reveals that that despite Edward's measures, usury had been widespread must. Consequently, the conditions among the people were also altered.

(Terrifying, as some chroniclers tell us). How far the Exploitation of the people even under the reign of Edward I. John Speed best summarized what happened by saying that the Hebrews through their cruel usury "the king's people "sucked out to the bone" 31°),

The Jews had to leave England by a certain date. abandoned. Anyone who was still there after that day was treated with punished with death 1). They generally had to surrender their assets in England. However, they were able to leave a large part their movable property and money, insofar as it is necessary for the journey to to take with them to their new destination, as was necessary. all claims arising from loans against Englishmen went to over the king). However, the Jews' wealth was in the possession of The ratio to earlier times was small and amounted to only about £10,0009). Therefore, there can be no question that the king The expulsion order was therefore issued by parliament. "to acquire large sums of money."

Edward I had to expect that the people would remain averse to him. take measures against the Jews themselves would. He therefore issued general orders that they be- "Every possible protection should be granted by the authorities." The fact that these orders were not merely on paper is evident. this is evident from the fact that he prescribes strict penalties for non-compliance. (added, as the following case shows): A large part of the Lon- The Jews had taken a ship to cross to the mainland. chartered. The captain anchored at the mouth of the Thames. and told the Jews that his ship had been lifted up as a result of the low tide- He ran. He asked them to get off to relieve the ship and to get it moving again with the flood. When the Jews arrived on the Waiting for sandbanks, he weighed anchor and disappeared. (Semt-) Jewish people drowned. The captain and crew were

#8) Annales Monastici Vol. IV p. 503.

%) Chronicon Domini Walteri... Vol. II p. 20 ff., Prynn Vol. I p. 40 ff., Tovey pp. 233, 234, Daniel p. 160.

10) Speed p. 634, 635.

ug; Bartholomaei de Cotton p. 178.

312 en of Pierre de Langtoft Vol. II p. 189, Chronicon Domini Walteri d. . 21.

ne) Chronicles of Edward I Vol. I p. 97.

33) Abrahams p. 70.

ns So e.g. B. Margoliouth: History Vol. I p. 267 ff.
us) Close Rolls Vol. 1288–1296 pp. 95/96, Tovey: pp. 240 ff., Calendar of Patent Rolls Vol. 1281–1292 pp. 378, 381, 382, Rymer: Foedera Vol. I Part II p. 736.
m6) Cucoulean, omni Walteri Vol. I p. 21/22, Annales Monastici Vol. III p. 362, hung on it. Years later, we still find a disposition be-concerning a man who had already been imprisoned for two years for non-compliance with the royal protective regulations for the Jews in had been in prison”).
. IV p. .

71

The number of Jews who left England has been estimated at 15,000.
Estimated at up to 16,000). They went mainly to France, Holland and Belgium.

Thus ends the first settlement of Jews in England.

The history of these approximately 200 years has clearly shown, that the Jews, with or without the protection of the authorities, were never willing were to pursue an honorable profession, and that laws also applied, which were more or less intended to force them to do so, were unsuccessful.
In both good fortune and misfortune, they committed the greatest crimes, and Despite the harshest punishments, they continued until the king finally confronted them. in the interest of the people and the maintenance of peace and had to demonstrate order.

Finally, another observation for modern times: Already Back then it was the Jews with their shameful activities, who, in violation of the hospitality shown to them, all-gradually the people and in the end a great and just king forced them to intervene against her. It was a case of not out of the ill will of a nation, poor, wandering Jews were persecuted, but rather a nature-loving and healthy people.
took measures to maintain morality and decency were necessary. In other words, the Jews were too.
They were all alone at the time, bringing about their own expulsion.

Will the English people still have the strength today to become a...
to arrive at a similar result to that achieved at the time, a depleted people under the leadership of their king?

ws) Close Rolls Vol. 1288–1296 p. 295.
s) Prynne Vol. I p. 47, Flores Historiarum Vol. III p. 70, BBS 11.

72

PART II

1290–1658: The Return of the Jews under Cromwell

England without Jews

It has long been believed that during the next Approximately 300 years after the expulsion in 1290, there were hardly any Jews left.
were present in England. The Jewish historians') have devoted considerable effort to proving the opposite.
To get straight to the point: they actually did one or two Jews were observed in England during this period, but larger groups – such as Jewish communities – have completely (missing?), so this period is of little interest to us.
and will therefore only be touched upon briefly.
It is often claimed that currently the officials of the English
The crown was not sufficiently developed to provide complete swine-to guarantee the land of Jews'). This may indeed be too-However, the Jews would certainly meet out of fear of the faced with the threatened death penalty, they hardly dared to travel to England.
remain. Undoubtedly, any deficiency regarding a orderly administration through the interests of the people
It has been set, because given the existing aversion, everyone has surely Care was taken to ensure that the Jews – provided they did not emigrate – were reported to the authorities.
It may be that one or two were baptized and yet still in
He pursued the secrets of his former religion, but It was likely to have been of only very minor importance.
as well as any possible mixing of these Jews with the English-
The people were of no importance to the purity of the race at that time.
1eD.
Besides these baptized Jews, perhaps one or some unbaptized persons were in England during this period

1) S. and A. Wolf: Middle Period, Lee: Jews in England, Elizabethan England and the Jews

3 Hyamson: History p. 9
Wolf: Anglo Jewish History p. 55.

Under Queen Elizabeth we find two baptized Jews, John Tremellins and Philip Ferdinand, in her special favor Both were scholars – Ferdinand even received a professorship from her.

(received a professorship for the Jewish language in Cambridge').

Another Jew who converted to Christianity, named Joachim Gaunse has gained a certain significance insofar as under his management, in particular the smelting process for metals, improvement was experienced."

All three were Hebrews who were not in English—were born in the country.

Rodrigo Lopez, physician to Queen Elizabeth

Queen Elizabeth placed her utmost trust in the baptized Jewish doctor Rodrigo Lopez, about whom much has been written and who also most likely the model for Shylock in Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" has been').

Lopez, born in Portugal, arrived in England around 1559. (wandered), after having spent a long time in Antwerp He was one of the great schemers of his time and had the burning desire to get rich as quickly as possible. Soon He knew he enjoyed the favor of Queen Elizabeth's then-favorite, of the Earl of Leicester, to obtain, and within a short time He had a reputation for being better at poisoning than healing. But His patron stood protectively behind him, and so he could not not only to rake in huge profits, but he was born in 1586 even appointed personal physician to the Queen?), whose special affiliation He trusted them and they involved him in the most secret affairs of state. he used to initiate. With Elisabeth's knowledge, he approached her with the deeply hated Spanish king in connection with him gave the impression of working exclusively in his service. While he initially told the queen unimportant things about Spain He revealed, but deliberately concealed from her all the information that had come to his important matters. Later he took a step and reported all possible details to Spain. about events at the English court"), yes, he told the king even the suggestion to poison Elisabeth. Fifty thousand crowns. He demanded for this villainous prank the money that had been spent in the building before The land should be deposited. The King of Spain hesitated.

5) Abrahams: Joachim Gaunse p. 83 ff.

8) Lee: Elizabethan England p. 146 ff., 166, Original of Shylock p. 195 ff.

7) Dimock p. 440.

8) Hume p. 37, Lee p. 159.

) Dimock p. 441, Hyamson: History p. 118.

10) Hume, pp. 39, 47.

3 Wolf: Anglo-Jewish History pp. 65/66.

74

because of the large sum – the plan was not carried out initially. By intercepting letters, the plot was uncovered– was uncovered early and Lopez and two of his co-conspirators were– He was arrested. After the accomplices confessed to their crime, Even Lopez, faced with the weight of the evidence, had no other option. What remained was to confess his guilt. After a major criminal trial, During the events in London, Lopez and his accomplices were hanged!*) . There are also other Jews who were active during Elizabeth's time. (who are without any interest). Wolf, who is with them in Anyone who has examined individual Jews more closely must admit that the Jews of During the interim period, most characters were worthless, which he nevertheless (This can only be attributed to the laws in force at the time).

Return and second expulsion

On the return of Jews to England in larger numbers No further details could be determined. However, it is unlikely that... There are doubts that the first Morranos – like the baptized Spanish Jews were commonly called – around 1600 into have arrived in England. They must have settled in England in such a way– have led to Jacob I's official expulsion of their children. was prompted. Although we only have one piece of evidence for this, it seems This is quite sufficient for us. Sir Marmaduke Langdale, one of the bravest generals of the Royalists), who in the last decade of the Born in the 16th century and dying in 1661, he certainly I personally experienced the ban on Jews pronounced by the king, or at least heard about it from an older contemporary. a letter dated September 20, 1655, to Sir Edward Nicholas, As State Secretary to the fugitive King Charles II, he led, among other things, the following genders out:

"I . . hoped that the Jews, who represented the interests of all the princes of the To understand the world, they would have been too clever to understand themselves and the to entrust Cromwell's fate, since they were at his death or any other change in our kingdom that They faced the prospect of complete ruin. But they hate the mon– Archie and are annoyed by King Jacob's order to the Lord of Suffolk, who discovers their presence and which had caused the most capable among them to leave England had to!").

- 11) Calendar of State Papers of Edward VI Vol. 1591–1595 pp. 413, 434, 439, 445 ff., 455, 460, 482, 484, Hume p. 50 ff., Dimock p. 465 ff.
- 12) Wolf: Jews in Elizabethan England p. 1 ff.
- 18) Wolf: Anglo-Jewish History p. 79.
- 14) Dictionary of National Biography Vol. XI p. 537.
- 38) Nicholas Papers Vol. III p. 51.

75

He therefore unequivocally mentions the expulsion of the Jews under Jacob I. We have made a very thorough effort to find among the documents–collections of data, the expulsion law, or any to find further clues, namely, one has to all under the name of the Lord of Suffolk according to documents to look for clues. He is the first. Count of Suffolk, who lived from 1561 to 1626 and with the exception of a short period during which he was due to (had fallen out of favor for an offense'), until old age held the highest offices in the kingdom. Henriques") distinguished himself as The only one also dealing with the question. He is with his Investigations into the appointment of the Count of Suffolk as Commissioner for the Implementation of an Expulsion Act of pushed Jesuits and other anti-state Catholics) and takes the view that Sir Marmaduke's remark here– on which this law is based. This law was not only based on Jesuits, but also referring to people of other religions, "who are corrupt and were raised to be rebellious somewhere in the world." These The latter words can indeed be found in the aforementioned law– lichen determination, and although they are extraordinarily good at While this applies to Jews, there are nevertheless concerns as to whether the Henriques' point of view is correct. It seems to him that It is said that the Count of Suffolk frequently served on commissions. has been, which was against Catholics and persons hostile to the state other faiths, "which are corrupt and have arisen somewhere in the world– who were raised in a sentimental way," had to intervene. Thus, they find we first met him in such a commission on September 5th. (September 1604), which probably corresponds to one on February 22, 1604 published law against anti-state Catholics in Ver– to bring about a connection." However, this commission included – as also mentioned by Henriques – not just the Count from Suffolk with one or another bearer of the empire not, but it consisted of no fewer than 24 officials and Members of the high nobility. The Earl of Suffolk was among them. neither in first place, nor was he endowed with any special power– endowed with authority; he is only fifth in the relevant list.

The place is mentioned. In June 1610 and again in June 1618, it was mentioned again.
Commissions with the same tasks were established :). On April 20, 1620 Another long law of similar content was passed, the passage of which—leadership of a commission of 84 officials and members of the Church and nobility – among them in ninth place the Count from Suffolk – was transferred”), as we also saw on April 20, 1622 16) Dictionary of National Biography Vol.

Henriques: Return p. 71

85 a.m. Henriques to: Domestic State Papers Vol. 1603–1610 p. 148, Vol. 1611–1618

547.

19) Rymer: Acta Publica Vol. XVI p. 597.

25 Rymer: Acta Publica Vol. XVI p. 572

21) Rymer: Acta Publica Vol. XVI p. 690, Vol. XVII p. 92.

22) Rymer: Acta Publica Vol. XVII p. 200 ff.

76

and on December 20, 1624, such commissions were again found," in the latter two cases, however, without the Count of Suffolk.

Since the person of the Earl of Suffolk is in no way particularly emphasized in these laws
there was therefore no special consideration for Sir Marmaduke no reason whatsoever to associate him specifically with the expulsion of the Jews to connect. Apart from that, Sir Marma-Duke by order of the king, while we already above six such laws have been proven. It should therefore hardly be There is reason to believe that Sir Marmaduke in his Writing to Nicholas, he meant all these laws when he spoke of the
“The King’s Order to the Lord of Suffolk” speaks, and so
This leads us to conclude that the Jews under Jacob I. was expelled from the country again. The reasons here-
We can only try to guess. Perhaps someone can help us.
a law enacted on June 11, 1622 under Jacob I., "Proclamatio (to give a hint against Exportationem Bullionis) the export of gold and silver bars due to the existing
The risk of currency collapse is strictly prohibited.
That this trade was almost exclusively practiced even in Cromwell's time
It is known that it was in the hands of the Jews. Around the year 1660 – seemingly due to the same cause – again a choice-
A crisis had occurred, which led to strict penalties, even expulsions.
The instructions demanded of the Jews as the main participants consist of
There is certainly the possibility that this is also one of the reasons for the expulsion of the Hebrews ordered by Jacob I.

We have no reservations about assuming that they will do so during the
During the reign of Jacob I, the country was actually in its second year.
were referred, consequently it is not surprising that they later as a financier of the Republicans, to whom they also otherwise gave every provided support in the fight against the royal family find.

To understand the further events in England, we need to a brief overview of the Jewish question in the rest of the country at that time win in the world known for its fame.

The Jewish Question in the World in the 17th Century

As is well known, Jews practiced in Spain towards the end of the 15th century.
hundreds had an overwhelming influence on the economy and trade administration. They controlled without exception the trade in the newly discovered parts of the world, from which they gained immeasurable material wealth Benefits accrued.

23) Rymer: Acta Publica Vol. XVII p. 367, 644.

2) Rymer: Acta Publica Vol. XVII p. 376

77

When, in 1492, the order came to convert to the Catholic faith or leave the country, they set out numerous Jews poured into the wanderings and their throngs mostly along the shores of the Mediterranean, where everywhere Larger or smaller Jewish colonies were established:").

Nevertheless, their influence in Spain was hardly diminished, because the
The baptized Jews who remained there had already previously
They represent financial and economic power. Although these Jews
They never seriously thought they had attended Catholic church services.
to abandon their faith, which they continued to practice in secret investigated. Despite their Jewish disguise, they were not found but soon after, and the Inquisition began its most gruesome methods.
Means now also against the Morranos, as these baptized Jews were called to rage. What was the origin of this latter statement?
(The drawing has not been determined with certainty?).
The persecutions took place in Spain at the beginning of the 16th century.
and in Portugal. As far as possible, the Morranos fled,
And a new stream of Jews flooded the world. Every new Persecution brought further waves of Jews. They turned to after the colonies newly founded by their fellow race members and increased their influence in the cities and countries concerned.

derne?'), The Morranos migrated in particularly large numbers to the European as well as the Asian part of Türkiye.". Levantine trade was almost entirely in their hands, and also Otherwise, they would gain more and more ground. We even find a jidi-personal physician of Sultan Suleiman, who also served him as a be-advisors stood by and made favorable decisions for the Jews brought about"), Turkey was during this time, as Graetz "Heaven is for the Jews," he explained.

The Morranos, however, did not only turn to those who had been there since ancient times. not only to well-known countries, but also to India, Batavia and South America.).

Although their influence in Spain and Portugal has also been reduced- Although he was diminished, he was not broken. The Jews understood this. in a familiar way, to regain their position, and Thus we find Morrano as secretary to the King of Spain and other Jews as Finance Minister and Lord Chamberlain*?). Gold imported from America was still mainly traded by the Morranos." The Spanish court, which had meanwhile The fact that Portugal was also ruled in personal union was known to the Morranos. indebted up to the amount of 1,200,000 Crusados, a sum that was significant at the time. Times an enormous sum.

s) Roth: History of the Morranos p. 54.

2) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. XII note 2.

27) Graetz Vol. IV p. 366 ff.

28) Graetz Vol. IV p. a ff., Roth, History of the Morranos p. 63.

29) Graetz Vol. IV Si 21 i

5) Graetz Vol. IV p.

=> Wall Men IV p. 386 tt, Vol. V p. 54, 60, 67.

Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel S. XIII.

Graetz Vol. V p. 56.

In Rome, the Morranos maintained a household with substantial financial resources. equipped secret agent who, depending on the need, contacts the cardinals bribed, intrigued against the Pope, or possibly even bribed himself "gained access to the Holy Father." Her influence on the The Vatican was therefore so extraordinarily important to the Morranos, because they were formally considered "new Christians" and the Inquisition They were usually only stopped by the intervention of the Pope. A standstill could be brought to a halt.

It was not enough for the Morranos to only be in southern Europe. and in the other already explored new parts of the world to have the largest part of the trade in their hands, but they They wanted to achieve the same in northern Europe. Despite their strong financial position in Spain and Portugal Nevertheless, a large part of the Morranos planned to settle in a country to settle, whose interests are opposed to those of Spain were where Spanish influence could not pursue them, where the opportunity lies to realize their revenge plans found. Their eyes therefore turned to Holland, the year– had endured decades of fighting against Spain and where Nordic entrepreneurial spirit was not only prepared to ship its ships to send them to conquer and trade on all the seas, son– the where they will soon be able to trade freely according to the would dominate new parts of the world.

The first negotiations between them and the to determine the Dutch, and shortly afterwards the Morranos was first permitted to retain his Jewish identity. To settle in Holland. Around the year 1593 we find the first of them to arrive in Amsterdam?), which in the Subsequent period the center of the Morranos or rather of the world Judaism was to become Jews; Jews from Spain and Portugal flocked in after the new promised land, and very soon there was one in Amsterdam a large Jewish colony. They brought not only their un– not only with certain financial resources, but also, and this is at least as important, was valuable, their already then spread across the entire world Connections. These Morranos laid the foundation for the Dutch– Indian supremacy in East and West India, in Batavia and South America®®).

But they didn't just receive immigration from the Iberian Peninsula, but numerous fellow breeders also came from Germany, who had been driven away by the Thirty Years' War").

24) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. XIII.

Graetz Vol. V p. 50 ff., Roth: History of the Morranos p. 200.

Graetz Vol. V p. 60 ff.

Graetz Vol. V p. 63.

Amsterdam had by now become the center of world Jewry where not only Morranos but also Jews from the Türkiye, North Africa, etc. had gathered. At times, every

A ship carrying Jews arrived this week. When they arrived in 1615... received legal sanctions to settle and Han- They felt completely safe in Holland, free to pursue their passion. To their dismay, however, the law was passed at the same time as it was enacted (marriage between Christians and Jews was forbidden), The The wealth of the Jews was indescribable. At a wedding Among the guests were forty Jews, who alone represented a fortune possessed a total of 40 million guilders?[®]). Soon the Hebrews felt strong enough to seek further settlements. to look around in Northern Europe. At her instigation, she sent The King of Denmark extended invitations to Amsterdam. He offered granting the Jews freedom of religion and other privileges, and It almost goes without saying that they naturally accepted. Successes were also achieved in Southern Europe, by- tens of the Dukes of Savoy and Modena offered similar deals- They met, which produced the same result.

Besides Amsterdam, Rotterdam also became a major headquarters. of the Jews. They appeared in Hamburg at the end of the 16th century. in larger numbers"). They were present at the event that took place in 1620. founding or participating in the organization of the Hamburg bank with twelve capitalists involved." The extensive trade between Hamburg on the one hand and Spain and Portugal on the other hand is to Partly caused by their connections. One of the after Ham- The Jewish doctors who immigrated to Burg were even later... Personal physician to Queen Christina of Sweden").

The most important Jewish colony after Amsterdam was found in- but in Brazil, where the Portuguese initially ruled. They The Morranos had originally sent them there as punishment, But after a short time they resumed their trading activities. Recorded. When the Dutch arrived in Brazil around the year 1624 infiltrated, they found during their campaign through the local population- The greatest possible support for Morranos. After the conquest Brazil's Dutch occupation by the Morranos took place without delay. lish the connection with their Dutch breed counterparts on and, like them, immediately and officially returned to their faith. Hundreds of Portuguese Jews left Amsterdam and sailed to Brazil. We find them everywhere at important locations. Jews, their largest settlement was in Pernambuco, trade and Plantations were almost exclusively in their hands, and in spa- Over time they had amassed great wealth. Center of

38) Roth: History of the Morranos pp. 242, 243.

[®]) Roth: History of the Morranos p. 244.

4% Graetz Vol. V p. 67.

41) Roth: History of the Morranos p. 229.

42) Graetz Vol. V p. 70/71.

Trade and commerce remained Amsterdam, but ever new Jews went to Brazil),

The Morranos also managed to gain considerable influence in France. to win over trade and finance, but it wasn't possible for them- not to openly practice their Jewish religious service, but Instead, they asked us to live outwardly as Christians. These migrations of the Morranos, their settlements and their Their influence in the world at that time is so interesting that it is worth It would be worthwhile to write an entire work about it. You have laid the foundation for modern world Jewry.

It is not surprising that the Morranos also tried to gain a foothold in England. to gain a foothold in the country, since the expulsion of the Jews in 12% The economic structure of England had fundamentally changed. While England during the reign of Edward I was more or less pure The fact that it was an agrarian state may signify the beginnings of its own development. the industry under the reign of Queen Elizabeth to be taken. England's power was also perceived externally. Significantly increased. English ships plowed the seas of the the entire world. The preeminent position of Spain and Portugal, especially in the newly discovered parts of the world, 'the beginning of the The 17th century was in decline. In addition, England is increasingly becoming one of Spain's biggest opponents proved; circumstances which, according to the above statements, the Morra- which gave them a special incentive to settle in England.

Morranos in England

For a long time it was unclear whether at the beginning of the 17th century a larger colony of Morranos was found in England, but According to the latest research, this should be confirmed. To- Next, it is already covered by the aforementioned expulsion law. Jacob I. proved, but besides it is the works of the Jewish Historian Lucien Wolf, who clarified this.

Wolf places the earliest arrival of Morranos in the year 1493. He knows that this is established. He therefore refers to indications in old texts. State archives, from which the names of Jews were determined- the can®), |

In England, however, the Morranos faced difficulties, even under the Mantle of adopted Christianity, great difficulties for a larger number of settlements, The Morranos belonged to the Catholic Church. In England

But by then the Reformation had been completed and had become its own.

w Graetz Vol. V S. 73–75.

“) Graetz Vol. V p. 75.

Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. XIV, Crypto Jews p. 57/58.

6 Jews conquer England 81

Certain laws were enacted to provide protection, primarily in two areas. Categories broke down; one represented the exercise or dis-spread of a religious doctrine incompatible with the dogmas the Church of England was, under penalty of law, persecuting the other Non-attendance at services of the Church of England. The former provision was enacted as a law against heresy, the latter described as a law against church service”).

As Catholics, the Morranos were exempt from both laws. met, and their outwardly displayed Christianity Therefore, it was of no use to them.

Although no harsher punishment was imposed after 1612 The reason for the first law was that it no longer took place; after all, it was possible But in those times, one never knew if the One or another circumstance will require stricter handling. the law would come into effect. In fact, one can expect these advantages– Writing was only considered irrelevant after it was written in the year in 1640 it was amended by a special law so that only "Church punishments could still be imposed."

The last category is of particular interest because of the already The aforementioned law against refusal to perform church service: in the case Very high fines were imposed for his disregard." They wanted to and could attend the church services of the Church of England. However, the Morranos participated neither as Catholics nor as Jews. take. On the other hand, the laws applied to every situation in England– person found, regardless of nationality, An– turn so that the Morranos, as long as the aforementioned laws The conditions were such that remaining in England was not possible.

In 1630, a treaty was concluded between England and Spain. to regulate current issues, which includes, among other things, a counter– mutual obligation provided for nationals of both states who for the purpose of trade in one country or another– maintained, in principle, that the respective religious laws applied. increase. This meant that the Morranos were denied access to England. secures and there should be little doubt that some of them shortly after the treaty came into force settled in England." Unfortunately, precise records are lacking. On the other hand, all the circumstances speak in favor of it. Perhaps it is

It is not too bold to suggest that the Morranos probably with her great influence at the Spanish court, at least everything have done to secure the treaty between England and Spain to bring about this, yes, perhaps they themselves have the cause added to that. Our thesis regarding their influence should not to go as far as the Jewish historian Wolf," who claims that the Morranos in Spain are motivated by hatred towards the

46) Henriques: Return p. 17.

4) Henriques: Return p. 17 ff.

4) Henriques: Return p. 29 ff.

13 'Henriques: Return p. 31/32.

s) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. XV.

82

the local government, in turn, contributed to the downfall of the great Armada A certain Jew, Hector Nuñez, who was a doctor in England and with the Queen's two ministers Elisabeth, Burleigh and Walsingham, was friends, is said to have The reason for his connections was the English government over the Be-movements of the Armada taught them and thus enabled them to to take timely countermeasures®t).

Although it is no longer possible to determine exactly when Morranos However, it is unlikely that larger numbers came to England. must have been later than 1635; in 1655 the probably-the wealthiest and most influential of them, Antonio Fernandez Carvajal, granted British citizenship by Cromwell, From (from the still-received naturalization certificate®?) we learn that he had "stayed in England for more than twenty years".

Antonio Fernandez Carvajal,
the Rothschilds of the 17th century

In the following, we will examine him in detail, since in connection with his career, more or less the all-a general history of the Jews in England up to the year 1655-can be asked, He was also the first representative of his breed in England, who is involved in the government's financial affairs has stood on the side. Throughout all the following centuries, they find we, that similar to Carvajal, other Jews financial advisors of the English government were and had considerable influence on state-conducted business of every kind.

Carvajal had lived in Fundao (Portugal) in his younger years, one of the industrial centers of what was then Portugal, with a large colony of Morranos. The Inquisition persecutions encouraged him to leave Portugal, and he turned to—seemingly after the Canary Islands, where trade as well the collection of taxes is almost exclusively in the hands of the Morrano's lay").

Precise details about the reason for his move to England Land is not available, but we can get it from the development—The extent of English trade with Spain can be guessed with reasonable certainty. As is well known, the production of finished goods in Spain through the import of large quantities of gold and silver from the new—rediscovered America more and more, as the country was brought back future wealth (the interest in any work) which steadily declined. England, on the other hand, was about to...

11) Roth: History of the Morranos p. 256.

43 Wolf: First English Jew

s) Wolf: First English Jew 8. 14¹/₂15 Crypto Jews p. 77 ff.

6* 83

to build up industry and needed raw materials, such as wool and minerals, which it hoped to obtain in Spain. Thus, in Lively trade relations developed between the two countries in a short time. This came about, and the English merchant made large profits. from these businesses, with earnings of up to 100% being quite possible. not among the rarities." On the Spanish Most of the business was conducted by Morranos, while—and the English contracting party initially consisted almost entirely of Englishmen existed, which was later increasingly replaced by Morranos were, until finally the business was almost entirely in their hands Carvajal was also likely affected by the high profits. was prompted to direct his steps to England.

He must have had a rapid rise in England, because He soon owned his own ships, with which he not only traded not only to Spain, but also to West and East India, Brazil, Syria, and all distant parts of the world, wherever it may be Trade was taking place and Morranos had settled there. His Representatives were present at all major trading centers of the eurozone. European continent"), and where he has no agents of his own—He stopped, and found all the necessary support from the people there. settled Morranos.

Apparently, he also became involved with the English at an early age

The government was on good terms, because when a complaint was filed in 1645 against him for disregarding the law regarding the Be-
When a search was made for church services, not even a preliminary inquiry was made. Investigation opened. Although the previously described ab-coming with Spain was more than doubtful, whether this law also applies to him as a Portuguese national
It was applied, especially since there was an explicit requirement for this.
"The agreement was lacking." The government even threatened the applicant.
showing, to take action against him if he takes further steps would undertake." This process seems particularly unusually, if one considers the conditions in England at that time
'Consider, which were anything but favorable for foreigners;
However, when one learns further that Carvajal has the closest relationships-"(...) conversation with a minister," it is easy to see from this that the necessary conclusions regarding the course of the criminal proceedings and draw his connection to the government.
The government's favoritism towards Carvajal is evident in later time.

In 1650, war broke out between England and Portugal.
As a Portuguese subject, Carvajal was therefore an enemy subject countries, and nothing stood in the way of him spending his entire fortune confiscate. However, he was not only spared, but

1 Baker p. 3 ff. N

85) Wolf: First English Jews p. 16.

153 Henriques: Return p. 31/32.

87) Wolf: Crypto Jews p. 56, Hist. Ms. Com. Reports VI p. 42.

88) Wolf: Crypto Jews p. 56.

84

He was assured by a resolution of the Council of State of 4 September 1650 in writing that he would not be harassed and (so that he could continue his business). It remains for the reader to decide.
It was left to judge how Carvajal came to this Favor came. In any case, his money was unlikely to be of much use here.
played an insignificant role.
Carvajal abused the powers granted to him by the government.
special position, in that he had goods from his friendly Portuguese
- probably Jewish - merchants, who were considered hostile outsiders countries could no longer trade in England, on his had names entered in the customs register: Apparently, the re-
The government was informed of this and initiated extensive Investigations against him. Wolf, who studied the Carvajal's life, it could not be the result of the punishment-to find out the procedure. In his view, the courts They probably found nothing incriminating against him, but not entirely consistent with the documents submitted to us

 It seems. This is evident from the surviving minutes of the State Council.
 It is quite clear that the confiscated goods were due to not released due to the strong suspicion against him was. According to the protocol of October 9, 1650%), the following took place:
 The postponement appears to be due to the fact that the witnesses in question... were not present, however, on October 11, 1650, the
 The main trial took place. Carvajal was subjected to intense questioning.
 and wanted to know in particular whether the confiscated goods that actually belonged to him. Furthermore, his consent was required.
 that his entire fortune should be forfeited to the state, provided that the opposite of his statements were proven.
 The court received "no positive response" to either of the two clear questions.
 word". Apparently, Carvajal had considerable reservations about being to determine it somehow. "Only very last," the protocol continues.
 Furthermore, he admitted, "that he had purchased the goods with his own money."
 I bought and intended to take part of it to Portugal to send. At the request of the recipients, he would have, as a result of the in Portugal, given the prevailing difficulties, refrained from doing so.
 As instructed, he then had the money (probably purchase money).
 sent back to Holland." The court also assigned Carvajal
 He posed further questions, which he also answered evasively.
 All in all, the court had not completely ruled in his favor.
 He could prove his guilt, but the suspicion was always-strong enough to force the release of the seized goods refuse:). ,
 The aforementioned case was apparently not the only one. Be-
 As early as October 31st of the same year, we find a protocol,

- ®) Wolf: First English Jew p. 28, Calendar of State Papers Vol. 1650 p: 558.
- %) Calendar of State Papers Vol. 1650 p. 377.
- 61) Calendar of State Papers Vol. 1650 p. 380.
- 2) Calendar of State Papers Vol. 1650 p. 404.

85

whereupon Carvajal, concerning another shipment of goods, also claimed that it belonged to him and not to certain Portuguese. Unfortunately Nothing can be determined about the progress of this procedure.
 the. Given his relationship with the government, it is likely However, it probably wasn't too difficult for him to adjust his attitude. to achieve the procedure, because in a much more serious criminal-
 He was still caught in a legal trap more than a year later.
 not brought to justice. In 1658, by The customs authority received a shipment of wood belonging to Carvajal from the Assets worth approximately £15,000 were seized in the Canary Islands.
 and secured. He was informed of the measure.

sets and instructs that the wood should only be used against a beagreed to a documentary declaration from the government to be handed over.
would. The report from the responsible customs officer indicates that that the seizure was due to an understated valuation.
Instead of dealing with the customs authorities, he raised the issue.
Carvajal filed a lawsuit against the enforcement officer. He was working with a number of Morranos and also Englishmen together,
And so he was able to ensure that the official in question could only act against He was released on bail. When he had failed to bring the official before the ordinary court
To have him arrested, he appealed to the Admiralty Court.
Here, he succeeded in using forged documents as evidence.
The officer's arrest and his transfer to an obscure location to reach a place where he doesn't even have friends in Ver-A bond could not be formed. Only after three days was he able to recover.
released. Carvajal had used the intervening time, with the help of his comrades to break into the warehouse and steal all the wood to transport it to an unknown location.

From the official submission to Cromwell that has been handed down to us-
Let us further assume that the customs authority will impose a severe punishment.
demanded. It is rightly pointed out that, contrary to-
In that case, the most unpleasant consequences will arise in customs matters.
can. Customs officers would be discouraged in their work, while-for the merchants it was practically an invitation to enter into proceeding in the same unlawful manner as Carvajal™).
Although the incident had already occurred in August 1658,
We hear of Carvajal's story up until his death in November 1659.
"Not the slightest word about punitive measures against him." Hyamson®) claims it was a trial under Richard Cromwell, the son of Oliver Cromwell, but through the Carvajal's death is settled. However, the original location is missing. from a scientific source. All in all, the assumption here is also...
It is likely that Carvajal's connections influenced his sentencing decision.
took action against them, which prevented it.

en) Calendar of State Papers Vol. 1658/59 p. 116, Wolf: First English Jew p. 38.
“) Wolf: First English Jew p. 22.
s) Hyamson: History p. 137.

Apparently, Carvajal also wasn't entirely scrupulous with other business dealings as a court report passed down to us case shows.

In 1642, a ship arrived in Southampton with a large cargo. Based on a report that the ship and Cargo brought there without the owner's consent

The government initially seized the ship and cargo after it had been seized. secure and later traded them against a deposit of £500,000 to the recipients.

Part of the cargo, which actually went to the merchant De Lazon-
I heard that Carvajal was an agent for a certain Diaz.
Rouen sold the property and allegedly gave the proceeds to a third party.
He sent people to Spain. In any case, he did everything he could to help the to prevent the rightful owner from asserting his rights.
who spent three years trying to enforce his claims in England-Add to that. Not only did he have nothing left to live on, - he was even because of debts incurred due to the delay in the proceedings
They had been arrested - and were thrown into prison for a year.
The document does not clearly explain why de Lazon... claims could not be realized, but the official report leaves no doubt that he was gravely wronged.
The content of the official account of this case reveals In any case, the ownership rights of de Lazon are unequivocally established and the inexplicable treatment he received in this situation opportunity. Since, on the other hand, Carvajal's involvement and his undoubtedly contrary to de Lazon's claim, Inter-Eating has also been proven to support his claim that Carvajal
I made incorrect statements, which may be true. Perhaps it is. here too, the influence of the latter on the English authorities to attribute the fact that de Lazon only obtained his right after three years attained.

It is interesting for Jewish historiography that this Character flaws of the so-called "first English Jew" by
It had not been discovered by such a diligent researcher as Wolf.
Perhaps these facts were too embarrassing for him to admit.
Mal er Carvajal "a man of truthfulness and honor") names.

The foregoing remarks may suffice to explain Carvajal's international connections and his influence on the English Re-to demonstrate government.

Besides Carvajal, we also find Simon de Caceres and Henrique
Mendes da Costa, who are worth mentioning.

Caceres was born in Amsterdam and had almost the whole world traveled to many places. His trade relations were unlimited, and his
The main interests lay not only in London and Hamburg, but also in the West Indies and South America. He later became the host-

Hist. Ms. Com. Report via: 108.
Wolf: First English Jew S.

Cromwell's economic advisors in certain colonial matters and in a similar capacity also for the King of Denmark and Queen Christina of Sweden."

Mendes was very involved with the Jewish banks in Lisbon and Antwerp was involved, forming a huge conglomerate and participating in at the end of the 16th century, they played the same role in Europe as The Rothschild banking house in the 19th and 20th centuries. A Ver-Wenders von Mendes conquered Cyprus for the Turks and became later Duke of Naxos and Prince of the Cyclades named. His collaboration with Carvajal was very close." Although there are still many wealthy Jews with international ties- There were ties in England, we want to address them within the framework of this Limiting work to a select few: Antonio Rodrigues Robles and Colonel Chacon, who during the government- Cromwell's time as a secret agent for the royalists in England functioned").

The Jew Wolf established through long research that only about 26 male Morranos settled in England by 1655 had"). We have no reason to reject this finding, but in the course of the account of Jewish history under We will show Cromwell later what influence the number such a small, yet powerful colony of Jews on the policies of England.

Without the need for Wolf's meticulous work, it was possible It can be considered established that the Morranos were secretly adhered to their Jewish faith and probably also They must have had some kind of synagogue, because where in the world did Morrano They outwardly posed as Christians, while at home- who were attending Jewish religious services."

In conclusion, we can therefore state that already too The beginning of Jewish aspirations under Cromwell was a small one, but a powerful group of Morranos was located in England.

Puritanism in favor of Judaism

In 1652, civil war broke out in England, which led to the death of Charles I. to the scaffold and Cromwell to power. It was mainly- The puritan group among Republicans, to whom the The revolution owed its victorious outcome to the Puritans. They had inscribed religious freedom on their banners. A large part of the Puritan doctrine was believed to have been adopted in the Old Testamer 68) before Crypto Jews p. 73/74, American Elements p. 97, Resettlement p. 5, Hyamson: history p. 137.

n) Wolf: Re-Settlement p. 5, Hyamson: History p. 137.

n) Wolf: Crypto Jews pp. 74, 75.

71) Wolf: Crypto Jews p. 67.

7) Wolf: Crypto Jews p. 53 ff.

88

Testament enshrined, and so the Puritans compared Cromwell to Gideon, who at first only reluctantly obeyed the voice of God-listened, or with Judas Maccabee, who had a handful of tales-transformed tyrern into a victorious army."

The original English names were replaced by Jewish ones. the Old Testament, and the Lion of Judah was named for the victorious rich banners of the Puritans were set. The time under the Lord-The Stuarts' captivity was referred to as Egyptian captivity. net"). It was even seriously suggested that, instead of Sunday, theTo establish Saturday as a regular , proper Sabbath. English traveled the continent to hold scholarly discussions with rabbis lead, indeed there were even Puritans who converted the Jewish faith to-taken"). Therefore, in all these incidents, it is not possible- It is curious that in Puritan circles, who have been around since the year 1649 the dominant element in the Commonwealth of England had become a country, showing lively interest in the events on the Kon-showed living Jews. All in all, there is hardly a essential difference between Puritans and Jews. At In both cases, we find the closest connection between business and re- Religion and the rationalization of life. Both pay homage to the The principle is that everything necessary for a good business, ...and is also morally justified. Sombart..." is the thesis. It has come to be believed that Puritanism is the same as Judaism.

The Puritans could not help themselves to their admiration for the Jews. I cannot imagine that the conversion often sought today will be successful. its relationship to Christianity was based on a lack of goodwill; it Rather, they considered the existing methods in this regard to be false. In their view, the Jews have always been too Unjustly mistreated, as Cromwell was close to him. Standing scholar and politician John Sadler publicly called for expulsion pressure was brought about." Consequently, what was demanded above all was kindness. Treatment"). Conversion attempts, for example through missions or The Puritans considered other efforts on the continent as impractical, and they wished that the Jews would be in as much place as possible large numbers would come to England to offer them advice and assistance to make clear the necessity of their conversion to Christianity. A certain L. Busher already addressed a topic in 1614.

to the King and Parliament, in which he addressed, among other things, this largely dealt with the question. Through persecution, I make
He explained that the Jews had only become more stubborn and "through The establishment of limits on religious practice would be considered from populating England, which in turn reduced their populations.

78) Graetz Vol. V p. 102, 103.

4) Hyamson: History pp. 129, 130.

%) Hyamson: British Projects p. 1 ff.

76) Sombart p. 249.

7) Sadler: Rights of the Kingdom p. 74.

78, Godwin Vol. IV p. 245.

89

would prevent conversion." These statements, which were only published in 1646, reinforced the pro-Jewish sentiment

The Puritan attitude. This was especially true of the...

A work by a certain Spencer, published in 1650, which addressed the public with positive proposals. After

In his view, "it would be wonderful if the Jews were converted." could be, and the English would have the most options right now.

(view, to accomplish this®). This also speaks again to the also

A belief still widespread in England today among the Puritans, that that the British are God's chosen people. He formulated the Conditions under which the Jews were to come to England, many of which obviously aim to infringement them

To avoid granting advantages in the case of conversion. Thus, one should...

He does allow trade throughout England, but he proposes double taxation as long as they adhere to the Jewish religion-belonged to Jewish brotherhoods or similar associations.

He will not allow marriages between Jews, just as one would not allow them.

and should forbid Christians. Even some of the Puritans Clergy advocated for the Hebrews, as Hyamson™) explained.

leads to, as will later become apparent.

Alongside all these idealistic moments, there were also, how always in England, the realistic ones not too short, and it was publicly admitted that the Jews were being sent back to England-

(would have to be done to boost trade'). In addition to this, it was expected that Jewish business activity also includes the introduction of capital on a large scale.

Numerous pamphlets published in support of the Jews were, then as now, responsible for influencing public opinion.

personal opinion. Sometimes it seems as if art

Printing was invented for the Jews, because we all know that in to what extent they put this institution at the service of their cause . So from now on we can observe in England how Floods of printer's ink poured forth whenever they wanted to achieve something. Since newspapers were still published in the They were involved in the earliest beginnings, and came to be used for processing the The people were not in question, so it was solely the pamphlets that were responsible. which contributed significantly to the return of the Jews to England- have worn Busher's aforementioned writing is likely the earliest of their It's a type. Among other pamphlets, this one dates from the year... 1647 by Hugh Peters "A word for the Army and Two words to the Kingdom" (One word to the army and two words to the Kingdom). It is because of the close connection of the The author's connection to Cromwell is remarkable. Peters was the spirit-liche of the army and more or less the chaplain Crom- 7) Busher p. 70 ff.

0) Spencer S. 2.

*t) Hyamson: History p. 131.
) Nicholas S. 15.

90

wells. He played a significant role in the condemnation of Charles I, for which he was punished after the Stuarts' return was judged").

However, the writing by Edward in 1648 is not among the series of writings Nicholas published to forget.

It is completely incomprehensible, we read, "that cruel laws against the most honorable nation in the world – the Jews, the ex-chosen people of God – have been made™). It was at the It was time to repeal the laws unfavorable to the Jews. He hoped that Men in England will soon acquire this, bringing it to an end. made. The author further believes that all the misery of The English Civil Wars of that time were a retribution for the loss of the Following the holy favorites of God is the duty of every man. It would therefore be necessary to do everything in his power to protect the to atone for the innocent blood shed by the Jews and with them to bring about a close community and friendship®).

To this day, it remains unclear who is behind the He concealed the name Edward Nicholas. Was he the king's secretary? Charles I, Sir Edward Nicholas, or a Morrano behind this Was it a pseudonym? Other writers suspect it was...

Menasseh Ben Israel, a Jew, with whom we will discuss this in more detail will be employed®). Although further details are lacking, This latter viewpoint likely has a lot of merit.

Also a writing by Roger Williams, the famous Baptist, had caused a great stir. Williams had already in America a community was founded in which unrestricted freedom of belief and religion Freedom of knowledge prevailed. In his publication, he strongly advocated for freedom of for the Jews. They may be heretics, he believes, but this that doesn't prove they couldn't become good citizens?"). The statements of the already established author deserve particular interest. scholar and politician John Sadler believed. As a friend of Crom- Wells likely influenced him considerably; his Ge- Thanking people is more than strange to us. It's about... a substantial work, which, due to its somewhat clumsy structure- The text is difficult to read. He was probably one of the first to... They have claimed that the English originated from the Israelites, and he believes there are many similarities between the English and Israelite laws and customs to be able to pose." The constitutional institution among the concerning older English kings regarding the decision about war and peace is more or less determined by the decisions of the dependent on the Great Council, which was linked to the power of the It is therefore not surprising that Sadler is extremely fond of the Jews and stands up for them. Hyamson: History, p. 132.

") Nicholas S. 4.

1) Nicholas S. 6 ff.

) Hyamson: History p. 132 note 1.

4) Williams p. 141 ff.

28) Sadler p. 8 ff.

91

It is peculiar that in England this doctrine concerning the ancestry of the British is not simply dismissed as legend will. Rather, scholars like Rogers and Milner are concerned with, Burt, Shirley Smith – to name a few – with this topic. Some even go so far as to claim that the current royal house descended from the line of David*). This question It's not just haunting the minds of scholars, but it There is even an association in England today that aims to... the spread of this doctrine is founded. Its speakers still try to today at the famous corner of Hyde Park, Marble Arch, their to convince listeners of the correctness of this theory. Prophe-

Signs from the Bible, that, for example, the Jews throughout the whole The world should be distributed and the sun should not be in their realm The phrase "go under" is meant to apply to Great Britain. One might think... This teaching may be met with smiles, but one thing is certain: the Jews be- Greet her, for she can only serve her cause in England. How- This book by Sadler must have a much greater impact on the have made Jews favorably disposed towards Puritans, especially since they but considered themselves to be the chosen people of God.

From the large number of pro-Jewish pamphlets, one should still The one by John Dury should be mentioned, whose goal was to all various denominations of the Protestant Church to unite. To this end, he traveled throughout Europe. and tried to overcome the great difficulties. In this way he had become very well known, and as a result, his statements on the Jewish question were viewed by many pay attention),

This reference to the numerous works of literature in the first half of the 17th century may suffice for our purposes,

In addition, there were also leaflets, which were generally advocated for the admission of Jews to England, other- However, they openly pointed out their inherent disadvantages. In his writing, John Weemse described to his countrymen the "the abhorrent present state of the Jews," he believed but that this could be favorably influenced by baptism. The prerequisite, of course, is that the Christians themselves... didn't put too much in the way®?). Later, Christians and Jews only have one church left," which shouldn't be difficult. "could, especially since Jesus Christ was also a Jew." We have seen that there is no shortage of literature friendly to Jews. was missing, which gradually paved the way for Jewish aspirations- prepared. So it is not surprising that at the end of December 1648 the so-called Council of Mechanics passed a resolution-

5) Sadler p. 47 ff.
00 Le vy p. 76.

21) Weemse p. 295 ff.
22) Weemse p. 339 ff
93) Weemse p. 370.
s) Weemse p. 378.

Papists or Jews should by no means be excluded".

The same decision was simultaneously made by the Council of War.
issued. N

In the first days of 1649, a petition arrived for the
The admission of Jews to the General Council. It came from Mother and son Cartwright, Puritans living in Amsterdam-ten"). They probably belonged to the aforementioned Kate-Sor ie, who revered the Jewish religion so much that they either themselves converted to this faith or were completely under its spell lived the same. In consideration of this and the fact that the large Jewish community in Amsterdam, the soul of the objections-Given the efforts to establish a solution, one can assume that the application was for The actions of the local Jews were initiated. They did not let it stop there.
not only did they submit the application, but they also had it printed.
and publish, proof that the Jews are not un-
They may have been involved.

In the aforementioned petition, the applicants complain that the Jews in England were unjustly subjected to so much suffering in the past.
It's finally time to make everything right again.
The petition primarily demanded, from the perspective of Charity, the repeal of laws against the admission of Jews, through which God, regarding the crimes committed during the revolution would be more lenient with evil deeds"),

The General Council's response was unexpectedly positive for the Jews and their sympathizers were disappointing. They explained themselves fundamentally-in addition to giving the petition favorable consideration, However, he declined in consideration of the domestic political situation.
first a final decision"), In fact, the
The situation at the time, taking into account the proceedings against King Charles I.
extremely tense and fully accepted the government's position.
in claim.

Perhaps the active assistance of the Jews in the above
The petition can also be inferred from the fact that they themselves almost simultaneously submitted a similar request to the Council of War. In particular They wished that the law of 12 years concerning their e-
The instruction would be revoked.

They did not demand the approval for nothing; on the contrary-
They offered £500,000 for it, a sum that was significant at the time.
Times an enormous amount. However, they made this offer-imposed the almost unbelievable condition that they the St. Paul's Cathedral and the Bodleian Library in Oxford would be given free use as property. As is well known, the St. Paul's Cathedral, next to Westminster Abbey, is one of the largest

*) Clarke Papers Vol. II p. 172 Note A.

) Wolf: Re-Settlement p. 7.

*) Clarke Papers Vol. II p. 172 Note A, Wolf: American Elements p. 87.

% Hyamson: History p. 134.

93

English national shrine, while the Bodleian Library is among the five largest libraries in England. From the Cathedral They wanted to make a synagogue, to turn the library into a Jewish one. Convert the school.

The negotiations failed in 1649, although not because of a lack of willingness on the part of the English re-greed. On the contrary, she was only too willing to go to this business. to enter into an agreement, however the price seemed too low to her, and she-£700,000 was sufficient, according to another report even £800,000 ®). Perhaps they couldn't agree on the price, much- The public outrage was perhaps too great to stop the sale. to allow these national shrines.

In this context, a pamphlet from that time is of interest. Time: "Cromwell's last damnable project and Ireton and his comrades ...", who governed the anarchy and accuses the suppression of all freedom. "Their next goal is," he said. We read literally, "the City of London and its immediate surroundings- to disarm and loot in order to remove the The army had no need to fear an uprising. The looting However, this will not bring the soldiers any lasting advantage, but They will be sold the stolen goods to them at a low price. take it and sell it all to the Jews, whom one short- In contrast to the previous expulsion law of the Parliament- ments approved and those who have been allowed to open their banks with us and to open department stores. The Jews are the merchants. by Cromwell and associates, who, against payment, not only all expropriated and looted items, but even men, Women and children, even entire families, are being sold. With these un- The Jewish merchants, if fortunate, receive a permanent han- del with the Turks, Moors and other Muslims right" . . 0).

Quite apart from the question discussed here, it should be noted that The last sentence will be of particular interest, because after that... They apparently did not hesitate to not support the government at the time. to sell acceptable families to the Jews, so that a proper Human trafficking has been rampant. It is regrettable that No further information on this could be found. According to the facts known to us from the modern girl- But it is not surprising that it was the Jews who This despicable business was being conducted.

The leaflet will certainly have its intended effect and have contributed to the fact that, among other things, consideration is given to Due to the public outrage, negotiations were officially broken off. Apparently, they never completely came to a standstill.

% Walker Part II p. 60, Carte Vol. I p. 276, Tovey p. 259, Blunt p. 68, Mentet p. 473, Picciotto p. 25, Hansard vol. 125 p. 87, vol. 141 pp. 726 ff. Furthermore, he refers to Blunt also refers to a letter from Thurloe. His quote is, with the exception of volume The page number is correct. It should read Vol. I p. 387, not Vol. III p. 357.

10%) Walker Part II pp. 61, 62.

94

for in the collection of Thurloe, who was first Secretary of State Council, later of Oliver and Richard Cromwell, there is a letter received on July 29, 1653!), according to which at that time there were still or perhaps yet another meeting about these issues were underway.

In 1654 we hear of another official application. The French ambassador to Holland wrote on October 16th In 1654, he told his colleagues in London that "a Jew in Amsterdam allegedly, he was informed precisely that the three generals the fleet had submitted a petition to Cromwell containing the following information: to absorb the Jewish nation in England and in this way to direct trade there" b). Whether these details of the Whether this applied to Jews may remain an open question. In any case, inter- It is important that the French ambassador communicated this message through a Hebrew in Amsterdam received, from which it is evident that the Jews had knowledge of the plan of the English fleet commanders and therefore undoubtedly involved in this action, if not even whose authors were.

Oliver Cromwell

The year 1655 was to see the greatest efforts of the Jews and their friends regarding their admission. Before we... However, to deal with this in detail, it is necessary to consider the to address both leading men, insofar as it relates to The topic under discussion requires it. It was Cromwell. who threw his entire personality into the balance in favor of the Jews. bowl thrown and on the side of their leader Menasseh Ben Israel stood.

Numerous writings by experts and non-experts have appeared about Cromwell's character, and we want to discuss them here to refrain from a similar attempt. Rather, we only want to investigate why Cromwell championed the cause of the Jews-set.

As a Puritan, he was friendly towards the Jewish religion, and he felt connected to it not only, but also- They practically worshipped her!®). Whether this was purely out of idealism, however, is a That remains to be seen. But he probably belonged to those who hoped that the Jews could be helped through friendly treatment and Gradually gaining religious freedom for Christianity could, especially since the teachings of the Puritans were considered by the Jews to be- must be pulling 11) Thurloe State Papers Vol. I p. 387.

192) Thurloe State Papers Vol. II p. 652.

15) Graetz Vol. V p. 112, Fletcher p. 230, Godwin Vol. IV p. 245.

95

He was inclined to grant the broadest possible freedom of religion, so- provided the religious community in question made the declaration never to attempt to interfere in state affairs- to interfere. When the Quaker patriarch, George Fox, When he met Cromwell, the first thing he had to do was to secure his commitment sign, never anything against Cromwell and his government to undertake. George Fox complied with this request and Cromwell even became his friend later on!").

Based on its principle that the state holds the highest authority in to a country, and otherwise, each according to his own way is blessed It is understandable that he had no objection to the to grant rights to Jews in England. However, even his Not powerful enough to oppose the will of the people in this to enforce the question).

His pro-Jewish stance was further reinforced by, that he had like-minded advisors around him. Among the latter were- The aforementioned Thurloe, who served as his secretary, heard understandably had a far-reaching influence on the Jewish community. possessed actions, as can be seen from the content of his still preserved letters result.). Among Cromwell's close associates was including Hugh Peters, who has already been mentioned, his famous Army chaplain, who was very active in politics, as well as Harry Martens as a member of the Privy Council) and John Sadler, who through his aforementioned book Cromwell, especially in the Jewish-question may have been influenced, proved to be the greatest advocate for the Jews of that time, although other considerations also guided him in this stance. have likely.

So it's really no wonder that Cromwell...

His main ambition was to make England great and strong, for which, in his view, not only military power, but also a dominant position of English trade in the world (as a prerequisite, 108). When Cromwell came to power, This is not the case, because Dutch trade was England was a leader at the time. It was affected by the long civil wars. financially ruined and unable on his own to to bring about the desired success. It therefore seemed to Cromwell that Naturally, he would look for outside support. hoped to find it among the Jews of the world. As already stated above— Even back then, Judaism had laid the foundations for all things global. Connections. In his hands lay the Spanish and Portuguese Greek trade as well as the crucial Levantine trade, and the Dutch— The Jewish East and West India Company was also a Jewish company. Company™), Trading in gold and silver bars in the 14) Ranke: History of England Vol. III p. 151.

165) Ranke: History of England Vol. III p. 152.

106) Thurloe: State Papers Vol. IV pp. 308, 321.

ioe} Graetz Vol. V p. 113.

108) Godwin Vol. IV p. 245.

1000 Hyamson: History p. 139.

96

The world was increasingly dominated by them, as they also had great interests in the shipping of all countries"), Cromwell was very much influenced by the small Jewish community in London. well-informed about all these things, as they themselves had great Trade relations with all major countries (it), with attached According to their words, there was hardly a branch left even at that time. of English trade in which non-Jewish money was involved. Cromwell, however, desired increased Jewish immigration. especially from Holland, as he was responsible for the flourishing of Amsterdam. Part, to which the Jews were traced. So he drew the Jews from there to London, he hoped this would strengthen the English and to achieve a decrease in Dutch trade.

Jewish historians cannot stop emphasizing the to point out the role of Jews in England's rise. Wolf takes The following position is taken on this matter:

"...On the threshold of a glorious era of colonial expansion-For Spain, all the conditions were in place to expand.
by exploiting the available opportunities, an empire to create something that was in no way inferior to the English version.
Spain, however, made the mistake of not taking a large part of its to rid themselves of the most valuable merchants and industrialists, thereby
It is located within and outside its borders, with hundreds and created thousands of bitter and treacherous enemies who did not only to protect their interests by all means at their disposal Spain's fighters, but also enjoyed special relief-wrestling rejoiced in giving effective expression to their hatred.
With each further Spanish conquest, the area also grew.
the Morranos' subversive conspiracy. Through the ensuing-During the Inquisition's blinding campaign, entire ships were filled with undesirables.
ten Jews were sent to the new colonies, where they later as agents and correspondents of their race comrades at home and operated in other countries. In this way, it expanded the network of Jewish trade, which had already previously North and Western Europe, the shores of the Mediterranean and the Levant around-had stretched on, across South America, East and West India, the western and southeastern Africa, India and the Far East out. These colonies were all interconnected.
dung, and even the first Jews in England entertained almost business relationships with each of their fellow race members there!!?).;“

The statements of this Jewish historian are likely to...
We fully confirm what we have already stated.

- 110) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 29/30.
- u) Wolf: Crypto Jews p.73.
- us) Wolf: Cromwell's Jewish Intelligencers p. 13.

Seven Jews conquer England 97

Jewish spies in Cromwell's service

Cromwell wanted to use these connections of the Jews not only to English trade, but also its foreign policyto make use of it. Whether this suggestion came from him or the Hebrews-
It is no longer possible to determine when he left. In any case, There is no doubt that the Jews of the whole world are in the Cromwell's spy service was identified and provided him with great assistance.
For a long time, nothing was known about this activity of Judas.
until Wolf, in particular, initially pointed this out. The For-Studies in the relevant sources reveal that the espionage-
The successes of the Jews contributed significantly to the actions to get through Cromwell's numerous enemies on the continent-cross. The future King Charles II had his followers and allies he found in many European countries, in Flanders gathered together to cross from here to England and to fight Cromwell in his own country. Cromwell saw facing almost insurmountable difficulties, especially since the Spaniards Charles II were supported very significantly. The exact details of the information through Jewish espionage enabled Crom- However, to nip the entire Royalist expedition in the bud suffocate by unexpectedly confronting his opponents' fleet in Ostend."

The head of this Jewish spy center can be found in London: It was Carvajal, whom we already know. In the collection contemporary letters, the so-called Thurloe Papers, are found a letter, dated Vlissingen, December 20, 1656, to "Mr. Ferdinando Carnevall, Merchant at London", which only briefly Receipt of letters with certain enclosures confirmed and with the (signed under the name "Jacub Goltburgh"). From the over- The writing of the collection, which dates from 1752, already It is evident that the name is only a pseudonym and the actual name is... The writer was a certain J. Butler. If one considers this... Further research into the name reveals quite a few more. spy letters originating from, but not explicitly addressed to are addressed to Carnival.

The question now arises as to who Carnevall was and whether the letters to these or to Thurloe. Although a deserved historian, W. Dunn Macray(s), takes the position, The name "Carnevall" is a pseudonym. so we have no reservations about agreeing with Wolf), that with the Only the Jew Antonio Fernandez Carvajal was named Carnevall. It may be that a man like Thurloe has no such thing as a certain type of person. if the name of this well-known Jew is used as a pseudonym

114) Thurloe State Papers Vol. V p. 722
115) Macray Vol. III pp. 242, 256 ff.
us) Wolf: Cromwell's Jewish Intelligencers p. 6.

ug Wolf: Cromwell's Jewish Intelligencers p. 8.

may have. But are the letters, whose contents were so important to the English government that unauthorized access to them was prohibited? In any case, it had to be avoided in the manner mentioned. Since they had been addressed, they had to be addressed despite the slight deviation. the name did, however, come to Carvajal, whom one, incidentally, how as can be seen from official documents, etc., often also referred to as Caravajal refers to:).

There are more letters in another collection.

Espionage messages from Flanders," which date from the time of February to May 1657 and also originate from Butler

They probably will. However, this time they are neither with "Jacob Goltburgh" not signed with "J. Butler" but with "Jean Somer".

Wolf saw the first two letters in their original form, the hand-

Writings by J. Butler and J. Somer were compared and

They found complete agreement, which is good evidence for the

The identity of the writers is...

It is also recorded in the documents that on March 30th

1655 for an employee of Carvajal named Alfonso de Fonseca

(a passport to Flanders has been issued). Whether this journey with the Carvajal's involvement in espionage matters can be seen.

cannot be determined, but based on the above, it should not be the case. be closed.

The content of the letters in question shows that the actions of the The facts reported by spies were extremely important to Cromwell. have been.

Butler—as we shall henceforth call the spy—was—judging by the extent of the communications—unable to

to do all the associated work alone. Rather, he must—

He had various helpers, while he himself probably held the main position.

They may have been Cromwell's spies in Holland and Flanders

It is likely. In one of his letters, he explicitly refers to others.

People who are in his service'?). We also think, that he provides very precise information about the respective troop strength

Charles II, makes. But of particular importance is likely the

The notification should have indicated in which port the transport

Assemble ships for the troops to invade England—should be drawn. Butler assures that he will promptly re—

(directly from the final assembly point). It should Therefore, we can be fairly certain that these were Butler's communications.

Cromwell in time for the successful attack on the East

The fleet and transport ships lying at anchor made it possible to which prevented the Royalists from landing in England

In addition, Butler continuously provided detailed information about the equipment and weaponry of the troops. Even the quantity.

47) E.g. see Domestic State Papers Vol. 1654 p. 580, Vol. 1655/56 p. 60, 161 and others us) Macray Vol. III pp. 242, 256, 262 ff., 276, 283, 287.

u») Domestic State Papers Vol. 1655 p. 580.

119) Thurloe State Papers Vol. V p. 588.

he knew about the newly purchased weapons and transmitted the information." With With astonishing expertise, he even recounted the most intimate details. Opportunities at the court of Charles II. Every person of importance was apparently being monitored by his secret service. We learn from (the letters show the coming and going of these people). It is his Spies even managed to track down the individual monetary donations made by Charles II. to determine the amounts received, including the names of the persons concerned Donor),

The intelligence service's connections went so far that one could obtain a precise description of the items sent to England (There could have been spies of Charles II!). Certainly, it won't be then. It may have been difficult to monitor the individuals in question. to leave them or to render them harmless.

However, the spies likely earned particular merit through this. have acquired the fact that they appear to be the first positive co-statements regarding the conclusion of the alliance treaty between Spain and Charles II could do. The written treaty

It was kept extremely secret and only two of the most loyal Charles II's advisors knew the details, while everyone else His followers were not informed of this at all. Butler nevertheless offered to provide a to provide a copy of the contract for a large sum of money."

Unfortunately, the letters do not reveal whether he was successful. was. But we can later see from this that Butler—seemingly always very well informed about the individual

He had been informed of the Spaniards' intentions to support them, so he shared with the fact that they were expecting twelve warships from overseas and they together with an equal number of galleons to Flanders about to send them. Holland would also send two to the king. provide units of its navy to combat the narrow—

"to observe the 'lische Flotte' (the 'lische' fleet)."

Cromwell himself was also likely to have joined the secret organization. We owed a great debt of gratitude. We find in a letter von Butler, that a Dutchman named Pinleter went to England was on his way to assassinate Cromwell. He was a colonel and a A very bold man. Every stranger who frequently frequents the government—"One should keep an eye on the quarter of Whitehall."

Unfortunately, it is not known what came of this matter. has become. Apparently, Pinletter was chosen because of the The warning could probably be rendered harmless.

There should be no doubt that Cromwell did not achieve his successes owes a small part to the services of its Jewish spies.

At the same time, however, the activity described above also gives us 183) Macray Vol. III p. 256.

128) Thurloe State Papers Vol. V pp. 645, 665.

44) Thurloe State Papers Vol. V pp. 645, 709.

12) Thurloe State Papers Vol. V p. 645.
120) Thurloe State Papers Vol. V p. 6665.

d. V p. 709, Macray Vol. III p. 242.

4127) Thurloe State Papers B
18) Macray Vol. III p. 262.

100

Carvajal's explanation for why, despite his crimes, he always found the government's support

Besides Carvajal, there was probably another rich Jew named Manuel Martinez Dormido or David Abarbanel his Ver-provided connections for espionage purposes. Dormido will be discussed in another context.

be, and only then will we fully understand why he in particular.
was chosen for this purpose. Part of his correspondence with his Agents in Holland is also in Thurloe's collection.

received, and Wolf") rightly holds the view that these

The messages represented only a meager remnant. It concerns the two people, undoubtedly Jews: David Nasy and Manoel Grasian. The former writes on September 10, 1655 to Dormido, that 27 Spanish ships with 1010 pieces of artillery in

They had set sail. The crew consists of 11,400 men.

Another 32 units of the Spanish Navy would be arriving shortly to join the aforementioned force. The intention was to to pursue the English fleet with combined forces. "May God..."

"give," Nasy concludes, "that the accursed Papists never will emerge victorious from this triumph. May Cromwell and his Weapons remain victorious and further successes contribute to his salvation

"People's victory" 0 Grasian's letter contains similar comments divisions about the strength and movements of the Spanish fleet and concludes with the words: "May God grant the weapons Crom-wells and the Commonwealth, which have so greatly benefited our nation-favorable, be gracious'),

The closing remarks of both letters are interesting insofar as they clearly shows the attitude of the Jews towards Spain and England
They show that they meet the former with all their hatred, while they treat the latter with to show Jewish flattery to the latter.

How the Jewish secret service already rendered great services to Cromwell World Jewry still contributes in the same way today.

Hillaire Belloc, who worked for England and was a pro-Jewish writer, steller writes the following regarding the present time: "... The Jewish News agencies in the 19th century covered England everywhere favored in both political and economic terms. The Jews have always opposed England's rivals and enemies-set. In the Far East, they put their experiences to the test. especially at the disposal of the English. Also in the internationalnal penetration of the other European governments fun-They sought after the Jews as their source of information. One almost has to admit they were when the English agents on the European continent draw . . .)

The aforementioned employee of Carvajal, de Fonseca, is a

12°) Wolf: Cromwell's Jewish Intelligencers p. 10.

180) Thurloe State Papers Vol. III p. 750.

m Thurloe State Papers Vol. III p. 750/51.

132) Belloc: The Jews, p. 222.

101

Brother Dormido'®), Through this further connection with Dormido as another of Cromwell's chief spies, the the above-expressed view that he too is part of the entire espionage operation
The system has been heard of, making it even more likely.
Dormido's services to Cromwell must be quite considerable.
to have been, if one considers the favor shown to him by the latter.
considered. When the Portuguese conquered Pernambuco from the Dutch recaptured large assets of Dormido seizes, who asked Cromwell to speak to the King of to approach Portugal. Cromwell forwarded the request on (forwarded to the State Council for processing on November 8, 1654).
However, the State Council refused to do anything in the matter.
to undertake, let alone to appeal to the King of Portugal to turn around, which he justified by saying that Dormido was not British, but a Dutch citizen). Crom- then took well, took matters into his own hands and related to a private letter to the King of Portugal for Dormido. He as a special favor, he requested the return of the property in Pernambuco (assets located at Dormido). This process is likely to impressively demonstrates Cromwell's attitude towards the Jews.
The information provided so far about the spy service of Jews could be proven beyond doubt using documents.
will be, however, there is a suspicion that the Jews in general who acted as spies for Cromwell. The presented arguments-
The evidence hardly suggests that such an activity was limited to only a few specific Jews. This assumption is based on the accounts of two reliable histoconfirmed by the authorities.
One of them is Bishop Burton, who made a widely noted
"History of his own time" written has. Since she mentions Cromwell's relations with the Jews at one point. Especially important, the following should not be overlooked:

 To reproduce the following statements:
 "...Cromwell made it a principle to incur no costs whatsoever."
 to save up in order to obtain information from the intelligence service.
 When he discovered the skill with which Jews were involved in espionage all over the world,
 He brought a number of Jews to England... The whole Throughout that time, they were good and reliable for Cromwell.
 Spies, especially in matters with Spain and Portugal. The Count of Orrery told me that one day he walking up and down in one of the galleries of Whitehall with Cromwell
 I had just left when suddenly a man – almost entirely dressed in rags – appeared shrouded – appeared. Cromwell immediately ex- Lord Orrery let and led the man into his secret room, who 18) Wolf: Crypto Jews p. 70.
 13) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1654 p. 393.

in) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1654 p. 407.
 1%) Wolf: Cromwell's Jewish Intelligencers p. 11.

102 informed that the Spanish had sent a large sum of money in a Dutch- to pay for their army in Flanders had dispatched a warship. The man gave him the the exact location on the ship where the money was."

 Through this announcement, Burton has Lord Orrery continue, was the Dutch warship actually at the same altitude?
 raised by Dover and the very large sum of money under pulled from the ship by the pressure of the English warships. "During the "Next meeting," Burton concludes his story, "have Cromwell Lord Orrery reports that he received these secret messages.
 judge regarding the Dutch ship from the contemptible-
 I received a gift from a esteemed man a few days ago."
 According to this story, we can also find a documentary record of Recorded in the minutes of the Council of State of September 7, 1652
 To understand correctly, it reads as follows: "Antonio Ferdinando Carvajal reports that in a Hamburg ship for the account Spanish merchants' silver is brought to Ostend). Here-
 It appears to be a message from the secret service.
 traded by Carvajal's service, and English warships were-who probably ensured that the silver did not came to Flanders. Incidentally, Carvajal's knowledge is surprising. about this transport, as he is probably the largest merchant in this industry from his Spanish breed colleagues and Ge-business associates were informed.

In addition, we have another authentic confirmation. our opinion, which we expressed in the so-called "Parliamentary "Diary by Thomas Burton" % find. Words are contained here transmitted, which Cromwell expressed in a public speech- has spoken. Burton's report reads as follows: "Cromwell ge- lasted for the Jews, those capable and generally related spies whose connections to the continent he considered extra- had made good use of it, a reasonable grace to the attention of her chief agent in England."

What kind of mercy was shown to the Jews cannot be determined. no longer ascertainable. Wolf maintains that this "grace" the fact was that Cromwell told them in front of the assembled Parliament gave its assurance for settlement in England. We do not consider this view to be correct, after all, one can see but from Burton's report, that the espionage activities of Jews were certainly one of the main reasons for Cromwell's actions. likely to favor them. For the sake of completeness, it should also be noted that... mentions that Carvajal was the "main agent of the Jews"; Elsewhere he is referred to by his contemporary Violet"), by whom we will hear more about, called "the great Jew". The words They are different, but mean the same thing in essence.

17) Burton Vol. I p. 122

188) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1651/52 p. 395.

1%) Burton Vol. I p. 4

14) Violet: Petition init the Jews p. 7.

103

General support for Cromwell by the Jews

Cromwell probably also relied on Jewish capital- pending, although it must be admitted that this- No conclusive proof was found regarding these investigations. have brought. According to the Jew Wolf, there is hardly a Doubts that Cromwell or the parliamentary government Money was provided by the Jews. Thus, He stated that around the year 1643 foreign Jews from Amsterdam into London were identified, which were probably caused by the attracted by the financial difficulties of the then-government were),

Elsewhere, Wolf expresses his opinion more clearly on Expression. He is also referring here to a letter, according to which the Jews gave the Republicans considerable sums of money have offered to achieve their goals."

Other television producers, who were opponents of Cromwell, also claiming that he received donations from the Jews"). Therefore, there is a high probability that the Jews Cromwell also received strong financial support.

It is also quite possible that they were Cromwell and the republican The Canadian government was prepared to pay substantial sums provided they receive certain assurances regarding the granting of the Permission to trade freely in England was granted. Since The Jews were not included in the parliament under Cromwell, which did not implement these Having received a verbal assurance, perhaps it might be due to the offer of "The money has remained in Geldern."

However, Cromwell always placed considerable value on the financial The support provided by the Jews is evident from the fact that he after the collapse of the so-called Whitehall Conference, which we will discuss in detail later, the further The pursuit of the matter was contingent on the fact that Jews who demanded the enormous sum of money from him- paid). However, be that as it may, after the only savings- Despite the available documentary evidence, we have no doubts. that large payments have been made.

The immigration of Jews likely also had a significant indirect impact.

Money must have flowed to England. We already mentioned that above.

a large number of Jewish businesses were discussed. One The Jew, Diego Rodrigues Marques, for example, during his education- Hike from Lisbon with the help of his relatives £15,000 brought to London, as stated in his public will as emerges. One can also further infer from this which How he must have increased his wealth. Already in the year

105 Wolf: Re-Settlement 8, 4.

448) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 18/19.

143) Romaine p. 5, Prynne: Narrative p. 49.

144) Fletcher p. 231, Henriques: Return p. 67.

145) Nicholas Paper Vol. III p. 255.

=.

In 1678, the will lists shiploads of gold and silver mentioned in the value of approximately 1 million million rubles").

But the Jews also attacked Cromwell in another way served. Through their relatives and business associates throughout the world. The world was prompted by them, even back then they were the ones who through Their hikes and travels took them to many countries. Equal- Early on, during their visits, they were not only informed about the general character of the foreign country was explained, but They then also discussed the possibilities that could be achieved. and maintain advantages. The aforementioned Jew Simon de Caceres, for example, lived in South America for an extended period of time and therefore knew the local conditions." We know of him- provides that he gave Cromwell information about foreign countries and even sent him precisely formulated proposals, which he also mostly followed.

In 1655, Jamaica had been conquered by England Caceres presented Cromwell with a memorandum entitled "Suggestions for improvement regarding Jamaica." From the contents It follows that he made these proposals immediately after his He has prepared a return from Jamaica. He primarily believes in one thing. Expansion of the port is absolutely necessary, for which stones are needed. and other building materials were needed. He gives down to the smallest detail. detailed proposals for the fortification of the island and suggests that special supplies for the troops be provided as quickly as possible would have to be sent there.

Cromwell apparently changed his mind about these statements. to be allowed to testify, for we find in one of his letters from the Years 1655 to Major General Fortescue in Jamaica An- instructions in line with the proposals of Caceres'),

Along with this memorandum, Caceres had further proposals (strikes made for the conquest of Chile). He gives Crom- 'Well, an accurate description of this country and the place where the expeditionary force would have to land. In his opinion, ge- Four frigates and four ships were sufficient for the conquest of Chile. Transport ships with a thousand soldiers. An island he called Mocha He considers it a particularly suitable base, especially since one can find it there. He could buy food at cheap prices from the Indians. Furthermore, the latter were considered mortal enemies of the Spanish and the English. would be well-disposed. Caceres does not forget Cromwell. to point out the six main advantages of conquering Chile. More gold would be found there than in Peru, and the country was It was rich in fruit, livestock, and fish. Furthermore, the following lived there: the most warlike Indians, driven by an irreconcilable hatred 48) Probate Office Records 1678 (Reeve Fol. 113).

147) Wolf: Re-Settlement p. 5.

148) Green Vol. III p. 294.

148) Thurloe State Papers Vol. IV pp. 61, 62.

ss Carlyle: Letters Vol. II p. 389/90.

151) Thurloe State Papers Vol. IV p. 62/63.

105

were inspired against the Spanish. Furthermore, Chile was a good operational base to divert Spanish trade from the Philippines and to prevent South America from following the homeland. Finally, it would... This would gradually drive the Spanish from the seas. His further statements amount to describing himself and to secure the best possible positions for his fellow race members in the expedition to secure. First, one should ensure Jews in Holland who already would have accompanied another expedition to Chile and therefore Those familiar with the area would recruit for this company. Caceres He himself – so he said smugly – would take command take over. He would also be willing to take on the second position if necessary. The commander would be satisfied if there were no other way.

As you can see, Caceres has not been mistaken in his proposals. He ate and was looking out for his own advantage. Apparently, however, Cromwell did not undertake this expedition.

Wolf%) has another one in the Rawlinsonian collection Plan of Caceres discovered, which relates to the navigational records– pulls. As is well known, this was intended to give the Dutch to seize trade and raise the status of English shipping. We will discuss this in more detail later. Caceres has Cromwell demonstrated in detail that with regard to the ver– Shipping of products, especially sugar, to the West Indies, With English involvement, much would still be amiss. Holland– The Hamburgers and French would have a far too large one share of the trade of this English colony. Explains in detail He then explained how to address this situation, which was unfavorable for England. This could remedy the situation. However, nothing has been done to... tricks of the Dutch, Hamburgers and other foreigners except to leave eight, otherwise all related efforts would be in vain. They would prove useless from the outset. He, Caceres, would the The right man as commissioner to carry out the tasks he has initiated designed measures, since he all the tricks of the foreign– I know him. These statements by Caceres are all the more relevant– more meaningful than the basic ideas for the navigation act apparently originating from a Jew.

One can see from everything the extent to which Cromwell was influenced by the Hebrews. He was supported; he was on the lips of all Jews in the world who They expected great deeds from him for their salvation.

Around the year 1654 or 1655 – the exact time is unknown. Festiss) – a delegation of Jews from Asia Minor came under Cromwell granted permission for one of their rabbis to travel to England. They had a conversation during which they explained to him that they wanted to buy the valuable Cambridge library. Cromwell was not averse to this plan. However, they first asked... to request permission to take a look inside the library to be allowed to do what Cromwell granted them. The Jews surrendered went to Cambridge, but after some time they were found in Huntingdon, Cromwell's birthplace, where to everyone's surprise they the residents researched their family tree. It soon became clear. by pursuing a specific purpose with it: they They wanted to find out if the lineage supported their view confirmed that Cromwell was a Jew and that they had been Jewish for so long (promised Messiah). The public in England took This was met partly with anger, partly with derision. Finally, he also stopped. Cromwell of this, and to avoid indignation or ridicule To withdraw from the crowd, he was forced to send the Jewish delegation to expel from the country"),

162) Wolf: American Elements p. 99.

153) Tovey p. 275.

106

Some writers, according to Picciotto, are unsure whether this The incident actually occurred. In our view, it is so- probably generally as well as from a special Reasons that have been overlooked by all researchers so far, Very possible.

Through the writings of an Englishman of that time, we have learned about- It has been reported that a large gathering of Jews of the World on December 12, 1650 near Budapest- had found), which was supported by about 300 representatives of the various Jewish colonies had been visited. The Englishman had through any circumstance granted access to the assembly and accepted all meetings were attended. The main topic of discussion was in They had a heated discussion about whether the Messiah had yet appeared. or not. The Jews had argued for days without reaching a consensus. to achieve a result. The vast majority were of the opinion that He hasn't arrived yet. But one thing is certain: dal the expected Messiah would possess great earthly power.

It was decided to hold a similar assembly in 1653.
to convene in Syria to decide, among other things, this question!").
We don't know if this meeting took place; it speaks but nothing against it either, and there is certainly a possibility that probability that again no agreement will be reached on this issue was achieved. With regard to the Jews of Cromwell
The favor shown and his great earthly power were much appreciated.
slightly inclined to consider him the Messiah. The only obstacle—
This was apparently due to the uncertainty surrounding his ancestry, and it is reasonable to assume that a delegation was sent in 1653 was determined in order to conduct appropriate research in England.
to employ. In 1654 or 1655, a
A delegation from Asia Minor, as is unanimously reported, so that There is probably no doubt about the process described above.
Apart from these considerations, however, the general consensus is that
The fact that the Jewish community was already involved back then is of interest.

100 As is well known, the Jews do not recognize Jesus Christ as the Messiah.

Piciotto p. 29, Answer to a Pamphlet p. 46, Blunt p. 71, Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 41, Jesse Vol. III p. 88, Tovey p. 275.

"Brett: In Harleian Miscellany Vol. I p. 379 ff.

157) Brett: In Harleian Miscellany Vol. I p. 385.

to the world for consultation on common matters—gathered, another authentic case for the by the Jews categorically rejected the thesis that under They present a united front.

Menasseh Ben Israel

After we have a general overview of the position of Crom-wells to the Jews and vice versa, it is likely that It will no longer be so difficult to understand the following processes in the to understand the years 1654 and 1655.

Cromwell was the most ardent supporter on the English side.
Regarding the Jewish cause, the leader of the Jews was a rabbi.
in Amsterdam, Menasseh Ben Israel. We will be longer. to deal with him, not only because of his collaboration with Cromwell, but because he was one of the first was someone who did not act on behalf of a specific group of Jews, but rather advocated for himself as a leader for world Jewry. An ever recurring objection to one of our reasons for The fight against the Jews is that their allegedly be—knew that a unified will for world domination was lacking or at least it cannot be determined unequivocally.

It is admitted that not all attempts at proof are successful. were successful at this point. However, this usually had less impact. the material is more relevant than the potentially relevant factors. workers. We have to get used to the world in this In order to provide irrefutable evidence, what we by citing sources and, where possible, by reference to achieve Jewish literature and historical research and must. Nothing helps the Jews and their friends in the The world is more important than deviating from these principles.

It is indeed particularly difficult to make well-founded findings. about a conscious leadership of the Jews to world domination meet. Jewish archives, such as that of the House of Rothschild, are and will probably not be opened. Furthermore, the driving forces in Judaism naturally largely They avoid putting their goals down on paper. Most of the time, they are therefore reliant only on circumstantial evidence, which, however, is particularly They could not convince the critics. Consequently, they must We would gratefully welcome it if we could use certificates as a basis or other irrefutable evidence to support our claim explain and, most importantly, convince even doubters can. Menasseh Ben Israel and his mission regarding Oliver Cromwell is likely one of the cases where enough data was passed through. There is compelling material available to prove that the

108

Jews of the world had a common goal and a unified leadership

First, let's briefly look at the life of Menasseh Ben. To become familiar with Israel in order to understand why he in particular... was destined and suited for this great task.

He was born in 1604, and there are some doubts about that. where he was born. It's almost certain that... (however, Lisbon is considered his birthplace'), His My father was one of the aforementioned Morranos, who were in Portugal. He was one day discovered as a secret Jude was discovered and did not escape the tortures of the Inquisition. His assets were confiscated, and the family was I was only too happy to take advantage of the first opportunity to get out of Portugal to be able to escape. Like many other Morranos, they turned to to Amsterdam, the burgeoning new Jewish world-center. The father was a broken man upon arrival in Amsterdam. A man who could barely bear his poverty. It was likely There is no doubt that Menasseh Ben Israel already was old enough to understand the actions of the Inquisition against the

to experience Jews in part and to imprint them on his childlike mind-increase. This will surely serve as a lasting reminder to him.
remained, especially since his parents preserved his memory through their stories-lungs likely replenished themselves repeatedly. Furthermore
New Morranos arrived in Amsterdam almost continuously,
the harsh measures taken by the inhabitants of the Iberian peninsula knew how to report against the Jews. The Jewish
The character is generally driven by revenge for something he allegedly did not do.
considered the injustice done. That Menasseh would not benefit from this-
The fact that he made a claim is revealed, among other things, by one of his letters from Years 1647/15), from which one can derive all his hatred against the English-countries for actions against his fellow countrymen 350 years ago felt. How much more must he feel towards Spaniards and Portuguese?
They swore revenge, which during his lifetime not only affected his
Not only fellow race members, but his family had been persecuted. Since Crom-Well, Spain's greatest adversary was, one can imagine-Menasseh states that he takes particular pleasure in bringing together
By starting work with him, he could hope to gain something through a
The migration of Jews to England was a similarly dominant experience for them.
to create a similar position as in Spain before, and thus the Fighting against their mortal enemies on the Pyrenean Peninsula to be able to record.

Menasseh Ben Israel received a well-known rabbi as a teacher.
Under his leadership, he was able to achieve [something] even at the age of [something].
He gave his first sermon in the synagogue at the age of 15. As his
The teacher died in 1622; despite his youthful age, he was...
(age as his successor). He was soon in all in) E Adler: Letter p. 174, Dr. Adler: Homage p. 27, Picciotto p. 25.

- 18) Harleian Miscellany Vol. VII p. 6
- 10) Dr. Adler: Homage p. 27.

Jewish colonies of the world as one of the best rabbis Jews came from all countries of the earth to...
to negotiate with him on all matters concerning their race and to hear his opinion. This explains why he soon entered the had a great name in world Jewry circles and with was known to all leading Jews in the world. Regarding its dissemination His name was also influenced by the fact that he wrote very extensively.
He was active in the arts. His works were primarily philosophical.
of a sophistic and historical nature. His activity remained conclusive.
but not limited to Jewish circles, but as a result
With his knowledge of ten languages, he also met with representatives other nations in contact").

He married shortly after his appointment as rabbi.
The marriage produced two sons. Since he was Since the rabbi didn't earn enough, he opened a printing shop. (An-)

Apparently, this company was not of great mate-
This is accompanied by great success, as we soon hear of renewed financial gains.
difficulties. He decided to emigrate to Pernambuco, where the Jews, after the conquest of Brazil, amassed enormous wealth-had seized control of the property. He already had all the connections.
The agreement with Holland was resolved and he was about to depart when he two very rich Jews who emigrated from Spain to stay
They were motivated. They wanted to found a Jewish school in Amsterdam.
and recruit him as an employee for this purpose. Since Menasseh's salary Ben Israel deemed it sufficient, so he accepted the brothers' offer.
Abraham and Isaac Pereira (an').

It will no longer be possible to determine with certainty whether for what reason and by which person Menasseh Ben Israel came to his assignment in England. Some Jewish writings(steller) mean that the friendly [information] already described above
The Puritan attitude in connection with the time Literature him on the commencement of negotiations with England would have encouraged them. Dr. Adler and Graetz even claim that the
The final impetus for his actions was the aforementioned writing by Edward Nicholas from the year 1648. Since, according to However, these statements are true in our previous explanations.
This view does not appear to originate from him personally.
to be true.

However, in any case, in our view Menasseh Ben Israel was likely affected by the Jewish concerns of the time and the prevailing ideas about the thousand-year Reich at that time may have been prompted by the path he had chosen. Also Then as now, the Jewish question was a topic of discussion in many countries.
became burning.

Through the development of things on the Iberian Peninsula

%1) Dr. Adler: Homage p. 28 fl., Hyamson: History p. 145.

1) Dr. Adler: Homage p. 32/33, Hyamson: History p. 147/148.

1) Graetz Vol. V p. 104 ff., Dr. Adler: Homage p. 33, Hymson: History p. 142 ff.

110

Jews of the world had a common goal and a unified leadership

First, let's briefly look at the life of Menasseh Ben.
To become familiar with Israel in order to understand why he in particular... was destined and suited for this great task.

He was born in 1604, and there are some doubts about that.
where he was born. It's almost certain that...

(however, Lisbon is considered his birthplace'), His My father was one of the aforementioned Morranos, who were in Portugal. He was one day discovered as a secret Jude was discovered and did not escape the tortures of the Inquisition. His assets were confiscated, and the family was I was only too happy to take advantage of the first opportunity to get out of Portugal to be able to escape. Like many other Morranos, they turned to to Amsterdam, the burgeoning new Jewish world-center. The father was a broken man upon arrival in Amsterdam.
 A man who could barely bear his poverty, it was likely There is no doubt that Menasseh Ben Israel already was old enough to understand the actions of the Inquisition against the
 to experience Jews in part and to imprint them on his childlike mind-increase. This will surely serve as a lasting reminder to him.
 remained, especially since his parents preserved his memory through their stories-lungs likely replenished themselves repeatedly. Furthermore
 New Morranos arrived in Amsterdam almost continuously,
 the harsh measures taken by the inhabitants of the Iberian
 The peninsula knew how to report against the Jews. The Jewish one.
 The character is generally driven by revenge for something he allegedly did not do.
 considered the injustice done. That Menasseh would not benefit from this-
 The fact that he made a claim is revealed, among other things, by one of his letters from Years 1647'), from which one can derive all his hatred against the English-countries for actions against his fellow countrymen 350 years ago felt. How much more must he feel towards Spaniards and Portuguese?
 They swore revenge, which during his lifetime not only affected his
 Not only fellow race members, but his family had been persecuted. Since Crom-
 Well, Spain's greatest adversary was, one can imagine-
 Menasseh states that he takes particular pleasure in bringing together
 By starting work with him, he could hope to gain something through a
 The migration of Jews to England was a similarly dominant experience for them.
 to create a similar position as in Spain before, and thus the Fighting against their mortal enemies on the Pyrenean Peninsula to be able to record.

Menasseh Ben Israel received a well-known rabbi as a teacher.
 Under his leadership, he was able to achieve [something] even at the age of [something].
 He gave his first sermon in the synagogue at the age of 15. As his
 The teacher died in 1622; despite his youthful age, he was...
 Ages appointed his successor'), He was soon in all 1s) E. Adler: Letter p. 174, Dr. Adler: Homage p. 27, Picciotto p. 25.

 1) Harleian Miscellany Vol. VII p. 623.

100) Dr. Adler: Homage p. 27.

Jewish colonies of the world as one of the best rabbis Jews came from all countries of the world to...
 to negotiate with him on all matters concerning their race and to hear his opinion. This explains why he soon entered the had a great name in world Jewry circles and with was known to all leading Jews in the world. Regarding its dissemination His name was also influenced by the fact that he wrote very extensively. He was active in the arts. His works were primarily philosophical. of a sophistic and historical nature. His activity remained conclusive. but not limited to Jewish circles, but as a result With his knowledge of ten languages, he also met with representatives other nations in contact").

He married shortly after his appointment as rabbi. The marriage produced two sons. Since he was Since the rabbi didn't earn enough, he opened a printing shop. (An-) Apparently, this company was not of great mate- accompanied by great success, because we will soon hear of renewed financial gains. difficulties. He decided to emigrate to Pernambuco, where the Jews, after the conquest of Brazil, amassed enormous wealth- had seized control of the property. He already had all the connections. The agreement with Holland was resolved and he was about to depart when he two very rich Jews who emigrated from Spain to stay They were motivated. They wanted to found a Jewish school in Amsterdam. and recruit him as an employee for this purpose. Since Menasseh's salary Ben Israel deemed it sufficient, so he accepted the brothers' offer. Abraham and Isaac Pereira!"").

It will no longer be possible to determine with certainty whether for what reason and by which person Menasseh Ben Israel came to his assignment in England. Some Jewish writings- (steller) mean that the friendly [information] already described above The Puritan attitude in connection with the time Literature him on the commencement of negotiations with England would have encouraged them. Dr. Adler and Graetz even claim that the The final impetus for his actions was the aforementioned writing by Edward Nicholas from the year 1648. Since, according to However, these statements are true in our previous explanations. This view does not appear to originate from him personally. to be true.

However, in any case, in our view Menasseh Ben Israel was likely affected by the Jewish concerns of the time and the prevailing ideas about the thousand-year Reich at that time may have been prompted by the path he had chosen. Also Then as now, the Jewish question was a topic of discussion in many countries. became burning.

Through the development of things on the Iberian Peninsula

141) Dr. Adler: Homage p. 28 fl., Hyamson: History p. 145.

1) Dr. Adler: Homage p. 32/33, Hyamson: History p. 147/148.

1) Graetz Vol. V p. 104 ff., Dr. Adler: Homage p. 33, Hymson: History p. 142 ff.

forced, thousands of Jews famously flooded the world. A very significant portion of these refugees had been in Bra-Silesia under the protection of the Dutch, fabulous riches collected. This changed when, in the middle of the 17th century- In the 1900s, the Portuguese drove out the Dutch and again They took possession of their former colony. With the Dutch The Jews also had to flee; some of them turned to the American colonies of England and Holland, most However, they flocked to the Jewish world headquarters in Amsterdam. back. From a single city in Brazil alone five thousand Jews from), This example shows that it generally involved considerable quantities They had to. They could usually only save lives. Quite apart from the fact that the trade, which is so important to them, had ended in South America, which of course also meant that Jewish merchants in Amsterdam were significantly affected One should also have considerable funds available for maintenance. to raise these hungry fellow race members. It therefore had to be so The situation should be remedied as quickly as possible, which is reflected in the This could best be achieved by taking care of the homeless Finding new countries for Jews was a particularly difficult task. Germany had just survived the Thirty Years' War, so that trade there completely collapsed. And then there were more. Hordes of Jews from Germany to Amsterdam and er-increased the difficulties faced by the colony there. It happened also entire swarms from Poland, where one of the largest Persecution of Jews had broken out. Hundreds, even thousands. had migrated westward. It was an interesting experience for us. Document received which clearly shows that also Menasseh Ben Israel was made aware of the above facts. was urged to continue his mission. In a letter dated December 31st. In 1655, the Dutch envoy informed a lord that... Menasseh Ben Israel primarily for the persecuted Spanish and would be active among Portuguese Jews). The same results from a letter by the aforementioned Dormido dated November 3rd- November 1654 to Cromwell, in which he first described the general situation the Jews in Spain and Portugal complained about, and then a one-a detailed description of the conditions that were so unpleasant for her. Finally, he asks Cromwell to help the so-suffering Hebrews.

to record in England." These lines are for our theory valuable insofar as it represents a formal request from Dormido represent and he himself a forerunner of the efforts Menasseh Ben Israel was in England.

Another general urgent reason that the Jews of
As far as the world was concerned, there was a guarantee for their admission in England:

u) Noll: American Elements p. 80.

16) Thurloe Papers Vol. IV p.

1) British Museum Mss. Egerton 1049 f. 6 ff.

111

After their expulsion from Brazil, they had lost all trade connection with the then more important south of this continent. They lost their homes. Some of them had traveled from Brazil to Suriname, a former English colony in America, on-
They were partly made, some of them went to New York, Jamaica, Barbados or other English colonies." There, it was tolerated they did so silently, and soon the Jews in Europe had new ones. Relationships were established with these fellow race members. Everything seemed to develop well. History has taught us that they are a possess a special ability to quickly adapt to life in other countries to live and then with their fellow race members and former business partners to establish new trade with friends. This was the hope among Jewish people. Circles, soon to cope with the loss of: South America can, because new business deals with the West Indies and North America in Prospects were in place.

Into this development burst the announcement of the navigation system Acts of the English of October 9, 1651). These laws determined that imports into England from overseas were only permitted on English ships and imports from Europe at the importantsten goods, as well as all goods from Turkey and Russia only on English ships or ships of the country of origin. The main purpose was to secure the Dutch-to destroy German trade and thus English trade to improve shipping. What a resounding success this will have been! History has taught us how negative sentiments towards England can be: Dutch trade and shipping were mainly in the hands of the Jews, and they were therefore significantly affected. In such cases, however, the Jews mostly they fight for their country, which they have acquired for this purpose to provide financial support to the utmost. This also happened in that period of history. Holland was plunged into a involved in war with England. His weapons were unsuccessful. rich, and among other things, it had to include the navigation act in the peace treaty to recognize. With that, Holland's power, and especially its Superiority on the seas broken.

Judah had realized that England had the future for itself and that it would soon dominate trade and shipping in the world, that Furthermore, the Dutch nation is too small to focus on the Duration as a serious competitor for the rising power of England claim. Consequently, everything had to be done to ensure that everything possible was done to gain a foothold and not fall behind. With the rise—

In this country, the Jews had to relinquish their old dominant position. regain their position in the world, as they had held it shortly before in Spain and Holland had had.

But it wasn't just the decline of power politics that was the problem. Holland's position, which led the Hebrews to switch sides—

100 Wolf: American Elements p. 80 ff.

18) Lingard Vol. VIII p. 374.

112

caused. Rather, their entire trade in the world was again called into question, because their 'race comrades in the West Indies and England's North American colonies could no longer to trade with their brothers in Amsterdam. The Jews lost this territory again. It has become clear that world traffic from Amsterdam to London had to be derived in order not to risk the ge— all trade in the New World, which had previously been almost a monopoly considered losing. that one shifted one's main interests to London. And there was yet another reason for world Jewry, To gain access to England.

Menasseh Ben Israel was deeply influenced in all his work by the prophecy expressed in the Book of Daniel is impaired, according to which the liberation of the Jews should take place when they cross the They are scattered all over the world. This prophecy was a motive. for the efforts of Menasseh Ben Israel?®), The According to other prophecies, the salvation of the Jews was to come with the dawn of the thousand-year Reich, the coming of the connected with the Messiah and the return of the Jews to the Promised Land to be, and Menasseh Ben Israel and his followers believed indomitable*), An explicit prerequisite was and But the Jews remained scattered throughout the world. How What did this look like?

It would go beyond the scope of this work to discuss this area in more detail. to treat it exhaustively, and we therefore only want to go so far as to address it. to deal with how to understand the workings of Menasseh Ben Israel is necessary.

For centuries, science has been studying the The problem of the lost ten tribes of Israel, and already in Writings on this question existed in the 13th, 14th, and 16th centuries.

Published in Asia Minor and on the Caspian Sea.

They believed they had been identified, and the Tatars were also supposed to be among them the descendants of the lost tribes of Israel!").

Towards the end of the 16th and the beginning of the 17th century, it directly a fashion, to deal extensively with this problem-to add something else. Initially, it was mainly Spanish spirits.

liche, who put forward the completely new theory that the Indians

America in connection with the lost ten tribes

They stood. Some claimed to be direct descendants.

the Israelites, while the others considered the devil to be the true-viewed the Indians as their ancestor, who, however, associated them with Jewish ancestors.

would have equipped it with customs and manners. One of the most illustrative

The first theory is based on the book by Gregorio Garcia: Origen of the Indians. In his view, the lost ten

1") Menasseh Ben Israel: Vindiciae Judaeorum p. 37.

170) 'Wolf: American Elements p. 78/79.

11) Hyamson: Lost Tribes p. 116 ff.

8 Jews conquer England 113

Tribes throughout Asia to the shores of the Bering Strait migrated and from there to America. Based on a long

In this list, he endeavors to highlight the similarities between Native Americans and to prove to the Hebrews'). Throughout the entire civilized world of that time Writings for and against appeared worldwide. In England, they were taken to task.

It was only in 1650 that a statement was made about it in a book, namely in affirmative Sinner). Here too we find an up-a count of customs and character traits that are according to

The author believes they could only be Jewish. The prints of the

The author of the book to be published sent it to the already the aforementioned patron of the Jews, John Dury, who shortly before Menasseh Ben Israel had visited Amsterdam. During this

On that occasion he learned from him that a Jew named Aaron Levy alias Antonio Montezinos on his travels in South America had discovered a tribe of Native Americans who were descended solely from Hebrews.

could. Levy had made a solemn affidavit.

before the Jewish community in Amsterdam, that his

The information is completely true. It looks as if the Jews only adopted the theory from this point onwards, that fellow members of the same race were also settled in the New World!").

It appears that Menasseh Ben Israel and his associates

Those who now believed that the prerequisite for the above-mentioned

The prophecy has been fulfilled. Travelers had in previous Years and centuries have confirmed that they are found in China, Asia Minor and found Jews in Russia. In general, one could corresponding to (then geographical knowledge about the

The world assumes that Jews are settled everywhere, with a

The only exception was England. This country therefore had to act very quickly. as much as possible from the necessity of admitting the Jews be convinced ().

World Jewry at work

After all this, it should be clear that the Jews of the world their eyes turned on rising England. Piciotto"), the Jewish historians do not doubt in the slightest that all Jews in France, Spain, Portugal and their colonies Menasseh Ben Israel had commissioned them to secure freedom to live and To establish trading rights in England.

Apparently Hyamson was of the same opinion?" this However, this was not expressed very clearly. (Also Wolf)

m Hyamson: Lost Tribes p. 129 ff.

178) Hyamson: Lost Tribes p. 133 ff.

170) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 24, Hyamson: Lost Tribes p. 140 ff.

in) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 24 ff., Dr. Adler: Homage p. 33/34.

176) Piciotto p. 27.

171) Hyamson: History p. 142 ff.

178) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 37.

114

does not seem to deny the cooperation of world Jewry He reports that Menasseh Ben Israel was accompanied two other rabbis had come to London, from one of them, who probably lived in Lublin, was Cromwell. from personal experience of the misery of the Jews in Poland wanted to correct.

A document has been preserved, probably from Cromwell or prepared by one of his advisors, in which it is stated, among other things, that on the occasion of Menasseh Ben Israel's negotiations in London "Many Jewish merchants from far across the seas came to London They had come. They had hoped to receive the same privileges regarding- Free trade and the practice of free religious service for worship of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in England, as they already in Holland, earlier in Prussia, Poland and other places enjoyed. After the conference and other proceedings had ended, However, they learned from the actions in Whitehall that the most of the ministers were opposed to her and as a result-

They had returned to their distant homes.
were deeply saddened that their hopes had been disappointed would have" 1), But since so many Jews from distant lands came to the Having come to London for the conference, there must be a Connection between Menasseh Ben Israel and the World Jew-to have existed. Otherwise, it's inexplicable why they all gathered in London at the time of the conference-They stopped. Certainly, they wanted a cost-effective solution.
not to waste a single minute to familiarize yourself with each one regarding the admission to secure the associated advantage. Also in one of the writings
We find this fact mentioned by Menasseh Ben Israel's.
Many of his fellow race members would have initially travelled to London, Others would have followed suit if successful, but after the collapse of his negotiations with Cromwell
They all dispersed again. Some returned to Italy, others to Geneva and others back to Holland*), These fellow-Divisions are further proof that the Jews of the world
They were gathered in London with knowledge of the negotiations.
However, it is likely that these individual cases were not those who acted solely to pursue their own interests not intended, but those that simultaneously contain certain boiling water to represent the lungs of the Jews in the world, as can be seen from can conclude the following:

The modern Jewish historian C. Roth has succeeded in Italian archives contain extraordinarily important documents to discover a connection with our question without him apparently it was clear that this would make the best piece of evidence to provide for the cooperation of world Jewry. From this
It emerges, among other things, that a Jew from Livorno named Raphael 17%) Narrative... in Harleian Miscellany Vol. VII p. 621/22.

180) Menasseh Ben Israel: Vindiciae Judaeorum p. 38/39.

* 115

Supino in Italy played a very important role in the negotiations with Cromwell. Livorno was a Jewish colony, after Emigration of the Morranos from the Iberian Peninsula, not not only very large in numbers, but also as a leader in the Mediterranean to look at. The Jews there had been granted great privileges.
cleared out, and we find not only Morranos, but Hebrews from all parts of Europe, who distinguished themselves through the opportunities granted to
They felt attracted to freedoms.

Supino belonged to one of the oldest Jewish families there.
He was a wealthy merchant with connections all over the world.
World. One of his main businesses was to manage the [unclear] that was [unclear] by the Christians and Muslims captured by pirates in the Mediterranean to trigger Daner again'). As an intermediary between the sea-

He would certainly rob and help the relatives of the prisoners-
They haven't earned badly at all.

An old document contains the message of English Besearchers in Livorno, that she married a Jew in 1652-sammentrafen, whose description on Supino pafite. Inter-
It is important that he made it clear to them how much he appreciated the attention.
"The admission of Jews to England is close to our hearts."

In any case, it is certain that Supino was among the Ver- in 1655.
Menasseh Ben Israel's dealings with Cromwell in London appeared, as Roth learned from letters from the embassy of the then Duke of Tuscany discovered. Supino was a sub-tan this prince, who also had an interest in the negotiations-boys in London and probably feared that in the event
In an agreement, wealthy Jews would exchange their country for England.
would.

This correspondence from the Tuscan legation in London, discovered by Roth, reveals that Supino, besides Menasseh Ben Israel held the negotiations in an excellent position.
led. |

He had, as we further learn from letters, become acquainted with all the important English personalities. We are therefore Roth agreed that Supino was a representative of world Jews in London.
was.

The interest throughout the known world at that time in this undertaking of world Jewry can also be seen from this-that Roth further correspondence regarding this matter with the Venezia-
The Dutch legation in London, in consultation with its government, has determined hatt").

On this occasion it is also mentioned that a Jew from Ant-Antwerp felt Cromwell's body to see if he was also from "Flesh and blood."

- 182) Roth: New Light p. 122.
- 183) Roth: New Light pp. 123, 126 ff.
- 186) Roth: New Light p. 127.

116

m Roth: New Light p. 121.

The finding that Supino was together with Menasseh Ben Israel-

His work is interesting insofar as it wasn't just about the Part of the Morranos in distress, who went to England wanted, but also those who were unmolested in Italy during this time living Jews.

Roth?) but has made an even greater discovery for us when he was in the former state archives of Venice While investigating other matters, he found randomly, a very old printed book by Menasseh Ben Israel document signed by hand, which was issued on the day of its Departure for London, sent to world Jewry and in It is written in Portuguese. Roth is surprised that Menasseh Ben Israel chose this language and not Hebrew. We But they see nothing in it, because at that time Portuguese the main business language among Jews. In addition as Roth also points out, that probably more Copies have been published in other languages. Since Menasseh Ben Israel himself mastered ten languages and had his own Given the printing works maintained, this assumption seems quite justified. produces. Finally, the content leaves no doubt that The letter was addressed to world Jewry. It reads as follows:

follows:

"The Haham Menasseh Ben Israel to all fellow citizens living in Asia and Europe members of the Jewish nation, especially those in the holy synagogues- Districts of Italy and Holstein. Peace be with you. It is known to all members of our nation how much I have longed for I have long striven to achieve the right of us to public Practicing our religion in the flourishing Commonwealth of England is granted. I am not only motivated by the good cause, but also initiated by honorable and wise individuals. It should be of interest to you. I should have become aware that I had already been informed twice shortly before departure They stood, however, on the advice of my relatives because of certain political reasons I have postponed the trip until conditions become more favorable. Therefore, I am now teaching you all again that I will act without regard for any not yet fully recovered from illness, only driven by zeal and the With burning love for my people, I set out today on the path to execution I have undertaken my project. May my actions be for the good of God and be our common salvation. Admittedly, certain individuals in service and are under the protection of the most benevolent princes and magistrates, There was little understanding for my constant worry. Nevertheless, I have but solely from the general well-being and the misfortune of our oppressed fellow race members who today find refuge and salvation in that most powerful To find a state to hope for, to let it guide me. I have also thought of the many souls. thought of those who have to pretend because of their religion and everywhere in Spain and France are eking out their existence. So I felt compelled to... to pursue a matter of such scope personally, even if it would cost my fortune. Through letters and loyal friends I am supported- This indicates that the English nation is no longer our hereditary enemy; much- Furthermore, she has abandoned her Catholic religion and as a result of our nation very much inclined towards oppression, so we can be hopeful. Since However, since nothing in this world is completely certain, I invoke all the holy Congregations, to flee most earnestly to God in their prayers, that I may grant grace in the Eyes of the kindest and most chivalrous Prince, His Royal Highness Lord Protector and his exceedingly wise council find freedom in May his country be preserved, so that we may likewise work for its well-being. to be able to pray to the highest God. Farewell!

Amsterdam, September 2, 5415 (that means according to our calendar) the 2nd of September 1655)..“

Signature of Menasseh Ben Israel.

18) Roth: New Light p. 114.

117

On the reverse side, in Italian, the following entry can be found: "Letter in which R. (probably Rabbi) Menasseh of Amsterdam told the holy communities about his journey informed England to obtain permission to establish a to obtain a synagogue where prayers can be offered" e).

The addressing and content leave no room for doubt. Doubts about whether Menasseh's message to the world Judaism. That he addressed himself especially to the Jewish Municipalities in Holstein (probably in Hamburg, Altona and Glückstadt) and Italy, shows that he is mainly from where they were supported. The former were primarily ab-branches of Amsterdam, therefore, bore more of a Morrano-character, while the latter were of a mixed nature. That the co-The work of Jewish circles in Italy was particularly active, as is evident. also from the presence of the leading Jew Supino in London.

From the content we see that the previous, but unsuccessful efforts of Menasseh Ben Israel to help world Jewry were-were known, as can be further seen from the fact that apparently some Jews who were doing well somewhere in the world, not quite agreed with his mission.

Finally, one should be able to rely on the circular letter for certainty. can conclude that it was not the first of its kind, but at least a similar one preceded it, as can be seen from his Idiom: "Now I will teach you all again..." emerges.

Roth*8') admits that Menasseh Ben Israel "as a protégé of the House Israel is active in a movement of international interest." he has become. However, he believes that this letter from Menasseh is only one certain conviction of his mission and self-importance has jumped. We cannot follow him in this. The world Jewtum was at work, Menasseh Ben Israel his spokesman.

Long and thorough negotiations are likely to be his
A journey had preceded it. World Jewry chose him as its leader.
Representative and requested to be kept informed;
Hence Menasseh's circulars. How completely the to-The fact that numerous wealthy Jews were in London with Menasseh Ben Israel.
World Jewry at work! It would be difficult for the Hebrews to believe-succeed in resisting the section of their history discussed here.
lay.

m Roth: New Light pp. 115/16.

187) Roth: New Light pp. 114, 115, 118

118

Menasseh Ben Israel as Spokesman of World Jewry

We saw above that the land in England was occupied by Jews-Friendly writings for Menasseh Ben Israel largely pre-was prepared. The Jewish side was primarily active through their spokesman, who in 1650 published a book in Spanish, in Latin and Hebrew, titled "Hope" Israel's "published"). In this book, Menasseh Ben Israel to the conclusion that the Jews according to the prophecies many sufferings had to endure, but the bloody Spanish and Portuguese persecutions among the worst in the would have been the entirety of Jewish history. However, it appears that... as if the return of the Jews to the Promised Land were not far off.
be. He deals very thoroughly with the problem of the ver-Lorenen ten tribes and holds the view that the dispersion the Jews after the discovery of America, except for England, completely-constantly.
He then recounts the names and stories of famous Jewish martyrs and tries to illustrate their high character traits to prove the Jews' affiliations. Finally, he also cites their great merits in politics, which she earned through her commitment had acquired them for the princes. He justifies these actions by stating that "that God had destined them for better things" a).
The latter was written specifically for England, in order to to prove what advantages one would gain from the Jews. It
It is therefore not at all surprising that Menasseh Ben Israel probably wrote this book with the help of then-influential figures.
wealthy Englishmen – among them probably Thomas Fuller and Nathaniel Holmes – published in English translation-light. Two editions of it quickly sold out.
Menasseh had a special request for his translation for England

An introduction was written, the contents of which were addressed "to the High Court, The Parliament of England and the Council of State" was addressed. He praised the successes of the English team of that time in the highest terms. Government. He was pleased to present the following remarks. to be able to dedicate myself to this and hope to gain the favor of the English government to win completely for his nation. The book was particularly well received in Puritan circles. The Earl of Middlesex sent Menasseh Ben Israel a public- _ A heartfelt thank-you letter with the heading: "To my dear brother, the Hebrew philosopher Menasseh Ben Israel'), On October 10- October 1651, shortly after the book's publication in England, We find a record of the State Council's proceedings, according to which the Lord General, Lord Whitelock, and other influential people were asked to discuss Menasseh Ben Israel's letter in a committee m) Roth: History of the Morranos p. 262 ff.

Menasseh Ben Israel: Hope of Israel, Sect. 32 p. 38.

1) Hyamson: History p. 151, Dr. Adler: Homage p. 33.
19%) Dr. Adler: Homage p. 34.

119

to read and answer). Whether this is the above-mentioned dedication by Menasseh Ben Israel is not certain, but seems doubtful, since the (related The text didn't necessarily require a reply. In any case, it goes This remark indicates that already at this point the English government was in contact with Menasseh. Some Months prior, there had also been in-depth negotiations between the Dutch and English governments are in progress. An English- A religious delegation led by a relative of Cromwell, Oliver Saint John made great efforts in Amsterdam, to bind both states most closely together through a solemn treaty- bind?®). Menasseh emphasizes that on the occasion of the presence of the English delegation in Amsterdam a formal invitation from the Jews, who also contacted the English They had accepted it. They were like princes with hymns and everything. only imaginable pomp in the synagogue of Amsterdam (have been caught!). Whether and what answer to the above-mentioned It is no longer possible to determine when Menasseh's letter was sent. However, it certainly wasn't of great importance, because As is well known, on October 9, 1652, i.e., one day earlier, the Navigation Act entered into force") Apparently, the regulations came into force. actions of the Jews with the English government as a result of the political tension between England and Holland is not right forward!®), One would assume that after the outbreak of war they in June 1652 they would even have stopped, because Menasseh was always- a citizen of the Netherlands and as such could rightfully and

The right not to negotiate with a government with which his country was at war. Far from it. For the Jew Menasseh, the War between England and Holland not even the slightest An obstacle, indeed he was even fundamentally willing to negotiate. to come to London. In the English National Archives you will find We recorded on November 22, 1652, that for Menasseh Ben Israel was issued a passport for travel to England since (). Almost a month later, we find the same approach again. Note with the explicit instruction to all in question Incoming officials, Menasseh is preferred as a welcome guest. Treating foreigners (ies). It's hard to understand that this Member of a state with a re- hostile policy towards his country Government is negotiating and must adopt such a course of action in war- These times can rightly be considered treason. However, Menasseh's planned trip was cancelled for some reason Basically, nothing came of it.

192) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1651 p. 472.

188) Gardiner Vol. II p. 80 ff.

1%) Menasseh Ben Israel: Humble Address, Introduction p. 3.
10 Gardiner Vol. II p. 82.

198) Gardiner Vol. II p. 124 ff.

197) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1651/52 p. 577.

1) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1652 p. 38.

120

In the spring of 1653, Cromwell had dissolved Parliament and convened a new one of his own accord, which in history known as Barebone Parliament and born from a Puritan spirit- It consisted of lichen, officers, and religious zealots. All of them Ernstes was presented by the representatives of this parliament. suggested that the State Council, in reference to the Jewish Sanhe- It should consist of 70 members.

The first meeting took place on July 5, 1653."

Menasseh must immediately put the Jewish question before the forefront. For him, so have brought about a favorably composed parliament, because already

On July 29, 1653, we find a letter from an English person- personality, according to which "various applications were submitted to expel the Jews in to grant trading licenses in the same way as in Holland"?%).

Apparently, however, it was desired that Menasseh Ben Israel his The matter should be represented in England itself. It can be found there. A new official entry was made on September 16, 1653, concerning Issuance of a passport for him?), The war between England

But Holland was still not over, and so Menasseh apparently, perhaps partly because of his on-due to his poor health, he again did not travel to England executed.

On April 5, 1654, England and Holland made peace, and on September 5 of the same year, the new Parliament convened, which had followed the barebones bike.
Duration and separated in January 1655).

Nevertheless, Menasseh must also address this parliament.
have. Although there are no records of this in the state archives.
before, but in his extensive writing: "Address" to the Parliament-
At the end of 1655, he speaks of "respectful requests".
to the last parliament"*) ,

It is certain that the aforementioned Jew Dormido, a brother-in-law
Menassehs, who had gone to England at the end of 1654.
Dormido submitted a request to the government for approval of the Jews in England, which still exists today. A closer look-Going there is unnecessary, as it doesn't bring anything special:").
Dormido was apparently chosen by Cromwell with the greatest willingness-received willingness. He immediately forwarded the request to the state-further advice and had strongly recommended that the application be approved.
(correspond and expedite its completion). The council followed but not Cromwell's instruction, and rejected the request with the laconically noted: "The council sees no reason to take any-which order to take" 2%),

3 Gardiner Vol. II p. 216 ff., Lingard Vol. VIII p. 398 ff.

e) Thurloe State Papers Vol. I p. 387.

m) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1653/54 p. 436.

22) Lingard Vol. VIII p. 436 ff.

2 Menasseh Ben Israel: Humble address A. III Reverse side.

2) British Museum Mss. Egerton 1049 fs. 6 ff.

2%) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1654 p. 393.

2) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1654 p. 407.

I2I

Thus, the Jewish question, initially under the leadership of Dormido, had failed. Jews and friends of Jews recognized that only one was able to prevail, namely Menasseh Ben Israel.

In October 1655, Menasseh arrived accompanied by three rabbis.
in London”), they were received with great ceremony.
and in a magnificent house opposite the new stock exchange in Strand housed on a street mostly frequented by English people important people and foreigners of rank used to live there.

How were the forces in England distributed when Menasseh arrived?
Cromwell strongly favored the Jews. The Council of State
The odds were not as favorable as expected.
as initially suspected. Despite Cromwell's dictatorial power However, public opinion could not be influenced in any of the negotiations.
overlooked, partly by influential Englishmen
The debate was conducted and was clearly against admitting Jews.
Rejection was expressed in speech and writing. Letters were written.
hold that confirm this attitude?®). As the reports of the Envoy Salvetti to the Grand Ducal Government of Tuscany to say, “very few of our fellow citizens agreed that They (the Jews) are building their nest in this country. It is a “matter,” he writes in another letter, “which generally encounters strong opposition, particularly from intellectual circles.
lichen, merchants and the mass of the population.”).
In 1655, a short pamphlet by a baptized Jew was published, a conversation between a Christian and a Hebrew dealt with religious matters, the Christian tum and especially the person of Jesus Christ were insulted, (while the Christian defended both). The book has no great value, but was probably suitable at that time to accommodate the to incite masses who were already all too willing to turn against the Jews flows. The best writing, however, only emerged during the course of the negotiations–
The lungs that came out were from Prynne, and we will get to that later.
I will return to this in more detail later. To what extent it was correct, that Cromwell intended to deprive the Jews of the customs revenues–
The lease can no longer be officially documented.
Violet, a contemporary of Cromwell and Charles II, believes that in any case, that the former was actually prepared to do so (zii). The people had just– if this fear existed and was therefore extremely upset.
Wolf describes this merely as unfounded.
A rumor spread to the detriment of the Jews. Exactly.
The same applies to the notification that the Jews had come to London to reiterate the purchase of the Try St. Paul's Cathedral and the Bodleian Library.

207) Hyamson: History p. 154, Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 36 ff.

208) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1655/56 pp. 51, 58.

200) Roth: New Light p. 128/29.

210) Isaiah, especially p. 36 ff.

211) Violet: Petition against the Jews pp. 2, 7.

But since it has already been clearly demonstrated above that such negotiations had in fact taken place earlier,

It is incomprehensible why one could not also do so at this time.

It was supposedly seriously discussed, especially since this had also been discussed previously. Special wishes together with the general goal of were presented with a residence permit,

Even the still-powerful royalist party did everything it could to prevent the spread of the to disrupt negotiations between Cromwell and the Jews. They

He himself, as we shall see below, had with Connections were established with them, particularly to protect their financial interests.

To provide support for the restoration of the kingdom-long).

However, this required that the Jews were not granted the right to settle under the rule of Cromwell, because the Royalists' return for the Jews after-

The financial assistance sought should be specifically for the event of return.

of the royal family in this privilege. So, if the

If Jews could achieve this goal already under Cromwell, it might be for them the support of the royalists no longer has the slightest interest

They offered. Although a reprehensible political game, it came about.

However, in 1655, the general anti-Jewish movement

Help.

Apparently, however, public opinion in its anti-

Jewish attitude was also influenced by a foreign power – Holland – supported, that if negotiations are concluded, the de-migration of wealthy Jews was feared, which the then-director-did not like seeing this, especially since the Dutch economy was contributing to this.

The time was largely in the hands of the Jews. Apparently, the Dutch envoy in London Menasseh during his visit there

He was invited to attend and questioned about his intentions.

He reports in a letter that "Menasseh visited him".

and assured him that he would do nothing for the Dutch not targeting Jews, but only those targeted by the Inquisition in Spain affected").

In contrast to the hostile attitude of the English people,

Menasseh practically only had Cromwell's support. The in Men who had spoken out in favor of the Jews in previous years

For the most part, they were unable to help them.

Roger Williams was in America, John Sadler was able to return

no longer in view of his now officially obtained position intervene in the matter as actively as before, and Hugh

Peters had hardly any influence left. Thurloe, Blake

But General Monk didn't want to deal with the merchants of spoil the city, which, with regard to the expected con-

The Jews were the fiercest adversaries.

22) Hyamson: History p. 155, Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 40.
313) Thurloe State Papers Vol. IV p. 333.

123

Public opinion had to be changed, however, since even Cromwell, as the course of events confirms, was not against was able to enforce the will of the people and grant approval. Menasseh and his advisors believed that a public Writing can bring about a change that divides it into two released in parts. The first is titled: "To His Royal Highness His Highness the Lord Protector of the Commonwealth of England, Scotland and Ireland. The Humble Writings of Menasseh Ben Israel, rabbi and doctor of physics, in favor of the Jewish-"German nation." The second part is entitled: "An Er-Clarification by Rabbi Menasseh Ben Israel to the Common-wealth of England regarding the motives for his journey to England."

Hyamson and Wolf?) maintain that Menasseh had already completed this pamphlet before his arrival in England had. The latter even believes that they already had it in the year 1651, with the collaboration of Thurloe, Cromwell's secretary, was worked on.

As the heading already shows, the first one is only three pages long Part addressed to Cromwell. Menasseh explains that God the Jews were most favored and continue to be so. that no harm would befall them. Kings like Pharaoh, Nebuchadnezzar, Antiochus Epiphanes and Pompey, who mistreated the Jews Those who acted would have been punished by God. The prophecy Abraham's words have been fulfilled in them: "I will bless those who "Bless you, and curse those who curse you." Taking into account the recent goodwill shown by powerful figures Menasseh was considered one of the least prominent figures among to ask the Hebrews Cromwell for the mercy to help the Jews in to allow England to bear the great and glorious name of God to worship in their own synagogues. He doubted it all the less. that they would be granted this right, even the pagan king of Egypt commissioned the construction of a temple-visited. The English envoys were in the Syn- The people of Amsterdam welcomed them with pomp and hymns, and the Jews therefore hoped that the old hatred from the time of the transformed the monarchy into benevolence and (the rigorous Laws against an innocent people were repealed. Undoubtedly, Cromwell's influence would ensure that they

I have shown so much respect and favor from the very beginning. On behalf of He therefore requested that the Jews be granted freedom of religion in England, so that they may then be responsible for the welfare and peace of the often could pray to the renowned and powerful Commonwealth. The structure and content of these statements are typically Jewish: To- Next, there will be some threats, because the approach is different. pointing to Pharaoh etc. not understanding, and then one goes into the sweetest flattery.

11%) Hyamson: History p. 154, Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 38.

124

The "Declaration to the Commonwealth" is considerably longer and It consists of 29 pages, including the preface.

In the introduction, he explains the motives for his mission. (Besides.) He wished for a general settlement in accordance with the freedom of religious practice. the Jews in England, so that they might in this way everywhere in the would be scattered around the world, a fact that accounts for the appearance their Messiah was necessary. After all, he would bring about the arrival of the Messiah. welcomed by Jews in England because he is so important to the English nation was very fond of him.

He introduces the main part of the declaration as follows:

"Three things make a foreign people within a country popular:

Profit that the country derives from this,

Loyalty to the ancestral princely houses and end- Especially nobility and purity of blood. All these things were to be found in the Jewish nation."

In his view, the whole world was interested in profit. most of all, and consequently he wanted to start doing that. Through their expulsion from their land, the Jews were punished by God. The natural instinct for making money has been given. Since- The trade in diamonds, dyes, wine and other goods would be at stake. Their valuable products are largely in their hands, and if they came to England, they would bring their capital and they bring their business connections, which leads to growth in the trade-related, which in turn generated tax and customs revenues would increase. It is true that the Jews possessed great wealth. had acquired them, but this was only through Providence. God makes it possible for them to gain favor through accumulated treasures. found in the eyes of rulers and peoples.

Menasseh then explains in detail that the Jews in almost all countries of the world are represented through their trade. They enjoy even some who received high honors and were awarded them by their princes-ennobles.

Compared to all other foreigners, the Hebrews were therefore of such a great advantage because they never left the country again, while other foreign peoples only stayed for a shorter time and then take the money they earned back to their homeland. would take. But the Jews had no fatherland and therefore remained. with their acquired wealth, wherever they were.

This is not the place for the corrupting influence of profiteering. to condemn the Jews to the detriment of their country, only one may be certain- It is argued that this should be done by Menasseh in favor of a The reason given for the settlement of the Jews was at least in the same Measurements can be used as a counter-argument.

He titled the second chapter of the declaration: "How loyal the nation of the Jews" 21). He explained, among other things, that already in ancient Egypt and Rome the Jews were loyal citizens. Especially with regard to the latter, this statement seems like mockery, for "The Roman imperial period is filled with a chain of Jewish Uprisings and riots instigated by Jews everywhere ends of the empire"), Those they had in Alexandria and The uprisings caused by the Palestinian uprisings have been known for a long time. They had been. In 1137, they sparked a rebellion in Frank-rich, which led to terrible bloodshed. The same er- It was used in Persia in the years 1138 and 1174. A revolt The Jewish uprising against the government in Spain broke out in 1157. out?!"), Many more of the protests they had instigated could be traced back to While historical facts may be cited, the above points may be of interest. wise enough for our purpose.

8215) Menasseh Ben Israel: Declaration p. 11 ff.

125

Finally, he addresses three accusations that have always been made. These charges would be raised against the Jews again. about alleged usury, infanticide, and their attempts to incite Christians to convert to the Jewish faith.

The notion that Jews are usurers is only partially true. The Spanish and Portuguese Jews rejected all usury.

Regarding the undoubtedly superior character of its breed- He probably doesn't need to spread his enthusiasm any further.

His task had already been set by Christian writers, especially- the Dutchman Henry Jessey in his book "The Glory of Jehuda and Israel" (1653 in Dutch) and through Edward Nicholas has been removed from the medical records.

On October 30, 1655, Menasseh waited in front of the entrance of the meeting room of the State Council and asked that certain books about- to be allowed to hand out :), which are probably his. It was a pamphlet that was published around this time. The Jews and their friends experienced a [something] with the brochure. bitter disappointment. They were by no means able to win the public prize. They didn't change anyone's opinion, but only brought more opponents. on the agenda. Various pamphlets, such as "Case of the Jews stated" (statement about the case of the Jews), were un- shortly thereafter issued by the opposing side. Prynne has In the foreword to his book, he gives us a vivid description of the Public sentiment was given.

"On my way to Lincoln's Field," we learn, "came I passed seven or eight soldiers. I heard them shouting loudly. said: "We must all become Jews now, and nothing will change." "for the army to remain." Not far from them stood a Number of poor people. They called out to each other: "They are already in "Devil transformed us, and we must now become Jews." Prynne he then goes on to say that he was so dismayed by these impressions, that he immediately decided to reveal the truth of the Jewish history to publish history in England based on documents.

17) Leslie S. 130/31.

218) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1655 p. 402.

See Fried, p. 111.

126

He therefore spent the entire night working through the relevant material."

The negotiations continued, and the State Council had apparently soon with the writings presented by Menasseh dealt with. In the government documents we already find on November 13th. 1655 a brief summary of the various applications Menassehs to Cromwell. Apparently, besides flying, he also In writing, a particularly short request was submitted, because apart from We will hear more about the privileges demanded in the scripture. further wishes of the Jews. They request the establishment of a A trusted person to whom they hand over their passports and who will then receive them. to be able to swear the oath of allegiance in a timely manner. Finally, they demand it for a separate jurisdiction according to Mosaic law."

The State Council apparently considered these proposals to be unacceptable. It was argued that the Jews are trying to convert English people to their religion. One fears— It also had a negative influence on public morality, because the views and laws of the Jews regarding marriage and that divorce is a bad example. Furthermore, one had serious concerns regarding their unscrupulousness in handing out oaths. Consequently, it was deemed urgently necessary to swear to them to prohibit and severely punish any defamation of Christianity to punish them if they attempted to convert Christians to Judaism to convert them. Under no circumstances should they even approach the to be entrusted with the lowest public office. Finally, one must... Should they be prohibited from keeping Christian domestic servants?). It is a shame that the reasoning behind the latter isn't available. The demand has been made.

The Whitehall Conference

On November 14th, four members met under the chairmanship of the Lord President together to form a committee to examine to implement Menasseh's applications and the necessary measures to name potential candidates?). Already on the names of the 28 members were announced in the following days. public, among whom were almost all the important people there— were located at that time:). As one of the highest officials, he was Lord President Henry Lawrence with four members of the appointed to the State Council. Since legal issues also need to be resolved At that time, they had the most famous lawyers, the Lord Chief

m) Prynn: Foreword to his work "Short Demurrer".

ne) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1655/56 p. 15.

221) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1655/56 pp. 15, 16.

222) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1655/56 p. 20.

2) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1655/56 p. 23.

127

Justice Sir John Glynne and William Steele, Chief Baron of the Exchequer, appointed to the committee, distinguished diplomats such as Walter Strickland and people of Cromwell's old guard, such as John Lamb— Bert and William Sydenham were also called in. The merchant community of the City of London had its mayor—masters and the richest and most powerful merchants, such as William Kiffen and Owen Rowe were sent. The clergy were with 16 participants, among whom were the were the most important preachers and teachers of theology. Names like Dr. Owen, known for his advocacy for Religious freedom, John Caryll, commentator on the Puritan Bible, and Dr. Whitchcote as representative of the University of Cambridge were among them. We also find Daniel Dyke and Philip Nye, the champion of equality?)).

The first meeting was scheduled for December 4, 1656. set. Apparently, non-binding [decisions] had already been made in November. This was preceded by discussions between the government and Menasseh. The public was only aware of the events in these days. Whitehall, the English government district and meeting place, be-busy. With the participation of the entire population, it was opened Cromwell held the first meeting, at which the already mentioned Menasseh's ten motions were read out." Whether at this Ge- The opportunity also includes the willingness of the Jews to grant permission. The request to pay £200,000 was discussed, and it can be... can no longer be determined. In any case, it can be found in one work, published at the end of the 17th or beginning of the 18th century The following message was received:

"Menasseh Ben Israel ... made the following suggestions to the Protector, for whose acceptance the Jews no less than £200,000 bids").."

Then follow Menasseh's seven proposals. In the next paragraph The writer then continues:

"When these proposals had been read out, the Protector said: ... From this version, one might conclude that the money- The offer was also among the proposals and therefore included ver- was read. Be that as it may, it is at least interesting that the The writer conveyed the money offer from the Jews. It is to be expected that the publication of this fact will be welcomed by the Jews are described as false or unlikely. By It should therefore be stated from the outset that even Wolf did this Work as an authentic source for the description of the Whitehall- He used the conference. Had he considered this tradition untrue? If he had seen it, he would surely have expressed how did he do it on other occasions too??"),

"

- 224) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel S. ge Hyamson: History pp. 157/58.
- 225) Harleian Miscellany = VII p. 6
- 226) Richard Burton S.

The presumed accuracy of this information can also be inferred from the fact that a comparison of Burton's statements about the Course of the Whitehall Conference with the official report of the Government achieves perfect agreement – a further-
"Proof of the reliability of this source".

Furthermore, Burton was a contemporary of Cromwell, and it is there-
It is quite possible that he witnessed the events in the negotiations.
has experienced the room firsthand.

However, there are other traditions from which one can learn the
One can conclude that Robert Burton's statements are correct.

A namesake of his, Thomas Burton, who lived around 1650 emerged politically and became a member of the Parliament in 1656.

The selection of ments"*), has given us the same representation.

In his four-volume work "Parliamentary Diary"

We also find that Menasseh received £200,000 for accepting his (Would have offered suggestions?). Furthermore, it can be found elsewhere.

I would also like to add the following point:

"He (Cromwell) had a promise of £200,000 from the Jews, in the event that he were to secure their admission...

what a sweet morsel he would have swallowed to show his gratitude demonstrate, if not through arguments, sharp as steel, which would have been destroyed).."

Finally, a letter from the year 1656 has been preserved, in which

The writer comments on the negotiations as follows:

If he (Cromwell) rejects the Jews, it is only for that reason.

Reasons because they refuse to pay the money for their admission.

pay, as long as they are not compelled to do so by the authority of the Par-laments is guaranteed).."

After the proposals of the Jews were read out, Cromwell took the word and concluded his brief remarks with the two fundamental questions, "whether it is legally permissible to- the Jews allow and, if so, under what conditions conditions').

Wolf claims that this question was already decided in the affirmative on the first day of

He cites, among other things, the following as justification:

termination of his claim on the already mentioned government-

Announcement about the conference. All his sources say

But nothing about that. The conclusion cannot be drawn otherwise either.

taken out of context. We are therefore the

The view that his point of view is wrong. Apart from the over-

Regarding deliveries, it seems hardly possible to us that even the most capable

Lawyers were able to make a decision without further ado.

fall, especially since their later statements are of a detailed nature

Dictionary of National Biography Vol. III p. 469.

29) Thomas Burton Vol. I p. 309.

231) Fletcher p. 230.

232) Nicholas Papers Vol. III p. 255

Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel © 45 ff.

Nine Jews conquer England 129

Studies attest to this and are supported by precise sources. Finally Our opinion is shaped by a newspaper article.

confirms that "nothing has been done at the moment, but the

The entire matter will only be discussed in detail next Friday.

"Should be dealt with"?), Also Wolf's reference to Prynne cannot convince us otherwise. Although the latter mentions in his preface, that according to the communication from Mr. Nye the Legal experts believe there is no law preventing it.

This of course assumes that it will already be on December 6th or before.

An opinion on this matter has been expressed. However, we believe that that this is merely a non-binding statement by Mr. Nye as Minister was mentioned during preparations for the next meeting.

After all this, it seems rather as if the discussions

This question will only be raised in the next round of negotiations.

were those who were on the 7th, 12th and probably also on the 14th of December took place. In what order the speakers of the individual events-

The presence of the various echelons of society is not evident from the traditions.

Visibly. The aforementioned reports (on this subject) indicate only a general picture, while the relevant

Newspaper reports usually only state the fact of the trial.

report:"). According to Cromwell's question, it can be assumed that that in fact on December 7, 1655, the second negotiating sessiondays, initially the question was discussed whether the admission of the Jews were subject to any laws. The Chief Baron

Steele, as one of the lawyers present, gave a very detailed report.

detailed report on the history of the Jews in England. He began with the period before Normandy-conquest and explained that they already existed in times

Constantine the Great suffered harsh treatment would have. He then gives an overview of the History up to the year 1290 and in particular a notice concerning the Statute of Judaism and the expulsion decree. On His legal opinion follows the conclusion of his remarks.

Agreement with Sir John Glynne: "There would be no law that forbids the Jews from returning to England, and so demands

One would assume that they would initially be allowed and tolerated. Should

If any adverse effects arise from this, these could be addressed.

bind. Likewise, in such a case, all considerations could be disregarded.

disregarded and measures are planned which Blasphemy against the Lord Jesus Christ, as well as disregard for the law and to prevent the seduction of others?).

The reasons for their view have not been passed down to us. We However, this can be deduced from Prynne's contrary evidence.
assume that they merely consider the relevant Jewish laws as 234) Mercurius Politicus No. 286 of December 4, 1655.

#55) Mercurius Politicus No. 287 of December 7, 1655, Public Intelligencer No. 10
of December 7, 1655, No. 11 of December 12, 1655.

236) Marielin Miscellany Vol. VII p. 618/19, Richard Burton p. 205 ff., Wolf: Menasseh
[in Israel] p. 49.

130 considered given by Edward I and not simultaneously by Parliament Parliament. In such a case, however, the effectiveness would the laws ceased to exist with the death of Edward I. Prynne is attempting to prove that it is not a simple matter not a law of King Edward I, but rather one such, which was adopted by an act of parliament and therefore, according to the English Constitution, only by the-

"Can the same process be reversed?"

After the conference considered the first question settled,
It is likely that members of the clergy were asked for their statement, since they were the most numerous and one can judge them based on their past pro-Jewish affiliations.
The position was expected to provide a favorable environment.

But one should be bitterly disappointed, because just like the Lawyers also demanded numerous [requirements] in the event of their admission.
Conditions restricting the freedom of Jews. That also the lawyers did not approve unrestricted admission, verthe Jewish historians in question are also involved in the process of... share?").

The clergy's attitude is probably quite a significant part of the expert opinion of a very learned man, Thomas Barlow, the then librarian of the Bodleian-
He was appointed to the library. He was considered extremely capable. in logic and philosophy), which is probably why he considered particularly suitable for drafting the expert opinion. Later He was Bishop of Lincoln.

The work in question was only printed in 1692-appeared. However, there should be no doubt that it was-
It was already written at the end of 1655. This is evident from a foreword by the publisher, according to which he this and other Barlow's works based on his handwritten manuscripts
I have made public. His expert opinion on the legality of the personality conceived in the past turbulent times, when the Jews petitioned Cromwell for their readmission to England had applied?).
The admission of Jews was granted at the request of a prominent figure.

With regard to the care that Thomas Barlow took in the selection—has used work and the statement of the clergy
Regarding the Jewish question at that time, it is worthwhile to take a brief look at... to provide an overview of the expert opinion.

First, the author examines the admission of Jews from
The position of the state and the church.

Regarding the former, in his view it was first necessary to establish—ask whether there are currently any laws in force against their settlement are. Unlike the lawyers, he affirms this, but adds the

#37) Prynne Vol. I p. 4 Preface, Vol. II p. 135.

238) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 49, Hyamson: History p. 159.

23) Levy: Barlow p. 152.

24) Barlow: Case, preface p.1.

ge 131

Council to repeal them if the public good so requires. Whether this is the case, he does not wish to investigate, since this decision is a matter the government?"). He pointed out, however, that the Jews in
In the Middle Ages, the crown raised enormous sums of money through taxes and They brought in compulsory levies. Furthermore, they were before the year was badly treated in 1290, so that it is perhaps I recommend that by admitting Jews, the injustice can now be rectified.
close"?), 1

For him as a Christian, it was essential to determine whether it was un—
It is honorable, detrimental, and scandalous to exclude Jews from a Christian—to admit a member of the state. He denies this for six reasons.

Jesus Christ and Christian merchants had spoken between Jews lived, and according to the laws of Christian countries, they were always Provisions for living together with them are in place:").

He also does not find the immigration of the Jews to be reasonable—Partly for Christianity. A conversion to Judaism.

In his view, it is merely associated with worldly disadvantages.
"connects, since Jews are everywhere only the slaves of princes."
Barlow finally believes that there will be no scandals of any kind.
What kind of situation would arise from the admission of the Jews??).

However, during the approval process, care must be taken to ensure that not any circumstances would be created or tolerated which "violated the law of nature." According to the commandment of

But Moses would be the things that fall under this category – Usury, polygamy and marriage of sister – permitted ). In order to convert the Jews, it is necessary to talk to them. to come into contact with each other. Therefore, there would be nothing unchristian about in letting them come into the country.""").

They should not be given too much freedom, as should their Rights would have to be restricted by the state. Even earlier This has been observed throughout history, and therefore... The following conditions are recommended):

"1. They should not be allowed to do anything that is against violates the law of nature.

2. It should not be tolerated that they engage in anything vicious or Saying godless things against Jesus Christ and the Gospel.

3. Consent should never be given to the children to circumcise Christians or to convert Christians to their religion convert.

4. They shall not be permitted to hold any office or dignity in the Christian community

241) Barlow, pp. 4–7.

22) Barlow, pp. 7–9.

24) Barlow, pp. 9–13.

2% Barlow pp. 13–21.

245) Barlow, pp. 21–34.

24) Barlow, pp. 34–45.

2% Barlow, pp. 45–65.

24) Barlow, pp. 66–73.

132

5. They shall not be permitted to represent a Christian or his affair in a proceeding or dispute between a Jew and to bring Christians before a Jewish court...

6. They are under no circumstances permitted to marry Christians.

easa

8. Polygamy will not be tolerated.

ee

10. They are permitted to restore their old synagogues
They can set up new ones, but they are not allowed to build any new ones.

11. They are not permitted to employ Christian servants, wet nurses, or Having midwives.

12.

13. They were not allowed to dress in accordance with the Christians but had to wear different clothing, so that they could be identified as Jews.

14. They may neither practice medicines nor dispense medicines to persecute Christians.

15. They were not allowed to belong to the Roman militia.

16. Since the Jews are the greatest usurers in the world and believe, justly take the highest usurious interest from us Christians– men to be able to (even up to 100% if possible), so it is only
It is right and just that they should be subject to special restrictions in this regard.
would be killed and they would not be allowed to learn more from us.
demand, as we take from one another according to the law may.

17. They should sometimes be allowed to engage in friendly debates about the truth of the gospel and not stubbornly rejecting all means of conversion."

| After Thomas Barlow referred to another old law in England from the pre-Norman period has pointed out, concludes | He presented his statements as follows?*) : ö

"I wish that the Supreme Magistrate would grant them this."
Conditions could allow ... and under this condition
I – and I believe everyone else – am happy to help their to agree to readmission."

It is interesting that Barlow, after very thorough studies on Restrictions regarding the rights of Jews have been introduced, which partly correspond to our current views– That's right. Here again, we find the demand of...
Prohibition of mixed marriages and employment of Christian ministers offered in Jewish households.

One can imagine that this carefully crafted good-
The attention of a recognized scholar makes a great impression on the

2) Barlow, pp. 74/75.

133 clergy has made, and so it is not surprising that the vast majority of conference members have taken this trip-guided tours followed.

Therefore, when the individual members of the clergy were called upon
When asked to give their opinions, some even came forward who who completely rejected the admission of Jews. Their main reason
The reason for this was that through contact with the Jews they had
They feared discrimination against Christianity.

Lord Lawrence and General Lambert, mindless tools Cromwell's, spoke vehemently against it."

Some wanted the Jews settled there because they only traded and not, for example, engaged in agriculture. Consequently, one could through Their approval increases imports and thus through the larger Offer to reduce the prices of imported goods to arrive. It may be that through the expected Jewish-Swiss trade, the turnover and earnings of one's own merchants
It would go back, but that's something one has to accept.
especially since hopes for the conversion of the Jews are still harbored.
could be!).

Mr. Nye, Prynne's acquaintance, and Mr. Godwin expressed the same opinion. They stated that the current
I must somehow support persecuted Jews everywhere.
The Morranos were treated particularly badly, and as a result-They should be allowed to come to England to to conduct trade in peace and quiet. "Perhaps it would also be God is very pleased when we show them our favor."
Joseph Caryl believes that Jews should have been treated earlier as un-I was treated quite badly. This misdeed must still be considered a sin.
burden England. With consideration for their descendants, it would be Therefore, it is recommended to establish a ge- by accepting the Jews know how to bring about balance.

As you can see, most members of the conference were not in favor Unconditional admission. Cromwell and his friends
They therefore had to try to enlist the help of known Jewish people.
friendly people bring about a change in mood-lead to. There was still a distinct possibility that the Merchants of the city who had not yet been heard of form a majority with the-

would form those clergymen who are in favor of a complete rejection had entered.

Cromwell therefore appointed new, more experienced members before the third meeting given men, among them Hugh Peters, who formerly significantly had stood up for the Jews. To everyone's surprise, But Peters has also changed his mind in the meantime. He describes—nete the Jews as a "selfish nation who care little about their did they disregard their own principles?). Apparently, Cromwell and w? Harleian Miscellany Vol. VII p. 620, Richard Burton p. 204.

251) Harleian Miscellany Vol. VII p. 621, Richard Burton p. 205.

22) Harleian Miscellany Vol. VII p. 617/18, Richard Burton p. 208/09.

253) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 50.

134

The Jews had little hope of success after this last meeting. Thurloe, the great friend of the Jews, wrote on December 17, 1655 to Henry Cromwell, the Commanding General in Ireland, a very interesting letter in which he made the above statements confirmed that the clergy either oppose any and all requests for Permission was granted, or only in a settlement subject to restrictions. wanted to agree. "The outcome," he continues, "is uncertain." I can't tell you anything yet, but I tend to assume, that nothing will happen" 2%), Cromwell had ordered that another meeting take place—found.

Interlude: Prynne, the anti-Jew, and his activities

Meanwhile, public opinion was even more against the Jews were attacked. Prynne had worked day and night. the first part of his historical work about the Jews in England completed. If one reads this scientific book—Given his ambition, one must ask how he managed to do it within to gather the material within a maximum of 8–10 days, to to edit and publish. A longer period of time has given him "was absolutely unavailable," because he began the Book on December 6th, and it was already published immediately before the (published at the meeting on December 18, 1655). It is still available today. as a standard work for the history of the Jews of England up to to look at this period, and we also have many suggestions extracted from it. None of the Jewish historians have, except—who raises the accusation of inaccuracy against Prynne can.

In view of the importance of his book and the unusual circumstances surrounding its completion, it seems necessary-- agile, to hear something very briefly about him.

William Prynne was born in 1600. He studied in Oxford and later became a barrister at Lincoln's Inn. He was but not only interested in legal studies, but showed an early particular inclination towards spiritual and religious subjects. historical matters. He denounced what he considered unhealthy things. contemporary phenomena with the greatest intensity and came to this conclusion Weisse clashed with the royal family. After a year in prison In 1634 he was sentenced to a heavy fine and life imprisonment. sentenced to an elongated dungeon. His academic titles were revoked. He was denied the position, and his name was removed from the list of barristers. Despite everything, Prynne had not lost heart. They allowed...

254) Thurloe State Papers Vol. IV p. 321.

255) Prynne Vol. I Preface p. 1.

256) Prynne Vol. II Preface p. 1.

he continued writing in prison, and he succeeded in the ver- Publication of his writings against the then-current system. He He paid dearly for it. One after another, he was flogged in shame. He plowed his ears off and painted the book on his cheeks. The letters SL are burned in. These letters are the English words for "SL". Initial letters for the words "Seditious Libel" (seditious- (Italian slander). His entire fortune was also... moved in.

The successful revolution brought Prynne freedom. On April 20, 1641, the so-called "Long Parliament" declared its The conviction was overturned, and he was placed back in all his previous positions. Rights with the promise to relieve him of all his suffering- damage.

He continued to act as a champion for the rights of Parliament. During the disputes between the army and In parliament in 1657, he remained loyal to the latter and became Arrested by the army for his activities. After three years- After his imprisonment, he was released and immediately resumed his activities. He continued his fight for his political views. He was given the Cato of his age, as he was called??"),

We have already heard that Prynne through his talks with Nye and through the anti-Jewish sentiment of the people to The publication of his work was initiated. Its main purpose was, (the English population about the true history to enlighten the Jews:"), which he succeeded in doing extraordinarily well.

His success is likely due to the fact that he considered it Lawyer understood, with reference to numerous sources to let the facts speak for themselves.

Prynne points out in his book that, apart from from the Jewish laws dating from the reign of Edward I. There are still decrees from Queen Elizabeth that exist. made Jewish settlement impossible. The content of the The laws enacted against the Jesuits at that time were also directed against the Jews. Although they were not explicitly listed, But this was because there were hardly any Jews in the country at that time. would have been.

Numerous laws made it possible for any governmental authority, whether king or parliament, to the duty to uphold the fundamental principle: "The "The welfare of the people is the highest commandment," to be upheld. The to- However, allowing the Jews to leave would contradict this principle, because the The history of the Jews, as presented by him, showed that with their immigration, the well-being of the people, and security The security of the state would be endangered :).

But even now the Hebrews everywhere showed the same dis- They're like in old England. They're counterfeiters, coin-snatchers.

257) Dictionary of National Biesen Vol. XVI pp. 432-437.

28) Prynne Vol. I Preface p. 5.

255) Prynne Vol. IS

136

circumcisers, usurers, exploiters and swindlers, as well as their trading methods being the worst imaginable?"

They have gone down in history as notorious rebels. and would therefore be dangerous to any state. Even that The Old Testament shows that they themselves in their own kingdom always the most dissatisfied, rebellious and lawless people were. How could such a nation be received in England? The government's belief that it can improve them is absolute. ridiculous 7°).

The conversion of the Jews to Christianity does not mean anything at all It is not an advantage, but a danger, as they would then only more easily... could indulge in bad habits. From the already completed Publications would reveal that the Jews (the English) already abused and defrauded. By how much more would they they do it after their approval:").

Prynne then gives a very detailed list of the things that are in the historically documented expulsions of Jews in all World. If one considers these crimes justified by their actions Once one considers the actions, one cannot understand them. that they would now be allowed back in England.

"What shadow of piety, wisdom, providence, justice, Law and reason can possibly justify their readmission. give? (With the exception of the argument of dishonest, secret, dirty bribes or under-the-table profits, through which they usually sneak into such places after they (were banished.) Understanding this is beyond my humble understanding. Ability, especially at a time when we are dealing with Englishmen are so overcrowded that some of them are considering colonies to build in other parts of the world. transplant greedy Jews when they return to their former place of residence places would be tired of" 258).

Prynne then refers to classical antiquity, in which Men like Lycurgus and Plato warned states against letting foreigners in to incorporate into their community. It would also be beneficial for the English The nation is dangerous for letting the Jews into the country, because – so it is argued He went on to say, literally – "we must take into account that Every nation has its own customs and traditions, which it shares with-brings and does not change with the climate when they move to another Land is coming, which is why there is a great danger that through absorption such immigrants bring their old customs and laws to new, foreign places will be changed. Well, what is more likely to cause an uproar than the change-rung: of laws and customs... Which is therefore more dangerous, as the admission of foreigners into our community? The Philosophy asserts that opposites do not exist in the same place. can live there; but foreigners are largely enemies of the citizens, 260) Prynne Vol. I p. 57.

251) Prynne Vol. I p. 64.

282) Prynne Vol. I p. 72/73.

263) Prynne Vol. I pp. 73–76.

with whom they associate... The Jews themselves, he continues, They excluded foreigners from their own country. Thus, they she did not allow the Samaritans to live among them, who then in the part they inhabit, with the same prohibition for the Jews would have answered. "Why shouldn't we, on the grounds of..." These statements exclude those foreign Jews who are so- are separated from us, both in their customs and traditions, as well as in their laws and their religion..." It is therefore a Madness, the Jews, with whom their ancestors had such bad experiences-experiences in this regard, in England increase").

It is admirable with what clarity Prynne predicted the Jewish development in the various countries and on what grounds he opposed the settlement in has spoken out against his country. In his view, Jews are Strangers, completely opposed to the inhabitants of the country, whose customs and laws they infused with their Asian ideas and therefore completely distorted. What depths of truth and prophetic words!

According to the law of November 24, 1655, it was stipulated that "to use all appropriate means to maintain the peace of the nation" to secure and prevent further unrest. The approval of the Jews at that time, as the people were generally torn apart and is dissatisfied and the greatest unanimous disapproval and rejection- Showing shyness towards Jews probably offers the greatest Cause to disturb the peace of the nation and future new unrest to rest and incite riots... The Jews themselves are too the most significant flares of rebellion in all times being, both in their own country and elsewhere, where they were scattered..., so that their readmission in England is diametrically opposed to the purpose of this law. must... 205),

He further pointed out that, according to a recent The law forbade the followers of the former king from [being] to engage in any public activity. Foreigners, Jews, They wanted to grant all these rights precisely because they were Jews, But not the other Englishmen who had the misfortune to to serve the former king?®),

Furthermore, a law was announced that the government authorized to expel former supporters of the king from the country to indicate when they endanger the security of the state. From this The law already exists – whether rightly or wrongly, that remains to be seen. remain – has been used to “exit at the same time– to invite in foreign unbelieving Jews – ...to peace and more dangerous to the welfare of the country than those who are banished 264) Prynne Vol.

265) Prynne Vol.

266) Prynne Vol.

gan

dant Ped panat

unu

£

R

should be... -, even contrary to an explicit old judgment and edict concerning their permanent banishment. ..)." At the end of his first volume, Prynne then addresses the Reasons differed, which the friends of the Jews in favor of their admission cited.

They claim the Jews would likely be admitted if the Jews were admitted to a lower- In England, people are very easily converted. This is due to the fact that... For various reasons, which Prynne elaborates on in detail, it's nonsense. There are also so many pagans that one would first have to deal with. should convert to Christianity. But even if one were to convert others The opinion is that it would not be necessary to bring about the general conversion of the Jews by being permitted to settle in England- not only do they have an effect, but this can also be achieved through the deployment of c He could reach a religious clergyman. Furthermore, the Jew had never been seen before. I converted to Christianity out of conviction, but This step was usually taken for purely material reasons. Moreover, even a baptized Jew would remain in his entire demeanor still a Hebrew?").

Another one from the Jews and their friends for the settlement The reason given was "that they were of great opposition to the state." current and future profit, money and increasing trade will bring."

So far, only their money had opened the doors to the Jews in the various countries, as had previously been the case in England That was the case. This also shows "that we love their money more than their or our own soul." One should under no circumstances... Allowing the Jews to leave is therefore necessary because they probably have large numbers would pay for it. "The admission of Jews to England- land and other countries," we continue to hear, "has never the general prosperity of the inhabitants and the republic promotes it, but weakens it through their usury and abuses. deceptions, through coin theft, 'through the seizure of goods' all kinds of unlawful appropriation of property belonging to the residents The trade they operated became such an unbearable burden, never quiet until they were banished... The trade of our The nation has flourished more since its expulsion than ever before. Re-admission will benefit our English merchants and others to displace and ruin the inhabitants of our country in order to Jews and a few powerful people who shared in their plunder and to share their ill-gotten gains, to enrich themselves..." Prynne Then it shows how to improve trade without the Jews. could?®),

With the observation that the Antichrist came with the intrusion of the Jewish spirit into world, Prynne concludes his precise Statements supported by documents.

267) Prynne Vol. I p. 88/89.

266) Prynne Vol. I pp. 89–99.

20) Prynne Vol. I p. 101.

139

All in all, a book that deserves to be considered one of the first scientifically grounded works in the fight against the Jews to be brought out of obscurity. It is quite astonishing–how Prynne's predictions for the development of the Jewish The system applies. History has proven how the Jews and a small part of the population at the expense of the general public have enriched.

Continuation of the Whitehall Conference

Prynne's work was a resounding success upon publication. The people were shaken by the facts – especially since it was already considerably hostile to Jews before –, as the session of December 12, 1655 shows. That “the hall was–crowded with an undisciplined horde of violent Jews–opponent, armed with the Book of Prynne” *), could neither this can be determined from the traditions, nor is it likely that this will be the case will correspond to the facts.

There is much to suggest that the meeting was particularly bitter. has been, on the other hand Wolf 71) has from the various over–deliveries constructed a course of negotiation that did not include any–if joining is possible. He apparently wanted to. to show that Cromwell had the last word despite the fiercest opposition retained and not only thundered down the opponents, but also... logically refuted. In any case, a documented account. Information about the process is not available, and therefore we can only reproduce individual phases from it.

Perhaps – no one knows for sure – on that day also Menasseh's friend, Mr. Henry Jessy”), the word genommen. It must have been a big surprise to everyone, that he too was by no means in favor of the unconditional settlement of Jews. Rather, he only wanted them in certain, to allow immigration to port cities that were derelict during this period. Furthermore, they should impose double tariffs on imports and even on Exports pay:”).

Apparently, the merchants of the city also came that day to those who argued that immigration only brought about the Jews as foreigners are enriched, but on the other hand, there- which would result in the impoverishment of the masses." In particular- Apparently, Sir Christopher Pack, one of the most influential Merchants of the city, like no other, were against the Jews. spoken").

270) Hyamson: History p. 160

271) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 51 ff

275) Hyamson: History p. 160.

273) W.: Life and Death of Jessy p. 67/68

274) Robert Burton p. 209/10, Harleian Miscellany Vol. VII pp. 6-20.

25) Parliamentary Diary Vol. II p. 308/09

140

Undoubtedly, Cromwell also took the floor during the negotiations and initially emphasized that he supported the admission of I don't want to make it dependent on any conditions. On the other hand, it would be He was very keen to bring the Jews into the country in order to Why convert England, since only true Christianity is found there? tum preached, which was particularly suitable. He should actually have He expects the clergy to give him sensible advice. would have. Then Cromwell turned to the merchants, who always had pointed out that the Jews at least gave them one would deprive them of part of the trade they control. Spence then dismissed Sir Paul Rycaut, who was present at the meeting. We will continue reporting as follows:

"It is true," says Cromwell, "they (the Jews) are the most common and despised of all peoples." He then insulted the Jews quite heartily, and after he had said everything contemptible and He continued, saying, "Can you really..." fear that these vile, despised people are capable of to have dominance in trade and to gain more prestige- sneeze as the merchants of England, the most distinguished and highest- Respected in the world? ..).."

Wolf quoted this part of the speech as follows:"):

"...He then turned to the merchants and kept coming back..." the sarcastic reference to the accusations leveled against the Jews- returned. 'You say they are the meanest and most despised-

The stature of all peoples. Assuming that this were the case – what would then out of your fears? Can you really believe that these common, despised people can have the upper hand. ten? .. Then the same text follows as the one above from Spence. reproduced. Wolf gives his version the official endorsement. in Harleian Miscellany, Robert Burton: Judaeorum Memoria-bilia and Spence's Anecdotes. The first two places sweep however completely over this part of Cromwell's speech: "e), so that Wolf could only have gotten his text from Spence. Between his However, there is a difference between the actual text and Wolf's reproduction. major difference: while according to the former, Cromwell himself the Jews actually as a very evil and abhorrent– He referred to them as a diges people, but according to Wolf's version, he did not. not insulted of their own accord, but merely the view of Merchants were accused of using the Jews as evidence for his argument. Why did Wolf make this change, leaving Hyamson unchanged? "Took over," done? Was he uncomfortable that the Cromwell described him as the greatest friend of the Jews with such bitter words. found about the Hebrews?

ne) Spence p. 78/79.

77) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 53.

278) Harleian Miscellany Vol. VII p. 621, Robert Burton p. 210.

2) Hyamson: History p. 161.

141

According to Spence's account, Cromwell also completely silenced the merchant people, "and so it was with him
"Leave it to the Jews to grant them what he wanted."

According to the official version, which is based on Robert Burton's version agreeing, he ended his speech as follows: "... he hoped to do nothing hasty or rushed, and he needed ample time all their prayers, that the Lord might guide him as it should be his Glory and good for the nation?)."

This therefore differs considerably from the one presented by Spence. given version and shows that the greatest caution is required regarding the The reliability of its representation must be applied.

Today it is difficult to ascertain exactly what happened after the It happened on December 18, 1655. It is certain that "the conference without further adjournment" 281) The brief publication adds that Cromwell had influenced the opinion of his ministers listens. We will not be informed about the outcome of this meeting. divided; probably no result was achieved there either. the?®). We can agree with the views of Wolf?®) and Hyamson™). do not agree that the State Council should receive a proposal from the committee

It was proposed that, under certain conditions, it could be agreed to the admission of Jews, because after The speeches of the individual members of parliament that have been handed down to us show It doesn't look like a majority has been found in favor of it. Wolf refers to a report that is contained in still preserved documents. State documents. It is true that this copy is undated and bears no entry stamp, therefore there exists no guarantee is given for the accuracy of the information provided by MA Green. dated November 13, 1655. On the other hand, it must but Wolf also admits that there was not the slightest mention as stated in the "Order Book" of the Council of State, as it is located elsewhere Also, include the date of this document itself with the November 13, 1655 states:). We are therefore of the opinion that Wolf is wrong and this document is from the time before the Conference (reference originates from?).

Cromwell had realized from the course of the negotiations that There is still significant resistance to approval. were. Public opinion, which even Cromwell himself had at He could not completely escape his decisions, he was even bitterly opposed to Jews. The consequences of admission would have been unforeseeable. There can be no doubt, that the so-called Whitehall Conference was a complete failure

28) Harleian Miscellany Vol. VII p. 621, Robert Burton p. 210.

281) Mercurius Politicus No. 288 from December 18, 1655.

282) en of the envoy Salvetti of 31 December 1655 in Roth: "New 18

288) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel, p. 56 ff.

284) Hyamson: History, p. 162

285) Wolf: Re-Settlement p. 11.

28) See also Henriques: Return, p. 54.

142

for the Jews. Nevertheless, this conference was commemorated on the 250th anniversary of the day with a pompous A banquet was celebrated in London. A large number of people led the festivities. The men had appeared for this purpose, and the items held there Speeches culminate in the highest praise ever heard. the Jews?#"). One member of parliament did not hesitate to (to the glory of the Jewish nation Brahms?®) to the full Jew and to make Goethe") into a part-Jew. Nobody, especially no one Englishmen should not miss the opportunity to listen to the speeches given there. see. It would unfortunately go too far to list them individually here. We just want to take a small excerpt from the speech of the speaker. will not fail the former Earl of Crewe.

After he explained that he had married into the house Rothschild was related by marriage and in olden times through marriage. of an ancestor with a Jewish woman, himself Jewish blood in his "Veins," he continues, "... Many of you undoubtedly know It is known that books are published that are based on the ancestry- The opinion of certain individuals in this country about the royal family Point out. Honorable citizens study these volumes and note, that they are descendants of a Plantagenet or even a Tudor rulers are. Their bliss at this discovery is merely clouded by the fact that hundreds and thousands of the- can boast the same award. But my suggestion goes... Therefore: Anyone who has leisure time and an inclination for genealogy should... search for the Jewish ancestry of - as I "designate" it wish - noble and non-noble dignitaries of this country to ascertain. Without going quite as far as Mr. Lowell - because One must admit that there are also people of tolerable intellect. and good character, who have no Jewish blood in their veins have -, such an investigation would surely be a revelation his thoughts on the extent of English families' connection to the Jewish race . . .).",

Words from a British nobleman! We don't want to add anything to them- add.

As already explained in detail, the majority of the Jews who had flocked to London from all over the world left for The conference ended in bitter disappointment. Menasseh Ben Israel held out - probably other Jews with him.

257) Whitehall Conference in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc.

Vol. V, p. 276 ff.

w Whitehall Conference in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc. Vol. V p. 284.

) Whitehall Conference in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc. Vol. V p. 285.

2) Whitehall Conference in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc. Vol. V p. 293.

The fight continues

The legally open path, namely approval through the Parliament had failed. The Jews therefore defeated them. A not unfamiliar path through the back door. In one under Letter dated December 31, 1655, preserved in the state documents

We find the following confirmation: "The Jews will be according to our Information is admitted through manipulation, despite the fact that the public opposes it)." The means of the Jews were also Back then, the same things as today: one tried to do things on the way to advance through bribery. So writes Salvetti, the Tuscan-Niche envoy, to his government on December 31, 1655, that the Jews were doing their best to bribe their opponents to turn their side and thus achieve their goal "with the help of gold". to reach?"). i

But also the further, so often used on such occasions Means of informing the public through so-called enlightening writings to convince people of the just Jewish cause was attempted-wandt. In particular, one had to try to counter-arguments to to have Prynne's brilliant work. Early January 1656 A small pamphlet by John Dury or Durie appeared, who his life's goal was the unification of all Protestant states saw. He traveled all over the place for this purpose and was not not only through this, but also through his writings, a whole A man well-known in Europe :). His letter was addressed to Samuel Hartlib, who made a name for himself because of his hand-lungs had made about educational issues in England and a (He was a friend of Milton). In this small work, he positioned himself the position that the admission of Jews is not against the (It violates English law). He gives a reason for this. However, not quite. Nevertheless, he recommends that the state... Focusing on the disadvantages that arise "from the affluent-common practice, exorbitant usury, and other subtleties in trade" caused by the Jews). If the However, if the state takes measures against this from the outset, it is seen He had no objections to the settlement of the Jews – on the contrary, He greeted them. In such a case, there would be a prospect of their Conversions). John Dury then added a postscript added, according to which he apparently restricts the admission so much wants them to meet the aforementioned conditions of the spirit-comes very close to lichkeit. He offers himself in this postscript, to send a copy of the Jewish laws of Hesse, which

21) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1655/56 p. 82.

2) Roth: New Light p. 130.

23) Dictionary of National Biography Vol. VI p. 261.

) Dictionary of National Biography Vol. IX p. 72.

29 Dury: Case p. 2.

2%) Dury: Case p. 8.

27) Dury: Case p. 5.

were known to be very strict. He then asks again that great care be taken during the recording. "Menasseh Ben Israel's Forde-
 "The struggles are," he continues, "great, and the use they have (the Jews) make of privileges, speaks in Hesse and elsewhere not particularly suitable for them. Jews have unconventional paths to A decree by which they undermine the state. They urge They gradually and obsequiously ingratiate themselves with the authorities... If Therefore, one should not, in wise foresight, place them in the positions they deserve. If they are shown the limits, they will quickly become a plague. . .)."
 As you can see, John Dury has incorporated much of that into this postscript. what he said in his actual writing in favor of the Jews has, revoked.

Another pro-Jewish work by Thomas Collier appeared, probably at Cromwell's instigation was published"),

In the preface, the author expresses that Cromwell, I alone have the power to help the Jews, and so I dedicate myself to it he wrote the following lines to the Lord Protector®."

In his introduction, he indicates that the writing is intended as Refutation of publications directed against the Jews (5° is the intended temperature).

Collier cannot deny, however, that the Jews have always been a They were a disobedient people. He also admits that they They engage in usury, but one shouldn't make too much of a fuss. to do that, since other people in the country already do. who pursued this trade. Despite this disadvantage, they needed They were used in England to boost trade. Against usury and The danger of ritual infanticide must be addressed from the outset. Make deterrent laws?®). The people are indeed considerably turned against the Hebrews – a consequence of the spread false teachings*),

They could have been found in other Protestant countries as well, such as For example, Holland was given its freedom, so why not in England? 3), "... if their trade is for some rich merchants Although it represents a loss, it generally serves to the advantage of the The people: the more goods came into the country, the more abundant and cheaper the offer).

Although the Jews also have flaws, they are nevertheless God's children. They remained a people who would one day lead all nations would do and punish those who mistreated them.

258) Dury: Case p. 9.

29) Graetz: History of the Jews Vol. X p. 109.

200) Collier, see preface.

201) Collier p. 3.

302) Collier p. 7/8.

303) Collier p. 9.

304) Collier p. 12.

30) Collier p. 13.

Ten Jews conquer England in 145

delten?®), They should therefore come to England instead.

"let it."

Apparently, however, this book also failed to sway public opinion more favorably, especially since Prynne wrote the second part published his scientific work in February 1656.

In his preface, he points out that he has, through the up-

He was encouraged to pursue further research after the publication of his first book.

to make discoveries in old documents and to present them in a second to summarize the text. This section of the work-

It mainly deals with the period of Jewish history.

the year 1230. Prynne places great emphasis on the fact that that their current banishment by public law of the (parliamentary proceedings have taken place). Finally, he demands the public, to examine the relevant old documents in Tower to look at, which proved the facts he had reported and thus his attitude towards Jews in general is right-manufactured e). This reference is interesting insofar as it

This aligns with our view that only scientifically sound research should be conducted.

Enlightenment writings will help solve the Jewish question.

Another book was written at the end of 1655, but only in the Ver-published during the following year." The author's name is unknown. According to the scientific basis of the book.

Judging by the circumstances, it must have been a learned person.

delt have. Here, too, there are indications of old

Documents and writings. The second part deals mainly with-mainly with Menasseh's book: "The Humble Address", the he accuses of not strictly adhering to the truth.

have). It is also not decided whether the Jews really by increasing the state's income through additional revenue increased tariffs could offset the disadvantage, the

they inflict on the local merchants through their trade were*). He also, unlike Menasseh, does not consider it to be

One advantage of the fact that Jews do not have a homeland is that... They could also emigrate as quickly as they had emigrated from Spain. "Leave England again." One should also not forget that their loyalty to the ancestral princely houses and State institutions were never very large; on the contrary, they were over- "They would all have been inclined to outrage."

History has also taught that "the Jews all perished- laymen would have to attribute this to themselves, because through "Their behavior was challenged." They were initially always well-behaved.

206) Collier p. 16/17.

307) Collier p. 21 ff.

sos) Prynne II. Part p. 135 ff.

3000 Prynne Part II, p. 144.

310) Anglo-Judaeus, pp. 51/52.

311) Anglo-Judaeus Preface pp. 32-35.

312) Anglo-Judaeus p. 35.

318) Anglo-Judaeus pp. 36-39.

344) Anglo-Judaeus pp. 39-44.

146

been dealt with, but "there was a danger that they would not only play dirty tricks with the country in question, but even would maintain connections with its enemies, provided they his own advantage demands it; it would therefore be much better to do it leave where they were" 15).

Based on these statements, one would expect the author to does this lead to a complete rejection of Jews? Not at all! One could allow it if the welfare of their own fellow citizens It is assured. If they prove themselves, they should be employed in the country. stay, and he personally wishes them all the best for their future. Wellbeing®!®).

What was the general situation, and how did the situation in particular- special Cromwell in the following Whitehall Conference Months? We only learned about this through the reports of the the aforementioned Tuscan envoy Valetti to his Re- government taught authoritatively. On January 7th, he wrote that Jews still hoped for a favorable decision by Cromwell. In a letter dated January 28, he announced that the final-Cromwell's valid decision is still unknown. In-

In between, the Jews held their religious services in their homes.
ab. This latter remark, incidentally, has had the same effect on some histologists.
This led some to the false conclusion that they had already been informed about
During this time, freedom of religion was permitted.

Salvetti then mentions in his communications of the 4th and 11th of Februarybruar, that things had become quite quiet regarding the Jewish issue and they would initially be content to secretly follow their prayers-to be able to leave. Apparently, Cromwell was willing to grant them that right.
Let it be, as long as it doesn't cause a public scandal. On On February 25th, we then learn from Salvetti that the underhandlungs would be finished."

Thus, what happened after the merger remains forever unclear.
The disruption of the Whitehall Conference took place behind the scenes.
It will probably never be possible to determine why Cromwell refrained from a decision favorable to the Jews. Was it the opposition of the clergy and the merchant class
City, or even the unwillingness of the people, who themselves oppose the almighty-What prevented the tigen Lord Protector from doing so? Perhaps they... nor could they agree on the price the Jews would pay for their
They should pay for privileges. On January 24, 1656, Colonel [name omitted] wrote:
Whitley to Sir Edward Nicholas in Calais as follows: "I would have I almost forgot to mention Cromwell's words that it was a (an ungodly thing, to allow the Jews)"

This remark by Cromwell shows that he hardly had any control over the interior.
not showing interest in her, but only from the desire

35) Anglo-Judaeus, pp. 45-49.

816) Anglo-Judaeus p. 52.

7) Roth: New Light, pp. 131/32.

3s) Nicholas Papers Vol. III p. 255.

10.

147

seems to have been inspired to exploit the Jews to such an extent, when he needed them for his politics.

The Jewish question should quickly become the focus of internal-political events in England will be affected, because the outbreak

The struggle was brought to a head by the so-called "Robles trial". It was already lit in March 1656.

In the spring of 1656, war broke out between England and Spain. broken. The Privy Council had announced the decision that Private property of all Spaniards in England for the benefit of the government to confiscate").

A certain Francis Knevett, an Englishman, stood by the Jews has been providing advice for quite some time. Through an un- By sheer coincidence, he had already been there a few days before the official announcement of this decision by the Privy Council. He called the agent of the rich Spanish Jew Don Antonio Rodrigues de Robles came to him and revealed his secret: To his surprise, he revealed that Robles and others Jews were Spaniards; he also explained that two were currently in London ships arrived with rich cargo, although under his Names registered, actually belonging to Robles. This could naturally- They can come out quite easily, especially if you have the papers. seized. The damage would be very great, since Robles was not not only further substantial stocks of goods were stored, but also He would have forty thousand gold ducats in his house. With others The trading agent named the Spanish Jews who were present; Dunnington to similar agreements; the entry into force of the Be- Therefore, the conclusion must not only be about the Spanish Jews, but also about the Jews also ruin himself. In his great dismay, he gave Ali revealed his secrets. The conversation was interrupted by a third party. Person overheard, who simultaneously took notes on the statements Dunningtons did. Immediately after the publication of the above The aforementioned decision involved the entire assets of Robles including the two ships carrying cargo from the government confiscated).

Robles addressed a petition to Cromwell requesting its release he asked for his fortune. He justified it by saying that he had no He is not Spanish, but "Portuguese and of Jewish nationality." He makes pointed out that he benefits the state through his trade large sums of customs duties have been paid. For his Claim that he possesses Portuguese citizenship, He cited the testimony of one of his employees.

The proceedings were initiated, and during the course of them it was declared The witness said he could not lie – he knew perfectly well that Robles was Spaniard. Upon his objection that he had a wife with Portuguese-married to a Greek national, the applicant replied.

319) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 60.

320) Wolf: Crypto Jews p. 60/61, Henriques: Return p. 54/55, Domestic State Papers Vol. 1655/56, p. 227.

stated, "he would not thereby acquire Portuguese nationality for himself." Thus Robles had provided proof for his claim do not lead and at the same time neither the display of Knevettets nor refute the statement of the third person who said that Dunnington's confession had been overheard),

The remaining Jews gradually began to realize the danger-know, in which Robles was suspended. It would be determined that he possessed Spanish citizenship and thereby the right to enter-To make the seizure of his assets legally binding, they had to do that. They feared the same fate. Apparently, they were prepared to give up their to support fellow members of the same breed by all means. They contacted us. Therefore, they were admitted as witnesses. Probably - to the dismay of Robles and his friends - but he declared Only part of it was that he was Portuguese. Dunnington was also heard and had to admit that he had previously been criticized from all sides I had heard that Robles was Spanish. Consequently, I never knew him. mistook for a Portuguese man, although he had recently Contrary views had come to light. It also applies to... not that Robles had a lot of money in the house; rather, Such items should always be deposited with a goldsmith, if necessary. From this last part of the statement, one can see that one apparently the 40,000 gold initially mentioned by Dunnington did not find any ducats upon seizure, so that he Robles retracted his earlier confession to Knevett. He was also questioned himself and naturally claimed to be Not a Spaniard. However, when confronted, he had to admit that he long time in Spain and the Canary Islands, which As is well known, these were Spanish colonial possessions, and they were still in use. Fur He could not deny having served the Spanish for several years. to have been part of the government. Finally, witnesses confirmed this. stated that he participated in masses at the Spanish embassy. I have taken him, since he has so far presented himself as a Catholic®*?).

An impartial judge would have determined, after the evidentiary proceedings, must establish that Robles possessed Spanish citizenship and The seizure of the assets was lawful. Although... Some Jews expressed the opposite view, however, upon consideration, not to underestimate the value of their statement, their interest in that which cast doubt on the truth of her statements. But apart from that... Robles had generally been considered Spanish before the trial. nationals were considered, which Dunnington also noted in his first The horror was confirmed. Furthermore, it would not have been necessary to... ships that have just arrived are to be registered in the name of the latter. strieren, if regarding the nationality of Robles There were no objections. Furthermore, Robles himself had to admit, that he had lived in Spanish territory for many years, indeed, that he even I was in the service of the Spanish government. Finally

321) Wolf: Crypto Jews p. 62/63.

*) Wolf: Crypto Jews pp. 60–66, Menasseh Ben Israel pp. 60–65, Domestic State Papers Vol. 1655/56 pp. 227, 247, 274, 294, 316.

149

There were still positive statements from some witnesses that he is a Spanish national, so that not the slightest There could be doubts that Robles, which also apparently stemmed from Wolfe) is not disputed, to the Spanish confederation belonged.

After all this, a corresponding verdict would probably have been expected The maritime office, which was entrusted with this task, ver- However, it announced that it could not determine whether "Roble's Spaniards or be Portuguese" 0. The Privy Council therefore had to decide- to decide whether to uphold the confiscation of the assets was or was not. His decision of May 16, 1656, called for the re- The seizure was lifted. No reason was given for this. given). It is likely, as the Jewish writer Graetz) believes there is no doubt that Cromwell made the decision has brought about.

We wonder if, as above in the general Treatment of the Jewish question, Cromwell's attitude towards the was dependent on the money supply from the Jews. If we affirm this, In this case, the sum should have been large enough. to persuade him to make a decision favorable to the Jews leave it on. Be that as it may, there must be a reason for the re- The result must have been present, which shunned the daylight. had. Otherwise, he would have been named, especially since the entire factual and The legal situation suggested a contrary ruling.

It might be interesting to know what role Menasseh Ben Israel played in this affair and what activity he had in the interim- time has unfolded.

March 23, 1656, must have been a significant day for him after all the many failures. It must have been a lucky day, because we find in the state- documents an entry according to which he was "a" by Cromwell received a pension of £100 per year, payable quarterly and beginning on February 20, 1656...).

As you can see, Cromwell wasn't petty. After all, it's for Our concepts are peculiar, that a head of state should be subject to an external... The country granted a pension in such a situation. This is all the more More surprising than Menasseh Ben Israel not even achieving success had and his activity from the English people – to whom the money belonged – was not approved.

During the Robles case negotiations, Menasseh also once actively emerged. In a petition to Cromwell, dated March 24, 1656, he was among other Jews the first to he submitted his signature." He had expressed his wishes in return- The sentence has already been significantly reduced compared to earlier times. He only ask 323) Wolf: Status of the Jews p. 178.

24) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1655/56 p. 3

325) Wolf: Crypto 115 pp. 66, 86, 77 8 E Ben Israel p. 66.

326) Graetz Vol. V p. 1

327) Fifth Report of me Deputy Keeper, Appendix II p. 263.

328) Wolf: Crypto Jews p. 7

150

for written permission for the Jews to meet privately in their homes to hold their religious services and (who may have their own burial ground). Cromwell stated that The request was forwarded to the Privy Council for further processing. However, they didn't even respond to that, let alone... "has complied with the wishes of the Jews."

The wording of the petition suggests that Cromwell probably of his own accord orally granted the Jews the right to had granted private religious practice, because the petition It begins with the Jews thanking the Jews for this permission, However, please request explicit written confirmation. This is apparently never happened. Apart from whether the verbal agreement- Cromwell's protection under the English Constitution was legally effective. Given that it was true, it would be doubtful whether, even if the answer were yes, not the oral promise by refusing to Written confirmation is to be considered as revoked. Menasseh has, in support of his request and for the conversion- The mood of public opinion on April 10, 1656, was further documented in another document. published to explain and support his efforts- light"). The book is written in the form of a letter and addressed to a The person in question is one whose name Menasseh does not mention. From The preface reveals that this personality had previously been in addressed a letter to him and urged him to take this step- has demanded. It is probably not without reason that one suspects that the up- Prynne's explanatory memorandum made a deep impression in England provoked when the Jews and their friends voiced a public rebuke. They considered it necessary to address it.

In the first section of his book, Menasseh spreads his ideas- going beyond the claim that the Jews on their holidays Killing Christian children. "He could only cry out about such unbelievable acts."

Accusers weep bitterly." Indeed, killing was something the Jews were adept at. not only prohibited by religious law, but there would also be Nor is there any people on earth milder than them, who are such They abhorred such acts. Those committed in the past by various groups The incidents reported by writers and sources were either fabricated or false accusations against Christians to whose murders were shifted onto the poor Jews),

In the next three parts, he then gives explanations regarding the ceremonies in the synagogue and the Jewish religion in –general?®®),

He also makes it clear in Chapter 5 that it is not correct that the Jews tried to convert Christians to their religion), | Menasseh also sees no disadvantage in the fact that Jewish buyers 229) Domestic State Papers Vol. ae p. 237.

330) Henriques: Return p. 4

331) Wolf: Menasseh Ben irae pp. 63, 64.

332) Menasseh Ben Israel: Vindiciae Judaeorum pp. 2–16.

ss) Menasseh Ben Israel: Vindiciae Judaeorum pp. 16–31.

34) Menasseh Ben Israel: Vindiciae Judaeorum p. 31/32.

people spread throughout England. The state would instead become a Increased revenue from customs duties would necessitate higher prices for goods. go down. This opened up advantages for the tradesmen, since the Jews themselves did not possess any, and through their global connections They wanted to praise the name of that nation everywhere they well-treated").

In no case were there more swindlers among the Jews than among other nations. Rather, the Old Testament and the Talmud, that the Jew does not cheat, steal, or rob). The one by Prynne documented the general punishment of Jews under Edward I. It was done purely out of hatred and was completely unfounded. Menasseh concludes his remarks by stating that he... before hopes for the general dispersal of the Jews in the World – therefore also for approval in England with all the necessary requirements Jews have favorable consequences – hege. He reiterates the explains the reasons for his coming and points out that the friendly– Cromwell's stance and the appeal of the Jews of Europe who had encouraged him to take this trip."

Even if Graetz) thinks that the book makes a good impression in England – what we have to say about Jews and Not wanting to deny the existence of friends of Jews –, Menasseh was indeed unable to bring about a shift in public opinion– to bring about a change in favor of the Jews. Cromwell, too, dared to do so as a result– whose lack of willingness to do anything for her. Menasseh broke down. over this failure of his mission, however, he held on until in London in 1657. Only when his accompanying son He died in September of that same year, losing his last bit of courage. and went, taking his son's body with him, to Holland back, where he returned to him after a few months at the age of 53 years followed.").

Much has been written about the events in February when the Jews were killed. A burial site was established in 1657, probably through personal use. Cromwell's intervention has been acknowledged. It is also here especially Wolf), who came forward with this claim. This is based on two documents from the year 1657. and 1670. The former has been lost, and we only know for that reason. of their existence, because the document from the year 1670 refers to it She mentions that this is in question for the lease. coming country already 14 years ago to Fernandez Carvajal and It was given to Simon de Caceres. Henriques) continues with Quite apart, that it is probably only about the ver- I was dealing with the lease of a private garden, since there is no written record of it.

355) Menasseh Ben Israel: Vindiciae Judaeorum p. 33.

6) Menasseh Ben Israel: Vindiciae Judaeorum pp. 34-37.

7) Menasseh Ben Israel: Vindiciae Judaeorum p. 37 ff.

488) Graetz: History Vol. X p. 112.

339) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 68 ff., Hyamson: History p. 166.

340) Wolf: Re-Settlement p. 12, Menasseh Ben Israel p. 57, Hyamson: History p. 166, Dr. Adler: Homage, p. 38.

1) Henriques: Return p. 62.

152

would support Wolf's theory. Rather, the fact that Menasseh sent his son to Holland in September 1657- I have led to speak in favor of his opinion, which he will elaborate on. with further details. Since this point of contention is important to us of minor importance, we can consider the above. Let's leave it at that, because even if one considers the Jews Had he been granted a burial plot, nothing would have changed as a result. to change their general legal situation. This fact Rather, it seems to support our view that Cromwell the Jews generally tolerated*?). Another theory, mainly advocated by Wolf, goes to the point that Cromwell granted general protection to the Jews in 1658 he had agreed, as evidenced by the fact that John Sadler had spoken to him had been authorized to allow the Jews to build a synagogue allow. This is based on a biography written by the Sadler's grandson, written in 1738. Henriques) also This has been addressed and demonstrated that these conditions- The statement may not be correct from various perspectives. can. He explains in detail that the Wolf did not subject the points mentioned to careful review. withstand." But this point of contention, too, is unlikely to be decided by- of particular importance. Even if this assurance from Cromwell should have been given it, it is not a legally binding inheritance. not to be seen as clarification for the future, but only as a further development- The pressure of his policy of toleration. We still need to address this. to briefly occupy oneself:

We learned above why Cromwell went so far as to prosecute the Jews as much as possible favored and that even he only to that extent privilegierten could grant this when Parliament and Privy Council approved. Upon Menasseh's appointment to England in 1655 He was certainly willing to grant the Jews the means to legalize their to obtain the necessary residence permit, but even The all-powerful Cromwell had to bow to the will of the people. After the Whitehall Conference, he had realized that his He was unable to realize his plans. He was only able to... to exert influence, and only insofar as that of Jews desired by him for special purposes were tolerated in the country. were. Undoubtedly, under the laws at that time, they were protected. England is not allowed to hold its religious services publicly; They were therefore tolerated in England without any rights. They had to be constantly prepared for a change in the political circumstances, especially at the end of the Under the influence of Cromwell, he was banished from the country.

s2) Henriques: Return p. 65/66.

%) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 57. Status p. 180, Re-Settlement p. 12, Hyamson: History p. 163 ff.

% Henriques: Return p. 59/60.

345) Henriques: Return pp. 49-51.

153

It is undisputed in historical research that England, from the middle of the 17th century onwards, underwent a transformation of its social structure. A decidedly pro-people attitude. directed?). The well-known writer AM Ludovici®) calls this period marks the beginning of "greed and avarice, trade and so-called freedom of an uncontrolled capitalism as well as unscrupulous exploitation." He convincingly demonstrated this. It was established that the struggle between the Republicans under Cromwell and King Charles I. not so much through religious questions as due to the difference of opinion in the economic field lay. Charles I confronted the emerging movement, led by the Puritans. The financial power represented in the country, which ruthlessly exploits the population—who wanted to exploit the situation for the benefit of enormous profits, with all Power opposed. Yes, he even championed welfare. his subjects were sealed with death."

It should also be beyond question that the entire turnaround the views and way of life of the English people a large part of it was caused by Puritanism.

Another factor, insofar as it is not overlooked by many, The influence of Jews in England is also undisputed. The most prominent feature of the difference between the Ge— The history of the Jews on the continent and in England is that the Jews in the latter case never entered upon their return migration. They lived in ghettos. Rather, they remained unhindered under the population and used their influence in the well-known manner. The Jews in England around the middle of the In the 17th century, their development was therefore at a stage where their fellow race members on the continent at the beginning or in the In the mid-19th century, there was: An immensely important conversion— The position held by historians who do not think in our sense and are used to research, either ignored or consciously ignored is neglected.

Without going into detail about why the Jews in England at the significant change in life and character Where measurements were involved, one can at least sometimes find the This fact has been mentioned as such by some historians. G. Clark points out that the Jews are involved in the aforementioned development insofar as they a development in the 17th century played a significant role, when they (Had influence on trade, banking and insurance???). To what extent the Jews were already in the first half of the 18th century were interested in the economy in England, results in a document from the year 1753 0).

The upheaval in England in the 17th century is therefore primarily— primarily attributable to Puritanism and Judaism. Both

- 347) Ludovici: Defense of Aristocracy p. 235/3
- 348. Ludovici: Defense of Aristocracy p. 31 ff.
- 349) Clark Vol. 1660–1714 p. 35.

35°. Further Considerations p. 31 ff.

348) To name just one: Clark: Later Stuarts Vol. 1660–1714 p. 35.
6.

154

have much in common and therefore complemented each other. Ludo-Vici explained in his aforementioned book how Puritanism This led to the rise of trade, but also simultaneously to its decline. has led to the invisible exploitation of the people, as all- is characteristic of the system used by the Jews.

Regarding the views on the development of things from From the 17th century to the present day, there have been significant changes. Differences. The majority of historians, business leaders and politicians in England see this development as a blessing rich. She takes the position that through this capital- The English Empire, the largest of all time, is a system of economics. It had been built. Even if we agreed with their point of view, This category seems to focus too much on the last 200 years, – a short period in the life of a people! The question will Rather, the question is: How will this system affect the future? Will this influence the shaping of the English people? But also this These are again just assumptions, which we will not discuss further here. want to keep them away as much as possible. We would rather the Raising the question: Has this system been in place until today? Is it beneficial for England, or has it also already had disadvantages? which may one day outweigh the advantages will? We can only answer this question definitively- words when we consider the facts of the present- engage.

155

PART 111

1658–1714: Royal Protectors of the Jews

Jews ally themselves with the Royalists

Oliver Cromwell died on September 3, 1658, and his son Richard was appointed as his successor later that same month. set.

Immediately, anti-Semitic forces stirred again among the people, and just a few weeks later, a certain Richard Baker a detailed petition to Richard Cromwell'), probability-

The City of London likely stood behind this petition.
have, since they mainly represent the decline of the English Han-dels explained because of Jewish competition. Admittedly, that when the war with Spain became noticeable, it was before especially the bloodsucking Jews and other foreigners who are expelled drove domestic goods suppressed the foreign goods all kinds of imported goods and the amounts received for them in value-transported abroad in full English metal coins. – The Jews in all parts of the world had hatched a plot,
They refused to dictate their terms to English keedlers.
these, the disproportionately low freight rates offered to them-
To be expected, the ships would often have to return in ballast.
There is no doubt that this led to the ruin of English shipping. delivered . .).

Baker made various proposals to boost trade,
the ninth of which reads as follows:

"To expel or banish the Jews and immediately impose a precise List of the value of the domestic work they have carried out to make goods, and furthermore to determine how high the the value of the goods they imported. It was only right.
and cheap, the entire excess amount to the state to pay them to punish them for jeopardizing the prosperity of have seized control of the people . . .)."

The request was unsuccessful, Baker has, as far as can be determined, not even received a reply, which

- 1) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 71, Hyamson: History p. 167.
- *) Baker p. 15/16.
- 3) Baker p. 17.

157 mainly due to the general uncertain political conditions following the death of Oliver Cromwell

The unclear situation did not end with the abdication.
Richard Cromwell's end of April 1659. At least the way was now open.
free for the return of Charles II.

We want to briefly examine the attitude of the Jews after the Whitehall Conference in contrast to the increasingly emerging royalist aspirations in England.

As early as 1655, we can see that leading figures...
Circles within the royalist party are interested in the Jews. In that already mentioned letter from Sir Marmaduke Langdale to Sir Edward Nicholread, the secretary of the exiled King Charles II, from On September 20, 1655, it states, among other things: "... What the Jews are doing-Regarding the relevant point in Mr. Overton's letter, it emerged that this is from a conversation I had with Mr. Brokes about it had. He seemed to favor her greatly and consider it necessary for to consider the kingdom. ... I asked Mr. Overton to remove the ab-Sighting of Jews by a member of their race in Holland to be brought forward. To my deepest regret,

They are currently on Cromwell's side. The Jews are throughout the country.
The world is numerous, and so are the great lords of money. If His Your Majesty, either win them or at least get rid of Cromwell.
"If it could distract, that would be a very great success ...*).."

It is unequivocally clear from this that the royalists in Holland among the local Jews, they made inquiries about rapprochement.
had extended their reach. The royalists could not succeed, as it was at this time that world Jewry was traveling to London for Menasseh intended to send and his entire hope for a Agreement with Cromwell was reached.

However, the situation looked completely different after a few months.
out, after the negotiations with the Jews had already begun in February
They had to be considered defeated by 1656. It had become clear to them that that even the all-powerful Cromwell could not save them the need-necessary parliamentary approval for a settlement in England could obtain. They therefore changed hands within a short period.
At that time, they went to the front and made themselves available to the Royalists.
As can be seen from a power of attorney issued by Charles II on September 24, 1656, General Middleton states that the royal party at that time was already inclined to make binding agreements with the Jews for a to cooperate. This document is in every respect so interesting that we would like to reproduce them below:
"Charles most graciously ... our faithful and beloved servant
Lieutenant General John Middleton .

They informed us that some leading figures in Amsterdam-resident members of the Hebrew nation against them expressed her great affection for Our cause-ten and assured you that the recently published report from various

) Nicholas Papers Vol. III p. 51.

offer made to members of their nation to Cromwell without their consent and extraordinarily by them will be thrown. They further informed us that this personal-Those who wish to prove their good will to us by all means and request our reinstatement. We instruct you Therefore, to inform them how graciously We have granted their request absorb knowledge and how far we are from being a to have prejudices against them or to consider them as enemies strive. We are happy to provide any evidence of their affiliation.

to accept the inclination that will bring us events in better times-could grant release, acknowledge their help and Our Release-to announce rulings in their favor. We will give you herewith any authority, with those leading people of this to negotiate with a nation whose interests are being assessed and discretion in a matter of such importance can trust. We further authorize you to provide them with the insurance.
to give assurances that We will provide them all with protection, which they can reasonably expect from us, if Us God restored to Our power and Our ancestral right-sets, provided they are willing under the prevailing circumstances, We provide service by giving money, weapons or ammunition to perform the task that we entrust to them.
We are also prepared to support those in our various dominions.
to abolish the harsh laws existing against them. Furthermore,
Do you love to tell them that we have a considerable obligation?
of the thanks they have shown us through their help in our difficult times-nesses – provided that they are in our affairs because of We view our connection with Spain as hopeful – would impose, not merely agree graciously towards them.
and will find us ready to protect them, but to them
It should also be the moral assurance that we are able to to pass through what pleases Us as soon as We are lawfully be able to publish and explain how much we are to them are obligated and to what extent they contribute to Our Reunification have contributed to the implementation. All those well-disposed towards us will do so. undoubtedly know how to value it appropriately. Likewise, we give They should have all powers of attorney, any sum of money, weapons and to accept ammunition that one is willing to give you-Please leave the confirmation of receipt you provided.
to undertake repayment as soon as we are able to do so,
and in the same way as if handing it over to Ourselves would have been done. For everything you do in the performance of this contract, This shall be your power of attorney.

Given in Bruges, on the 24th day of September 16565).
The Jews therefore promised money, weapons and ammunition, thus Resources that play a major role in waging war play. They gave this up for a change, drawn to the un-) Firth p. 342/43.

certain future of Charles II. For only in the event of his return to England would he repay the money and then to protect the Jews. A good deal for both sides, for The latter, however, carries a high risk and is only successful with good [conditions]. Outcome. The fact that they accepted this uncertainty-men, shows their immense interest in the center of their world-to relocate politics to London.

Wolfe) has opposed the more frequently expressed view that Hebrews had to deal with both Cromwell and his opponents. Sacher Karl II. He asked for justification for this. invoked the fact that the Jews in Holland, with whom Karl had acquainted-acted, always on the side of the royalists, who never did anything would have wanted to have dealings with the Puritans, while... their fellow breeders in England, such as Carvajal and de Caceres, still known to Cromwell, with the exception of da Costa and Coronell, who always supported Charles II. One can Wolf Do not follow this under any circumstances.

Undoubtedly, Charles II, or rather General Middleton, dealt with the Jews Negotiations took place in Amsterdam. However, as we saw above, that... World Jewry under the leadership of the Jewish colony in Amsterdam Menasseh went to London for negotiations with Cromwell. sent. That among the Jews in Amsterdam before his departure, The fact that differing opinions prevailed is not proven by anything. On the contrary, we heard from Menasseh himself above that the The Jewish community greeted the English delegations with great pomp. would have been received in their synagogue. Even if some Jews stipulations that they did not agree with Menasseh's mission This will probably only be done to save face. have served both sides. In fact, there should be no difference. between the camps of the Jews who gathered in the autumn of 1655 addressed to Cromwell, and to those who would be involved with him the following year. Charles II. reached an agreement.

Although outwardly they appear to be the leading Hebrews, who sided with Cromwell or Charles II to fight various battles However, people appear from the outset with consideration for the Concerns arise regarding the worldwide known solidarity of the Jews whether da Costa and Coronel should not be combined with Carvajal and de Caceres have collaborated. This assumption becomes a certainty. considering that the da Costa and Mendes families are so are so closely related that they are sometimes identified will be'), The Mendes family, the Rothschilds of the 17th century, However, as shown above, this was again in close cooperation (with Carvajal and Caceres in favor of Cromwell'). It belongs In this matter, there is much to make us believe that want that related and business partners

6) Wolf: Menasseh Ben Israel p. 73/74.

1) Jewish Encyclopedia Vol. IV p. 288, similarly Wolf: Crypto Jews p. 72.

160

Jews have gone on completely different paths in political terms are, especially since the goals of both endeavors were the same: Admission in England.

The same findings and conclusions apply to Coronell, or, to call him by his full name, Coronell Chacon, to meet, who was formerly an employee of Carvajals®) and was also a relative of the Mendes family®. All of these Facts proven by documents should be beyond doubt. to suggest that the Hebrews had two irons in the fire to help them after to secure each page.

In accordance with their agreement with Charles II, they distributed funds to They promoted the royal party and did everything else they could to support it. to serve the cause. Coronell was a close friend of General Monk, who most zealously advocated for the reinstatement of Charles II. (struggled!!), So was it Jewish money here too that Monk used to his advantage? What attitude prompted this? We can no longer prove it, but only through his connection with the Jews and their known to suspect behavior in such matters.

Thus, we also find in this period of English history- layer the often criticized defection of the Jews in matters, in which they want to achieve something for themselves. But what we get- Anyone who has heard about this should not have been surprised by it, even back then. be. When they were made exempt from the law of King James I of the country- We find them already in the year 1643 on pages the Republicans in England). Cromwell's support was Therefore, it is only one consequence of this attitude. But how quickly did things change? They returned to the camp when Oliver Cromwell's star rose in It was fading and they had to realize that they were from his They cannot expect help from their weak son and thus their goals in England and were unable to prevail in the world.

Richard Cromwell abdicated as early as the end of April 1659, and un- A year later, Charles II entered England as King of England. London. In the meantime, however, numerous political Events took place: Neither the Jews nor their opponents had been inactive.

Apparently, the former have made another attempt. a well-known building was chosen for conversion into a synagogue. to secure. Thus, we find in traditional government documents the entry- Report of June 16, 1659, that "the Jews offer to provide this wonderful to buy the entire space in Whitehall for themselves as a synagogue and commit themselves not to destroy it" 15).

This time, therefore, it wasn't St. Paul's Cathedral, but a an equally well-known gala room in the government district for

Hyamson: History, p. 137.

1°) Wolf: Jewry p. 17.

") Wolf: un. p. 15 ff., Crypto Jews p. 71, 74/75, Status p. 182 ff., Menasseh Ben Israel, p. 73. ;

1?) Cunningham: Growth, Vol. Modern Times p. 325.

13) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1658/59 p. 367.

11 Jews conquer England I 6 I

Jewish religious services are used. The following is not included in the offer:
Obviously, nothing came of it. Most likely, it was mainly...
The political circumstances at the time were to blame.
This was also the reason why the efforts of the Jewish-opponents did not get beyond one attempt.

The anti-Jewish circles were this time led by a man named Thomas Violet. He was a goldsmith and councillor.
Lord of London. As a supporter of Charles I, he was appointed by the Republicans punished with long prison terms. After his Upon his release, he campaigned with all his might for the exposure of the alleged crimes.
"offered gold and silver exports." Perhaps Violet is with his extensive investigations into export crimes Jews – who, as is well known, account for a large part of this trade-ruled – pushed aside and thus became their bitter enemy.
No further details can be determined. In December In 1659 he will definitely appear before Judge Tyril, to whom he orally presented his intention based on documents, to take action against the Jews. Tyril seems to be against Violet in this matter.
(to have agreed). However, he advised him to refrain from carrying out the plan.
to wait so long until the king, namely Charles II, was in England would be back, which Violet followed."

How much the entire political situation is undergoing upheaval-
Their actions were evident from many other phenomena and Writings. In the latter respect, a small appeal is of interest with the heading: "Awake, O England" (England, awaken). The
The author bitterly complains about the events brought about by Cromwell.
ten conditions and calls on the population to support King Charles II.
to call back as quickly as possible. He is against the An ingrained bad habit of introducing English manufacturing methods to foreigners to reveal certain articles." Jews were also among the Foreigners, and so we are interested in the headline "England er-

"Wake up," as this call was made by English fascists and nationalists. socialists were resumed.

An attack by the City is repelled.

On May 26, 1660, Charles II landed in Dover and on May 29, he moved (he in London one), many things were awaiting regulation. Also the Jewish question arose immediately.

All laws and regulations, in particular all actions Oliver Cromwell's theories were declared null and void, unless the 14) Dictionary of National Biography Vol. 20 p. 374.

15) Also Hyamson: History p. 170, Wolf: Jewry p. 13.

16) Violet: Petition p. 7/8.

7) Harleian Miscellany Vol. I p. 275 ff.

18) Dictionary of National Biography Vol. IV p. 91.

162

express consent of Parliament had been given for this." The Jews, however, had applied for their residence permit in England fought in vain and only concerned themselves with personal protection Cromwell was pleased. With his death, their stay in England was over. The country thus operates without any state sanctions. We recognize Now, all the more important are the Jewish agreements with Charles II, after which he would give them the same in the event of his return promised them personal protection, which Cromwell granted them The Jews' defection to the other side had paid off, as they even under Charles II, no one had any hope of the legal-Parliamentary approval for their stay in England to preserve land. The overwhelming majority still... of the people against their admission, as can be seen from the consequences of the events in the year 1660.

The anti-Semitic forces within the population certainly had little to do with it. They knew about the king's agreement with the Jews and stated adopt the legal position that their stay without It had state approval.

Consequently, it is understandable that Violet immediately after Charles II's arrival in June 1659 again before Judge Tyril appeared and asked for instructions on his next steps. Tyril referred him to some members of the Privy Council, whom he even beyond the laws and existing documents in the Jewish-question taught in detail") and with whom Violet and Tyril They apparently discussed and prepared the matter first. then the Privy Council, as far as can be determined today, can, on November 30th of the same year, be occupied with it."

Whether the Privy Council only received Violet's input on that day or also applications from other persons in the same matter The reason why it was done is not entirely clear," but it is also irrelevant. In his petition, Violet first referred to the previous Ge-history of the Jews in England. He certainly had something to do with it. based on Prynne's research, which we are already familiar with. However, his observations about the on- are of interest to us. The Jews in London and their businesses. They were, so We hear that he became extraordinarily rich in a short time and This significantly harmed English merchants insofar as Because of their wealth, they seize control of trade everywhere. able to. The population's aversion to them was in otherwise very large... He suggested to the king that the Jews be exactly to treat it as it was before 1290. Therefore, I recommend it. imposing special taxes on them, or even on their affairs at all They might be considered to belong to the king. In any case. The latter should not tolerate them entering the country without a special license. They traded with England. Naturally, it was for their monitoring.

10) Henriques: Return p. 77.

2) Violet: Petition p. 7/8. .

21) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1660/61 p. 366.

22) Wolf: Jewry p. 13. Henriques: Return p. 76 footnote 1.

11* A 163

necessary to employ loyal subjects to conduct investigations into their to conduct all transactions. Furthermore, it would also be possible to... Nothing stands in the way of expelling the Jews from England again. Should the king be unable to decide on this, he must They should definitely be taxed particularly heavily and ensured that the English merchants were given renewed opportunities to trade would?").

But Violet had found a powerful ally in the citizens of the City. She acted almost even faster when he said: "No sooner had Charles II arrived," to begin with the words Wolfs) to speak, "when the mayor and the council-gentlemen presented a petition against the Jews." The content Fortunately, the same is preserved, so that we can here the approach-from the perspective of a corporation and not just an individual, the the Jewish historians with regard to an anonymous defamation (who likes to describe him as a scoundrel and notorious liar?). The City of London's petition is a detailed document. In it we find only sober festive-Statements made by merchants about their economic situation. The The trade of the English companies was solely due to the fault of Jews have declined alarmingly because entire branches of the population have dispersed. had seized control of the economy. All of this was attributed to Cromwell. thank him, who – prompted by his selfish interests – that they allowed the exploitation of the economy in England. The worst part is that even now, almost every day there are new new ones. Hordes of people immigrated. The king was warned against letting them in. To tolerate countries. In others, England is by no means friendly. They have already succeeded in sympathetic states, even to gain a foothold in governments. In their alliance among themselves it is quite possible that those in England-settled Jews to provide their fellow Jews with important information- They also let some people in need come. Furthermore, "they have already taken some people seduced by the weaker sex, and the abominable deception- The fact that we have English blood gives us the bad reputation of being a traitor. mixed nation." . . The people were already groaning under their pressure, since they made it a habit to attack Christians- deceptive. The fact already exists that trade in Portugal and Spain were almost impossible for English merchants to reach. had become. The Hebrews also betrayed members of other families. Nations, then changed their names and migrated from one country to another, where they commit the same illegalities- practiced. It sometimes happened that they secretly gained access to- Cooperation with their fellow breeders has earned them a good reputation. would have created in order to thus benefit the subjects of His To obtain credit from His Majesty. This would have given them many proper 23) Reprint of Violet's application in Wolf: Status, p. 188 ff.

24) Wolf: Status p. 182.

25) See also the work: The Great Trappaner of England.

164

Families ruined and withdrew with their ill-gotten fortunes acquired in England

The City of London therefore humbly requested measures. against the Jews, but especially to "repeal the previous laws" to reinstate it and to both houses of Parliament recommend issuing new ones to expel all Jews from the countries to banish Your Majesty and thereby close the door behind them to lock down such regulations and penalties according to the wisdom of Your Majesty, which

The best option is the safety of religion, the honor of Your Majesty.
and guarantee the welfare of your subjects.”

Man. therefore demanded for the purity of the race and for the prevention of Prevention of the exploitation of the people; expulsion of the Jews:
Demands of the Third Reich!

According to this, individuals, and especially the most powerful ones, had Corporation of England, the resolution of an important issue requested. What could have been more obvious than that the constitutional Monarch at least the application by the House of Lords and Parliament should have consulted, especially since Charles II after his Much of the return would have depended on maintaining public favor.
must. But what actually happened to the orderly moderately submitted application?

On December 7th, we find in the minutes of the Privy Council the Note that the City's input regarding the designation of the Jews were being tried. The petition of the Widow of Fernandez Carvajal and other Jews, she to protect. That Carvajal's widow is considered one of the most important-
The fact that the applicant is named most frequently is interesting insofar as they are in Years. 1659 deceased man, the main patron of the Cromwell's cause was to the great detriment of Charles II – a further proof of our above-stated view that it is in their change of sides not by a part, but by how the mass of Jews acted. How else could the widow have acted?
of the alleged arch-enemy of Charles II, daring to in the foreground-
The reason for the Jewish petitioners to stand!

The king personally took care of resolving both matters.
Applications and ordered that a member of the Privy Council the "Submit the matter to Parliament." Despite the influence of the
The sympathetic General Monk apparently had the Privy
The Council, taking public opinion into account, did not dare to do so.
to recommend a special decision to Parliament.
On December 17, 1660, Mr. Hollis presented the proposal to Parliament. presented. In the journal of parliament for the day in question.
We find the following entry: "Mr. Hollis submits to this House, an instruction issued by the Lords of the Privy Council
To His Majesty. They especially commend to this House the contents therein.

- 2) Guildhall Archives, Remembrancer Vol. IX No. 44 fols. 1-18.
27) Privy Council Register of 7 December 1660.

It was decided to address this matter the following morning.
(To renegotiate?)

It is to be agreed with Henriques that unfortunately the nearest
There is no entry in the journal relating to the matter for several days.
On the other hand, Henriques and Wolf apparently also have oversee that the following note can be found on December 20th: "The humble request of many merchants, tradespeople and artisans workers in and around the City of London and in other locations within His Majesty's Realm in England, it was-read and filed away).

It is admitted that this note makes no mention of Jews and the previous treatment by the Privy Council is. However, there is a high probability that that this is the aforementioned application from the City-has been. However, in both cases, despite the original recommendation by the King, the matters-to let parliament decide, neither something in

This has occurred in both a positive and a negative sense.

One really has to wonder why, despite the mutual Despite great effort, nothing happened. The Jewish historians Wolf and Henriques also looked into this. Wolf believes that parliament could do nothing, since after the Opinions submitted by some judges at the Whitehall Conference
There were no laws that restricted Jews' residence in England"). As a result, they would have to-lived lawfully in England. Henriques") takes the view that the treatment was probably omitted because parliament is bad "on religious matters".
It was accessible. Neither historian can be held accountable.
be tested.

Wolf overlooks the fact that the opinion of the lawyers under the influence of Crom-wells is highly dubious, especially since at least an equal number of opposing views from others
The lawyers are involved. Apart from that, it is very likely that the Judge Tyril, responsible for this under Charles II, addressed the matter.
I adopted the latter viewpoint, which alone is objectively correct.
It seems that it was still the case in 1846, otherwise it would not have been the case.
the laws discussed above from the time of Henry III and Edward I's will be abolished by a formal act of parliament.
who needed it." Finally, Wolf overlooked the fact that the city was out-expressly requested, if necessary, new laws for this purpose to enact.

15) Journals of the House of Commons Vol. VIII p. 209.

2) Henriques: Return p. 96

*) Journals of the House of Commons Vol. VIII p. 217.

u) Wolf: Jewry p. 16/17.

2) Henriques: Return p. 96

3) 9 and 10 Victoria, chapter 59.

166

Henriques is getting somewhat closer to the matter. Parliament was not inclined to give its consent to the settlement of the Jews to give, and in that respect it really wasn't particularly "too-Acceptable." The king will therefore probably withdraw. have decided not to push the matter to the extreme, so-who initially it is a state of purely personal tolerance-to leave the situation as it was. Regarding the legal situation under Cromwell. So nothing had changed.

Charles II, Protector of the Jews

Despite the powerful influence of the City, the onslaught of Anti-Semites defeated. A result that is not surprising. If one considers the reasons for Charles II's friendliness towards Jews. pursues.

We have already seen above that the Hebrews at that time supported the king not insignificantly by giving him money, weapons and They had supported munitions. How high were the total financial costs? It is no longer possible to determine what these donations were. Picciotto™) believes that these amount to one million guilders. which was an enormous sum for those times is. He considers it possible that details of the ab-The Jews' dealings with Charles II, and still documents in Jewish archives are located in Holland, but we are not expecting them to be opened. They will probably wait in vain just as they did for the opening of the Archives of the House of Rothschild. Wolf?) refers to the expressions of gratitude Charles II's guilt towards the Jews was expressed with the words: "The The king had already pledged allegiance to the Jews." We hold This view is quite correct and we consider it the only one. The reason for addressing the above matter is likely due to... Even after his return, Charles II sought the help of the Jews in An-saying, since he, as Tovey emphasizes, is constantly in money-embarrassment was.

It is therefore not surprising that Charles II became even more gracious-pointed out as Cromwell, who as a special exceptional treatment of a Jews only permitted the granting of citizenship to Carvajal. added. However, in the case of Charles II, we can already see 19 in 1661. to identify such naturalizations, among which is also the Cromwell found Dormido to be so meritorious. Further Such awards were presented in the following years in- larger number %7).

However, what most distinguished Charles II was the one who was, for him, the leading figure =) Picciotto p. 43.

3) Wolf: Jewry p. 15, First Stage p. 121.

) Tovey p. 279.

3) Hyamson: History p. 172, Wolf: Jewry p. 18. Mesquita p. 242, Domestic State Papers Vol. 1661/62 p. 214.

167

Appoint active Jew Colonel. After he officially converted to Christianity at the end of 1660, he was appointed under the Sir Augustine Colonel was knighted®). However, Sir Augustine has had little luck in his new position. have, because his fellow race members are outraged by his conversion to Christianity, they seem to have persecuted him for it. We er- State documents show that he was at the king sought protection against the Jews®), who, however, probably couldn't or wouldn't help, because a little later We find in the same collection of documents that Sir Augustine has gone bankrupt *°).

The public favoritism shown to the Jews by Charles II had an effect also in that there are always new members of this breed immigrated to England. (Tovey's announcement) that they were In 1663, there were no more than twelve Jewish families in London. "Having been resident" cannot be correct. The assumption also... Wolf's?) and Hyamson's*), it would have been at the beginning of the directing- During the reign of Charles II, approximately 35 Jewish families settled in London. "Settled" doesn't seem to do justice to the situation. Much- Henriques' point of view will become closer to the truth. come, according to which around this time approximately 500 Jews were in London were. However, even in the latter case, it is a relatively small merchant community in relation to the large merchant community of The city had only a small Jewish colony in terms of numbers, for which the king made his decisions in 1660 deployed. This too is an example in history of that it is not the number of Jews that matters, but merely their Money, the influence they bought with it, and their international connections

The draws will be decisive.

In the later years of his reign, an uninterrupted (to determine the broken immigration of the Jews®) and it is there-
This is not unfounded, if Tovey refers to Charles II as "the importer".
the term "of the Jews". Nevertheless, art-Sustaining forces. Violet wrote a [document/article] on December 18, 1660.
new pamphlet against the Jews, to be published at the beginning of next year was published. The booklet was in the form of a petition-He addressed a letter to the king and sought above all the to demonstrate the damage that the Jews have always suffered, and which was then entirely especially in England. Their stay was with Consideration of the non-revocation of the laws in force before 1290-(Leaving regulations unlawful'®). They would come from all over the world.

25) Wolf: Jewry pp. 8, 17, Le Neve: Pedigrees Vol. 8 p. 145.

*) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1665/66 p. 118.

%) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1665/66 p. 137.

41) Tovey p. 279.

4) Wolf: Jewry p. 19.

4) Hyamson: History p. 168.

4% Henriques: Special Taxation p. 54/55.

45) Tovey p. 279.

4) Violet: Petition p. 2, 3.

168

the Jews, through their mutual solidarity, to wealth wealth. It didn't matter to them, now in this, now in that to live in the country. Her frauds in England already began.
into the immeasurable." Why not banish them, like "that it was done with the Jesuits." Luckily, Oliver Cromwell died, who had received large sums from them.
and was not averse to offering them the entry- in return to transfer information from customs duties. He had previously spoken with Carvajal.
It is said that Oliver Cromwell ordered the settlement of 2000 Jewish "Wanted to allow merchants to do so in exchange for a payment of one million."
Even this publication could not lead to a ver-Changed attitudes. On the contrary, we will see that Judas' influence is growing ever stronger.

Even before his return to England, Charles II harbored marriage ambitions plans. Initially, he had thought of marrying Mazarin's niece to marriage. After his reinstatement, the Spanish The court, in his interest, a princess of Parma. The French king, however, desired a union with Catherine. of Braganza, in order to bring Charles II into the hands of France—formed an anti-Spanish front. After lengthy intrigues. The king was persuaded to marry Catherine. In historical research, his election as The main reason was considered to be the rich dowry. This consisted of including the cession of what was then in Portuguese possession—Tangier and in a cash amount of 2 million Crusados, which at that time probably corresponded to about £800,000^{@@}). Furthermore Free trade was guaranteed in Portugal and its colonies, which the Jews in London were particularly interested in, since the living conditions of their fellow race members in Portugal through the anti-Jewish movements there were steadily decreasing. As a result, more and more of them emigrated to London. and then sailed under the name of an English merchant. We have no doubt that the Hebrews used all means to... They have worked towards the Portuguese connection. This confirms this is due to the fact that on the English side, especially General Monk and his Jewish friend Coronel negotiate in this marriage matter). The Portuguese Despite the persecution of Morrano, Hof is likely to have suffered a significant loss. Jews may have been influenced, because despite everything, there were Jews there. The nobility and court were still completely Jewish, as a traditional anecdote goes. best shows:

The King of Portugal ordered that all those who were Those of Jewish descent were told they had to wear yellow hats. Then it appeared

7) Violet: Petition p. 4.

4) Violet: Petition p. 5.

4) Violet: Petition p. 7.

) Ranke: History Vol. III p. 345, Lingard Vol. IX p. 68 ff, Clark: Late Stuarts p. 58, Chamberlayne: Angliae Notitia p. 133 ff., 5) Wolf: Jew in Diplomacy p. 400, Margoliouth: History Vol. II p. 24.

169

one of the ministers with three yellow hats in his hand for an audience with the king. When the king asked about the purpose of the Regarding head coverings, he replied that he had hardly encountered a member of the Adels are known to be not related to Jews by marriage. In order not to To avoid disobeying the king's command, he had, as a precaution,

A hat for himself, one for the Inquisitor General, and one for all eventualities
"Also brought one for the king."

However, this anecdote does not unjustly highlight the Judaization of the
The number of Portuguese court and nobility also sheds light on this.
of the Hebrews in the bride's entourage. Of all the Jewish Writers who have dealt with this topic will find this to be-emphatically emphasized. There is, however, agreement about the individual They disagree on the names, their large number and their influence on "The Queen, or rather, there is no dispute with Charles II." That was the case.
One was the Queen's personal physician, while another held the office the chamberlain's duties. A no lesser, indeed perhaps the most important, aspect.
Several very wealthy Jews played a significant role, among them
The brothers Duarte and Francisco held leading positions among them.
da Silva, who probably with Dormido and through him again related to the family of Menasseh Ben Israel Relationships existed. Duarte da Silva had long been a banker in Amsterdam was and by order of the King of Portugal assigned to the retinue of Catherine of Braganza.
Upon conclusion of the marriage contract, he was appointed procurator of the appointed to the Treasury of the King of Portugal." His authority-
The findings as such were very extensive. Apparently, that was Cash for the dowry was also collected by the Jews.
have been, one group of which has thus become a regular society-formed a company when they were completely overwhelmed by the management of the enormous a
"It was their responsibility, from which they made great profits." This and their Further activities arise, among other things, from those still recorded in state books.
existing entries. Thus we find from May to December There are numerous references to this in 1662. On May 23rd, Duarte da Silva instructed £20,000 to the Duke of York, the Brother of the King to pay®). On June 6th and 10th.
Duarte da Silva each paid £16,000 to the tax office. weisen®). Already on June 15th, he received the then-considered conduct-a large sum of £1,000 was paid out, which was true-
"probably counted as remuneration for his work."
Further orders concerning payments can be placed on June 22nd.
to the total amount of £24,000." One indication for the fact that the Jews not only administered the queen's charitable trust,

š) Lindo p. 375.

53) Esp. Wolf: Jewry p. 18 fl., Gaster p. 97, Hyamson: History p. 172, Picciotto p. 44.
5) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1661/62 p. 380.

55) Wolf: Jewry p. 20.

s) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1661/62 p. 380.

87) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1661/62 pp. 400, 403.

s) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1661/62 p. 407.

but probably also provided the money had, as evidenced by a transfer dated June 24 to the Councillor Backwell in the amount of £53,700). The latter was to one of the most important English bankers of this period, surprisingly- Probably not a Jew, although he mostly only interacted with Jews as can be seen from his remaining cash books. as can be determined"). They can also be found on July 4th and August 13th. Payment instructions to da Silva®). Finally, we see... Further entries of similar content from December 4th and 10th. These payments are interesting insofar as they are always made to the Brother Francisco da Silva were made®®),

It is therefore easy to see how much the position of Jews were strengthened through the Portuguese marriage. As a result, The steward of the Queen's cash assets was Charles II during his They maintained a perpetual need for money to retain her favor. In addition... The other Hebrews in the queen's entourage ensured that the The interests of their fellow race members were not neglected. Furthermore The Jews who had fled from Portugal to London could now in peace and quiet as English merchants with Portugal and its Colonial empire trade, as Jewish historians "Triumphantly remarking").

Indeed, Judah could be content with his position in England historiography has mostly written about such experiences. The events were largely ignored. Hopefully, she will be back soon. Rewritten taking into account Jewish influence. Charles II's subservience to Jews is also evident in the fact that one can read about... Years 1663, or at least from year 1664 onwards, a public This question can determine the religious practices of the Jews. This has given rise to a wide variety of theories.

As already mentioned above, Wolf believes that even in the early- the very beginnings of the Jewish resettlement around the year 1660 A synagogue was present. Picciotto®) gives the earliest date here- for the year 1662, while a very carefully prepared modern work by W. Samuel®) wants to set the year 1657, Others, such as Hyamson'), Dr. Gaster®) and Henriques®) We want to assume the year 1663 or 1664. We would like to I will not comment in detail on this point, as it is in the foreground. The general questions seem unimportant. The latter historians' theory has much to offer because they rely on the testimonies of impeccable contemporaries and documentary evidence. mente supports. In addition, the general friendliness towards Jews is also likely to be su ") Domestic State Papers Vol. 1661/62 p. 418.

") Wolf: Jewry p. 19.

) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1661/62 pp. 429, 459.

6) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1661/62 pp. 581, 587.

") Wolf: Jewry p. 20.

s) Picciotto p. 30.

) Samuel S. 3 ff.

#) Hyamson: History pp. 168, 172, 176.

e) Gaster p. 7.

) Henriques Return p. 97/98.

171

The situation under Charles II had progressed so far in 1663 that the Jews had no right to public religious practice I saw more.

After the City of London's application in 1660 was unsuccessful One might have thought that, especially after the further increase of Jewish influence at court and elsewhere—where no further attacks would have taken place, but already in In 1664, the king again had to intervene in favor of the Jews. seize.

As far as we can tell from their petition to the King on this matter, they had measures taken by anti-Jewish circles to fear. "They would," we learn, "be attacked daily by Some people were threatened with the confiscation of all their assets. Furthermore, they were informed that their lives and property were at risk. The king had been forfeited according to the laws of the land. They were particularly harassed and bothered by a Mr. Richaut. anxious. At the same time, they would have expected the Count's visit. from Berkshire, who, according to his statement, had an oral He had the king's instructions to protect her and, if she was not to reach a quick agreement with him, their assets to move in."

As source material, we are limited to this petition from the Jews instructed so that we cannot hear the other side. Wolf") and Hyamson") are in their statements on this matter assumed that it was a solo action by the Count of Berkshire and Mr. Richaut, but that was already

This is refuted by the text of the Jewish petition to the king. Initially, the applicants there speak of "some peace-disturbers" and then "especially" by Mr. Richaut and the Earls of Berkshire. This already implies that they are the action was carried out by a number of people, in which the Both of the aforementioned were likely leading figures. Wolf refers to The actions of the Earl of Berkshire were described as stupid blackmail. He found no evidence for this, but instead he relies on... solely based on Dormido's knowledge of legal matters- heiten. One cannot assume that a man from The Earl of Berkshire's range relied on a verbal instruction. of the king, which had not been granted to him. He did not belong to him. not only the high nobility, but was also Royal Chamberlain Mr. and member of the Privy Council. Furthermore, it should not The fact that he was the second oldest son of the Count of Suffolk, who, as already mentioned above, was under James I had ordered the expulsion of the Jews. On the other hand This is also the order claimed by the Earl of Berkshire of Königs did not bind the latter to the Jews

7) See reproduction of the document in Gaster, p. 4.

71) Wolf: Jewry p. 24/25

72) Hyamson: History 8 "172/73.

172

quite understandable. There is only one explanation for this: that Charles II for some reason protected the Jews through alleged protection-measures again to express gratitude and therefore to the Count Berkshire may have only given the order as a formality.

Another interpretation of this mandate would be that he thereby at least outwardly, for a while, the anti-Semitic wanted to accommodate certain circles. Our view should also be not by the King's reply of August 22, 1664 to the The petition of the Jews is refuted. He did, however, explain in it, he had "no specific instructions regarding her harassment or Deportation order given, and they definitely want his Favor is assured to the same extent as before, as long as they living peacefully and quietly, obedient to the royal laws and "would behave without scandal." What other answer could there be? That is also expected of him!

The Jew Dr. Gaster") has described Charles II's answer as "fundamental Award certificate of the English Jews" (Wolf')

However, it has been thoroughly argued that this designation is misleading- is leading and does not correspond to the facts. Rather, it It was merely a written declaration of tolerance.

The one by any employee of the synagogue on the Um- The document contained a note entitled "Tolerance Law". So, a misleading term.

Another attack against the Jews had been repelled, the next
But it shouldn't take long.
Just like Oliver Cromwell's pro-Jewishness about the Once the borders of England had penetrated, the reputation of Charles II also seems to have to have been international in this respect. On February 5th-
In February 1666 we find the application of a Dutchman.
Jews for the issuance of a passport for themselves and others 50 Jewish families for the purpose of a journey from Amsterdam to Palestine"). How this request from a Dutch Jew was received by the English-Unfortunately, it was not certain that the proposal could be made to the king.
deliver. However, there is no reason to assume that Charles II.
did not comply with this request.
The circles within the population who are fighting the Jews with all their might They attempted to take further steps in this regard. On On February 6, 1671, they believed a good opportunity had arisen.
when it was decided to establish a committee "to investigate the reasons to research the growth of Catholicism and a to prepare a legislative proposal regarding its prevention and to introduce, as well as investigations regarding the admission-number of Jews and their synagogues, as well as the number of people living in the area to undertake conditions under which they were permitted to be here live. The committee has compiled a corresponding report.

(Reproduced in Gaster, pp. 4, 5.)

2 Gaster p. 3.

5 Wolf: Jewry pp. 26-28.

78) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1665/66 p. 232.

to submit his views on this matter to the House ... ").
But this proposal, too, should be rejected.
Committee report of 17 February to Parliament discussed only the reasons for the rise of Catholicism and the Measures deemed necessary in response. Regarding the Jewish-
We don't hear a single word about it anymore, which is just...
This can be explained by the fact that the king and the Jews ensured that An unpleasant matter for both parties, preferably not to be discussed.
to be treated by an official body. Once again, it was necessary.
accomplished, through means unknown to us, the attention-
The ability of parliament to counter the efforts of the anti-Semites move in. But soon we will see how the whole power the king was needed to address the Jewish question to evade a legal basis. The necessity for this
It should happen faster than expected.

In the winter of 1673, the leaders of the Jewish community in City Hall of London "charged with sedition because they met in Dukes Place to practice their religion

"Would have." The jurors involved found the Jews According to the indictment, guilty under existing laws.
and sentenced them accordingly." An English court had
This contradicts previous unlawful practices.
The king issued orders. The Jews realized that this time Their situation was serious. It was no longer the parliament whose One's activities are carried out through intrigue and secret influences with the help of t Königs could not be withdrawn from his duties, but a close-A court that clearly ruled against her had. Her salvation, in turn, could only come from the king.
The leaders of the Jewish community therefore immediately turned to with a petition to him. In support of their request, they stated:
his declaration from 1664 and pointed out that that they had met the required specifications. Should
If the king did not protect them, they would leave England.
It is also noticeable here that the Jews again associate demeanor with The threat was linked to the fact that their departure from England was a threat to Charle which must mean great damage. We already learned the same above.
Tactics at Menasseh Ben Israel.

Was it the content of the petition or other factors that caused it?
What considerations and forces influenced Charlemagne II? We know.
Not anymore. In any case, he decided against the law.
and a court for the Jews. In his reply of February 11, 1674
He informs them that "he is pleased to decree today – and It was hereby ordered – that the Crown Prosecutor shall conduct all court proceedings – to stop driving against the petitioners and continue to ensure to bear the burden of not having to do any further in this matter should be subjected to harassment..." 79),

7) Journals of the House of Commons Vol. IX p. 198.

78) Webb p. 39, Haggard Vol. I Appendix p. 2.

73) Webb p. 38/39, Haggard Vol. I App. p. 2, 3.

174

What a decision for a king! Consider that Charles II undertook against public opinion and laws in favor of a small
The number of people of foreign origin has increased by a step, from which even
It was doubtful whether he was acting against the constitution – as even
The Jew Henriques rightly observed that he would be expelled.
Henriques also deals with the question of why.
Parliament did not intervene, which he could not have done without...
This is due to the fact that it was postponed immediately afterwards.
was before he learned of this order from the king.
Friends of Jews in parliament will have already made sure of that.
According to the English constitution, this order from the king no legal force whatsoever. At least it was a...

new proof that the king himself, even under the strongest pressure, They protected themselves. This also explains why they immediately whereupon they had their synagogue significantly enlarged." Another The new wave of naturalizations also seems to be a consequence of this. to be a being, for no fewer than 19 Jews acquired in this Time, English citizenship. Other similar associations Loans to a total of 53 Jews during the reign Can evidence of Charles II still be found today??).

In 1675, an event occurred that was insignificant but always... A significant incident. The king received a visit from a Jews from Holland, who gave him a model of the Temple in Jerusalem presented. He was a skilled draftsman and as such, he Coat of arms still used by the English Grand Lodge of the Free- designed by mason®).

The stance of Charles II meant that as early as 1677 a Mass immigration of Jews from Eastern Europe began. Apparently, many of them were poor, as evidenced by the still-present evidence today. Documents received from the Jewish community can be determined can. For the first time, Jews from Poland and Russia poured out. about England. This refutes the widespread belief that there were there mainly only the supposedly more civilized Jews of the West. Apparently, the presence was already established back then. these down-and-out Hebrews in London were unpopularly treated This was made noticeable, as the citizens of the city met in advance. remedial measures for monitoring and limiting the Jewish immigration®). Nevertheless, the influence of the Jews increased. in the city. On September 26, 1679, we find in State- The following entry appears in the documents: "The East India Company, which several ships were expected to return home; began their sale as usual last week. However, since the Jews are celebrating their festival of the Since tabernacles were in use, the sale postponed, but has now started again ...®).."

3) Henriques: Return p. 102.

81) Gaster p. 7.

82) Webb, Appendix p. 17/18.

) De Mesquita: Ancient Burial Ground p. 239.

) Hyamson: History p. 183, Wolf: First Stage p. 123.

#5) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1679/80 p. 253.

The history of the Jews repeatedly confirms that they always through some despicable acts again turn public opinion against them as soon as they enjoy the protection and all the privileges of a country. Thus- It also happened in London in 1680.

A certain Eve Cohan from a wealthy Jewish family in Holland had converted to Christianity and had sided with to go to London to be accompanied by her brother's Christian servant. The family stopped at nothing to get them back home—spend. We have received a letter from Lord Bishop William of St. Asaph. A detailed account of this case has been received. He tells us how the Jewish woman was already on her escape from Holland after England, she lived in daily fear for her life because of her was persecuted by the Jews®), who also took them to London persecuted. Englishmen were bribed, who, together with Hebrews, They put Eve in the most uncomfortable situations. They didn't shy away from it. Before that, fabricated claims of up to £2,000 were brought before the court. to assert claims against them and subsequently, according to the then to put them in prison under the laws?). When the Jews and their Helpers realized that they could assert their claim against the relevant authority. Unable to enforce their rights in court, they referred the matter to another court. (referring to methods that appear more favorable to them), which we can use. also known from the years before 1933. It was hoped that this would To buy time and wear Eve Cohan down in prison. After her release, they had her brutally beaten. When As a result, she, who had meanwhile been the former employee had married her brother, a premature birth®). Now it was finally— The public was made aware of the case. Bishop William took charge of the matter and informed the mayor. the City of London on the matter. He let 'the Jewish representatives of the mother come, and in their fear they confessed their misdeeds®). The The mayor, supported by the public, threatened to punish them if they do not forgive Eve for all she has suffered. Compensation for the injustice. Otherwise, he would be liable to all legal measures. permissible severity not only against the perpetrators, but 'against the entire Jewish community of London. "He also gave order to submit to him a list of all the laws which against the Jews" °t). Unfortunately, it is not possible today. determine more whether and what measures the mayor will take master has seized control. However, they are probably due to be— The influences at court also did not extend to the initial stage. The results are unknown.

- 86) Bishop William S. 5.
- 87) Bishop William p. 13.
- 8) Bishop William, p. 14.
- 8) Bishop William S. 21.
- % Bishop William S. 22.
- 1) Bishop William S. 23.

However, it is not impossible that a new, very serious attack against the Jews occurred in the same year as the above events to establish a connection.

From a surviving letter from Lord Anglesey to the Secretary-
From the King's decree of August 6, 1680, we see that their Apparently, they wanted to significantly restrict rights.
Two audiences with the king took place. Sir Peter Pett had in addition, they undertook the trouble of obtaining old documents from the time before to inspect the 1290 and give a presentation to the king about what proves that one is inclined to intervene in the event of an intervention was, to go back to certain legal conditions before the expulsion-access. They considered including some prominent figures, including Sir Peter Pett, to be appointed as special judges. Lord Anglesey further suggested bringing in leading Jewish figures, to hear their opinion, among other things, on whether and which They pay special taxes for the permission to trade and
They are apparently inclined to pay for general residence.
All in all, a kind of ghetto was planned. The clergy-keit was also interested in this new scheme and through the Bishop of Lincoln®).

As you can see, important figures of that time had
The cause of the anti-Semites was accepted, yet it proved the secret forces as stronger. The proposals were still being discussed.
submitted to the Privy Council for consideration, but further reports emerged nothing more about it. We can only acknowledge the Jew Wolf °) in The result of the finding will be followed if he triumphantly declares-notices that "powerful influences opposed it and the approach-
"The opportunity was fortunately dropped." Very true.
He probably means that the Jews always invest in money-supported the embarrassed king.

We are also in contact with various Jewish scientists®).
agreed that the entire development of Judaism
The impact in England would have been completely different if this plan had been implement
The opponent would have succeeded. For almost two hundred years, the Jews in England were ahead of their racial counterparts on the continent.
Their rights were somewhat limited, but generally
They had all options available to them, including mixed marriages.
open.

The reign of Charles II was drawing to a close, without any further noteworthy incidents occurring in the Jewish question King Charles II died on February 6, 1685. His Jewish personal advisor also died.
The doctor had not been able to cure him of his illness®).

He was succeeded on the throne by his brother Jacob II, who, however,
He only ruled for a short time. As after Cromwell's death,

*) All Souls Coll. MS 239 fol. 423.

) Wolf: Status p. 185.

% Wolf: Status p. 185, also: Whitehall Conference in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc. Vol. V p. 280, Roth: New Light p. 134/35.

25) De Mesquita: Ancient Burial Ground pp. 241, 242.

12 Jews conquer England 177

immediately after taking office, the Jewish opponents, to find out if the new king is favorable to the Jews was inclined to be like that or not.

In the interest of a consistent account, we have so far a process from the year 1672 was not addressed, as it was for The "foreigners' tax," so important to Jews, was abolished. Regulation was the main point of contention under Jacob II. and also in the first years of his successor's government, William III. The reason for this tax was as follows: Since earliest times, foreigners have been exempt from all taxes of the King's surcharges had to be paid. For example, the goods were subject to foreign merchants, regardless of whether they exported or imported "Tied, special public levies," to which foreigners are subject. nor could they escape the fact that the king had told them Naturalization patent – as is often the case with Jews under What had happened to Charles II – was awarded.

When Charles II was installed as King of England, he was granted his rights. A law was passed to regulate his income. Taxes. This regulation is known as the "Great Statute". known and practically only abolished in 1785. According to this, the king was also provided with those from the so-called: Foreign-tax-related income is left at free disposal has been paid. If the person liable for payment did not pay this tax In accordance with regulations, the goods in question were confiscated. Half of the value went to the crown, the other half to the... Offenders reporting offenses."

It should be understandable that this foreigner's tax is a good represented a source of income for the respective beneficiary. Furthermore The English merchants also made sure that they raised This was one of the main reasons why the competition The foreigner was tolerable at all. So it is not surprising that that this tax was already in place at least under King Henry VII. Existence.

It is all the more surprising, therefore, that we find in the official collection find a law from 1672 that contains these tax regulations fundamentally abolishes and stipulates that by the king a-naturalized citizens and other foreigners on domestic products would no longer have to pay higher taxes than native-born citizens English. The only exception was for the export of coal. exist®). It should be understood that this statute has the sanctioning of parliament. What were the reasons for this stance? before, which seems all the more incomprehensible given English trade, whose representatives were also present in the House of Commons, was significantly affected by the abolition of this tax. We have made every effort to understand the reasons for the increase.

) Henriques: Special Taxation p. 58, Law of Aliens p. 98.

) Henriques: Special Taxation p. 59/60.

26) Statutes of the Realm Vol. V p. 791/92.

178

to ascertain the mood of Parliament, but all research was in vain. The press of that time gives no information future, including the official collections that may be relevant. They remain silent. So unfortunately, we are left with only assumptions. shown. Henriques®) believes that the law is in the interest of It was issued to the general public, in particular to regulate exports to promote. This view cannot be correct, since precisely the narrow- The public has never agreed with how the Incidents still to be dealt with during the government term: Yes- Cobs II and William III show: will be. 1 We maintain that the decree is based on other grounds. This is due to the following: Through the aforementioned "Great Statute", Charles II was declared king. The person entitled to receive the taxes has been declared. It was therefore largely dependent on whether he could achieve his goals through up- lifting these taxes on a portion of his privileges ten wanted. So it was simply up to him to choose himself. to implement a tax regime favorable to Jews. Therefore, is it permissible to... It is not reasonable to assume that Charles II, in particular, might have been against Was the Jews prepared to offer a settlement? It will be argued, however, that they are not alone, but also other foreigners were favored by this law, which is fundamentally which is also true. But wasn't Charles II perhaps willing to include this in To take the purchase? Didn't he still have the Jews to deal with? Does it favor other foreigners? 0 The law of 1672 states namely, it was expressly stipulated that foreigners continue Export tax would have to be paid on coal. This special However, the regulation was of no particular interest to the Jews, since (the coal trade was not in their hands). This may also explain the parliament's stance. 'This question lies within the scope of what we will discuss in the following period until By the year 1858, we experienced that the people and parliament were very often completely They hold opposing views on the Jewish question. The People's Association

Kicks are apparently mostly caused by some kind of influence. held, without regard for the will of their voters, Jewish- to pursue a friendly policy. These secret forces are not Bribes are rare. Members of the English Parliament- Even at that time, members were by no means free of these errors. Thus, we find debates in the House of Commons about them, that members of parliament are only elected through bought voters- "They may come." But whoever bribes even in such a case, He might also be susceptible to bribery. Furthermore, that just a few years earlier, in 1662, large sums of money had been spent were used to sway parliament to a particular stance.

0 Henriques: Special Taxation p. 60.

10) Tovey also believes in favoritism, but gives no reason; See Tovey, p. 287.

101) Cunningham: Growth, Vol. Modern Times p. 247.

1) Cobbet Vol. V p. 434 ff.

129%

179

leave on. The Spanish ambassador was not deterred from doing so Riick, to distribute funds to members of the House of Commons, to support their plan for the marriage of Charles II, which was desired by Spain. to win 1%). Why shouldn't the following also win after all this? Did Jews take this path?

Upon Jacob II's accession to the throne, he was expressly appointed by Law of Parliament transfers various tax revenues!). Among other things, the relevant law also refers to the entry- Reference was made to incomes according to the Great Statute, whereas the The law from 1672 was left unmentioned. According to the correct... By this interpretation, the law of 1672 was considered to be tacitly adopted. repealed, in other words, the foreigner tax was reinstated revived). Apparently, the Jews immediately reacted to this. Ideas raised by Jacob II; for immediately after In- He declared the law to come into force by a simple decree, The foreigner tax is still considered abolished).

Now the City of London tried to persuade the king through a petition. to change the request. Their efforts and the general un- But their will made no impression on the king, and it remained in its original arrangement*). This is all the more true- more peculiar than the City had thoroughly pointed out to him, that the provision he made was English economic must ruin interests at home and abroad. Even the act- The fact that the submission contains the signatures of 64 of the respected The fact that the merchants wore the robes did not change the king's attitude. Further submissions from world-famous trading companies in England, such as "The Hamburg Company", "Eastland Company" and the purchase- People in the west and north of England suffered the same fate. sal). The number and economic power of the applicants was certainly superior to the Jews, since it encompassed almost all important English merchants were involved; nevertheless, the The king decided in favor of the Jews.

The dispute over this tax should be brought back into the fray with full force. The first years of William III's reign ignited. Before we However, let us address this, and let us discuss the reign of Jacob II: by describing another struggle in the Jewish question- close.

As mentioned previously, there was a statute dating back to the time of Queen Elizabeth that imposed significant penalties for non-attendance at Christian services threatened church services!®). This regulation was by no means repealed, but hardly noticed in recent decades had been. But a certain Thomas Beaumont then attacked in the autumn In 1685, this law was invoked and charges were brought for violation.

10% Lingard Vol. IX p. 72.

1) Statute of the Realm Vol. VI p. 1.

105) See also Henriques: Special Taxation, p. 61.

106) Tovey, pp. 287, 294.

17) Margoliouth: Anglo-Hebrew p. 44.

108) Tovey p. 288.

10) Henriques: Return p. 105/06.

180 of the aforementioned statute against 48 Jews. He even had 37 of them arrested when they had gathered at the stock exchange. The Jews saw that they could achieve nothing by resorting to the courts- could be sufficient, as the measures were based on existing laws. supported. They therefore chose the one that had already been suggested earlier. The alternative path of personally appealing to the king. In a Ge- They referred him in turn to the explanations of Charles II. from the year 1673 and pointed out that the The requirement there - impeccable conduct - that they had complied with the terms. The arrest had caused them already significantly damaged its reputation. In the end They then requested that the proceedings be discontinued.

Just like Charles II, Jacob II also issued the desired decree on November 13, 1685, among other things, with the words, "it is decreed that the Crown Attorney should discontinue all proceedings" v). Were they again "the powerful influences", to use the words Wolf's in the same orders of Charles II in 1680 to What can be said about the actions of the anti-Semites that brought down the campaign? We have no reason to assume the opposite.

That James II otherwise also wished the Hebrews well is evident. from the fact that during the three years of his reign no fewer than 34 Jews have been naturalized!) – a even compared to the awards under Charles II. a relatively high number –.

Thus we have seen that Charles II and James II were more interested in inter- food of the Jews were more inclined to eat than that of their own Subjects. That this servitude was not without reciprocal services, It should be clear to anyone with any sense. The achievements of the Jews most likely consisted of payments, since both Mr.– who were constantly in financial trouble. That they couldn't even shy away from annual payments of up to £100,000 from King Lud– to receive Wig XIV of France, in order to receive every French– (to prevent hostile policies of parliament), is only a secondary consideration. mentioned. So if they were subject to foreign rulers... The binding of the will of the English people, accepting money, why Shouldn't they then also use the Jews' money for the same? Demand a purpose and put it in your pocket?

Other friends of Jews: Jacob II and Wilhelm III.

At the end of 1688, Jacob II left England. William III stood outside London and moved immediately after the escape James II entered the capital. We know that he had a larger one.

110) Haggard Vol. I Appendix p. 3, Webb p. 39/40.

111) Webb, Appendix pp. 18/19.

(uz) Clark, pp. 82 ff., 125.

to equip expeditionary forces for its undertakings. According to Jewish historians, the money for this is to come from... Researchers were primarily provided by Jews be. After that, the financing was in the hands of the Jewish Bankiers Francisco Lopez Suasso, who later settled in England– The money probably did not go directly to William III.

The money was not paid, but to the Dutch state. Does this apply?
In that case, the amount given by the Jews should be comparable to those £600,000 are involved, which were later paid by the English
The government was to pay Holland for the expedition."
The well-known Jewish historian Margoliouth makes
He provided precise details, but without naming his sources.
According to his account, William III had to adjust his preparations the expedition to England is temporarily cancelled due to lack of funds stop. As he desperately searched for a way out, he was He was contacted by a Jew who informed him without any transition,
"The Jewish nation is prepared to support him with 2 million (probably-to support (a certain amount of guilders). If you are successful, pay it to us. back. If things go wrong, we're even" ").

Margoliouth proudly remarks that the Jews are therefore back had once done great things for England, and William III his
The crown owes its gold!#).

After Jacob II's flight, a transitional law was initially enacted.
regarding tax collection, adopted by Parliament. This includes
It was intended that, until the final regulation, in principle the tax collections as under Charles II and James II should be observed*). In the absence of explicit mention
The law from 1672 under Charles II would mean this The revival of the aliens tax has meant that single-by Royal Decree of James II of the year 1685 had been repealed. His escape had rendered this regulation ineffective.
But it ceased to exist, and thus the state of restored before the year 1672.

A customs officer named Pennington positioned himself on this right-lichen standpoint, when he on January 1689 a number of Jews were arrested on the grounds that they had been arrested after the Abdication of Jacob II; foreign tax that became due again (not paid). This was not a self-
A splendid individual action by a civil servant, as can easily be seen from the descriptions of Jewish historians") can be read into this, but about an action initially approved by King William III.
Pennington had, in fact, with the support of a high-ranking official,
The treasury officials informed the king about the legal situation.

118) Hyamson: History p. 188, Piciotto p. 52/53.

114) "History Vol. II pp. 40-43, Pilgrimage Vol. II p. 229, Anglo-Hebrew

115) Margoliouth: History Vol. II p. 43.

116) Statutes of the Realm Vol. VI p. 71.

u7) Historical Manuscripts Commission Vol. 22 p. 35, Tovey p. 291.

18) Henriques: Special Taxation p. 62, Hyamson: History p. 185/86.

instructed. He further pointed out that the ex-strong privileges including exemption from foreigner tax
 They could not change anything about the general legal situation. Because The relevant decrees would have been issued after the death of Charles II.
 or the abdication of Jacob II, their legal effect-Loren. Pennington was able to convince the king that the Jews
 They had therefore violated the laws and as a result-the goods in question expire and further
 They were required to pay fines. Furthermore, they had...
 They owed £58,000 in back taxes.
 which had arisen and become due since December 11, 1688.
 The king gave Pennington a free hand within the bounds of the law.
 And so the arrested Jews awaited their sentencing before the competent court. But it shouldn't happen again.
 to come.
 The Jews and their friends had, of course, not remained idle in the development of things. First, the inmates established submitted a petition to the king requesting detention-Dismissal and discontinuation of the proceedings. They gave the following reasons.
 They demand that their naturalization certificates and thus
 The exemption from paying foreigner's tax also came into effect.
 They were. At the same time, they invoked the law from the year 1672 and the repeal act from 1685 (4%). It is up-
 It is due that they too will find the latter justification quite weak.
 appeared and therefore focused more on the former facts supported. With this request, the Jews made all sorts of demands.
 Efforts that are eligible for the procedure-To influence officials favorably, even the courtiers were processed in a similar manner. The means for this were truly-Probably the usual things: money. On such occasions...
 Usually no one is present, and so the details are not discussed.
 to light. Both have the same interest in remaining silent, and On such occasions, the historian relies on circumstantial evidence.
 or conclusions are instructed that are made by inter- in a certain direction were described as outlandish or biased-Therefore, to avoid points of attack, we are careful to...
 to adopt such a stance; rather, we invoke the following:
 As far as possible, in such incidents, the view of the Jewish community should be taken in historians, who can hardly be considered biased can be accused of this. However, the situation here is such that vorwerfen kann. Hier ist aber die Entwicklung derartig, daß
 The outcome of the matter could only be achieved through bribery on the part of who can explain to the Jews.

In any case, the proceedings against the Jews were not right.
 Pennington – acting on the orders of his king – continued.
 and the laws of his country – grew impatient. He made a submission to the Privy Council, which oversees the settings 118) Tovey p. 290/91, Piciotto p. 48/49.

183

had to decide on the request of the Jews, and asked for the continuation of the investigations. In particular, he requested the right to seek before Every decision should not only consider the position of the Jews. take into account, but also him as a representative of the state and to give the floor "especially to the prosecution". His request The only success was that the consultation appointment was finally scheduled. The trial was scheduled. Nine days of negotiations took place, but Pennington was deemed t I never heard from the main representative of the authority. And As under Charles II and James II, the Privy Council under the chairmanship of the King to a decision that neither to reconcile the laws with the wishes of the people- The likely outcome is: The proceedings will be discontinued. In the relevant case- The order of February 26, 1689 provides no justification for this. No stance has been given. Rather, it merely states that "His Majesty according to Considering the matter graciously today, Sir George Treby, His Majesty's Crown Prosecutor, to instruct everyone to The aforementioned information has already led to the initiated proceedings to cease immediately and to refrain from prosecuting further similar cases. to refrain from intervening against the petitioners (Jews), since it is a matter for His M Pleasure lies in deriving full benefit from them. The written commitments made in this regard are pleasing..." 12), Consider that King William III, through this decision, is giving Thousands of pounds in annual revenue are at stake. This is before This was not at all consistent with his initial stance. bring, especially since he declared at the time that he would not rely on one Should Jews waive a penny of taxes owed?#). Also the The entire procedure, especially the treatment of Penning- tons, is very strange. Isn't it therefore reasonable to assume, that William III, in his renunciation of the high annual Was the income from the severance payment adequately compensated? Once again we see how strong the resources of the Jews are. are, even a King of England to make such decisions move.

Renewed fighting

The English merchants were displeased with this arrangement of their capital- They were angered and openly indicated that only bribery would do. could have led to such a result. This is particularly evident to us- (especially from Tovey) which was certainly still I knew enough English people from that time to have an unobjectionable

He likely passed on his free account to posterity. Even the Jewish historians) do not seem to have bribed to deny it.

121) Tovey p. 289, Picciotto p. 48.

122) Tovey p. 290 (he lived from 1692 to 1745).

123) Henriques: Special Taxation p. 63, Picciotto p. 48/49.

184

The opponents of the Jews did not give up immediately, but continued to fight for their rights and what they considered to be necessary shifting economic interests. In a detailed request They alerted the customs authorities that the king had been through the non-prosecution of previous customs offenses committed by Jews regarding would give up £40,000. By abolishing the aliens tax. A further large sum would be lost in the future, which the English taxpayers later in the form of property taxes would have to raise the necessary funds. The Jews lacked real estate— This does not burden them and therefore they are in a much better economic position. posed. Both at home and abroad, England's economy would be affected by the current situation is dominated by Jews. Furthermore has the king, according to his current constitutional The position has no right to intervene. Finally, it should be possible. "Such a discontinuation of the proceedings is merely a noose for the to be a public prosecutor, whether a civil servant or not, because instead to take advantage of the benefits that the law granted them would— which she has almost ruined by preparing the charges that (which was then discontinued through no fault of their own...).

Once again, the Jews did what they could to secure a favorable outcome. to prevent the application from being decided. But all their efforts— The hunger strikes were apparently in vain this time. The pressure of the Vol— Kes must have been very strong, because King William III lifted As of October 14th, 16% of its previous order was reinstated. The In— The same clearly shows that both his and the Jacob II's accession to the throne introduced the foreign tax, according to the Crown lawyers have revived and the previous ruling has been overturned. King William III's actions were contrary to the laws. The actions in Authorities approaching the question were instructed to investigate the aliens— to levy taxes exactly as they were before 1672™*).

The joy was naturally felt by the English merchants. large, and they thanked the king for his action. Reasons for the king's changed, but lawful, stance These can only be speculated upon. Were the officers responsible? have been those who ensured the proper application of the laws— were they enough? Hardly! Because even before, they hadn't been able to reach their full p was able to prevail in this regard. The king had initially the compensation or bribe of the Jews was accepted, and now, after receiving them, he ruthlessly withdrew to the Laws back? Maybe! However, there is more evidence to suggest that... he the overall circumstances, especially his wish for Approval of a large sum of money for conducting his wars in Ireland and France. Above all, he hoped that to place a larger bond in the City of London for this purpose to know), The Jews were hardly inclined to give money

1%) Tovey pp. 290–292.

125) Tovey p. 294/95.

128) Clark p. 168.

185

give, but they had been extraordinarily reserved— shows what can be gleaned from a letter from the Earl of Shrewsbury to the Lord Mayor of London on February 10th, 16% er— can see. Following this, the Earl of Shrewsbury expresses his Resentment that the Jews, despite their many privileges and their flourishing trade in England did not give them much pleasure— felt the urge to subscribe to the issued bond. They had already spoken with They negotiated with their spokespeople and asked if they would also no money to pay for army supplies, which were provided by have been made available to their fellow breeder Pereyra wanted. They would have only offered the amount of £12,000. offered. The king now asked him – the mayor – to to invite Jewish spokespeople and explain to them in an understandable way This would mean that they would definitely have to raise more money. Above all, they should not forget that they owe the king a debt of gratitude. are obliged to protect him???) ,

We do not know if and how much the Jews ultimately received. have been directed. It is also not known why they hesitated— ten, to lend the king money. Perhaps the interest rate was too high for them. of 7% %8) is too low. In any case, her attitude reveals that a cloudiness, even if probably only temporary good relations between the king and the Jews had begun was. This may therefore be a reason for the enactment of the be— It must have been a fitting decree of the king, especially since he in its attempts to borrow on the City's funds) He had supports and it was better for him to deal with the English buyers. To be on good terms with people. It's worth noting, by the way, that Here again, as under Cronwell, we have a Jew apparently occupies a significant position among army suppliers. Along with these battles over the alien tax, Further conflicts regarding the Jewish question took place.

As mentioned above, William III's primary concern was initially to raise the necessary funds for the recapture of Ireland – which was still defended by Jacob II – and for the to find a war against France. Bonds had little impact. With a view to success, new taxes had to be levied. The parliament appointed a committee to be tasked with to find the funds to raise £2 million make^m). It was believed that this was considerable for the time. Total through the introduction of a poll tax and through a single- a special tax levied on Jews in the amount of £100,000 (to be able to bring it about!). In this way the Hebrews would have had twofold... They must pay, as they too are subject to the poll tax. They should. It was expressly stipulated that they should pay the amount.

i Domestic State Papers Vol. 1389/90 p. 453.

'a Henriques: Special Taxation p. 49.

a Acres Vol. I p. 7.

ae) Journals of the House of Commons Vol. X p. 279.
) Journals of the House of Commons Vol.

186

ee I eee

would have to pay £10 per head), while the various Taxpayers are divided into different categories according to their rank and wealth. They had been divided into classes. A comparison with this shows that Jews were held in quite high regard. The poll tax brought £288,000 (one), Parliament also approved [something] for the following year. a poll tax. The Jews were incorporated into the ranks of merchants and brokers. divided. The former received £20, the latter £5, so that They were predisposed to the same things as barons and bishops. In The rest of the Jews had, upon completion of the 16th century, to pay the amount of 10 shillings in the next year^m).

However, the introduction of the special tax on Jews met with considerable resistance. pecuniary difficulties, which are mainly due to The Hebrews used all the means at their disposal. They tried to prevent the introduction of the tax. a special request to Parliament, specifically before-

| was mainly about the law in question. In the document-

It is not included in the parliament's collection, but we find merely the suggestion that it would be improper to submit a petition to the sub- to submit the house in this sense. This opinion prevailed!"), and so the application was never even entered into the official collection- lung received. Henriques) however believes a copy there- to have discovered, and judging by the content, it should be That's correct. She's probably due shortly before November 19th. It was submitted in 1689, the first day of the trial. Equal- The Jews had already spread the rumor early on, that they leave the country when the tax is assessed and would go to Holland®). One can imagine that This threat will not be without influence on the pro-Jewish It has been in circles. On November 19th, the petition was formally submitted. (written by Mr. Foley), which immediately led to the entry- which resulted in a protest. When the spokesperson of the Following this step, the house accepted the Application rejected.

Its content is very interesting. First, we find a brief summary of the history of the Jews since Crom- Well. Then the great importance that they have is pointed out. despite their relatively small number for the English host They have a strong presence. They are very large exporters of woolen products. and "importers of enormous amounts of gold and silver . ., which large customs revenues were generated. Of the Jews alone Since 1660, approximately £200,000 has been paid in customs duties."

"Furthermore, the diamond market has been taken over by the Portuguese."

Possessions in East India through the means and diligence of the Jews

an) Statutes of the Realm Vol. VI p. 65.

13) Parl. History Vol. V Appendix 19 p. 241.

10 Statutes of the Realm Vol. VI p. 158.

1) Parl. History Vol. V p. 444.

116) Henriques: Special Taxation p. 41 ff.

187) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1689/90 p. 318, Luttrell Vol. I p. 603.

188) Parl. History Vol. V p. 444.

187 transplanted here, thereby giving England the monopoly had received this valuable trade item. On this Wisely, many foreigners came to the country to import diamonds.

buy.

Under no circumstances would it be possible for them to pay the sum of £100,000 to the government as tax

It is also untrue that the Jews gave Cromwell a large sum for their branch in England, as it also that it does not correspond to the facts that payments for their lost-various privileges were granted to Charles II and James II.
"...There's a rumor that for everything they don't pay..."
Jews in other countries could step in, since they views them all as a single, unified whole... Allow yourself to... to emphasize that in reality each one of them only is dependent on oneself alone, without being dependent on another.
hang... This way they could be distinguished from their fellow race members in other areas Countries should not expect support; rather, these their capital invested in England upon the introduction of the tax withdraw and thus ruin the business),

Regarding the content, her objection to the apparently expressed assumption that they have the world-Judaism will provide support in paying the £100,000.
would. Apparently, even back then, they were already considering certain things.
They recognized the cooperation of Jews from all countries, which they themselves indirectly confirm by the fact that they at one point
The petition states that "the Jews are a nation".
Henriques*), who seems embarrassed by this remark, is looking for to take away its meaning on the grounds that the meaning
The word "nation" had a different meaning at that time.
than today.

After the petition was rejected in the parliamentary session of November 19, the next session-
The speech has been postponed to December 30th. A special debate.
can no longer be determined; rather, only the following can be found.
Brief official note: "First reading of a law that Jews to impose a tax of £100,000. It was decided that a (second reading is scheduled to take place...) As has often been the case, listen
We have nothing more to say about this. This time: unlike before, it had
The first reading of a motion took place, but it was This did not change the fact that everything that belonged to the Hebrews which could have become dangerous, disappeared without a trace.
Naturally, the Jews and their friends also have considerations.
about how best to abandon the legislative proposal can be explained, but without arriving at a specific view.

a reprint in Henriques: Special Taxation p. 44.
) Henriques: Special Taxation p. 58.

There was enough time to complete the law, as Parliament was in almost continuous session until January 27 met. The need to raise funds for the continuation of the Having a war was more than urgent. Furthermore, the Jews clearly expressed in their petition how They were rich. If one didn't want to collect the entire sum, then One could at least have started with a partial amount, Macaulay, who at the beginning of emancipation in the 19th century- who significantly advocated for the Jews over the hundred years, represents without any co The opinion was based on the idea that "insightful politicians would only have stated" It is possible that a special tax on a small class, which accidentally rich, unpopular and undefended, in reality a It would be tantamount to confiscation. It would have been preferable to implement the law not to continue."). Even the Jewish lawyer and Ge- Historian Henriques does not agree with him. According to his The viewpoint was less about the injustice than about the many- more about the impossibility of raising the sum through The Jews were convinced. This, too, does not seem to be the true There was reason to be, because nothing would have been easier than the to reduce the amount of tax owed. However, the whole thing was left as is. Taxes were falling, and so other "unknown, but" forces probably took hold. powerful influences" that led to the passage of the law- vain.

The year 1694 sees the founding of the Bank of England."). The first directors were exclusively English, and only in During the 18th century, we find Jews in this position. Initially, the Hebrews were against the establishment of the bank and attempted, together with the goldsmiths of the City of London, to bring down the bank. She had been given, among other things, the privilege granted the right to practice banking and trade in gold- and silver bars to take over!"). The former was previously a mono- pole of the goldsmiths, the latter was located exclusively in In the hands of the Jews. Both therefore saw the bank as a possession of the Jews. State-supported, inconvenient competitors. It was also the The Hebrews apparently didn't agree that the bank could operate without their additional s drawing from their old enemies - respected citizens of the City - was launched.

In 1696, the young company faced a difficult crisis. to go through, which can only be survived with the greatest effort- could twist!%), The reason for this was that the government the founding of a competing company, the Landbank, be- favored, and the Bank of England as a result of the unlawful Coinage cuts were unable to meet public needs to cover the cost of undamaged coins. The extent of the crimes was so large that silver coins were now only worth a fraction of their original value.

1) Macaulay: History Vol. III p. 497/98.

143) Acres Vol. I p. 8.

144) Acres Vol. I p. 5 ff.

145) Acres Vol. I p. 66 ff.

189

were traded at the official rate"). It appears as if the Jews were not uninvolved in this general financial crisis were, as evidenced by surviving state documents can be.

According to a protocol dated May 14, 1696, in a matter The Bank of England is certain that the wavering of confidence the credit to the bank was caused by the goldsmith supported by the Jews' unclean business practices). Their Spokesmen were merely reprimanded by high-ranking judges; the bank to cause no further difficulties!"). Another co- The division of August 6th seems to indicate that Judah ge- was inclined to allocate sums of money for the establishment of the country bank to the d to provide").

Wilhelm III had meanwhile lost his favor to the detriment of the city. given back to the Hebrews, and the citizens raised up a vow of protest. (complaints about the poor treatment by the king!). Furthermore, they complained that the Jews had better access to the public. Conditions on bonds were obtained when the City and therefore in the year In 1616, they were generally prepared to subscribe a larger sum. (if they could expect a prompt repayment!). Subsequent events seem to confirm that the Jews had gained further influence:

At the beginning of 1696, a request was made for the enactment of a decree- Measures to prevent fraud and abuse in the plan- day trading submitted to parliament, which is mainly in the It should be used in the American colonies. The conditions there clearly required urgent action. otherwise the law would not be deemed necessary and would not be passed. would be. Unfortunately, the debates about this in parliament and Committee, as far as could be determined, did not receive; always- However, we can see this from a section of the draft law. to see which of the colonists and applicants in the Parliament- ment was considered responsible for these abuses. In a be-Specifically, paragraph 1 required that "only in England or Ireland or in His Majesty's colonies—Born subjects settled as merchants on the plantations—"may be allowed" 1%). Therefore, the view must first be considered. There was a prevailing belief that the removal of foreigners was absolutely necessary for It is necessary to remedy the problems. Among those, which, in the event of the law coming into force, would be the colonies—They had left behind, and among other foreigners, of course, belonged to There were also numerous Jews. So it is not surprising that they—They submitted a request on February 12, 1696, asking for permission to—

14) Cobbett Vol. V p. 955.

147) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1696 p. 178.

146) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1696 p. 179.

149) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1696 p. 325.

159) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1696 p. 310.

151) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1696 pp. 310, 317.

152) Journals of the House of Commons Vol. XI p. 491.

190

was requested by the above-mentioned regulation, since otherwise many Jewish families would be ruined. They wished the appointed committee their [wishes] before the law was passed. to submit an opinion'). Whether it is now the petition of the Jews was or some other often-suspected influence, we do not know. In any case, the provision, which was so dangerous for them, was continued. unperturbed. Consequently, the aforementioned law passed on April 10, 1696. for the farewell, however without the foreigner clause™), Man had reached a compromise insofar as the governor—newer English colonies took a solemn oath to had to afford to dedicate themselves fully to the observance of the restrictive conditions for foreigners that exist in the law—would use gene),

The Jews had thus achieved the goal of continuing to live in the Kolo—who were not allowed to remain. However, the interpretation of the laws depended on... to deviate from the governors' attitude, however, they are likely to the Hebrews, using their own methods, their goodwill to have known how to secure it.

Before the 17th century came to an end, the Jews were to achieve celebrate a great victory over the City.

More than today, a merchant's advancement was at that time, it depended on him being able to work as a broker at the stock exchange. was left where all the wholesale trade took place. But City had long ensured that hardly any exports were permitted. countries, certainly no Jews, were granted access. They The importance of belonging was of course clear, and so Even under Cromwell, they did everything they could to ensure that at least one of their fellow breeders became a member of the stock exchange. Despite hefti- Despite resistance, they also achieved their goal, because Cromwell ensured that the City, under his pressure, secured the services of Solomon Dormido, the son of the aforementioned Jew, the rights of a Broker lent), This was completely against the prevailing laws, because initially a Jew could not become a full citizen at that time. of the city, nor the prescribed Christian oath at Provide an introduction to his privilege. Of these two advantages- However, Dormido refrained from making any such commitments. We (We are in complete agreement with Wolf?) that this Er-

155) Cobbett Vol. V p. 440.

156) Cobbett Vol. V p. 555.

165) Henriques: Special Taxation p. 65/66.

156) Wolf: Re-Settlement p. 9, 10, 14, Menasseh Ben Israel p. 106/07.

157) Wolf: in "Jewish Chronicle" v. April 16, 1897.

191

naming by circumvention of the laws only through manipulation, which can no longer be ascertained in the traditions, to- came to fruition. Further developments followed in the years 1671-1681. "Appointment of six Jews under equal conditions"), the influence of the Jewish-sympathizing King Charles II was taking effect. which may have provided.

However, disregarding laws in such cases leads to... The same result at all times: sneaking in further- unwanted elements. This also happened with the Mak- Learners of the London Stock Exchange. In 1696, the people there Conditions have become such that the exclusion of a part the members and reorganization of all regulations included- (which appeared necessary). At the request of the City, then a law was passed by Parliament at the beginning of 1697"),

This includes, among other things, a restriction on the number of approved brokers. which provided for 100. According to the implementing regulations subsequently issued, Among the provisions were 12 foreigners and 12 Jews. This also removed the earlier requirement for Jews. The status of a full citizen was lost, and the oath was changed for them. in a form that allowed them to perform the service), while the foreign merchants – among them were currently many Germans, Dutch, Spaniards and French people – still who had to fulfill the condition of being a full citizen of the city). Acquiring this skill was difficult for foreigners with some- several difficulties are associated with it, and one must therefore be very patient. that the Jews even in the city, which was so hostile to them, have made considerable progress! (Wolf rightly points this out!) pointing out that it was not fear of the Hebrews, but It was merely the power of the government protecting them, which City was forced to back down. Otherwise, it would have had to, as Wolf further explains that this is a circumcision that has existed since ancient times. be prepared to exercise their traditional rights. Consider an English The government was willing to grant the most distinguished citizenry of the king- The Reich's will in favor of a number of Jews force.

In 1698, a law against blasphemy was passed. The version proposed by the House of Lords The law would no longer allow Jews to practice their religion. have allowed it." However, Parliament rejected this text with a majority of 144 to 78 votes insofar as one decided to- explicitly stipulated in a new provision that "Jews on "Under no circumstances should they be bothered" 1%).

158) Wolf: First Stage p. 133.

15%) Wolf in: "Jewish Chronicle" v. August 14, 1903.

160) Statutes of the Realm Vol. VII pp. 285-87.

161) Wolf: First Stage p. 134, Hyamson: History p. 208/09.

18) Wolf: First Stage p. 135.

163) Wolf: First Stage p. 132.

164) Henriques: Jews p. 167.

165) Luttrell: Brief Historical Relation Vol. IV p. 358.

192

We see that the Jews made not insignificant progress towards the end of the 17th century They did not enjoy not only the favor of the king, but also increasingly to a greater extent the favor of parliament.

Customs are deteriorating.

Over the course of the next century and beyond,
We recognize that the people still know nothing about the Jews and wanted to know from her friends. It is therefore peculiar-

It is kind that nevertheless the members of the Par- elected by him laments in their majority almost exclusively devoted to the Jews were. The Jewish historians cite the attitude of decisive forces in the state - the king and the legislative Houses - due to the fact that they value the Jewish race
They recognized her and therefore always stood up for her. About Such an opinion is highly debatable. Are there many-not easily the powerful ones admitted by Wolf and for the
There were invisible influences from the outside world that were for the Jews-have worked? In other words: Wasn't it money that Did the king and government take action to protect the Jews?
Before we discuss this further, we must first...
A preliminary question needs to be clarified: Was it even conceivable that the King and the Parla, so praised throughout history-Mention and House of Lords such a despicable attitude
Were they capable? Historical incidents confirm this.

We can deal here with this chapter of English history only briefly address and want to highlight just a few of the many, but outstanding conveying poignant events of that time:

In 1694, the speaker in parliament had to be removed from office.
because he acted in a manner that violated the constitution and the law instigated the passage of a law and spent a thousand euros on it Guineas (£1,050) had been received!").

One of the highest officials in the state, the Secretary of the Treasury-
The official was put in the tower because of passive bribery.
was proven. The public was against him at the time.
very upset. He had long been considered the-those who not only allowed themselves to be bribed, but who also through his position with the help of his backers, other officials, etc.
bribery?@"),

During the same period, other prominent figures were convicted of similar crimes (1%). The biggest scandal arose However, through the uncovering of bribery on the part of the East

166) Cobbett Vol. V pp. 901, 906.

147) Cobbett Vol. VS

885–887.

) Cobbett Vol. V, pp. 890 ff.

13 Jews Conquer England 193

India Company, which thereby made favorable decisions by the king and sought to bring about the legislative houses. They had the The governor of this company was immediately arrested and demanded that He was informed about the use of a secret fund by £77,000').

The hearing before Parliament was held under great tension carried out by members. Many English people in positions of authority. They trembled for their honor because they were involved in the affair. The first interrogation took place on April 23, 1695." One could have They should assume that the governor will initially deal with his exit-I would have been careful, because he could only then under-support from his accomplices in the highest positions They expected him to spare her. To her horror, he did however, they did not make use of this possibility, but rather openly-Rather, it revealed the truth, albeit in a convoluted form. Above all, the committee of inquiry wanted to investigate two major issues. Items of £10,000 and £33,000 are available for information. The following-The following statement by the governor must therefore be considered a sensation. indicated: "The first amount of £10,000," he explained, "was paid to Mr. Tyson in November 1692. He would have given him-No instructions were given regarding its use, however the The expectation is linked to the fact that his society will be a-The granted privileges were confirmed and provisions for them were established. would be set aside... The money was intended for the king, But he couldn't say whether he had received it. From the side of To his knowledge, East India Company was never involved in any An accounting of the use of these £10,000 is required, but As he recalled, Mr. Tyson had told him that the Money was handed over to the king. The amount was a customary sum. A gift, as was the case under King Charles since This occurred years ago and can be seen from the books of the society- There would be. One cannot deny that the conditions of society-The situation at the time the gifts were given was poor and that he himself had advanced this sum, but repayment-lung not within the planned four or five months be... The £10,000 mentioned further in the statement of account and £2,000 was paid to Mr. Acton at approximately the same time. who explained that several of his friends were concerned with the interests of the Ge-could be of great benefit to society. Various of They wanted to speak with members of parliament, however, they could

He could not specify who they were. However, an effort was made to establish a "To obtain a law from parliament."

He then goes on to say that this law is a prohibition. to establish another company for East India, which was planned at the time, in accordance with the king's wishes

- 18) Cobbett Vol. V p. 913.
- 170) Cobbeit Vol. V p. 915.
- 11) Cobbett Vol. V p. 915.

194

Trade (to be definitively settled there. Apart from the members of Parliament, no one was influenced!").

Several lords, including the Duke of Leeds, had great Sums for the adoption of the company's The desired law was obtained.

Sir Basil Firebrace has not contacted various people, including the governor. well-known individuals were given approximately £33,000 to secure favorable conditions. to ensure for society!°).

During his interrogation, Sir Basil denied the distribution of the Money to influential people. Rather, he had it except for an amount of £500 that you keep yourself!").

His banker subsequently testified that he had taken the name I don't recall any members of parliament who were on Sir Basil's requests for monetary payments were fulfilled. He never kept any money. any private notes about people to whom he transferred money-wise"). :

Further evidence revealed that there had even been consideration of bribing the queen), indeed, of giving the king a special sum to provide £50,000 if he chooses to support the company. However, the king, through his Ge-Währsmann replied, "He did not want to get involved in the matter-mix" 17). May he not have accepted the money this time either-men have, because it might not have been enough for him, but that one even dared to make him the offer, without immediately initiating legal proceedings against the company "Let" is incomprehensible to our understanding and characterizes the monarch's entire attitude.

Sir Thomas Cook and Sir Basil Firebrace were among others

Participants were sentenced to prison terms. The proceedings against the Duke of Leeds, then Lord President, did not come quite far and later fell asleep completely. Everyone was convinced, that he donated £5,000 to support the passage of the for the company had received favorable legislation. There was fear. but in the highest circles, that his conviction was numerous would involve other leading figures, and so it was Nothing was done against him*").

The dismay at the general decay of parliament, of the House of Lords and the royal officials must be in the Publicity may have been significant. It is best understood in the as expressed by the President of Parliament when his Speech at the conclusion of the various bribery cases in the The words culminate in: "What security can the nation have if "We buy and sell to each other."

in) Cobbett Vol. V p. 916.
178) Cobbett Vol. V pp. 917–919.

V
d. V
d. V
m Cobbett Vol. V p. 929
118) Cobbett Vol. M pp. 933–942
1 Cobbett Vol. V p. 932.

195

A contemporary account of widespread bribery therefore does not seem exaggerated. According to this account, it was customary to that one needs the necessary resources to achieve certain state acts eligible members of parliament and other persons invited sons to a meal where the host paid for everything. A considerable amount of food was consumed. But that wasn't all. Rather, "Everyone found a pile of banknotes under their plate" ... 180), The extent of the bribery must have been unknown. This can also be seen from the fact that of the 5 million pounds that were from Parliament on the continuation of the War of the Spanish Succession Only 2% of the millions that were made available went into the coffers of the Ministry of Finance), Half was in the pockets from the English. The events probably involved The stock market has contributed significantly to this decay, because here Bribery was openly discussed, indeed, "elections for Members of parliament were traded there just as regularly as Lottery tickets" 183).

After all this, we believe that, in accordance with the general
Under the circumstances, this was nothing unusual, indeed it was the norm.
To bribe the king, the government, and legislative bodies.
If this was generally the case, then we see no reason to doubt it.
that the Jews, who are always present on such occasions were, too, who also contributed to it.

Even back then, Jews played a significant role on the stock exchange.
significant role. "The Hebrew capitalists, who dealt with Wil-Helm III's arrival in England had the significance the speculators increase by further increasing their number-"more")." It is interesting to note that the Jews a similar fraud to that committed by Rothschild after the
The Battle of Waterloo is said to have taken place.

One day, a well-dressed man came galloping along on a foaming steed.
Reiter entered the city and announced in a loud voice the attention-
The inhabitants, who had become so accustomed to the death of Queen Anne, were deeply affe
It didn't take long for this news to spread everywhere.
Given the uncertainty surrounding the succession, the Government bonds on the stock exchange indefinitely. The Christian speculators-Investors dumped their securities on the market and through the over-
The price of the offer was pushed down even further. In the all-Amidst the general confusion, it was hardly noticed that the Jews Under Menasseh Lopez, government bonds were purchased in large quantities. bought. After some time, it was discovered that the news that the queen's death was untrue. The consequence of this was... a sharp rise in the share price and a related Huge profit for the Jews?#), John Francis rightly points out!®) 18) Cobbett Vol. V p. 931 footnote.

18) Francis S. 34.

182) Francis, pp. 47-49.

183) Francis S. 27.

184) Piciotto p. 58.

185) Francis S. 49.

196 pointing out that, of course, no positive information is available to accuse specific individuals of fraud,

But suspicion naturally fell on those who had benefited from this had profited from such a publicly perpetrated fraud."

In respectable circles in England, people were aware of this.
agreed that "the speculators are the ruin of the nation" 1%), These

But the situation suited the Jews just fine, and so they were surprised
It is not that "Jews from all parts of the world are involved in the stock market from London" 170. The only synagogue was sufficient no longer possible, so a second one was built!®). The uninterrupted influx – mostly of Eastern European Jews – can can be determined from official documents. Thus we find Entries of passport issuances etc. for the children of Israel in (on an unprecedented scale!)

With such preferential treatment, it is only too understandable that the Jews amassed riches upon riches, namely
At that time, it was especially Menasseh Lopez, Solomon Medina and Sampson Gideon, who amassed quite enormous fortunes acquired. The first one has already been reported on. He-owes his fortune primarily to the aforementioned Be-wore!)

We will have more time to deal with the latter two.
The detailed treatment of Sampson Gideon will be covered in the following-connection with the political struggles of 1753 follow, while Solomon Medina enjoys his greatest times under King William III and Queen Anne were seen.

According to one account, the latter was after the accession to the throne.
William III with the influx of Jews from Holland to England landed!). The accuracy of this account is not guaranteed by any-
However, there are concerns, as another message states!
Medina paid as early as 1677, long before the William III's expedition to England, fixed contributions in the treasury of the Jewish community. These contributions were made per-calculated as a percentage of sales. Piciotto has discovered that that Medina after the payments he made in the year In 1677, sales amounted to £32,000, and in the following year, so-must have had as much as £80,000, a considerable sum for that time.
A substantial sum.

His money certainly helped him in one way or another.
the favor of King William III, for on June 23, 1700 he was elevated to knighthood), This is all the more significant-

166) Francis S. 61.

157) Francis S. 81.

15 Margoliouth: History Vol. II p. 41 ff., Piciotto p. 54 ff.

1) Domestic State Papers Vol. 1696 pp. 211, 420, 462, Vol. 1697 pp. 49, 55, 90, 115, 139, 141, 149, 159 and more

19) Piciotto p. 59.

1) Jewish Encyclopedia Vol. VIII p. 425.

See Piciotto p. 50.

1) Le Neve p. 473.

197

more noteworthy than, in his case, unlike Colonel, who converted to Christianity in 1660, no such thing occurred. Further clues can be found in the traditions. The transition. It seems that only his descendants embraced the Christian faith. left to us!").

His main area of activity is supplying the army with foodstuffs. He likely played the same role during the Spanish War of Succession played in England like the Jude Oppenheimer in Austria on the same occasion!®). He was the reason for the Duke's dismissal. Marlborough, the ancestor of Winston Churchill, in 1712 and has put proof of active bribery in our hands given.

Marlborough, the ancestor of Winston Churchill

The Duke of Marlborough was present on all his military campaigns accompanied by Medina. The latter supported him – as did his Fellow Cromwell – with espionage!®*) and “the battles Ramilies, Oudenarde and Blenheim contributed just as much to the Jewish stock exchange as a source of glory for England” 197),

But this close connection of the Jews with one of the best – The most famous general of the 18th century yielded its results: From a soldier's point of view, it must be shameful to to see how Jewish money has contributed to the fame of Marlborough to defile boroughs. If we dwell on this for longer in the following The matter will not linger, it does not happen in the slightest, in order to to diminish his great deeds for England or to belittle him to burden with shame, but rather our aim is to... to provide a further example of Jewish character and Jewish behavior is very often the cause of such un- Regularities are as have been demonstrated in Marlborough. Even if he was greedy and thus an easy victim of They may have become Jews, but their complicity cannot be denied, yes Perhaps one should disregard Medina's instigation in this incident. The fact that to- immediately with the greater influence of Jews on public life Life after 1660, bribery in connection with with perversions of justice and the commission of crimes in a disproportionate manner a significantly larger number than before in English history – especially under Elisabeth and Karl I. – can be observed.

We will remember Ludovici's statements that The exploitation of the people began with the death of Charles I. Since then w Jewish Encyclopedia Vol. VIII p. 425.

8) Frischauer p. 289.

720) Piciotto p. 58/59, Jewish Encyclopedia Vol. VIII p. 425, Margoliouth Vol. II p. 58/59
19) Francis S. 31/32.

198

But at this time, the Jew in England also begins to gain ground.
The beginning of the general grievances with the simultaneous er-
The actions of the Jews must at least give cause for reflection:
It is left to the reader to decide whether the appeal-
The very nature of the Hebrews is a condition sine qua non.
for the development of deterrent conditions in England was. Perhaps this opinion isn't so far-fetched after all, if one considers... has considered that it is always the Jew whose Names associated with the decline of morals. The case Marlborough and Medina are not among the least important for this Evidence.

In the autumn of 1711, evidence emerged that Marlborough had misappropriated large sums of bribes and other public funds for himself consumed.

A commission was appointed which, in long sessions, sought to get to the bottom of the truth. Early October 1711 was already public knowledge – as we know from a letter to Lord Oxford learned – informed by the facts (1%). They had The Jew Medina was summoned as the main witness and sworn in.
Nommen. The content of his statement best describes the entire situation.
and should be reproduced where relevant:

"Sir Solomon de Medina, Knight, sworn to the five books Moses testifies that in the years 1707–1711, both of them were closed, alone or in community, in the pay of the Queen from Great Britain as a contractual army supplier the Ver-Providing for the armed forces in the Netherlands and Belgium with Bread and bread wagons were in charge, and that he was responsible to His Grace the Duke.
of Marlborough for its own use the various
The sums listed below would have been given, namely:

For the year 1707, approximately 65,000 guilders (Dutch guilders)

1708 " 62000 »
1709 " 69587 "
1710 E 66 810 39

A total of 265,614 guilders,

Furthermore, 21,000 guilders for the current year as part of an equal
The total amount, as mentioned above. He has paid all the aforementioned sums to His Grace was paid because the earlier army suppliers had granted him the same-had suspended such annual sums.

He further stated that he provided the officers with 21 train cars annually.
Free bread was granted, of which 12 or 14 were for the family's own use.
The Duke's custom was, and that the earlier suppliers would have done the same.

The witness further stated that he had been in the aforementioned years, 1707.
until 1711, both included, an annual gratuity of 500 gold ducats to Mr. C-1 (Cardonel), secretary to the Duke of Marlborough, for his effort and care in processing

198) Coxe Vol. III p. 458.

199

of the Dutch contracts. He further stated that he had paid all the sums he had received in Holland from Mr. Sweet, Understaffed champions in Amsterdam, due to said contracts received, had to pay 1% of this for prompt settlement, which
This was also common practice with previous suppliers.
Nevertheless, Sweet was so far behind with the payments.

The arrears, that the witness had informed the Duke of Marl about it-borough had to complain, on what occasion he also regarding the aforementioned donations made to Mr. Sweet by 1% taught, and His Grace reprimanded Mr. Sweet for not doing that did not pay the witness on time.

The witness further testified that from the books of Antonio Alvarez Machados, who provided the bread and bread carts for the armed forces in English pay in the years 1702, 1703, 1704, 1705, 1706 had delivered, it was evident that he was the Duke of Marlborough paid the same annual sums as the defendant had been paying since-(signed S. de Medina)

Medina's statement, to make the whole thing as easy as possible in the first place Secret procedures quickly reached the ears of the absent the Marlborough. The "offended general" immediately sent to (to speak in the words of Coxe?), a letter of defense to the Commission. We also want to quote the literal meaning of this.

Text, insofar as it relates to the Medina case, in brief:
to repeat:

The Hague, November 10, 1711.

Gentlemen,

As I was informed upon my arrival here, Sir Solomon de Medina informed you that I had various I received sums of money from him. I would like to point out, however, that... that this is nothing more than always being considered official-Additional income for the general or commander-in-chief the army in the Netherlands and Belgium even before the Revolution and has been permissible ever since. I assure you right away-early on, so that I can consistently use all amounts I ever receive for used for the service of the people, namely for espionage purposes have ... 201),

Then Marlborough responds to the allegations concerning-
The position regarding the consumption of further public funds, which The details are not of interest here. However, it should be pointed out that be shown that Marlborough is not accepting the She denies receiving funds from Medina, but not for herself, rather for wants to have needed the state. Furthermore, it leads to his further 'defense' that the mere receipt of the money as such was lawful, because it has been since long-standing, permitted secondary income was involved.

1) Report of the Commissioners pp. 28-31.

200) Coxe Vol. III p. 459. :

2%) Report of the Commissioners p. 7/8, Parl. History Vol. VI p. 1057.

200

Marlborough's secretary, who was responsible for handling the settlement of the bread contracts, was also heard. He 'said under oath that "he never received any such additional income had known or heard of it, until Sir Solomon de Medina made his this-regarding statements made before the commissioners." Furthermore He announced that he himself, as secretary, would not be attending the reception.
who also knew about the public funds in question?®), Marlborough considered it advisable to contact the Hague as soon as possible.
to leave and go to England. On November 17th.
He arrived in Greenwich. His reception in London was cold.
Meanwhile, the public had also taken notice.
Pamphlets were published against him, some of which contained more than just the
They were driven by desires to tear Marlborough down, as if to to address the facts. Others?®) – and we want to only deal with them – could not explain, how a man in his position could spend so much money can. After such a publication, Marlborough from his various official positions, an annual income– He had received £62,325. Since 1701, he had received from the Jews and from public sources received a total of £623,381. He finally received several special payments. such as £50,000 from Holland after the Battle of Blenheim”). The total sum stated herein appears to be exaggerated, and the The amount found by the investigating commission was approximately £523,000 is more likely?”),

At the beginning of December, the two legislative houses entered into together?®). This also affected the partisan political battles. This question was opened up. Marlborough's opponents did everything to to bring the investigation to a close as quickly as possible. They were successful, and already by mid-December the The Commission's report was presented. On December 15th, in Parliament– lament decided?®), to make it accessible to all members to do it. Its reading took place on December 21st :). First was Medina's statement and the aforementioned letter Marl– boroughs were reproduced. Following this, the The Commission takes the position that such payments are from Army supply contracts, even because of their inherent nature– ters “can never be considered legally permissible”. Furthermore, no English general has ever paid such sums. claimed as permissible secondary income. Also in Generally, they are not justified because either the

#02) Report of the Commissioners p. 17.

208) Report of the Commissioners p. 21.

#4) Coxe Vol. III p. 462 ff. and below

25) No Queen – no General p. 10/11.

206) Yearly Income of the Duke... p. I ff.

207) Report of the Commissioners pp. 6, 22, 23.

208) Coxe Vol. III p. 469 ff.

22) Coxe Vol. III p. 478.

216) Coxe Vol. III p. 478, Parl. History Vol. VI p. 1049, Journals of the House of Commons Vol. XVII p. 15 ff.

The public or the troops would necessarily be disadvantaged in relation to such ancillary income). Furthermore, he-
This would be implied by the secretary's statement that in the matter- that it was carried out with great secrecy - proof of Marlborough's own bad conscience -. Have the latter
If the money was really used for espionage purposes, then it is... this already includes a waiver of allegedly permitted side activities.
Arrivals. Finally, in her view, the behavior was also [unclear] Marlborough sees this as a major breach of trust. "In the Contracts for bread and bread wagons seem to be the general of the one- to be the one who oversees army deliveries. He has to ensure that the contract terms are correctly fulfilled be and must assess all deductions or surcharges that are added to the Suppliers are involved. A decision about whether he under such circumstances any gratuities or can accept additional income from the contract supplier, Without committing a breach of trust, the Commission wants to not to complain. The general could just as easily have the same right.
a secondary income from any other army contract pronouncements, as for bread and bread carts. But since His Grace
If he remains silent on this matter, the Commission should assume that he is not has received such donations-)"

Regarding the other amounts received, which are not related to Medina
After being in contact, it was concluded that public funds were involved, and Marlborough was concerned about it.
I have also made the order concerning this a punishable offense!
Under the weight of this accusation, the Queen removed Marlborough from office.
on December 30th, he resigned from all his offices in order to, as she emphasized, create to ensure an impartial investigation.

On January 24, 1712, the debate on the report of the Lower-
The search committee met.
Speakers were called. In view of the Marlborough's services to his country were sharply criticized, and he took "A purely factual statement regarding the report-"). His defense lawyers broke-ten still the sworn statement of the accountant of the Jewish company Machado, also from Marlborough
He had received funds from the bread contracts. This employee had special insight into the business and expressed as follows: "I declare: I state and affirm that it
It was customary and practice that the army suppliers of bread gave the Commander-in-Chief of the Army ... and also several Officers of lower rank receive a very considerable amount annually.
gift made. This gift or gratuity was un-speaking of the strength of the army, to which the bread deliveries were sent

212) Report of the Commissioners pp. 17, 18.

213) Report of the Commissioners p. 18 ff.

21) Coxe Vol. III p. 484 ff., Journals of the House of Commons Vol. XVII p. 38, Parl. History Vol. VI p. 1077.

202

These events took place. Earlier, under William III, a Such a practice prevailed, "...and so it became," as the witness further stated, "a right established through long-standing custom in of such a kind that the suppliers were of the opinion that the superior-
The commanding officer would have a legal right to it... 218).
This statement was intended to contradict previous statements by Marl-boroughs to confirm in his letter of November 10, 1711.
The defense, incidentally, only brought about the Marlborough cited the reasons mentioned there. His opponents
In contrast, the statement of the investigating authorities was criticized.
The commission adopted it. By a majority of 270 to 165 votes.
It was determined: "...that the assumption of different sums Money annually from the army suppliers for bread and bread wagons in the Netherlands and Belgium on behalf of the Duke of Marlborough was irresponsible and unlawful 115.

A similar decision was made regarding the further development of Marl-
The borough received public funds.

The receipt of 500 ducats by the Secretary of Marlborough,
Mr. Cardonel was also found guilty of a crime and was immediately arrested.
declared himself to have lost his membership in parliament. Also
The aforementioned Mr. Sweet was convicted of the same offense.
(They are considered criminals).

Queen Anne was asked to instruct the Crown Prosecutor to... to initiate formal criminal proceedings against Marlborough. She came This wish was fulfilled, but the procedure was very slow-casually operated. The reason, we hear, was "either the
The queen's leniency towards a man she loved so much had trusted, or perhaps to liven things up.
or to disregard, depending on the future behavior of the applicant.
The proceedings were later completely abandoned.
Marlborough published soon after the Parla- decision ments a defense brief in which he argued in the same manner he apologized as in his letter of November 10, 1711.
added that Prince Waldeck, the former general in Belgium,
I received the same funds. The receipt of certain free Deliveries of bread also correspond to an old custom.
heit. Tilly also received these). Furthermore, he could
I cannot imagine that the public will benefit from the donations.

The Jews of Machado and Medina were discriminated against. End-
He had not committed a breach of trust, because the ver-
The treasury has closed the accounts. The army has all-He never suffered from a lack of bread; his complaints were always investigated??®).

ut) Journals of the House of Commons Vol. XVII p. 37.

) Journals of the House of Commons Vol. XVII p. 38, Parl. History Vol. VI p. 1077 217) Coxe Vol. III p. 486.

18) Parl. History Vol. VI p. 1077/78.

m' Case of His Grace pp. 1-5.

#9) Case of His Grace p. 6.

203

His secretary Cardonel had nothing to do with bread deliveries had and consequently had none of his permitted ancillary income was known.
He had no idea about the money paid to Mr. Sweet.
had!").

We will refrain from discussing the many writings for and against Marlborough from this period. The indication of the
The facts presented in his defense should suffice.

Marlborough is trying to whitewash itself by... in the payments from the bread contracts regarding permitted ancillary costs
I have traded income; in other words, he is making a right such a right arises, however, only if it does not conflict with other rights.
the written laws and – what is actually much more important –
It is – not against everyone's sense of decency, fair and cheap
This violates the thinking mind. Perception is irrelevant here.
not of a specific circle, but of the general public.
Therefore, the Jews and their associates may have believed that Generals would have had one right: to people with general
According to prevailing ethical views, such behavior is unacceptable.
I do not condone such behavior.
This has been described as bribery under law and custom. Apart from that that an official, when receiving such money, in his capacity as a civil servant
In addition to the fact that divorces become unfree, public funds are also at risk.
suffer from it, because surely no one will believe that the Jews paid the amounts out of their own pockets or to pay for the next 40 days.
paid part of their own earnings: The bribes were immediately factored into their calculations as expenses, with In other words, the state had – and still has today – in such cases – the surcharges applied for the crimes to pay his officials.

The great general, apart from the question of the side issue, income, claims he did not have the money for himself, but for public purposes – espionage – used, a statement that which has the advantage that an orderly record of expenses is provided in– It is impossible according to the nature of things. Whether he can give him the Medina donated 21 carts of bread for the same purpose. has led to?

Given the circumstances, there should be no doubt that Marlborough and his staff, on the one hand, and The Jews of Machado and Medina, on the other hand, were passive or... have been found guilty of active bribery, which was also the opinion of some Historians admit this :).

This incident is one of many similar ones in history, such as the one still remembered by everyone from Barmat and Stavisky – to name just a few – worthy, or rather unworthy – It appears worthy. However, it is regrettable that the one just described–

221) Case of His Grace p. 7.

222) Graetz: History Vol. V p. 217. Jesse: Memoirs Vol. I p. 400.

204 could,

events are linked to the name of Marlborough
The well-known English parliamentarian and German-hater Churchill is his direct descendant and one of the most well-known 'most ardent and most zealous friends of Jews' in England.

It is not surprising that the general public at Such events do not reflect much of the honor of the Jews.

maintained and therefore remained hostile towards them.

This is nicely illustrated by a traditional anecdote. A Englander owed money to a Jew who filed a lawsuit for repayment.

A payment was demanded. There was an old law according to which a Jew could not complain not in their own name, but only in the name of the king.

The trial took place before one of the highest judges.
Englishman raised the formal objection mentioned above and maintained
The judge deemed the lawsuit ready for dismissal. He asked if he had anything further to say.
The defendant has nothing else to offer in his defense.
denied it. The judge then sentenced him to pay the following justification: "Even taking into account your claims—
If you are found guilty, you will be convicted of denying the Jew his demand. pay, because the latter did not file his lawsuit against a Christian.

brought about, but against a Jew, specifically against a such as one who is an even greater Jew than himself).

The literature also provides ample evidence that the
(The people still reject the Jews). We only want to deal with a book: "A historical and legal treaty against the Jews and Judaism," which was published in 1703.
The author states in the preface that his explanations are not not intended as a hate speech, but as a fair debate, Whatever cause he may have remained true to. The Jews and her friends, however, as far as they have discussed the book, are have a different opinion. This is probably due to the fact that that the author pointed to facts which the Hebrews were unpleasant. That these reports are not exaggerated, This should be evident from the above statements by John Francis. Furthermore, they are only a generalization.
The implications of the Medina case are finally clear.
Do the described conditions bear so much resemblance to modern ones?
Conditions in all countries, including Germany, before the Takeover, that we have no reason to believe the information.
distrust. |

In the author's opinion, the laws of earlier times, which forbade Jews from residing in England, were still in effect was. "The unbelieving and immoral freedom," we hear.
Furthermore, "which the Jews take from among us depends on the
The power and strength of their money, which – as we just have reason to believe

m) Piciotto p. 52.

14) Law Treatise p. 2/3.

205 to suspect – corruptly through many channels (in this kingdom) runs..." *). |

Elsewhere, the Jews are described as being killed with locusts. resembled. "Like locusts to grain, so are the Jews to..." the Christians. The former consume the grain, and the latter undermine the community... .).".

Above all, the rabbis of the country must be re-point 270. The author then deals with the Be- The claim that the Jews contributed almost exclusively to the raising of wealth of trade. One could argue about this, but first of all Be certain that "the Jews, through their viciousness Charm and secret intrigues boldly dare to claim the greatest part to seize control of our trade. *).

It is astonishing how the enlargement of the trade has been affected. In many parts of the world, the Jews had already displaced the English merchants. Thus, the They conducted all trade in Barbados and Jamaica. They are friends of all races and religions and make Therefore, unscrupulous business is conducted everywhere. After England, they would... The greatest scoundrels were sent by the Jews. "Because of their racial- They are enjoyed with money, jewels and goods of great value. Equipped with value to present a good image to the outside world and thus to obtain loans. If they then get as far as possible with us. They may be indebted, they disappear under the assumption of new They name themselves and let us down. The other Jews help them, to escape with the ill-gotten gains, and on these They wisely increase their wealth through fraud and Outrageous acts....22°)." So nothing has changed here either compared to the past. changed.

At the beginning of the 18th century, the Jews apparently also considered the time for buying privileges and places to be a ge- They closed the settlement for having come. They offered a minister and a very close friend of Marlborough?®), Lord Godolphin, £500,000 for the sale of the town of Brentford near London and Granting of numerous privileges. The agent of the Jews shared with, "that the matter has already been discussed with their leading brothers abroad was being considered; it would mean that the richest their merchants would come here and of course, in addition, the aforementioned 20 million are circulating in this country." Lord Molesworth urged Lord Godolphin to accept the bid- approach. The latter, however, refrained from doing so in consideration of the expected fierce opposition from the clergy and merchants prevented whether-

#88) Margoliouth: History Vol. II p. 57.

226) Law Treatise p. 13.

17) Law Treatise p. 15/16.

229) Law Treatise p. 17.

22%) Law Treatise p. 18.

2%) Dictionary of National Biography Vol. VIII p. 44.

206

probably the Jews were prepared to pay up to 1 million pounds for the fulfillment of their wishes."

The reign of Queen Anne saw, as far as is known, actually only a single legislative act of importance regarding- The Jews.

Around the year 1701, Parliament deemed it necessary, in case the conversion of a young Jew to Christianity To enact a law: "If a child of Jewish parents becomes a Christian- converts to the Christian faith or has the desire to convert to Christianity To accept faith, one can submit a corresponding application to the The Lord Chancellor forced his parents to give him one of their circumstances to provide appropriate adequate maintenance..." 257).

There is an amusing little anecdote connected with this law. handed down.

A young Jew had converted to Christianity. His father then deprived him of all means of support. The son raised He sued the father for payment and based his claim on on the aforementioned law. The father wanted to resolve the matter- He fought and consulted a well-known lawyer. The latter- He said he would do his best. However, the case was so difficult that He would need to think about it for a day and a night. (Except-) He left the Jew no doubt that he was a distinguished- would demand a reasonable fee.

The next day, the Jew arrived punctually at the agreed time. and began his conversation as follows: "Well, I hope it is Everything is fine, that this scoundrel of a son has his pork "Can't eat at my expense." "After a sleepless night "Through reflection, I came up with a plan," he rejoiced. the lawyer, "and he is the only one who can effectively prevent him from doing so." will prevent pork or anything else from being placed on "The cost of his Jewish father's food." Here the lawyer paused - the Jew understood him and paid him a large sum for the expected legal advice. The lawyer put the money away. carefully and gave the Jew the following advice: "The the only way to render ineffective the act of Her Majesty that you detest - To make it official is to be baptized publicly in a church. Let it be; for you see, the law does not apply to children.

"From Christians, but only from Jewish parents." The Jew er-
He was startled and asked if this was the only way out. The lawyer affirmed and explained: "The extroversion kept me occupied last night of the "Deprived of sleep." "Then I just wish you had been asleep."
and would never have woken up again," murmured the disappointed Jew.
and withdrew?*)

221) Spence p. 77.

#32) Tovey p. 295/96, Hyamson: History p. 210.

233) Margoliouth: History Vol. II pp. 55-57.

PART IV

1714-1753:

First struggle for emancipation and defeat of the Jews

The South Seas Scandal

The Welfs had, after the death of Queen Anne in the year
He ascended the English throne in 1714. The general difficulties-
The powers of the new royal house were quite great at the beginning. Quite.
But things looked bleak after the collapse of South Sea Company out:

This company had gradually taken over all the public debts of approximately £30 million. In return
The government committed to paying its annual interest on this to pay off debts by a certain time and, above all, – that Most importantly – to grant them extensive privileges in trade.
Initially, the company made large profits, its shares increased. Later, however, the public was misled with false information.
Rumors and prospects of profits drove him crazy and thus achieved that the shares rose from £100 at par to £1,000. A fever England had been seized. Nobles, citizens, all members of society.
People of all classes rushed into this speculative business. Suddenly
The company's directors sold their shares – the Stocks fell. Hundreds, even thousands, of livelihoods were lost.
It failed. A major crisis broke out for the government. could only save itself to some extent by the fact that its leading Mann – Sunderland – resigned and they the main Sinners – the company's directors and the finance minister Aislabie – punished. It is surprising that the Jews, although they adhered to the speculation, but not the actual scam.
involved; they had apparently sold their shares in time and thus suffered no harm). Hyamson's finding that The claim that Jews did not participate at all is false, since

1) Hyamson: History p. 217.
Fourteen Jews conquer England in 209

from the official investigation files of the criminal proceedings
This shows that they were also considered buyers at a price of £150 to £300.
had appeared').

Heinz Krieger?) has in his recently published book from the
The fact that the Jews emerged from the affair without losses emerged, concluded, they had together with Robert Walpole caused the entire maneuver. This finding, however, is He proved nothing. We ourselves initially had the same idea-if the hand of the Jews is suspected in this game. Very one-Further investigations have yielded no incriminating material.
can bring them to light. Neither the official sub-Investigation files against the guilty parties, nor the almost countless Writings of outraged and ruined Englishmen give us a hint-
It points to the complicity of the Jews. The latter, in particular, certainly would have k
He didn't hold back with the truth. So one has to deal with it.
to be satisfied that a flawless scientific festival-
It is not possible to take a position regarding the participation of the Jews, and it is left to the reader to form his own opinion in this regard to form one's own opinion.

Krieger further argued that Walpole was rife with-had been friends with wealthy Jews and was responsible for the catastrophe.
to answer. The first point is correct, because without a doubt-Walpole maintained very close relations with the Rothschild family.
of those times, Sampson Gideon.". But since the involvement of
It is not possible to identify any Jews involved in the South Seas scandal.
Their connection with Walpole is irrelevant in this regard.
Furthermore, it is certain that Walpole is not, as Krieger claimed. executed, in the years 1717 to May 1720, by the government-belonged"). Rather, he was the leader of the opposition and be-fought through speeches in parliament and through public campaigning.
The document issued by the government regarding this company-struck law)).

Jews in the colonies

Before we make further observations about the development of the Jewish-
If we meet in England, we want to shed some light on the English-throw into lignite colonies.

Significant material concerning the spread of Jews there is availablehands and largely already published; we but only want to use the work of Hyamson will address this.

1) Report of the Committee... p. 52 ff., appendix to the reports p. 16 ff.
) Krieger p. 49 ff.
3 Hyamson: History p. 216/17.
Haydn pp. 156, 165, 244, GEC Vol. VI p. 129.
) Oliver pp. 238–243, Lecky Vol. I p. 374.

210

Barbados is probably the English possession where the Jews first appeared openly, as early as 1630. Soon more members of the same race joined them, and trade flourished. a very significant part in their hands. Attempts by the narrow-Lischen colonists, to restrict the rights of the Jews and the to pay as much tax as possible according to their high incomes "Measurements were each only of temporary duration."

With the participation of Jews in the development of Jamaica We've already discussed this above. There's also a constant... Increasing their influence in the economy of the rich island recognize this. The English settlers therefore established a settlement in 1671. to protect their interests, they submitted a request for the expulsion of the Jews appealed to the State Council. They achieved the opposite. The Jewish-Friendly Charles II not only rejected their request, but recommended steps to encourage Jewish immigration. Success here, too, was due to the almost all-dominating influence of Jews on trade and commerce of this property'). As always with The healthy-minded person resists such occasions. population of a country, and so about 10 years later new ones were created Attempts were made to expel the Jews from the country. Natural-Again without success! And the beginning of the 18th century even shows the efforts of the Jews to gain passive voting rights. to gain a seat in the local parliament. The endeavor failed. Moreover, they themselves admit that they already had almost... the monopoly of the lucrative sugar, molasses and rum trade possessed?).

Numerous examples were also found everywhere on the other West Indies islands rich Jews.

The first Hebrews on the American mainland are said to have arrived in 1654 in New Amsterdam – present-day New York – landed. They then spread across the other parts of North-America. After New York was conquered by the English in 1664, Even when countries were occupied, the Jews made good progress. In 1672 they were no longer legally considered foreigners-seen. Although they still had some setbacks in their development-development, for example by introducing them to the retail trade around the year 1685 was banned – however, it was merely a transition – and

The last years of the 17th century saw them in the possession of every Freedom of trade and other privileges.

By 1727, there were hardly any barriers left.
for the naturalization of Jews, since the criteria set for this purpose Oath with the concluding words: "Upon the true faith of a Christian" (given the faithful faith of a Christian) among Jews, unnecessarily er-clarified. Thus, something that initially seemed so insignificant was ruled out early on.
A legal phrase that was so important that it
Complete emancipation of the Jews in England by the year 1858
2 Hyamson: History pp. 198–200.

Hyamson: History S, 200/01.
Hyamion: History pp. 202–204.

14° | 211

was able to stop it. In North America, the release
This oath standard naturally had the opposite effect, and so Given the Jewish mindset, it is not surprising that They even violated the laws as early as 1737.
elections were involved. Their votes were counted after a lengthy process.
Debates in the people's representation declared invalid 10).

In Canada, reliable traces of Jews can only be found during the period of...
The pressure exerted on the French by the English in the year 1760s (know!). Surely it is no coincidence that the Jew of modern times Times followed the flags of the British.

Further immigrations of Jews can be found in other sources.
parts of English colonies in America, which initially however, they are not of greater importance 12).

All in all, there is no doubt that the Jews in the colonies at least had the same influence as in the mother country, and it
It is therefore not surprising that the first successful ones came from there.
Steps towards emancipation were taken.

Preparations of the Jews to their first emancipation struggle

Throughout history, the same tactic of the Jews can be seen repeatedly.
It can be proven that they are trying to achieve their goal through meticulous work.
to achieve this. First, they seek to obtain from the legislative body-
The enactment of a law in a matter of subordinate meter meaning: the first stage for later efforts and at the same time an examination of the impact of such a measure among the people. If it's not cheap, well, then you wait a little while. and prepares for a better next time through propaganda Mood before...

So it was in the year 1740, which goes down in the history of the Jews in England will go down as an important milestone, it may initially even if they seem insignificant. This year, [they] passed [a resolution/command]. namely, the so-called "Law on the Naturalisation of such foreign Protestants and others mentioned therein, who in are located in His Majesty's colonies in America or settle" 3),

An unbiased reader would not initially suspect that the The law also contains sweeping provisions for Jews in America brings. Nobody will be impressed by the wording of the headline: "Out- "Country Protestants and others" are thinking specifically of Jews.

- 10) Hyamson: History p. 204/05.
- 11) Hyamson: History p. 206/07.
- 18) Hyamson: History p. 214/15.
- 18) Statutes at large Vol. XVII p. 370.

212

Most people will hardly bother, long laws – the English ones are hard to beat in this respect – to read through, and if someone really does have that thought comes, laboriously making its way through the thicket of English legal- To work through a language, he will hardly be able to grasp the entire content of a to examine. Perhaps he will examine the first section of skimming approximately 700 words and, depending on temperament and inter- I must conclude that everything will probably be alright in the following as well. – or that he's really had enough of this leathery thing- I have writing. The next two sections contain But now the important provisions concerning the Jews – all- This thing is only mentioned in a subordinate clause. This is in Section 2 was done in such a way that the Jews were afforded the then-current Time for such a drastic liberation from Holy Communion, which must take place before the official act of naturalization. had been granted. Finally, they were in the third section. The division was accommodated insofar as they were allowed to... Oath of Abjuration, which they take upon admission to the state to omit the concluding sentence "upon the true faith of a to provide for Christian".

Were they the influences on parliament that had already been observed more frequently? Members of the federation – it was the clever wording of the law or even Robert Walpole's connection with the Jews, which This law was passed so completely disregarding the public interest brought? In any case, it is certain that the clause regarding the Jews were literally tricked into accepting the money by deceiving the people. When the Duke of Bedford, in 1753, on the occasion of the Jewish debates in the upper house on the then-pending issues When he addressed the questions, he explained how it came about. The following is stated in the law from 1740: "I find that American law should, insofar as it relates to naturalization which refers to Jews, will be abolished. We all know how art- This part of the law has been fully implemented. We have furthermore I am aware that it has been passed through, or I would almost like to They say it happened completely unnoticed, because nothing that affected the Jews, it was evident during the vote, nor did it appear something about that in the title of this law . . .).

Therefore, it was an irregularity, or, as Coxe succinctly summarizes the words of the Duke of Bedford, "to Surprise and carelessness ..."

This is not just the opinion of one member of the upper house, but also that of a member of parliament, namely the Count von Egmont. He too commented on the events of 1740. Position: "If the people have not yet expressed their dissatisfaction-heit about the naturalization law of those Jews who seven

14) Literally: Oath of renunciation, specifically of fealty to the Stuart Jacob II and his descendants.

15) Parl. History Vol. XV p. 107.

213

years of living on our plantations has shown that only for the reason that the part of the law that relates to Jews- has passed through unnoticed, without ever participating in the vote to appear in this house or in the title, so that very Few people are aware of the existence of such a measure. knowledge . . . ").

If we asked ourselves above which of the different Possible options for passing the law are being considered. So we now have certainty that the structure of the law and The people's lack of knowledge contributed significantly to this. It is difficult to determine how many Jews were naturalized in the colonies. ascertain. During the dispute in 1753, they claimed some researchers"), that by that time 185 Jews had died had acquired British citizenship, while anotherrer'®) speaks of several hundred. In Jamaica, the Jews even, citing the law, were denied the right to vote. right, what was cut off from them) and otherwise equal-early on is an example of the extent to which the Jews were given a Immediately abuse the granted privilege. Even in England itself, the Jews were intent on further to achieve small partial successes.

Under King James I, a number of respected merchants The City of London's privileges for trade with the Levant granted and subsequently a company under the name Levante- A trading company has been founded. The possibility of joining- The decision was subject to certain conditions and only applied to one Limited to a small number of people. In any case, they could the Jews do not penetrate society, since they are primarily certain conditions stood in the way.

Almost all trade in Turkey, however, was concentrated in Hands of Jews"), and their racial comrades in England. They certainly didn't request preferential treatment without good reason. the economic relations with this country.

In 1744, they encountered the conditions at the Levant Society. very much so. For several years now, their trade has been on a downward trend. because the French had more suitable goods for the Turks and as a result of the shorter route from southern France, also cheaper They could deliver at prices. In addition, there were shifts in power within the... Middle East, through which the company acquires and sells (possibilities had been lost!), but the Jews and their friends tried to make the public understand that everything was only through that caused the exclusive character of society.

In the same year, therefore, a bill was introduced in the House of Commons- brought about, after which all British subjects, upon payment,

16) Parl. History Vol. XV p. 158

17) Hyamson: History p. 218, Hertz p. 62.

18) Hargrave p. 78.

19) Hyamson: History p. 203/04

20) Parl. History Vol. XIII p. 895 5 ff.

21) Parl. History Vol. XIII pp. 895-898, Macpherson Vol. III p. 240.

of £20 subject to the fulfillment of certain other minor obligations could participate in the company. In the event of the With the departure, nothing stood in the way of the Jews' entry. against. The honorable old English merchant families were here— They absolutely disagreed and therefore offered bitter resistance. Resistance.” The Jews naturally made all sorts of attempts opposing efforts?®).

Heated debates took place in the House of Commons. As hard— The most persistent enemy of the Jews proved to be, even back then, the one in Years 1753 leading London merchant Sir John Barnard.

The bill was nevertheless passed by a larger majority in the House of Commons.

adopted and referred to the House of Lords, which also (had to give his consent to the final implementation). The law was discussed there on May 7, 1744. According to the above— To conclude debates, it must have been a long and heated one. It must have been a meeting, because we find about 40 pages in the collection— lung of parliamentary reports.

The proponents tried to argue that especially the ex— The inclusive character caused the decline, the political and other difficulties of society, on the other hand, only from of subordinate importance. A blood refreshment of the Ge— Society was therefore necessary, and who could be more suitable for this? be like the Hebrews).

The opponents explained in detail the reasons for the current situation. They described the state of trade relations as very poor and warned thoroughly before admitting the Jews. With them would come people from low— of a certain character to Turkey, which poses a constant danger there. would be of English prestige and trade. But even from Apart from such an objection, the Duke of Bedford), one should remember that even with lifting English merchants would not have an advantage in trade. Since on the Turkish side, almost exclusively Jews are in charge, they would in their generally known and also not from the other side disputed cohesion, the businesses of their race comrades in the hands play and the English merchants are left behind have.

Lord Delaware supported the Duke with his remarks and pointed out once again the difference between Englishmen and Jews said: “The Jews, my lords—let them be born in whichever country they choose — they all consider themselves to be of the same rank. belonging to the nation. Jews born in China belong to the the same proportions to the Hebrew nation as those in England or those born elsewhere, and wherever they meet, consider They see themselves as fellow members of their race. They unite, go to the same places.

) Cunningham: Immigrants p. 203.
 2) Macpherson Vol. III p. 241.
 Parl. History Vol. XIII pp. 895–898.
 #) Parl. History Vol. XIII pp. 910 ff., 933 ff., 954 fl.
 26) Par). History Vol. XIII pp. 908–910.

Parl. History Vol. XIII p. 924 ff.

215

Synagogues speak the same language and have the same customs ...“ l

The Jewish sympathizers naturally disagreed on all points. and saw no danger whatsoever of Judaization of trade to the Levant, since the English merchants were exactly as capable as the Yiddish*).

The opponents of the law requested a postponement of the consultations, for which they received a majority"): A lower- The situation of the friends of the Jews, who will not have any in the coming years either no further attempts were made regarding the adoption. The majority of the upper house is likely to have, not least, the Jewish influence. fears of the Levant trade").

It is strange that the Jews in the year 1753, when they established their Emancipation efforts buried for almost a hundred years had to, at least they could book the partial success that their long-cherished wish, the enforcement of entry into the _Levante-Gesellschaft™), fulfilled. Business was back on track. very bad, mainly due to the fact that the host-

The economic situation of the company would change with general admission- laubnung – also of the Jews – elevate, the modification of the pri- vilegien®?) caused. Was the state of society really at

The reason for the political development in Asia Minor is unsatisfactory. or had the Jews contributed to it by lending a hand in hand with their fellow race members in Turkey through Erich-

The enactment of a silent boycott by English merchants last Did they destroy opportunities for fruitful trade? We

We don't know, but it wouldn't be the first and last time.

The fact that the Jews achieved their goal using such means.

The year 1748 brought another offensive by the opponents of the Jews.

Even back then, Jews were heavily involved in peddling in England involved"), which under Queen Elizabeth was through prohibited by special law"), but again by William III. was relaxed").

Meanwhile, the abuses of this trade had become so unbearable unbearable – for the peddlers cheated wherever they could, ver- bought unusable goods*) and proved to be the main culprits recipients of smuggled goods, because the state, lacking proper legal means, cannot confis (neter Warenlager could not control) – that on March 19th

In 1748, a petition was submitted to repeal the decree issued by William III. The law was passed. A lengthy debate ensued, during which

2) Parl. History Vol. XIII pp. 919-922 (including Lord Sandys).

2) Parl. History Vol. XIII p. 963.

32) Macpherson Vol. III p. 241.

31) Statutes at Large Vol. XXI p. 49 ff.

32) Cunningham: Immigrants p. 203/04, Macpherson Vol. III p. 293 / 94.

*) Hanway p. 143, Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 1391/92, newspaper The Adventurer p. 255 (April 3, 1753).

%) Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 266.

2) Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 246

3) Parl. History Vol. XIV pp. 246/47, 250.

7) Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 249.

216

The course of events, where opponents and proponents were discussed), but it is not apparent what became of the application

Apparently, peddling was not prohibited, because in the year

In 1753 we find a "Royal Peddler Office" in London, on which

Among other things, the annual licenses of the peddlers had to be renewed.

One can therefore assume that this initiative by the Jews-

The opponent has been repelled.

There are certain events in history whose causes one can only guess; such assumptions can almost never be confirmed.

solidify into certainty when they align with the goals of a be-

The interest group agreed to cover it.

The Jewish quest to achieve supremacy in

A people's journey usually begins with the Jews first establishing their Pursue naturalization, because only as a formal citizen can they gradually acquired the associated privileges create. In order not to be initially dominant in most countries,

Therefore, special tactics are needed to arouse widespread hatred of Jews.

Laws must be enacted to help them; but they must not

They should not reveal their goal too openly if they do not want to risk the Rejection is desired. Therefore, it is done with Jewish cunning-

Today a motion was submitted, not by the Jews, but by

He speaks of foreigners, of whom there were many in England: Huguenots, who left France because of their Protestant faith

They had, mostly because of their skill in the then flourishing French industries and because of the general Population shortages make them welcome. Who should be their naturalized citizen-contradict this? With these and other foreigners, slipping-then the Jews were more or less unnoticed brought into a state-connected. The law for the colonies discussed above, dated

The year 1740 is already an example of this, and without doubt they were the Jews were significantly involved in the fact that in the years 1745 and In 1751 a general naturalization law was passed, naturally initially once with the title "Law on the Naturalization of Foreign Pro-

"Testanten" was requested.

Moreover, it is not even mentioned by the Jews and friends of Jews. They denied their keen interest in this. Shortly before the introduction The Jews were busy with the petition to parliament, to draft a special immigration law for themselves." They immediately contacted the proponents of the bill in connection and wished that naturalization would not only not only to foreign Protestants, but also to them. As the friend of the Jews Philo Patriae further informs us, they found among the persons concerned, a favorable attitude towards their endeavors Ear, yes, they even suggested to the Hebrews, despite the great opposition- position in parliament and in the nation publicly express their desire to register. But out of fear "that they would prevent a measure-

38) Parl. History Vol. XIV pp. 246-266.

3) Philo Patriae: Considerations p. 22.

217

could, which in their opinion was for the good of the people, they rejected this pursuit of their private interests and be- worked hard to move the law forward.").

These hypocritical words, which will not surprise anyone familiar with Jewish culture are mentioned in a speech given in 1753 by Mr. Nugent, a leading figure in the history of The claim of being a friend of Jews is refuted as follows: "... The Jews have at the time, they contacted me because of a clause in their favor. walls, which I was also inclined to include. But I was afraid, that this could be an obstacle to the law and therefore refused, to comply with their request..).

We have no qualms about believing these words, since the the modesty and consideration described by Philo Patriae- The inclusion of the Jews in the general public's experience was quite unfavorable. which is probably normal. Be that as it may, our assumption is that they had agreed to the relevant law from the outset. The fact that it participates is thereby confirmed.

The legislative proposal, submitted by the aforementioned R. Nugent The proposal ultimately proved unsuccessful. Nugent He reportedly had "no political convictions whatsoever. Much- He sold more to the highest bidder each time. His knowledge- The facts were insignificant, and his opinion changed as soon as he expected to gain some personal benefit from it... .

The assumption therefore does not seem too far-fetched that in Such a character means that the money of interested circles plays a role. plays, especially since bribery was commonplace back then. were. In any case, Mr. Nugent showed great interest in These questions of naturalization, for he already raised them in 1751. a similar motion again in parliament, this time after The bill found a majority in the heated second reading. The opposition was only able to propose a few amendments. so that a new second reading had to take place, which also It went well. However, the third reading was delayed by the death of the then Prince of Wales unduly, thereby the opposition found time to call on voters to help against this! The government strongly supported the law. The people er- It seemed to be on the agenda, but then the storm broke. Requests from Rochester, Oxford, Southampton, Gloucester and other locations were involved in the Submitted to parliament. The government bowed to the outrage. and did not put the bill back on the agenda."

The great sympathy of the people is evident in their joy. about the cancellation.

When news of this victory arrived in Bristol, the There were no limits to the jubilation. The bells were rung, and the celebrations began.

4) Philo Patriae; oc p. 23.

410 Parl. History Vol. XV ST

€) Hyamson: Jew Bill 8.1

#) Dictionary of National en Vol. XIV p. 715, Hist. Manuscripts Commission Rep. 9 Part III p. 1

") Parl. History Vol. kiv pp. 970-972.

218

The population poured into the streets. In their processions, they carried caricatures of the law's supporters, including The portrait of a clergyman named Tucker was also located there. who had particularly supported the application with a written statement and whom we also saw in the first rank of the Jews in the year of struggle, 1753 Making friends. In the evening, a final event was held in Bristol set off fireworks and burned these satirical images."

Year of Struggle 1753

The people, with true instinct, had successfully resisted the They resisted being overrun by foreigners. It had become clear that the even at that time, generally corruptible representatives of the Vol-kes did nothing to obstruct the foreign elements, the people but was still healthy and strong enough to get his way.
set.

Thus we see attack and counterattack, victory and defeat of the parties alternating. But the year 1753 was to be the high-Point of the efforts of the Jews and the defense against the people bring. The former apparently believed the timing was right for them.
They had arrived. They did not consider the failure of 1751 to be so significant, and they only had the success of 1740 in mind. Apart-They probably gained their share through their recently won portion-success regarding the Levant Society can be exchanged, which Law, as the arrangement of the two potentially relevant Be-
The moods in the official collection result, previously without much.
Difficulties had been overcome. It is always the-
The same applies to the Jews: they always fail where instinct is at play.
Taking the place of intelligence is a consequence of the fact that it are no longer connected to the ground and the feelings of
They do not understand their unrelated national body. Consequently, Nor can they control the forces arising from these.
to assess power, and they were established in England in 1753.
- just as in Germany in 1933 - defeated.

Immediately after the failure of the 1751 law, the Jews their efforts for a general Jewish naturalization-
The law of propagation continued. Slowly, very slowly, they let their propaganda flow.
Start up the Gandamaschine; how best to do this is explained in the following sections.
of Philo Patriae, which should not be omitted from reproducing, emerges"):

"... therefore, they considered it their duty not to pursue it (their plan)
at first and to avoid every petty selfish
The tendency to suppress, which perhaps each of them possesses
He stepped forward, just so he wouldn't have to ask. Later they came.

- - eee

- 4) Gentleman's Magazine Vol. 21 p. 186.
- 4) Philo Patriae: Considerations p. 24/25.

219

but almost unanimously agreed to request it, prefacing their statement that they naturally did not wish to obtain any new privilege desired. In general, the submissions were made publicly.
and with this reasoning, whereupon they then under their They spread the word among acquaintances. In this way, they became common knowledge.
attitude issue, especially towards the end of the session period of the Year 1752. One encountered it more generally (not to say, (unanimous) agreement, but then considered it appropriate, The matter will be addressed before the next session. to give people time to think it over.

At the beginning of last winter, the entertainment was 'renewed,' which Considered the matter, and a corresponding formal submission was considered. It was done, and no contradiction was found... How could it be ever such an extraordinarily sensible matter They represent an obstacle!... The few who did not accept the proposal They seemed to understand when they heard him discuss it. convinced that no adverse consequences would result from it- could give. No effort was spared to achieve every possible The objection was not considered, and no steps were taken. undertaken until everyone to whom the proposal is made has been informed. had, completely from the benefit of the law and from the General approval, which it would encounter, is convincing were...

For two years, attempts had been made to convince acquaintances of "the usefulness of the law" before it was finally implemented brought. We are familiar with such "convincing" of the Jews in the context of the- appropriate occasions, and how much more accommodation should be allowed- ten they found in a time when bribery was rampant The agenda was.

The fight was opened by the liberal government Pelham proposed a bill in the House of Lords in the spring of 1753. carried, by virtue of which foreign Jews under certain conditions- those who were able to acquire British citizenship. There were laws that, in principle, allowed them this possibility- ness had been taken. Under King James I, it had been "in order to un- wished to keep away foreign Catholics, the naturalized citizens- The process is made more difficult by the fact that it is an indispensable prerequisite required that the applicant had shortly before the relevant- to receive Holy Communion during the state ceremony and the Oath of Allegiance*) and the Oath of Supremacy*) to "to perform." The former was to be based on the New Testament, the The latter contained the concluding words that were so fatal for the Jews: "Upon "The true faith of a Christian." All three requirements could be met. so the Jew cannot fulfill.

119) Oath of allegiance, which the Briton had to swear to the king as secular head of state
48) Also an oath of allegiance, but to the British King as spiritual head to provide.

) Parl. History Vol. XIV pp. 1373/74, 7. Jac. I. c. 2.

In 1663, King Charles II eased the conditions to that extent-gen, when he raised the obligation to take the Lord's Supper—raised in order to promote the immigration of such foreigners, those aimed at reviving struggling branches of the trades, such as Weaving, carpet making, etc., were desired. Could the Immigrants unable to demonstrate commercial skills remained (it was the old provision). This law, too, could not affect the Jews.

They were of little help. Apart from the oaths, they had and still have They hardly practiced such professions. Consequently, they hoped to—to obtain the same facilitations for naturalization as In 1740, they encountered their fellow race members in the American had granted colonies.

The extensive preparatory work should pay off.
Jews and their friends initially achieved success on the
The entire process was recorded. The law was brought into the House.
of Lords and bid it farewell there in complete silence and with the greatest respect Speed, which was, however, wrongly denied by the Jews. becomes").

On April 6, 1753, the application was submitted to a committee for consideration.
handed over. Among those present at the meeting were the two archbishops of England and twelve bishops present *). As far as has been determined—Not a single voice was raised in dissent. Already on
On April 10th, it was announced that the final decision would be made at the next meeting.
The hearing is to take place. Once again, the two archbishops were present.
and this time, however, only eight bishops were present." It also happened that a short delay (one), but already on April 16th
The law was passed unanimously by the upper house.

It was handed over to parliament that same day, and already at the next meeting on April 17th for the first time in (Read the House of Commons®). It really couldn't have gone any faster.
We will discuss this law in more detail below.
have been dealing with this, and so we want to briefly discuss its content.
go along. |

First, there is a long preamble, which refers, among other things, to the previous naturalization laws. Then The actual law follows with the words: "Therefore, it is—legally stipulated ... that persons who adhere to the Jewish religion belong, upon a corresponding request from Parliament can be naturalized without taking communion must... Furthermore, the Jews only had to... for their naturalization to prove that they have been in the area for at least three years.
have stopped in England and during this time followers of the Jewish—have been a religious religion.

%) Statutes of the Realm Vol. V p. 498.

s) Philo Patriae: Considerations p. 25.

n) Journals of the House of Lords Vol. XXVIII p. 80.

12) Journals of the House of Lords Vol. XXVIII pp. 82, 84, 85.

s? Journals of the House of Lords Vol. XXVIII pp. 88/91.

s) Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 1365, Philo Patriae: Considerations p. 25/26.

22I

Then follow restrictions for the Jews, which clearly show how the church was won over: it is against the spread of Jewish influence in their territory by protecting that every person of the Jewish faith is not authorized to be the patron of a church or have other rights or Interests related to church, school or hospitals—to buy or otherwise acquire. finally determined that all existing agreements (regarding the disposal of church property are void®), After the first reading, the text of the law was put to print. given and it was intended to pass it quickly through the Parliament—to bring about this. The Easter holidays were the main reason for this. niece, and so the second reading didn't take place until May 7th. However, the interim period had been sufficient to provide the people and a Part of the delegation clarified the situation. The first Storm signs became visible, and so one saw of Jewish The page faces the second reading not without apprehension.

The debate on this matter was lengthy, and a number of ver-Representatives from both sides had their say.

The proponents argued that the law would only benefit rich Jews. the possibility of coming to England and becoming a naturalized citizen to become, which is not to anyone's disadvantage, but rather to everyone's advantage "The advantage would be sufficient." Furthermore, one should not forget, that the Jews in England behaved well and contributed significantly to the Taxpayers would have been involved." Furthermore, it has emerged that that the Hebrews posed no threat whatsoever to small-scale trade. However, they sold their goods more cheaply than the English merchants, but This would be because they were satisfied with less profit; in I saw the whole thing, but that only affected the buying public. the advantage).

But the Jews had an overwhelming influence in the export trade. "Since they" – so we hear from Lord Dupplin – "through the the large financial resources available to them and through their extensive relationships with all parts of the world, trade every country – wherever they go – increase, so it is without Doubts in the interest of every trade and industry-driving Vol-kes, to invite them or at least to enable the rich Jews to lichen, to live under him .. .%)“ It is not surprising that This was also emphasized by R. Nugent, whom we already know! will be. |

Furthermore, reference was made to the support that the government received from the Jews in years of greatest crisis; the opposition— However, opposition to this honorable race could only be justified from °*) Statutes at Large Vol. XXI p. 97, Hyamson: Jew Bill p. 159/60.

57) Parl. History Vol. XIV pp. 1375, 1387.

58) Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 1378/79.

3 Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 1398.

Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 1376.

“) Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 1386.

222

explain it with petty competitive jealousy :). Finally, one could persuade the Jews to be baptized.”).

The anti-Semites were no less active. One of their representatives opened the debate and described it as virtually inexplicable— It is understandable why Parliament so frequently deals with immigration— to deal with laws. Even in Cromwell's time and King William III had the Jews pay large sums for the— suitable purposes. It is hardly conceivable that this is not the case. that is also the case now, as she is currently undertaking her larger expansion— The spread of interest in naturalization in Europe is increasing. England would have to and make them pay at the Ver— Increasing their wealth would be even easier than before. He feared, however, that this money would hardly benefit the general public. would come).

The same speaker objected to the fact that the attitude of the opponents of Jews was described as "persecution". It was rejected only to stop by all means granting privileges to the Jews, on Reasons why they might even one day have a share in directing would have progressed.”

This and another member of Parliament further emphasized, that the Hebrews in the event of the passage of the law England overrun and buy up the country.”

But the most impressive words must be those of the leader of the Sir John Barnard, an opponent of Jews, who was related to us expresses thought processes. During his lifetime, he was he is "the father of the City", or in the words of Lord Chatham. speak, "The Great Commoner" ge-"called." He had previously participated in similar attempts. countered against the threat of being overrun by foreigners.

He began his remarks by stating that as a Christian he was prepared to to love his enemies, yet most resolutely refuse to to share a roof with them, let alone give them the opportunity to give, to gradually make himself his master and him to drive him out of his house. One should not imagine, that the Jew is indirectly compelled to convert through the law-ten would, which would provide him with no practical benefit. Furthermore, he had to address the often-heard view to discuss how the Jews had disrupted the economy in various ways- established in several countries. "The origin of trade," Sir [name omitted] continues. John continued, "In all countries, manufacturing is the norm. No Jew will..." but each was raised to be a manufacturer or craftsman or for example, to pursue a tedious occupation. Therefore, They were never and nowhere the founders of Ilandel... There have been countless Jews in Poland since ancient times, nevertheless

-) Parl. History Vol. XIV 12885
- 3 Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 1385.
- Parl. History Vol. XIV pp. 1367-1369.
- *) Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 1371.
- "") Parl. History Vol. XIV 8. 1372, 1379.
- 7) Dictionary of National Biography Vol. I p. 1160/61.

223

No one would claim that Poland is a trading country. Some wealthy Jews contributed to expanding the already existing Han- to increase their liquid assets; the majority were but employed in usury, brokerage, and peddling.

It may be true that the Hebrews, based on their worldly- Longer connections could initially increase exports, and "Only for this reason," he continues, "is it right that a A people whose trade is still in its infancy, the Jews encourage solite to settle there, since the manufacturers in so- Many countries often do not have enough money to manufacture their products. to absorb on a larger scale, or the domestic purchasing power People might not have foreign business associates in such places. countries where they can most advantageously market their products- could bring. However, in a country where trade has been long full operation, where the manufacturers or their friends have sufficient resources of their own to finance their manufacturing to expand as much as possible and where the local merchants maintain connections with all foreign countries ..., in sol-

In this country, I maintain, it would be madness if nothing
Even worse, granting Jews the same rights as immigrants domestic. That would only allow the former to do the English people take the bite, or part of the bite, from the to speak without even considering the national economy to promote at the least. No Jew will be promoted to a greater degree than a A local is capable of doing more than he can reasonably expect to achieve.
can sell, and that's how much the local merchants will sell.
always export, even if there wasn't a single Jew in the Reich would be..." This is all the more the case, says Sir John, as...
There is already an oversupply of English merchants in all parts today.
The world shows what would change considerably if Jews were admitted would worsen.

Even in retail trade, the Jews would not be an advantage.
A nation's consumption does not increase through licensing.
of Jews, but only the number of businesspeople increased.
and inevitably cause the displacement of the Englishman, because the Jews sold them more cheaply – a consequence of the fact that they far more often they committed fraud.

Finally, he warns the English people that England, in the event of a
Such a law would eventually be overrun by Jews,
For wherever the rich Jew appears, the poor one always follows.
The influence of the Hebrews would grow, more and more
They would dominate trade and commerce. And in the end
"They will probably be the tedious part of all manufacturing" and leave commercial trade to the poor Christians and even just playing the supreme master ...®).

We will say to Sir John today, if he ever opens his eyes again opened

Parl. History Vol. XIV pp. 1388–1395.

224

All the efforts of the opponents of the Jews and their leader – the Sampson Gideon hated®) – were in vain. After a short ab-concluding and pro-law statements of the Minister Pelham called for a vote. An overwhelming
A majority of 95 to 16 votes was cast in favor of the Ge-settes aus"),

Normally the second reading was and is the decisive one and the third reading hardly has any significance anymore attributed to the defeated opposition in such cases rarely makes any effort anymore. The-
But this time things turned out differently.

The city, already best described by Sir John Barnard in Parliament represented, but had not yet given up. Already under It was she who had always been the Stuart kings renewed attacks, possibly resistance against the Jews undertook. In earlier battles they had there found no support at all or no significant support and therefore realized that they needed to win over supporters in the city-ten, to overcome the bulwark of Englishness. In the Throughout history, it becomes clear that the Jews also played a part in this. They will remain true to their well-considered tactics. First, they will try to... to win the capital of a country, from there they succeed then, the healthy, counter-current coming from the provinces- to beat. This process ends all the faster the larger the population of a capital city in relation to the rest of the country The nation is and the longer – and therefore the more effective – The centralization of a country has progressed. Which London had offered ideal conditions for this plan since the year- hundreds already the dominant city of a long united England's. We will see to what extent the attempts of the Jews which had progressed towards the establishment of the city in 1753.

The Jews' secret preparations for the farewell The law was not unknown to the members of the City. They had therefore already remained before the application was submitted. the intention to submit a petition against it to parliament. Apparently, they received reassuring confirmation that "one would refrain from the application." To the surprise of However, the case did go to trial, and so the city met the The first debate in parliament was quite surprising.

Immediately after the second reading, on May 9, the Cor- Parliamentary action by the City of London to take steps convened. Philo Patriae???) reports that the assembly was without The outcome for the opponents of the law is uncertain. We have concerns. to follow him in this, since this hardly aligns with the subsequent findings- to reconcile events.

®) Hyamson: Jew Bill p. 162.

n? Parl. History Vol. XIV pp. 14–17.

Romaine, pp. 66/67.

7) Philo Patriae: Considerations p. 26.

15 Jews conquer England 225

He himself must admit that during the same period "some restless elements" have come together to take steps against the Geto undertake. However, subsequent developments show quite clearly

It was clear that it was not "a few troublemakers", but The overwhelming majority of the city's citizens. That's how we are.
inclined not to continue his communications in the following, but to believe those of his opponents more.

Afterwards, a significant number of citizens gathered, who formed a party to fight against Judaization. A plea-
The application was drafted and publicly posted near the stock exchange.
In a very short time, it could be determined that out of ten Citizens of the city declared nine against the law." In this context No coercion was exerted on them, like the Jews and their Friends claimed."

Because of this popular movement, the Citizens of the City will meet in the Guildhall on May 21st.
It has come together. Even the opposing side is not acknowledging it.
claims that any city councilors assembled there in favor the law would have come into effect. Rather, it was unanimously decided the decision to submit a request to Parliament to approve the Ge-It should not be adopted. It would be against all Christian honor.
and would have catastrophic consequences for English trade Merchants have." It was presented to Parliament on the same day presented "e). Almost simultaneously, a great many citizens issued a statement a petition against the law with particular reference to the disadvantage for trade 77).

The Jews and their friends had – as usual – also the
They did what they had done: another group of citizens of the city just brought-if a petition was submitted, but on this page one could see only-
The great advantages of increased immigration are evident.
Hebrews who considered the passage of the law desirable do").

Half a century ago, the City had still stood together as one man. But now the Jews had already a A breach has been made, even if only a fraction, but still-He gained followers. We know how the Hebrews all-gradually make friends among the population of a country, but Perhaps it would be better if we let a contemporary comment on this.
Take a stand:

"The mood in the city is such that 19 out of 20 are against the Jews. However, they were able to attract a few rich people.
because of their plea, but these stood

73) Romaine, pp. 66–69.

%) Philo Patriae: Considerations pp. 26–28.

75) Romaine S. 74, Modest Apology: Foreword, Gentleman's Magazine Vol. 77155 = 246, Newspapers: London Evening Post 28/30 June, Public Advertiser May 22, 175

76) Journals of the House of Commons, May 21, 1753 p. 827.

77) Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 1417/18.

75) Philo Patriae: Considerations p. 30 ff., Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 1417/18.

226

entirely under the influence of the government ministers. Others were guided by their own interests, and I know some, to whom these charitable, merciful Jews threatened no to do more business with them if they are not under- They wrote... They used every conceivable art form and Methods to obtain names for their petition ...7*)..“

These same means are still used today by Jews in similar situations. applied in these cases, and we have no reason to change this execution- to doubt the struggles. The only difference compared to before. The only difference in this case is that today it's not just private individuals, but entire states are subjugated through boycotts and similar means does or tries to do. Germany and Romania during- The end of Goga's reign are examples with varying degrees of succession. Success. |

By now, the Jews had even managed to win over a well-known representative of the city, Sir William Calvart, to their cause to do. Until 1753 he held an influential position in the City inside. The people did not cease to bribe him through to accuse the Jews and did not forget that he was in parliament had voted for her. The citizenry soon gave him the Response to his stance. He fell in 1754 during the New- elections went miserably.

It also came as a great surprise to the public that the Jews actually had a number of friends in the city. The bitterness was all the greater, however, when it was discovered that These individuals are of race, primarily Jews, and mainly had dealt with those who were somehow dependent on them warns).

At the end of May, the third reading against the united Opposition resistance was heard. The various English... countries that had signed the petition against the law®). The Member of Parliament, Count von Egmont, took the most detailed account of the opposition had its say after the third reading was completed at the last minute he tried to salvage his situation by that he rejected the request for further postponement of the law-supported. He begins with a warning to Parliament, which Public sentiment should not be ignored. It is predominantly against the law and could be for those represented in parliament The majority finds no understanding.

One shouldn't always talk about the great advantages, those arising from the admission of Jews to trade. Have Can we completely forget history? In the past, the Jews... through their usury and other bad methods, the existence destroyed by individuals, thus gradually eroding the hatred the people have brought it upon themselves. Today, with their system, they would have it

75) Gent p. 21.

30) Stephenson Vol. III Part 2 p. 860.

1) Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 1418.

159 227

brought to such an extent that they even ruined kingdoms, "by helping ministers to ruin the states they were supposed to serve to bring the begging staff, in whatever way they also considerably have contributed to our nation being indebted for almost "To overthrow 80 million pounds..." The wealth of the Jews in England is not based on honest and decent business practices. They originated, but they suffered dark consequences in recent wars. made deals.

Regarding the aversion of the Portuguese and Spanish to Jews It is feared that English merchants will discontinue their trade in These two countries would lose in favor of France. finally, due to increased immigration, Jews and the associated foreign infiltration had adverse consequences. ...are feared for the culture of England."

Neither the lengthy explanations of the Count of Egmont nor the The attitude of the people could have secured the victory of the Jews and their friends to prevent it. By a vote of 96 to 55, the

The opposition's request for adjournment was rejected and the law was passed. finally adopted®), On June 7 of the same year, the King his consent necessary for legal force*).

The Jews and their friends triumphed. All efforts The opposition in parliament and among the people was in vain. The government that had championed the law had That probably tipped the scales. Finally, the king had no more demands. The idea was to give legal force to the law. King, Government, House of Lords and Parliament, the latter two by an overwhelming majority, they had voted in favor of the Jews. spoken. They now intended to calmly proceed with the to further expand success and gradually achieve emancipation to carry out. And yet nothing came of it. A power a stronger than all external powers of the government: that olk!

Immediately after the law came into effect, the Jewish opponents of the fight from parliament to the public sphere. They had They should think that through the great efforts made before the
The passage of the law, coupled with the devastating the failure would have discouraged them. Not at all! Was it the so often gone English tenacity or the equally often cited
The Englishman's attitude that he never knows whether he is defeated or not.
In short, the opponents did not give up the fight, but They continued with twice the force. No act, as he noted.
Jude Picciotto⁸⁵) rightly, not even the lifting of the corn-laws or the introduction of free trade have so changed England How moving this conflict was. Almost all of London was talking.

) Parl. History Vol. XIV pp. 1418-1430.

82) Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 1431.

0 London Evening Post, June 8, 1753.

8) Picciotto p. 80.

228 of nothing other than the victory of the Jews"). A contemporary believes the law is without precedent in English history (There, another one) brings up this idea in a similar way.

as follows: "It seems as if we are working on something like this have reached a critical point in history, such as Our nation has never seen before and hopefully never will again will see." Books, pamphlets, and caricatures were written by both sides.
Papers and essays published in newspapers. England lived as if in a fever. The talk of the day was the Jewish community.
Question. Until 1933, probably no nation had ever again become so... closed, resisting Jewish overpopulation as they did back then
The English one. But the Jews and their friends weren't either.
idle, and so an unprecedented flood of propaganda poured forth.
about the country.

A popular argument for admitting Jews was the the possibility allegedly created by the law for their use Conversion. Missions for conversion would not have been neglected. to send other peoples into the world. Why should one not thereby facilitating the execution of this good purpose, that the Jews would be allowed into the country and then killed on the spot to convert them." Once the Jews were baptized, they would We hear in the sermon that they will also become much more civilized in all aspects of the (of a clergyman). It should also not be forgotten that Another writes that the whole world hates the Jews because of their

I owe a great debt of gratitude to the moral system." It was especially the aforementioned clergyman Tucker in Bristol, who came from religious reasons demanded the admission of Jews. It was, after all, an almost unbelievable stroke of luck, if only the English Church were to "the "old people of God" would lead to the Christian faith"). Some®) were aware of the conversion of the Jews to Christianity so certain that, in their view, naturalization with a certificate of completion is possible could be equated with turning around. Finally, even the hope was given... The expression that within a period of 20 years all Jews who would have accepted the true faith."

It is interesting that such public statements on the topic of over-significant portions come from clergy who have never dealt with anything at all. There were a few exceptions on the Jewish side.

Philo Patriae® also believes that Jews are generally easy to be converted, since already "many Jewish families in England" "Having been baptized in England." Therefore, it should have been since... of this time and before, a mixing of Jewish blood with 26) Gent p. 5.

Reflections of the Past, p. 3.
Jews Advocate, Foreword
Philo Patriae: Considerations pp. 7-13.
m Winstanley p. 11.
Leslie S. 15 ff.
3 Letter to a friend p. 42.
=) Bowyer p. 14.
Fullness and Final Restoration of the Jews p. 18.
Philo Patriae: Considerations p. 8.

229

must have occurred in England, since at that time, with the conversion to Christianity the barriers between the two peoples fell very quickly. In contrast to the hopes for conversion, there was a lack of... The opposing side has no doubts. Hanway™) promises in this. In this respect, the law has had precisely the opposite effect. The Jews have so far been treated with such leniency in England- The country has been treated in such a way that they - if at all - have already. They would have had every reason to switch sides in the past. The major right-wingers. The law would further strengthen their beliefs. to note. Similar concerns are raised in a public expressed in a letter to a newspaper, which was intended as a response to this- "Regarding statements made by a clergyman." England was also brought with it the Jewish prophecies. in connection with the restoration of an empire in Palestine. One clergyman believed he could predict that England (who would be of assistance to the Jews in this matter). Another writer, probably also a theologian, he devotes more or less so this idea. In his view, it is except Doubts that England will repatriate the Jews to their country of origin would ®) and is determined to guide the Jews to the correct faith—to take them away (1%). With his help, they would go to Palestine. return. One would build a canal from the Mediterranean to the build the Red Sea, whereby the Jews would then be disadvantaged by the location of their The country plays a crucial role in controlling this lake—way too much 101) “And as a consequence of this there will be peace, abundance and bring happiness into the world.”

We will encounter these lines of thought again later. When we now the persistent efforts of the English on Er—To see the direction of a Jewish kingdom in Palestine, we must consider—It will be quick to see how far these efforts will decline. Perhaps also today strategic necessities and subservience to the World Jewry has a say; the background to this remains nothing—the less interesting.

They continued to try to explain to the English people, that a hostile attitude towards the Hebrews against the Christian—It would violate our religion. A Christian is not allowed to... to repay like with like, and furthermore, they would have The English still punished the Jews a lot because of the harsh laws to make amends before 1290. One need not condemn them with hatred—follow, for they were once the favorites of God 1%), even apart from "Note that Englishmen and Jews had only one father."

%) Hanway pp. 71–73.

*) London Evening Post, August 18–21, 1753.

®) Full and Final Restoration of the Jews p. 14.

) Reflections on the Past p. 19.

1) Reflections on the Past p. 31 ff.

101) Reflections on the Past p. 58.

19t) Reflections on the Past p. 68.

102) Peckard, p. 11 ff.

14) Believer p. 2.

16) Tucker: Letter to a friend p. 11.

Finally, an admonition is issued to the Jews to finally stop accumulating so much gold, since they too will one day would have to die 1).

This reference to the inappropriate persecution of the Jews is countered by an Englishman in a newspaper countered with the remark: "It There is a big difference between persecution and special-rer favoritism." This short sentence likely contains the answer to the charges of persecution are appropriate'),

It is further pointed out that the Hebrews always dealt with the Protestants fought against the Catholics – because they the former were much closer in their religion than the latter. ren!®) –, however much one tries to dissuade the English people from the To convince people of the usefulness of Jews in relation to the economy. They possess unimagined financial resources, so that a large A flow of wealth would come with their immigration into the country (1°). a circumstance all the more significant as they have extensive connections– He entertained fellow members of his race in Europe with equally wealthy contemporaries. ten 1%). The state could also increase prosperity. (expect larger tax revenues!!), since the Jews their Don't let money sit idle, but put it into circulation. would 12).

They already have a significant share in the economy of England of England. However, for the good of the country, a considerable increase in their contrick Gering desired. Jews have now established themselves not only as useful, but even necessary for English trade proven), which is best achieved through further immigration– can be secured #5). In general, it is a basic rule that The richer and more powerful a country becomes, the more merchants it has. it possessed. That's why the Turks and Catholics, despite out of their aversion, they took in the Jews 4).

Finally, the country would also receive new, healthy blood and great infused with energy. They can make such claims if they do not possess significant abilities. possessed any rights?!")? The centuries–long struggle has left the minority valuable members of the race were mercilessly exterminated, and so Only the strong could have prevailed. Furthermore, The Jews found every means and way to to reach their goal!).

106) Rejection and Restoration of the Jews p. 17.
17) London Evening Post from August 18/21, 1753.
18) Philo Patriae: Considerations p. 52.

1) Philo Patriae: Further Considerations p. 8/9.
110) True State of the Case p. 1.

111) Appeal ... to Caesar p. 4.

118) Jess Advocate p. 11, Letter to the 1 p. 19.

18) Philo Patriae: Considerations p. 36 ff

114) Philo Patriae: Further Considerations 8. 51.

115) Webb p. 1 ff., Address to the Friends p. 10.

116) Believer p. 22.

117) Believer p. 3 ff.

118) Believer p. 16 ff.

There are also warnings raised against these voices.

Wise of the English. Thus, Jewish capital is not considered necessary, since during the time of Queen Elizabeth a great economic prosperity could have existed without Jews. Rather, it would—which they considered unwelcome competition for the English merchants do and ruin part of it). We find similar concerns in a major public speech, warning that the wealthy Jews would naturally do everything in their power to...

Money to buy land and so on, gaining influence due to the

to gain privileges associated with land ownership!).

But the Jews and their friends did not limit themselves to that.

naturalization for the future development of England

They demanded, but they tried to explain that they were already on

They are worthy of this right based on services rendered. They are—main, significantly contributing to the rescue of the state in these critical days and months of the years 1745 and 1746. The so-called Pretenders, i.e., the last Stuart with a direct Claim to the English throne, had landed in Scotland and marched with his Scottish Highlanders against Lon—don. A mood of panic arose. The Jews now took to

The aim was to overcome this in an outstanding way.

have: So. They only want to be free out of love for the king and country.

willingly joined the militia formed for defense in order to provide emergency—in case London is to be defended”).

It is true that a number of Jews were in the ranks of the militia.

were found. This is initially surprising, since even the

It is not denied that the Hebrews abdicated the craft of arms—shy away. But as soon as we learn the more detailed circumstances, which They caused us to enter, we can imagine this exceptional situation.

Explain the appearance.

In fact, as a contemporary explained to us in detail—

(directed!??), none of the Jews volunteered. They were instead “through violence and dire necessity”

Forced into military service. Under the then-prevailing regime—

Under those conditions, every homeowner was legally obligated to to report to the militia. However, he had the option of a to provide a replacement, for whom he would pay a salary of 5 shillings.

had to pay per day. As a result, there were various Jews, who were unwilling or unable to raise this amount. Thus it came about that some of them – certainly to their greatest dismay – gloom – the duties of the soldier, which he so hated, upon himself Romaine asks if such people could be volunteers.

could call it "Was it their merit that they did what they didn't Could you avoid it? ... You can claim nothing further. than the merit of having yielded to necessity.
119) Daily Advertiser of September 29, 1753.

120) Gentleman's Magazine Vol. XXIII p. 479 ff.

121) Philo Patriae: Considerations $. 41.
(ur) Romaine S. 83.

232

And I fear that the Jews always act in this way:
they will always be volunteers by force, whenever they rendered any real service to this kingdom-point . . .)..“

This statement by Romaine, who was one of the few clergymen Since he was on the side of the anti-Semites, we don't need to add anything.
add. |

The Jews claim as a further merit for the general public that they minted coins during the aforementioned crisis years money introduced and thus saved the state's credit!), because a portion of the public, during the days of danger, significantly withdrew large quantities of coinage and silver. When this Strong demand, but supplies were almost depleted, would have the Jews imported gold and silver in larger quantities and provided to the bank.

It is no secret that the Hebrews do nothing without good communication.
to perform service, and so Romaine's statements about to take this point quite seriously, according to which the Jews er-have significantly enriched themselves through this transaction.

The Bank of England had closed its discount bank, which
The result: a general rise in prices on the stock exchange and a shortage of coined gold. The Jews bought and instead of importing cash from Holland and Hamburg Change to settle their claims against foreign to bring in business associates. In this way they achieved a profit of at least 7%: the only reason for the Be-creation of the money they previously – if it were in their interest esse was – had been carried out.

The merchants and directors of the Bank of England soon recognized that there was not the slightest merit in it on the part of the Jews was visible. "This so-called meritorious deed, on which her lawyers argued that the damage to the bank could not be compensated. to make amends to England for what she had suffered as a result, that the Jews smuggled cash out of the brought to the kingdom. As a result, the bank refused them the fundamental rights that they grant to the English economy—had cleared out. Namely, when the bank had closed its discount department for When merchants reopened, she remained opposed to the Jews. closed. This had been the case until very recently. (i.e., about 7 years). Whenever a Christian makes a change presented at a discount with the endorsement of a Jew, He would have been rejected because of the suspicion that The Christian worked together with the Jew, and the exchange actually comes from the latter."

Romaine then asks at the end what the merit of the Jews is. that existed in the past. "Initially, they would have..."

— — —

20 Romaine S. 84.

#4) Philo Patriae: Considerations 8. 42.

233

Deprived the country of cash, then they caused an economic crisis from which they again profited. They con— They then derived great merit from the fact that they had done that Bring cash back into the country and tax 7% on it. serve*5)," ;

In the critical years of 1745 and 1746, it also happened that that the Bank of England's banknotes were offered below par: first signs of a lack of confidence in the credit of the State and the resulting threat of declining security! All Leading merchants of the city joined forces during these hours the danger together and published a statement where— after they redeemed all the banknotes at the full exchange rate: a measure— a measure that contributed significantly to saving the currency.

Philo Patriae*?) now acts as if the Jews were acting for themselves in An— could take a stand, decisive in this support— to have been involved in the action. However, he himself must admit, that among the twelve leading merchants there were only two Jews. We don't know if this is true, but assuming it's based on Truth, this number of Jews does not speak for itself. against a majority participation? In reality, it is also Their assistance in this regard was of very minor importance.

had been, because the frequently mentioned Sir John Barnard was the originator and promoter of the aforementioned matters?"), where he had the full support of the English banker Lee found %. The city had already awarded the former for his services. A monument was erected in 1747.

As a further service to the state, Philo Patriae!?) lists the The fact is that the Jews suffered considerable hardship during the crisis years. Funds had been paid into the land bond that was issued at that time. "A A quarter of the money, which was immediately raised on this occasion was, came from them..."

Romaine') replies that the Jews did indeed have funds for this. would have provided, but there was nothing extraordinary in it. It was possible to see something, as this facility was quite safe. Interest rates were also reasonable, and so one could They simply cannot understand that the Jews in any way Wise men who had made a sacrifice for the benefit of the nation.

But Romaine also seems to be the most important reason for refutation to have escaped this claim of Philo Patriae. We have namely, it was determined that an official list of the names and the amount of the subscribed sums has been published, which at the request of some of those involved in this rescue operation for the state

135) Romaine, pp. 85–87.

126) Philo Patriae: Considerations p. 43/44.

127) Dictionary of National Biography Vol. I p. 1160.

126) Romaine, pp. 87/88.

129) Orridge p. 179.

1%) Philo Patriae: Considerations p. 45.

131) Romaine p. 89.

234

participating Birger was drawn up. This list is printed together with the report of the Guildhall Committee in 1747 has been. It is therefore established that the Jews were deported from the beginning– Of the total amount of £18,910, only the amount of have raised £514 (12s. 0d.t). It therefore cannot be in the ent– Far from it was even possible to suggest that the Jews constituted a quarter of the have raised initial funds, based on which the public– no confidence in further drawings.

When the list was published in the London Evening Post, The Jews were simultaneously asked to provide corrections, if the statement did not correspond to the facts. The further in-depth research in this and other newspapers However, they did not provide any refutation of the publication. This should prove, in Romaine's case, that the Jews in have no past merits for the state could have justified this law, as well as those in modern times, as represented by Hyamson), in the sense This is refuted by Philo Patriae.

The opponents, unlike the Jews and their friends, see in the Christian religion an insurmountable obstacle for the law, which they justify, among other things, by claiming that the Jews alone to hold Jesus Christ responsible for the crucifixion and the principles of the Christian religion incompatible with those of the Jewish being.”

Furthermore, the economic disadvantages are frequently mentioned points that threatened English merchants through the law!?) . The saying of the great English jurist Lord Coke: “The Jews are sworn enemies. The law does not believe they will ever be able to can be turned around, for between them – as with the devil, whose subjects they are – and the Christians are subject to constant rule enmity and can never be peace” 1%), is especially highlighted.

In addition, the character of the Jews has been examined in detail. This leads to conclusions that are consistent with ours completely agree, and there should be an Englishman It is surprising in this day and age that this viewpoint was previously held by the was won over by the majority of the English people.

The Jew was averse to all manual labor. Not a single one. can be found in agriculture or in a factory, so that (one would have no advantages whatsoever on the job market!)). The numerous Jewish peddlers were a plague on the land, which the To cheat the population with substandard goods. It is, incidentally, It's interesting that the inhabitants in the countryside during the

in) London Evening Post from August 16th to 18th, 1753.

185) Hyamson: History p. 217. i SANAT,

13) Romaine p. 21 ff., Candid & Impartial Examination p. 10 ff.

155) So, among others, Appeal to the Throne p. 22, Hanway p. 175 ff.

13) Romaine S. 10, Daily Advertiser of November 3 and 10, 1753.

157) Hanway, pp. 146/47, Westminster Journal, June 9, 1753.

violent arguments, refused to buy from the Jewish peddlers any longer'),

It would also be detrimental from a criminal perspective to bring even more Jews into the to leave land. They already bought the stolen goods. originating jewels, watches, in short, all valuables. The thief-Good, then they would go to Holland and other places. brought to where they had it sold by their fellow race members. "Wonderful lads indeed, and very suitable for natural sciences-" "station!" concludes one of the clues!)

Jews are accused of generally having bad character. They are inferior (11), indeed, they are even referred to as vagrants. bound and as scum of humanity 1"). Romaine 142) turns strongly opposed the view that Jewish wealth which would benefit the country, although one should not forget, how immorally it was acquired. Their fraudulent This would have a detrimental effect on the English over time. This will affect trade. We hear elsewhere that even back then People all over the world were robbed by English speculators. Four percent were harmed. Judah acts as a "spreader of false information-direct – which he did particularly through business connections in to enable the whole world – in order to adjust the valuations of the value-to raise or lower papers as desired" 144).

We further hear that the Hebrews continually gave cause to presented difficulties. It was always and again their all-common depravity that the population experiences after a certain period Time with all the associated domestic political disruptions against it provoked and led to persecutions). Rightly so They also attract attention by mainly through the use of ver-break out, rise up, and become rich, "wherever they settle-nested" 16), In addition, they contributed through their own up-stirring spirit of unrest in the nation 1). It is not It is not at all apparent why one would choose this vagabond – already as described in the New Testament – all possible rights and granting privileges *®).

The Jews and their friends naturally contributed to such actions. The accusations were not ignored. Philo Patriae!) denies under Hin-She points to passages in the Bible to reveal her immorality and comes to the conclusion that some Englishmen were worse than

1) Hanway p. 143, London Evening Post from September 18th to 20th, 1753.

10 Hanway, pp. 143/44, Westminster Journal, June 9, 1753, London Evening Post from July 7th to 10th, 1753 and September 22nd to 25th, 1753, Ghent, p. 12.

14) Public Advertiser of August 22, 1753, Admonition from Scripture $. 7 ff.

11) London Evening Post from July 17th to 19th, 1753.

142) Romaine, pp. 78/79.

14% Francis S. 83.

1) Gent p. 12.

1) Hanway p. 166 ff., Gentleman's Magazine Vol. XXIII p. 479.

14) London Evening News August 16–18, 1753.

47) Appeal to Throne p. 14.

16) Modest Apology p. 7.

1#) Philo Patriae: Considerations S$. 11 i.

236

Jews). In England, there would hardly be better men than the Jews Sampson Gideon, Mendezes, and Salvador, whom one described as fathers of the poor and the government so often (had provided money). Yes, one :) even goes like this—far, to summarize his observations with the words:

"I have no qualms about stating that every Jew deserves a is the same as Christians." The Hebrews themselves consider it to be pervasive—It is possible that several of the writings are of a racial nature.

(companies are composed). Thus, one could assume that this The latter viewpoint originates solely from the pen of a Jew;

We have the same assumption for the author Philo Patriae, since Jews often adorn themselves with such a decorative accessory—

Names like his, "Friend of the Fatherland," surrounded him. But besides them It was not least the clergy who wrote such documents ten wrote, as can be seen indirectly from a public letter in a newspaper. This letter essentially reads:

Contents as follows '*):

"The Christian pastor—rabbi, who recently spoke in favor of the

The law he wrote had the audacity and presumption to claiming that the Jews are not only more decent and honest

They would be merchants, but people of a better moral character than the Christians of this country, and that the Jews are much more likely to be affected by their Connections with us could be damaged more than vice versa.

He has brought great disgrace upon himself through such claims.

himself and his spiritual brothers have increased in number. For if we in generally being worse than the Jews, it must be without Doubts can be largely attributed to our clergy.

to be those who do not care for their flock as they should, who give them not leading by example, but too eager to follow look at the riches of this world, which – instead of their to fulfill sacred duties and to uphold the morale of the people "Raise – rather write such pamphlets..."

One also cannot fail to point out the undesirable condition– "assign that Jews marry English girls." Under the Headline: "History Writing of the Future," one attempts to give an ironic depiction of future conditions from which Despite certain exaggerations, it speaks of a deep concern.

Then, in later years, the sons of Gideon and Other members of their race defile the daughters of Britons. The British, They were very angry about this, but would have done nothing about it. They could, because the authorities protected the Jews. They then went even going so far as to ask the government to give them the English women to hand it over, for which they are prepared to make any payment in return

15%) Philo Patriae: Further Considerations p. 4.

151) Henderson

182) Address to the Friends, p. 19.

183) Solomons, p. 211

154) London Evening Post from 30 October to 1 November 1753.

155) Daily Advertiser of September 8, 1753.

237

If their request is refused, they will lose all their money.
withdraw % from government bonds.

Even back then, entire districts in London had to be protected from Jews may have been inhabited, because Gent 1%) warns against this development and emphasizes that already Leadenhall Street, Dukes Court, Broad Court, Dukes Place, Bevers Marks, Henage Lane, London Wall, Houndsditch and Cribby Island are overpopulated by them. There is also no shortage of voices against its impending and subsequent development. (influencing) If the law remained in effect, England will eventually be completely ruled by Jews (159), their Their cunning and resources undoubtedly soon put them in par– Lament reached 1%. Even now they were not afraid to attack England. to describe their country 1), a saying that is common today The slogan of the Jews is very similar: "It is indeed your king, but our country."

One would also experience Hebrews in government and administration Administrative offices can be found (1%). The old rights of fathers should not be jeopardized to their advantage 1), with whose preponderance-English customs and traditions were in danger. Already The outward appearance of the Jews left no doubt about his inner characteristics: Not only the ugly body shapes and
 The skin that appears dirty, but the most prominent feature
 A distinguishing feature is the eyes, which reveal its criminal nature.
 They showed. Harsh words, but truth is always bitter (1°).
 In the end, however, the author becomes considerably resigned, by as he explains it!®): "It is an old, long-established Experience-justified observation: 'Whom the gods corrupt
 They want to, but they initially blind them.' Our current situation Wearing it indicates such delusion and proclaims the
 "The approach of a great disaster."

The friends of the Jews consider this fear to be unfounded.
 Space. Even if large quantities were to enter the country,
 They would not be dangerous due to their numerical inferiority.
 they were peaceful, trading people who neither to exploit the influence accruing to them to the detriment of the country will not spread excessively, as they are unpopular-Know the people and therefore be cautious. 1. Philo Patriae, of course, faces no danger whatsoever in the approximately rising
 He sees the influence of the Jews, indeed, he even prefers that they be the foundation.

188) London Evening Post from October 16th to 18th, 1753.

357) Ghent p. 13, London Evening Post of May 17, 1753.

158) Romaine p. 41, Hanway p. 160, Full Answer to a Fallacious answer p. 17.

159) London Evening Post, May 17, 1753.

10) London Evening Post, May 12, 1753.

101) London Evening Post from 31 July to 2 August 1753.

48) Candide and Impartial Examination p. 24.

183) Letter to Sir John Barnard p. 5, Court and Country p. 5.

164) Modest Apology pp. 8, 9, 10.

16) Modest Apology p. 15.

16) Appeal to Caesar p. 16 ff., Letter to the Public p. 18 ff., True State of the Case
 pp. 2-9, Freeholder p. 30.

become owners and not the much more dangerous partisans of the Stuarts for England. 17. They had nothing there either due to fears that they might enter parliament in the future. men; they would only do that there, as is generally the case elsewhere; Keeping the best interests of England in mind 8).

The internationality of Jews and the associated Ge-Driving for a people will be made possible by the following notice-shines:

"...We will see that no person in the world is more suitable to betray secrets and privately spy on to carry from one country to another, as the Jews, prior-Assuming they are well paid for it... Through their-Driven by an innate greed for profit, they don't care which party they are on. They betray each other, and thus they profit from it. To-to be right, they are concerned about winning over the highest bidder with their To use information..."

One then warns emphatically once again that the Jew will do anything for Money would do and therefore wishes that the law not be permanent. may be").

There were even voices that feared that England would one day be Judaized and then doomed to destruction'), On another The same thoughts are expressed as follows: "Until The sons of Great Britain see themselves as honorable, just, and truthful-to prove themselves and learn to hate this hateful creature: the Jews .. . 171),

The old wake-up call from the Time before the return of Charles II, the cry went up: "England, wake up!" It is not Hannibal at your gates, but the Jew??2)." Elsewhere it says: "Brits, awake! Let the noble spirit..." May truth and freedom inspire your souls!")]"

We have taken from these brief notes – taken from the Flood of publications for and against the law – seen, the intensity with which it was treated. The overview has hopefully conveying to the reader that even purely The opponents didn't give an inch in terms of numbers. All the more surprising. But it must be evident from the attitude of the people that it voted against the law by an overwhelming majority was.

From many traditions we can see that hardly a single person among the people was satisfied with the law! The

The reason is likely that the English nation since

107) Philo Patriae: Further Considerations p. 57.

168) Believer p. 19.

1) Candid and Impartial Examination p. 16/17.

1) Admonitions from Scripture p. 7 ff.,

171) London Evening Post from the 8th to the 8th of September 1753.

1) London Evening Post, 22 May 1

173) Court and Country p. 6.

14) Hanway p. 55, 172.

239

in ancient times there was a deep aversion to the Jews, which was particularly evident in the storm year of 1753." Thus it came about, that "people neither in cities – large and small – nor on not everyone in the country was satisfied with the law, but everyone grumbled– ten, with the exception of those who benefited from it" 178). It It is therefore not too much to say that the English people, like a A man who stood up against the law and with all his power "attempted to impose his will using available means."

How exactly did this unwillingness manifest itself?

We learn that a large number of people were planning to to ask the king not to approve the law." Apparently Either this step didn't happen, or he didn't without success, because we have already heard that the The king did exactly what could have been prevented on June 7, 1753. wanted Apparently, the universities also did not do enough in favor of the people, because one finds the appeal of a Academics, that they should participate more in the struggle." Further public calls to resistance with an– The closing protest rallies were ordered. At all Large crowds of people gathered in every corner of the kingdom. to express their will together 1. This is also by Philo Patriae 1) not disputed, only he stopped these demonstrations. for insignificant, especially since these were people who had their pursued selfish goals. The facts support this. Not at all right.

Voters were summoned to almost all constituencies. to either their MP for his opposition during to thank the handling of the law in parliament, or sol- to demand this of him energetically for the future.

In the first respect, this allows, among other things, assemblies in war- wick, the county of Essex, Blithfield, Staffordshire, Montgomery- shire!) to name a few.

However, far more meetings of election officials are taking place. districts have been handed down in which the candidates were requested were to do everything possible in the future to repeal the law, and unless they are entitled to re-election in the spring of 1754 They could. We see such demonstrations in Taunton, Reading, Cirencester, Vork, Bristol, in the counties of Lan- caster, Kent, Somersetshire, Middlesex and Gloucester, further in 175) Appendix to Review p. 6.

116) Gent p. 16.

Parl. History Vol.

London Evening Post from June 19th to 23rd, August 21st to 23rd, 1753.

17%) London Evening Post, May 22, 1753.

m) London Evening Post from October 23 to 25, 1753.

1%) Gentleman's Magazine Vol. XXIII p. 468, Public Advertiser from 10th, 11th, 12th and October 17th. November 7th and 19th, 1753.

11) Philo Patriae Considerations p. 26 ff.

18) Daily Advertiser of October 20th, Public Advertiser of August 22nd, London Evening Post from July 17th to 19th, August 18th to 21st, September 8th to 11th, 1753.

240

Yarmouth, Haslemere, Westminster, etc.). This should already give a good picture of public sentiment. In addition, it should Here, attention should already be drawn to the fact that With the approach of the winter session of the Par- laments, that is, in November and December 1753, such assemblies- lungs were particularly numerous.

This outburst of discontent must be attributed to some members of parliament. Those who had voted for the law received a considerable shock. have displaced, as can be seen from the following brief account- heit shows:

The Member of Exeter was one of these unfortunate individuals. Apparently, jokers have made fun of his stance in Parliament— He publicly expressed doubts about whether he still had any doubts. belonging to the Christian faith. He had leaflets printed, in which he defended himself against the accusation of converting to Judaism He defended religion. As proof of his continued adherence to it He cited his Christian faith as the reason for working on Saturdays. and to travel. The circulars were already ready for distribution. his voters ready, as friends, to stop him from it at the last minute— They could only hold 1%. He would certainly have made himself look completely ridiculous. made.

This short message should give some impression of the mood in England. A number of such reports exist but already a well-rounded picture and pleasing because of what it contains Lying humor:

A member of parliament from the county of Kent found the mis— It happened that I voted for the law, which turned out to be... like wildfire in his constituency and especially in his hometown spread. The population was greatly agitated. She seized the opportunity, and she was not bad at her dignified duties. Representatives furious.

He had no idea of the approaching storm when he After a short time, glad to escape the summer heat of the capital. Having escaped, he returned. His path led him past his He passed his local pub, where he met his best friends at that time. he knew during lunchtime. On a whim, he entered the restaurant. to proudly introduce himself to his voters.

Upon his arrival, he did not find himself in the position he had expected. deceptive: Honorable and sedate citizens of the small town were They gathered and recounted recent events. He greeted her with a hello and, in old habit, asked to to be allowed to sit with them. In his joy at seeing them again, he He didn't notice that everything fell silent upon his entry, and so He was completely taken aback when people expressed their deep regret that he had...

183) Public Advertiser of October 10th, 11th, 12th, November 7th and 19th, London Evening Mail from July 17th to 19th, August 21st to 23rd, October 6th to 11th, October 6th to 10th November 24th to 27th, December 4th to 8th, 1753.

14) Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 1431.

16 Jews conquer England | 241

I will not be able to eat with them, as they are unlucky—

They would probably have had pork served. Only now
The poor sinner realized the situation, and he did not look
He looked very intelligent. It took him a moment to collect himself.
recover, and only the resounding laughter of those present tore him apart.
out of his dismay. To grab his hat and flee away–
The fall was one thing. On his way, he touched the marketplace and To his delight, he saw there a long-time friend and loyal companion.
ler. Glad to have helped a person – and especially this one – to participate in an education.
Having found a way to speak, he hurried to greet him. Immediately over– He showered him with a torrent of questions and wanted to go into his still unconquered shock at the loss of his friend–
I need more detailed information regarding the stance of the others. When he a moment in his speech – awaiting an answer –
When he paused, his friend looked at him with interest, but silently.
The MP paused and impatiently pressed him with questions.
one wondered why the hell he wasn't answering. He should be giving him.
Hear and understand. Without flinching, he replied.
To which the brave man replied: "Eh ..., I can hear you – but unfortunately 'I don't speak Hebrew.' He said this – and left the bewildered man speechless.
stand.

Some great politician, whose name unfortunately has not been revealed to us, also had the scorn and ridicule of the people to feel it. He visited Cambridge; his presence was quickly became well-known in the city. A huge crowd–
A large crowd had gathered at his departure and greeted him.
At first sight, he greeted the crowd with "Hail King of the Jews." It helped him Nothing that made him try to leave as quickly as possible.
Crowds accompanied him through all the streets to the exit of the city and did not stop jeering at him with the above words– call.

Times of intense political conflict always resemble each other More or less. The people seek their strength through battle cries.
to cheer on their own ranks or to inspire Laue with his ideas–
Stern. That's how it was in England in 1753.

The electorate of Lancaster county contributed to their Assemblies wore blue ribbons with the inscription: "No Jews!"
"Christianity and the Constitution!" In the county of Somersetshire
The motto was: "No Judaism! Christianity forever!"
A member of parliament who has been in opposition from the beginning had stood, left London to go on summer vacation.
to relocate his landed property. He was accompanied by six servants.
accompanied on horseback, whose hats bore placards: "No Jews! No naturalization law! Old England and Christianity forever!)" |

The slogan "No Jews" subsequently became one of the most frequent in election campaigns⁷⁾, but one also heard the other whose aforementioned battle cries were not uncommon^{8*)}. It was often said also: "No beards! Christians forever!" ¹⁸, or: "No Jews, "No Jews – no wooden shoes!"

185) London Evening Post from July 17th to 19th, 1753.

(No wooden shoes!)"¹⁹⁾. The streets echoed with these words against, when the masses gather for any kind of protest rally—lungs came together, and they were filled with shrill, excited sounds. Trains screamed in the Jewish-populated streets of London. How much it was the general battle cry is shown by the fact that the Jew Hertz uses it as a heading for this period in his work—has 101 votes.

The meaning of the connection between "Jews" and "wooden shoes" has remained unclear so far. Hyamsontez) and Hertz!²⁰⁾ are in agreement.

Not entirely sure, but believe that wooden shoes are an alternative.

to be able to see the pressure of rejection against the Huguenots.

The interpretation appears to be flawed, as the crowd this year, in consideration of this law, only with the Jews to deal with. None of the writings discussed so far have been—

This confirms Hyamson and Hertz's hypothesis. We believe that another explanation might come closer to the truth and

We therefore refer to the following poem:

TER

... Christ saved us from his enemies, the Jews.

How about a free and faithful native Englishman?

to make a Jew?

Devils, unbelievers, heretics, and Turks!

This cannot be English, this is a Roman work.

A papal plot to put the Pretender on the throne bring.

May Heaven watch over the defender of our glorious faith

If this news is true – all hell would break loose.

unleashed on us; |

For the English, something worse than wooden shoes . . . 19%)”

According to this, the wooden shoe seems to have been the most suitable for the Englishman. To have been the epitome of inferiority. The battle cry.

It is therefore likely to be er— not only because of the rhyme, but also because of the rh being koren, because Jews and wooden shoes are met with deepest aversion were rejected.

Although these explanations have already given us some insight into

We can convey the tremendous excitement of the people.

05 Tucker: Second Letter p. 3.

18) Election Magazine p. 64.

m Hertz p. 77.

19) Hyamson Jew Bill p. 168, Solomons p. 205.

11) Hertz p. 60 ff.

1) Hyamson: History p. 222.

198) Hertz p. 67.

1% London Evening Post from July 21st to 24th, 1753.

16%

243

but we'll only get a real picture when we see further, in in what way the anger of the people is directed against the immediate Supporters of the law were attacked; he stopped at nothing, and neither the responsible ministers, nor the bishops or spiritual leaders
Those of a lesser degree were spared.
The people could not forget that it was precisely the bishops who had done that.
Law in the upper house without exception – insofar as they are present– Beings were – had advocated. Besides them were the Bishops of Oxford, Norwich, London, Asaph and the Archbishop of Canterbury publicly advocated for the law.” But also the others have in no way taken any steps under– taken to support the people in their defensive struggle, as This results from public appeals in newspapers. Thus, they find
We see in it a call for the union of those Clergy who do not side with the Jews. With Er– Bitterness emphasizes that it is really time for some to Pastors were appointed in accordance with popular sentiment, since one could expect...
(Nothing can be expected from the bishops!®). The same view is found among others.
are we also represented elsewhere?.”).
Given this stance of the bishops, it is therefore not surprising that serious charges were brought against her'), In a poem
They are compared to Judas because they believe in gold as a form of deception.
rater. would have sold.“.
A sarcastic little pamphlet also made suggestions for future– Important laws. Among other things, drafts were already found there.
for authorizations of bishops and clergy, pro-Jewish to deliver sermons from the pulpit?“).
In a poem we find attacks against the bishops.
The fourth verse reads:

"Do not let any Jew eat or drink with you,
I leave that to the Bishop – His Grace and the Lord,

But you must expel anyone who favors a Jew. (01)

Without doubt, it is also subject to other direct attacks.
we came to the bishops, as we have, for example, regarding the bishops as determined by Norwich and Oxford.

The former had gone to Ipswich to train the youth there.
to be confirmed. The boys and girls made a lot of noise.
and suggested that he should not confirm her, but rather be-cut. In addition, notices were posted on the church doors, which announced that the bishop would be visiting the following day – a Sunday

155) Solomon's p. 207.

1%) London Evening Post, October 16–18, 1753.

107) London Evening Post from June 16 to 19, 1753.

198) Hyamson: Jew Bill p. 168. 1

100) Evening Post from September 18 to 20, similar poem in Jews Triumph

2) Telltruth p. 10 ff.

#1) Election Magazine p. 64.

244

evening or Sabbath – Jews, and the day after next – a Sunday – would circumcise Christians” :)

The ridicule was also heaped upon the Bishop of Oxford, who until who was on the side of the Jews at the last minute.

A caricature was published that reflected public sentiment against aptly characterizes him. The bishop is seen next to a The reindeer is standing. He has placed a book on the animal's rump. supported, on which the number 20,000 and the words "I" can be found.
Pray for the Jews... and my king." Both inscriptions spolen points out that he is responsible for the great support in the opinion the artist must have been bribed with £20,000?®).

However, another caricature would probably best illustrate the attitude of The image depicts the people's opposition to the bishops in general. It depicts a Jew and a bishop on a donkey. The Jew is showing at the bishop sitting behind him and shouts: "Be me naturalized and converted brother, where has my go-ter mir."

The bishop has a Talmud under his arm and remarks: "We have strayed from the path like lost sheep." The donkey-The driver is holding a bag with the inscription: 100,000. He is expected to be among the leading figures in government and legislative bodies that are responsible for their sub-They received the sum of £100,000 in support from the Jews. The donkey is probably meant to represent the English people. whose position in the whole matter was perceived accordingly will be. On the floor lie the Old Testament and two leaves. Paper. On one of them is the inscription: "General "Elections," on the other: "Jews - 96, Christians - 55." That The former refers to the upcoming elections, the latter to the voting result in Parliament™).

As you can see, none of the bishops have stood up for the people's goals. used. The view of Lecky?®), which is also used by Krieger?®) - It will emerge that only some of them were on the side of the Jews, (therefore does not correspond to the facts?"), as we also did not-agree that the clergy of lower rank (participated in the people's struggle against the law). Rather It was only a few of their representatives, including the Reverend Romaine, who championed the cause in word and writing of the people™).

22) Coxe Vol. II p. 290, Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 1431.

203) Collection of the British Museum No. 3280.

21) Collection of the British Museum No. 3205, Stephens Vol. III Part II pp. 860/61.

25) Lecky Vol. I p. 330 ff.

2%) Krieger p. 43 ff.

z7) In our view also Walpole Vol. I p. 357, Abbey Vol. I p. 214, Hyamson: Jew Bill p. 168, History p. 221, Parl. History Vol. XV p. 119, London Evening Post from August 21st to 23rd.

*8) For a different view, see Lecky Vol. I, p. 330 ff.

i Rondon Evening Post from September 11th to 13th, Publ. Advertiser from June 22nd

We have found irrefutable evidence that the clergy even stood up for the Jews

They did this not only from the pulpit, but also through their Sermons on this subject have even been published. It would go too far. to go into detail about this, but it rarely has been More sympathy was shown for the cause of the Jews than in this Year on the part of the clergy in England :). This is their attitude Apparently, nothing has changed despite the public outrage, since we still at the beginning of December, i.e., shortly before the law was repealed, (from pro-Jewish sermons?).

This leads to a situation rarely experienced in England and also in the world- a common, only rare occurrence that on a Sunday in Mon- Mouthshire, some of the churchgoers protested noisily against the pre- The clergyman protested, while others were outraged. left the church).

The clergy also inexplicably communicated through letters Publicly, he has repeatedly spoken out in favor of the law, but to the same extent public opinion turned against him- brought?!?). So people asked indignantly where the clergy were at the passage of the law, and why they are now not to stand by the people in their struggle). With particular emphasis on- It is also occasionally noted with surprise that actually some- where in England there is still a single anti-Jewish clergyman (be available!)).

Given all this, it's understandable that the mockery wasn't lacking. comes. Thus we find poems against the clergy") and a call to establish a fund for

Reward for honorable clergymen who would "rather starve," to become an apostle for circumcision." Another

A clergyman who was particularly committed to the cause of the Jews- He had done something and had to endure public ridicule to the extent that "It is said that he was appointed chaplain for his services a well-known Jew of the City is to be appointed"?1). The The joke about a clergyman in North Underland is even more drastic- He would then have been called to the baptism of a child.

But to the horror of those present, he was not baptized, but he would have been circumcised. Since he was still inexperienced in this, that was poor worm died from it").

After all this, the portrayal appears to be that various Jews They had stayed at a clergyman's house to obtain maps. sui) Winstanley p. 9 ff., Peckard p. 3 ff.

London Evening Post, December 4th to 6th, 1753.

213) London Evening Post from 30 October to 1 November 1753.

1) London Evening Post from 14 to 16, 18 to 21 August, 4 to 6, 11 to 13, September 25th to 27th, October 16th to 18th, October 23rd to 25th, October 30th to November 14) London Evening Post, July 12-14, 1753.

115) London Evening Post from July 14 to 17, 1753.

210) Election Magazine p. 58, Jews Triumph p. 5.

217) London Evening Post, 16 to 18 October 1753.

- 110) London Evening Post, December 11-13, 1753.
 219) London Evening Post, 8th to 11th September 1753.

246

play, ideally reflect the people's opinion of their clergy to reflect??®). |

At that time, it was often claimed that the bishops – in general – were Clergymen – allegedly bribed. Any substantiated evidence?
 No points could be determined for this, and so it is quite
 It is difficult to uncover the reasons for their behavior. Perhaps Was it therefore already back then the in- that is still often evident today?
 The Church's position of interceding on behalf of the Jews. Perhaps The clergy also believed that more Jews could be raised through the Law.
 to be able to convert; but perhaps the Church might also like to do that-felt moved by the fact that they themselves, through special advantages, Writings in the law against the influence of the Jews was secured. Even back then, the general public relied on this.
 Special favoritism towards the church was pointed out and made public.
 reprimanded??%),

But the people were not only deeply dissatisfied with the church and clergy: with at least
 The government also denounced it for its pro-Jewish stance.
 and the anger was directed especially against the two in the Pelham brothers, who led the government. The elder brother, Thomas, the future Duke of Newcastle, was the leader of the government-der spätere Herzog von Newcastle, war der Führer der Regierungs-party in the upper house, the younger one, Henry, the leading figure in the Ministerium. The people saw these two as the driving forces for the Jewish law, and the attacks against them knew no bounds-(zenzzz). The intensity of the public's anger is shown in a caricature.
 with the headline: "The Jews are barbering the parliament over "The spoons." She shows various people who are carrying a man around-wrestling. He is to be shaved by a Jew who has his Kun-
 He comforted him and the English people standing around with the words:
 "Have patience, gentlemen; we will remove you all from the kingdom."
 "Barbering..." A second Jew in the background shouts: "Long "Long live Solomon II," referring to the then English King George II.
 means. "Wise money king of the Jews," shouts a third, who with this refers to Sampson Gideon. The latter is probably meant to be through the barber is depicted, since the Jew in question is looking directed at him. On the far right of the picture you can see the Duke of Newcastle. A high rabbi addresses he said to himself: "I hope you will thank the king for to use for the construction of a temple," to which another Jew replied.
 with the words: "And make a new Jerusalem."
 The Duke replies: "Yes, anything... for money." On the left we see two Englishmen sitting on a sofa, afraid of the-

to be circumcised next, and the Duke of Newcastle to be held responsible for the entire development."

22) Collection of best pieces p. 62. . .

21) Candid & Impartial Examination p. 21/22, Public Advertiser of May 22, 1753.

22) Coxe Vol. II p. 290, Solomons p. 206/07.

223) Stephens Vol. III Part II p. 862, Coll. Brit. Mus. No. 3208.

247

One would have assumed that after the success of the popular movement in 1753, the aversion to the Duke of Newcastle was subsiding, especially since he – albeit only under the Pressure of circumstances – later the application for the annulment of the introduced a law in the House of Lords?*). Not at all, as one might expect from a The image published after the elections in 1754 shows:
The Duke of Newcastle is sitting in a chair, fishing. When The bait is on his fishing line, "promises of all kinds." to the galloping, newly elected members of parliament-ments". Among other things, they are offered titles and bribes as bait. He offered funds, pensions, etc. He wants to use them again for to win the cause of the government, whose reputation is damaged by the The storm year of 1753 had caused considerable damage. One can see how the Members of Parliament approach the Angel. One shouts: "Only for £1,000!" the other one: "I have good digestion for everything?" Apparently, however, the hatred for the younger Pelham is still there. was stronger, because he was still remembered even after his death. ridiculed in a caricature. Henry Pelham died on March 6th. He died in 1754, and the caricature published shortly afterwards shows His entry into hell. It bears the title: "Arrival". and reception at his rural retirement home." Henry Pelham is introduced by a demon. Other evil spirits, which un-Representing popular English people of the past, welcome him. He is played, among others, by Robert Walpole, who more or less as Pelham's teacher can be regarded with the following words: greets: "Oh, this is one of my children that I raised and soon to be recognized as a promising genius for dirty dealings- I knew him. Consequently, I did everything I could to help him. To secure a successor, I withdrew here. I knew perfectly well that some of his dark deeds had already affected me so much would make it appear as clean as alabaster. He finished it- brought about, mainly through the adoption of the one-citizenship Laws of renunciation for the Jews. Has any of you great geniuses "To show similar things?" Cardinal Wolsey, another condemnationist Ter admits that he imposed many things on the people, Pelham but had far surpassed him??*),

All the cartoons allude to dishonorable government officials. methods, especially those of the two brothers," This pre- The accusation was repeatedly made against them in public. One of the many who also hold this view is Romaine. According to him, the Jews were persecuted under William the Conqueror. and Cromwell came to England through bribery, and He had no doubt that this method was still used by them today.

22) Coxe Vol. II p. 291.

225) Stephens Vol. III Part II p. 916, Coll. Brit. Mus. No. 3269.

= Stephens Vol. III Part II p. 908, Sammi. Brit. Mus. No. 3264.

#27) All the cartoons should be photographed in the British Museum and included in this book to be attached. The author's sudden expulsion from Great Britain and the war that soon followed unfortunately prevented this.

248

would be applied?®). Something similar is also expressed in Telltruth?"*) and Ghent?). Others long for the day when which will be brought to an end with these practices?"), again Others want to know how much the Jews paid for the law- would have paid:").

For England and London, the common people soon found new names for each. The former was called Judea Nova ), the latter New Jerusalem?®), so it is not surprising that we have a caricature found under the name: "View of New Jerusalem". In the background- In the background we see London; Sir W. Cal- is leaning against a tree. Vart. Right next to him lies a devil with a moneybag.

of £500,000. A group of Jews looks over in delight, where the

The Pelham brothers, for whom the number 500,000 also stands out. suggests bribery?*),

We hope to help the reader understand the condensed descriptions of numerous writings, public letters, poems, caricatures etc. to have conveyed an image with what force the people- storm against king, government, people's representatives, lords and spirit- lichkeit raste. ,

These events were not known to the members of the government. remain hidden, especially the two Pel brothers seem to remain hidden They were very dismayed by the unrest, as was evident perhaps one can infer this from one or another of her letters.

As early as July 13th, the Duke of Newcastle writes to Henry Pelham, he had told Lord Parker in consideration of the many Places amid prevailing unrest were left to consideration, to consider repealing the law, although it has always It is dangerous to give in to coercion. Perhaps it seems The best thing to do is to publish a statement immediately to further to avoid riots?). Just four days later, pressure is exerted. he once again expressed his serious concern in a letter to his brother. concern about the spread of the popular movement?). The The younger Pelham replied on July 20 that he shared the same opinion. He represents. He ends his letter: "Let things take their course, and Should there truly be any reluctance to do so, the law should be repealed in the next year as a matter of completely subordinate importance- The tung is back. However, should it cause unrest, I believe it is right to be lenient towards the population:"). The available material shows that the people's The storm swelled more and more after the month of July. Protests-228) Romaine S. 5.

soa} Telltruth p. 4.

Gent p. 16.

231) London Evening Post from 22nd to 25th September 1753.
22) London Evening Post from 30 October to 1 November 1753.
233) Collection of the best Pieces p. 56.
24) London Evening Post from June 2nd and September 18th to 20th, 1753.
226) Stephens Vol. III Teu, i p. 860/61, Coll. Brit. Mus. No. 3206.
29 Coxe Vol. II p. 467/68

Coxe Vol. II p. 484.
250) Coxe Vol. II p. 485.

249

Collections were held throughout the country and the government had no influence whatsoever on the masses. Were the The Pelham brothers already spoke about the development of things in July. dismayed, how much more they must have done in the following months be.

The two legislative bodies were convened for mid-November. The government decided under the Pressure of circumstances, as a first measure the lifting of the to recommend legislation and even to submit a related application to introduce, The people had won!

Jewish historians have investigated the reasons for this They examined the government's behavior and came to the conclusion that... that they are destined to be determined by the upcoming new elections was. Under the given circumstances, she would have had a future Parliament cannot expect a majority, which is why they sought their rescue under the leadership of the Pelham brothers. subjected the people to the shameful task of abolishing the to calm the law and win them over?"). This was This has made things all the easier for the Pelham ministry, when it always put its own advantage before principles?"). We also believe that these two circumstances contributed to the behavior. have contributed to the government, even if we always- It is surprising that a Jew would adopt the latter attitude of Pelham- Ministry condemned. Perhaps, however, the reason for his The view is that this time such a principle would be to a disadvantage. that race which itself was almost exclusively affected to make use of it.

In fact, the main reason is likely the threat to internal security. to see into the political situation in England. There was fear... Although a poor result for the government in the upcoming elections The upcoming new elections of 1754, but that was in sight- The view is not the most dangerous. Rather, the government had... The mood of the people suggests that violent measures will be taken. Riots with all the consequences for the ministry the disadvantages would arise. The letter reproduced above- The transfer between the Pelham brothers leaves no doubt about that. Doubts. Even back then, people were afraid of such events. nissen, and how much bigger must she have been four months later? to be, as the anger intensified. Undoubtedly, one has... thus bowed to the will of the people.

Once you look at history, it's rarely possible to make a definitive statement. A similar incident can be found. All branches of government had The law was partly unanimously approved, and now they had all - King, ministers, lords, bishops, members of parliament - to submit to the people. The Earl of Chesterfield thought of that- He was different from us. He saw everything as just pointless noise.

23) Hyamson: Jew Bill p. 174.
240) Hertz p. 89.

250

the mass and condemned the ministers for having allowed themselves to be intimidated?" Another contemporary, Horace Walpole, the youngest son of Sir Robert Walpole, represented a similar positive attitude and saw in everything mainly only one Fight between the clergy of lesser ranks and drunken councillors gentlemen?"). We cannot agree with them in any way, but see in the events of 1753 the defensive struggle of a strong and healthy people against Jewish overlords alienation.

On November 15, 1753, the House of Lords convened. Hardly had the King finished his welcoming address to the assembled members—The members of the upper house ended when the Duke of Newcastle raised and formally requested the annulment of the Law posed. To the astonishment of the house, he asked for the last to leave in part of the law according to which the Jews were prohibited from exercising his own authority in church matters. He justified his stance by stating that, moreover, to avoid the Public concern about the abolition of the law—offered, but he kept the idea and the goal of the latter. Determination regarding church rights remains necessary especially since it is not a restriction on the Jews, and therefore not an appeal. which would cause a stir among the masses. He also left no room for doubt. Doubts about whether he personally still considers the law to be true held properly").

We notice that the provision of the law for protection the church should be maintained, and our assumption, that they pay part of the price for their supportive stance on the Bishops (as depicted, therefore seems to be intensifying. It will almost to certainty, if we consider in the subsequent approach—language showed complete agreement in this regard between the Bishop of Oxford – speaking for his colleagues – and the The Duke of Newcastle stated. His reasoning is that Jews will have no influence on land purchases for all time "church matters may be involved."

Several speakers addressed the motion to repeal in detail. Position. Only one of the lords, Earl Temple, spoke against the abdication. creation. In his opinion, the anti-Semites would also the repeal of the law for the colonies from the The year 1740 is calling, and the time is not far off. that pyres were built for the burning of Jews—directed. Such fears could only be dispelled by this. that the outcry of the people against the law will not granted, thus eliminating any desire for further violence. taken").

24) Stanhope Vol. IV pp. 38/39.

2) H. Walpole Vol. I pp. 357/58

3 H. Walpole Vol. I p. 359, Parl. Hist. Vol. XV pp. 91–94, Coxe Vol. II p. 291. Parl. History Vol. XV p. 115.

ns) Parl. History Vol.

Lord Chancellor Hardwicke joined the government's proposal because, given the mood of the people, those who had previously lived in England—Jews had to fear daily for their safety. "I am 'convinced,' he continued, 'that given the considerable in-Violence had already occurred earlier due to the will of the people. would be the case if there weren't the hope that the law would be passed immediately. after Parliament convened to repeal ...'" He too opposes the potential declaration of invalidity. Amendment of the law from 1740, as it had been in effect for too long Strength. This would seriously jeopardize the existence of trade. with the American colonies questioned, "because we "know," we hear him continue, "that the trade sector, on which the entire economy more or less depends, the which I would rather not specify in more detail for good reasons. mainly in the hands of the Jews ... 24e).

A typical example of English hypocrisy! The noble lord adorns to use the name of this trade, but This trade should not suffer from restrictions on Jews, since otherwise English interests in the colonization might be jeopardized. no adverse influence or one's own otherwise so would contaminate clean hands with it. Furthermore, it should It shouldn't be too difficult to understand this "unspeakable" profession. Guessed: only the slave trade, which was mainly carried out by The actions taken against Jews are meant.

The Count of Granville also spoke in favor of the proposal. Duke of Newcastle. He had to admit that the "against the noise raised by the law was quite widespread" 27). The main reason, however, was simply that the law gave a wrong title.

He seems to be right about this, because in the year 1740 They had cleverly managed to use such maneuvers to... The people's attention was drawn to the matter concerning the Jews. to distract.

Very interesting is the aforementioned speech by the Bishop of Oxford. A listener describes it in a letter to the Duke von Bedford as "a miserable sermon of % hours duration" 248). He was probably right about that, because the one who passed us over—The content provided confirms this judgment. It is impossible to elaborate. to address that. We only want to discuss what we believe to be true. typical sentences that reflect the now changed attitude of Bishops are to explain to the public.

As is known, he was previously responsible for the adoption of the The law has come into effect. "This, my lords," we hear. Furthermore, "that was my opinion at the time, and I haven't had any change since." Reasons were seen to abandon them. But since the law is enforced by many

2% Parl. History Vol. XV pp. 99–103, Coxe Vol. II p. 292.
247) Parl. History Vol. XV pp. 110–114.
us) Bedford Vol. II p. 139.

252

Christians were seen as an insult, and in my view it is irrelevant in religious and political terms, I am In this case, I am prepared to shift my position in favor of my to abandon Christian brothers." ... This prompted him to
"To agree to the Duke of Newcastle's request."

Do we hear such words in connection with similar events in the history of...?
Stories aren't often told by clergymen? Why are people so concerned?
on such occasions, not to be advised beforehand of the correct stimulation mung, if they allegedly afterwards, in the event of rejection by the people It's important enough to sacrifice your own opinion for!

Thus we see that, with the exception of Lord Temple, all are sub-
They were prepared to support the application because otherwise the "unreasonable"
The people could commit further and even worse acts of stupidity.
Only one person differs from this stance in his speech:
the Duke of Bedford.

He pointed out that he had been acting against the law from the very beginning.
...is the essence and therefore welcomes the repeal. However, it must be the
The entire law should be abolished, because the remaining provisions-
The setting provision would contradict the general
There are laws stating that the Jews are still the property of the king.
be. Furthermore, one should by no means imagine that the Jews-to avert the danger by allowing the Hebrews to acquire prohibits rights related to church matters-hung. "Rather," he continued, raising his voice, "will their power grows with the increase of their wealth, and to the same extent that their power increases, their privileges would also increase." The Jews would one be so strong during the day that they can overcome all laws that are inconvenient to them.
would have it removed and would refer to England as their country.
It is hardly conceivable that they outnumbered the English.
surpass them, but that's not necessary, because "as soon as they sole or predominant control in financial matters
If they were to sit together, they would be sharing the space with half the population.
to work together to suppress the other half. Because We already know the power of money in politics and also in War", | |

In his further remarks, the Duke of Bedford pointed out that the Jews never appeared among the English people-go, but conversely, the latter of them in an unfavorable situation would be influenced by the senses. Before this foreign infiltration, I The people were afraid and consequently unanimously agreed with He defended himself against it with all means at his disposal. Furthermore, he also advocated for the repeal of the law from the year 1740, because this opened a back door for the Jews— was relaxed about acquiring British citizenship. Thus the danger of the Judaization of England, which he had criticized, was not banned, since of course the Jews, after their naturalization could also settle unhindered in their homeland 0).

4) Parl. History Vol.

253

It can be seen that the Duke of Bedford was most involved in has used the sense of public sentiment. Like Horace Walpole?) It is not clear why someone could come to an opposing view. recognizable.

The House of Lords decided to declare the whole bill null and void. The original motion of the Duke of Newcastle, The proposal to retain the last clause was rejected. The first and second readings took place on November 15th and 20th respectively. Instead, the third reading took place on November 23rd without vote, and the repeal law was passed for further consideration. action referred to Parliament").

On November 27th, at the request of Lord Temple, the House of Lords was dissolved. reconvened with the aim of establishing a committee by judges who were to determine whether the Jews had been expelled according to the laws of to buy land in England and possibly bequeath it to his heirs could. This proposal met with general resistance and was Unsupported by anyone, Lord Temple withdrew him thereupon?@). Immediately after parliament convened, a debriefing took place. orderly, Sir James Dashwood, the scheduling of a be— special session to repeal the Jewish Law applied. Lord Parker, a supporter of the government, advocated for it. his request and it was agreed accordingly on the 4th. December. As a result of the swift processing of the government's request However, in the House of Lords, they were already able to [achieve something] at [percentage to meet for the second reading in November?%),

Only one MP, Mr. Potter, was under reference on the high qualities of the Jews and their services to England— country against the stance of the majority?%), while especially— Sir George Lyttleton spoke in favor of this, in order to reflect the will of the people. to do justice).

The second reading went smoothly without any difficulties, but despite—Things shouldn't go as smoothly as they initially seemed.
Negotiations should have been expected, not the content of the
The actual repeal law, but the preamble was the
This sparked considerable controversy.

The proposal put forward by the government and already approved by the Supreme Court
The introduction adopted by the house read, among other things: ... "A law ..., causing dissatisfaction and unrest among many of His subjects Majesty was summoned..."

With this version, those members of parliament who were from
They disagreed with those who had been against the law from the beginning.

23 Parl. History Vol. XV pp. 103–110, Coxe Vol. II pp. 291/92.
251) Walpole Vol. I p. 360.

2520 Parl. History Vol. XV p. 117/18, Coxe Vol. II p. 293.

250 Walpole Vol. I p. 363.

34) Parl. History Vol. XV p. 118, Coxe Vol. II p. 293.

255) Parl. History Vol. XV pp. 119–128.

256) Parl. History Vol. XV pp. 128–131.

254

Under the leadership of Sir Roger Newdegate, the following word—was demanded aloud: "Great injustices had arisen from the said law—satisfaction and unrest result ...).."

Sir Roger (?) was a rich coal mine owner and a man with Old English ideals, a — albeit not direct — Ancestor of the later so famous fighter in the second half of the 19th century against the emancipation of the Jews, Charles Newdegate, with whom we will discuss this in more detail later.
will occupy.

Sir Roger Newdegate considered the aforementioned words of the preamble to be inconsistent with the facts. "I cannot only as the most unusual example of ministerial arrogance and Consider the most stubbornness ever recorded in British annals 'were to be found.' The preamble would give the impression—called out, as if the proponents were merely acting for their own satisfaction misled masses to declare the law invalid condescended. In fact, the ministers bore no responsibility for the Introduction of the law and the resulting inconveniences to admit rest in the preamble, but only through the of The version proposed to him would be clearly expressed. The Whigs (liberals) used to have the saying: "The claim that "the voice of the people is the voice of God" applies to itself. taken. Since this was now to their disadvantage, they would have presented He concluded: "The voice of the people is the voice of the devil." "But," he explained, "whatever the previous protective measures were, The gentlemen of this law may think today, I believe that... People of our kingdom... after careful consideration, its can judge his own interests or his honor equally well. how the majority of both houses of parliament for themselves in An- to take a stand ... %)."

The aforementioned friend of the Jews, Robert Nugent, joined Sir Roger opposed him. He considered Sir Roger's reasons for the change to be valid. The preamble was deemed incorrect, and therefore the council spoke out against the motion. out. Moreover, he tried to portray the whole matter as un- to portray it as important and ridiculous?®). He found it all too easy numerous supporters, including Pelham, Horace Walpole and William Pitt?%). The former took the position that only the rabble, but not the respectable elements of the people. which would have caused riots. On this point he was certain. especially in agreement with another MP, Sir Wil- Liam Yonge?®).

Admiral Vernon?®) replied to the latter that he could undoubtedly only claim this on the basis of false information he Parl. History Vol. XV p. 131.

258) Dictionary of National Biography Vol. XIV pp. 329-332.

25%) Parl. History Vol. XV p. 1 11 ie ze) Parl. History Vol. XV pp. 134-13

241) Parl. History Vol. XV pp. 142-145. 150-153, 154/55.

262) Parl. History Vol. XV p. 159.

263) Parl. History Vol. XV p. 159/60.

255

Among the various speakers who supported Sir Roger's motion was the Earl of Egmont. Of all He understood the situation best. According to him. His resistance was directed against the principle established by the government. to establish the proposed preamble, and not only in it, but also on all other occasions. "I

"My principle," he exclaims, "is that money can achieve anything-is sufficient, and therefore every decision regarding matters-
The nation's well-being depends on money. I only wish that Those gentlemen would just think about it... that money the root of all evil is .. . %)."

The debate revealed that the government would grant Sir Rogers' request. would oppose. Consequently, it was not surprising that the version of the preamble he proposed, with a
(The majority of 113 to 47 votes was rejected?®). This too
This is yet another proof of the so-called democratic system, according to his followers, the will of the people will always prevail. However, this is likely to happen in a completely different way.
This does not apply to particularly egregious cases, because taking into account-
The content of the entire document only revealed the full extent of the circumstances.
Sir Roger's proposed preamble reflects the opinion of the nation to express.

On the same day, November 26, the motion for repeal of the law was passed for the second time, and already on November 28
It was read for the third time in November. However, the king only gave it on December 20th, the necessary approval (zee).

The anti-Semites did not rest on their laurels. Already On December 4th, Lord Harley and Sir James Dashwood submitted the application to abolish the law of 1740.
Unfortunately, the debates on this topic have not been passed down to us.
which will certainly provide further insight into the current state of affairs-would have come. Furthermore, there are certainly in these Discussions that arise from the existence of the law-the dangers of the Judaization of the American colonies and possibly treated in their home country. In contrast, we the pro-Jewish contemporaries thoroughly engaged with the debates made known to their partisan supporters, who of course considered the Jews to be the building of the empire and especially the American who considered colonies necessary. Pelham is not among them.
Speakers emphasized that "the separation from those in whose Our prosperity lies in our hands, the exposure of our Strength means." The Count of Egmont had therefore with his Mei-
It is right that in everything the question of money is the decisive factor.
played a role.

220 Parl. History Vol. XV pp. 155-159.

1} Coxe Vol. II pp. 293-297

% Parl. History Vol. XV p. 162, Statutes at Large Vol. XXI p. 158/59.

Since, after all this, the government again opposed this request the opponents of the Jews were unable to prevail and were defeated by 208 to 88 votes:“).

Certainly, there was considerable controversy among the people regarding the last period of Disappointment, but the joy over the preceding Her great success overshadowed it and made herself known in corresponding ways. Demonstrations are taking place. We hear that a few days before the

December 20 – the day of royal approval of this Law – large celebrations prepared in London and Westminster?®). What happened there is certainly also happening in the provinces, where with The battle, fought with at least the same bitterness, took place. The people had risen up against the government, the nobility, the clergy, etc. and, not least, prevailed against the financial resources of the Jews. The court was likely also on the side of the friends of the Jews. have, so (that all state powers against the population Goods“).

Background of the original enactment of the law

The following will discuss in detail the question of why and through which influences the original law came about had come.

As already described above, contemporaries had just- if we have considered this, and as a result, we want to Do not disregard their observations. They were witnesses. of the events, but her clear vision may be partly It may have been clouded by bias. To reach our judgment To get there, we first have to examine whether the law so important that it necessitated all these events. Opinions on this vary widely depending on party affiliation. apart.

Thus, the friends of the Jews believe that the law was merely intended to enable a few wealthy Jews from abroad to grant British citizenship?“°). Philo Patriae However, it goes further and takes the position that also some Jews had hoped to use the law to get ahead earlier or to become landowners later. At first glance, From this perspective, it also appears that at most these purposes are used. were intentional. But we learned the tactic from history. the Jews learned to initially appear unimportant in a country 267) he History Vol.

ertz p. 9.

28) London Evening Post, December 15-18, 193

2) Parl. History Vol. XIV p. 1365, Faithful Narrative p. 6

210) Por Letter to a friend p. 6/7, Handerson p. 20, True State of the Case p. 8, ertz 85.

17 Jews conquer England 257

to secure their rights by law and then gradually in the same way, step by step, until the final eman-to achieve cipation.

The always pro-Jewish Philo Patriae may well be right have, if he thinks the Jews might have "some secret-(reasons "pursued with this?"). What kind of reasons these might be, has Unfortunately, the otherwise so well-informed author did not reveal this to us.
But let's hear what the opponents of the Jews have to say about this.
have.

We do not want to dwell here on judgments that are to be considered quite unlikely from the outset, such as e.g., that London should be sold to foreign Jews?"?).
Rather, we only want to treat those who are quite serious.
to be taken. The opponents see a threat to the inheritance-
The rights of the English in that the Jews could own land and the numerous privileges associated with it acquire fenz"s). According to the law, they are merely prohibited from being members.
of the Privy Council and the two legislative houses, as well as holding leading positions in the military and civilian service, so that the largest number of all other positions are open to them (Stand?""). The entire development must undoubtedly lead to a Judaization of the largest English banking and trading companies men, such as the East India Company, the Bank of England etc., lead?""),

The conditions in many of the countries that fell victim to Judaization-
They would have confirmed the validity of these fears.

The government's support for the law is therefore all the more significant.
More surprising than the fact that they were met with fierce attacks from the outset.
had to reckon with the people. Apart from the anti-Jewish sentiment There would undoubtedly be resistance from part of the population.
other circles, such as Catholics and certain Protestants tic sects, whose rights were more curtailed than the Hebrews. (Also W. Coxe?) sees in this behavior the

The government considered this an unwise measure, especially since Judah was still a minor was considered the worst enemy of Christianity, and from this The reason was particularly hated. We would like to add go a step further than Coxe and take the view that the
The law, taking all reasons into account, is initially completely un-
This seems understandable, which becomes all the more apparent when we Let us bear in mind that the government a few years ago just barely suppressing the uprising of part of the population-in favor of the reinstatement of the Stuarts was defeated had taken place and new elections were imminent. Finally, in many places, it was...

271) Philo Patriae: Considerations S. ele

272) Motives to the senseless glamour

#3) Gentleman's Magazine Vol. XXIII 8. "inio, Appeal to the Throne p. 21/22.

274) Gentleman's Magazine Vol. XXIII p. 3

m) Gentleman's Magazine Vol. XXIII p. 918

276) Coxe Vol. II p. 290/91.

258

Public discontent over the rising debt of the state is of considerable importance. Why then did he add
The government, in addition to all its difficulties, faces the threat of ab-Rejection of the Jewish Law by the people, in particular, as the number of Jews in England at that time was at its highest-(approximately 8,000 to 10,000 souls??") – a fraction of the Jewish population opponents, Catholics, etc. We will now discuss in the following-to try to answer this question as best as possible,

In purely numerical terms, the Jewish colony was too small to...
This could explain the government's behavior. But Isn't it perhaps already the same here as in modern times, that this small number with their to-Did the government become subservient to readily available funds? We know, that we already encounter resistance from the outset with this question provoke a statement from our opponents, since in their opinion such Possibilities only exist in the minds of deluded Jew-haters.
are available. Let us therefore first examine the participation of these.
few Jews participated in the economic life of England at that time.
It will never be possible to give precise information about this, due to doubts.
a lot of Jewish capital has been invested in Christian companies and therefore it probably was not outwardly visible as such.
Philo Patriae dealt with this problem in great detail.
is concerned. We want to refer back to his research findings-to seize, since one certainly cannot level the accusation against him can be anti-Semitic. According to this, "several" people alone have already... Jews brought £1,500,000 into the country." In other words – a tiny fraction of the 8,000 to 10,000 Jews already represented a considerable capital. According to Philo Patriae's calculations In 1753, the Jews received one-twelfth of the total income from England?) and at least one fifth of exports Controlled. Finally, he also holds all the Jewish capital. "5 million pounds is not an unreasonable amount of money." This offer– This view is also shared by Tucker®). It is surprising that– It is not the case that the stock exchange is deserted on Jewish holidays. appeared to be?"). One could even speak of pure dominance of the Jews at the London Stock Exchange speak out, particularly in speculation dominated. The London Stock Exchange had already around the year 1750 it was of the greatest importance in the world, and there The number of Jews who were predominantly represented is linked to the rise of the In addition to sales, there has also been a steady increase in their number. be?®), so that their influence on stock market transactions in London and thus, in turn, a large part of the world significantly It must have been.

277) Hanway p. 142. ; ;

278) Philo Patriae: Further Considerations p. 34.

27) Philo Patriae: Further Considerations p. 35.

he Tucker: Second Letter p. 21. .

251) Philo Patriae: Further Considerations p. 16.

22) Postlethwayt Vol. I p. 94 ff., J. Jacobs p. 233.

= | 259

Finally, progress is also being made from the side that is friendly to Jews. shown in which branches the Jews not only dominated, but held a monopoly. The then-flourishing Coral trade with India was almost exclusively conducted by them controlled. The same was true for the diamond trade and the related businesses." |

Even this brief overview of the Jewish share in the The economic life of England at that time shows that their influence in was not proportionate to their population size. Is this dominance now limited to the economy– Did she stay or did she – as always inevitably happens – stay or did she – as always inevitably cultivates – its effects extend to other areas, such as the Politics, shown?

After considering all the facts, we believe we can answer this question in the affirmative for various reasons

The question of whether the Jews already had a significant influence at that time... Much has changed regarding their influence on Freemason lodges. They argued. The lodges had begun their activities around the year 1720 in England resumed, but were initially not very significant?®). Soon, however, the Whig leaders joined, and the power of the lodges began to rise very quickly?").

There is no doubt that the Duke of Newcastle belonged to the lodge. has listened, for we learn that he was in the house in 1731 Sir Robert Walpoles has been made Master of the Chair istzse). After that, we also have the certainty that the latter free- was a bricklayer. His attitude towards Jews is known to us from previous experience. This is well known to most. It may be justified that they might even consider themselves lodge brothers. Did they support each other? Even if we have no proof of that. It is the case that the law came into force on the basis of the Connection between Jews and Freemasonry occurred, as we know We know that around the year 1740 there were already 181 lodges, in many Jews were seated there.

We do not want to deny the influence of the Freemasons, but we do want to draw conclusions but due to a lack of positive documentation, based on other factors, one- to reach a conclusion based on irrefutable facts.

In some pamphlets, one often finds a reference to that the Jews, in the event of the passage of the law, had declared their willingness to subscribe for a bond, and also a A newspaper article published in Amsterdam seems to refer to this. to receive. After that, the Jews had expressed their willingness to Issuance of a bond with an interest rate of only 2% declared. The message then ends with the words: "This non-public- The lignite bond was likely one of the main motives, 283) Philo Patriae: Further Considerations p. 44 ff.

m Wolfstieg Vol. II p. 197.

285) Begemann p. 32 ff.
286) Begemann p. 324.

260

which led the Minister to favor the naturalization law for Jews in England." Ä

Although probably a larger number of the effort

who was involved in this bond, those of Piciotto?) in a longer list of Jews, mainly for that reason in Questions may have arisen. We just want to take a closer look at some of them. enter. |

First, we find, among others, Joseph Salvador. He was the president of the Jewish community and shareholder of a large Jewish company. It almost goes without saying that he possessed great wealth. When The first Jew. He was appointed director of the East India Company. has been. Whether this is the English or Dutch version. The company's actions are not sufficiently explained by the various factors. Sources point out; in any case, he had an international He is known as an economist. if they had been of use, as he not infrequently issued bonds for she accommodated?). As a result, he was with the leading Politicians are very well known. Thus we learn that shortly after Ver- The passage of the law in the summer of 1753 was met with a grand reception. The event took place at his country estate in Surrey. The guests consisted of mainly members of the nobility, the House of Lords and of parliament. It is not unlikely that one on this occasion, the legislative houses (has celebrated hard-fought success). Furthermore, it is assured "been"), that Salvador was therefore significantly involved in the state- was involved in the coming of the law when he threatened the government have, immediately, taking all his assets to leave the country if the law is not passed. Contemporary publications ironically remark that it "is a threat of such significance that we cannot even discuss the The influence they may have on our patriotic Lord- had more."

Another Jew, Solomon da Costa, may have had even better evidence of undue influence on the process leading to the conclusion deliver men responsible under the law.

He too was very rich and had made his money mainly as Real estate agent earned money. He was praised for his generosity towards- over the poor?), but apparently he did not retain his generosity limited to the poor, because it was written by a contemporary and Friends of da Costa have been told that he also did not saved sums of money vis-à-vis members of parliament has 2), The author of da Costa's biography has this

27) London Evening Post, June 7, 1753.

3 Piciotto p. 93/94. 1

2) Piciotto p. 162/63, Hyamson: History p. 212, Jewish Encyclopedia Vol. 2) London Evening Post, July 10-12, 1753.

21) London Evening Post, July 26-28, 1753.

2) Jewish Encyclopedia Vol. IV p. 292.

m) Hollis Vol. II p. 614/15.

261

The place was also known and, with reference to this, also Cor-disruptive relationships between him and various leading figures Personalities identified. Hyamson™) opposes a such an interpretation, but he conceals why he holds a different view. Regarding another wealthy Jew, Franck, it was stated in It is publicly known that on the day of his departure he of the Jewish Law, 27 banknotes of £1,000 each from the bank-had raised), undoubtedly involving sums of money, which he paid to the as compensation for the enactment of the law The parties involved paid.

Sampson Gideon, "the pillar of government credit"

To gain a proper understanding regarding the immediate influence To win over the Jews when the law is passed, they must we deal extensively with their uncrowned king or, with the To speak in the words of the Jew Picciotto (?%®), "the Rothschild of back then, Walpole's friend and the pillar of the state-"credits" was his original name. which he later adapted to the English language, in Sampson Gideon?) changed.

Gideon was born in 1699. His father died in 1720. His father left him a fortune of £7,900, with which he could... He began his career as a merchant. As early as 1729 he had earned enough to start working as a broker with a capital of £25,000. begin. Now came his great rise. Thus we find him in active trade relations with the East India and South Seas Company. On the other hand, he soon had great interests in Dutch-Swiss and French government bonds. There was hardly any part the world in which he had no connections. When in the year When war broke out with Spain in 1742, he was already, as his Correspondence reveals that, commissioned by the ministers, the emergency-necessary measures to provide the money for the war to meet leadership. He established a scheme according to which £3,000,000 had to be raised. He himself took on a portion of this. a considerable portion with the promise to finance it. From Letters to Pelham reveal that Gideon was already in A new, larger transaction with the government next year he explained. He handed Pelham a draft of proposals. to ensure the economic situation. He did the same in

Years 1744, when foreign policy looked very serious and the state-

1) Hyamson: Solomon da Costa p. 261.

#6) London Evening Post from October 23rd to 25th, 1753.

c) Piciotto p. 60, Mesquita p. 240/41.

7) Piciotto p. 62.

262

papers were on the decline"), by 1745 he had already accumulated a fortune of about £80,000. The typically Jewish However, his career as a financier was cut short by the turmoil of 1745/46. experience that will double his empire in one yeartums helped. As is well known, the Pretender marched at that time. unstoppable against London, and defeat of the government
It seemed safe. Everyone tried to get rid of their government bonds as quickly as possible to get rid of them as much as possible, due to the lack of any buyers eventually they had hardly any market value left. Now it began To everyone's astonishment, Gideon possessed all available government bonds. to acquire all his cash and everything at his disposal.
The loan was exploited, and that's how it ended up at ridiculously low prices. came into possession of numerous documents. After only a short time, the danger of expulsion (the government averted and the papers) recovered, which gave him an enormous boost all at once Merits achieved").

As early as 1749, Pelham resumed his services in Claim, by developing a plan at his request regarding worked out a reduction in interest rates on government bonds. Natural-
The holders of the documents were not at all pleased about this and They declared themselves ready for any resistance. But Gideon he exerted his full influence in financial circles and convinced gradually from the necessity and the possibility that they might future benefits.

Immediately afterwards, Pelham attempted to conduct his financial business with to perform on another man, which, however, proved to be a complete It proved unsuccessful. Pelham immediately summoned Gideon again, who-
He said the desired £3,000,000 could be raised through a three percent to raise funds through a bond. He himself immediately subscribed the amount of £100,000, and indeed, after a short time he had the entire Total amount).

It is particularly likely in these last two cases that Gideon through appropriate payment or other means of discharging
The government provided ample compensation.
What this consisted of can no longer be determined.

However, it is interesting that, as is well known, in the year 1750
The general naturalization law was introduced. This act-
The matter does not lose its significance simply because Gideon who publicly announced that he had nothing to do with it"), because It's a general rule: the stronger the denial, the greater
The probability of the denied fact. Such a
This insight is particularly relevant here, since there is undoubtedly-
It is certain that the Jews are seriously seeking inclusion in the have worked towards the law and its passage.

At the outbreak of the Seven Years' War in 1756,

we) Nichols Vol. VI p. 277/78.

1) Francis p. 97/98, Picciotto p. 60/61.

®) Nichols Vol. VI p. 278.

*t) Nichols Vol. VI p. 283.

263

Gideon about £100,000 from his fortune, which had by then grown to about £300,000. Two years later he was for the accommodation of the so-called Hanoverian bond Responsibly. More than ever, he enjoyed unlimited trust.
the government, in particular the Duke of Newcastle. None whatsoever.
Money transactions were conducted more without the Jew Gideon undernamed).

In his business career, we have mainly adhered to Nichols' accounts and will continue to do so as far as possible as much as possible, since they are based on documents from the company-Gideon's family archives are compiled %3) and therefore in Doubts can make a strong claim to correctness.
Gideon also played a role in history in another way-gone, because he is one of the first leading Jews to married to an Englishwoman. His wife Jane or Elisabeth – the first name is disputed –, daughter of Charles Ermell Esq. likely comes from a respected family. From now the process of the Judaization of the English nobility should begin-First slowly, but later faster, its unstoppable progress-to take a walk, His eldest son was born in 1744.
In 1759 he moved into the famous English educational institution Eton?), in which only the sons of the highest circles are admitted.
His father had raised him in the faith of his Protestant mother.
let go and he himself gradually became Jewish.
outwardly becoming a renegade, as evidenced by his death in 1754 message addressed to the elders of the Jewish community about his departure from the synagogue (as evidenced by his departure from the synagogue). As we

As will be seen, he had a strong personal ambition for which His religion very often proved to be an obstacle. Probably The events of 1753 had shown him that the time for emancipation had not yet come and it was better to renounce the Jewish faith. But how deeply he was at heart The fact that he remained Jewish, even with regard to religion, is evident from this. It is noteworthy that upon his death in 1762 he expressed the request that to be buried in the Jewish cemetery. This wish was granted to him all the more readily by his fellow race members, as he The synagogue was bequeathed £1,000 according to a last will and testament. had made. He left his children a very large inheritance. [They], the exact amount of which is a matter of debate. Sometimes the figure is given as approximately £400,000, other times as... £580,000). Considering the current, much higher purchase price... Based on the pound, it should be a case of They traded enormous fortunes.

#2) Nichols Vol. VI pp. 279/80.

= Nichols Vol. VI p. 284.

ws} Nichols Vol. VI p. 280, Solomons p. 209, Landa p. 288.

N 61/62

ichols Vol. VI 8. 280.

wr} Mesquita p. 241.

264

In 1757, Gideon had made serious efforts to establish a to receive peerage, as can be seen from a letter from the Duke. from Newcastle to him dated June 13, 1757. It reads as follows:

"This morning I mentioned to His Majesty your wish regarding the baronial title and informed him of the services you have rendered... I especially appreciated that. I pointed out how much I myself feel towards you- feels obligated, and emphasizes the zeal you show on all occasions- have demonstrated their ability to serve the public. The King seemed very inclined to comply with your request, He spoke very kindly of you and said that he, in turn, I have nothing against being pleasing to you, but that he He feared it would cause noise. He therefore wished that I should most politely inform you that he was not able to- I will comply with your request.

I flatter myself that you will understand that I my I have done my best to assist you in this matter. to be, because I would like to emphatically assure you, that nothing could have given me greater pleasure as an opportunity to convince you of our high regard, with which I remain . .)..“

So, after that, the king and ministers were quite willing to help the Jew in to elevate the nobility, but they feared the people. They As you can see, the stormy year of 1753 was neither approved by the king nor by the Government forgotten.

From the correspondence that has been handed down to us between the It emerges that the Duke of Newcastle and Gideon was the latter. has not refrained from further attempts in this regard – but these too were unsuccessful). Apparently, A compromise was then reached, whereby Gideon's son on May 21, 1759, at the age of 13, he received the title "Sampson Gideon" the Younger Esq., son of Sampson Gideon..." received and in was raised to the rank of Baron. This rank was held by Gideon. not high enough, because when the nobility's name is sent... At the same time, he wrote a cover letter to his son, in which he admonished him to always behave in accordance with his rank–take, and even if his title is the lowest hereditary Being in England at least means taking a step forward. (upwards), It is precisely in these latter words that a It may contain an undertone of disappointment.

Sampson Gideon, however, did not only demand the peerage, but had long harbored a strong desire to own land–to become more devout. Since this was forbidden to the Jews, there existed Considerable difficulties in granting him an exception. Sir

5 Nichols Vol. VI p. 279/80, Landa p. 287.
Landa S. 287/89.
319) Nichols: Literary Anecdotes Vol. IX p. 642.

265

Robert Walpole therefore introduced a special bill in Parliament on behalf of his friend and advisor, to Reason, for which Gideon should be expressly authorized. After we have dealt with the reign of Robert Walpole– Having dealt with this, we will not dwell too much on this step. You will be surprised. Then you will also understand why this request was made. It was enacted into law. Apparently, everything went quite quietly. It has been dealt with so that the public will hardly know anything about it. has learned. The passages that are relevant to a tradition in They remained silent about any questions that might arise. Gideon immediately exercise his right under the emergency law, and so We will soon see him as a landowner in Belvidere, Kent, and also as owner of the manor house of Spalding),

Based on all the preceding explanations, we will now have recognized that the law cannot be passed without influence from the Hebrews came about. Thus, it is also quite openly stated by Jewish- The other side admitted that it was Gideon who, at the same time as the The law sought to clarify the question of whether Jews could own land. could or could not be. Consequently, he believed that the Ge- It would be one step closer to the desired goal. The same concession-but much more clearly-is made by another Jew in this direction, who acted like as follows:

"It is reasonable to assume that Gideon undoubtedly had a great influence on the Pelhams regarding support for the single- exercised his citizenship rights... Gideon was - perhaps for purely personal or selfish reasons - in order to The success of the plan is very worrying. Should the law be passed... This might be a springboard for further developments. His appointments were. He was an ambitious man...and harbored hopes- nungen for a seat in parliament and for elevation in the Baronial 32),"

We have little to add to these statements, we would like However, it should be noted that this is yet another case in the The story is one in which a single Jew, with the help of Government against the will of the people, with the consequences not hard to guess - the means to - even if only for a short time in this case - was able to enforce it.

n) Nichols Vol. VI p. 282, Picciotto p. 262, Hyamson: History p. 224, Nichols: Literary Anecdotes Vol. VI p. 85.
212) Solomons p. 210/11.

266

General Corruption

Before we address the question posed above regarding the internal reasons for To answer the alien law, we still need a spa treatment. A view of the general conditions in the parliamentary Life and the leading politicians of the preceding twenty Years throw. ö

It's probably about time for a modern work on the system of to write about English parliamentarism in the 18th century, in order to the false impression that is still often found in our country about the political life of England in the past Correct. It is not within the scope of our work to do this.

On the other hand, one cannot explain the reasons for the situation—
The law's implications are understandable if one does not complain.
is familiar with the value of the situation. Furthermore, these scandalous circumstances Conditions, such as the extent to which Jewish influence in politics shapes the perception can poison the leading circles of a people.

We have already briefly touched upon the corruption of the members of the Parliament around the year 1700 pointed this out. With the accession to the throne—
The rule of the Welles should not change this. On the contrary, — if greater corruption was even possible,
It can be determined in its own time. The corruption was so widespread.
It is outrageous that at times parliament is considered "a sub(presser, but not a representative of the people)).
The costs incurred by a candidate for election to parliament—
The costs were so enormous that only members of wealthy families could afford to pay them.
Families could run for office as representatives. Open—
It was well known that certain constituencies were awarded to the highest bidder.
were awarded. The consequence of this was that the respective
The elected representatives spent the money they allocated to any particular purpose.
They wanted to bring the wise ones back in, and so it was nothing out of the ordinary—
It is common for them to be judged for their stance in parliament by a Certainly, an interested group received annual payments, yes.
Even the government paid large sums for this purpose.
They were sent to members of parliament. Undisputedly, they received [amount] in the first King George I. of the 550 members no fewer than 271, in the first 'parliament' of King George II, 257 deputies were worthwhile Offices, pensions or other paid benefits from the allocated to the government." Nothing had changed about this regrettable—
The conditions changed during the days of the battle year 1753.
Complaints about widespread corruption were frequently encountered.
tion and degeneration'). The entire resentment over this scandal
This is best expressed in a newspaper article that was published in The excerpt reads as follows:

—

33) Lecky Vol. II p. 45.

314) Lecky Vol. II pp. 46 ff.

315) London Evening Post, 15 May, 26–28 June, 4–6 September 1753

267

"It is often said that with money you can achieve anything here. This is not without reason, since honors, Titles and all the privileges, as well as even the birthright
The British right is corruptible, regardless of where it comes from.
The person comes from, or how they acquired their money. Also Beelzebub himself would of course go to the Par—

Member of Parliament can be elected if he only has enough money with-would bring. . 316),

Thus, communities of honorable men were formed to combat
"all these evils formed." Whether they were very successful, That's doubtful; in any case, nothing about it is known.
has been. On the contrary, it looks as if the very before-
The upcoming elections in 1754 threatened to surpass everything else.
ten. On February 7th, Sir John, whom we already know, attempted Barnard in Parliament the "oath against" introduced years ago to have the "bribery" charge lifted. He explained his request.
so that, if this oath remains in effect, the newly elected Members of parliament almost without exception upon takeover from their seat would be committing perjury, since the all-It was obvious that there was blatant bribery involved. His request was not granted.
the applause of the majority. The same attempt by a member.
(in the upper house was also doomed to failure). In the same Fox refused to lead Parliament for so long that year, until he had not learned the details from the Duke of Newcastle which members of parliament were bribed by the government).

This general corruption in the first half of the 18th century-
The hundred is inextricably linked to the name of Sir Robert Walpole.
links. As early as 1712 he was expelled from the Parliament for bribery-
He was detained, and even imprisoned in the tower for several months.
It is sometimes claimed that the latter was merely political.
to thank opponents). Under the later government-During Sir Robert's era, there was no state institution that did not was bribed. Through generous donations, he was able to-even the king and queen for the goals of his government win. On another occasion, he also brought the ministers who disagreed with him were treated in the same way Silence.

There should be no doubt that the funds made available to him in the budget for secret purposes was used to bribe a majority of members of parliament-
the. Even if such things already existed in the time of King Charles II.
Incidents were commonplace, such are the times.
Sir Robert Walpoles (hardly surpassed), who also every and London Evening Post, June 9, 1753.

#7) London Evening Post from July 24th to 26th, August 7th to 9th, 1753.

2) Walpole Vol. I p. 369.

wishes of the people. Other ministers may, he writes Lecky, at least as much, ruled through monetary donations, but "it was left to Walpole to carry out systematic bribery to organize" 22). Sir Robert himself considered such a procedure for the one true and designated purity and patriotism among young people as ridiculous and unmanly®®). Are Aren't those also the fundamental beliefs of the Jews? Henry Pelham, who, besides his brother, the Duke of Newcastle, responsible for the Jewish law, also proved to be herein as a learned pupil of Sir Roberts." Even if they Although they were almost opposites in character, they had the general, ruthless bribery of those responsible for enforcement "General persons relevant to their purposes." For us It is irrelevant why Pelham did this; The only thing that matters here is the establishment of this fact. He too was convinced of the correctness of such a system. and as a result, he was in no way inferior to his teacher Walpole. "The only difference," a contemporary reported, "lay in the fact that Mr. Pelham was always being treated on a much larger scale—used to stab, since he had more power" 2). | His brother, the Duke of Newcastle, was no exception. of the two aforementioned statesmen. Of lesser importance—intelligence and bad qualities, was his main endeavor, to secure a position of power, no matter the cost." He Lecky explains that he reveled in – "more than in all earthly things." things in his pursuits, interests and in his dignity in the secret and corrupt manipulation of parliament, in the distribution of bribes, positions and pensions. After exposing the corrupt system of these times, one will perhaps you can also guess what the Bevis Marks Synagogue is for received such large sums from its members and made all efforts—made it possible to pass the 1753 law. It is highly It's interesting that a Jew gave us material in this direction. has, which reads as follows: | "From a conversation I had with my friend, the I gathered from the learned Rabbi Dr. M. Gaster that... the whole history of the movement from a Jewish point of view from the archives of his synagogue. One can see from what efforts the Jews themselves are making—ten, in order to achieve their first political victory, what plans for the election battle, the amount of funds and in in what manner they were spent . .).

322) Lecky Vol. I p. 432 ff., Francis p. 107.

223) Stanhope Vol. IV Appendix p. 36.

3) Coxe Vol. I p. 8.

2s) Dictionary of National Biography Vol. XV p. 691, Stanhope Vol. IV Appendix p. 46.

) Walpole Vol. I p. 235. . i 327) Coxe Vol. I pp. 4-6, Walpole Vol. I pp. 162 ff., Dictionary of National Biography Vol. XV, p. 705.

38) Solomon's p. 211.

269

Much ink from Jewish pens has flowed about the stormy year of 1753 but never before has a Jew publicly addressed these sources reference was made to it, let alone the material published. Light. Why this secret? The events are already unfolding: soon two hundred years ago, and yet it is usually claimed that, how much effort is made to uncover the truth. Here However, it seems that they are particularly anxious to avoid them, the For- to make the exercise accessible. There must be a reason for that. have, because they will probably be documented there. Facts still bring light to the world today must shy away. Perhaps these lines will one day be read in England. known, and to refute the accusation, one will say certain things. Publish material. We only know one thing already: that which has been kept from the public until now, also will continue to slumber in the vaults of this synagogue.

In the preceding section, we discussed the factors leading to the decision of the above. We have compiled the necessary facts to answer the aforementioned question. are now able to make a final statement. It is undoubtedly clear that the Jewish law – itself if, in the opinion of the Hebrews, it is of little practical use It should have been significant – to be fair to anyone – produced preferential treatment of foreigners over native-born citizens has traded with comrades. A large part of the English population- Rung had fewer rights than the Jews, although as a result of their far greater number and not least because of their blood- belonging to the English nation is incomparably greater Entitlement to at least the same treatment. If the government, disregarding these circumstances despite its their own difficult, internal political situation in open conflict This large majority demands, with all its power, that we do this. Having decided to take this step, she must – especially given the events of 1751 on the occasion of the failure of the general naturalization law had shown the people's negative will – special There must have been reasons for this.

As is generally known, in the first half of the 18th century- hundreds of kings, queens, ministers, members of the nobility, etc. with Money for sale for specific purposes. On the other hand On the other hand, it is also undeniable that the Jews under Gideon's leadership was outstanding, indeed virtually unparalleled.

significant influence on the shaping of the economy, politics and
They possessed state finances. Furthermore, they already had firm [assessments/controls].
A foothold in society, especially in the circles of those Englishmen captured who were directly or indirectly responsible for the fate of the nation were responsible for the country. The claims of the Jews-opponents, all these circles were bribed by the Hebrews or otherwise Influenced in an unlawful manner, this is confirmed to that extent.
when it is admitted by the Jewish side that in order to achieve the
The passage of the law states that Jewish funds have been used.

270

In light of all the facts, the evidence of prima facie evidence therefore suggests that the law was enacted on the basis of inadmissi
The means were obtained. In other words, all Circumstances suggest that, according to the prevailing customs at the time, Methods in government and legislative bodies tens the law through bribery or other unlawful inducements rivers were passed. Adding to the difficulties for the Jews is the fact that in Consider that such behavior is, according to the findings from historical facts are common among them and they are in-Consequently, they have to prove the exception to the rule.

We have described the events of 1753 in detail, because they are a rare example of a victorious defensive campaign represent a healthy people. It wasn't just religious.
Reasons, let alone the stupidity of the masses, like Hertz) to make us believe, but natural instincts to Defense against foreign infiltration. Even at that time, Romaine™)
With sharp insight, he called out to the English people: "Do not tolerate the Formation of a party in which Judah is in the lead. Then it happens. to divide the people into two opposing camps – a the goal pursued by the Jews – to resolve the strife among the people to gain advantages by using the one "Suppressing the other side." Truly prophetic words.
an Englishman from the year 1753. His prophecy is today not only in England, but also in other countries around the world
It has become a bitter truth.

– nn er –[□]–_e– s») Hertz p. 97.

3) Romaine S. 91

271

PART V

1754–1830: Increasing Influence of the Jews

Judaization of Leading Circles

The frontal attack by the Jews in 1753 had failed. had realized that the moral strength of the people was still lacking. was large, in order to win the battle in this way. The camp The opponent first had to be undermined in order to... to make it ready for the new general offensive. So be- In the following 80 years, we notice the barely visible burrowing- work that focuses particularly on the bulwark of the Opponents, the City of London, who were already under Crom- well, which held the leadership against the Jews. Their representatives were it was those who most actively opposed it in parliament and elsewhere. Resistance was sparked: Change had to be created here, if there is a prospect of success.

The Jews' tactics of attrition undoubtedly include the following: Mixture of Aryan and Jewish blood. It should be irrelevant. to consider whether these mixed marriages consciously took place from this perspective. In general, it is In general, it is not necessary to discuss the Jewish question. to discuss whether one or the other process will occur during the advance of Judaism in a country deliberately after a well- The plan was implemented. We believe in it, but for the introduction The countermeasures depend solely on the consequences of one or other behavior of the Jews or their system for the The future of a people. If they prove to be disadvantageous, then they are to fight them out of pure survival instinct, without regard for the decision as to whether this damage is intentional or not.

In our view, therefore, we do not need to decide whether mixed marriages fit into their well-thought-out system- heard, a people, and initially mostly the leading classes, to weaken through such connections. One can rely on this- reproach that even the Jew – as we will see later – the – even believes in preserving the purity of the race and even considers it for considers their future to be necessary. However, this can the follower of the Jews' deliberate plan to The argument against achieving world domination is that in every case Individual members fight for the good of their community.

18 Jews conquer England 2 7 3

to sacrifice Jewish families along with those they had to have infected families of the country perish, so-far from the inferior breed in such mixing.

It gains the upper hand. We see that this too has its advantages, but This is not the place to go into more detail; we are presenting merely establishes that mixed marriages without regard to one or the other A different opinion has always been one of the reasons for this in history. have been that Judah gradually gained supremacy in a has acquired land. After all this, it should be the most practical and This is the only method that will lead to the goal of fighting the Jews. to decide solely based on the result of their overall actions, because in the struggle for the survival of a people, one can Defensive action not dependent on the good or bad will of the dependent on the harmful influence of a foreign body To do: Here, preservation alone and exclusively decides. of a people for whom any means must be justified.

But let's return to the question of mixed marriage. Before we return to English history, Do we still need to address a general point in the history of... Peoples in this connection repeatedly exhibiting changes- stood to indicate.

The first mixed marriages mostly took place in aristocratic circles or at least in those that are closely related to it. The nobility of the 18th and 19th centuries felt more privileged by the and more forward-moving capitalists in his position threatened and therefore decided to form an alliance with this, which is especially true in circles detached from the land of That was the case. At least a large percentage of the nobility are not. more suitable to fight against this alien influence lead, but he prefers to treat him as an equal in his to join ranks. As long as the so-called moneyed aristocracy from An- belonging to the same blood, does not threaten the blood-related The disintegration of a people. But then it becomes a crime. within their own nation, if one part is Jewish. Then they the general adverse consequences for a nation. Furthermore, the Jews and their descendants are gradually tearing the leadership out of the hands of those who had been responsible for the They were responsible for the fate of a nation. The Jew over- now takes the reins of direction - initially imperceptibly - rung and the economy and suppresses with the only his own ruthlessness, which the people sought enlistment of the leading men, and a large part of the people will adapt to the Jewish system for better advancement. close their borders and thus strengthen their front. However, this will weaken their

Above, pressing forces are emerging. A completely alien transformation is slowly taking ho

274

Power always grows and the struggle of the upright, who put their own ego aside and the good of the whole Sacrificing, becoming increasingly hopeless. Once the Jew finds himself in this situation created, so he no longer remains on the defensive, but makes the fighters who are fighting for to use the people, silence them, and try to ruin them in general. This too arises from history and is available to the writer of this. Lines in the form of some contemporary English people come to mind. Therefore, when the hour of decision regarding the Jews comes, When the question of the world has been raised, one will also take a position on it. We must consider to what extent a portion of the nobility was responsible for the Judaizat to blame the people'). At the end of our work, we will attempt to establish, to what extent mixed marriages took place in the English aristocracy have. Here, it is only necessary to first understand the beginnings of this. to demonstrate development. We have already heard above that Gideon entered a respected and married a leading family. His ennoblement- Hobener's son married Sir John Eard's daughter in 1766. Ley Wilmots, President of the Civil Courts of Justice. He moved to the barracks in 1770 as Candidate for Cambridge, later for Coventry, and then for Wallingford into Parliament?). In 1789 he was elected to the Irish Parliament Raised to the nobility as Lord Eardley, he was known as "Mr. Pitts Jew". (the Jew of Mr. Pitt), because he has the special trust of great English statesman enjoyed?). His two sons star- Ben died before him, leaving no descendants. His three daughters- They married Lord Say and Seele - Sir Culling Smith, Parla- Member of the Board - and Colonel Childers*), whose most famous successors Hugh Culling Eardley F. Childers - Minister of the Treasury in one of the governments under Gladstone -, which was around 1910 living Lord Auckland and his cousin, Miss Rolanda F. Childers®), are. Sampson Gideon's sister also married into the English nobility. Her blood can be found today in the House of Dukes of Norfolk, the Earl-Marshall, i.e., the highest-ranking official "kicker of the English nobility". In 1757, Gideon married his daughter to Lord Gage. with a very large dowry for that time (£40,000'). Hertz®) also reports on the mixed marriage of a Jew Mendes with an Englishwoman, whose descendants already early on the Ba- received the title of ron and the Anglo-Saxon name Head an- 5) The responsibility of the nobility is also mentioned, for example, by the Jew Jacob Was in his book: "My life as German and Jew", p. 144.

2) Landa p. 286.
3 Hertz p. 101.
Alger p. 61.
) Solomons p. 210, Hertz p. 101, Mesquita p. 241.
) Solomons p. 210, Monee p. 241.

7) Nichols Vol. VI p.
8) Hertz p. 101/02.

18* 275

took. We also hear that a certain Benjamin da Costa entered into a mixed marriage. He and his son are said to later the first Jewish civil servants in the English administration have been').

The Jewish woman Kitty Villareal was the matriarch of a number of English-aristocratic families. In his first marriage, from which two children were born-Before her death, she was married to a wealthy member of her own race. He left her an estate worth approximately £200,000, and 80 Soon enough suitors were found: she married the Englishman. William Melles, who came from a distinguished family and in In 1741, he used his wife's money to become a member of the Parliament won. In 1751 he left the House of Commons to become a to assume a high position in the customs administration. He brought he later even became the Receiver General of Customs," a position, who, like the first, also ranks among the highest in the administration It is to be expected. After his wife's death, he married Anne Gore. whose family is the ancestral line of the current Earl Winterton and the long-serving Colonial Minister Ormsby Gore, current Lord Harlech is: Both friends of the Jews and enemies of the new Germany. The latter is considered by the Jews themselves to be her "faithful friend").

Kitty Villareal's daughter from her first marriage, a full-Jewish woman, married the heir of the first Viscount Galway, so that of that is, the members of this noble family are descended from them. The granddaughter later married into the family of the Marquis of Crewe. "so that this family too is to be regarded as Jewish." Abraham, Kitty Villareal's son from her first marriage, tried to get into Parliament with the help of the Duke of Newcastle. However, since he cannot, for certain reasons, deal with the Abraham agreed to the electoral district he had in mind. Since he could clarify the matter, the latter declined. He was with the Englishwoman. Elisabeth Halifax, who was married, came from a very respected family. The family originated from: one of her brothers was Bishop of Gloucester and later by St. Asaph, another personal physician of the Prince of Wales, the future King George IV.

One daughter from this marriage married into a good English family. milie into, another, but illegitimate daughter of Abraham ver-married the mayor of Chesterfield."

Charles, a son from Kitty Villareal's second marriage with Mellesch moved to the Newark electoral district in 1774. Parliament and was thus the second half-Jew there, after Gideon's son was already elected as a deputy in 1770. He served in the Cambridge district. Charles Mellesch was married. and had children. His son, Henry Francis Mellesch, was

9) Landa p. 290.

10) Landa p. 271/80, Picciotto p. 103/04.

11) Landa p. 282.

12) Landa, pp. 271, 282.

13) Landa, pp. 282-286

276

later colonel in the English army and gambled away almost his entire fortune in the numerous gambling events held by George IV evenings. It's clear he had gained access to the highest circles. found. Later he was Wellington's adjutant and accompanied him. throughout the entire Spanish campaign. "It is possible," he said. the Jew Landa said, "that Wellington, a friend of the Jewish Emancipation, influenced by Mellesch (Wart).

This brief list of mixed marriages should suffice. It shows with absolute clarity what influence marriages already have. Very few Jews exerted influence on the leading circles of the time. They must have had to. Even King George IV had two with Jews. related persons or persons connected by marriage to him, Colonel Mellesch and Dr. Robert Halifax, the brother-in-law of the fully Jewish son Kitty Villareal. That all these people contribute their part to the fjord- There should be no doubt what has been done to the Jewish cause. lie.

The descendants of the wealthy Jew Jacob Bernal also later entered into mixed marriages. They were civil servants, officers, and one even a member of parliament. In 1844, Capt. Bernal added after marrying the heiress of Sir Thomas Osborne of Newton Anner, Tipperary, the name of his father-in-law to the his own ant),

We also find mixed marriages in the middle classes towards the end of the 18th century. Picciotto attributes this to the fact that that the Jews loved the blonde, blue-eyed daughters of Albion would have, while these in turn are characterized by dark skin color and attracted to the wealth of the sons of Israel (Wernie).

The London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews, which serve to promote Christianity among the Jews should, even went so far as to propose a kind of marriage- for such mixed marriages (To grant standard loans of £500 to £600). We will below, in connection with the presentation about the further Learn more about the activities of this company.

Quite apart from the bloody decomposition, such things were Connections between Englishmen and Jews were the reason that the rugged slopes that were still observed between them in the storm year of 1753 Contrasts, though initially barely visible, are nevertheless all- were gradually bridged; for through this the two Peoples connect with each other, and with the help of which they always more widespread propaganda in favor of the Jews and the The absence of a counter-movement, which had previously been dominant, was believed to have to have to let go of lingering prejudices. That was also the case for the Mixed marriages are a – albeit perhaps not a very large – but at least one undeniable cause for the emancipation of the Jews.

14) Landa p. 286.

see Piciotto p. 211.

11) Piciotto p. 200

17) Piciotto p. 285.

277

The best and most reliable account, however, is by Patrick Colquhoun, who became famous, and for his work on London's police reform This was done. He initially worked as a criminal judge and therefore... first source official material on crime in London and the surrounding area can be compiled. His work is in no way directed against the Jews, but served a single- to soberly and clearly describe the intolerable conditions- to increase and draw public attention to the problems. Equal- He proposed measures to remedy the situation early on, arousing the interest of the Inter- "From King and Government". The Jew Piciotto") refers to Colquhoun as "a generous man who was careful to was to ensure the welfare of the Jews as well as that of the Christians promote."

It is left to others to write about the influence of the Jews on England's crime; we will only focus on one to limit to a short excerpt from Colquhoun's work.

In his view, the main reason for the crimes is in the to observe widespread fencing activity. In London, for example, there are... 3000 fences. Under the guise of junk dealers and secondhand goods dealers... The dealers sold the stolen valuables. Employees were able to easily sell the stolen goods. servants are tempted to steal from their masters ."

Indefensible conditions also prevailed in the field of coinage. The country was flooded with counterfeit money. Counterfeiters also copied foreign coins. Despite the outdated and otherwise inadequate methods of the police In one year, 608 criminals of this type were convicted and sentenced. The verdict was delivered. And that was only a fraction of these elements. The witnesses would usually be bribed or threatened. intimidated. The authorities' gathering of evidence met with resistance. therefore almost insurmountable difficulties).

The resulting damage to the government and the people London and the surrounding area are expected to see an annual increase of £2,000,000. figures),

The Jews were particularly involved in all these crimes and even maintained vehicles to transport the stolen and stolen items as quickly as possible from the province to to bring to London').

The items stolen from the state's arsenals and magazines Supplies would need to be valued at £500,000 in peacetime, in The war was even estimated to cost £1,000,000," and here too- "For them, the Jews were once again the best customers."

4) Dictionary of National Biography Vol. IV p. 859 ff.
43) Picciotto p. 260.

4) Colquhoun, pp. 16–19.

"") Colquhoun, pp. 24–30.

4) Colquhoun, pp. 45–47.

17). Colquhoun p. 52.

48) Colquhoun p. 70.

4) Colquhoun p. 77.

This is followed by detailed considerations of the widespread network of counterfeiters and their accomplices, and the observation that "Robbery and murder are rampant everywhere."

The center of all crime is London, where

In turn, the Jews played a dominant role in coin counterfeiting. played. Special groups of Jewish youths worked together, to sell the worthless money.

Colquhoun then describes in detail her well-considered Me-deaths and what tremendous merit those involved Circles have. In the trade of counterfeit English copper coins and all foreign counterfeit money would have the Jews almost a monopoly (€$).

He then goes on to explain in detail how the Deceptions had become rampant, and then he takes it like This follows on from the involvement of Jews in theft and receiving stolen goods. Position:

"One can find a class of swindlers from the community of Jews in every street and alley in and around the Metro-pole under the guise of buying old clothes and They find metals of all kinds. However, their main business consists of... around the houses and stables of people of rank and status to wander around and entice the servants there, little Items that are unlikely to be missed anytime soon, to steal, which the Jews then used for about a third of their Buy valuables. It is assumed that up to 2000 of these mora-Lisch-corrupted people in these daily routines of the Jews are employed. Many of them then get there through counterfeit money and other scams lead to wealth and activity- They identify themselves as fences. As such (because their work is not for (benefits of the state) they then pursue all possible pernicious plans and prove to be a plague on the population. community.

It is estimated that there are about 20,000 Jews in the City of London and perhaps another 5,000 to 6,000 in the large provincial and port cities."

He then goes on to say that the Jews took their children from every respectable family. deterred employment, especially manual labor. Instead To improve the welfare of the empire, they would do exactly the opposite. part. They had a sophisticated system across the entire country, with its help

"they pursue their fraudulent plans regarding circulation counterfeit money, sale of stolen goods and purchase of Metals of all kinds and other objects that are either in stolen from the provincial towns and brought to the metropolis to become or vice versa, in order to evade detection

n? Colquhoun p. 85 ff.

51) Colquhoun, pp. 118-126.

It was unbearable to endure this flood of crimes to let them wash over oneself. In addition to the crimes already described, the Jews did not shy away from perjury in order to protect themselves and others To deprive fellow race members of just punishment.

"From the orange boy and the street vendor in razor-knives, glassware and other goods up to the shopkeeper, who dealing with clothing or silver and gold, seem generally the same principles in their attitude rule,

The damage that must result from the propagation of this morally corrupt race is so obvious that (cannot be remedied quickly enough??)..“

We have nothing to add to these statements, because one A better expert than the author would likely have a different perspective. No insight into his position and impartiality was given. have. On the other hand, we would like to add two general points... wisely give.

We have already repeatedly expressed the view above that in history, the number of Jews in a It doesn't depend on the country's arrival, but merely on how great their influence is. through money and other means. This too is shown here again-have been shown.

Their moral depravity has led them to robbery, theft, coin-Crimes and receiving stolen goods were committed. With a number of approximately They constitute a large contingent of 2000 people among the fences. Colquhoun repeatedly emphasized that the Fences are the root of all evil. They gave the criminals The purchase of stolen goods provides a new incentive for further shameful acts. deeds. The result was a complete breakdown of the relationship. relationship of trust between employer and employee and a complete corruption of morals in public life. The Uncertainty was further increased by the circulation of counterfeit money. higher, in which the Jews were mainly involved. And all this is more or less achieved by about 10,000 to 20,000 Hebrews – a tiny fraction of the population at that time England's – has been caused.

Finally, another important finding can be derived from the semi-official 'report Colquhouns meet:'

Judah always excuses his crimes throughout history. again, through unbearable, cruel treatment by to have been driven by the population. Liberals and over-

Moderately devout Christians very often confirm this view.

But here we have yet another example of this.

Opinion thoroughly refuted, because we have firmly established right above-stated that the Jews already possessed every kind of freedom back then.

Nossen and England were seen as the promised land. How can one

1) Colquhoun, pp. 166–169.

284

later colonel in the English army and gambled away almost his entire fortune in the numerous gambling events held by George IV evenings. It's clear he had gained access to the highest circles. found. Later he was Wellington's adjutant and accompanied him. throughout the entire Spanish campaign. "It is possible," he said. the Jew Landa said, "that Wellington, a friend of the Jewish Emancipation, which had been influenced by Mellesch").

This brief list of mixed marriages should suffice. It shows with absolute clarity what influence marriages already have Very few Jews exerted influence on the leading circles of the time. They must have had to. Even King George IV had two with Jews. related persons or persons connected by marriage to him, Colonel Mellesch and Dr. Robert Halifax, the brother-in-law of the fully Jewish son Kitty Villareal. That all these people contribute their part to the fjord- There should be no doubt what has been done to the Jewish cause. lie.

The descendants of the wealthy Jew Jacob Bernal also later entered into mixed marriages. They were civil servants, officers, and one even a member of parliament. In 1844, Capt. Bernal added after marrying the heiress of Sir Thomas Osborne of Newton Anner, Tipperary, the name of his father-in-law to the his own ant').

We also find mixed marriages in the middle classes towards the end of the 18th century. Piciotto attributes this to the fact that that the Jews loved the blonde, blue-eyed daughters of Albion would have, while these in turn are characterized by dark skin color and would be attracted to the wealth of the sons of Israel!®).

The London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews, which serve to promote Christianity among the Jews should, even went so far as to propose a kind of marriage- for such mixed marriages "To grant standard loans of £500 to £600." We will below, in connection with the presentation about the further Learn more about the activities of this company.

Quite apart from the bloody decomposition, such things

Connections between Englishmen and Jews were the reason that the rugged slopes that were still observed between them in the storm year of 1753 Contrasts, though initially barely visible, are nevertheless all-were gradually bridged; for through this the two Peoples connect with each other, and with the help of which they always more widespread propaganda in favor of the Jews and the The absence of a counter-movement, which had previously been dominant, was believed to have to let go of lingering prejudices. That was also the case for the Mixed marriages are a – albeit perhaps not a very large – but at least one undeniable cause for the emancipation of the Jews. 1 14) Landa p. 286.

in Piciotto p. 211.

16) Piciotto p. 200

17) Piciotto p. 285.

277

New wave of immigration

Furthermore, ever-increasing numbers of Jews were arriving over England. The main causes were external. Jews were then prompted to change their previous place of residence in favor of to abandon England, where they already had an unfettered who enjoyed freedom). Espriella, who around the year 1800 had a The description of England even states that "they do not not only the practice of their religion, but also the "public statements against Christianity are permitted." As early as 1755, there was a significant influx of Jews from Lisbon. to determine. A major earthquake had caused considerable damage there. (prepared), and some of the Jews probably did not want to during the years of development, which usually yielded less profit throw it off, stay there.

The partition of Poland in 1772 also brought new [changes]. Swarms of Jews. Due to the lack of any official support- The number of those who were killed cannot be determined today. Doubt- However, it was considerably loose, because after some time it The elders of the Jewish community announce that the rich suitcases the synagogue was empty and support for the group was lacking. no longer allow wise, wandering fellow race members Furthermore, an increase in crime was observed, and Thefts and robberies committed by Jews were common in the Agenda. A brazen murder in Chelsea, carried out by a A gang of Jewish criminals forced the government to finally take action. proceed. She engaged with the Jewish community in Ver-connection, in order to facilitate further immigration together with her-prevent this. The elders agreed and published-

 They clarified their decision regarding this matter, to fundamentally suspend further aid.
 no longer able to provide additional funding. The government rejected the objections.
 authorities only issued permits to Jews with entry permits.
 to allow English representatives abroad. Apparently However, it proved difficult to gain control over the Jewish criminal circles.
 to become, because the mayor of London offered a-migrants began their return journey to the south coast of England.
 pay if they agreed to return to their country of origin to return? t). How many have made use of it is Unfortunately, this is not known.

The Siege of Gibraltar by the French in 1781 prompted the immigration of new hordes of starving Jews to England?). Since they naturally only had the bare necessities.
 They could not be saved, neither by the English nor by
 They were all too welcome to their fellow members of their breed.

18) Piciotto S. he Hyamson: History p. 236, Rumney p. 331.

1) Espriella p. 145

20) Margoliouth: History Vol. II p. 9

21) Home Office Papers Vol. 63772 pp. 355-358, Hyamson: History pp. 232, 237.

22) Piciotto S. 1%.

278

The events in France and Poland, which in the latter took place in the year
 The events of 1793, which had led to the renewed division, saw new masses of Jews in motion. Once again, swarms of Hebrews poured forth.
 about England. The repercussions were likely the same.
 as before, because the government felt compelled to implement a very... comprehensive law to ward off these unwanted objections-to issue regulations that place high demands on the newcomers presented. Basically, passports were required; foreigners were kept in check.
 to fulfill various conditions, such as their possession to surrender any weapons found, etc. They were also subject to strict regulations.
 Subject to registration requirements, as the government also stated.
 He had the right to assign specific places of residence to foreigners, which they were not allowed to leave. All violations were severely punished, and could even face deportation.
 Many Hebrews suffered this fate. Despite fierce...
 Resistance from the liberals - this party was also aware of this.
 or had unconsciously become an ally of the Jews - (Has the law found a majority in parliament?).

These various immigrations are surprising.
not that the number of Jews has changed in relation to the previous number
The observed figure has increased considerably. How high exactly?
The exact circumstances cannot be determined due to a lack of sufficient documentation.
so we have to rely on estimates. That's how we hear
We learned around 1791 from a German traveler that approximately 12,000 Jews lived in England, of whom, according to his View of approximately 1000 in the province*). A Frenchman who England, visited around the same time, gave the far higher Number of approximately 20,000 (starting with the emancipation movement).
Efforts in parliament in 1830 can be estimated at approximately (25,000 to 30,000 Jews, one would expect?). It must also depend on how-It will be noted that various Jewish communities in the province, so e.g. B. in Falmouth, Plymouth, Liverpool, Portsmouth, Exeter etc. were founded?").

Jews are reorganizing

The Jews had realized that they were ready for the next open attack-
They needed to summon all their forces in the country.
The corresponding steps can already be taken a few years after the defeat of 1753.

On the occasion of the accession of George III to the throne, the so-called "Deputies of the Portuguese Nation" and er-

23) Henriques: Jews S. a son: History p. 246, Statutes at Large Vol. 39 pp. 10-24.

24) Wendeborn Vol. II p. 4

25) Rumney p. 332.

26) Pellat S. IV.

27) Wendeborn Vol. II p. 469.

279

chose envoys from their ranks to declare their allegiance to the king. The king is said to have received them very graciously-have taken'),
Jews who immigrated from Germany were affected by this individual
The actions of their fellow race members were not very welcome. An agreement was reached.
but soon to come, in the future in jointly interested Jewish-to collaborate on sen questions?®). This Jewish institution later acquired a very special meaning. She took not only the matter of the Jews in England was true, but watched over the fate of the children of Israel throughout the world.

People came there from all parts of the world seeking help, and how as we will see, not for nothing. That one should not be unaware of the possibility of a strong influence of the English Foreign Office and other means. Even the Jews don't deny that it served. Piciotto®) takes the following position on this:
"Regarding foreign affairs, they have limited themselves to the intervention of the Foreign Office following- to seek which may be granted to them depending on the circumstances or was refused. Whether the representatives offered other means of entry- We don't need to access the available resources here. locals...

What a pity – we would have loved to hear from a well-informed Jew about such international cooperation. It should have an effect. But one thing is interesting: this message is a New confirmation that London is the center of world Jewry even at that time and, as we will show, later as well was and has remained so to this day.

Certain difficulties occasionally caused disagreements. possibilities in this so-called Jewish parliament, but with the It can probably be rightly explained that in the year 1812, complete unity- There was a prevailing atmosphere. Most of the more or less well-known Jews the first half of the 19th century in this body- held various positions. The first Rothschild, too, with which we still need to examine in detail, is located among them. The association has a diverse range of activities- keit in the time of the emancipation struggles after the year It was developed in 1830. Committees were appointed there to design... petitions addressed to various leading figures – from the Archbishop of Canterbury to the Finance Minister – out-handled ...).

So we have a closed and well-managed Jewish community. in England, which took up the fight for emancipation. Also in the field of cooperation between the various synagogen was chosen after lengthy, often aborted negotiations in

28) Piciotto p. 115, 116.

2) Piciotto p. 118.

300 Piciotto p. 120.

31) Piciotto p. 126.

280

years 1824 an agreement was reached." It was probably the ever-approaching decisive battle that brought about this success. They also made sure that the deadliest weapon, money, was not used.

was missing by collecting regular contributions). Finally, ver-
They also sought to keep the forces together by...
Jews who left the synagogue received a kind of compensation in had to pay a fine of £100."

Jewish crimes are getting out of hand

The children of lower-class Israel traded mainly in old things.
Clothes and shouting filled the streets of Londons®), while others as peddlers make the province unsafe made").

But by far the largest part was involved in criminal activities area and had settled in the most diister and dirtiest Be-circles of the capital have come together*'), where the Jews completely formed a city unto themselves. "I began to imagine," he said.
A traveler comments on his visit to this part of town, saying that I who would have discovered the ten tribes." Others express themselves in similar terms.
in a literal way and speak with contempt of such a low-(of the resulting quantity). These are mostly elements. have traded, for whom the ground in other countries was too hot had become; they stole everything within reach, indeed, they terrified not even shying away from robberies and acting after old habit as counterfeiterers and receivers of stolen goods").

"I believe," a German traveler tells us, "that Few burglaries, robberies and coin thefts to be attended, in which there are no Jews in one or the other are involved in the form of the theft. They not only steal themselves, but Christian thieves are supported by acting as receivers of stolen goods.
Acquire stolen goods at very moderate prices. At Dukes Places where almost exclusively Jews live are the Schmelzfurnaces ready throughout the night to process the stolen gold and to melt the silver immediately when the thieves bring it in, so that it is rendered unrecognizable before daybreak."

w Hyamson: History pp. 250-251.

3%) Piciotto p. 191/92.

1) Piciotto p. 254.

2 Rumney p. 334/35, Wendeborn p. 470/71, Espriella p. 151.

20) Rumney p. 336.

2 Goede p. 333.

*) Espriella p. 153.

a Siliman Vol. I p. 133, Wendeborn p. 470, Rumney p. 334/35.

4) Archenholtz p. 177/78.

41) Wendeborn p. 471.

The best and most reliable account, however, is by Patrick Colquhoun, who became famous, a Patrick Colquhoun, who became famous for his work on London's police reform This was done. He initially worked as a criminal judge and therefore... first source official material on crime in London and the surrounding area can be compiled. His work is in no way directed against the Jews, but served a single- to soberly and clearly describe the intolerable conditions- to increase and draw public attention to the problems. Equal- He proposed measures to remedy the situation early on, arousing the interest of the Inter- "Essen von König und Regierungs"). The Jew Piciotto") refers to Colquhoun as "a generous man who was careful to was to ensure the welfare of the Jews as well as that of the Christians promote."

It is left to others to write about the influence of the Jews on England's crime; we will only focus on one to limit to a short excerpt from Colquhoun's work.

In his view, the main reason for the crimes is in the to observe widespread fencing activity. In London, for example, there are... 3000 fences. Under the guise of junk dealers and secondhand goods dealers... The dealers sold the stolen valuables. Employees were able to easily sell the stolen goods. "Servants are tempted to steal from their employers."

Indefensible conditions also prevailed in the field of coinage. The country was flooded with counterfeit money. Counterfeiters also copied foreign coins. Despite the outdated and otherwise inadequate methods of the police In one year, 608 criminals of this type were convicted and sentenced. The verdict was delivered. And that was only a fraction of these elements. The witnesses were usually bribed or threatened. intimidated. The authorities' gathering of evidence met with resistance. therefore, almost insurmountable difficulties").

The resulting damage to the government and the people London and the surrounding area are expected to see an annual increase of £2,000,000. digits*®).

The Jews were particularly involved in all these crimes and even maintained vehicles to transport the stolen and stolen items as quickly as possible from the province to to bring to London").

The items stolen from the state's arsenals and magazines

Supplies would need to be valued at 500,000 in peacetime, in The war was even estimated to cost £1,000,000'), and here too—"For them, the Jews were once again the best customers."

4) Dictionary of National Biography Vol. IV p. 859 ff.

4) Picciotto p. 260.

4) Colquhoun, pp. 16–19.

) Colquhoun, pp. 24–30.

46) Colquhoun, pp. 45–47.

47). Colquhoun p. 52.

4) Colquhoun p. 70.

4) Colquhoun p. 77.

282

This is followed by detailed considerations of the widespread network of counterfeiters and their accomplices, and the observation that Robbery and murder are rampant everywhere™).

The center of all crime is London, where

In turn, the Jews played a dominant role in coin counterfeiting. played. Special groups of Jewish youths worked together, to sell the worthless money.

Colquhoun then describes in detail her well-considered Me-

deaths and what tremendous merit those involved

Circles have. In the trade of counterfeit English copper coins and all foreign counterfeit money would have the Jews almost a monopoly 3t).

He then goes on to explain in detail how the Deceptions had become rampant, and then he takes it like

This follows on from the involvement of Jews in theft and receiving stolen goods.

Position:

"One can find a class of swindlers from the community of Jews in every street and alley in and around the Metro-pole under the guise of buying old clothes and

They find metals of all kinds. However, their main business consists of...

around the houses and stables of people of rank and status to wander around and entice the servants there, little

Items that are unlikely to be missed anytime soon, to steal, which the Jews then used for about a third of their

Buy valuables. It is assumed that up to 2000 of these mora-

Lisch-corrupted people in these daily routines of the Jews are employed. Many of them then get there through counterfeit money and other scams lead to wealth and activity-

They identify themselves as fences. As such (because their work is not for (benefits of the state) they then pursue all possible pernicious plans and prove to be a plague on the population community.

It is estimated that there are about 20,000 Jews in the City of London and perhaps another 5,000 to 6,000 in the large provincial and port cities."

He then goes on to say that the Jews took their children from every respectable family. deterred employment, especially manual labor. Instead To improve the welfare of the empire, they would do exactly the opposite. part. They had a sophisticated system across the entire country, with its help

"they pursue their fraudulent plans regarding circulation counterfeit money, sale of stolen goods and purchase of Metals of all kinds and other objects that are either in stolen from the provincial towns and brought to the metropolis to become or vice versa, in order to evade detection

n? Colquhoun p. 85 ff.

) Colquhoun, pp. 118–126.

283

It was unbearable to endure this flood of crimes to let them wash over oneself. In addition to the crimes already described, the Jews did not shy away from perjury in order to protect themselves and others To deprive fellow race members of just punishment.

"From the orange boy and the street vendor in razor-knives, glassware and other goods up to the shopkeeper, who dealing with clothing or silver and gold, seem generally the same principles in their attitude rule.

The damage that must result from the propagation of this morally corrupt race is so obvious that "The problem cannot be remedied quickly enough."

We have nothing to add to these statements, because one A better expert than the author would likely have a different perspective. No insight into his position and impartiality was given. have. On the other hand, we would like to add two general points... wisely give.

We have already repeatedly expressed the view above that in history, the number of Jews in a It doesn't depend on the country's arrival, but merely on how great their influence is.

through money and other means. This too is shown here again- have been shown.

Their moral depravity has led them to robbery, theft, coin- Crimes and receiving stolen goods were committed. With a number of approximately They constitute a large contingent of 2000 people among the fences. Colquhoun repeatedly emphasized that the Fences were the root of all evil. They gave the criminals The purchase of stolen goods provides a new incentive for further shameful acts. deeds. The result was a complete breakdown of the relationship. relationship of trust between employer and employee and a complete corruption of morals in public life. The Uncertainty was further increased by the circulation of counterfeit money. higher, in which the Jews were mainly involved. And all this is more or less achieved by about 10,000 to 20,000 Hebrews – a tiny fraction of the population at that time England's – has been caused.

Finally, another important finding can be derived from the semi-official 'report Colquhouns meet:'

Judah always excuses his crimes throughout history. again, through unbearable, cruel treatment by to have been driven by the population. Liberals and over- Moderately devout Christians very often confirm this view. But here we have yet another example of this. Opinion thoroughly refuted, because we have firmly established right above- stated that the Jews already possessed every kind of freedom back then. Nossen and England were seen as the promised land. How can one

) Colquhoun, pp. 166–169.

284

Now, to excuse their activities there around the year 1800? Probably perhaps with too much freedom? This was certainly partly due to be right!

These appalling conditions were not only limited to the lower masses of the people, but one could- The system of Jews was felt everywhere else as well, especially in Financial circles.

How much Jewish brokers in general were hated is illustrated by the following anecdote. The son of a very The sick Jewish real estate agent had heard that the The Mayor of London expressed his delight at the soon-to-be-established he could not hide the impending death of his father. When the son confronted him about it, the mayor allegedly Masters have answered:

"My dear fellow, you are greatly mistaken. – I would to truly prefer to witness the death of all other Jews be. . 5). .

Conditions on the stock market were becoming increasingly ominous, and the Bribery of important people in the government revealed further Progress was made. Nothing was done to gain advantages. Stop. Through newspapers and similar means, alarm was spread. Misleading reports to manipulate stock market prices to suppress and buy at the lowest price. Once They invented a hostile invasion of England, another Sometimes, an influential man in the government was allowed to die. Truth and integrity on the stock exchange were outdated notions. griffe®),

It was unbelievable how much money was made on the army supplies Bribery and fraud were also involved here Agenda").

Financial Jews

The money market was increasingly controlled by individual rich Jews dominated. Gideon and Salvador were ruled by the Jews. Brothers Abraham and Benjamin Goldsmid replaced them. Above all It was the entire Goldsmid family, starting with the father. at the top and his four sons"), who played a major role in should play on the London Stock Exchange.

Benjamin Goldsmid had amassed a huge fortune through inheritance and marriage. He acquired wealth. So it was no wonder that he soon after to record a turnover in his business in a short time had, which could now only be calculated in millions of pounds 53) Picciotto p. 180, Francis p. 125, Times of November 6, 1822.

54) Francis S. 165 ff.

55) Francis S. 179 ff.

ss, Hyamson: History p. 247.

let him. It wasn't long before he and his brother to place the government's bonds.

He had an elegant house in Stamford Hill, while he was away had built a lavish palace in Roehampton "Let it be," which must have been of immense splendor. Time–

Those who enjoyed it used to compare it to Windsor Castle." In This manor house hosted the biggest and most lavish parties. Celebrated in ancient times. The guests came from the highest nobility. England, and it was considered good form in society to... to frequent the home of Benjamin Goldsmidt. The famous Pitt never missed such occasions, especially since Benjamin was his was a favorite.

The latter enjoyed engaging in charity work. On the occasion of a The Duke of Kent had hosted a larger event of this kind, who Father of the future Queen Victoria, presiding over the banquet. Benjamin Goldsmid could be seen sitting to his left.

In later years, Benjamin suffered from poor health. to suffer. He took his own life in 1808." His brother Abraham had at least the same significance in London. stock exchange and played a crucial role in the financial Government transactions. He had gone to great lengths to secure to have a palace built in Morden, comparable to that of his brother It was hardly inferior in splendor. He held lavish parties there, and one day he even had King George III as a guest.

He conducted his business together with the well-known English- The Baring banking house. In the year 1810, it was undertaken to- Together, a government bond of 14 million pounds to accommodate all alone. At the end of that same year, Abraham had to fear the ruin of his business through bad speculation, He too took his own life. His death triggered a reaction on the stock exchange. Unrest never before seen on such an occasion arose. Dispatches from Upon his death, the King and the Prince of Sent to Wales. The paperwork fell apart and there was hardly any conclusion. It happened on the stock exchange that day. All the newspapers They couldn't do enough to praise him and his importance. to emphasize. In general, a major national event would have been (cannot make a deeper impression). Consider: everything about a single rich Jew!

It should be mentioned that he, like his brother, was known for his charitable endeavors.

On this occasion, we would like to briefly address the popular argument from the charity of the Jews, which is not at all related 57) Alexander S. 94 ff.

5) Alexander S. 105/06.

5°) Alexander S. 114 ff.

©) Alexander S. 110/11.

St) Picciotto pp. 219–252, Jewish Encyclopedia Vol. VI p. 30, Francis pp. 180–184, Mar_ goliouth: History Vol. II p. 128.

*) Picciotto pp. 252–254, Jewish Encyclopedia Vol. VI p. 28, Francis pp. 184–186, Times of April 12/13, 1808, Morning Post of October 9, 1810.

286

the claims of their opponents—that they are hard-hearted—seem to be consistent. Anyone who has seen through the Hebrews, knows that it is a well-thought-out move to reach the goal to get there. It is clear to the Jews that every people starts from the front—inherits an aversion to them, which is further expressed by the
The system they introduced – high finance with all its excesses Growth, bribery, general immorality, etc. – increases. This
The people, as objects of their exploitation, might look askance at the approach—

They grow in their power, gazing upon their glittering festivals. One considers ways and means to suppress any discontent of the people even in the

To smother germs. What could be more conciliatory than that?
A cloak of charity: sums that would cost the average person Enjoyed, they appear gigantic, and are given for purposes that guaranteeing the greatest publicity. Not everyone considers that the Jew takes with one hand two and three times what he gave with the other one.

Those who oppose our view argue that such an action—wisely he would never have guided the Jews. It is usually difficult, to clearly understand the motives behind a person's actions to prove, if, as here, they are supported by both sides with a Number of opposing reasons (to be presented). In addition to the
However, the evidence already presented supports our view.
The opinion that such welfare benefits should be provided by Jews as much as possible will be largely published. A person who gives, just to
To do good, one generally avoids making a fuss about it.
It finally needs to be proven that they are by nature
They are kind-hearted, generous, and altruistic. This evidence
This is unlikely to succeed, since actions in history and their consequences are often over incompatible with the principles laid down in the Talmud and elsewhere appear.

Nathan Mayer Rothschild and Associates

We have been involved in the establishment of the Jewish Power in England before 1830 also with the richest of the 'Children of Israel, Nathan Mayer Rothschild, to employ. In

Within the scope of this work, a brief overview will suffice.
to give about his life.

Born in Frankfurt am Main in 1770, he emigrated in 1798 to England. He initially stayed in Manchester and He moved to London in 1805. Around the same time, he was already by King George III for his services to the crown naturalized®).

He owes his actual rise to power to the Landgrave and later Elector of Hesse, who, with the help of his father Roth-

6) Scherb p. 60, Wolf p. 271.

287

shield accumulated enormous sums due to the sale of his countrymen as auxiliary troops for England in America had. Part of this fortune was invested in England, and Rothschild managed it to his complete satisfaction
The client, who was considered the richest prince in Europe at the time.
After his escape from Napoleon, he was more than ever targeted by Rothschild dependent, which he used to his own advantage-used).

Rothschild ruthlessly exploited the turmoil of Europe at the time of Napoleon. After the death of the Goldsmid brothers, over-
He assumed the role of the all-powerful banker at the London Stock exchange. Only with its help was England able to emerge from the war of liberation.
Russia, Prussia, Austria and other states will receive the to pay subsidies. His ingenious system enabled the Duke of Wellington, to continue the campaign in Spain.
Previously, the entire company was often plagued by a lack of money.
The question has been asked®). No further discussion is needed.
that Rothschild thereby gained an unforeseen influence on the had secured the English government, which therefore did not hesitate to to advocate for its purposes in foreign policy®).

Napoleon knew about this work by Rothschild against him, and Rothschild was one of those who contributed to his downfall.
have contributed. Is it therefore surprising that the Bourbons after the overthrow of Napoleon from London with Rothschild money Paris for their entry?").

What is of most interest here is what other role he plays in the Preparations for the emancipation of the Jews of the world he has played. It must be reserved for a special work, to uncover his activities in this regard. That's all I can say. It should be said that without Rothschild this development would at least not have occurred. It would have been delayed for another century. He woke up about the fact that the privileges already granted to the Jews in all countries remained untouched and, moreover, increased were. The growing dependence of the numerous states from the granting of its bonds, which amount to hundreds of "amounting to millions of marks"), was ruthlessly turned into this by him (Exploited for purposes).

He was also all-powerful in this area in England, and it only brings honor to the English people of that time that they Jewish attacks under such leadership in the Emancipation withstood the conflict for about 28 years.

From the Jewish perspective, Rothschild's intervention in this matter is viewed with suspicion. He did not deny it. He tirelessly approached the leading figures.

64) Scherb p. 27, Wolf p. 262, Corti p. 53 ff., Wilson p. 255, 287/88.

45) Corti p. 128 ff., 139-141, Jewish Encyclopedia Vol.

"Corti p. 169 ff.

7) Wilson p. 353,

Jewish ne Ba. X p.495, Wolf p. 276.

e Corti p. 138.

288

Politicians of both sides turned to him and tried to captivate them under his spell. We can already see such instances around the year 1820. Efforts are being observed. In the diary of another known-ten Jews, Sir Moses Montefiore, can be found under the 22nd of February. In February 1829, the entry was made that Rothschild, regarding the Emancipation "will go to the Lord Chancellor shortly and inform him about the "Would question the matter." The Duke of Wellington was very friendly with him and his son. When he once-prayers were offered to secure Rothschild's support for the upcoming upcoming elections in favor of the City Conservatives He regretted the effort involved, but had to do so out of consideration for the anti-Semitic. Reject this party's position as hopeless from the outset. to have to.").

Rothschild's methods are probably best described in the book by a very pro-Jewish writer, if he explains that "Rothschild did more for the emancipation of the Jews" as Mr. O'Connell for the Catholics. Through the magical By virtue of his wealth, he has brought his most persistent enemies to made his followers, while he cultivated the aversion of the aristocracy to swindle, in the company of merchants and Jews return, through the alluring temptation of gastronomic and completely defeated musical entertainment. And if the whole Church of England to the visitors of the manor excommunicating this wealthy financier threatened that they would – regardless – the carnal Certainly prefer physical pleasures to intellectual ones. Those who know, an irresistible attraction, a splendid meal Those who possess the nobility will agree with me . . 71).

Nathan Mayer Rothschild was not destined to live to see the to witness the emancipation of the Jews. He died in 1836 in Frankfurt am Main. His body was transferred to London. Almost the entire diplomatic corps attended his funeral. present in London®). His estate could not be determined with certainty be estimated. The tax authorities set the amount at £100 million." He is certainly the wealthiest.

He was a man of the world, about whom people in London talked, that he paid his employees the highest starvation wages." Among the wealthy Jews, whose main goal was emancipation His brother-in-law Moses Montefiore was also among those seen. Born in 1784, he reached the rare age of 101 years. He owed his wealth more or less to the collaboration- He worked with Rothschild. He managed to gain his special favor. to place the mother of the future Queen Victoria. Also with the

7) Wolf p. 275/76, Anichini p. 9/10.

™) Anichini pp. 9–10 footnote.

2) Francis S. 307.

™) Scherb p. 63.

™, Francis S. 297.

19 Jews conquer England 28 9

He was on good terms with the latter. At her accession to the throne in 1837 She elevated him to the rank of knight and in 1846 even to the Baronial rank. He held high offices in the English administration. He was active and championed the cause of Jews throughout the world. That he His connections with the court and government served him well in this regard. That should be obvious.

In our list, we cannot include Abraham Israel Ricardo to pass over the appointed real estate agent for the Bevis Marks Synagogue.

That he too possessed a large fortune was probably It's almost superfluous to mention. One of his sons has perhaps acquired an even greater reputation than he did. It han-
It revolves around David, who after his conversion to Christianity gained a reputation as a scientist. Upon his death in the year In 1823 he was a member of the Electoral Council for the Portarlington constituency.
Parliament").

Finally, we want another convert to Christianity Jews named Menasseh Lopez. As early as 1805
He was awarded the title of Baron and subsequently appointed to elected to parliament, of which he was a member continuously until the
The year 1818 remained unchanged. At the elections held the following year...
He ran for office again. A court case was opened against him.
The investigation revealed that he had significantly bribed the voters.
He was sentenced to 21 months in prison and a £10,000 fine.
He was strongly condemned in a second electoral district.
same crimes committed, which were the subject of another trial with a further three months in prison and a £2,000 fine-was punished. Nevertheless, he later had himself registered again as He nominated a candidate and was elected to parliament again.
His punishments did not prevent him from being at the time of his Death held a high administrative position. He has no left descendants, so that he is related to his nephew with regard to-
He inherited the title and fortune. His descendants
They held high positions; one was in the administrative headquarters.
the Conservative Party, while another, Sir Massey Lopez, it even led to the rank of Lord of the Admiralty."

This description may suffice for now, because it is impossible-
It is good to mention all the hundreds, perhaps thousands, who were rich and influential. We deliberately do not Difference between baptized and unbaptized Jews, since according to
In our view, no such thing exists. On the contrary,
The former are certainly likely to be even more dangerous at that time.
have been different from the latter, since they were already there before the general emancipation slipped into all sorts of offices and so serving the Jewish cause. It is always the case, however, that...
(also Piciotto) admits that there were individual Hebrews who in the end-
The result is thanks to emancipation.

75) Piciotto p. 220/21.

10) Piciotto pp. 304-306.

77) Piciotto p. 126.

As early as the end of the 18th century, it was noticed that Forces aroused the desire to reshape the views of the masses, which manifested itself in the best from the numerous books in favor of the Jews which were published around this time. It is striking that no finds an important book with the opposite tendency.

Of the various authors, we will only mention a few. imagine. Among the earliest of this kind seems to be a writer to belong to the pseudonym JDI, which was founded around the year He significantly advocated for the Jews in 1795. Other people followed. with open letters, etc. Everyone agrees that the Jews have suffered bitter injustice so far."

A few years later, a Dra- already known at that time appeared "Mathematician, Richard Cumberland, on their side." He may have contributed most to the fact that the so-called better- the estates dealt with the Jewish problem and because the influence of general propaganda towards a green- rising judgments about this race. His play "The Jew" It achieved great success. It was performed on May 8, 1794, in Drury Lane- Theatrical performances first took place and were soon performed all over England. as a contemporary tells us. It was even played in America, France and Germany, where it was already in use in 1798 in German- (German translation appeared®). The listeners were captivated by the The now incomprehensible sentimentality of the play brings tears to the eyes. "touched." The facts of the case are briefly as follows: A rich, well- A handsome English merchant's son has married a Jewish woman. - much to the displeasure of both families. The resulting - The conflicts are resolved by Sheva, who, in the opinion of Cumberland represents the prototype of the true Jew. Above all His aim was, unlike that of Shakespeare in In "The Merchant of Venice," Shylock portrayed a great Jew. to portray them as having a swift and honorable character. According to the word- ten, one of the main participants in the play, is... Sheva, "the friend of widows, the father of orphans, the Protector of the poor and the universal friend of humanity" 8). Newspapers and magazines were full of praise for this (Not doing enough of the piece). The libretti were always out of print, so that the seventh edition was already published in 1801. appeared. N

Other publications also sought to extract the Hebrews from their to whitewash those with weak character, whereby a certain J. van Oven particularly distinguished himself. He began doing this very early on and

78) Picciotto p. 236/37.

7 Dictionary of National Biography Vol. V p. 290 ff.
%) For more details, see Dengel's translation.

31) Williams p. 234.

®) See Act V, Scene 2.

83) Williams p. 232/33.

19° 291

demanding, in particular on the basis of the official report from Colquhoun, steps to improve their situation. He denied—
Not only the incredible conditions, but he did not lead to them.
not on the depravity of the Jews, but on their unfavorable economic situation economic situation back. One would not only have to honor them.
not only to demand that certain professions be held accountable, but also to provide them
"Make a practical offer."

The suggestions made by van Oven at the end of his book were described in a text by Alexander that appeared shortly afterwards described as unacceptable®). Furthermore, the same Ver-Kasser also strongly opposed the form of the Col-
The facts presented by Quhoun. While the aforementioned-ten facts are true, but there would have been a way to change them.
to publish in a less offensive manner."

Among pro-Jewish writers, one is also not allowed to
Th. Witherby was forgotten, who through various treatises for a shift in public opinion in favor of the Jews entered. In his main work, which comprised about 500 small-
In the printed pages, he argues, among other things, against those in England.
Established saying: "That fellow is a perfect Jew."
This term referred to people who always sought the greatest possible advantage.
sought to gain a tangible benefit for themselves. Such a view
I also represented Shakespeare, and it was really about time... to do away with such outdated terms. All pursuit-including those in England, were unjustly imposed-found." They only committed bad deeds when they Driven by their general distress, the Christians were-the®). Furthermore, they had already separated from each other in Great Britain to favorably influence the character of the English. Us
I would have been interested to know how the author dealt with the almost unbearable,
The criminal activities of the Jews at that time would have explained want.

A certain Hamilton Reid also campaigned in support of the Jews. He also emphasized that the Prejudices against them would have to disappear, especially since they are in England has recently changed considerably from the customs and traditions of have been aligned with the state®).

Immediately before the start of the emancipation struggles, a work was published out, which was addressed to the Duke of Wellington and for a general emancipation took place. The Jews had a right to live peacefully with other people, "especially since they through the favor of heaven with an uninterrupted advance-

34) Van Oven, p. 4 ff., 16.

#5) Alexander: Answer p. 30 ff.

s) Alexander: Answer, especially p. 34 ff.

87) Witherby p. 1 fl.

88) Witherby p. 19.

#) Witherby p. 37 ff.

*) Reid: see introduction and p. 105.

292

rule of wealth and power." According to God's will, they should not merely vegetate, but be- (especially blessed with luck®). Why insult them? Is it always because of her character? One should really look at... First, deal with the customs of one's own people. set. In such a case, one must admit that not only The Jews were not only greedy, but also the English. In English- In this country, money can buy anything. There are also probably... Nothing is more immoral than nobles who do not even fear blood- shame shrank back, something that had not yet been done to the Jews could have accused him®). His heart bled when he thought of all their consequences, especially since this certainly was not their will God's will be able to correspond®).

The author then points out the injustice that one Emancipation was granted to Catholics, but not to Jews. have™), a beginning all the more reprehensible as it already is in "Happened in France and many parts of Germany."

In the same year, a book by Pellat was published, who also strongly advocated for emancipation. Primarily concerned with- He committed himself to granting full citizenship of the city. to the Jews").

The publications about the actual emancipation are It hardly appeared before 1830. Initially, there was only general green-said some things about the Hebrews without the actual purpose of the Propaganda - emancipation - to mention. We give it as a gift. (therefore Picciotto) quite believe that it began in England, largely sympathy for the "race persecuted for so long" feel. Furthermore, it does not surprise us that even princes not to be deprived of attending Jewish religious services⁸⁰). We will soon see that this is not mere curiosity, but There was genuine interest. Finally, the observation seems to have been to be correct, according to a traveler in England around the year 1808, that At that time, public sentiment was no longer as intense as before. in 1753 against a Jewish law, but rather "to an er- would offer little resistance to the ninth attempt" 9). Consequently, we are not surprised that some of the the press has changed considerably. It began in the early 19th century- Hundreds of numerous essays that deal favorably with all issues concerning the Jews). It happened so frequently that even here one can hardly expect a spontaneous occurrence.

5) Anichini p. 5 ff.

82) Anichini p. 24 ff.

53) Anichini p. 44 ff.

*4) Anichini p. 10.

5) Anichini, pp. 18-23.

s) Pellat S. III.

7) Piciotto p. 234.

a Piciotto p. 267.

%) Espriella p. 145/46.

100) Piciotto p. 278.

293

is able to believe in the division of the public and cannot shake the thought that behind this action a well-directed power

The numerous articles from the various [organizations] could not possibly be [presented/di Newspapers are listed, and so the mere announcement may
This fact is sufficient.

Freemasons

We have tried to show the various forces that have consciously or unconsciously worked towards emancipation

In this context, we must also briefly address the question of a

We will briefly touch upon the involvement of Freemasonry. We already mentioned this above expressed that we could only address this point with the greatest reservations- will be addressed in order to refute the accusation of lack of knowledge- to exclude any form of business relationship from the outset.

Although Freemasons have always understood their ma-
To guard the material, it is no longer a secret that they are involved with; the Jews were closely connected, indeed, that the Free-
It was masonry that helped them in their emancipation efforts.
largely paved the way. Nobility and leading classes of the English people, in which the Hebrews through business or private relationships had long since taken firm root, were united in the lodges. What could be more obvious?
was, according to the Freemasonic principles of religious Tolerance to also allow their Jewish brothers: the first A step towards achieving social equality to achieve complete emancipation. We will soon find numerous wealthy Jews in the lodges, among them Mendez and Montefiore and Rothschilds were not missing; thus they could from within They were able to work for the cause of their fellow race members with the help of their Freemasonic brothers in leading English circles and further penetrate into state life, they were able to establish a position conquer tion after tion.

And then one more small note, which also needs to be confirmed.
It seems that the Freemasons, in pursuit of their generally Jewish-
In a friendly manner, he also stood up for the Hebrews here.
have:

The financial situation of the "London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews" (Society for the Promotion of Christianity)
(the stentum among the Jews), which we will discuss in more detail later.
They were going to be completely devastated, and the truth was summoned.
probably the most important meeting for the treatment of er- since its founding required measures on March 29, 1840 in the "Free-Masons' Tavern (Freemasons' Tavern) together. Whether one can
The choice of this location was either 'accidental' or an expression of close ties.

294

The reader may decide how the collaboration with the Freemasons is to be interpreted. It did not remain a Freemasons' Hall, but "the General Committee should continuously include-meeting there once a month" 191),

Napoleon and the Jews

Besides the forces within England, there were also foreign policy factors.
Events that gave a significant boost to the Jewish movement gave: the French Revolution and pro-Jewish measures Napoleon's).

The cry of distress from the rural population in almost all eastern provinces of what was then France was met with the exploitation the Hebrews ever more urgently. Napoleon, who answered this call could not close, intervened?®):

In 1806, he appointed a council consisting mainly of rabbis. Standing assembly – called the Sanhedrin – to Paris, from to whom he gave a clear explanation in response to certain questions presented to her. He demanded, among other things, assurances that their Fellow race members will be loyal to the native population in the future. The population should behave responsibly and refrain from any usury. were'), N

Napoleon's plan was an attempt to reform the entire lives of the Jews who, after his arrival, view of the views and customs of modern Europe to harmonize. The abandonment of their laws and those they He considered the teachings handed down, among other things, through the Talmud to be in Taking into account the fundamental changes that have since occurred– The transformation of all social conditions is indispensable, as he They also consider their reckless accumulation of money to be significantly detrimental. Partially objected. Upon acceptance of his reform proposals, he ensured He, however, grants them complete emancipation.

We cannot discuss this interesting topic in detail here. Napoleon's attempt to dissect it, but it must be understood by experts of It should be clear, given his Jewish character, that his efforts, like those of a Jewish c those of the noble King Edward I of England were free had to. After all, everywhere in the world, his initial reaction was... The ultimate goal – emancipation – was referred to, and the Jews sought– ten in the various countries, referring to this more or less loudly, for the same right. That was also its purpose. Repercussions in England.

101) Norris p. 96 footnote.

18) Picciotto p. 234.

1%) Reid p. 1 ff.

104) Jewish Encyclopedia Vol. XI p. 46 ff.

295

In connection with this, we would like to briefly touch upon the question so often posed t as to why the Jews of England were actually under Führer– Rothschild's rule fought Napoleon with all its might.

Incidentally, this fact is very often cited as proof of– led, how national the English Jews were, in which they Napoleon, despite his pro-Jewish policies, was considered an enemy of England. lands considered.

People who do not believe this are inclined to attribute it to the often claim made by Jewish people that the Jews were They certainly do not share a common opinion. Such disagreement does not exist, since the children of Israel are in matters who were always in agreement on major world politics. But let's leave aside... Leaving that argument aside, there are even better points to consider. for a discussion of this problem. As is well known, Rothschild had largely financed his bank with the The blood money of the infamous Hessian prince founded it. His rise- The backer was the creditor of almost all the princes who opposed Napoleon. Leon fought. Napoleon, who was affected by the Rothschilds' machinations Knowing what was against him was therefore a constant danger to his extensive- rich businesses on the continent. Rothschild, however, was able to in- Consequently, neither for his personal interests nor for the closely related general emancipation plans to endure such a constant threat.

But even if we disregard this reasoning, it seems but the next and last one will be almost impossible to refute.

What did Napoleon demand from the Jews in return for the Emancipation? Nothing more and nothing less than the improvement of their Behavior towards the population of his country under the influence of lifting of their so-called divine and largely completely immoral laws. What did that mean? Above all, the un- Napoleon's dubious decision to exploit the people under no circumstances to allow it and to only allow Jews to enter if they are not present to tolerate a permanent stance in the country. Accordingly, the clear indication- knows that a powerful ruler alone can set the guidelines of to determine the life of his people. This involved the Hebrews have no doubt that Napoleon was in this regard would enforce something that was unacceptable to her.

But Napoleon went even further. He had realized that the principal- The principles of the Jews were incompatible with those of a healthy society. Nation, and therefore a reformation of head and members is necessary. be. But in doing so, he interfered in the Jews' independent lives. May However different their views may be from our point of view- to be perverse, they had been sacred to the Jews for centuries and Above all, it is a means to an end: world domination.

We believe it was the Jewish Orthodox circles, who rejected Napoleon's ambitions and, after their entire in- They also had to decline the position. This can easily be seen from to recognize certain statements.

A very well-known Jew at the beginning of the 19th century named Levy from Florida spoke out against in a public speech the Sanhedrin, which in his opinion met the demands of Napoleon's request was mostly granted. He emphasized that their His attitude was by no means correct and was devoid of the Holy Spirit. Furthermore, he described it as irresponsible to "intellectually to separate opportunities from worldly duties, which are based on ran out of thwarting God's purposes" 105).

We hear this very often these days; when one no longer For it to continue, the Holy Spirit and the opposing will must To serve as God's scapegoat. But that Rothschild was also an Orthodox Jew. That this has happened is not disputed by anyone, and so this too is likely to be the case. This could be another explanation for the question raised above. Furthermore, the Jews did not entirely oppose Napoleon in part because of They didn't trust his efforts. They feared that he would lead them astray. at a later time with all his power into them would be shown the appropriate limits. It may be that

This self-serving purpose arises from a remark Napoleon made at the great support of Polish Jews in the war against Prussia and Russia. When he was told about it, he- He clarified with a laugh: "In the end, the Sanhedrin was not for me after all." still of use." The Jews' distrust proved further from the fact that the well-known Jew David Friedländer and his Friends in Berlin viewed the convocation of the Sanhedrin only as a... described as a spectacle that Napoleon was preparing for his Parisians wanted),

Be that as it may, we are aware that Napoleon's attempts to the power-political considerations of world Jewry under the der- They stood in the way of Rothschild's early leadership. At that time it was Napoleon, today it's Hitler.

London Society for the Promotion of Christianity among the Jews

In 1808, an association was founded under the name "London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews" ins Life (London Society for the Promotion of Christianity) among the Jews) 107). A certain Mr. Frey was the driving force. Kraft. He was Jewish, born in Germany, and some time ago converted to Christianity years ago." The first report showed the society of May 23, 1809 still achieved modest successes 15) Thrush pp. 99–104.

wt) Jewish Encyclopedia Vol. XI p. 46.

7) Halstead p. 18.

18) Norris p. 5, 22, Goakman p. 5.

297

to 0), so according to the second report of December 27, 1809, the picture had already improved considerably. The first thing that caught the eye was that the board consists of members of the highest nobility-composed. We find, among others, the Earl of Crawford and Lindsay, Lord Robert Seymour and Lord Calthorpe, but also The names of baptized Jews are among them. Meanwhile, it had been Sermons are given twice a week by Mr. Frey in a chapel. hold ceremonies and have numerous writings printed.

Furthermore, the intention was to establish a fund very quickly, to support Jews with money, to heat the English women-(guessed!!%). They proudly announced that they had already raised £2,280. had collected. Among the donors was, incidentally, [name omitted]. £20 (the Duke of Gloucester).

It is striking that no president had yet been named, An- It seems they wanted to fill this position with a particularly high-ranking individual. They sought to fill the role. Their efforts were in vain. Archbishop of Canterbury*").

The next report listed further members of the nobility in the The board met and reported on the great successes throughout England. country. Branches were established in larger cities everywhere, and by the beginning of June, around 60 of them would have already been counted! The size of the endowments was also described as pleasing. In one year, approximately £6,000 would have been raised™). The donors consisted predominantly of aristocratic circles and apparently ge-baptized Jews together who were the most typical English Jewish had names?)).

One could observe the activities of this company not only in the with Branches not only in well-considered locations, but in every remote corner. England's feelings. The country was practically flooded with... Writings on the customs and traditions of the Jews and the need-agility of better understanding for them floods#®). The fourth report appeared on May 21, 1812. With satisfaction, it was- One could see in it the growth of the movement, which was already evident in the establishment of a total of one hundred branches in England expressed?!"). The postal administration was thanked that (Leaflets were transported free of charge). The donations had

(which in turn increases). The relevant list shows approximately...
2800 donors, mainly serving the aforementioned circles attended. The number of lectures on topics that

10) 1. Report pp. 10–20.

110) 2. Report p. 12.

111) 2. Report p. 45, 60.

112) Norris p. 36.

113) 3. Report p. 69 ff.

114) 3. Report p. 102.

n 3. Report pp. 125–182.

116) Norris, pp. 44/45.

117) 4, Report p. 25 ff.

AR. 4. Report p. 134.

119) 4, Report pp. 61–132.

298 relating to living together with the Jews , he-höht!?!®).

But one of the society's greatest triumphs was to be celebrated in 1813. The Duke of Kent, who was elected president, was elected president Father of the future Queen Victoria, won." The board
It featured a number of illustrious names from the nobility. Besides the already Among those mentioned, we also see the Duke of Devonshire, who Counts of Stamford and Grosvenor, the Count of Egmont, to to name just a few. Even the highest clergy believed, no longer allowed to stand idly by. That's how we on the board find the Bishop of Cloyne and the Dean of Wells. Even the financial-
The minister did not want to be absent from this illustrious company.
They have now launched a journal: "Jewish Repository", which except for essays on the history of the Jews since the destruction Jerusalem's publications also cover all other issues brought about measures that served to promote understanding. Immediately upon learning-(Apparently, 800 copies were sold monthly) and a "Another large number distributed free of charge." The donor list was even bigger than before. Besides the aforementioned, it contained-The aforementioned persons are high-ranking and highest-ranking members of the spirituallichkeit. For example, the Bishop of Durham alone had given £50.
donates?!®).

At the same time, the foundation stone was laid for a dedicated chapel for the society. Princes and about 1000 relatives Members of the upper echelons were present. The whole thing became an event.

event of the first order').

The year 1813 brought a setback insofar as one of the
The main perpetrator, Mr. Frey, was convicted of highly immoral acts.
was, which made his immediate departure to America necessary made?!®).

Nevertheless, the company overcame this embarrassing event as well. Apart from a temporary financial The difficulty, which was quickly resolved, spread further and more. Particularly good results were achieved in the to record women who founded and ran "penny clubs".
did everything in their power to raise ample funds!?"). In
In 1828, it even appears that there were joint meetings of to have prevented Englishmen and Jews from passing through the two to bring together a discussion of the issues concerning them'*®).
The successes achieved in terms of conversion are not possible to determine with absolute certainty. In the first 16 years (of the 120) Norris p. 48.

121) Halstead p. 21.

122) 5. Report pp. 9–10.

123) 5. Report p. 14.

121) 5. Report pp. 23–75.

125) Norris, pp. 67–76.

126) Norris pp. 63–66, 146 ff., Goakman pp. 58/59.

127) Norris, pp. 77/78, 130 ff.

128) Thrush p. 1.

299

135,000 pounds are said to have been spent during the society's existence but the total number of converts is not mentioned
The result was probably very dismal.
According to Piciotto, in 1828, £14,000 was spent and (could identify approximately 20 conversions to Christianity?). This would amount to approximately £700 for the conversion of a one-correspond to the individual person. In reality, the total-

The average was probably even higher, but even below

Based on the aforementioned amount, it is shameful if One considers how much good could have been done for the English. those who could, whose poor were then in almost greater misery lived then as now. Therefore, there has been no shortage of voices that have recommended such an application of the money."").

This brief summary of events in society That may suffice here. What conclusions can we draw from this? Firstly, it is noticeable that there are branches in at least 100 locations in England. Positions were maintained. Would this association really be solely about... The conversion of the Jews would have only been necessary if it had been done by the to establish such facilities in places populated by Jews need to maintain, of which there were currently about a dozen.

All in all, a large part of the population was brought that the old, outdated prejudice is completely wrong and it It is high time to compensate the poor Jews for all the persecution they have suffered. to at least through leniency and understanding damage.

Furthermore, in the highest circles, insofar as it hadn't already happened, the Jew and his cause were made socially acceptable. The- The same success could also be achieved through donations and participation. to prove, to record with the clergy.

Our view is merely a conclusion drawn from the ge-given facts. We decline to comment on whether these Consequences from the sponsors and board members of the Ge-company intended. The determination of the subjective This page is always quite difficult; but that's what matters here. again, not to, but merely to the realization which The results of this activity, whether intended or unintended, are for the benefit of all. had a common Jewish movement.

Laws of Attrition

The period from 1754 to the outbreak of the actual emancipation movement The patriotic conflicts of 1830 can be considered a preparatory period for... the upcoming major offensive. Through the ge- Given the circumstances mentioned, it was possible to strengthen the defense lines.

129) Piciotto p. 285.

139) Goodman p. 13.

the opponent too weak, which finds the best comparison in the propaganda that the Reds used in the final phase of the war unfolded at the front and at home. Slowly, almost imperceptibly—Visibly, the seed sprouted in the hearts of the people, the Jews. and had sown seeds of sympathy for Jews. Was the term "Jew" still used? In the mid-18th century, it was the epitome of everything bad, so This had become the case in 1830 among a part of the English nation It has already fundamentally changed. However, it was less the people, rather the leading circles, who lost their initial position—The point is often only raised in favor of material advantages. had been given. In addition, liberal ideas about the Alleged equality of all; further progress in the public sphere made.

But how a good general prepares for the final attack favorable starting points through small, successful ventures secures and thereby simultaneously the confidence and courage of Troops raised, so the Jews and their friends created positions for themselves tions that will be of considerable importance in the final settlement had to be worth something.

They consisted of being present in parliament and other important bodies. Corporations passed laws that individually only amounted to small, but together a valuable plus for Judah The laws initially seemed quite harmless and un—often didn't even make any reference to the Jews. We would like to see such laws called "laws of attrition". call it that. They broke off piece after piece from it. Defensive wall, which initially only had small cracks and damage demonstrated, without revealing the systematic nature of the system to the unbiased observ Attacks and the overall danger posed by such breakaways—to detect lungs.

One of the laws, or rather an administrative regulation, brought the admission of Jews to the solicitorship in 1770.

In England, one must distinguish between two types of legal representatives. The solicitors and barristers. The former do not need an academic degree. Mixed studies and not even higher education. Rather A five-year practical training course at a highly regarded company is sufficient. They qualified as solicitors, passing two intermediate and one final exam. However, they can mainly only appear before the lower courts. enter, while for the barristers there is no such thing as a benefit—There are restrictions. The latter have higher levels of schooling and education. Closed higher education; they correspond to the level of our today's legal representative.

Solicitors are by no means the same as our litigation agents—deliver; they play a greater role insofar as they almost negotiate exclusively with the public and in principle

The connection to the barrister is only established through them.
who personally has hardly any contact with the lawentertains seekers.

301

This brief reference may suffice to show that the far-greater influence on the audience through the solicitor-can be practiced. As a result, the Jews were able to use their Success can be quite satisfactory. Here too, we must consider their repeatedly pointing out a tactic, with all decisiveness to strive not only to know the law of a country-to learn, but through admission as lawyers and later as Judges involved in the development of law in the area they oversee
They wished to be significantly involved. The large percentage-
A group of Jewish lawyers in all major cities of the world speaks a eloquent language for that.

The Jew Joseph Abrahams was the first to receive the honor of being-Admission as a solicitor. To him – as well as later to his fellow race members.
– was the aforementioned oath of abjuration, which was taken before entry-
The entry was to be made in the Solcitor register, with the proviso that... assumed that he said the last words “upon the true faith of a (Christian” may be omitted): Only one of the later numerous
There are many exceptions in this regard!

That the Jews succeeded so early in the circles of the solidarity movement
It is not surprising that Citors is gaining a foothold, as already on the occasion of the
The events of 1753 had many followers among them.
They won it over. In any case, this new position gave them a boost.
a wide field for strengthening their power, especially since soon more of their breed were admitted.

They also obtained tax relief.
As already explained, every foreigner was generally required to Pay special taxes to the state, with varying degrees of success.
They had abolished it under the various governments.
to achieve these fees for themselves. It had to be them but it depends not on the favor or disfavor of the one-not to be at the mercy of individual governments, but a general to bring about its repeal. This goal was achieved when the Parliament-ment in 1784 the special surcharges for foreigners lifted?),

We have also seen that the Hebrews had been seeking relief from naturalization for some time, because
Only through this did they legally acquire the same status as a Englishmen.

The requirement, as is well known, was besides taking Holy communion, the taking of oaths that were required of them as Jews (impossible). They had therefore sought a law that enabled them to obtain citizenship. With wel-
The events of 1753 proved its success. But 1825 was supposed to bring about change in this regard. No more roads were built. demonstrations, let alone serious difficulties

131) Henriques: Jews p. 205/06, Records of 2 "Society of Gentlemen Practisers p. 288.
1%) Statutes at Large Vol. XXXIV pp. 460-46;
133) Henriques: Jews p. 238/39

302

in Parliament, and almost nothing about the negotiations is recorded in writing. According to the new law, the natural-sation takes place when the applicant takes the oaths of "of supremacy and Allegiance" had been made, which the Jew had accepted without difficulty-could lay down because they did not hear the fatal closing words of the Abjura-tionsides contained and furthermore the previous requirement of the entry-(the taking of the Lord's Supper had been declared unnecessary™).

What a change compared to the events of 1753!

For the sake of completeness, it should be mentioned that there are further technical Relief measures through corresponding laws from 1844 and were introduced in 1870).

The repeal of the be- caused just as little stir.
the aforementioned Aliens Act of 1793

Protection against excessive immigration of unwanted elements mente. The provisions contained therein, according to which the government-
The ability to allocate specific seats to foreigners likely influenced the Jews were quite inconvenient. In public, they took One hardly noticed the repeal of this law, whose Regulations were introduced that were significantly more favorable to foreigners.
were!").

Undoubtedly, these partial successes filled the Jews and their friends with courage for new deeds. In addition, for years the
The question of the emancipation of Catholics is being discussed by the public.
prevailed. A look at the official collection of debates of the Parliament under the name of Hansard will convince us, how pressing this problem had become in domestic politics.
The Jews have not yet openly presented their own cause.
before, but supported the Catholics, citing the principle-principles of religious freedom. This joint cooperation
This is probably why the first steps were taken in 1828.
to repeal the so-called "Corporation and Test Acts" were led.

According to the Corporation Act of 1661, among other things, no one could hold office in a public-law legal entity, such as a Municipality, to occupy it if he does not within a certain-ten time before his appointment, he had gone to communion. By supplementary law of 1718, the appointment to a such an office is no longer invalid from the outset, but only It can be challenged within a certain time period. The so-called "test" The Act of 1673 also required royal officials to be admitted to the court. taking part in Holy Communion, at the latest three months after their appointment. In both cases, the individuals also had to take the oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy.

These laws made it impossible for Jews and Catholics to- makes it possible to hold state and municipal positions. Both had therefore a crucial interest in their repeal."

4) Statutes of the United Kingdom Vol. 65 p. 316.

135) Henriques: Jews p. 245.

136) Henriques: Jews p. 232.

137) Henriques: Jews pp. 247-249.

393

At the beginning of 1828, the request for abolition was submitted to Parliament

Here we first encounter Lord John Russell, who in the year Born in 1792 as the third son of the Duke of Bedford and hardly had already entered parliament at the age of 21. From now on, he is no longer seen as a champion for all kinds of so-called free-to disregard religious and political norms).

No wonder that he later, together with his son Nathan, Mayer Rothschilds and Disraeli were the driving force behind the Eman-The emanation of the Jews was.

On February 26, 1828, he submitted the application for the repeal of the Corporation and Test Act, which, among other things, through a submission of the City to Parliament advocated!) and by Lord John Russell

This was justified by the fact that the laws were outdated and incompatible with the principles of religious freedom are incompatible with them." The motion was successful

There was ample support, but there was also no shortage of Opposition, which rightly feared that this legislative proposal would only the prelude to other measures to grant further so-the aforementioned freedoms would be." Lord John Russell nevertheless found- which had a majority in parliament. The new law provided for an amendment.

The sentence for the Lord's Supper presents a simple, solemn explanation, which by Catholics and Jews without further ado upon taking office could be submitted).

The law still required the following for it to become fully legally effective:

to find the approval of the House of Lords, which, however, relies on the oath "upon the true faith of a Christian" existed. This had to be for the Friends of the Jews hit like a bombshell. Had anyone done that before? studiously avoided mentioning this breed, so it was believed. One now has to change one's stance. Lord Holland held the addition is completely impossible, since it would disadvantage the Jews—would be shared. However, should the words still be inserted, They would have to be given special permission to leave. Over—He suddenly turned to Jews, something he otherwise generally did not do. The Duke of Wellington opposed Lord Holland. In contrast—In his statement to him, he spoke in favor of the proposal of the House of Lords, since he did not believe "that it was the intention of the law to harm the Jews to admit them as civil servants. It would be a completely new principle. and are rejected by the nation, they are placed in local government. to accommodate volumes and other public positions" *). The victor of many battles for England refused to grant the Jews To grant access to posts that are reserved for Englishmen would have to. Wellington's direction prevailed, and so it became 1388) Dictionary of National Biography Vol. XVII p. 454 ff.

139) Minutes of Proceedings Vol. 1827 pp. 59–62, Vol. 1828 p. 11.

140) Hansard: New Series Vol. XVIII pp. iz 6–69.

141) Hansard: New Series Vol. XVIII p. 7

142) 7 A New Series Vol.

143) Hansard Vol. XIX p. 167/68.

304

the law was adopted only on the condition that the concluding words of the declaration, wh Jews, were to be added
The law had therefore been amended and was subject to renewed approval.
to go to parliament.
There, further extensive debates took place. Almost over—
It goes without saying that several members of parliament are involved with the new
They were not satisfied with the version. It is quite astonishing how The word "Jew" was avoided. It was repeatedly emphasized that... that it's all just a dispute between the Church of England and the
"of other faiths." Lord John Russell also took a stand.
The word once. With regard to his later stance in the
We want to address what we consider to be the important part of the Jewish question.
to reproduce from it:
"Against the words added to the oath by the Lords there could be no objection. The Church of

The country is Christian, and to which denomination does a person belong? Whatever it may be, he could have no objection to it. explain: 'By the faithful faith of a Christian...' He is the The opinion that the words are not necessary at all, because Many who were not Christians would not hesitate to deny them. still available . .)".

In his opinion, this would therefore not benefit, for example, the Jews. to make up against their religious principles, these words to speak out. Lord John must have been wronged by his friends. had been taught, for it was precisely these words that should have been used. Later, decades of fighting would erupt because the Hebrews... rejected. Lord John Russell's stance is therefore surprising. not that Parliament passed the law with the version passed by the Lords- (the amendment was accepted, so that it became legally valid). All the pent-up anger of the Jewish sympathizers came gushing out once again. to the breakthrough, when MP Brougham – who later campaigned considerably for the Jews in the House of Commons – un- immediately after the last important vote, the floor er- He grabbed. To avoid a lengthy discussion, he has so far He remained silent, but wanted to point this out publicly. indicate that the amendment just passed is a major injustice towards the Jews means."

All the efforts of Judah and his friends had therefore been in vain proved useless: although the need to have evening- to take a meal, but this had been so fatal. The oath formula has erected a new, insurmountable obstacle. So, out of the frying pan and into the fire. But already in Next year, a victory, albeit an indirect one, beckoned.

14) Hansard Vol. XIX pp. 290–295.

1) Hansard Vol. XIX p. 2%.

14) Statute of the United " e Vol. 68 pp. 22–25.
14% Hansard Vol. XIX p. 29

20 Jews conquer England 305

The City of London,
the bulwark of the anti-Semites falls

The Jews believed that their partial successes had paved the way for the preparations. They had progressed so far that they could soon launch their final assault. The growth of the Jewish Power and the slow shattering of opposing forces recognize. The City of London had been around since Cromwell's time. among the anti-Semites, and it was mainly her fault that— beings who in 1753 rose up the people against the Jewish Law— had called. This bulwark had to fall. She was and is the Heart of the empire with all the world-dominating banks and Trading houses within its walls. Then as now, the The British government is doing little that is not already in place. It was approved for men of the city. So, anyone who wants to achieve something. Judah wanted to, and could not possibly have her against him. to have experienced this too clearly firsthand and accordingly taken precautions concerned. It has already been explained above what role a— Individual Hebrews played a role in the country's financial policy. Hand Wealthy Jewish trading houses worked hand in hand with them. The influence of Jews on the economy therefore had to be considered. necessarily increasing from year to year. Not always. Were the actual Jewish companies the ones in question for this? came, but equally or even more so the immediate or even indirect dependence of English bankers and Merchants from the Hebrews, who thereby had the advantage of being able to sell themselves hardly appearing outwardly. With their emergence Rothschilds in the city made this development significant. Progress and thus gradually reduced the host military resistance against Judah. The weapons and me— The Rothschilds' deaths were too deadly, as we hear of one — pro-Jewish writer, that he is ruthless towards his opponents ruined them or forced them under his yoke when they yielded." What extent must this subservience have existed in the year 1830? have taken, if such a group already existed in 1753 was observed in the city, which — apparently under pressure from Jews — in whose favor, against public opinion, in a petition addressed to parliament. People who are struggling financially They still don't believe the tangible influence today, perhaps only once in England and France are looking around or reflecting on our times to remember before 1933. Especially in our case, the sober statistics speak volumes. stiken based on now published documentary evidence "The language was all too clear." We therefore have no doubt that the Hebrews have now mainly through the English, who were dependent on them, the preponderance in 140 Anichini p. 9.

(us) See the official work: The Jews in Germany.

306

of the City had received. Everywhere in the city offices sat their willing creatures, and so the time had to come to when the old bulwark fell. When this actually happened, will probably never be determined. The first

However, the city's submissions certainly provided evidence of this. representation in favor of the introduction of equality laws for the Catholics, who, in contrast to the City's previous policies stood and obviously blocked the Jews' path to obtaining the They should help prepare for emancipation.

But for all the actual power they wield in the city-Until now, it had been impossible for them to obtain citizenship.
to obtain it there.

To acquire this privilege, one was required to fulfill indispensable prerequisites. suspension of the oath on the New Testament, which the Jews, however, had been rejected. As early as 1739 – in the course of the first wave of emancipation, which was already beginning at that time – She and her friends had tried to swear the oath to the Old Ones. to make a will, which even led to legal proceedings. The relevant authority at the time called on the city fathers to explain what would speak against the otherwise qualified Jew Abraham Rathom did not swear the oath in the form that suited him. could. The city invoked the age-old tradition. Habit and refused to change. After lengthy negotiations- The president of the civil courts then announced the verdict. that the handling of the city complies with the law. Since this For a time, the Jews no longer dared to address this problem. shake.

But the situation was more than unpleasant for her. London was still her actual place of residence, where, despite the influx of newcomers, she had to make her Naturalization in Great Britain does not grant the rights of a citizen- They were able to maintain this. This was already generally uncomfortable for them. However, it also brought some disadvantages. For example, it was allowed to conduct wholesale business within the city without the citizen- to possess the right to do so. The right to possess the rights of the lower classes- However, retail trade was prohibited for non-citizens. After 1820, fundamental differences of opinion became apparent. differences between the two main administrative bodies of the City, the Court of Aldermen and the Common Council. i

The former consisted of 26 councilors, from whose ranks the chief mayor was elected. He also had, among other things, the power of He held certain offices and exercised judicial functions in with regard to concessions. Furthermore, he possessed official authority. Control over the city. The councilors were simultaneously co- members of the Common Council, which consists of 232 members- (composed and legislative body waited). The friends Jews, half-Jews, and baptized Jews were more likely to find

Access to the latter as to the selected body of the Court of Aldermen, which is connected with the assembly or citizenry of a to compare to a city, while the Common Council is roughly the Senate corresponds.

It is to the credit of the Court of Aldermen that it is under Be-Respect for existing laws despite the likely consequences for him pressure was exerted against Jews who were traveling without permission and against legal regulations, retail businesses in the City conversed. This must have been so extensive that Even the Common Council decided on March 5, 1824, to form a committee to order for the investigation of this question. It was explained as illegally, without citizenship rights, to engage in small-scale trade. The goods The property of offending persons shall be confiscated without further ado. took and forfeited to the state. The committee had after very careful investigation in the individual districts of the city er-means that despite this risk, a large number of people in open challenge of the law, small business operated without to be a citizen of the city. It happened under the guise of wholesalers, as the official report indicates. According to that report, "it provides a number of wholesalers permanently offer goods to the public Sale and distributed them in retail to the detriment of those "...who maintain open shops." That's how it became for deemed urgently necessary to take the strictest possible action against this misconduct-to intervene against the perpetrator?!), Apparently, however, no further special measures are necessary of the Common Council, which certainly contributed to the later The attitude of this city goose is fitting. The Court of Aldermen had in-of which apparently (the necessary legal steps have been taken). In 1829, a fellow citizen who was friendly to Jews complained... member of the Common Council that the few Jews who were small-Merchants are, "due to the repeated measures of the The mayor's offices were harassed and ultimately thus... would be forced to close their businesses as a result of the legal costs to close the gap among victims." So, lawbreakers are pitied, when existing laws are applied to them. The author The relevant submission goes so far as to include the potentially relevant ones. Regulations as absurd, narrow-minded bourgeois institutions un-to describe civilized times).

Pellat believes that only a few Jews are affected. were. What information does the official report provide about this? After that, there were only 142 in 1825, 303 in 1826, in In 1827 there were 600, in 1828 there were 1128, and in 1829 there were 1561. sons, so that the total number of offenders was 3289."

These figures are very revealing in several respects. Based on the preceding explanations, it should be self-evident-

161) Minutes of the Common Council Vol. 1827 pp. 138–140.

1) Pellat p. 26/27.

189) Minutes of the Common Council Vol. 1830 pp. 79, 80.

308

It may be that the largest percentage consisted of Jews. Furthermore it emerges that from 1825 to 1829 the number of lawbreakers had increased enormously. It is probably no coincidence that this development is particularly evident after the year 1824, i.e., unindirectly after, despite the advice of the Common Council The appointed committees took no steps whatsoever against this evil. were directed. This provided an incentive for such legislation. Transgressors, more than ever before, defy the law. Whether not has even been encouraged by certain quarters to do so, which can naturally As always on such occasions, it was no longer apparent. – will be.

Finally, these incidents yield further insight into general Jewish tactics

Jews often obtain their freedom through open violation of the law. a position. Initially, for whatever reason, one sees it as over and over. Gradually they build, only for public use. Their position is difficult to discern, both numerically and in terms of power. intertwine as many people as possible with their new authority from fellow races, but especially also from locals. One Then, one day, it comes from the counter– created by the Hebrews. Public pressure for the open establishment of the facts and corresponding measures. Now not only the Jews in their unlawfully obtained position, but also the People who have since become dependent on them are threatened. Together, they raise a huge fuss about the outdated, unhumane laws must be used as a pretext and, of course, abolished. because they endanger the existence of certain circles.

We will see as events unfold. that this method was diligently and deliberately adopted by the Jews– has been turned to and there and in all countries and Times have had the same positive results for the children of Israel. Such efforts were ridiculed for their narrow-mindedness. those who clung to tradition, and pitied them those who have been put in distress by ridiculous laws, whereby one then regularly overlooked the fact that they had created this situation through their own action Debt created, and now the consequences of it must be faced. to bear this burden. This appeal to the compassion of those still above them Even today, the unenlightened masses still cultivate the to achieve the best results.

The Court of Aldermen's aversion to Jews is said to be... as will be clearly demonstrated by another incident.

Never before in the previous history of England has there been to observe such a conscious attitude in racial terms can, as in a decision of this public body. After that It was "neither polite nor advisable to do so in our community" to admit baptized Jews as full citizens." In a legal ruling
The dispute centered on this provision, which was opposed by descendants of baptized Jews.
They tried to fight back, especially if they came from a mixed marriage.

309

But here too the Court of Aldermen prevailed and determined that such descendants were exempt from the privileges of the City should be excluded, since he was free to do so.
To grant or deny civil rights at will. It However, it was the Common Council, which acted as the legislative body, that
The city's power after approximately 13 years of the regulation's existence of the Court of Aldermen intervened and this shortly before the year 1829 repealed*),

Any remaining doubt about the pro-Jewish stance of the Common Council should have disappeared by June 19, 1829. We cannot help but consider this day decisive in the fight to describe emancipation. From now on it was clear, that the city is being gradually disintegrated, primarily-from within, to the enemy, who had opened the gates wide. On this It had been decided days earlier to request a committee to "discuss to report the municipal and legal restrictions that Jews were prevented from opening businesses in the City of London-take as long as they had not become full citizens" 155),

It is surprising that even now the forces that preserved the species resisted foreign infiltration. Only on On April 1, 1830, the various expert opinions were presented in the an-published on occasion. With the exception of the city syndic, he held one can amend the law through a simple administrative act
The city's regulation was deemed possible and sufficient. The former believed However, as a result of centuries of practice, the city is their own right is bound, which can only be enforced through a formal act of the Parliament could be repealed. Furthermore, he maintained that the access-
The expulsion of Jews is not compatible with the Christian religion.
conceivable, since the latter is an indispensable essential has become an integral part of all English law.
Finally, he warned against an over-foreignization that would lead to unpleasant consequences (which would lead to consequences). In contrast, the four continued
The experts consulted had a different opinion and considered the Admission of Jews as citizens is possible, since nothing stands in the way.

distances, the oath required here on the Old Testament-to have it laid down. The previous supreme court decisions issued herein Judgments could no longer be recognized in this day and age.
the?5”), They followed her explanations and decided on the a warning voice. The path to civil rights.
was free for Judah. On September 3, 1830, the content was published in the regulation!) and on December 6th and 10th of the-of the same year discussed and adopted*).

The application of the first Jew for citizenship

154) Pellat p. 1 ff.

155) Minutes of the Common Council of June 19, 1829 p. 68.

166) Minutes of the Common Council Vol. 1830 pp. 40-42.

157) Minutes of the Common Council Vol. 1830 pp. 42-45.

1) Minutes of the Common Council Vol. 1830 p. 108.

139) Minutes of the Common Council Vol. 1830 pp. 164, 170/71.

310 should not be long in coming. As early as February 2 1831, Judah Jacobs was the first to apply for this privilege

A glance at the relevant register of deeds shows the extent of the activity.
The number of Hebrews who used their victory in the following years).
Jews – free citizens of London!

They gradually achieve their goal.

The city, which had defied them for so long, has now opened its gates to them.
opens: Soon it will be the bulwark of the Hebrews, from which they “Attack after attack on their opponents’ last positions-wear. When the Jews finally, after a struggle of 28 years-
If they were victorious, then this alone holds the key to their success.
Success.

Therefore, whoever undertakes to liberate England from Jewish rule must first recapture the City. Whoever...
Conquering England's structure will offer the possibility of...
to finally establish themselves in the country.

see Minutes of the Common Council Vol. 1831 p. 18.

161) Minutes of the Common Council Vol. 1831/32.

SEND U a wh m

—

©

LIST OF PUBLICATIONS

PART I

. Abraham, J.: Joachim Gaunse, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. IV, pp. 88 ff (1899–1901).

Abrahams, BL: The Expulsion of the Jews from England in 1290 (1894).

. Abrahams, BL: A Jew in the Service of the East India Company in 1601, in Jew. Quarterly Rev., Vol. IX (1897).

. Abrahams, BL: The Condition of the Jews in England at the Time of theirs

Expulsion in 1290, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. 1894/95 p. 76 ff.

. Adler, M.: History of the Domus Conversorum, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. IV

p. 16 ff. (1903).

. Ancient Laws and Institutes of England. Monumenta Ecclesiastica Anglicana (1840).

BB: A Historical and Legal Treatise against the Jews and Judaism (1703).

. Brompton, J.: Chronicon, from AD 588 (1652).

Chronicle of William de Rishanger of the Baron Wars. Collected from the Manuscripts of the Cottonian Library by J.O. Halliwell (1840).

. Coke, Sir Edward: The second Part of the Institutes of the Laws of England

11.

. Compotus Rolls of the Obedientiaries of St. Swithun's Priory, in Hampshire 1669).

in The Oxford Historical Society, 4 vols., by C. Fletcher et al.

Record Society, by G. Kitchin (1892).

. Daniel, S.: The Collection of the History of England to the end of the Reign of Edward III (1618).

. Dimock, A.: The Conspiracy of Dr. Lopez, in The English Hist. Rev., Vol. IX (1894).
a Flacius-Illyricus, M.: Centuriae Magdehorgensés; 4 vol. (1757-1765).

. Fox, J.: Acts and Monuments, 3rd vol. (1641).

. Freeholder: A Reply to the famous Jew Question (1753).

. Freeman, E.: The Norman Conquest (1867-1879).

. 1 F.: Grafton's Chronicle or History of England (1809).

. Green, J.: Short History of English People (1875).

. Gross, c: The Gild Merchant, 2 vol. (1890).

. Gross, C.: Gilda Mercatoria (1883).

. Gross, C.: The Exchequer of the Jews in England, 3 vol. (1887).

. H., W.: O Judecus (1656).

. Holinshed, Chronicle, 3 vol. (1577).

Hume, M.: Rie So-called Conspiracy of Dr. R. Lopez, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. VI a 32 ff. (1912).

. Hyamson, AM: A History of the Jews in England (1928).

. Gneist, v., HR: English Constitutional History (1882).

; Jacobs, J.: The Jews of Angevin En and (1887).

: 1 Encyclopedia, The -, 12 vol.

925).

: Jews in England before 1645 in Academy, March 18, 1882 and February 3

. Lee, L.: The House of Converts, in Jewish Chronicle, January 26, February 16,

April 27, June 15 1

. Lee, L.: The Original of 'Shylock, in Gentleman's Magazine, Vol. January-June

. Lee, L.: "Elizabethan England and the Jews, in New Shakespeare Soc. Transactions, Br. 1887-1892.

. Leeming, JR: Stephen Langton, Archbishop of Canterbury, 1915.

. Leonhard, GH: The Expulsion of the Jews by Edward I, in Trans. Roy. Hist.

12 ie oe V (1891).

. Lyte, HC: A History of the University of Oxford (1886).

Madox, Th: The History and Antiquities of the Jews in England, 2 vol. (1769).

j Madox, Th.: Burgi company (1726).

312

. Madox, Th.: Formulare Anglicanum (1702).

. Madox, Th.: The History and Antiquities of the Exchequer of the Kings of England (1711).

. Margoliouth, M.: The History of the Jews in Great Britain, 3 vols. (1851).

. Martin, CT: The Domus Conversorum, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. I p. 15 ff.

(1893/94).

- . Milman, HH: The History of the Jews (1892).
- . Ochenkowski, W.: England's Economic Development at the End of the Middle Ages (1879).

- . Papers of the Anglo-Jewish Historical Exhibition (1888).
- . Pollock, F., & Maitland: History of English Law before the time of Edward I,

2 vols. 1898).

- . Price, JE: A descriptive account of the Guildhall of the City of London (1886).
- . Prynne, W.: Short Demurrer, 2 vols. (1655/56).
- . Rigg, JM: The Jews in England in the 13th Century, in Jew. Quart. Rev.,

Vol. XV (1902)

- . Rigg, JM: Exchequer of the Jews (1902).
- . Rigg, JM: Calendar of the Plea Rolls of the Exchequer of the Jews, 3 vol.

- . Riley, H. Th.: Miscellaneous Official Documents (1861).

- . Riley, H. Th.: Memorials of London (1868).

- . Ruding, R.: Annals of the Coinage of Britain (1817-1819).

Rye, W.: The Persecution of the Jews on the Circumcision of a boy at Norwich in 1230, in Norfolk Antiquarian Miscellany, Vol. I (1887).

Select Civil Pleas, in Selden Soc. (1887).

Skene, WF: The Coronation Stone (1869).

; Speed, J.: The History of Great Britain 1632).

; Stevenson, J.: Chronicle of Melrose (1853).

- . Stokes, HP: Studies in Anglo-Jewish History (1913).
- . Stokes, HP: The Relationship between the Jews and the Royal Family of England in the 13th Century, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. VIII (1918).
- . Stokes, HP: Records of MSS and Documents, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. VIII, pp. 78 ff. (1914).
- . Stow, J.: The Annales or General Chronicle of England (1615).
- . Stubbs, W.: Select Charters (1866).
- . Stubbs, W.: The Constitutional History of England, 3 vol. (1866).
- . Totelli, R.: Magna Carta (1556).
- . Tovey, Blossiers D.: Anglia Judaica (1738).
- . Twysden, Roger: Historiae Anglicae (1652).
- . Webb, PC: The Question, whether a Jew (1753).
- . Wolf, L.: The Middle Age of Anglo-Jewish History, in Anglo-Jew. Hist. Exhibition, Vol. I (1888).

- . Wolf, L.: Jews in Elizabethan England, in Jewish Guardian, November 1926.

Collected and published documents and manuscripts Record Publications:

- . Monumenta Franciscana, 2 vols. Edited by J. Brewer and R. Howlett (1858–1882).
- . Liber de Illustribus Henricis by Johannis Capgrave. ed. from Hingeston FC, 2 vols. (1858)
- . Munimenta Gildhallae Londoniensis, 3 vols. from HT ert! (1859–1862).
- Chronica Johannis de Oxenedes. Edited by Sir Henry Ellis
- . Bartholomaei de Cotton, Monarchi Norwicensis. ed. by H.R Luard (1859).

. Giraldi Cambrensis Opera. Edited by J.F. Dimock, 7 vols. (1861–1877).

. Letters of Robert Grosseteste. Edited by HR Luard (1861).

. Descriptive Catalog of Materials relating to the or of Great Britain and Ireland. Edited by Th. D. Hardy (1862–187)

. Royal and Historical Letters, illustrative of the Reign of Henry III, 2 vols.

Edited by W. Shirley (1862–1866).

. Chronica Monasterii Sancti Albani. ed. by H. T. Riley (1864–1876).

. Historia et Cartularium Monasterii Sancti Petri Gloucestriae, 3 vols.

by W. Hart (1863–1867).

. Annales Monastici, 5 vols. Edited by HR Luard (1865).

. Chronicles and Memorials of the Reign of Richard I, 2 vols. from

W. Stubbs (1864/65).

. Le Livre de Reis de Britanie. ed. by J. Glover (1865).

. Chronica Monasterii De Melsa, 3 vols. ed. by E. A. Bond (1866–1868).

313

. Matthaei Parisiensis Historia Anglorum. flistoria Minor, 3 vols. Edited by Sir F. Madden (1866–1869).

)

. The Chronicle of Pierre de Langtoft, 2 vols. Edited by T. Wright (1866–1868).

. Gesta Regis Henrici Secundi Benedicti Abbatis. Chronicle of the Reigns of Henry II. Edited by W. Stubbs (1867).

. Rogeri de Houedene Chronica, 4 vols. ed. by W. Stubbs (1868–1871).

. Matthaei Parisiensis Monarchi Sancti Albani, Chronica Majora, 7 vols. Ed.

by HR Luard (1872–1880).

. Radulphi de Coggeshall, Chronicon Anglicanum. ed. by J. Stevenson (1875).
Thomas Becket, 4875–13800 of Canterbury, 7 vols. Edited by J. Robertson and...

J. Sheppard (1875–1885)

. Radulphi de Diceto. Decani Lundoniensis, Opera Historica, 2 vols. ed. from

W. Stubbs (1876).

. Henrici de Bracton: De Legibus et Consuetudinibus Angliae. ed. from sir

Travers Twiss (1878).

. Gervase of Canterbury: The Chronicle of the Reigns of Stephen, Henry II and Richard I, 2 vols. Edited by W. Stubbs (1879/80).

Chronicles of Edward I and Edward II, 2 vols. Edited by W. Stubbs (1883).

. Johannis Peckham: Archiepiscopi Cantuariensis, Registrum Epistolarum, 3 vol.

Edited by CT Martin (1882–1886).

. Chronicles of the Reigns of Stephen, Henry II and Richard I, 4 vols.

by R. Howlett (1884).

. Rogeri de Wendover, 3 vols. ed. by HG Hewlett (1886–1889).

. The Metrical Chronicle of Robert of Gloucester, 2 vols. ed. by W. Stubbs 887)

1

. De Gestis Regnum Anglorum (William of Malmesbury), 2 vols. Edited by

W. Stubbs (1887–1889).

. Flores Historiarum, 3 vols. ed. by HR Luard (1890).

. The Red Book of the Exchequer, 3 vols. ed. by H. Hall (1896).

. Calendar of State Papers, Domestic Series, Edward VI, Mary, Elizabeth and James I, 12 vols. Edited by R. Lemon (1856–1872).

. Close Rolls of the Reign of Henry III, 10 vols. by CT Martin et al (1902–1932).

)

. Calendar of the Rolls, Edward I, 5 vols. Edited by H.C. Maxwell Lyte

ua (1900–1

. Calendar of Patent Rolls of the Reign of Henry III, 6 vols. from

J. Black et al. (1901–1913).

Calendar of Patent Rolls Edward I, 4 vols. Edited by J. Black et al. (1901).

. Rymer's Foedera, 3 vols. ed. by Th. D. Hardy .(1869–1885).

Rymer's Foedera, 3 vols., each with 2 parts. Edited by Clarke et al. (1810–1830).

. Calendarium Rotulorum Patentium in Turri Londinensi (Record Com.) (1802).

. Chronica de Mailros in Rerum Anglicarum Scriptorum veterum, Vol. I. Ed.

by W. Fulman (1684).

. Chronicon Domini Walteri de Hemingburgh (1848/49).

. Chronica Jocelini de Brakelonda de Rebus Gestis Samsonis. ed. of the Camden Society (1840).

- . De Antiquis Legibus liber. ed. from the Camden Society (1846).
- . A Description of Patent Rolls in the Tower (Record Com) (1835).
- . Early Chancery Proceedings, 9 vols. (1901–1933).
- . Excerpta e Rotulis Finium in Turri Londinensi, 2 vols. C. Roberts (1835/1836).

- . Fines sive Pedes Finium. Edited by I. Hunter (1835).
- e Florentii Wigorniensis Chronicon ex Chronicis, 2 vols. Edited by the English

Hist. Soc. (1848/49).

Memorials of the Abbey St. Mary of Fountains. ed. by JR Walbran et al (1863–1918).

- . Plea Rolls of various Courts (1910).
- Roll of the Household Expenses of Richard de Swinfield, Bishop of Hereford

Edited by J. Webb (1854/55).

- . Rotuli Chartarum (Record Com.) (1837).
- . Rotuli Curiae Regis, 2 vols. ed. by Sir F. Palgrave (1835).
- . Rotuli de Liberate ac de Misis et Praestitis Regnante Johanne. ed. from

Th. D. Hardy (1844).

- . Rotuli de Oblatis et Finibus. Tempore Regis Johannis. ed. by Th.D.

Hardy (1835).

- . Rotuli Litterarum Clausarum. Edited by Th. D. Hardy (1833).

– Rotuli Litterarum Patentium. Edited by Th. D. Hardy (1835).

- . Rotulorum originalium in Curia Sccacarii Abbreviatio, 2 vols. (Rec. Com.) (1805).
- . Rotuli Parliamentarum. 6 vol. (1767/177).

- . Statutes of the Realm (1810).

PART II

. Adler, EN: A Letter of Menasseh Ben Israel, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc.,

Vol. V, p. 174 ff. (1904).

. Adler, Dr.: A Homage to Menasseh Ben Israel, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc.,

Vol. I, p. 25 ff. (1893).

. Annesley, A.: England's Confusion (1659).

. Awake, o England, in Harleian Miscellany, Vol. I p. 275 ff. (1660).

. Baker, R.: The Marchants Humble Petition and Remonstrance (1659).

. Barlow, Th.: Several Miscellaneous and Weighty Cases of Conscience (1692).

. Belloc, JH: Cromwell (1934).

. Belloc, JH: The Jews (1922).

. Blunt, JE: A History of the Establishment and Residence of the Jews in England (1830).

. Bray, W.: Diary and Correspondence of John Evelyn (1908).

. Brett, S.: A Narrative of the Proceedings of a Great Council of Jews, in Harleian Miscellany. Vol. I p. 379 ff. (1655).

. Burnet, G.: History of his own Time, Vol. I (1724–1734).

. Burton, R.: Judaeorum memorabilia (1796).

. Burton, Th.: Parliamentary Diary, 4 vol. (1828).

. Busher, L.: Religious Peace (1614).

. Calendar of State Papers, Domestic Series of the Reign of Charles I, 23 vol.

Edited by J. Bruce et al. (1858–1897)

- . Calendar of State Papers, Domestic Series during the Commonwealth 1649 up to 1660, 13 vols. Edited by M.A. Green (1875–1886).

- . Carlyle, Th.: Oliver Cromwell's Letters and Speeches, 2 vol. (1845).
- . Carte, Th.: A Collection of Original Letters and Papers, from 1641–1660, 2 vols.

(1739).

- . Clark, GN: The Later Stuarts, 1660–1714 (1934).

- . Clarke Papers, 3 vols. in Camden Society (1841–1899).

- . Collier, Th.: A brief Answer to some of the Objections and Demurs (1656).

z ODE rations on the Bill to permit Persons professing the Jewish Religion

- . Cooper, W.D.: Lists of Foreign Protestants (1862).
- . Cunningham, W.: Alien Immigrants to England (1895).

Cunningham, W.: The Growth of English Industry and Commerce, 3 vol. (1922).

- . Dictionary of National Biography, 22 vols. (1908/09).

Dury, J.: A Case of Conscience, in Harleian Miscellany, Vol. VII p. 251 ff. (1656).

- . Firth, CH: Scotland and the Protectorate, in Scottish Hist. Soc., Vol. 31 (1899).
- . Firth, CH: Some Historical Notes, 1648–1680, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. IV p. 194 ff. (1901–1903).

- . Fletcher, H.: The Perfect Politician (1680).

Fried, F.: The Rise of the Jews (1937).

8 Gardiner, SR: History of the Commonwealth and Protectorate, 3 vol. (1894 until 1903).

. Godwin, W.: History of the Commonwealth of England, Vol. IV (1828).
A Gollancz, H.: A Contribution to the History of the Readmission of the Jews, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. VI p. 187 ff. (1907).

. Graetz, H.: History of the Jews, 11 vols. (1900).

. Graetz, H.: Popular History of the Jews, 6 vol. (1930).

. Green, JR: History of the English People (1879).

. H., W.: Anglo-Judaeus (1656).

. Henriques, H.: The Jews and the English Law (1908).

. Henriques, H.: The Return of the Jews to England (1905).

5. Howell, J.: The wonderful and most deplorable history of the latter times of the Jews (1652).

. Hyamson, AM: British Projects for the Restoration of the Jews (1917).
. Hyamson, AM: The Lost Tribes and the Return of the Jews to England, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. V p. 115 ff. (1903).

. Hyamson, AM: A History of the Jews in England (1928).
. Isaiah, P.: The Messiah of the Christians and the Jewes (1655).
. Israel, Menasseh Ben: The Humble addresses (1655).

Israel, Menasseh Ben: The Hope of Israel (1652).

. Israel, Menasseh Ben: Vindiciae Judaeorum (1656).
. Jesse, JH: Memoirs of the Court of England during the reign of the Stuarts,

2 vols. (1840).

. Jewish Encyclopedia, 12 vols. (1925).

. Levy, S.: Bishop Barlow on the Case of the Jews, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc.,

Vol. III, pp. 151 ff. (1899).

. Levy, S.: John Dury and the English Jewry, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. IV

p. 76 (1899–1901).

2 A 50 Anglo-Jewish Historiography, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. VI p. 1 ff.

. Lingard, J., et al.: The History of England, 11 vols. (1849–1915).

. Ludovici, AM: A Defense of Aristocracy (1933).

. Ludovici, AM: A Defense of Conservatism (1927).

. Macray, WD: Calendar of Clarendon State Papers, 4 vols. (1872–1932).

. Martin, F.: History of Lloyds (1876).

. Mentet, R.: History of Great Britain (1735).

. Mercurius Pragmaticus: A Plea for the King and Kingdom (1648).

. Nicholas, E.: Apology for the Honorable Nation of Jews (1648).

. Nicholas, Sir Edward: The Nicholas Papers, 4 vols. (1886–1920).

. Palgrave, Sir Reginald: Oliver Cromwell the Protector (1890).

. Peters, H.: A Word for the Army, and two Words for the Kingdom (1647).

. Petty, Sir William: Treatise on Taxes (1662).

. Prynne, W.: Short Demurrer 2 vols. (1655/56).

. RR: The Restoration of the Jewes (1665).

. Ranke, L. v.: A History of England (1875). :

. Report, Fifth – of the Deputy Keeper of the Public Records (1844).

. Report, Seventh – of the Royal Commission on Historical Manuscripts (1879).

. Romaine, W.: An Answer to a Pamphlet (1753).

- . Roth, C.: A History of the Morranos (1932).
- . Roth, C.: New Light of the Resettlement, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. XI
- p. 112 ff. (1927).
- . Rymer, Th.: Acta Publica inter Reges Angliae, 20 vols. (1704–1732).
- . Sadler, J.: Rights of the Kingdom (1649).
- . Serearius, P.: An Information concerning the Present State of the Jewish Nation
- (1658).
- . Sombart, W.: The Jews and Modern Capitalism (1913).
- . Spence, J.: Anecdotes, Observations and Characters of Books and Men (1820).
- . Spencer, EK: An Epistle to the learned Menasseh Ben Israel (1650).
- . Thorowgood, Th.: Jewes in America (1650).
- . Thurloe, J.: A Collection of State Papers (1742).
- . Tovey, Blossiers D.: Anglia Judaica (1738).
- . Violet, Th.: Proposals humbly presented (1656).
- . Violet, Th.: The Advancement of Merchandize (1651).
- . Violet, Th.: A true discovery to the Commons (1659).
- . Violet, Th.: Petition against the Jews (1661).
- . Violet, Th.: A humble declaration (1643).
- . W., E.: The Life and Death of Mr. Henry Jessey (1671).
- . Walker, C.: The History of Independence (1660).
- . Weemsen, J.: A Treatise of the Foure Degenerate Sonnes (1636).
- . Whitelocke, B.: Memorials of the English Affairs (1732).
- . Whitfield, H., et al.: A Narrative of the late Proceedings at Whitehall, in
- Harleian Miscellany, Vol. VII p. 617 ff. (1656).

- . William, Rev.: The Conversion and Persecutions of Eve Cohan (1680).
- . Williams, R.: The Bloody Tenent of Persecution, in Hanserd Knollys Soc.,

Vol. IV (1644).

- . Williams, R.: The Fourth Paper, presented by Major Butler (1652).
- . Wolf, L., et al.: The Whitehall Conference, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. V

p. 276 ff. (1905).

- . Wolf, L.: The Re-Settlement of the Jews in England (1887).
- . Wolf, L.: Menasseh Ben Israel's Mission to Oliver Cromwell (1901).
- . Wolf, L.: Cromwell's Jewish Intelligencers (1891).
- . Wolf, L.: The First English Jew, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. II p. 14 ff.

(1894/95).

- . Wolf, L.: Crypto Jews under the Commonwealth, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc.,

Vol. I, pp. 55 ff. (1893).

- . Wolf, L.: The Jewry of the Restoration 1660–1664, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc.,

Vol. V, p. 5 ff. (1908).

- . Wolf, L.: Jews in Tudor England, in Essays in Jew. Hist. P. 73 ff. (1929).
- . Wolf, L.: Menasseh Ben Israel's Study in London, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc.,

Vol. III, pp. 144 ff. (1896).

PART III

- . Acres, WM: The Bank of England from Within, 2 vols. (1931).

BB: A Historical and Legal Treatise against the Jews and Judaism (1703).

. Baker, R.: The Marchants Humble Petition and Remonstrance (1659).
Calendar of State Papers, Domestic Series: The Commonwealth, 13 vols., ed.

by MA Green (1875–1886).

Calendar of State Papers. Domestic Series: Charles II, 24 vols. from MA Green et al. (1860–1933).

Calendar of State Papers, Domestic Series. William III, 10 vols. ed. from WJ Hardy (1895–1937).

. Chamberlayne, E.: Angliae Notitia (1673).

. Clark, GM: The Later Stuarts 1660–1714 (1934).

. Cobbett, W.: Parliamentary History, Vol. V.

. Coxe, W.: Memoirs of John, Duke of Marlborough, 3 vols. (1818/19).

. Evelyn, J.: Memoirs, illustrated of the Life and Writings of John Evelyn (1818).

. Francis, J.: Chronicles and Charters of the Stock Exchange (1855). e

. Gaster, M.: History of the Ancient Synagogue (1901).

Haggard, J.: Reports of Cases, in The Consistory Court of London, Vol. I (1822).

. Henriques, H.: The Law of Aliens and Naturalization (1905).

. Henriques, H.: Proposals for Special Taxation of the Jews, in Trans. Jew.

Hist. Soc., Vol. X p. 39 ff. (1918).

. Henriques, H.: The Return of the Jews to England (1905).

. Historical Manuscripts Commission, Vol. 22 (1887).

. Jesse, JH: Memoirs of the Court of England, 3 vol. (1843).

. Journal of the House of Commons, beginning 1660, Vol. 8 ff.

. Landa, MJ: Kitty Villareal, The Da Costas and Samson Gideon, in Trans.

Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. XIII p. 271 ff. (1934).

. Lecky, WE: History of England in the 18th Century, 7 vols. (1892).

Lindo, EH: The History of the Jews of Spain and Portugal (1848).

. Lingard, J.: The History of England, Vol. IX (1849).

. Luttrell, N.: A brief Historical Relation (1857).

. Macaulay, Th. B.: The History of England, Vol. III (1849).

. Margoliouth, M.: The Anglo Hebrew (1856).

. Margoliouth, M.: A Pilgrimage to the Land of my Fathers, 2 vol. (1850).

. Margoliouth, M.:

The History of the Jews in Great Britain, 3 vol. (1851).

Books on the case of the Duke of Marlborough

. Duke of Marlborough: The Case of His Grace the D.. of M.. (1712).

M-h, D-e of: The Duke of Marlborough's loss (1712).

. Fable of the Housewife and her Cock (1712).

. The information against the Duke of Marlborough and his answer (1713).

. Q.: A letter, concerning the Duke of Marlborough (1712).

. No Queen; or no General (1712).

. The Report of the Commissioners (1711).

. Mesquita, de, DB: The Historical Associations, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc.,

Vol. X, p. 225 ff. (1924).

. Picciotto, J.: Sketches of Anglo-Jewish History (1875).

. Ranke, v., L.: A History of England (1875).

. Samuel, W.: The First London Synagogue, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol

p. 1 ff. (1924).

- . Seymour, R.: A Survey of the Cities of London and Westminster (1735).
- . The Great Trappane of England (1660).
- . Tovey, Blossiers, D.: Anglia Judaica (1738).
- . Violet, Th.: A Petition against the Jews (1661).
- . William, Rev.: The Conversion and Persecutions of Eve Cohan (1680).
- . Wolf, L.: The First Stage of Anglo-Jewish Emancipation (1903).
- . Wolf, L.: The Jew in Diplomacy (1922).
- . Wolf, L.: Status of the Jews in England, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. IV
p. 175 ff. (1903).
- . Wolf, L.: The Jewry of the Restoration, 1660–1664, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. V, p. 5 ff. (1908).

317

PART IV

- . Abbey, Ch. J.: The English Church and its Bishops, 2 vols. (1887).
- . An Address to the Friends of Great Britain (1753)
- Alger, J.: Napoleon's British Visitors and Captives (1904).
- . An Appeal to the Throne against the Naturalization of the Jewish Nation 17
- An Appeal with Due Submission (1753).
- . Appendix to Review and Letters (1753).
- . Archaicus: Admonitions from Scripture and History (1753).
- . Archaicus: Rejection and Restoration of the Jews (1753).

. Barnard, J.: A Defense of several Proposals (1746).

Bedford, Duke of: Correspondence of John, fourth Duke of Bedford, 3 vol.

(1842–1846).

. Begemann, W.: Prehistory and Beginnings of Freemasonry in England (1909).

Blunt, JE: A History of the Establishment and Residence of the Jews in England (1830).

. Bystander: A True State of the Case (1753).

. Candid and Impartial Examination of the Act (1753).

. Case and Appeal of James Ashley (1753).

. Christian: A full Answer to a Fallacious Apology 5593.

. Collection of the best pieces in prose and verse

. Court and Country Interest united (1753).

. Coxe, W.: Memoirs of the Administration of Henry Pelham, 2 vol. (1829).

– Cunningham, W.: Alien Immigrants to England (1897).

. Earnest Persuasive and Exhortation to the Jews (1753).

. Election Magazine or Oxfordshire Register (1753).

. Faithful Narrative of the sad Effects of Ambition (1753).

. Francis, J.: Chronicles and Charters of the Stock Exchange and

. Freeholder: Earnest and Serious Address to the Freeholders

. Gent, JE: Some Considerations on the Naturalization of the Jews (1753).

1753).

1753).

f Hyamson, A.: Solomon da Costa and the British Museum (1937).

. Impartial Observer: Being a modest reply (1753). :

. Jacobs, J.: Typical Character of Anglo-Jewish History, in Jew. Quarterly

Review, Vol. X (1898).

- . Jews's Advocate (1753).

- . Jews's Triumph, A Ballad (1753).

Jews Naturalized: or The English Alienated (1753).

- . Kingdom of Israel Restored by Christ (1753).

- . Landa, MJ: Kitty Villareal, the Da Costas and Samson Gideon, in Trans.

Hist. Soc., Vol. XIII p. 271 ff. (1934).

- . Lecky, WE: History of England in the 18th Century, Vol. I (1883).

Leslie, Ch.: Case of the Jews stated (1753).

Letter to the Public on the Act for Naturalizing (1753).

Letter to the Worshipful Sir John Barnard (1753)

- . Ludendorff, E.: Destruction of Freemasonry (1927).

Macpherson, D.: Annals of Commerce, Vol. III (1805).

- . Margoliouth, M.: The History of the Jews in Great Britain, 3 vols. (1851).

Mesquita de, DB: The Historical Associations, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. X, p. 225 ff. (1924).

– Modest Apology for the Citizens and Merchants of London (1753).

- . Nichols, John: Literary Anecdotes of the 18th Century, 9 vols. (1812–1815).

Nichols, John: Illustrations of the Literary History of the 18th Century, 8 vols.

(1817–1858)

- . Orridge, B.: Some Account of the Citizens of London (1867).

- . The Parliamentary History of England, Vols. 13–15

- . Peckard, P.: The popular clamor against the Jews (1753).

- . Philo-Patriae: Considerations on the Bill (1753).

- . Phile-Patriae: Further Considerations on the Act (1753).

- . Postlethwayt, M.: Universal Dictionary of Trade and Commerce, 2 vols. (1751).
- . Realey, CB: The Early Opposition to Sir Robert Walpole (1931).

. Reflections on the Past and Present State of the Jews (1753).

. Remarks on a Speech made in Common Council (1753).

. Remarks on the Reverend Mr. Tucker's Letter (1753).

. Reply to the famous Jew Question (1754).

. Romaine, W.: An Answer to a Pamphlet (1753). _ i . Saussure de, MC: A Foreign View of England in the Reigns of George I and George II (1902).

. Seasonable Remarks on the Act (1753). ;

. Solomons, J.: Satirical and Political Prints, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. VI

p. 205 ff. (1910).

. Some Reflections upon the Question (1754).

. Spence, J.: Anecdotes, Observations (1820).

South Sea Company case

. An Account of what was done (1742).

. A critical History of the Administration of Sir RW (1721).

: An Inquiry (1736).

GE: Complete Peerage of England (1895).

. Haydn, J.: The Book of Dignity (1814).

. History of the Rise and Fall of South Sea Stock (1720).

. Oliver, FS: The endless adventure (1930).

. Report of the Trustees for Raising Money (1726).

- . Report from the Committee of Secrecy (1742).
- . Several Reports of the Committee of Secrecy (1721).
- . Supplement to the Reports of the Committee of Secrecy (1721).

Ward, J.: A Detection of the whole Management (1721).

- . To the Honorable the Knights (1721).
- . Stanhope, Ph. D.: Miscellaneous Works, 4 vol. (1779).
- . Stephens, F., et al.: Catalog of Prints and Drawings (1877).
- . Telltruth, Th.: A Proposal humbly offered (1753).
- . The other side of the question (1753).
- . True Believer: Apology for the Naturalization of the Jews (1753).
- . Tucker, J.: Letter to a Friend (1753).
- . Tucker, J.: Second Letter to a Friend (1753).
- . Walpole, H.: Memoirs of the Reign of George II, 3 vol. (1847).
- . Webb, PC: The Bill permitting the Jews (1754).
- . Webb, PC: The Question whether a Jew (1753).

Weber, M.: The Protestant Ethic and the "Spirit" of Capitalism (1888).

- . Wichtl, F.: World Freemasonry, World Revolution (1920).
- . Winstanley, Rev.: A Sermon, preached (1753).
- . Wolf, L.: Bibliotheca Anglo-Judaica, Vol. III (1888).

Wolfstieg, A.: Origin and Development of Freemasonry, 3 vols. (1920).

Newspapers

- . London Evening Post.
- . Daily Advertiser.

. Westminster Journal
Public Advertiser.

PART V

. Alexander, L.: Memoirs of the Life of the late B. Goldsmid (1808).
Alexander, L.: Answer to Mr. Josuah van Oven's Letters (1802).

. Alger, J.: Napoleon's British Visitors and Captives (1904).

. Anichini, P.: A few Remarks on the Expedience and Justice of Emancipating
the Jews (1829).

. Archenholtz, JW: A Picture of England (1797).
Ballard, J.: England in 1815 (1913).
. Colquhoun, P.: A Treatise on the Police of the Metropolis (1796).

Corti, E., The Rise of the House of Rothschild (1927)

– Cumberland, R.: The Jew, a comedy (1801).

. Espriella, MA: Letters from England, 3 vol. (1808).

. Francis, J.: Chronicles and Charters of the Stock Exchange (1855).
. Goakman, BR: The London Society examined (1816).

319

. Goede, CA: A Foreigners' Opinion of England, 3 vols. (1821).
. Goodman, RT: An Address to the Committee of the London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews (1809).

. Grosely, P.: A Tour to London, Vol. I (1772).

. Halsted, Th. D.: Our Missions (1866).

. Henriques, H.: Jews and the English Law (1928).

. Hertz, GB: British Imperialism in the 18th Century (1908).

- . Home Office Papers, George III, 4 vols. ed. by J. Redington (1878–1899).
- . Hyamson, A.: History of the Jews in England (1928).
- . Kielmannsegge, F.: Diary of a Journey to England (1904).
- . Landa, MJ: Kitty Villareal, the Da Costas and Samson Gideon, in Trans.

Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. XIII p. 271 ff. (1934).

- . Las Cases, M.: Memorial de Sainte Helene, 4 vol. (1823).
- . Levy, ME: Letters, concerning the Present condition of the Jews (1829).
- . Levy, ME: Speech delivered at a Meeting (1829).
- . Meister, JH: Letters written during a Residence in England (1799).
- . Mesquita, de, DB: The Historical Associations, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc.,

Vol. X, p. 225 ff. (1924).

- . Minutes of the Proceedings of the Court of Common Council from 1823--1830, 3

Vol.

- . Moritz, CP: Travels chiefly on Foot through England (1798).
- g 110 J.: Illustrations of the Literary History of the 18th Century, 8 vol.
1

- . Norris, H.H.: The Origin, Progress (1825).
- . Oven, van, J.: Letters on the Present State (1802).
- . Pellatt, A.: Brief Memoir of the Jews (1826).
- . Piciotto, J.: Sketches of Anglo-Jewish History (1875).

Pückler-Muskau, Prince of: Tour of a German Prince (1832).

- . Records of the Society of Gentlemen Practitioners (1897).
- . Reid, WH: Causes and Consequences (1807).
- . Report of the Society for Promoting Christianity (1810 i
- . Rumney, J.: Anglo Jewry as seen through Foreign Eyes (1730–1830), in Trans.

Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. XIII p. 323 (1930).

. Saussure, de, MC: A Foreign View of England in the Reigns of George I and George II (1902).

Scherb, von, F.: History of the House of Rothschild (1893).

. Silliman, B.: A Journal of Travels (1812).

. Solomons, J.: Satirical and Political Prints, in Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. VI (1910).

. Solomons, J.: Lord George Gordon's Conversion to Judaism, in Trans. Jew Hist. Soc, Vol. VII p. 222 ff. (1913).

Thrush, Th.: Letters to the Jews (1829).

“Welch, Ch.: Modern History of the City of London (1896).

. Wendeborn, GF: View of England (1791).

. Williams, St.: Richard Cumberland (1917).

. Wilson, RM: Napoleon, the Portrait of a King (1937).

. Witherby, T.: An Attempt to remove Prejudices (1804).

Wolf, L.: Essays in Jewish History (1934).

320

The Jews in the World War

The World War interrupted development. It is not un=
It's interesting what role the Jews played as soldiers during this period.
played in Great Britain. Here we want to start with just that.
to reproduce the official statements of the Jews in this regard and only then see if they might have forgotten or overlooked something.
have to provide further facts.

The Jewish War Service Committee had the rabbi M. Adler provides a brief overview of Jewish participation in publish military service figures. This will include the total number of... The number of Jews in the empire was estimated at 420,000. From their At the outbreak of the war, there were 600 troops in reserve. 100 in the militia, 400 in the regular army and 50 in the Navy.

These figures, however, changed immediately after the war explanation increased, so that until the introduction of the general Conscription already applied to 10,000 Jews, including 1,140 officers. Armed forces. By the end of the war, approximately 50,000 Jews called up to the flags (fine). Even a Jewish The regiment was formed in England in 1917 and was commanded by commanded by a non-Jew, Colonel Patterson. They did not follow him there. It is rare that commands were given in Yiddish. Two Further battalions of Jews were later formed, whose The team, however, came from America and Canada. Troops were sent to Palestine in 1918, where they were in September participated in the last British offensive would have). In Egypt, the so-called Zionist Maulefel Corps established, which served as a munitions supply depot. transport was intended for the Gallipoli front. In January 1916 It had been dissolved. Tommy, as we learned from English sources, had It was reported by war participants that a campaign slogan for These troop units were found: "No advance without security". The wordplay contained herein is translated into German. Unfortunately, it was lost. It can be translated as "No advance without..." "Security" or "No advance without security".

No fewer than approximately 20 lieutenant colonels and numerous majors belonged to the officer corps. Even a brigadier general with The name H. Seligman can be established. The Jew Sir John Monash was appointed commander-in-chief of the Australian forces in 1918. Troops in France with the rank of lieutenant general promoted. Sir Philip Sassoon was a military private secretary. by Lord French. Later he held the same post under Field Command. Marshal Lord Haig (inne'). The current Jewish War Minister

- 1) Adler: pp. 1-4. emus Chronicle of January 24, 1936, and April 23, 1937.
- * An peor Book (1937): p. 864.
- 2) Adler: pp. 6-12.

Hore=Belifha was an officer in the train. In the "Who's Who" his wartime service is listed as follows: "served in the army during of the World War." This stands in complete contrast to other similar findings, wherever it is stated in which The unit the person in question served in. One wonders why. Hore=Belifha refrained from making such a statement.

Some Jews also served in the air force. In the According to the official Jewish report, the team has above all a large number of tailors and other craftsmen= workers were found. The latter were responsible for the maintenance of the machines. and were active in the photographic studios').

After the setup of Adler find 28247), after a co-division in the Yewish Year Book 2420 Jews killed in the war). This refers to the Jews of the entire empire. and not only the motherland. Accordingly, the Jews, if one considers the figure of 420,000 mentioned above by Adler for If you hold correctly, you've lost about 57 men per 1000. If, on the other hand, you assume the minimum number, in our view, of 1,200,000 to If 1,500,000 of the total population perishes, then at most one can expect... Two men per thousand. If you imagine that they... The casualty figure of our returned brothers, which happens to be available from the Sudetenland 44 per 1000"), so one cannot from to speak of an excessive sacrifice by the Jews for their host nation. Nevertheless, the Jews in England, especially in recent times, have shown Time with particular diligence points out that the partly ver= broad view that they were "cowards and oppressors from 1914 to 1918" "berger gewesen", a very rough representation of the facts (fei). Apparently, this idea is still widespread. For example, just recently at the Lino showing of a parade of Jewish Among those heard from a participant in the war in the audience was the following remark: "They probably had pressure posts in the stage or did First military service after the introduction of universal conscription. They deserve everything they are now given on the continent= drives u).

The Jews' enthusiasm for war was in reality not all that great. One of them felt during the war prompted him to publish a pamphlet in which he the Attitude of the racial comrades who immigrated from Russia ver= He defended himself. After that, one could not blame these Hebrews, if they don't go to war, because still nothing from the nation of their former host, Russia, the comrade England's, for the freedom and good treatment of their people there

0 Times, Daily Telegraph, Daily Express, May 30, 1938.

5) Who's who (1938): p. 1640.

*) Adler: pp. 14-15. .

7) Eagle: ©. 5.

2) Jewish Year Book (1987): p. 848.

2) German newspaper for Great Britain, October 29, 1938.

10) Jewish Chronicle, October 14, 1938.

11) Jewi 9 Chronicle of November 18, 1988.

198

left-behind brothers were done). There were, in fact, efforts underway to deport the Jews born in Russia to the to deport those refusing military service from England. In the October 1916 issue of the "Jewish World," such a thing is described in The proposed measure was deemed inappropriate because those concerned had spent their entire lives in England and be complete strangers in Russia. From Leeds, one of the Jewish main settlements, it was reported with displeasure that all= several Russian Jews refused to do so despite being asked to do so. to volunteer for military service. Even Jews with British citizenship. Nationality that changed after the introduction of the general Those who were required to report for military service came to this service to the nation. not according to their host country. For example, 18 Jews alone were deported to... once charged in Belfast for this crime.

Ugly scenes also took place in London. In Stepney, a A district in the east, which was mainly inhabited by Jews. And, a court-martial had been established. Most of the time, Jews were frequently held accountable there for shirking their duties. were the relatives and friends of the accused Jews to= against those who shamelessly and unpatriotically incite riots= preparations were made so that the audience area had to be cleared. The Jews themselves admitted that shameful bribery and Deceptions were used by the Jews to escape the to avoid military service). Even in 1917, Jews and their friends did everything to prevent the conscription of Russian Indians. prevent. A mass gathering was prohibited by the EU-Committee for Foreign Jews Against Deportation and Forced Deportation A muster for the army was held. The chairman was Lord Sheffield, whose daughter the aforementioned Jew ES Montagu had married.

i Wassilevsky: pp. 1-8.

13) Jewish World, April 12, 1916. Jewish Chronicle, April 7, 1916.

The Balfour Declaration

It was hardly likely that the wartime service of the Jews of the Imperial pearls in the trenches had been fine, which led to the well-known Balfour Declaration of 2 November 1917, according to which They were promised Palestine. Before we go into detail, however...
To address this, we must give a brief overview of the public England's opinion over the last two hundred years about the Return of the Jews to Palestine.

It is impossible to provide an exhaustive account of this in to provide a framework for this work. This would, as already mentioned in the second part.
has shown the extensive work of the Zionist leader Sokolov, a claim further multi-year employment. Since the 17th year For a hundred years, London has been the center of world Jewry. The above
The explanations should have made it possible to understand this. There
It has also been shown to what extent the ruling Circles of England for decades, indeed, for centuries of were dominated by Jewish influences. But also the teachings of Puritanism has much in common with the views of the Jews.
Mine. Hand in hand with that goes the takeover of Jewish principles.
Lessons, which are mainly taken from the Old Testament. Sure
This may also have happened to some extent in other nations, but with Respect for the attitude of the clergy and no less Writers will hardly find this in any other country.
will be offered. Sokolov rightly points to the dependency.
Francis Bacon (1561–1626) from biblical language. The
The spirit of the Hebrews also appears to us again and again in the works.
contrary to John Milton (1608–1764), especially in the "Ver Lorene's Paradise". Other great figures of English literature, such as Abraham Cowley (1618–1667), Bishop Jeremy Taylor (1613 to 1667), Archbishop John Tillotson (1680–1694), Dr. Isaiah Burrow (1630–1677) reveal the same attitude. Also, poems.
by Alexander Pope (1688–1744) demonstrate the close connection with the Bible. This can also be seen further into the 18th century, as e.g. VB.
with James Thomson (1700–1748), Edward Young (1683–1765), Dr.
Mark Akenside (1721–1770) seststellen. Yes, even the 19th year
One hundred years are still full of these traces. Just think, for example, of...
Byron (1788–1824) and Thomas Moore (1779–1852). Diefte Auf
The version of the centuries must reflect its impressions in the English have left behind the national soul. Sokolov points out that Therefore, in earlier times England was already compared to Firaël.
have. Therefore, after all this, we have no reservations about the An Sokolov's view is correct, namely that England, in contrast... other peoples have been more influenced by Israel than by Israel Greece and Rome. This can only lead to...
England owes its debt to the Jews as its teacher.
feels and is full of admiration for this breed. Consequently

We find early on the idea that the Jews should be helped to return to Palestine. This viewpoint In addition to the persons of the 18th and already mentioned above, 19th century, among others by Thomas Newton (1704–1782), the later Bishop of Bristol, Samuel Horsley (1783–1806), Bishop of Rochester and later of St. Asaph') represented. Thus We also have no further reason to dispute Hyam's claim that Judaism, in one sense or another, is almost a It is doubtful that this passion has become prevalent in certain circles.

Therefore, it is not surprising that in 1804 Palestine The company was founded with the aim of strengthening the British nation. about the population, geographical location, climate, etc. of Palae To educate ftina. Also the London Society for Promoting Christianity began to associate with Paleftina after 1822 and to address the related question.

Sololow calls the years from 1837 to 1852 "the period of Palmerston, a great time in England for the idea of restoration= "ration of Israel." Even back then, people in Nüdficht were hoping for the conflicts between Sultan Mahmud II and his disobedient governor in Egypt, Mehemet Ali, who supported by England, that in the resulting England is negotiating fine banners in Palestine or Syria would plant. Jews and their friends were at work, to secure Palestine. It was primarily the "Times" that sought to win over public opinion. Thus, on On August 17, 1840, an article entitled "Syria, – Restau= "ration of the Jews." It was pointed out, among other things, that already a Member of the nobility, probably Lord Shaftesbury, considerably involved He was interested in the question. He had already conducted studies on it. hired to determine whether wealthy Jews might go to Palestine and would invest money there, furthermore when they would go there= could settle there and whether they were willing to live under Turkish rule to live with the protection of the major European powers. It appeared even a suggestion from a reader of the newspaper in question, Eng= The country should buy Palestine for the Jews.

It soon became apparent that Lord Shaftesbury had fine all the Ber-used ties for the Jewish cause to advance the project to turn Palestine into reality. As a relative, he had Access to Palmerston at any time and therefore all prospects of Erfolgs. His enthusiasm for the Jews went so far that he learned Hebrew and had much contact with the clergyman Alexander. MacCaul, who had lived for many years among the Jews in Poland, was a frequent visitor. had stopped and later became the first bishop of Jerusalem was. But all efforts to allocate Palestine to The Jews would be unsuccessful this time.

Nevertheless, further preparations were made for this.
met. A clergyman founded a [organization/institution] in London in 1844.

1) Sokolow: Vol. 1, pp. 58, 91-98.

201

Society for the Promotion of the Restoration of the Jews in Palestine. It was declared that England would use all its power to achieve its goal should be committed to bringing the Jews back. This would mean... to do a work of God while simultaneously serving political interests Perceiving England's presence in the Middle East. In this sense, Lectures were held throughout the country to increase interest in to keep the question alive or to awaken it.

Similar examples of thought-provoking ideas were also found in the literary field. passages. The clergyman Samuel Bradshaw, a colonial official E. Mitford, Colonel Georg Gawler, the clergyman A. Hollingsworth They were active in this sense. According to Hamler. Could the Jews save Palestine and the East, – self-defense Naturally under the protection of England, Hollingsworth also made the same proposals, while at the same time pointing to the existing ones Palestine's mineral resources. Gradually, the Jews would gain a form a powerful state and no one would dare to harm the poor. to persecute Jews. In another book, Fild Hollings had worth with the various prophecies regarding the Jewish The rich are busy. Afterwards, the Jews would possess all power. because they had more money than all other nations combined.

In 1865, another society was founded for research. founded in Palestine, which includes detailed investigations of the geology She should establish a social structure in Palestine. She enjoyed every opportunity. Support from the government and influential circles. They were They even included members of the pioneer troops for training exercises and Similar works were provided by the War Ministry. That the Bewaung for the restoration of the Jews also from Disraeli was supported. That should be perfectly fine, of course. Already in In 1833, he had unequivocally referred to Alroy in his novella of the same name. this idea was promoted). Also in other writings, such as He has hopes for the return of "Zancred" and "Coningsby". expressed his race towards Palestine. At the exit of the In the 19th century, it was primarily Colonel Claude Conder who... took a leading role in these endeavors. Also Lord Shaftesbury with his friend Laurence Oliphant was still previously active on behalf of the Jewish cause. The latter suggested that from the Turkish government a concession in the northern fertile to acquire half of Palestine. This would be to the advantage of England and Turkey, since the former has further political [unclear]

Power and the latter would provide money. Oliphant then helped. also in the settlement of Jews, some of whom were helped by Baron Edmund de Rothschild came to Palestine.

But in the opinion of the Jews, George Eliot treated them best. In his work "Daniel Daronda" he addresses the problem. In it he describes he, like the Jews, the rights of freedom to which they were entitled and would demand equality. The work was created by the Jews.

3) oe Aron, B. 1, p. Bff., 147ff., 289ff., Vol. 2, p. 36ff., Vol. 2, p. 36ff.,

202

considered so important that it was translated into Hebrew during the World War together with Disraeli's "Tanecred".

Despite all this support, practical considerations remained on this issue. but no further progress has been made. However, the efforts have been... resumed with renewed vigor when the first Congress held by Jews, whose members considered themselves They had adopted the name "Zionists." Beginning of our century= The then leader of the Zionists, Herzl, had close ties to the Zionists. ties with the colonial minister Joseph Chamberlain, the Foreign Minister Lord Lansdowne, and Deffen Undersecretary of State, Lord Percy, was involved. The British The government offered El Arish to the Zionists as a replacement for Palestine, a part of so-called Egyptian Palestine. A joint commission to assess settlement opportunities check. However, the report she prepared was not even examined. published, and the project was quietly abandoned= left.

This was said to be a great disappointment for Joseph Chamberlain- to have been. On a trip to the African colonies, he believed he found a suitable place in a part of Uganda (Oftafrifa). He had found something for the Jews. He immediately shared his discovery. Lord Lansdowne and Lord Percy, who were also from this They were enthusiastic about the plan. In a letter from the Foreign Office Lord Lansdowne announced to the Zionists that he had "the question would have studied with such interest as the government of His Your Majesty every well-considered plan regarding the improvement of "The situation of the Jewish race must always be addressed." One He then transmitted the government's proposals in detail. Jews had been granted a kind of self-government, which However, general control over this area should still be maintained. exercised by England. The Zionists reserved the right to... Decision on this offer after consultation with their leading colleagues. members in all parts of the world. When after two Years had passed and still no final statement had been issued,

Joseph Chamberlain's successor, Lord Alfred, repeated Lyttelton, the proposal. Due to the resistance of the Indians, Those who wanted either Palestine or nothing, the plan was implemented. later rejected by the British government.

In the years before the war, the Zionists naturally listened not giving up, but striving to implement their program. The World War II was supposed to bring them the fulfillment of their wishes.

They soon realized that with Turkey's entry into the War against England, the possibility existed, in the case of the English The victory of the Jews turned the thousand-year-old dreams of the Jews into reality. to be allowed to happen. Countless gatherings took place all over the world. instead, to discuss the necessary steps. From the outset The Jews were aware that their headquarters should be in England. would have to be relocated. It was primarily Dr. Chaim Weiz who was involved here.

203

man who held a leading position. He had immigrated from Russia and was a scholar in Manchester. He was supported including the Jew Sokolow and the Chief Rabbi Dr. Hertz. It was understood that the public would be informed by the press. The Jews had to be won over to their plans. They were Therefore, contacts were established regarding this matter and were overly willing to coop Help was easily found. Especially by one of the leading figures at the time. Journalists, C. Scott, editor of the "Manchester Guardian", He was particularly active in advocating for the Jews. It was also not too difficult, a benevolent ear in circles of cabinet members= to find them. Some of them, like Lord Crewe, H. Samuel, ES Montagu, Lloyd George, Winston Churchill are already familiar to us. Quite well known. According to Samuel's own words on the Celebration following the Balfour Declaration on December 2, 1917 in London Opera House "he has not only championed Zionism in the not only in the cabinet, but also outside of it." The Rothschild family also helped the Zionists in every way. As you can see, world Jewry could not control its accomplices. complain. yi 3 il Already in the course of 1916, in addition to Jews and friends of Jews in the cabinet, a pious and from Yazidis honored Catholic, Lieutenant Colonel Sir Mark Sykes, for He was enthusiastic about the plans of Zionism. He was a junior minister. Secretary/Expert for Asian Minor Issues in the Directorate= rung. The Englishmen W. Ormsby Gore also provided great help, until recently Colonial Minister, Sir Ronald Graham, General Sir George Macdonagh and Mr. GH Fitzmaurice. A ge- Mr. James Malcolm, in particular, had Sir Mark Sykes on pointed out the Zionists' aspirations. He had told him and other members of the English and French governments

They held the view that only the Zionists were able to would be, the United States of America on the side of the to bring the Allies into the war, since all previous attempts in this regard had failed in several attempts. Furthermore, he was unable to to clarify that the Zionists are by no means pro-German, son who would only be anti-Russian. Sir Mark Sykes on the British and G. Picot on the French side were then also informed about= This demonstrates that the path via the Zionists is the only and best way, to President Wilson on the necessity of entering the To investigate the war. This would be all the easier since he almost solely on the advice of the Zionist Brandeis, a judge at the Supreme Court, as one used to hear. But of course, one would have to to promise the Jews a return benefit that would serve their plans= It could only exist in Palestine. After lengthy deliberations. Sir Mark Sykes was then also dismissed by his government. speaking was commissioned, and the agreement with the Zionists came about. The situation was as follows. The agreements reached were with the help of the British Foreign Office, directed to all locations, wherever Zionist movements were to be found. Immediately afterwards, one could see a complete reversal in the American [The press] and the official bodies in favor of a federal government with the Allies. Landman, to whom we owe these above, so far owed to little-known facts, it also dangles with prefont- whose pride pointed to the fact that it was the Zionists who had built America brought to war). l

204

Here we finally have the truth from one of those involved involved Jews. So it wasn't their merits. Dr. Weizmann's involvement in the war economy as a chemist, which the later Balfour Declaration, as it seems to us (to make Bolitho believe it wishes). Likewise, the old-Russian motives of the leading British state ministers, the Jews as an oppressed minority, the right to self-determination to give, was of such subordinate importance that they are not actually to be taken into account.

The publication by Landman was extremely unpopular with the Jews. embarrassing, as an article by A. Hyamson in the Jewish Chronicle dated April 17, 1936. He describes the essay as incorrect. and, from a Jewish point of view, as dangerous. "It is almost as dangerous to claim that the Jews Western Europe's alleged interests as Jews before their Ge= to submit to the state in which they have citizenship have." Furthermore, we find in Steed, the former writer-foreign affairs editor of the "Times", said the same A portrayal similar to Landman's. He maintained the best relationships- His relationship with the government, as his entire book relates to many other cases show. For Steed's independence from Landman

This is also supported by the fact that his statements were published twelve years earlier are and the former probably his information in contrast to Landman from the government, i.e., the other contracting party, (may have received it'). Finally, we find the same tradition.
at Semperley'). . ,

Apparently, after the conclusion of this contract, which was to-allegedly not laid down in writing, in constant contact.
Another meeting took place on February 7, 1917, in which Sir Mark Sykes, Lord Nothschild, Sokolow, Herbert Bentwich, Joseph Cowen, James de Rothschild, Harry Sacher, Herbert Samuel and Chaim Weizmann participated. Rabbi Dr. was also present.
M. Gaster was present, in whose house the consultations took place.
Sokolov was tasked with negotiating with other powers.
to establish a bond. 1 :

In March 1917 he went to Paris, where he received full support.
Support from the French government assured in all matters.
was. This was communicated to the Zionists in America and Russia.

1) Landman: pp. 3-5. Landman in Jewish Chronicle of February 7, 1936.

) Bolitho: Twelve Jews, p. 280

J Steed: Thirty Years, Vol. 2, pp. 801-393.

1) Temperley: Vol. 6, ©.

20⁵ immediately notified by telegraph. Sokolov matured in May nad Rome, where he had the same success. He dealt with the responsible digenous cardinals, especially Gasparri, in contact and was received by the Pope on May 10th. The various Be-Talks with the Vatican revealed, according to Sokolov.

an "extraordinarily satisfactory stance of the Vatican towards-over Zionism").

Meanwhile, Weizmann had completed all the preliminary work in England for Influencing public opinion. Two magazines,
The "Zionist Review" and "Palestine" had been founded.
The Jewish communities in the country were gradually made aware of the-already concluded, but not yet published agreement of the Allies prepared with world Jewry. On a Ber-Weizmann compiled a collection of representatives of the Jews in England.
that Zionism did not arise from oppression, but from the
The will of the Jews to have their own country was born. He was born.
did not hesitate to mention that the highest Catholic circles had their Plans were favorable.

One article after another appeared in the general press. in favor of the Jews, including again in the "Times" first Position. On October 23, 1917, she had published an editorial with the Headline: "Palestine for the Jews; British support" of the proposal." The "Westminster Gazette", "Spectator", "New York Statesman", "The Nation", "Weekly Dispatch", "Sunday Chronicle", "Manchester Guardian", "Liverpool Courier", "Yorkshire The "Post," "Daily News," and whatever else they may be called, conducted a true campaign in favor of the Jews. On October 26, the "Times" an editorial in which they describe the government's plight= necessity of publishing a statement in favor of the urged Zionists to do so.

Exactly the same methods were used in America. The Zionists there stood with their racial comrades in England in constant exchange of ideas. Sokolov refers to the time of August to November 1917 as a strenuous activity that the It required the exertion of all forces. Landman adds that Dr. Weizmann contacted General Macdonogh to request that... himself and other Jews, like Leon Simon, probably the current President of the Postal Savings Bank, Harry Sacher, Simon Marks, Gya= Son, Tolkowski, etc., exemption from duty or release from duty. to effect discharge from the army. Almost needless to say, "that this wish comes from someone sympathetic to the Jews" General approval was granted).

Apparently, the government had hesitated for a long time before implementing the regulatio to publish the agreement with the Jews. This will be done, not least, This can be attributed to the fact that they already in 1915 had the They made the same promise to the fighting Arabs regarding Palestine.

Sokolow: en ne: 62-53ff.
Militant: p.

206

had done. Apparently, though, it was the Jews who did it last forced, and on November 2, 1917, the now-established world-famous Balfour Declaration, the following words according to has: f ;
"Foreign Office, November 2, 1917."
My dear Lord Rothschild!

It gives me great pleasure to speak to you on behalf of the His Majesty's Government's following declaration of sympathy to convey the Zionist aspirations that the Cabinet was communicated and received his approval.

His Majesty's Government views with favor the Establishment of a national home in Palestine for the Jewish people. She will do everything in her power to achieve this. to facilitate this goal. It is agreed that the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish people= communities in Palestine or the rights and political The position of the Jews in any other country is not thereby be affected.

I ask you to read this statement by the Zionist Federation with= allocate. , l

Signature: Arthur James Balfour.

We, and hopefully the reader, are not aware of the Eng alliance. countries surprised by world Jewry. The only new thing about the The explanation is that this is recognized in a solemn form for everyone to see. was published for the first time. The well-known Ge- The social historian H. Temperley comments on this as follows: "It was believed... that such a declaration would give a powerful would have an influence on world Jewry. At the same time, he hoped man, to secure the help of Jewish financiers for the Entente= positions. Furthermore, it was of the opinion that the American May= would significantly influence the outcome in favor of the Allies. This These were the main considerations in recent months. of the year 1916 and the following ten months of the next year, which prompted the British government to establish a to enter into a treaty with world Jewry .. . 10)..“ This Aus= Their views stand in contrast to those of Dr. Weizmann, who can only identify idealistic reasons for the Balfour Declaration. At fine interrogation before the Palestine Conference in 1936 He emphasized that this was not war propaganda. it is not about, but about the heartfelt wish of British people, to solve the Jewish question in the world!).

Once again, the press was able to react after the release of Balfour= The explanation, with very few exceptions, is not enough for the to join Jews. It was an epoch-making event, ver=

a) Temperley: Vol. 6, pp. 170-174.

u) Jewish Chronicle of November 17, 1986.

among other things"). The "Morning Paper" found, however, harsh words against this policy for years afterwards

Government. In an editorial dated October 16, 1922, it laments about the adverse consequences resulting from the "Zionist" evening "Expensive" for England. "We have already frequently," She explains, "about the atmosphere of intrigue and mystery A lawsuit was filed in which work had been carried out. We don't like it. the meeting of the Balfour Declaration with a British Emergency time, so that the former had the strong aftertaste of an er-press carries."

On December 2, 1917, a large demonstration of Jews took place at the London Opera House to protest the British direction to express gratitude. She was appointed by Lord Rothschild. led by Lord Robert Cecil, who is still considered one of the leading figures of the German one of the warmest friends of the Jews is, and Herbert Samuel. The latter stated, among other things, "that perhaps the genius which in turn is reserved for the Jews, to give the world a brilliant and to provide excellent civilization. It is not uninteresting, to determine who from the then leading circles Eng-lands with heartfelt congratulatory emails as a friend of world Jewry. We are among them Viscount Grey, Arthur Henderson MP, Marquess of Cr  ve, Viscount Bryce, Earl of Selborne, Lord Hugh Cecil, Lord Sydenham of Combe, Lord Emmott, Lord Tennyson, James Cooper, a high Clergy of the Scottish Church and others).

u) Sokolow: Vol. 2, pp. 84-99.

18) Sokolow: Vol. 2, pp. 118-116.

208

Jews in Versailles

After the war ended, the Jews now had to leave the
The Balfour Declaration contains promises of peace:
Received at the conference in Versailles. No less than 75,000 Jews in England found a petition to Paris with the Please establish a Jewish state in Paleftina!

The British delegation was, as is well known, led by Lloyd George.
led. We have already discussed his relations with the Jews.
Various things were mentioned. However, we don't want to miss the opportunity to... imagine that he was entirely under her influence at that time.
This was so obvious that it even attracted public attention.
The Jew in question was Sir Philipp Saffoon;
Lord Reading, Louis Namier, Mond and Montagu. The first
He belonged to the Sassoon family, the Rothschilds of the East.
was a member of parliament since 1912, with some subrefractions State Secretary for Aviation' from 1927-1934, now

First Commissioner for Public Works. He was also Lloyd George's secretary for a long time. These Jews had such an influence on Lloyd George that it was said, He was completely under the control of the Jews. Numerous others also... Members of the British delegation were either fully or partially Jewish. The first group included the oft-mentioned Montagu. And rightly so. The "Morning Post" of March 20, 1919, notes that he in this Position of his company, Samuel Montagu & Co., valuable Nat= could give blows. He was escorted by his Jewish secretary, Sir Arthur Samuel, accompanied, who later held further high posts in the English government. He was, among other things, a member of the Executive. Secretary in the Foreign Office, Parliamentary Secretary in the Ministry of Trade, Minister for Overseas Trade from 1924 to 1927 etc. Since 1918 he had been a member of parliament as a conservative MP for Farnham. His publications on Economic issues are numerous and well-known.

Other full Jews were Sir CH Kish and EG Abraham. The first belonged to the military intelligence service, department Russia. As a Jew, he had, as one would expect, was, considerable aversion to Russia and was as a result= whose decisions are not free from prejudice, which explicitly by his employee, who otherwise praises him highly, be= This is confirmed. Today he is Ministerial Director in the Ministry for Indian affairs.

Abraham was British secretary in the Supreme Council of Peace conference and therefore participated in the most secret and important discussions (divorces part?). Wolf's claim), that the Jews would be Beadon: pp. 41–45.

) Morning Post of March 6, 1919.
Wolf: Essays, pp. 407–408.

14 | 209

with the exception of the interpreter Prof. Paul Mantoux, not in The claim that this most holy place has been invaded is therefore false.

Furthermore, we find the part-Jewish Sir Percy Radcliffe, who effectively acted as the head of the military delegation, since his superior, the Chief of the General Staff, was very often in London was employed.

The Jews were also represented by a special delegation which went hand in hand with the British government delegation worked. Among its members were Sir Stuart Samuel, HS Henriques, Claude Montefiore and Lucien Wolf. They formed with Jews from other countries, an exclusively Jewish conference, who jointly discussed the issues that concerned them. Sir Stuart Samuel was later appointed on an official mission by the British government. sent to Poland to investigate alleged pogroms to be employed in Poland. Wolf was the manager of these Jews. conference and is known by his race comrades as the father of the (referred to as minority treaties of the Peace Conference).

But it wasn't just the English who, in numerous instances, escort of Jews who had come to Paris. The Romanians had the Jew Salomon Rosenthal as legal advisor. Even the Poles had brought it as their financial expert. a Hebrew, Stephen Markowski, whose two employees were of the same race. Lithuania had the lawyer Rosenbaum and Ukraine, Margolin and Samuel Zarchi. The Be. The division of the Jews is best explained by the fact that the treaty from Versailles for France by Louis Klotz, for India by E. Montagu and for Italy by the half-Jewish Baron Sonnino. It was signed. Clemenceau's private secretary was the Jew. M. Mandel, who acts as an intermediary between the stock exchange and the exporter. worked at the foreign office.

The Americans are likely to favor the English. The Jews have not given in to anything. The Jews are world-renowned. subservience to Wilson and Colonel House. With the arrival of Baruch in Paris, everything was done according to the points of view of the international finances were organized and established. Besides Warburg, there was... the influence of the Jews Felix Frankfurter, Jacob H. Schiff and other financial figures who completely rejected Wilson and his decisions mastered. In addition, as always in such matters, Freemasonry has played its part.

All in all, Lucien Wolf probably didn't say too much. when, after the dictation of Versailles, he pointed out that "the Peace treaty – insofar as the Jews were involved – this would have given more than they ever imagined at the opening of the conference had dreamed of?)." i

3 Demis Dear Book (1837): pp. 682–633. Lane: p. 124.
Times, December 15, 1919

The post-war history of Palestine and the related issues Unanswered questions could fill another volume. Here Only those events, some of which have been forgotten, will be touched upon.
or have not become so widely known.

The British Foreign Office had recognized the value of the aid from World Jewry experienced and therefore considered its assistance in order to
To use Landman's words, as "a future
"An instrument of British foreign policy." That this also which is still the case today, the last international events—only the last few years until England's declaration of war have taught all too clearly. Even if the special aid—aid for Palestine from the Foreign Office after the conference in Cairo under the chairmanship of Winston Churchill in 1921 the colonial office transferred it'), so if this is only a sub-area and
It is solely related to the administration of Palestine. In This year Churchill explicitly believed in subtle subservience towards—to have to demonstrate about the Jew. Upon receiving a Jewish He expressed his conviction to the delegation that "the Er= direction of a Jewish national state in Palestine
A blessing for the whole world, for the Jews and for Great Britain would represent').

But it was and is not only British foreign policy, in which exerts a decisive influence on world Jewry. Much=

This can also be seen in the internal political situation.
We will determine this clearly. We will prove it at the end.
This chapter will be addressed here. Only one aspect of the public discussion may be mentioned.
The revealed writings of the Jews will be pointed out.
At the end of 1922, the upcoming elections observed that the Jews were very active. They They sent circulars to their friends and fellow race members with the Request to form a group that will "seek help from as many people as possible".
many candidates for parliament in favor of the Zionist
The program should be secured. Specifically, it is first necessary... agile, informal, to find out how far this is in the respective Electoral district either for or against their cause or
"Be neutral." If at all possible, they should avoid formal ceremonies.
To have statements made in support of this. Regarding this
In response to the question, the Jews issued the following instructions:

"Particular care would have to be taken when questioning the Ran—Data about this point should be observed before one decides on a had a written promise of this kind made. In certain
In some cases, it is preferable to accept the candidate's silence.
It is better to be compensated than to experience an outright rejection.

With others, it would probably be possible without particular difficulty. one would receive a written assurance. moreover, aware from the outset that the local Confidential friends with the necessary discretion regarding their circumstances. would go."

The "Morning Paper"), to which we owe this tradition, warns the candidates not to delve into it any further

How world Jewry reacted to the execution of the British Treaty of Versailles:
The fact that the administration in Palestine was under surveillance is evident from the t
Many civil servants allegedly dismissed for reasons of austerity.
were. It was immediately noticeable, however, that there were no Jews among them.
or such Englishmen whose sympathies lay with the Jews were clearly established." These measures should not most recently attributed to Samuel, who has been Ober= since 1922 (commissioner in Palestine)).

It goes without saying that the Jews everywhere
The greatest public support for their plans in Palestine experienced.

However, some Jews demanded even more support from England in the Palestine issue. According to Landman's statement=
There are supposedly two factions within the Zionist organization.
predominate. One of them is described by him as right-wing, while the other socialist, i.e. Marxist, views represents. The latter is allegedly in contradiction to those of Theodor Herzl laid down principles that clearly establish a had envisioned an independent state in Palestine. The latter The direction would be led by Dr. Weizmann and would be the strongest. represented in Palestine. The other group is also territorially represented.
not satisfied with the provisions for Palestine.
Definitely demand sparsely populated Transjordan, in order to to accommodate all the Jews eager to immigrate. Even= Understandably, she also rejects any partition of Palestine. Her appeal
The trailers were mainly located in Poland, one of their main The representative is Vladimir Jabotinsky. Apparently, however, the one from The Weizmann-led wing holds the leadership in world Jewry.

The "Jewish Chronicle" of August 13, 1937, publishes a Document stating that the division of Palestine between the then Colonial Minister and great friend of the Jews, Ormsby, Gore, and Weizmann discussed and agreed.

achieved before the English had even considered
The appointed Palestine Commission submitted its proposals in this regard.
had power. So, here again, one can see that.
Card game behind the scenes and the confirmation that Eng=
The country dares to do nothing without and against world Jewry.

– nene

-) Morning Post, November 6, 1922.
-) Morning Post, March 18, 1992
-) Evening Standard, 6 July 1987.

212

During the discussions about the partition plan, the two directions mentioned by Landman became apparent. Ormsby and Gore so that the government would advocate for the division proposed by the extremist Jews and their friends were fought against. This revealed especially the debate about it in the House of Commons on July 21, 1937. It will no longer be discussed in the preceding statements about:
It quickly became apparent that Lloyd George and Winston Churchill were among the latter. belonged"). Lloyd George also published a Article in the "Sunday Express" of July 18, 1937. In it he praised the cultural work carried out by Jews in Palestine, for which Approximately 77 million pounds have already been spent, and found very strong words to support the division plan.
by the government.

The Jews also told us about the Jews on another occasion Subservience to the British government is taught. The "Free Press"
The July 1937 issue contains an excerpt from the Jewish newspaper in America "California Jewish Voice" of May 7, 1937. According to this have the well-known American Jews, Rabbi Stephen
S. Wise and Louis Brandeis, however, protested at Roosevelt, that during the meeting of the Palestine Commission the Jewish entry=
The hike should be stopped. Roosevelt is right about them.
given and accordingly to the then Außen-Minister Eden telegraphed. He naturally granted the request.
granted.

*) Daily Telegraph, July 22, 1987.

218

England's Weakness

Lord Shaftesbury, the great friend of the Jews, had already called in 1848: "Nothing can stop the British Empire from..."
"Save the downfall." Even Disraeli was in the following year the view that "in industry, trade and agriculture"
"There is absolutely no hope for the economy." He, too, certainly gave He could hardly blame his fellow race for this. The dying The Duke of Wellington broke into words in 1852:
"I thank God that I am spared the end of the world around us." to experience giving ruins").

All three men appear, according to the Daily Express, to be...
The pressure of having been wrong brings the feeling of being wrong, because England is at
It hasn't collapsed yet. But that's how it appears from the outside.
The complete disappearance of Britain's position of power is necessary.
about the findings of these three men of the 19th century to confirm?

First of all, we must not overlook the fact that the England of the 19th century was not challenged by any world power was still to be demanded. France was under England's control. was beaten everywhere in the 18th century. The former had He had brilliant plans for North America and India. They failed. They were all involved in ensuring that France was defeated on the battlefields scattered and bled out by Europe and therefore not enough Forces for the defense and expansion of its overseas possessions, primarily to focus solely on that to be able to challenge England for the top spot. As a result, no one else has helped to destroy the Great Britain empire to establish, as Frederick the Great and other German princes. Napoleon's attempts to atone for the sins of his predecessors Attempts to make amends failed, among other reasons, because he suddenly had too many [th made enemies and united Europe against him before he had delivered the final blow to his greatest adversary, England.

Nineteenth-century Germany had, as a result of a lack of Unity lacks both the strength and the need for a separation to seek a settlement with the world empire. Even after the year 1870 He was initially preoccupied with his own domestic affairs. to do.

Russia had been suppressed in the Crimean War and later by the forces of the various allied powers. Japan and America were also eliminated. They too emerged as adversaries at that time.

Hilaire Belloc, a leading historian and writer= Steller, makes the English nation aware of various changes in their national body attentive to the detrimental and on their to be attributed to the mercantile spirit. Wealth and the acquisition of money be=

1) Daily Express of October 29, 1088.

214

This interprets everything in England at the moment. Agriculture is doomed to perish because it is incompatible with these principles Even if Belloc doesn't explicitly mention it, we would like to...
Consideration of fine details in another work-to assume that he is not least responsible for the Jews.
They are addictive. In doing so, Belloc forgets in the book in question, "The Jews" not to point out that he is not fundamentally against
She was hired.

In his view, the Jew in England enjoys a social standing, such as he had not found in any other country in the world could find. All opposition towards him had vanished.
He would be admitted to any state institution. Furthermore, they would have The Jews had surreptitiously gained a far greater influence. End= Marriages of large scale between former relatives would have taken place. belonging to the aristocracy and Jewish commercial assets instead= found.

After two generations, at the beginning of the 20th century, it would have been an exception if such English families No Jewish blood was represented. Almost all of them were free of Jewish influence. Mixtures are recognizable. In some families, they are so pronounced. It has been noted that despite the purely English name, appearance and cha= rakter had become completely Jewish.

Special Jewish institutions, such as Freemasonry, which the Jews used as a kind of bridge to their hosts in founded in the 17th century, are in Great Britain. Remarkably powerful. The British state would be everywhere from there. country governments as official protectors of the Jews in viewed in other countries. England therefore supported Jewish financial energy worldwide and experience it as The benefit of this connection is in return.

Belloc then goes on to point out how gradually in England, throughout Europe, in literature and history A change in the assessment of the Jew would have taken place. The Jew would generally be considered no more than the morally Portrayed as inferior. "The hostile European attitude towards the Jews was a mindless monster, the Jewish

"A sacred sacrifice to the European."

The entire history of Europe and of England, insofar as it be associated with this very important circumstance could have been achieved through cover-ups, false emphasis, and outrageous behavior. Lies distort.

The layman usually has no idea what role the Jewish question played, nor does he know the reasons that led to the extermination of his own race which could be cited in these disputes.

If the Jewish advance into England had ended,
The Jews, in relation to their numbers, represented a power, as yy Belloc: Contemporary England: pp. B9ff.

one has never seen them in any other country in the world.
"Every British government has had and has its share of Jews."
They penetrated the diplomatic service and the House of Lords. They swarmed in Parliament, in the universities. and all departments of the government, with the exception of the Ex= foreign office, and even there members of the Jewish community have The nation recently gained access. They are incredibly influential. in the press and all-powerful in the city").

Lieutenant Colonel A. Lane has written a fine book, "The Alien Menace". no less strongly influenced by the sinister influence of the Jews and The associated disadvantages have been pointed out. We will discuss further. later, during our own investigations in this regard, come back.

The well-known writer of the younger generation, Beverley Nichols, has also referred to this in his latest new publication Decline of British power both internally and externally- "The entire situation has become extremely dangerous."
On the material side, we have an undisciplined nation with a declining population, in possession of a completely un= proportional share of the world's wealth. This Nation ... is led by a committee of dreamers and greats= led by fathers... England no longer seems to worry about To make England... We coldly tolerate poverty= quarters that live in authoritarian states... not for a month would be tolerated."

He then asks how later generations contributed to the decline and to comment on the weakness of the British Empire= They would try to enter what appeared to them as a secret. to let influencings penetrate and ask: "There's a smell there- I know secret things... were fine, which this madness have caused").

However, in two other publications, not only the Facts about the influence of Jews in one or the other senses and the decline of English life established, so the latter has been unequivocally attributed to the Jews.

A book was published a few months ago under the pseudonym Cobbett. about the Jews in England. It is elegant and knowledgeable. Written in a scholarly manner. The author has no doubt about it. that the Jew, and only the Jew, was to blame for the decline of Britain's nation is. The general public still believes that in the to live in "good old England". Indeed, everything has risen up. The situation has changed. The Jews and their friends "should have done more." Profits are made from services. They would have been worth more. The focus was on generating revenue as quickly as possible rather than on production, and "Not only devastated the people and their land, but exhausted them." Traces of decay can be found everywhere. With the pre-

Belloc: qavs, p. 222ff.

9 Nichols: pp. 11-19,

216

the prevailing intellectual climate could not preserve Western civilization against advancing communism).

"Modern English life," writes Cobbett, "is brimming with Proof of the victory of Judaized English and Jewish "Influence." It is difficult to counteract the Jewish over-foreignization in England- to gain control of the country by expelling the Jews from everywhere- conclude, because Jewish views have already had so many It has taken root in the people to such an extent that it is almost more Jewish in its... His entire demeanor should be like his lord and master. A complete Reformation of head and members is necessary. To carry this out... Cobbett considers it impossible to lead, since the British nation already had fallen so far that she no longer had the strength for it would raise.

The well-known Nietzsche translator and writer AM Ludovici, who also undertook a lecture tour through Germany in 1938- The country undertook, above all, not in the line of men. to the ruthless depiction of the decline of the British nation-

corners

He is particularly known through his writings for a rebirth of the English nation through a return to the old virtues in The public has entered into this discussion. But even this subtle demand... is so absurd to a large part of the English people that one does not even deem it necessary to address the question at all.

occupy. Ludovici takes the position that this in Eng-
The country's prevailing system is detrimental to the nation. At least.
"Two-thirds of the population are dissatisfied." There is a deep gap between employers and employees, which leads to all This led to possible unpleasant outcomes. Without regard for The welfare of the people would depend solely on maximizing profits.
They do it. The health of the population is at the expense of those in power.
only of minor importance. Even those relevant to a people.
The most important demand was the purification of the nation from foreign influences.
unwanted elements have long been forgotten has been. In connection with this question, Ludovici then brings up to express that when admitting foreigners, especially Jews should not be presented with the alternative of "kindness or harshness".
Rather, as with all decisions for a nation, the following applies here:
The main commandment is to preserve the people in every respect. The Jew
I contributed to the fact that since 1656 the works of Ludovici A condemned non-English development had taken place. This was to be attributed to a general Jewish aspiration. "Since the
The infiltration of Jews into the community with which he was to=
Although he lives there, he has remained more or less a stranger.
And his friends will of course do everything they can to do so, as far as...
It is possible to break down all barriers in every community, which normally characterize its foreign properties

3 Cobbett: p. 111ff.
Qudovict: Alec S. 8öff.

217

or prevent complete equality. This means that the Jew's power system—wealth—is protected from all others powerful factors are resisted, such as... of the character with aristocratic principles and attitudes see, and above all, national solidarity. Under
The latter I understand to mean the loyalty of the individual classes to each other.
None of these things could be bought and therefore could not be obtained by to be acquired by the Jews. It is irrelevant how rich they are.
He is. Wherever the Jew comes to power, one will find that these things are increasingly going off the rails. The tendency will become increasingly prevalent, national prestige of purchasing power= to make dependent on lichen symbols... The fact that Anarchy always lives side-by-side with liberal plutocracy, makes The Jewish question is far more significant. This is especially important here.
necessary, to recognize them correctly and without anger or bias. . . . all those who have been in the English language for the last eighty years political life, the disintegration of all symbols of honor and have established prestige and now even their own powerful
It may be difficult to find fellow citizens who themselves preach this tendency.

above all the influence of the Jews and the last things they had done to pursue any resulting advantages.

Time and space prevent us from elaborating further on this. to bring British writers.

Finally, let's not forget the two men who, every in his own way, the fight against the Jews and the decline in England= country led by Sir Oswald Mosley and A. Leese. The latter is the leader of the Imperial Fafeišt Laegue, which relates= The Jews pursued the same program as we did and as a result= who sees the greatest danger to England in the Jews. Sir Oswald is the leader of the far more significant fascist and the National Socialist Party of England, which has an impeccable pursues anti-Jewish policies, the justification for which, however, which is different from ours. According to the recently published= The National Socialists attacked Sir Oswald's light program. England did not target the Jews because of their religion, since they were all grant a type of religious freedom. They could also grant the Jews not fight them for racial political reasons, because they do so according to in their view as unacceptable for the Empire, which consisted of numerous races were mixed together. Rather, they persecuted the Jews, "because they have their own state within the state justified and the interests of their racial comrades in England and would have placed themselves above the British state somewhere else abroad."

A particularly characteristic example of this is that they are a World catastrophe through the instigation of a war between Germans= land and England wanted to bring about which this time was not from not but rather from purely Jewish motives ollte").

1) Mosley: pp. 58–59.

218

The enumeration of these men of England who the Jews= To describe rule as a disadvantage for their people may be true for our These purposes suffice. In the following, we will endeavor to further these purposes. To prove claims beyond doubt. In doing so, we have focused on to delve into the individual branches of public life, in which The involvement of the Jews can be established. We are aware aware that we can only scratch the surface here. Because, in our view, it is not within the scope of the Work required, exhaustive explanations e.g. about the to Judaize the press. Because each of the areas would require lengthy research, and even then we are not yet certain that under the current English The system can exhaust the problem because, for example, the economic= companies and other financial connections so in one= others are so tightly packed that even the most initiated need not know them. That is, Jews and their friends, must belong to everything on= to be able to cover the costs. This is how banks, to name just one example, To cite another example, share packages, which are not infrequently the to represent a majority in a company, as a trustee reigns without being recorded in the public registers can, whoever is the actual owner. Furthermore, the indirect influence of the Jews, i.e., those who through any kind of influence- Established dependencies within an economic system such as not at all in England. This should be the case for the un= indirect influence should at least not be inferior if he does not even larger. Nevertheless, we hope that through our Subsequent investigations will convince even the biggest skeptics= testify that there has probably never been a country in history, which is more Jewish than Great Britain.

219

How many Jews live in the Empire?

First, let us revisit the difficult question of Population figure of Jews in the British Empire or England= Treating the country alone. We have already expressed this several times. brought up that in the Jewish question it never comes down to, how large the Jewish population is in a host country, but merely on how powerful their influence on state and host= Company, indeed, it affects the entire life of a nation. Others= Since then, the Jewish population figure has not been entirely without controversy. interpretation. Because it is responsible for the blood-based mixing of a The relationship between the people and the Jews is of importance. The greater the relatio The greater the Jewish population's relationship with their hosts, the greater the the danger of racial decay and foreign infiltration. End= The Jewish population is the reservoir from whose lowest The Jews repeatedly received blood transfusions from the various layers. These are not infrequently the elements that, with their instinctual drive, The quest for money and power pushes forward and ensures that, that the Jewish advance was not due to the exhaustion of the leading Families come to a standstill.

This time it is even more difficult than before to reach a to arrive at an estimate that concludes on January 1, 1939. We will also act here in the interest of preserving science. In any given effort, the minimum standard is to be specified.

The current form of official immigration statistics tft so much so that, unlike before, there are hardly any clues left. can be found therein. Consequently, the relevant contributions- to limit exercises to less comprehensive instructions. This This is even the case with Dominions and overseas possessions.

but that we are relying exclusively on Jewish sources

aben.

After that, the number of Jews in India is given as approximately 25,000, a figure that, given the size of India and the influence of Jews in the major cities was considered too low. It seems. We were told this by English people living in India. shared that the influx of Jews after 1933 was quite significant. Especially recently, one could observe a Recognizing the increasing prevalence of Jews in the medical profession. In leading positions in India could include Sir Saffoon David, Mayor-Master of Bombay, and Sir David Ezra, Mayor of Calcutta, to be determined'). In New Zealand, the Jewish colony consists of 5000 to 6000 souls. Nevertheless, there was already a Jew there, namely... Dear Sir Julius Vogel, to the First Minister, and another, Sir Michael Meyers, brought to Chief Justice').

) gemir Chronicle of 7th Mat 1987. 1

j Jewi Chronicle of 15 Mat 1036. Jewifith Hear Book (1988): p. 848.

220

The proportion of Jews in the population of Australia is also according to their own account, only small. The first settlers They arrived as early as 1821. Today, they are supposed to be there. 22,000-23,000 Jews in a population of approximately 6 million Lions are. As always, you can find them in the big cities. 10,000 are expected to be in Sydney, 9,000 in Melbourne, 500 in Adelaide, 400 are located in Brisbane and 2000 in Perth. They are active Primarily in trade and finance. Their influence is very considerable. Among the leading Jews, Sir Julian stands out in particular. Salomons, Chief Justice HE Cohen, Judge of the Supreme Court in New Wales, Sir Isaac Isaac, and the aforementioned Attorney General and later Governor-General of the Commons wealth, Sir John Monash, who led the Australian Expeditionary Force in France. The number of Jews who were in parliament and have held high positions, is legion. With particular The Jews noted with satisfaction that there was not a trace of anti-Semitism is found in Australia, and there are many mixed marriages. would take place?).

How strong the influence of the Jews in Australia must be, can be seen from the fact that Australia was the first country to be declared the first .. has declared its willingness to accept 15,000 Jews over the next three years= settle. This is explained by the fact that in the days of September...

During the 1938 crisis, rumors circulated that the Japanese have already deployed a large fleet near New Guinea crossed, so that in the event of a declaration of war in Europe they could immediately go to land in Australia. Only through this danger would one have had the thin Settlement of the continent was seen as a serious disadvantage. and consequently, new settlers would be needed for defense. summon the country. We only fear that the Australians in at this point we will experience a severe disappointment, because we We are surprised that at least some effort wasn't made. has, however, the English who are tired of emigrating from Europe to invite").

In Canada, there is a Jewish community of about 200,000, which is large in relation to the of about 13 million to deliver. The Jews themselves do not make any uniform statements about this. Information. They give the Jewish community as 156,176 respectively. 160,000 people, while in one breath they the total= The number is twice as large as that of Australia and South Africa. This would, however, significantly increase the figure to 200,000. exceeding the limit. After London, we also find the following in Canada: second largest Jewish population in the British Empire, namely Montreal with 58,000 Jews. Toronto also has one. to show a strong Jewish percentage among the 45,000 Hebrews. It is therefore not surprising that stronger [actions] are already emerging in Canada.

) Jewish Chronicle of May 7, 1937.
) Jewif Chronicle, December 28, 1988.

221

Forces under the leadership of HH Beamish are stirring, who have declared war on the Jews and their friends).

We already mentioned above in our remarks about the Reasons for the Boer War were given, to what extent at that time South Africa was Jewishized and all life was taken over by the Hebrews= was ruled. That this was not the case under British rule. That it has become smaller hardly needs mentioning. On the contrary, the Boer War was, as is well known, fought for that very reason. was to make the immeasurable wealth of this accessible to Jews and Britons. To secure the country.

It is therefore not surprising to find that even after the Data from the Jewish population in a total white population of approximately two million, no fewer than 95,000 of their racial comrades there have settled there. This number would certainly have been even more significant. if not despite all the external resistance of the local Jews Laws on immigration restrictions would have been passed.

As early as 1930, it was therefore ordered that the annual Immigration from Eastern and Southern Europe is not the figure may exceed 50. According to a new law from the In 1937, Jews were completely forbidden from immigrating.

We cannot completely disregard the law in this legislation—thankfully, the Jews in South Africa are being held behind the scenes. who had agreed to these measures. Because in the They had to face the complete Judaization of the country in another Zusstrom of Jewish elements expect that anti-Semitism would continue to spread. Because even today a such a strong party under the leadership of a former minister, Dr. DJ Malan'). His movement is extraordinarily active. According to her public statement, in the event of a seizing power, do not hesitate to take the same measures against the to seize Jews, as happened here. Dr. Malan said in a meeting lungs claims that despite the ban, Jewish immigration ...which continued in secret. The population is partly... in their unwillingness already went so far as to attempt to under= take the risk of blowing up a synagogue or attacking others Ways to destroy)").

It is impossible to discuss here the influence of Jews in South Africa on= to draw it. This requires special work. We dare to claim that despite the power of the Jews in the United States States will collapse in their pursuit of world domination, if they were to lose against South Africa with England. Because The greatest wealth of the Jews currently comes from the latter. as we will show below, the gold= and diamonds= industry including other economic sectors almost completely=

s) Zeit Chronicle of 7 March and 8 September 1997. Jewish Year Book (1988):

*) Fresh Chronicle, 7th Matt 1997.

1) Jewilh Chrontcle from September 8, 1987, November 18 and December 2, 1088.

222

finally in their hands. This is also expressed in the fact that the Jew Sir David Harris held the head position for many years of the entire diamond industry. His successor Sir Ernest Oppenheimer was the leading man at the time. in the gold and copper industry of Rhodesia, where a ver— It is a relatively large Jewish community. The last census through the Jews there is a total for South Africa and Rhodeşia= number of 102,000'). Accordingly, the Jewish colony numbered 102,000. 7000 souls in Rhodesia. With a total population of approximately For over 60,000 white people, this represents a very high proportion.

The overwhelming influence of Jews in the economy of South Africa results from the fact that the Jews Sir Lionel Phillips, Sir Ernest Oppenheimer, Sir George Albu, Louis Reyersbach and Ernest Friedlander among the former presidents of the mining company= chamber count.

In government, administration, and politics, the Jews have held the highest positions. For example, Sir Richard Solomon Goun-Governor of Transvaal and later High Commissioner in London. His main duties are those of an envoy in the field of transport. between the Imperial government in London and that of its State. Sir Ernest Solomon was a member of the government. of Transvaal, and Sir William Solomon Chief Justice of South Africa. Many Jews were among those already mentioned. Elevated to the rank of knight, e.g., Sir Siegmund Neumann.

G. Hartog holds a leading position in parliament. CP Robinson, Morris Alexander and Sir Ernest Oppenheimer. Every major city in South Africa and Rhodesia already has had their Jewish mayor).

These reports about the main centers of the Jews in the bri-A table empire may suffice. It should only be noted that... that they are generally to be found wherever the Opportunities for good earnings exist. This is how they master them. The sugar industry has existed in the West Indian Islands since ancient times. Just today, at the beginning of 1939, we are hearing again about the the unrest there, which, as we are told by eyewitnesses, caused by conditions that are almost medieval.

The determination of the total Jewish population in the Dominions and the overseas possessions of Great Britain is extremely difficult. The Jews are likely to be affected because of their Estimates range from approximately 330,000 to 350,000 people. We have already expressed our concerns about such statistics above. explained. Apart from that, even the Jews must admit that They only include Jews of the faith. But as you know, we go beyond that. further and include every racial Jew in our estimates. That the percentage of baptized Jews is not small has been shown by the official surveys in Germany after 1988 revealed the following.

– aare

i gemi 6 pear Book (1938): p. 844.
) Jewish Chronicle of May 7, 1937

In addition, the relevant studies in Germany and recently in Italy have shown that earlier statistics, entirely Regardless of the type, they have always been too low. This is because that Jews, or those subservient to Jews at their instigation, published. Both had an interest in the figures. to keep it as low as possible. Finally, there are many Jews, who cannot be listed as such in official surveys, as recently reported in England by the "Jewish Chronicle" from admitted on January 6, 1939.

After all this, we have no reservations about the population of Jews in the British Empire excluding the mother= countries, which we will then discuss, on 500,000 is estimated.

Based on our explanations above, we estimated the number of The number of Jews in England reached 900,000 by 1914. In contrast, they estimated around 250,000. In their statistics for the year 1938 They have given the figure for the present as 333,000, with= According to their view, hin is an increase of almost exactly one A third have arrived. To anticipate the conclusion, we too would like to we agree with this percentage, but not with the number 250,000, but of course 900,000. Consequently We arrive at our own estimate of approximately 1,200,000. concluding on January 1, 1939.

As early as July 6, 1930, one could read in the newspaper "People" to establish that England at this time had 1,500,000 Aus= countries, of which "io from the former Russian Empire originated. We have seen before that the arrivals= The people of Eastern Europe were almost exclusively Jews, so that after This estimate suggests that our figure does not seem exaggerated, especially since... the seizure of power by Adolf Hitler and the return of the East Mark and the Sudetenland, immigration to England, as we will see below, unforeseen dimensions has taken.

A.M. Ludovici already stated the number of Jews in 1926 as one million! He, too, does not hesitate today, as he explained to us personally that he would accept a higher number.

What circumstances now support the idea that the ones we have from the Jews adopted the number of percentage increases also does it roughly correspond to the facts?

To do this, we must first divide the post-war period into two parts. to divide immigration periods, namely into those after war= the end and the one after Adolf Hitler's rise to power.

The Zionist leader Jabotinsky was right to have already stated in In 1916, it was pointed out that after the war, baptisms would be possible.

ae 9 985 without any means come from Russia to England

rden

i Ludovict: Conservatism, pp. 155–156.
Jewish Chronicle, June 80, 1916

224

Immigration then soon after the conclusion of peace reached a considerable scale. Mr. Collieson, General The secretary of the National Free Labour Association announced that In 1921, approximately 3000 foreigners settled in England every week. (They were wrapped in rags and covered with lice). The wave of immigration doesn't seem likely to start again next year either. to have subsided. The national circles must have been horrified. notice that the number of foreigners increased day by day, and Britons who had defended their country to earn work and bread brought n).

The government's immigration statistics are unsuitable for our purposes, since the immigration figures are not comparable to the emigration contrasts and apparently only in the case of the Determine adverse consequences of the excess of the first category believes he can. On the untenability of such a view. We have already explained this above and would like to reiterate it. Let's leave it at that.

Nevertheless, we can glean from some official statements draw certain conclusions for our estimate. On November 25th– In 1924, the then Minister of the Interior, Sir W. Joynson, made Hicks at a reception for members of the National Citizens Union, who approached him about this matter= Interesting explanations had been given. Afterwards, in the 321,451 foreigners in the first nine months of the current year 811,576 entered the country, while only 811,576 had left. Therefore, 10,000 foreigners remained in the country. According to the According to documents available to him, 272,862 foreigners have been detained by the police reported. This is even a few hundred fewer than in the years 1922 and 1923), .

Here too, with reference to the above, we add this= Regarding the statements made, there is no reason to assume that... Of these reported foreigners, 75% were Jews. Ver= Let us not forget that the young people under 16 years of age have not been counted.

Apparently, the question of immigration was a topic of discussion in 1927.
A subject of public attention. Sir W. Joynson
Hicks was also Home Secretary at this time and shared in the Par=
The statement of July 14th indicates that 867,000 foreigners are in the country.
They would have kicked off, but almost the same number had torn down again.
53,000 foreigners are currently registered as residing in the country.
In 1924 there were 935, in the following year 1074 and in
In 1926, 1345 foreigners were naturalized. He used the fact that naturalizations increased in the preceding-the years as proof that the accusations against him=

- 12) Daily Graphic from May 24, 1921. Banifter: p. 81.
1) British Legion, November 1922. Banister: p. 104.
14) Annual Register: Vol. 166, pp. 125-128.

15 225

wiirfe feiner Voreinurteile gegen Fremde ungrunde feien®®).

In the summer of 1927, the House of Loro's undertook to create a
To discuss the law restricting immigration. With Satisfaction is provided by the "Annual Register" in December of the of the same year, it was stated that "the hated bill was rejected because of its contentio Restrictions on immigration... due to lack of time fall-have been left... 0.

The entirety of the statements about the first immigration=
The period after the war should have shown that probably already during this period, the increase we have assumed of 300,000 people have entered. Any remaining doubts should be dispelled.
diminish when one considers subsequent communications over time learned this after the year 1933.

It should be generally known that the Jewish emigration of Greater Germany including the Ostmark and the Sudetenland-Gaues largely to the western countries - England and France - took place.

Here too, it is difficult to obtain official figures. Even
As far as they are available, we have serious concerns about them.
to be considered correct. Firstly, it might be a national characteristic.
The English are generally said to lack organizational talent.
possess and consequently have difficulties achieving a flawless
To compile statistics. On the other hand, there are always recurring issues.
Cases that have come to public attention, in which Jews were involved in any kind of viole
a way of circumventing immigration laws in England land."

Then there are marriage bureaus in London that find Englishmen who are willing to marry foreigners arriving here to marry Jewish women. The Englishmen in question receive a certain sum and other contributions for it. After the During the civil marriage ceremony, the persons separate and They usually don't see each other again. But the Jewish woman gained something from this. Obtained British citizenship.

Finally, the authorities, including the current one, are taking action. Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare, everything to protect the Jews from every To make immigration easier.

As always, we don't need to do this from the general perspective. known pro-Jewishness of the current system in Great Britain to conclude that Britain, but rather the Jews and their friends We will take care of the necessary details.

The Jews have an organization called "Shelter", which is closely linked to the Ministry of the Interior. According to the Communications from Jews from the years 1928 and 1929 are received 18) Annual Register: Vol. 169, p. 69.

16) Annual Register: Vol. 169, pp. 73, 126.

Among other things Times, January 7, 1930.

226

dtefe almost always the necessary immigration permit for Jews whose relatives are already in England")

But the helpfulness of those involved is best demonstrated. Authorities through Sir Samuel Hoare. The chairman of a Jewish A delegation visited him in April 1938 for a meeting and subsequently shared his delight at the reception at the Interior Ministry. minister with. Sir Samuel was not only accommodating, but "expressed his genuine and sincere concern for these A regrettable expression. He could not entertain any conversation. to remember a minister who was so friendly and reminiscent of= (proceeded in a homely manner, free from one's own) Of Sir Samuel's statements, only one may be mentioned, which he in May 1938 on the occasion of a lecture at the Rotary Club He held a conference in Blackpool. According to his statements... According to democratic ethics, there could not be enough for the Jews to be done."

For the officially admitted figures of the judicial objections= There are few clues available. Sir Samuel stated that... Hoare in parliament stated that in March 1938 alone 1317 Ein= Wanderers from Austria are admitted to England! That this

That they were almost exclusively Jews is hardly to be doubted.
to be. Like many others from Germany and from elsewhere.
He did not elaborate on the parts of Europe that had arrived.
There were certainly at least that many. End of November
In 1938, Sir Samuel Hoare responded to a request from a Member of Parliament neten hin incoming communications about immigration so ge= These were refugees. The following number followed from the year 1933 onwards: 10,974.
of this type in England. Of course, this also includes...
It is not clear on what basis the classification is based.
The ceremonial ...
a whole number of persons who, in our view, belong to the Jewish community Immigration figures are not included in the estimate.
were. Because immediately afterwards the statistics from Germans with a total number of 21871 and so-called
The number of Austrians is listed as 16,006. The total is...
So, 37,877. This again excludes persons under 16 years of age.
taken into account, so that another quarter of these (To add to the total ift). After all this, one can therefore use approximately 50,000 German citizens are counted, including those considered Refugees are also individuals who need to be included in the count. Thus This results in approximately 60,000 people with German citizenship.
dependence, and taking into account our key of 75% approximately 45,000 Jews. Anyone with a reasonable overview of the Anyone who understands the overall situation can only smile at these official figures.

18) Jewish Chronicle from March 29, 1938 and March 28, 1939.
Jewish Chronicle of April 15, 1938.

see Doferver of May 8, 1938.

21) Jewish Chronicle, April 8, 1938.

a Jewish Chronicle of December 2, 1938.

150 i 227

Almost every week, even English newspapers report on the arrivals.
The arrival of mass transports of Jewish immigrants. This is what he writes.
the "Daily Express" of October 20, 1938, that the government 150 entry permits for arrivals from Czechoslovakia=
Slovakia has granted permission. On November 1st, the same newspaper reports... with the fact that the arrival of the first 84 of the in the very near future to
The expected 350 "anti-Hitlerites" are imminent. At the same time, She publishes a picture showing the arrival of these individuals.
shows. We did not find any of the people pictured.
a doubt that they are Jews. At the end of November, Sir [name omitted] stated Samuel Hoare in Parliament, that an unlimited number Jewish children would be admitted to England). Already According to a report in the "Daily Express", they met on November 29th.

300 Jewish children, about a week later a thousand from Vienna, the first transport of a total of 3000 children from the in question.)

Contrary to expectations, two English newspapers have given us a This provides a certain basis for our estimate. End
In October 1938, they succeeded in obtaining the last official total figure for Unnaturalized foreigners until May 1938 at the Interior Ministry= to determine the ministry. Oddly enough, numbers are used for all the following months until the writing of these lines, January 1939, not available. After that, until the end of the aforementioned period... Month 196,852 persons of the above-mentioned category in English= Land and Wales reported to the police. Rightly so, one The newspaper pointed out that the figure was certainly quite significantly related to Taking into account the events in Austria and Czechoslovakia has risen. Furthermore, it should not be overlooked that the Foreigners in Scotland and Ireland not recorded (freedoms?). We We would like to add that after May 1938, circumstances in Italy, Hungary, Poland and Romania have joined, which also come from there increased Jewish immigration to Great Britain They probably brought it.

From the ever-increasing foreign infiltration or Jewish influence The naturalization figures also speak to the British people's eloquent language. In six months of the year 1938, namely from From March to September, there are just as many foreigners naturali= (celebrated as in the entire previous year?). Alone in the The last two months of 1938 were at least approximately 130 name changes of Jews took place, who had an English name. (They have adopted names!). All the Abrahams, Isaacs, Levys etc. will now be Morris, Lewis, etc. – names that were before 50 years ago, this still suggested purely English families.

) Daily extortion of November 22, 1988, 24) Daily Extortion of 18 December 1038. Daily Telegraph of 6 and 8 December 1098. (rs) Sunday extortion of October 23, 1938. Daily Mail of January 2, 1939.

2) Sunday Express of October 23, 1938.

21) London Gazette (1938): pp. 6856–8226.

228

After all this, we have no doubt that the Jewish total population in Great Britain has increased by 1914 has increased by 300,000 people. This is exactly the same as with ours.

The first estimate did not take into account the excess of births over deaths. This percentage is likely to be not insignificant. The world's population—According to their own statistics, the number of Jews in the year 1914, the year of our first estimate, 13,168,924°), and in Years 1988 16 113 0002). Afterwards, there was an increase of approximately 20 to 25% took place, which, on England and our for the The digit found in 1914 was applied without any cin—Hiking would produce almost the same result. If we Therefore, immigration plus a birth surplus of 30% equals Having invested 300,000, we should be able to estimate the total cost at... 1,200,000 is just the minimum we've determined. After that, we'll move on. for the British Empire, taking into account the execution= struggles concerning the Dominions and overseas possessions to 1,700,000 Jews.

We cannot agree with the estimate of the Be= led by Leefe. join a movement that focuses solely on a single figure for the mother country "From 2.5 to 3 million." Also the one mentioned by this one. Lord Northcliffe's view, according to which the Jewish London's population had already reached 1¼ million. (should not be taken too seriously).

3 ET Best Bont (5 & Sh
;

Afcift of April 19
Larke: p. 125.

England under Jewish leadership

Now we must turn to the question of to what extent the Jews actually in the individual areas of public life Life either a dominant position or at least have gained a disproportionately large influence. We would not want to miss the opportunity to point out that the under—Searches within the scope of this book are only designed to be limited. can be; it remains to be seen in the future in the case of the over—twist of the current pro-Jewish system in Grok—left to Britain, with the help of what might then be needed= readily available official sources and archives are just as exhaustive as hopefully to release conclusive publications.

It has already been stated above that at the court in the very near future The king's proximity to persons of Jewish blood or with Jewish ancestry Connections exist. We are thinking here of Lord Herschel and Lord Mountbatten. This is also evident from other events. the court's friendliness towards Jews.

Thus we hear of a monkey of the king with Sir Isaac Isaacs, the former Governor-General of Australia). This attitude of the court was particularly noticeable among the kings. The celebrations in 1937 apparently. The one that has often been Herbert Samuel thought he had been made a peer and JS Elias, the newspaper magnate, to Baron. LS Sterling with his great economic influence and Maurice Block, with his offices in municipal administrations, were in He was elevated to the rank of knight. Numerous other honors were bestowed. other Jews.

During the coronation festivities at Westminster Abbey, to to whom only the very chosen were admitted. Several Jews were also present. Among them were the Chief Rabbi of England, the President of the Postal Savings Bank and zealous Zionist Leon Simon, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Zvi and Mr. SD Fresco as members of the Ministry of Finance?).

Jews were present at the subsequent festivities at court. They were represented in not insignificant numbers. They were partly defined by race. enjoyed, partly by leading Englishmen and women introduced. According to the published attendance= The following lists were presented:

Miss Ruth Ezra through her mother, Mrs. Alfred Ezra;

Lady Franklin through Lady Samuel;

Mrs. Adrian Franklin through her mother-in-law, Lady

Franklin;

Mrs. Cecil Kahn through her mother, Mrs. Frank Pollitzer;

Miss Par Pamela Laski through Lady Rossmore:

a yeni € J Hewish Chronicle from 15th Mat 1986.
ewish Chronicle, May 14, 1937

230

Mrs. John Makower by her mother, Lady Franklin;

Lady Mancroft by Mrs. Stanley Baldwin;

Mrs. Frank Pollitzer by Lady Simon;

The Hon. Rofetta Samuel through her mother Lady Mancroft;

Miss Clarice Joseph by Lady Joseph:

Mrs. Edward Judah by the Marchioness of Zetland;

Miss Mathilde Marks by the Hon. Mrs. Patrick Johnstone;

Miss Ann Mocatta through her mother, Mrs. Owen Mocatta;

Miss Daphne Sebag-Montefiore by Mrs. Vincent Massay:

Mrs. Alfred Salmon through Lady Salmon.)

During the subsequent festivities at court

The following persons were among those introduced:

Lord Mancroft by Sir George Penny; MP;

Mr. Montagu Lyons, MP, by the Minister of Aviation;

Lieutenant Colonel Alroy Cohen by the Colonial Minister;

Siegmund Samuel by the High Commissioner of Canada."

We also present at the garden parties at Buckingham Palace.

among many other Jews, Sir Philipp and Lady Hartog, Mr.

Leon Simon, Colonel, and Mrs. HL Nathan left').

Other well-known Jews also associate with all members of the royal family. For example, at a small dinner...

Sister of the King and her husband, the Earl of Harewood, one of the highest-ranking Freemasons in the country, five Jews alone, namely Lord and Lady Duveen, Sir Leonard and Lady Franklin and Sir Percy Harris were present).

Such incidents are so numerous that it is impossible to list them all. can be mentioned. The listed examples may be suffice.

The Jews also cannot complain about a lack of awards of orders and other decorations. Thus, they received Percy Cohen recently received the insignia of the Com from the King. man of the British Empire"). Ezekiel Cohen, one of the highest official in the colony of Basutoland, is a member of the He was issued an Imperial Service Order. Together with him Other Jews, such as Rabbi David Ffaac, were also targeted. Freedman, Mrs. Zara Baar Aronson and Avinoam Mellin awarded.". Also at the recently completed Bertel- The honors bestowed on the occasion of the turn of the year 1938/39 could Cut the Jews off well. Dr. Adolphe Abrahams, Dean from Westminster Hospital, Norbert Mayer, well-known musician, and Colonel Benjamin Hansford, a member of the Exchange, were elevated to the rank of knight. Other Jews received

8) Jewish Chronicle of May 14, 1937.

'gen! Chronicle of June 4, 1937.

5 sew! 0 Chronicle of July 30, 1937.

New! Chronicle of June 4, 1937.

7 Hewi Chronicle of February 21, 1036.

'Jewish Chronicle, June 26, 1936.

231

also awards?). The brother of the former chief Justice of Ceylon and also a knight"). These brief hints white people may continue for a period of two to three years. This could be an example of how much the Indians were in the favor of the Court stand.

Already in the preceding explanations we have often referred to the interconnections in connection with other questions. The nobility were referred to as Jews. This should continue in the future. This happened. Here we would like to focus primarily on such families, to point out things that would otherwise not receive any special mention.

Baron William Burnham is one of them. As is well known.

Did the English noble families have, in addition to their noble names? still their former family name. This is now for Lord Burnham Lawson, formerly Levy. His ancestors were the founders of the Daily Telegraph and so we can see stand, as this newspaper found itself at the end of the emancipation struggles could not do enough to stand up for the cause of the Jews. The sister of the father of the current Lord Burnham married Major JS Coke, a son of the Count of Leieester. He has been a Gentleman Usher in Ordinary since 1937. King.

We also find Baron Herman Michelham with the surname Stern, and Baron Perey de Worms, The barrister, Viscount Erleigh, is the son of the current [owner]. Marquess Reading with the family name Isaacs. Furthermore, they find we the Barons Philip Montefiore Magnus, Lionel Faudel Philipps, Chairman of Faudels Ltd., and Michael Bernard Oppenheimer as a full Jew. The latter has a daughter of Sir Robert GG Harvey, another Sir Robert's daughter married Captain HH Balfour. The latter is a member of parliament and undersecretary of state in the Ministry of Aviation.

Baron A. Foley married the daughter of the Jew H. Greenstone from South Africa. The mother of the current Baron John Peter Fitzgerald was a Jewish woman named Bishop's home. His wife doesn't appear to be Jewish. But she's currently working on something. They are currently talking a lot about themselves because they have a jewelry collection. organized in favor of Jewish emigrants, who even bore the name "Lady Fitzgerald's Jewel Fund" is worn.

It might be of some interest that the son and heir of the current Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax, a member of the married the Rothschild family. The wife of the Marquess of Cholmondeley is the sister of the already frequently mentioned he= They thought Sir Philip Sassoon. The first one does not mention less than 24,000 acres, so approximately 38,400 Morgen, all own land.

2) Jewish Chronicle, January 6, 1989.

10) Observer of January 8, 1939.

282

The Marquess of Castle Stewart married a Jewish woman, Eleanor Guggenheim from New York, also of the Marquess of Tweeddale, who had a daughter of Mrs. Lewis Einstein married. The latter has 40,000 Neres, or approximately 64,000 acres of land. The Barons John Blunt and Thomas Colyer=Fergusson as well as the Viscount Bledisloe also has Jewish women as wives. This includes Finally, Baron Howard de Walden, who owned almost the entire Oxford Street, one of London's main commercial streets, belongs to it.

This brief overview, in conjunction with the earlier and The following messages will already provide a certain insight. for the Judaization of the nobility, although there was none= It is claimed from our side that this work presents an exhaustive list. Regarding the persons mentioned... One must also count all those who came from these circumstances. bonds originate from or are related to them. One will must admit that they will make up a large number. That= In addition, we can observe quite a few nobles who devoted themselves entirely to They conspired to help the Jews and therefore work for them. It is impossible to name them all here as well.

Thus, we find at the festival of the association jlidifcher Businessmen, the so-called Maccabeans, including Lord Blanes= burgh, Marquess of Hartigton, the Master of the Rolls

Lord Wright"). At the dinner for the "Friends of the Hebrews" At the "Island University" in 1937, we find Lord [name omitted] as a guest. Rutherford, Lady Hailey and other members of the highest-fit circles). It is also interesting that Lord Peel, who-deceased Chairwoman of the Royal Palestine Commission, by the partition plan was designed, with a Jewish woman as secretary had). The former Lord Chancellor identified particularly strongly with this, Viscount Sankey, with the Jewish cause. With all possible... He will actively work for them in both possible and impossible situations. At a recent meeting, he declared, "we can no longer exist without them (the Jews) (w). The nephew by AJ Balfour, Lord Traprain, has taken care of the under= (support of Jewish emigrants was very prominent). On the occasion of the Albert Hall Assembly, which became famous throughout the world December 1938 in favor of the Jews, on which the Archbishop of West Minister and Chief Rabbi together on one platform While they were sitting, Lord Dunsany brought a poem he had written. (for the reading!). In this, he gave greater confidence for the future.

11) Jewish Chronicle, July 3, 1936.

11) Jewish Chronicle of May 28, 1937.

18) Jewish Chronicle, November 19, 1937.

u) Jewish Chronicle, December 17, 1997.

16) Jewish Chronicle, December 9, 1988

16) Jewish Chronicle of December 9, 1938.

11) Jewish Chronicle, December 9, 1938.

The prosperity of the Jews is expressed. A glimpse into the elevators of the donors. for the various funds for Jewish emigrants shows on The participation of the nobility is best. The same applies to society. business events given by Jews, in which members Members of the nobility participate! It is impossible to name them all. In summary, it can only be stated that in case of doubt every member of the nobility is expelled until proven otherwise. must be regarded as sympathetic to the Jews.

234

South and Lords

Given this attitude of the nobility, the stance of the House It's not hard to guess who the Lords are in Jewish matters. When There are always debates about this in the upper house, they find Jews receive warm support almost without exception.

We have already seen above that leading statesmen to a large extent, even if they were not Jewish, the not only did not stand in the way of Jewish endeavors, but They offered them their help in every respect. Thinking We only remember the close bond that Lloyd George had all this time with the Hebrews. When he left his post in 1922 When he had to resign as First Minister, the Jews could not do enough to regret this situation. People with anti-Jewish principles are therefore, in his own words, He was especially hated. How much his love was for the Jews, This is best explained in an article in the magazine "Strand". from April 1937. In his view, "the Jews are those from= "most marked race that has ever lived on this earth."

What applies to Lloyd George also applies at least to Winston Churchill applicable. We already mentioned above the fine, narrow Cooperation with the Jews is part of it. His zeal is not... wrestler became, as his advocacy for the Jewish cause in Parliament and in public. With eloquent words. He demands help for the persecuted Jews of Germany and devised his own plan to solve the difficulties in Palestine?). He himself has the best refined attitude towards to the Jews as follows: "Almost continuously During my political life, I have had friendly relationships with maintain ties with the Jews."

The recently deceased Sir Austin Chamberlain, whose name is associated with many measures detrimental to Germany who is connected to this, was also a great friend of the Hebrews. This Among many other things, it shows her obituary on the occasion of his death. in 1937. It is not only significant because of its size, but also because of its content. The veneration of the Jews For Chamberlain, it would be a lasting one, because he always deployed for them and the Third Reich mainly because of this He fought against Jewish policies. His services could never be considered for The Jews will be forgotten. His name would be engraved with gold. letters enter Jewish history.

Former Erftminister Ramsay MacDonald was also Under the spell of the Jews. According to the Jew Michael Marcus, a former employee, called MacDonald "Zionism without socialism is unthinkable." He is, in fact,

N Jewish Chronicle of March 26, 1937.

*) Jewish Chronicle of March 27, 1936, September 3, 1937 and December 2, 1938. a Daily Telegraph dated January 19, 1926,

"had been sincerely devoted to the Zionist ideal." Marcus He has been repeatedly surprised by the extent to which "MacDonald's fine political inspirations from Jewish sources" has created." He too received an honorary tribute upon his death.
 Obituary from the Jewish perspective, and they did not forget, above all to highlight his merits in organizing the Zionists= lift. His private secretary was the Jewish woman Rose Rosen.
 Berg, who had strong sympathies for the Soviets, which she he also admitted it publicly.

Ramsay MacDonald's successor, the current Earl Baldwin demonstrated, and still demonstrates today in numerous gel-
 His subservience to the Jews. When he was in the year
 When he left his post as First Minister in 1937, the Jews were
 He was full of praise. They would always see him as "the statesman".
 see, who would never have hesitated to take on a student of the Jew to call Disraeli." All in all, one couldn't get enough of him.
 to thank him for his services to the Jews. The best proof However, Baldwin recently faced criticism for his friendship with Jews.
 so-called National Fund for the Jews. In a
 In his radio address of December 7, 1938, he made a corresponding statement.
 A plea on behalf of the Church of England, the Roman Catholic Church Catholic Church, Free Churches and Jews to the Nation-directed). ö

Baldwin's student is Eden, whose connection with the Jews are so obvious to everyone that we hardly notice them.
 to say anything about it. In his policy, Eden should follow= most emphatically, as the "Evening Standard" of August 5, 1938, stated.
 reports that the so-called Fabian wing of the socialists will be supported under the leadership of Mr. Israel Steff. Also There's hardly any need to talk about former Minister Duff Cooper. something will be said regarding his friendliness towards Jews. Be= Significantly, the deceased Jew Otto Kahn is from the
 The company Kahn, Loeb & Co. is the godfather of his child. Also the recently left the government, already several times=
 Colonial Minister Ormsby Gore believed the Jews were subservient to him.
 As recently as June 5, 1936, the "Jewish Chronicle" published a laudatory article entitled: "Mr. Ormsby Gore as Champion of Zionism."

3 Jewish Chronicle of December 9, 1098.
 5 Daily Express, November 23, 1938.

South in the Cabinet

We lack the time and energy to address all the leading state officials men after the war. The ones listed above But they, insofar as they are still alive, are probably the most important ones. who are currently no longer in government. What is the situation now? with the current cabinet members?

According to the investigations by

A. Leese according to his pamphlet "His Majesty's New Sub-Government" have Jewish blood. As proof of this, he cites Read about it from various sources and quotations. In any case. It is established that his father Joseph Chamberlain and his step-Brother Sir Austen Chamberlain did everything to help the Jews to be agreeable. Neville Chamberlain himself held this view at the end of 1938 in Parliament gave a warm speech in favor of the Jews and was the first to propose their settlement in German East Africa. About We need Home Minister Sir Samuel Hoare with

In light of our above statements, nothing further needs to be said.

add. The same applies to Lord Halifax. Very close connection.

Minister Earl Dela Warr also conversed with the Jews.

Marquess of Zetland and Sir Kingsley Wood. The

The former only recently gave voice to his feelings in a public statement. Speech expression in which he criticizes the Jewish policy of the Third Reich described as incompatible with civilization. Aviation:

Minister Sir Kingsley Wood publicly highlighted the great merits the Jews around the British Empire and gave hope

An expression that the current system in Great Britain, who rejected and maintained the difference in nose size. The wife

Lord Zetland led the coronation festivities

a Jewish woman at court. One of the highest officials, Lord

Zetland's leader in the India Ministry is the Jew Sir Cecil

Kish, and fine advisors, the Jews Sir Henry Strakosh fowie TE Gregory Gugenheim, who because of fine is known from economic publications. In aviation=

The Ministry is Captain HH Balfour as Undersecretary of State,

We have already reported above on its connection with Jews.

The Minister for Pensions, H. Ramsbotham, is with a Jewish woman, née de Stein, married. The President of the Postspar kasse is the Zionist Leon Simon, who has already been mentioned several times.

Another member of the Cabinet is Earl Winterton, whose affection for the Hebrews is best understood from the fact

It emerges that he served as a member of the British government.

the international conference in Evian-Les-Baines on the topic of participating in the effort to alleviate the difficulties faced by Jewish refugees and held a leading position there. Two full Jews belong to the government, namely the already repeatedly mentioned Sir

Philipp Sassoon and L. Hore-Belisha. The former is Commissioner of Works and the latter Minister of War

After the war, there was almost no cabinet in which not full-fledged specimens were represented. In the so-called second The coalition government under Lloyd George was led by E. Montagu. Minister for India. Sir Alfred Mond, later Lord Melchett, whose family we will discuss in more detail later, united the health and labor ministries in his Hand. Sir Rufus Isaacs, later Lord Reading, was in before whose mission worked for the government from 1921 to 1926 Viceroy of India.

After the downfall of Lloyd George in 1922, we see Sir Arthur M. Samuel as a high-ranking official in the Treasury and from 1924 onwards Sir Philipp Sassoon as Undersecretary of State in the Ministry of Aviation. Also in the workers' governments party in the years 1924 and 1929 to 1931 we find the abge-appointed Emanuel Shinwell to a high position at Ministry of War and later at the Chamber of Mines. Also The current appeals judge, Sir Henry Slesser, is said to be a Jew. Fine. He was Crown Prosecutor from 1924 to 1929. Sir Herbert Samuel resigned from his post as High Commissioner in Upon returning to Palestine in 1925, he became chairman of the Commission of the coal industry made and played a major role Role in the general strike at that time.

During the formation of the so-called national government in the year In 1931, Jews received important positions. The Marquis of Reading became Foreign Minister, Sir Herbert Samuel became Home Minister and Sir Philipp Sassoon was in turn Undersecretary of State in the Air Force. Ministry of Transport. In later transformations, the current War Minister Hore-Belisha the Ministry of Transport. Later Sir Herbert Samuel became leader of the liberal opposition.

As you can see, the Jews had their people in the highest positions. We can therefore refrain from discussing the cabinet members here. to delve into the past, the part-members or friends of Jews were to inform the reader of the immediate influence of the Hebrews to give an impression of government business.

In the area of foreign policy, we would like to refer to previous Explanations point out and only two incidents of the aftermath= Add wartime. |

In 1919, it was reported in London that in Poland Jewish pogroms were taking place. This was probably done with treachery. These incidents are not mistaken in the assumption that this is from The information was spread among Jews. The reports spoke of massacres. of the largest scale. The Foreign Office immediately announced in the publicity that if the Poles do not immediately respond to this- They heard that all support for their goals would be withdrawn. would. The Poles were also informed accordingly. The known because of the corruption scandal described above= Sir Stuart Samuel was portrayed by the British director rung was tasked with investigating the incidents and after Poland sent. The "Morning Post" succeeded due to a= to establish, based on reliable sources, that pogroms did not... The speech could be about the Jews killed in street battles. as residents and bystanders had been killed. On In any case, the Nede could not be fine from mass murders. The "Morning Post," the Foreign Office asked in an editorial, who had sent him the false message and how it came about would have come, such a dubious personality as Sir Stuart with the official mission to be sent to Poland. At the same time, she objected to such a biased [approach]. Presentation of the Jews and pointed out that the Jews at on this occasion they had once again openly shown that they were not as English people might perceive it).

The most striking example, however, has only recently occurred – It happened in February 1938. In Romania, the government Goga came to power. It was clear to anyone with any insight. that she would pursue the same policy against the Jews as The Third Reich. This was soon demonstrated by legal measures against it. the Hebrews, who initiated the introduction of the Nuremberg laws were presented). Not only the Jews in Romania, but World Jewry was also alarmed. From the publications= From the accounts of the Jew Emanuel, we know how things are done in such cases. The actions taken by the locally affected Jews were, namely, They immediately turned to London. It was unlikely to be the case there either. would have been different. The British and the French government, citing minority rights The Treaties of Paris of 1919, which, as is well known, were signed by the Jews were created to oppose the treatment of the Hebrews at protesting against the Romanian government. We will never... Newspaper posters forgotten, which were displayed in London that evening=

E Morning vol of March 20, April 11 and August 30, 1010.
. ua Berliner Tageblatt of January 5, 1038, appeared. One of them best expressed, in huge letters, the subservience of the British government to Jews, and It is indeed the "Evening Standard": "Jews – Britain Tells Romania"). The "Völkisch" rightly observed "Observer" of January 7, 1938, that the two Western powers still had done nothing for the 3.5 million Sudeten Germans, and Almost a thousand complaints from minorities in Geneva remain unresolved. be. However, reports from English sources also indicated that Newspapers clearly noted the interference of world Jewry. Securities were traded on various stock exchanges around the world. Romania's decline and otherwise also a silence Boycott directed against the economy of this country." And everything was directed from London, as the following publication shows shows"): "A personality close to the court in Bucharest reported to me (a diplomatic correspondent of the (Newspaper), that Goga's dismissal was highly summary Nature is. 5

When Goga was summoned to the king, he had no recollection of whatsoever. He had some inkling of his impending dismissal.

However, the king had the previous afternoon given a thorough briefing. Report of the Governor of the Bank of Romania on the The country's financial situation had been worsened by the wrong policies. was caused by the government.

In the report, the governor clearly expressed that the oppression of the Jews, which impacted economic life 955 countries controlled, provoking a collapse would.

Transactions of any kind and the payment of taxes would have ceased

King Carol was appalled by these facts, which one which he had previously withheld from him.

The decision to dismiss Goga immediately was, however, thereby... It is becoming increasingly clear that the king is also being urged by a pressing request. was allegedly influenced by a source that was the The king should not have been overlooked under any circumstances.

The essence of the warning was that the one in prospect The king's planned visit to London was postponed for so long. This must be done until the situation in Romania is resolved. were . ."

As you can see, things have changed since the time of the publications of Emanuel changed nothing. World Jewry with the help of London at work!

-) Evening Standard, January 5, 1938.
-) Evening Standard, February 10, 1938. Times, February 12, 1938 -) Evening Standard, February 11, 1938.

240

Jews in the Party and Parliament

It is also necessary to find out if and to what extent the Parliament is subject to Jewish influence. One in the Jewish community= The question should be clear to any informed reader from the outset, that not the number of Jews in a parliament for that decisive. Nevertheless, we want a brief Give an overview.

After the elections of 1906 and 1910, 16 Bolls were elected each time: Jews entering the House of Commons). The last general elections brought 17 Jewish deputies into parliament, namely the following: gende:

H. Day (Labour),

D. Frankel (Labour),

L.H. Gluckstein (Conservatives),
Sir Percy Harris (Liberal),

L. Hore=Velifha (Liberal National),
Dudley Joel (Conservative),

T. Levy (Conservative),

AM Lyons, KC (Conservative),
James de Rothschild (Liberal),

Sir Ifidore Salmon (Conservative),
Sir AM Samuel (Confative), Marcus Samuel (Conservative),
Sir Philip Saffoon (Conservative),
E. Shinwell (Labour),

S. Silverman (Labour),

EA Strauss (Liberal National),

Louis Silkin (Labour) 7).

This number has since increased due to by-elections, which were initiated by the
The resignation of members of parliament became necessary in order to at least two was increased. Thus, in Wandsworth, the Jew HL Nathan (Labour)), in Cheltenham DL Lipfon (Independent Conference vative)) chosen. Mrs. will probably also join them.
Adams, who entered Parliament in 1938. She is the the only one where, unlike the previous ones, we did not are absolutely certain whether she is Jewish or not. In any case, she is She is very active for the Jews and speaks in Zionist associations.
families?).

There is no doubt that there are even more full and part Jews in parliament. But we cannot equate these with ge-establish with sufficient certainty, since our best sources of assurance, the "Jewish Chronicle" and "Jewish Year Book", only the Kon-

1) Jewish Chronicle, November 24, 1922.

2) Jewish Chronicle, September 11, 1936.

i Jewi h Chronicle from May 7, 1937.

) Jewi p Chronicle of September 3, 1937.

5) Newt Chronicle from November 25, 1988, pp. 31 and 44.

10 241

Jewish factions lead. Our communications are based on assumptions which are mostly grounded in the Jewish question, must However, we reject this here in the interest of scientific work.

The number of 19 or 20 Jews in parliament is indeed completely disproportionate to the Jewish population, however Smaller than one might have expected. Nevertheless, these practice Hebrews a disproportionately large, direct influence
Two of them, namely Hore=Belifha and Sir Phi= Lip Sassoon are government members. Thomas Levy
L. Silkin is chairman of the Textile Committee in the House of Commons.
He is not the chairman of a committee in parliament, but but chairman of an important committee of the city administration London. One of the most important, perhaps the most important.
The committee in parliament is the "Select Committee on Estimates".
It deals with the most secret affairs of the state and takes estimates and proposals for the distribution of gel those that will be necessary for the nation as a whole in the near future
The chairman of this committee is the Jew Sir Isidore.

Salmon), which we will discuss later.

Moreover, in the British Parliament, almost without exception, the appearance that the cause of the Jews was at least as well through the representatives loyal to them. Here too can the individuals concerned and the processes indicative of this can be called impossible. A study of the expressions about Jewish issues in parliament, especially in recent years, shows that almost all members of parliament, regardless of party, agree under the protection of Jewish interests. How far this goes is revealed a notice in the "Jewish Chronicle" of November 18 1938. After that, an official petition was submitted by many members of parliament. neten of content presented that the king in his throne= I refrained from speaking, out of consideration for the measures against Easing of immigration restrictions for Jews in Germany to announce to Palestine. In half an hour, he collected Signatures from approximately 35 members of parliament regarding this matter= lichen step, and members of parliament who have their under= Those who refused to write generally declined because they believed that They wanted to replace the word "Palestine" with "British Empire". So these are ones that still have a shade of gray. pro-Jewish and those who oppose immigration to Palestine That's not enough. Only some of the non-Jewish members of parliament want... we distinguish from the mass of the rest because they are everywhere especially to advocate for the Jews. Colonel JC Wedgwood is leading in all pro-Jewish actions within and outside of half of parliament. He was the one who described the situation just described. suggested a submission. According to a report in the magazine "Jewry about According to the March 1923 issue of "everything", he was even made an honorary member of has been appointed. This announcement is likely to be accurate, since ) Daily Express from November 1, 1938,

242

he went to America in 1922 to collect money for the Zion-nests, and on his departure was very much from the Jews was celebrated. Another representative, Commander Locker=Lampson is also because of his active advocacy for the Jews. In April 1938, he made headlines because of his to talk about the proposed legislation entitled "Jewish Citizen Bill". He wanted to grant all Jews in the world civil rights through this. (create Palestine'). Since Palestine is a mandate territory of Great Britain is, every owner of such civil rights would have automatisch enjoyed the protection of England.

The general attitude of the members of parliament may also be as can be seen from the following:

The leading member of parliament, Hugh Dalton publicly stated: "In terms of quality regarding civil rights Is the British Jew more valuable and refined than the British Jew? Fascist?"). The MP Beverley Baxter was in He was asked at a meeting if he was Jewish. He replied: "I am not honored to belong to this great race." "It is an institution in England that is unanimously regarded as a friend of the Jewish race, namely the lower house of His Your Majesty ..."). These words aroused great applause in the Creative Committee of the Conservative Party.

We see that our above judgment about Parliament is not correct. was too sharp. 1

Given these circumstances, it is not at all surprising that everyone Parties that are loyal to the Jews.

The Liberal Party is, as already explained above, have surrendered, having long been subservient to the Jews. She is today only with very few MPs left in the House of Commons to enter. Nevertheless, we can see four Jews among them, as already mentioned. executed, established. Therefore, on the occasion of elections, they demand also called on the Jews to vote for the liberals, "because they party campaigned for her."

We have already seen above how the main founder of the Labour Party, Ramsay MacDonald, stood by the Jews. His former colleagues are unlikely to give him any credit in this matter. This is also repeatedly acknowledged with gratitude by the Jews established. Thus, they occasionally point to the close connection. with the Marxist Workers' Party. The one already mentioned Member of Parliament Slessor is said to have personally emphasized that the workers' party was not socialist, but Jewish (fearful). The The party itself explained to the Jews that they would be best off- It is suitable to represent their interests. This can be done precisely recently confirmed. At the end of 1938, the The Labour Party submitted a motion in parliament demanding that il JER 9 of 15 April 1938.

ewi roniele from 25th e anes 1936.

ewish Chronicle of the 15th
10) Morning Bott from July 28, 1023. Banifter: p. 13.

243

should express his strong displeasure with the measures taken by the German government against the Jews. A little later The leader of this party, Major Attlee, would not miss the opportunity to

to speak at a protest rally with the same goal.

But also the Conservative Party, which currently holds the majority

He who is in the House of Commons is completely devoted to the Jews. This is best demonstrated

The Jews' control of the party is evident in the fact that in the Central Office, the executive headquarters, un-

A relatively large number of Jews were found. There is information about this.

A nice little anecdote. A general was looking for the item in question.

I opened the office and was greeted by a Jew. He explained to him that "he should never present his case to a Jew would." With these words, he handed him his card and...

He tried to speak to an Englishman. Whether he succeeded,

It has not been handed down. However, it is certain that earlier and today the Jews hold leading positions in the central administration, which a major influence on the selection of candidates and owns or holds other important businesses. That's how Lord used to be.

Jessel, the party treasurer. Today the most powerful man is there-

The most famous man, Sir Albert Clavering. He is the son of Isaac Abraham Clozenburg, a Jew from Eastern Europe. This

In 1920, it changed its original name to Clavering.

Another Jew, Percy Cohen, is head of the Propaganda and Literature Department. In January 1936 he was Awarded by the King on the occasion of the New Year.

The entire attitude of the central office is best determined from in the words of their representative, LS Amery, who has Jewish blood have joll!!) and turned into a large mass protest gathering-sandt was to act on behalf of headquarters against the Mah-

They began to raise objections against the Jews in Germany.

To what extent does the Conservative Party adhere to the main principle of Judaism, namely the pure principle of money, has succumbed, as shown.

recent publications. According to these, elections will be held the following ways:

Individual seats were offered and practically sold. For the Electoral districts where a victory for the Conservatives is expected and thus can expect the election of the candidate in question,

The person seeking this must have large sums of money available.

He has to pay the election costs, which amount to £400.

up to 1200,- and in addition, £500,- to 1000 annually, to pay to the local organization. Candidates who only the

Those who can pay half of the aforementioned funds have a much Lower chances of getting into parliament. Anyone who has nothing to contribute to election costs and only a small amount to the party coffers.

(He can, will never get into parliament!). Furthermore, also by no means disputed by the Conservative Party, as a

Election appeal in favor of their well-known Member of Parliament, Colonel 11) Banister: p. 154. , ) Evening Standard of January 4, 1080.

Stanley shows that they have always supported the Jews. In this election appeal, one addresses the Jews and points out pointing out that only Colonel Stanley, from the well-known noble family=gender of the derbies, a suitable candidate for them, since (Conservatives would always have taken Jewish interests into account).

Following this, we should not fail to mention something to address a point that clearly demonstrates how much even the highest in England is subordinate to the monetary principle.

It had long been known that honors and titles were awarded according to the amount of money that one gives to certain places. The amounts had been distributed. On March 6, 1919, the following appeared in the "Morning Post" article with the headline: "Democracy and Corruption." It referred to disputes in the upper house. brought to the public's attention, through which the public finally had a chance to learn Driving had been like buying and selling a title of nobility. One had to admit during the debate in the House of Lords, that awards were acquired through payments into the party treasury could be. The Morning Post canceled its biggest— Few react to such behavior. All due respect. The highest honors of England have vanished. One could say this. These processes amount to nothing less than secret corruption and bribery. designate fb

Even today, the practice in this regard is not yet said to have changed— have changed. We can appreciate how much the Jew longs for such things. will take advantage of circumstances. In a book, Ramsay will McDonald was accused of having someone because certain gifts can elevate someone to the rank of baron. Thus, he applies Belloc also spoke out against such a thing in one of his last books. Evil.

At the same point, Belloc points to the corruption of the Parliament. He is not surprised that the public which tacitly tolerates this, since the entire British mindset I see nothing illegal in it. Unfortunately, Belloc didn't give us any information. further details about the nature of the corruption were given. The act— It's boring that many members of parliament are also directors. of companies, but this should constitute the act of corruption. in a broader sense. Thus, in the year 1912 reports that even then there were 25 deputy directors in 41 public companies and 10 of the same type in Railway companies were. Apparently, this is now the case. It has become the norm. In the parliament of 1924/25, there were no Fewer than 694 companies represented by 766 directors. The House of Commons in 1932 contained 691 seats, and the one before that... In 1934, there were 581 members of parliament, representing 646 or 546 companies. represented. Lane rightly criticizes this situation and explains, that parliament is now only an interest group of society— fschämte, which in turn is controlled by Inden.

13) Jewish Chronicle of March 2, 1923.

24

ot

We will demonstrate below that the latter is correct try.

Lane further points to a situation that is not without dangers to sound governance. Minister and other top government members are taking leave after their return.
She takes up a director's position in the city upon her dismissal.
Just recently, such a case occurred: Maurice Hankey, who was Secretary of the Government for almost twenty years and thus one of the who held the most important post in the British state structure is after his resignation from this post in 1938 as He has become a director in the Suez Canal Company. Furthermore,
The rumors persist that he too is Jewish, or rather... has Jewish blood!).

u) Jewry über alles; August 1922, September 1929. Sunday Express of June 25, 1922.

246

Jews in Administration and Law

In the following, we will attempt to give the reader an impression from the Judaization of administration and legal life to
We know that skeptics with general concerns regarding this matter Claims will not be satisfactory and cannot be satisfied. As a result-
We want to use individual cases to demonstrate the necessary expertise.
to try to convey a view.

The Jewish influence is most evident in the city administration.
of Greater London. Sir Percy Simmons has been for years
He held high positions within it. From 1910 to 1919 he was...
City Councillor, Chairman of the London County Council in 1921/22
Councillor, five years chairman of the fire brigade, three years chairman-Chairman of the Public Control Company, two years as chairman of the General Purposes Committee, chairman for four years Committees for theatres and music halls and seven years before-(member of the Improvement Committee). We have seen that Sir Percy in 1922 held the important post of Chairman held the position of London County Council. In the next two For years, the position in question had not been held by a Jew. occupied, however the deputies were Jews, namely Miss Nettie Adler and Sir Isidore Salmon. Currently The latter holds, in addition to his aforementioned position in parliament, still chairman of other committees and institutions. Already However, in 1925, in the person of Sir Oscar Warburg, in turn, appointed a Jewish chairman. He, too, He has held many other important positions in the administration. Sir Max Bonn also held positions in the administration of London. Sir Samuel Joseph was a city councillor and Sheriff of London. He also twice held the office of Sheriff of London. Post of Mayor of the London Borough of Marylebone. Sir Philip Henriques held high positions in the City of London, during the war in the munitions warehouse: Ministry. Sir Frank Pollitzer was a city councilor and sheriff. from London. George Heilbut also held high positions. in the City of London. He was mayor and deputy mayor. Deputy Mayor of Westminster and Chairman of a large number of committees and other bodies. A. Instone was in the defense service of the General Staff during the war, later Mayor of the London borough of Paddington and City councilor. Isidore Jacobs previously held the office of a Sheriff and City Councillor in the City of London. Santo Seger was a justice of the peace and later mayor of the city. partly Shoreditch and Councillor J. Abrahams, his deputy, who became his successor the following year.

) Jewish Year Book (1937): p. 497. Who's who (1929): p. 1915. With everyone

Further findings are referred to the "Jewish Year Book" and "Who's who" reverted to the original source, so that an explicit citation is unnecessary.

247

Barrister Frederic Levy held high posts in the London administration, and Louis Lewis was mayor of the suburb of Islington. Marcus Lipton and J. Somper were also employed in the administration of London, the latter was mayor of Stepney, a district of the capital. Mrs. HL Nathan held important high positions in Great Britain. London, the solicitor A. Samuels was, among other things, chairman of the London County Council Public Control Committee, M. Streimer et al., Mayor of Westham, Mrs. Helena Roberts, Mayor of Stepney, and John Genese Mayor of Hackney. Finally, Barrister Jacques Abady, who was, among other things, mayor of Westminster. At the London municipal elections in 1937 came from sixteen twelve Jewish candidates were elected to the city parliament.

The previous persons were only a selection of Jews, who almost without exception held high positions after the war have taken place in Greater London. The arrival will by no means be delayed. A claim was raised that the list is complete, especially since with Taking into account the desire to rely only on completely reliable sources to resort to only confessional Jews in the above Bu- The collection is listed.

You can see the increasing influence of Judaism everywhere else in the administration as v ascertain. For example, Sir Ewart Levy was High Sheriff. from Leicestershire. Norton Courlander held, among other positions, the mayor's office in Richmond, further high administrative Post. J. Goldston was twice mayor of Stockton. and H. Howitt twice mayor of Richmond. Julius Jacobs held higher positions in Liverpool. The same applies to R. Levy in Glasgow. D. Lipson and B. Marks were Mayor of Cheltenham and Hove respectively, and also held other positions. other important offices. Montagu Lyons is the recorder in Grimsby and Samuel Morris, Mayor of Doncaster.

Even in ministries, we found and still find Jews in high positions. Positions, as Colonel Charles Cohen said in the Colonial Ministry, Sir A. Green in the Indian Administration. A. Hyamson in the Colonial Ministry, H. Infield in the Commission for the Referendum in Upper Silesia. Louis Infield was in the Ministry of Health and Nutrition high-ranking official and deputy chairman of the inter-Allied Investigation commission according to the Spa=Protocol in Nuhr: area, Reuben Kelf Cohen in the Ministry of Trade, B. Kisch and HM Kisch in the Indian Office, Sir Matthew Nathan in the Colonial Ministry, and so on. The list could also be compiled here. expand further.

The influence of the Jews is also noticeable in semi-official institutions. For example, Sir Eliot de Pass from Baron [Name] was chairman of the West India Committee until 1936. Miancroft of Mancroft is a member or chairman of so many similar institutions that they cannot possibly be named. A look at the relevant Bu- The composition of the "Who's Who" will confirm this. The same One can ask about Baron Hugo Hirst. He was, among other things, until recently President of the Federation of British Industry. A few weeks ago he received a special award. became, alongside four other major industrialists, a member of the committee to be appointed to advise the government on rearmament

248

Baron George May, Not:

Jewish, but married to a Jewish woman, chairman since 1932 of the Advisory Committee on Import Duties. Until 1931 He was director of the British Overseas Bank. Finally, they should also not Saul Doffmann, the former president of the trade chamber of Northampton, and Sir Benjamin Drage with His work for the Imperial Institute will be forgotten.

Based on experiences in Germany and the frequent occurrences...

Mark will not be surprised that the Jews also have a significant Cin- They have a flow in legal life. We know what position of power they hold. generally gain from this. However, this is more common in England.

That's the case. It's probably never happened before in all of history that a country given, in which lawyers play such a large role as in England. The very wording of the laws and the scriptural provisions alone is completely different from ordinary language. Many English countries, and one can almost say most, are opposed to the Ab=

The lawyer is helpless even when faced with the smallest contracts.

must be everywhere, and one cannot escape the impression defend himself as if it had been him who, over the course of the years- hundreds have deliberately brought about this situation. Apart from that...

The profession still promises annual income from this today.

Up to £20,000 - and more. All major positions in the Ber-

The administration will be staffed with lawyers. Even if we only limiting it to confessional Jews, many of them are located among the well-known barristers and solicitors. Among the

Among the former, we identify the following Jews, among others:

HM Abrahams, AH Berman, Sir Benjamin

Cohen, G. Cohen, Sir Herbert Cohen, Dr. Samuel

Daiches, Perey De Worms, AS Diamond, sir

Leonard Franklin, Adolph Langdon, Sir"

Leon, Sir Daniel Levy, CM Piciotto, W W. Sum=

merfield, G. Webber, Sir Perey Harris, Philip

Vos and RF Levy. Langdon, as treasurer of the Inner Temple and head of a kind of legal seminary hold important positions. G. Webber is due to fine work:

sentences in the legal journals "Law Times" and "Law

Journal on Administrative and International Law,

W. Summerfield and C. Piciotto for their publication-

The clearing of textbooks is well known. One only needs to look at it once.

to look at the list of barristers' names in order to know, how many Jews there are. Many, however, have already disguised themselves by adopting Old English names. Nothing=

249

Nevertheless, one can still find, for example, nine Levy, Levinson, etc.

or 17 Cohen or Cohn, to name just a few.

The same can be seen in the list of solicitors of London= Places. There, for example, are the Cohens with 15 and the Levys and similar ones represented with eight). Sir Percy Simmons and Sir George Lewis are owned by the solicitor firms Simmons and Simmons or Lewis and Lewis, who are among the most important of Great Britain.

The above information should provide some insight for the Judaization or influence by Jews in politics, e= have mediated between administration and legal life. The situation in the The economy is at least the same.

) The Law Lift (1938): pp. 502-508, 603.

250

Jewish Families

It is primarily certain Jewish families here whose power and influence extends far beyond the borders of England. The most famous is probably Rothschild's. Even before that We have explanations about the origin of this bank building. and the growth of its dominance in finance during of the 19th century. The development of the 20th year= The hundred years have promoted its further spread, so that despite The American banks have lost none of their global importance. The wealth is evident simply from the fact that the family Rothschild in April 1988 £10,000,- and in the following In December, £50,000 was donated for Jewish refugees! The head of the large, extended family is Lord Rothschild.

Besides that, there is also the Sassoon family. They are from They immigrated to England from India or Mesopotamia. Also Today it still has a presence there and in other parts of Asia- held a dominant position, so that one could refer to it as "the Rothschilds". of the East" speaks. Opium trade is one of their main trades. branches. Today you can find three different banking companies in the city. establish, which under the leadership of Sir Victor Sassoon and Sir Philip Sassoon, the politician who has been mentioned so often, is standing there. The influence of this family was likely that of Rothschild - if iber- main - hardly inferior:).

Another family with tremendous influence is that of Mond, the current Lord Melchett. The founder of the family. was Ludwig Mond, who moved from Hesse to England in 1866 land emigrated. He had invented a certain soda process. After a short time, he had a large work on the topic in England- He built a business realizing his invention and made a lot of money.

He soon became known as one of England's greatest industrialists and held many positions. Bolitho wrote a biography of him. He claimed to have been soft by nature, but hated, to make this apparent. From this perspective, one could also have To understand the following anecdote:

In a conversation about a new machine, Qud-Wig Mond, that it would cost him £2000. As soon as the machine Since it was worn out, he would have to replace it at great expense with another.
replace. "But if six men are no longer able to work,"
"So I can chase them after them in droves." To our Ve-
We cannot share Bolitho's view for long. We cannot Ludwig Mond's words can only be understood as they are used.
have been, especially since they perpetrated the abuse we have condemned-confirming the tenderness of people through the Jews. In 1909, he died.

His successor was his son Alfred. He was born in the year
Jewish Chronicle from 8th Vol and 2nd May | ea aeg Vol. pp. 66-68. Joe who (1930): p. 2825. Floor

Erchange (1938):
3) Politho: Twelve Jews, pp. 155-173.

Elected to Parliament as a Liberal in 1906, in 1922 he was
He was Minister of Health, and six years later he became Peer of England appointed').

Many who knew him called him a cruel man.
Be that as it may, - in any case, he ruthlessly built his Power inherited from his father. In 1923, green=
He identified the Amalgamated Anthracite Collieries and thereby grasped Gradually, almost all the coal mines of Wales were closed down, so that he, as chairman of this trust, 85% of the anthracite there-He controlled the pits. Besides that, he had an outstanding gin-river in the nickel industry.

He was a director of the British Dyes Corporation, which had a included a large part of the British paint industry. In the year In 1927 he succeeded in acquiring almost all British chemical factories in a corporation under the name Imperial Chemical Industries to summarize. The total number of factories represented five-thousands of different products. The stamp duty of the green=
The contract alone amounted to one million pounds. One can imagine to consider the power Lord Melchett represented.

In his later life, he was one of the most ardent Zionists.
and visited Palestine. After his stay there, "he saw Alfred Mond no longer holds an English state office.
man or a captain of industry." "I am a Palestinian."
"My heart is in Eretz Israel," he explained. When he

When the Jews in Tiberias were welcomed, he said: "These are my people."

From Palestine he wrote to his wife that "he had never been so full and lived entirely as a Jew." From this time on, one can regard him as a leading Zionist. Only a few... It has become known that he has raised fifteen million pounds= wanted to gather resources in order to bring his people back to Palestine, where he intended to settle down for the end of his life.

After his return from Palestine to England, he "forced" "The official's policy of Zionism." With all his He attempted to obtain the necessary funding from the British government using the means to implement his plans for the colonization of Palestine. She seemed surprised by his wild zeal and tried to escape his pressure. Gradually, they bestowed upon him the highest offices in the Jewish organizations= wear. He became president of the Zionists in England and to one of the chairmen of the Council of the Jewish Agency= selects which of the federal government in Geneva serves as the official liaison= The place is viewed with the Jews.

He employed all his powers of persuasion and power to convince Lord Beaverbrook in 1929 of his press campaign in the "Daily Express", a newspaper with one of the largest circulation figures in Great Britain, to dissuade. Lord Beaverbrook spoke of himself. lich with all determination against the government's policies in 9 Bolltho: Alfred Mond, pp. 127, 146, 148ff.

252

Palestine. When, in October 1930, the Jewish cause there was not being promoted vigorously enough in the opinion of the Zionists, Alfred Mond was accused of "not having informed the British government." forced them to fulfill their promise from the Balfour Declaration." Another case where it is admitted from an authentic source, that there is pressure from Jews on governments.

We would like to take this opportunity to participate in= share that our informant Bolitho has the family archives and 83 other personalities, such as ministers, trade unionists= leaders, secretaries, etc., in the collection of material for Available. The book has a very magnificent appearance. and was only published in 200 copies. is probably not wrong in assuming that Golitho is on Ver= on behalf of and for payment by the Mond family wrote.

Alfred Mond died in December 1930. His son Henry succeeded him in his position of power and is currently one of the one of the world's most powerful industrialists. He is the director or chairman— (resident in the following companies'):

Amalgamated Anthracite Collieries Ltd.
Barclays Bank Ltd.

Imperial Chemical Industries Ltd.

Industrial Finance and Investment Corporation Ltd.
International Nickel Company of Canada Ltd.

Mond Staffordshire Refining Co. Ltd.

Palestine Electric Corporation Ltd.

Power—Gas Corporation Ltd.

South Staffordshire Mond Gas Company Ltd.
Thames House Estate Ltd.

He is not represented in as many societies as other major figures in finance and the economy, but they belong to Several of these companies are among the largest in the world. For example, [the company] e.g. Imperial Chemical Industries Ltd. has a share capital of 95 million pounds, it controls about 50 other companies directly and also has extensive interests in other areas Enterprises. The Amalgamated Anthracite Collieries, whose Lawyers Oppenheimer and Nathan find they control approximately 80% the total anthracite production of Wales and is sole or main shareholder in a whole series of Valais mines. The share capital of this company amounts to £9,500,000.

Finally, we just want to mention the International Nickel Company of Canada Ltd. Its share capital amounts to to approximately 90 million dollars, their balance sheet as of December 31. In 1936, his assets amounted to $153,696,746. The international Nickel Co. owned:

5) Directory of Directors (1938): p. 1154. [Referring to this reference work]

Stock Exchange Year Book refers to Hufeland for all further details: taken into account, yes, that an explicit citation is unnecessary.

258

a) the total capital of International Nickel Co. Inc. (Incorporated in Delaware), Ontario Refining Co. Ltd. and

Mond Nickel Co. Ltd.;

b) approximately 100,000 acres (equivalent to approximately 160,000 Morgen) of mineral deposit rich land including about 15 copper and nickel mines in the district of Sudbury, Ontario, and

c) hydroelectric power plants, smelters, rolling mills, refineries, foundries, and research and testing laboratories in Canada, the United States and Great Britain (Great Britain").

Lord Melchett is not the only Jew in the coal and metal industries. Rather, we find others in both Hebrews, of whom we will only mention a few.

The de Pas family has a strong interest in coal. Industry in the British Empire. They can be found, among other things, as directors. in the following companies:

Amalgamated Collieries of South Africa Ltd.

Chandler's Limited
Coronation Collieries Ltd.
Springfield Collieries Ltd.
Association of States Ltd.

If one were to pick out just one of these companies, one would recognize the immense interconnectedness with other entities. The chairman of the Amalgamated Collieries... is Theodore Marks, of whom one might say, in consideration of his name until proven otherwise, he may assume that he too Jude is. The company was founded at that time to direct control in various important companies attain. The majority of fine antoriated capital of two Millions of pounds are in the hands of the Vereeniging Estates Ltd. Here is Louis Marks, from whom the same as above. Regarding Theodore Mark's statement, Chairman, and Besides de Pas, another Jew, Julius Weil, was the director. This company in turn merges with numerous other companies. large mining rights and other rights. The capital amounts to £1,750,000

In the metal industry, we also want to mention two Jews with significant influence, namely A.M. Baer and Sir George Leon. The former is director at:

Henry Gardner & Co.

Amalgamated Metal Corporation Ltd.
British Metal Corporation Ltd.

Metal Market and Exchange Company Ltd.

Sir George Leon is now also in Henry Gardner & Co.
Director, the same applies to the Amalgamated Metal Corporation.

.) Stock Exchange (1938): pp. 2708, 1421, 1487.

254

The latter is a holding company with authorized capital of £5,600,000. —. The assets consist mainly of from all shares of British Metal Corporation Ltd., which owns an auto has a capital of five million pounds. The latter con= Brametta SA, registered in Switzerland, British Metal Stockholders Trust Ltd., Huntingdon Heberlein and Co. Ltd. and partly National Alloys Ltd. and Light Alloys Ltd.

Jews also exerted a considerable influence in shipping. ascertain. This applies especially to the family of Sir John. Ellerman. The founder was the one who died in July 1930. Sir John Ellerman. At his death, he was considered one of the considered one of the so-called "Big Five" in shipping. The Times, in its obituary, describes him as a financial genius who directly controlled a total tonnage of 1,500,000 tons I have. Besides that, he also had strong interests in other ships. Lines such as Cunard and Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation.

Besides his dominant position in shipping, he also had great influence in the brewing industry and in the press We will discuss the latter in more detail below. His after= The estate was officially set at £86,684,994, — upon which an inheritance-Corporate tax of approximately 18 million pounds was payable. The main part and the administration of his assets went to his son, the current Sir John Ellerman. The one from his The companies controlled by the father announced that, generally speaking, nothing would have changed through the death of the elder Sir John"), Dem- The son also retained his father's position of power. He is currently the director of the following companies:

Audley Trust Ltd.

Brewery and Commercial Investment Trust Ltd.
Debenture Securities Investment Company Ltd.
Ellerman Lines Ltd.

Ellerman Property Trust Ltd.

Ellerman's Wilson Line Ltd.

London Publishing Co. Ltd.

Apparently, Sir John Ellerman is at least as good.

A tiger businessman like his father, since he had already made his way through the Inheritance tax reduced to 18 million pounds – may amount to approximately 40 million pounds over the course of five years increased.

Another influential Jewish family, though not of the importance of the aforementioned, is that of Instone – formerly Einstein. They are three brothers: Sir Samuel, Captain Alfred and Theodore. Especially the first one was great at ships. Travel, coal, and aviation. His [event] took place in November 1937.

7) Times from July 18th and 21st, August 16th, 1933, September 80th, 1986.

255

His death aroused great public sympathy. Sir Samuel Stone was chairman of the Askern Coal and Iron Company Ltd.

Bedwas Navigation Colliery Comp. Ltd.

S. Instone and Co. Ltd. with a capital of £1,500,000.

Furthermore, he was the director of the British Benzene and Coal Distillation Ltd.

Imperial Airways Ltd.

Imperial Airways (Continental) Ltd. (as our Air-hansa) with five million pounds of authorized capital.

Today, his brother Theodore is his successor in the aforementioned positions. four companies, including as chairman or chairman. Director. The other brother, Alfred, is deputy chairman-senior or director in the same companies.

Another Jewish family that dominates the oil industry is Those of Samuel or Lord Bearstead.

Marcus Samuel must be considered the founder of the family.
He became. He was initially the owner of a small shop.
in Houndsditch in east London. His main trade consisted of Painted shells; later other items were added. With As his wealth grew, so did his—drawings, and he took over the shipping of petroleum from Russia turned to the Far East, which over the years became a
It was a great success. Samuel brought the participants in this trade.
He also brought together other interested companies and founded a company with the financial assistance from the House of Rothschild, which now extends across the entire Shell Transport and Trading, a globally widespread and well-known company, was a major pla Company with a capital of £1,800,000. The name Shell means shell and was the original trade item of Samuel borrowed. Later, this comfort had a hard time against the to compete with the Dutch Petroleum Co. The fight ended with the merger of the two companies.

Samuel was already in the Nitterftand in 1898.
lifted because two of his tugboats ran aground in Port Said had refloated a British warship that had been damaged. In In 1891 he was a London city councillor, and a year later sheriff.
and in 1902/03 Lord Mayor of London.
In 1921, Samuel was ennobled as Baron Bearstead of Maidstone was raised. Six years later he died. His son followed him in his title and in all his positions. Currently, he is he was chairman and director of the following important company—
Companies:

M. Samuel & Co. Ltd.

Alliance Assurance Co. Ltd
Anglo-Mexican Petroleum Co. Ltd.
Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Co. Ltd.
Asiatie Petroleum Co. Ltd.

256

Afiatic Petroleum Co. (Federated Malay States) Ltd.
Afiatie Petroleum Co. (India) Ltd

Asiatic Petroleum Co. (North China) Ltd.
Afiatie Petroleum Co. (Philippine Islands) Ltd.
Asiatie Petroleum Co. (Siam) Ltd.

Asiatic Petroleum Co. (South China) Ltd.
Afiatie Petroleum Co. (Straits Settlements) Ltd.

Bataafsche Petroleum Maatschappij.

British Malayan Petroleum Co, Ltd.

Eagle Oil and Shipping Co. Ltd.

Egyptian Engineering Stores SA

Elba Tinsplate Co. Ltd.

Lloyds Bank Ltd.

London and Holyrood Trust Ltd.

London and National Property Co. Ltd.

Nineteen twenty-eight Investment Trust Ltd.

Nineteen twenty-nine Investment Trust Ltd.

Perham Investment Trust Ltd.

St. Helens Estates Ltd.

Samuel Estates Ltd.

Samuel Samuel and Co. Ltd.

Sarawak Oilfields Ltd.

Shell Company (Hellas) Ltd.

Shell Company (Malta) Ltd.

Shell Company of Australia Ltd.

Shell Company of Bulgaria Ltd.

Shell Company of Esthonia Ltd.

Shell Company Klaipeda (Memel) Ltd.

Shell Company of Latvia Ltd.

Shell Company of Lithuania Ltd.

Shell Company of New Zealand Ltd.

Shell Company of Nigeria Ltd.

Shell Company of Portugal Ltd.

Shell Company of Turkey Ltd.

Shell Company of Weft Africa Ltd.

Shell Company (Pacific Islands) Ltd.
Shell Company (Porto Rico) Ltd.

Shell Company (West Indies) Ltd.
Shell=Mex Argentina Ltd.

Shell=Mex Chile Ltd.

Shell=Mex Uruguay Ltd.

Shell Overseas Exploration Co. Ltd.

Shell Transport and Trading Co., Ltd.
Société Anonyme Astra=Romana. .
Société Anonyme des Pétroles Jupiter.
Société Francaife Shell de Tunifie.
Société Shell de Maroe.

Venezuelan Oil Concessions Ltd.

17,257

Judaization of the Oil industry

Of all these many companies, one is already a "shell".
Transport and Trading Company, Ltd." as a world power= to watch as a holding company for many other sub-
The company's authorized capital is only £43,000,000.
Therefore, in relation to the active members, it should only be considered a small number.
Two Jews are directors of this company, namely...
Peter Montefiore Samuel and Sir Robert Waley Cohen. The latter is, in turn, chairman and director of The following companies:

Agricultural Mortgage Co. of Palestine Ltd.
Anglo-Egyptian Oilfields Ltd
Anglo=Mexican Oil and Shipping Co. Ltd.
Anglo=Mexican Petroleum Co. Ltd.
Anglo=Saxon Petroleum Co. Ltd.

Asiatic Petroleum Co. (India) Ltd.

Asiatic Petroleum Co. Ltd.

Baldwins Ltd.

Bataash Petroleum Company.

British Malayan Petroleum Co. Ltd
Canadian Eagle Oil Co. Ltd.

Eagle Oil and Shipping Co. Ltd.

English and Scottish Investors Ltd.

New Schibaieff Petroleum Co. Ltd.

North Caucasian Oil Fields Ltd.
Palestine Corporation Ltd.

Palestine Publishing Co. Ltd.

Shell Company of Australia Ltd.

Shell Company of New Zealand Ltd.
Shell Company of Portugal Ltd.
Shell=Mex Argentina Ltd.

Shell=Mex Chile Ltd.

Shell=Mex Uruguay Ltd.

Shell Transport and Trading Co. Ltd.
Société Commerciale et Industrielle de Naphte Mazont.
United British Oil Fields of Trinidad Ltd.

Besides these two Jewish giants in the oil industry—
Naturally, all other sizes pale in comparison, such as BB Maisel.
and Johanna Maisel. Both are directors of Maisel's.
Petroleum Trust and Orient Oil and Finance Co. Ltd.
(£1,500,000 capital). The latter is also a director of the Romana Petroleum Co. Ltd. The interests of the two Maisels
They mainly focus on Romanian oil.

But in the end, Sir should not be the last in this line of powerful oilmen.
William Garthwaite will be forgotten. After a flight=
According to A. Leese, he is half-Jewish, since his mother was Jewish.

258

His father, however, was an Aryan. He himself was to be married to a Jewish woman again, as was his son, who married the daughter of the full Jew Lord Duvin is his wife. Therefore, his fine family is almost complete.
to be considered fully Jewish. Sir William is involved in the following activities:
Companies interested:

British Controlled Oilfields Ltd.

Central Area Exploitation Company (Venezuela) Ltd

Lautaro Nitrate Company Ltd.

Oertz International Streamline Rudder Comp. Ltd.

The number of companies is not as impressive as those mentioned above, but they are extremely concerning-tungful. British Controlled Oilfields owns about two-thirds of oil production in Central and South America. It is generally known that the oil production of these areas is among the most important. The world counts. The majority of the shares are owned by Dri- The government is fine. The authorized capital is $27,500,000.

The Lautaro Nitrate Company controls a large part of nitrates in Chile and has an authorized capital of over Two million pounds. Another director of this company His name is Paul Wirtz. He is anything but English. and therefore undoubtedly belongs to a Jew.

Judaization of insurance companies

Jews also have a significant presence in insurance companies. dominant position. Thus we find Lionel de Rothschild. as chairman, Lord Bearstead and the half-Jewish Lord Roseberry as directors and the Jew A. Levine as General Manager at Alliance Assurance Co. with a car= raised capital of £5,450,000. The following companies are found absorbed into:

Noyal Farmers and General Insurance Co.
Provincial Insurance Co

Salop Fire Office.

Shropshire and North Wales Assurance Co. Ltd.
Imperial Insurance Co. Ltd.

Imperial Life Insurance Co.

Alliance Marine and General Assurance Co. Ltd.
Provident Life Office.

Economie Life Assurance.

and others.

This and another insurance company, namely the Guardian Eastern Insurance Company Ltd., will probably follow the according to the Jews' own statements and their intended purpose as purely Jewish. The founding is based on the following fact= underlying behavior:

For years, many insurance companies in England had refused, to accept Jews as insured persons. Some companies were even They went so far as to exclude any liability in their general terms and conditions. to refuse to pay for damages if Jews were involved. Jews had and still have difficulties obtaining their insurance. to accommodate them in certain societies. A member of the The Ministry of Trade commented on this custom in 1936. a presentation before the relevant department of the office for Compulsory insurance. According to this view, one would have to have such insurance. This tiresome attitude must be brought to an end. His exit= The tours were met with the approval of the chairman of the committee, the Jew Sir Felix Cassel.

The Jews protested in groups against the persecution imposed on them. The different treatment applied. A member One of them, Sir Moses Montefiore, had therefore already The Alliance Affordance Company was founded some time ago to to enable his fellow race to obtain insurance. The Guardian Eastern Insurance Company was founded for the same reason. has been. The "Jewish Chronicle", the official organ of the Jews, points out in various ways and further to the fact that leading Jews, such as Nathan Lafki, AJ Belisha, Colonel Sir Herbert Jeffel, SJ Cohen, Montagu Gluck= jtcin and other directors of the company free and dic company would be purely Jewish. The capital amounts to £1,000,000 The first three Jews mentioned are still directors there today. But we also find it everywhere else in the insurance industry.

260

Jews in leading positions. At least two Indians are, namely Sir George Schuster and Sir Charles Selig= man directors in the Commercial Union Assurance Co., Ltd. The authorized capital amounts to £3,750,000. She has with the Over time, numerous companies have been acquired or controlled by the- The same. This includes:

Nottinghamshire and Midland Fire Infurance Co. Ltd.

Straits Fire Insurance Co. Ltd.

West of England Fire and Life Insurance Co.

Colonial Assurance Co.

Accident Insurance Co. Ltd.

British General Insurance Co. Ltd.

Edinburgh Assurance Co. Ltd.

National Insurance Co. of Great Britain.

Palatine Insurance Co. Ltd.

Union Assurance Soc. Ltd.

West of Scotland Insurance Office Ltd.

Ocean Accident and Guarantee Corporation Ltd.

and others.

These aforementioned companies contain other companies summarized, which is impossible to list. Thus, one of the Companies such as British General Insurance Co. Ltd, The following companies have been acquired or are controlled by the same:

Northern Equitable Insurance Co. Ltd.

Cosmopolitan Insurance Corporation Ltd.

London and Midland Insurance Co. Ltd.

British and European Insurance Co. Ltd.

National Accident Compensation Co.

The Jew HR Mosenthal is a director at the London and Lancashire Insurance Co. This insurance company controls alone, 23 enterprises of their kind in the Empire, and has a Capital of £5,000,000, -. EA Mosenthal is Director in the Marine Insurance Co. Ltd., with a capital of £1,000,000, -, and Maurice Stern is with Norwich Union Life Insurance employed in a leading position at the company. The Jew Sir Ewart Levy holds a senior position at State Assurance Co. Ltd. His close relative, the aforementioned A. Levine, is except in other business enterprises, chairman or director the following insurance companies:

Aviation and General Insurance Co. Ltd

National Boiler and General Insurance Co. Ltd.

3) Jewish Chronicle of October 27 and November 3, 1922.

261

He also has a big name in insurance in other respects. For example, he was President of Chartered Insurance in 1937 Institute. The aforementioned Jewish member of parliament, Colonel H. Day is the chairman of Metropolitan Re-Insurance Co. Ltd. and Mutual Property Life and General Insurance. In the Furthermore, he is chairman of seven other economic associations. enterprises.

The Goschen family also plays a major role in insurance. The family's founder came from Germany. The head of the family is now Viscount Goschen. His brother, Sir William Henry Goschen is chairman of four Ber- Security companies. We owe A. Leese a debt of gratitude in one of his Pamphlets indicated that the family was Jewish. Lord Riddel, however, explicitly stated this in his diary. (merft?). However, we have concerns regarding this finding, since one of the ancestors of the Göschen family, as they call themselves in German= land called, already in 1609 Protestant clergyman in Saxony was fine fof).

2) Riddel: ©. 7.

8) Elliot: Vol. I, p. 1.

262

Judaization of the food industry

The food industry, too, is likely to be largely in be in the hands of the Jews. Here we can also, of course, like Only ever mention the most well-known ones.

Sir George Schuster is chairman of the major corporations:
Home and Colonial Stores Ltd.
Lipton Ltd.
Maypole Dairy Co. Ltd.
Allied Suppliers.

Anyone who has ever been to London will attest that there is no district where you cannot find branches of this company. various companies. The capital of the first company Its value is £4,500,000. It controls two other companies. Furthermore, it has acquired all shares of two other companies. its ownership. The Maypole Dairy Co. has a capital of three Million pounds. She has, among other things, direct control over three others. The company owns over 1000 branches.

This area also includes Lyons and Co. Ltd., which also owns a multitude of branches. This company has the Ver= Driven by foodstuffs and also operates restaurants and Hotels. The capital amounts to £9,925,000. The already existing The frequently mentioned Sir Ffidore Salmon is chairman, while= other Jews, such as Harry Salmon, Maurice Sal= mon, Julius Salmon, Major M. Gluckfstein, B. Glück= stein, BA Salmon, JM Glückstein and SJ Sal= Our directors are. It is considered a purely Jewish company. to be viewed. N

In addition, this firm has direct control in Black and Green Ltd., James Hayes and Sons Ltd., and WH and FJ Horniman and Co. Ltd. Furthermore, it is the owner of two one of London's largest and most modern hotels, the Strand Palace Hotel and the Cumberland Hotel.

In this context, it should not go unmentioned that the Sugar refining industry controlled by a single company, namely Tate and Lyle Ltd., is controlled. It is likely to be almost a They have a monopoly. The capital amounts to £6,200,000. The President The owner of this company, Sir Charles Lyle, is not Jewish, he has but she married a Jewish woman, namely Edith Levy by birth. The son from this marriage has since... Daughter of a major industrialist and member of parliament, Sir John Jarvis, married.

268

Jews everywhere

Furthermore, the Jews also constitute a power in the tobacco industry For example, BES Baron is Chairman of Carreras Ltd. Although this Trust is not as large as Imperial Tobacco, despite= He must therefore be considered significant. His capital amounts to £3,825,000,-, he controls

Alexander Bogulavffy Ltd.

Baron Cigarette Machinery Co. Ltd.
RJ Lea Ltd.

Ray and Co. Ltd.

City Tobacco Ltd.

Baron is, as his donations to Jewish refugees show, a particularly zealous promoter of Jewish interests.

Also among the directors of the world-renowned company Lever Brothers and Unilever Ltd. are likely to at least the van den
The Bergh family was Jewish. There were three of them, namely A. van Bergh) as deputy chairman, and JP and SJ van den Bergh as directors. A. van den Bergh has a large sum was donated to the fund for Jewish refugees.
provision made, and besides, this name is not unusual for Jews. The company has a capital of £141,418,750.
and controls most of the soap and margarine-ee of the British Empire, Europe and other parts of the elt.

In electricity, one Gude, namely Lord Hirst, holds a virtually dominant position. He is almost without exception Chairman, in a few cases director of the following companies:

General Electric Co. Ltd.

Anglo-Argentine Electric Co. Ltd.

British Electrical and Allied Manufactures Ass. (Inc.).
Electric Development and Securities Trust Ltd.
Electricity Company of Macclesfield Ltd.
Frinton=on=Sea and Diftrict Electric Light and Power Co. Ltd.
General Electric Company of China Ltd.

General Electric Company of India Ltd.

Général Electric de France Ltd.

Lemington Glass Works Ltd.

Madeira Electric Lighting Co. Ltd.

Palestine Electric Corporation Ltd.

PirellicGeneral Cable Works Ltd.

Steel Conduit Co. Ltd.

Travancore Minerals Co. Ltd.

The significance of the individual companies may vary. This can be seen, for example, to name just two, the General Electric Co. has a capital of £9,600,000 and 264

Controlled 16 companies in the mother country and empire. The Electric Development and Securities Trust Ltd. has control over 20 other companies.

The Jews admit that the fur, shoe, furniture: and tailors or the ready-to-wear industry exclusively in their hands is.

According to their own figures, about 40,000 workers are employed in the fur industry, 20,000 of them in London alone. It There are many small businesses that process the furs and alleviate hunger—Paying wages. It is impossible for those in need. Authorities to determine whether the 48-hour work week is being observed. According to the Jewish report, a Jew in particular is responsible for this and so= to blame social conditions, which are a significant plays a role in this trade. In 1930, it was officially declared left—It has been established that almost 33¼% of the fur used in the fur industry employed workers receive less than the minimum wage).

Similar conditions prevail in the shoe industry. There are numerous factories in north London, whose owners almost exclusively Jews were found. Only insofar as the enterprises members of the economic association find the working conditions tolerable. However, many companies are outside this—agreement. But among the outsiders, there is abhorrence—most decent working conditions :).

It's especially bad in the furniture industry, which is also almost It is exclusively in the hands of the Jews. In London alone It employs approximately 50,000 workers.

Large industries sell their products directly to the retailers, who in turn are almost without exception Jewish. These are so numerous that, in order to conduct business, They constantly have to undercut each other on price. The victim, The worker is the one on whom everything is shifted. There is in this There are no legal regulations for minimum wages in the commercial sector and Working hours. This is how starvation wages are paid. Many companies

They allow their workers to work up to 60 hours per week for the lowest possible wages. They work for pay. The sanitary facilities are inadequate. The most modest requirements. The doors in front of the toilets are removed so that the workers wouldn't be there for too long— Hold on. The week consists of seven workdays for the staff. meetings. All this, as the Jews themselves must admit, goes into a non-Jewish district in front of him and calls for anti-Jewish protests= It highlights, as well as representing a degradation of people. dar').

Recent investigations revealed that nothing has changed in these conditions. The union has taken on N's question and recently gave a ewi J Semifp renek from February 19, 1937.

ewi Ehreniele of February 12, 1937.

Jewi Chroniele of February 5, 1937.

265

Press report issued. It was subsequently determined that "furniture industry and retail trade were almost exclusively in Jewish hands."

Only a very small number of Jewish employers

"From a total of hundreds" they would have received fair wages.

paid and humane working conditions were introduced. Many of These manufacturers would have given large sums for the Jewish refugees=

Lingen from Central Europe were given. These were

People who "recklessly from the beginning to the end of the year exploiting the labor of people in the furniture industry would have. We feel justified in asserting that the by such employers for such charitable purposes—

They subscribed sums from $100 to $1,000 — a kind of 'conscience'.

'Show money,' or make a loud gesture to save face."

If workers had been members of the union,

They would be forced to leave, or they would be in a state of refusal.

They were dismissed. Therefore, there would be no reason to suspect...

such treatment, getting upset about the Nazis and dealing with them to combat the claim that they have no freedom of conscience admitted. l

Finally, it had to be established that starvation wages were being paid and the workers were working eighty hours per week including

They would have to work on Sundays. It is now the Ministry of Labour.

I was called and asked to intervene. The result

(could not yet be determined). We hardly believe that

A remedy will be found. Because ever since the mass immigration...

These conditions were known to the Jews around the year 1900.

without anything being done despite occasional protests.

These publications were very unpleasant for the Jews.
In the subsequent meeting of the Chamber of Deputies Jews consider this extremely unpleasant and gave expressing his dismay that for the first time in England, from the perspective of the trade union, in light of difficulties between employees and employers the race issue in the has been brought to the forefront.

One of the biggest names in the furniture industry is likely Sir Benjamin.
Drage is the director and technical advisor in a large company.
Furniture company, Drages Ltd., ift. .

Already mentioned above in connection with the immigration of the Jews around the
At the turn of the century, according to official investigations, it was determined= stated that the Jews alone were the masters in the tailoring industry.
The garment industry. Even back then, the conditions were... among the working classes, who mainly work from home
Those employed were considered inhuman. This has been the case.
Nothing has changed today. The number in this industry
The number of employees is likely around 25,000. The owners of Companies make huge profits from this. That's how they sell.
In shops in west London, for example, costumes for 94.50

Jewish Chronicle, December 16, 1088.

266

Schilling, which is made in the city of the world for 6 Schilling find'), And more and more factories are still being built built by Jews in the garment industry.

Here too, a Jew is undeniably considered to be in the leading role.
see, namely Sir Montague Burton, who was also a
He is a zealous Zionist. He is the chairman and managing director of Burton (Montague) Ltd.

Burton (Montague) Estates Ltd.
Burton (Montague) Shop Properties Ltd.

The capital of the first company amounts to £5,500,000.
It maintains shops in almost all major squares in England,
A total of 621. The factories are located in Leeds and in Walkden, Lancashire.

In what unscrupulous way did the Indians maintain their monopoly in the tailoring and clothing industry during the World War that they have exploited this is evident from their own statements.
One of the leading Hebrews in it boasted that what capital he made from the production of uniforms

I have, which only lasted a month. "It was fantastic," so he swore, "money for dirt."

Jews also played a significant role in the hairdressing industry, especially in London. holds a dominant position. Wages are also subject to: kept low and forced the employees to work twelve working hours.

It was rightly stated some time ago in a specialist publication for Hairdressers were made aware that such behavior
9 e how Hitler and Mosley came to power would have to).

We would like to expressly point out once again that the preceding statements concerning fur, shoe, furniture industry and the hairdressing trade, a series of articles in the "Jewish Taken from the Chronicle. Further information from
We have completely disregarded anti-Semitic sources here as well. Visibly left untouched, because the others are already shocking enough.

Also in the area of chain stores such as Wool
The Jews play a major role in this. We only want one. Name the corporation, namely Marks & Spencer. Chairman and Managing Director Simon Marks, Deputy Chairman the and Managing Director JM Sieff, Directors Norman Laski and Harry Sacher. Member of Parliament LS Amery, probably a Jew, and the Marquess of Mil: Ford Haven finds other directors. The lawyers find Arthur Benjamin and Cohen. The company's capital The total is £3,300,000,- and 226 stores have been opened so far in Groß

5 Sally Chronicle from January 22nd and 29th, 1997.

*) Tewifh Chronicle from November 25, 1921. Banifter: p. 187.

7. Ewish Chronicle, February 26, 1937. Hairdresser's Weekly Journal, [date missing]. September 18, 1934.

267

opened in Britain. The Harrods group splits into Harrods Ltd. and Harrods (Buenos Aires) Ltd. The joint The telegram address shows, among other things, how close these two are to each other. are connected. The former, however, closes the well-known department stores. from Harrods, Dickins and Jones, DH Evans & Co. Ltd. and another. On the board of directors of Harrods (Buenos Aires) Ltd. fist the financially powerful Jew Baron d'Erlanger, who is certainly also involved in Harrods Ltd., even if he goes to outwardly, it does not stand out with regard to the same. Furthermore,

Fraser describes this corporation as being entirely Jewish.
(draws).

8) Fraser: p. 1%.

268

Jewish-dominated finance

Gradually the reader will realize that there is almost no area in There is England where the Jew is not in power or his... exerted and continues to exert influence. For example, Sir Elly Ka played Kadoorie and his late brother, Sir Ellis Kadoorie, in previous years played a major role in the financial dealings of Far East, and Sir Edward Samuel had great inter-
They ate in wool. The former now works as a philanthropist. and still appears as such in Who's Who. In addition, he has the name of Sir Leonard Cohen has a great ring in India. He is the director of the Bengal and North Western Railway.
Co. Ltd. (Capital £4,789,000) and Rohilkund and Kumaon Railway Co. Ltd. (£800,000, -).

How strong the dominance of the Hebrews is in finance,
This is evident from the following remark, which was recently made in a-
The following article has been published: "It is said that the Jews have no their own country. But they have one. It is the London Voorze."

First, it might be of interest to know what role the Jews played in the Playing the Bank of England. This is extremely difficult-to provide, since this institute enjoys special legal privileges from olden times, after which there is practically no need to publish anything.
Thus, there is no public register in the Somerset House about the Shareholders. In any case, one must distinguish oneself from the Geto free up thanks, for example, that the British government has a majority in it. Not even the British Treasury is in the mix.
represented by the administration, and one probably doesn't go too far in the Be= claim that the Bank of England is predominantly run by men is managed by international financial companies.
In any case, until recently there was a member on the board of directors.
of the aforementioned Goschen family. At present
It also includes CJ Hambro as a member of the Jewish family.
of the same name. The family has a great reputation.
in international finance. At the beginning of 1939, her Bant-infthiut Hambros Bank Ltd. celebrates its centenary. The
The head of the Jamilie is Sir Erie Hambro, who, along with others, family members in many economic societies is located and has a major influence in the city. Unknown
This also includes the role of the Rothschild family in the Bank of England.

Lord Bearstead is together with two other Jews, Colonel FD and Peter Montefiore Samuel, Director the important bank of Samuel & Co. The capital of Two million pounds cannot even remotely have the influence reflect the impact this company has on international finance exercises this right. The same applies to the companies Samuel Montagu & Co. with the Jewish directors EL Franklin, LS Montagu, SE Franklin, Lord Swaythling, CM Frantfin, and Japheth and Co. with the Jews Saemy Japheth as forerunners and the Jews Paul Lindenberg, Max Sontheim and Gottfried Loewenstein as directors We will see the gold industry down below, which consists of decisive importance of these last three companies together with Rothschild and the brokers in Goldbarren Montagu and Goldsmid have them. The field is also large. Jewish company von Erlangers Ltd. (capital £2,000,000, -) with Baron Emile Erlanger as chairman and Baron Frederic d' Erlanger and Leo FA d Erlanger as whose representatives. The individual family members have other major Interests in:

269

Beira Railway Company Ltd. (Chairman)

British South Africa Company (Vice President)

Channel Tunnel Comp. Ltd. (Chairman)

Forestry Land, Timber and Railways Comp. Ltd. (Chairman.)

Pauling and Co. Ltd. (Chairman)

Rhodesia Railway Trust Ltd. (Chairman)

Sterling Trust Ltd. (Chairman)

Chilian Stores Ltd. (Director)

Harrods (Buenos Aires) Ltd. (Director)

Leach's Argentine States (Deputy Chairman)

South America Stores Ltd. (Director)

British Airways Ltd. (Director)

Hillman's Airways Ltd. (Director)

Helenie and General Trust Ltd. (Director)

International Sleeping Car (Director)

Share Trust Ltd. (Director)

What can be determined for this family also applies to the others mentioned above. All are involved in many societies. step and almost all individual ventures are, such as the British South Africa Co., of great importance. In the latter There are also two other Jews in the company, namely Sir Edmund Davis and Sir Ernest Oppenheimer as Directors are active. We will discuss this company in more detail later. We will report below. Only this much can be said in advance, that it has a capital of £6,750,000 and practically all controlled British colonies. Another well-known banker= The family is that of Sir Albert Stern, whose parent company Stern Brothers is. Sir Albert is director of other companies. Companies such as:

Bank of Romania Ltd.

British French Discount Bank Ltd

Midland Bank Ltd.

Midland Bank Executor and Trustee Co. Ltd.

Ottoman Bank Ltd. (£10,000,000, -)

Steaua Romana

Steaua Romana Société Anonyme pour l'Industrièrie du Pétroleum

270

Furthermore, Sir Max

Bonn, who was chairman of three other companies, also belongs to the ranks of great financial or director is in:

Helbert, Wagg & Co. Ltd.

Bank of London and South America (£4,500,000, -)

Brazilian Trust and Loan Corporation Ltd.

Helbert Wagg and Co. (New York) Ltd.

Sir Louis Sterling is also among them. Besides other companies' interests in:

National Industrial Credit Corporation Ltd.

Bankers' Commercial Security Ltd.
Mercantile Credit Company Ltd.

Sir L. Franklin is a partner in the well-known bank in the City of Keyser (A.) and Co. Other members of this company are the Jews J.A. Franklin, G.L. Schlesinger, E.A. Franklin, CM Keyser. The company has significant interests in food is eaten in many companies. Henry Kahn is chairman and director of ten companies of all kinds, and the family by Sir Osmond Elim d'Arigdor-Goldsmid shows her influence through Sir Osmond's involvement in the following companies is a sitter or director:

Anglo-Chinese Finance and Trade Corporation Ltd
CRE Trust, Ltd. N

General Funds Investment Trust Ltd.

Land Revenues Trust, Ltd.

Peking Syndicate, Ltd.

Chinese Central Railways, Ltd.

Royal Insurance Company, Ltd.

Sir Sigismund Mendl, once a member of the war Ministry, is well-known in the financial world. He is also known in other areas. Director of National Discount Comp. six other companies Ltd. Together with him, there are leading positions in this company. the Jews Francis Goldsmid and Sir Charles Seligman. The capital amounts to £2,700,000. Sir's brother Sigismund Mendl, Sir Charles Mendl, is Press attaché at the British Embassy in Paris.

Sir Charles Seligman is a partner in the very well-known bank Seligman Brothers, another fine partner, find the Jews DE Seligman, Leon Rueff, Louis Fleischmann, VS Seligman, DA Seligman, RJ Seligman. The company has a great influence on the economy.

The so-called "Five Sizes" of banks include Jews also held leading positions. In the National Provincial Bank Ltd. (capital £60,000,000) is Sir Victor Schuster, in Lloyds Bank Ltd. (Capital £74,000,000, -) Lord Bearstead, at Midland Bank Ltd. (capital £45,200,000) Sir Albert

Star, in Westminster Bank Ltd. (capital £38,000,000)
 Lord Goschen and Sir George Schuster, and in Barclays
 Bank (capital £20,000,000, -) Lord Melchett.

This list, which of course only represents a fraction
 The Jews in the finance department must be used for our purposes.
 suffice, since we don't have a book about the Judaization of the British We write about finance. But we hope that it convinces the reader.
 has said that the stock exchange in London really is "the land of the Jews" Seems too fine. Exactly the same is true in the gold and diamond industry.
 industry is the case.

Gold and diamonds

Here too, we can only limit ourselves to mentioning a few.
 To list just a few of the leading Indians, in order to give the reader a to convey a small concept about their far-reaching influences.

Sir George W. Albu is Chairman and Chief Executive of the General Mining and Finance Corporation Ltd., furthermore= sitting or on the supervisory board of Barclays Bank (Dominion, Colonial and Overseas)

 Durban Roadport Deep Ltd.

East Rand Proprietary Mines Ltd.

Van Ryn Gold Mines Estate Ltd.

West Rand Consolidated Mines Ltd.

West Witwatersrand Areas Ltd.

The General Mining and Finance Corporation, whose London office Managing Director and Chairman Leopold Albu is, has a capital of £1,500,000. She has strong interests in various areas.
 other mines, etc. The capital of the Durban Roadport Deep
 The amount is £1,200,000,-, of East Rand Proprietary Mines Ltd.
 £1,800,000, -, Van Ryn Gold Mines Estate Ltd., which ver= has absorbed various other gold mines, 2,250,000,-, the shipyard Rand Consolidated Mines Ltd. £2,150,000,- etc. The last=
 The aforementioned company, for example, in turn possesses significant interests.
 in Violet Consolidated Gold Mining Co. Ltd., West Rand Mines

Ltd. and a number of other mines. Members of the London Committee members of the latter society include Leopold Albu, Julius Friedlander, CS Goldman, etc.

The aforementioned Leopold Albu, the director or chairman seated in a row of the same societies as Sir George Albu is, furthermore has significant interests in International Russian Corporation Ltd.

Phoenix Oil and Transport Co. Ltd.
Phoenix Oil Products Ltd., the latter two with a capital of 24,500,000, – respectively.
£650,000
Ludwig Ehrlich is Director or Chairman of

Anglo Canadian Trustees Ltd

Associated Mining and Finance Co. Ltd.

Blackwater Mines Ltd.

Carmen Valley Gold Mines Ltd.

Confolidated Gold Fields of New Zealand Ltd.

HE Proprietary Ltd.

Harmony Lands and Minerals Ltd., which includes The Harmony State with a land holding of approximately 186,492 acres, as well as the mineral rights in other large parts of the territory belong

18 | 3 278

Luipaards Lead Eftate and Gold Mining Ltd

Palmarejo and Mexican Gold Fields Ltd.

Siberian Syndicate Ltd.

Weft Spaarwater Ltd. with an authorized capital of E 2,000,000, – etc. , and Julius Friedlander functions in the same capacity in Bellsbank Efstate and Exploration Co. Ltd.

East Rand Proprietary Mines Ltd. (Capital £1,800,000, –)

East Rietfontein Syndicate Ltd.

Geduld Proprietary Mines Ltd. (Capital £1,500,000)

Johannesburg Consolidated Investment Co., among others
Directors include: GJ Joel, HJ Joel, Sir
Robert N. Kotze, Gustav Imroth, et al. On this company
We will discuss this in more detail below.

MACS Ltd.

South African Land and Exploration Co. Qtd., the 15 Bee Sessions with 76,021 participants in various districts of Transvaal, Natal and the Orange River Colony, as well as the 5 out of 35 other properties with 137,952 acres

at. i an Consolidated Mines (capital £2,150,000,—, cf.

Albu).

Major Charles Sidney Goldman is the director or chairman.
Head of

Central European Mines Ltd.

Consolidated Main Reef Mines and State Ltd. (Capital
£1,247,602

General Mines Investment Ltd.

Gold Coast and Ashanti Stool Concessions Ltd

Henckel von Donnersmarck Beuthen Estates Ltd.

New Modderfontein Gold Mining Co. Ltd. The capital
This company's capital is £1,400,000; it has in the over ten years, an average dividend of 112.25% paid per annum 5

Polish Timer Fron Car and Waggon Co. Ltd.

Southern European Metal Corporation Ltd.

Weft Rand Confolidated Mines (capital £2,150,000, —, f. Mbu)

Witbank Colliery Ltd.

Gufstav Imroth, Director of the Johannesburg Confolidated Investment Co. Ltd., share capital £4,345,000, to which we which we will discuss in more detail, is also on the supervisory board of the Government Gold Mining Areas (Modderfontein) Consolidated Ltd., which has a capital of £1,400,000, – in the last five has paid an average dividend of 113% per year for several years and those subject to the usual profit tax, those from other Transvaal Gold mines are raised, exempted.

274

Geoffrey Joel is Director of De Beers Consolidated Mines, which owns 13 diamond mines They have taken over and leased additional mines. They also hold, among other things, 50% of the capital of African Explosives and Industries Ltd., whose capital £5,000,000 – and which, apart from considerable Land ownership in Transvaal, Natal and Rhodesia all Shares of Cape Explosives Works Ltd. are owned. Premier (Transvaal) Diamond Mining Co. Ltd., which, among others The following dividends were paid: 1923: 800%, 1924: 700%, 1925: 500%, 1926: 500%, 1927: 250% .

De Beers still have considerable interests in Cape Coast Exploration Ltd. (£1,000,000,–) Consolidated Diamond Mines of South West Africa Ltd. (E 4,500, 000,–) Diamond Corporation Ltd. (£5,000,000) New Jagersfontein Mining and Exploration Co. Ltd. (E 1,000, 000,–) as well as the right of first refusal on all properties in the South's lands West Africa Co. and in the territories of British South Africa Co. discovered diamond mines. Geoffrey Joel remains director of Johannesburg Consolidated Investment Co. Ltd. (cf. Friedlander and Imroth), whose share capital is £4,345,000, – amounts to and which, apart from considerable real estate holdings in Johannesburg has extensive equity interests in the following Companies have: Consolidated Murchison (Transvaal) Gold Fields and Development Co. Ltd East Champ d'Or Gold Mining Co. Ltd. East Daggafontein Mines Ltd. (£1,350,000,–) Government Gold Mining Areas (vol. at Imroth) (Modderfontein) Conf. Ltd. Langlaagte Estate and Gold Mining Co. Ltd. (£1,519,888) New State Areas Ltd. (£1,514,037) Potgietersrust Platinum Ltd. (£1,962,500) Rand Leafes (Vogelfruitfontein) Gold Mining Co. Ltd. (£1,500,000) Nandfontein State Gold Mining Co., Witwatersrand

td. (£4,063,553)
South African Breweries Ltd. (£3,000,000, -)
Van Nyn Deep Ltd. (£1,196,892,-)
Vogelstruisbult Gold Mining Areas Ltd. (2 2,750,000,-)

18% 275

Witwatersrand Gold Mining Co. Ltd. etc., together with diamond interests and participations in Nord-Rhode Island copper fields.

Harry J. Joel is, except in a number of the under Geoffrey Joel, of the companies listed, was also director of the Barnato Bros. Ltd., and member of the London Committee Tees of the Consolidated Collieries Ltd.

Ferreira State Co. Ltd

New Springs Colliery Ltd.

Phoenix Colliery Ltd.

South African Carbide and By-Products Co. Ltd., and JB Joel, who also appears in many of the above-mentioned

The company has interests and acts as a director or chairman.
Head of

Cape Explosives Works Ltd. (Average dividend during the last 10 years 47.5% p.a.)

Companhia de Diamantes de Angola (£2,000,000). The
The scope of this society is evident from the fact that it includes, among other things, t possessed sole rights until 1971 in an area of approximately 390,000 acre- miles (approximately 600,000 square-(kilometers) to carry out the mining investigations and the diamond-bearing deposits discovered up to that point on unlimited time to exploit. Society is dependent on the por-Turkish import duty on equipment and materials as well as exempt from export duties on diamonds.

Nehanga Consolidated Copper Mines (antorified capital
£5,000,000

Rhode Island Anglo American Ltd. (authorized capital

£6,500,000, however, the directors have the right to make additional contributions borrow up to twice the amount of the authorized share to raise capital. Provided that the directors – it There are 12 of them – paid remuneration less than 2.25% of the dividends paid out for the year in question If the amount is [amount], they are entitled to the difference, which, however, (£12,000,– per year should not be exceeded).

The company has interests in various other areas.
Mining companies.
Theatre Royal Drury Lane.

We may also mention Sir Robert Nowe and Gilbert Roy Lewis Do not exceed the limits. Except in a number of the areas listed below. The connection with Joel's mentioned company is the first. Director of ,

East Patience Mines Ltd. (£1,800,000, –) l
Patience Proprietary Mines Ltd. (£1,500,000, –, average= dividend over the last 10 years approximately 50% per annum)

276

Grootvlei Proprietary Mines Ltd. (£2,500,000)

Legal and General Affurance Society Ltd. (£1,000,000,–)

Marievale Confolidated Mines Ltd. (E2,250,000.–)

New Jagersfontein Mining and Exploration Co. Ltd.
(E 1,000,000, –),

while Gilbert Roy Lewis was vice-chairman of the Lewis and Marks Ltd. and Director or member of the Supervisory Board gender company is: .

African and European Investment Comp. Ltd. (£2,750,000)

Amalgamated Collieries of South Africa Ltd. (£2,000,000, –)

Chandler's Ltd.

Coronation Collieries Ltd.

Crown Diamond Mining and Exploration Co. Ltd

Grootvlei Proprietary Mines Ltd. (E2,500,000)

Lonely Reef Gold Mining Co. Ltd.

New Central Witwatersrand Areas Ltd.

New Machavie Gold Mining Co. Ltd.

Palmietkuil Gold Mining Co. Ltd. (£1,700,000, –)

Roberts Victor Diamonds Ltd.

South Rand Exploration Co. Ltd.

Springfield Collieries Ltd.

Swaziland Corporation (1924) Ltd.

Union Steel Corporation (of South Africa) Ltd.

Vereeniging Brick and Tile Co. Ltd.

Association Estates Ltd., which in turn owns several other companies—companies controlled and whose capital L 1,750,000, – be-carries

Vryheid Coronation Ltd.

Weft Spaarwater (authorized capital: €2,000,000).

While the aforementioned Hebrews primarily valued gold—and the diamond industry, and only to a lesser extent other sectors.
Having ruled the branches, we now come to the magnates who... not limiting it to gold and diamonds, but also including other things leading in trade, industry, agriculture, mining, finance etc. in Africa. Partners and co-directors of the just—Gilbert Roy Lewis are Louis Marks, Theodore Marks and JM Marks in the firm Lewis and Marks, whose capital fic) amounts to £1,600,000.

Louis Marks is chairman or a member of the supervisory board of the Bechuanaland Farms Ltd. – a subsidiary of African and European Investment Co. (£2,750,000, –) –, the relevant interests in the

Crown Diamond Mining and Exploration Co. Ltd., Elandsfontein Platinum Ltd.
as well as in various other companies and the including their own farms

PPT A AAA

441 farms with . . . 1,371,909 acres, the mineral rights in 180 farms with 281,876 acres and coal rights in 31 Jarmen with 74055 Morgen in Transvaal, Bechuanaland, Orange Free State, etc., as well as 259 gold mine claims in Boksburg district, also in:

Carolina Coal Mining Co. Ltd.

Cattle Nanhera Ltd.

Cobra Emeralds Ltd.

Eastern Province Cement Ltd. (£1,011,288,—)

Elandsfontein Platinum Ltd.

Garner Motors Ltd.

Largo Colliery (£2,000,000)

Rand Refinery Ltd.

South African Glass Union Ltd.

South African Salt Works Ltd. .

Stewarts and Lloyds of South Africa Ltd., whose shares capital amounts to £7,370,275,— and all shares of seven other companies as well as significant interests in twelve other companies

Union Line Co. Ltd. N

Vaal River Salt Works Ltd.

Weltevreden Gold Mining Syndicate Ltd.

Witwatersrand Co-operative Smelting Works Ltd.

Witwatersrand Native Labor Association Ltd.

and moreover in a whole number of the same companies Companies like Gilbert R. Lewis.

Theodore Marks and JM Marks are as director, pre=
Member of the board of directors or supervisory board in a total of 29 companies.

Sir Ernest Oppenheimer is the director or chairman of the 278

African Cables (Proprietary) Ltd.

Anglo-American Corporation of South Africa Ltd

(€ 5,000,000, -)

Anglo-American Investment Trust Ltd. (E2,500,000, -)

Blyvooruitzicht Gold Mining Co. Ltd. (f2,950,000, -)

Boart Products South Africa (Proprietary) Ltd.

Brakpan Mines Ltd. (f1,150,000, -, average daily dividend of the (last 10 years 48.6% pA)

British South Africa Co., which we will discuss in more detail below-will be treated more proactively

Cape Coast Exploration Ltd. (f1,000,000; the company Hien ua a farm of 365,000 acres in Namaqua= lan

Consolidated Company Bultfontein Mine Ltd,

Bultfontein Mines Ltd. (€ 1,750,000-, average dividend) end of the last four years 41% pA)

Gold Coast Exploration Ltd.

Griqualand Weft Diamond Mining Co. (f1,057,000)

Holfonteln (TCL) Gold Mining Co. Ltd.

Lace Proprietary Mines Ltd.

Lebanon Gold Mining Co. Ltd. (E2,500,000, -)

Rand Leafes (Vogelftruisfontein) Gold Mining Co. Ltd.
(€ 1,500,000, -)

Rand Selection Corporation Ltd. (E1,000,000, -)

Rhodesia Broken Hill Development Co. Ltd. (f250,000, -)

Nietfontein (No. 11) Gold Mines Ltd. (£1,100,000, -).
 Société Minière du Beccka Spaarwater Gold Mining Co. Ltd. (£2,000,000) .
 Springs Mines Ltd. (£1,750,000,-, average dividend of the Last 10 years: 48.75% .
 Weft Rand Investment Trust Ltd. (authorized capital)
 E 4,000,000, -) |
 Weft Springs Ltd. (£1,935,000,-)

Let's now look at the British South Africa Company node.
 a little closer, to whose other directors Baron Emile
 B. d'Erlanger, Sir Edmund Davis, etc. belong to this group. The operations-
 The territory of this company is located in Rhodesia, namely

a) Southern Rhodesia: in the provinces of Mashonaland and Matabe land with approximately 149,000 square miles = approximately 242,000 square-kilometers;

b) Northern Rhodesia: a merging of Northeast and North West Rhodesia with 291,000 square miles, approximately 473,000 square kilometers.

The entire area was formerly administered by the aforementioned company-company. However, when on 12 September 1923 Southern Rhodesia was officially declared a colony of the British Empire and the South Africa Company also took over the administration in 1924=
 The decision to forgo the film from Northern Rhodesia came with the British director-
 A contract was concluded which, among other things, stipulated the following: For up= surrender of their rights and claims in Southern Rhodesia and over abandonment of their buildings, etc., which served administrative purposes have, as well as their land and monopoly rights, with the exception of the their mineral rights in Northern Rhodesia according to the concession
 The company receives this from the government on October 1, 1923.
 a cash payment of £3,750,000,- and remains in place until the 1 April 1964 on the net proceeds from land sales in North-Western Rhodesia is involved to the tune of half. The English Crown recognizes the company's entire mineral rights in North and South= Rhodesia and grants it permission regarding its railway interests= food is given the greatest possible protection. The Crown waives all restrictions.
 Statements against society regarding the actions during the war extraordinary military costs incurred. The Society=
 The company retains all its commercial and economic rights and Active members, likewise no further claims will be made against them.

279 levied in respect of the land used for their own commercial purposes or leased to third parties

According to the agreement of June 29, 1933, the Negterung acquired the Mineral rights of the company in Southern Rhodesia for £2,000,000.

The company's main active members now consist of:

Mining rights throughout Northern Rhodesia;

approximately 600,000 acres of land in the Bechuanaland Protectorate;

Mineral rights in approximately 16,000 square miles (approximately 26,000 square kilometers) in Nyasaland;

Half participation in the net proceeds until April 1, 1964 from the land sales made by the government in Northwest Rhodesia;

approximately 2,677,000 acres of land ownership in Northeast Rhodesia;

further land ownership totaling approximately 110,107 acres in Southern Rhodesia, a considerable part of the Wankie Colliery Co. Ltd., 80% of the shares of Rhodafia Railway Trust Ltd., as well as all shares of Rhodesian Land Bank Ltd. and ultimately significant influence in the Beira Railway Co. Ltd. The railway network of Rhodesia= fchen railway lines including the Beira Railway er-

It stretches over 2708 miles = approximately 4700 kilometers.

Sir Ernest Oppenheimer is still involved in a number of the already listed in connection with Joel and Friedlander companies involved.

Sir Edmund Davis, who is listed in the Jewish Year Book only as Art collector. The term used is director or chairman of the Rhodesian Land, Cattle and Ranching Corporation, whose authorized capital amounts to £1,000,000, – and which includes a Owns a farm of approximately 2,771,662 acres in southern Rhodesia African Chrome Mines Ltd.

African Manganese Co. Ltd.

Anglo-Continental Mines Co. Ltd.

Baluchistan Chrome Co. Ltd.

Baluchistan Mining Syndicate Ltd.

Bechuanaland Exploration Co. Although this company only a share capital of £350,000,– from which we know, owns fie ua 330,364 acres of land, together with territorial and other rights, in the Bechuanaland Protectorate; furthermore 246,923 acres of land in Southern Rhodesia, 52495 acres of land in Northern Rhodesia as well as other lands in other areas

Charterland and General Exploration and Finance Co. Ltd.

Chinese Central Railways Ltd.

Chrome Co. Ltd.

Compagnie Tunifiene des Phosphates due Diebel Mdilla

Confolidated Mines Selection Co. Ltd

East Africa Mining Areas Ltd.

280

East African Lands and Development Co Ltd

Establishments Courmont

Fanti Eonfoliated Investment Co.

J. Picard and Co. Ltd

Josiah Smale and Son Ltd.

Mufulira Copper Mines, authorized capital £5,000,000,—, owns, among other things, mining rights to 149,684 acres, whose ore-reserves as of June 30, 1937, amounted to 158,841,000 tons with a
The average copper content was estimated at 4.12%.

Northern Rhodesia Power Corporation Ltd.

Otavi Mines and Railway Company

Raw Asbestos Distributors

Rhodesia Chrome Mines.

Rhodesia Copper and General Exploration and Finance Co. Ltd.

Rhodesia Railway Ltd., whose co-director, besides Sir Ernest Davis, or Sir Alfred Beit, is mentioned. Of the 2708 miles around-The total network of this railway comprises 2441 miles owned by the the aforementioned company, and the entire operation is located in their hands. The net stretches from Vryburg in the south.

and Port of Beira in the Often through South and North Rhodesia to the Katangadi district in the Belgian Congo in the north.

Although the share capital amounts to only £500,000, – the true meaning of this company is thereby revealed– characterizes that the debt assignments or privy rights issued bonds totaling £30,000,000.

Rhodesian and General Asbestos Corporation Ltd.

Rhodesian Anglo-American Co. Ltd., with an authorized Share capital of £6,500,000, which includes interests in various– different mining companies in North and South– Rhodesia including 1318,971 ordinary and 21,317 A shares of Rhokana Corp. Ltd. and 1,002,914 shares of Nehanga Copper Mines Ltd. owns

St. Swithin's Ores and Metals Ltd.

Shabani Railway Co. Ltd.

Société d'Enterprifes Induftrielles et Minières

South Weft Africa Co. Ltd, (Rapital £2,000,000)

Southern Rhodesia Metals Ltd.

Turner and Newall, whose authorized capital is £7,250,000, – amounts to, are mainly involved in the manufacture of Asbestos products. They own factories in eight different locations. Places. Sixteen other companies merged into this company. Furthermore, she owns all the capital of Bell's United Asbestos Co. Ltd.

Dominion Blue Asbestos Mines (South Africa)

Elands Valley Transport Co.

New Amianthus Mines Ltd.

Raw Asbestos Distributors

Turner Bros. Asbestos Co. Ltd.,

furthermore, 99.5% of the shares of Rhodefian and General Asbestos Corporation Ltd., and a significant subsidiary part of African Asbestos Mining Co. Ltd.

Turner and Newall own nine other companies. neither all shares, nor do they have significant influence.

therein.

United Exploration Co. Ltd.

Wankie Colliery Co. Ltd. (Capital £1,100,000)

Dangtie Valley Co. Ltd.

Furthermore, Sir Edmund Davis is together with Marks, Oppenheimer, Joel, etc., influenced a whole range of other groups. wealthy companies are involved, which we can no longer all individually. want to list them.

It is almost impossible to imagine the extent to which all possible ventures are closely intertwined

To make a move. In the name of this work, such a book-

However, this would take us too far as a collection, but we believe that through

Our above statements should at least give the reader a small to have given him insight that in some cases allowed him a better Understanding of certain things will be revealed. In this context...

The connection is perhaps also one from October 29, 1938.

The article published in the "Daily Express" is noteworthy, which...

The headline reads: "Trade leaders urge Britain:

"Unite East African territories!" It reads: "Twenty men, representing millions of British capital (), took the following

The resolution of the East African Chamber of Commerce is:

1. Tanganyika must remain British, 2. Tanganyika, Kenya and Uganda and Uganda are to be united into a single customs territory.

The compilation of Jewish finances begun above= enormous with huge interests in gold, diamonds,

Coal mines, plantations, in all branches of industry, of Trade and the economy of Africa could be achieved without difficulty= to significantly increase the possibilities. To just a few

To name just a few, we should also mention Col. Benjamin Hansford, Sir

Bernard Eckstein, Isidore W. Schlesinger, Sir Henry Strakosch,

Edmond Weil, Julius Weil, Rene Weil, Samuel Weil, Leopold

Weil, Julius Sigismund Wetzlar etc. etc. The Weils are found as Directors, chairpersons or managing directors at 13 different

Enterprises operating diamond, gold and silver mines participates, which in turn participate in numerous other companies are interested. The same applies to Wetzlar with 17 companies.

many of them are multi-million dollar corporations with enormous land holdings.

and significant involvement in a further number of major projects

Businesses. While Eckstein acquired millions of acres in Brazil and Africa with hola and mineral rights and huge coffee-

Schlesinger, who owns cotton plantations, is more versatile. He is ua managing director of Tanganyika Forests and Lumber Co. Ltd. with 60,900 acres of forest in Tanganyika, of which 400 acres or more can be proposed annually. He is Chairman of African Consolidated Investments Corp. Ltd., which has an authorized capital of £2,250,000 and the following Companies directly controlled:

African Canning and Packing Corporation Ltd.

Anglo International Securities Corporation Ltd.

Colonial Banking and Trust Co. Ltd. ;

Golden Valley Citrus Estates Ltd.

Tanganyika Forests and Lumber Co.

Furthermore, it has significant interests in various other South African societies.

Isidore W. Schlesinger is also active in the field of insurance, finance, theater, etc., and is chairman of African Life Assurance Society Ltd.

African Theatres Ltd.

Anglo International Securities Corp. Ltd.

British Consolidated Investments Corpn. Ltd.

Golden Valley Citrus Estates, which is located on land owned by Maintain 27,888 acres of orchards and engage in agriculture operate.

OK Bazaars (1929) Ltd.

The African Theatres were founded to bring theatre and to take over the cinemas of African Theatres Trust Ltd. They also own 78% of the capital of African Consolidated Theatres Ltd.

The OK Bazaars (Bazaar and General Store Proprietors) own 14 department stores in South Africa, half shares of Parok Ltd., they also control Paramount Stores Ltd., Allied Drug Co. Ltd. (which in turn controls Publix Ltd.), the Grand Parade Buildings, the OK Emporium Ltd. and other subsidiaries.

The foregoing may also make it clear, why is such great resistance artificially created by the press?

The return of the German colonies is being ignited. In this
The context is an article in the "Daily Express" from November 1st.
November 1938 interesting, which concerns the "uncertainty regarding the colonies" omits the following:

m . . One major uncertainty that absolutely requires clarification,
This is the government's stance regarding the former German Colonies. This is of particular interest for the establishment of Capital in the South African gold mining industry, since dle
The current uncertainty is causing major mining financiers to... considerably hampered the huge plans that might include the recording of £20,000,000 in new capital for the development of Fiber West Edge and other new goldfields required to pursue further ..."

289

l

It might also be interesting to learn that the price of gold for the world market every morning from five Jewish companies, namely

NM Rothschild and Sons

Marcus Samuel & Co

Samuel Montagu and Co.

Saemy Japhet and Co. .

Mocatta & Goldmid official brokers of the Bank of Eng= land for gold and silver bars)

(is established in the Rothschild bank).

1) Action dated January 23, 1937.

284

Jewish Film

In the following, we will now discuss in more detail to deal with the rejuvenation of the film industry, which today is more than each has been placed in the service of anti-German propaganda. It is more or less completely to decide what kind of films they release. It does appear, however, that Before every film, there is always a replay of the approval notice. certificate with the inscription: "Passed by the British Board of Film "Censors." This creates the impression that it that this is a state institution run by a is carried out by government officials. In fact, this is fo- The aforementioned censors were, however, appointed by the film producers and paid. In addition, everything is being done to inform the public. to make socialist, indeed communist, films accessible. In Therefore, in 1926 a company called "Film" was founded. Society" founded. The two main people responsible for this were the full Jews Ivor Montagu – brother of Lord Swaythling – and S. Bernstein. They were standing with Serge Eisen= Stein, another Jew who had been chief propaganda leader for years who had been in Moscow, in contact. Later, it was then the London Workers' Film Society was founded, the films released with dangerous communist propaganda. Also The aforementioned Montagu sits in a leading position here.

To what extent, however, was the general film industry run by Jews? How well it is controlled would probably best be explained by a list of the Film executives and their interests. Of course, they must Here too, we will limit ourselves to just a few of the... You knew how to list them.

About the Hungarian Jew Alexander Korda and his part= Erich Pommer's statement probably makes the listing unnecessary. Details. In addition to their joint venture, which London Film Productions, the latter also has its own Pro-Pommer Productions production.

The three brothers Isidore, Mark and Maurice Ostrer, sons Jewish emigrants who came from Poland in the 1890s and settled in Whitechapel, in east London, kon= hundreds of lighthouses and music halls are trolling and (films were also shown).

Isidore Ostrer is President of

Denman Picture Houses Ltd.

General Theater Corporation Ltd.
Provincial Cinematograph Theaters Ltd.
Gaumont=British Picture Corporation Ltd.
Gaumont=British Distributors Ltd. ö Lothbury Investment Corporation.

1) Daily Express, January 9, 1999

285

Mark Ostrer, i. Ja. Ostrer Brothers, Bankers, is Director or Chairman of the following companies:

Albany Ward Theatres Ltd.

Associated Provincial Picture Houses Ltd.

BB Pictures (1920) Ltd.

Birmingham West End Cinema Ltd.

Claffie Cinemas Ltd.

Davis Theatre (Croydon) Ltd.

Denman (London) Cinemas Ltd.

Denman (Midlands) Cinemas Ltd.

Gainsborough Pictures (1928) Ltd.

Haymarket Estates Ltd.

Leeds Picture Planhouse, Ltd.

Metropolis and Bradford Trust Co.

Moff Empires Ltd.

National Electric Theaters Ltd.

New Century Pictures Ltd.

Newington Electric Theaters Ltd.

North of England Cinemas Ltd.

PCT Construction Co. Ltd.

Provincial Cinematograph Theaters Ltd.

Noval Hotel, Edinburgh, Ltd.

Scala (Leeds) Ltd.

Sheffield Music Hall Comp. Ltd.

Tivoli Palace Ltd.

Trocadero Super-Cinema (Liverpool) Ltd.

United Picture Theatres Ltd.

Victoria Palace Ltd.

Likewise, he is the chairman or managing director of the company already involved with Isidore Ostrer listed companies.

The third brother, Maurice Ostrer, is not only also involved most of the above-mentioned companies of Isidore and Mark Ostrer is interested in, but also in, among other things,

British Acoustic Films Ltd.

Bush Radio Ltd.

Claffie Cinemas Ltd,

Electrical Gono Films Ltd.

Film Clearing Houses

Gaumont-British Instructional Ltd.

Gaumont-British Screen Services Ltd.
Gaumont Construction Co. Ltd,
Gaumont Super Cinemas Ltd.
Glasgow Tivoli

Haymarket Capital Ltd.

Theatre Services Ltd

286

On fine connection with the one in an edition of over 300,000 copies of the English Sunday newspaper
We will report on "Sunday Referee" elsewhere.

To get a rough idea of the far-reaching influence to have, which results from the aforementioned corporations, want we will take a closer look at some of these companies.

Without doubt, the most important is probably the Gaumont-British Picture Corporation Ltd. fine, which, besides a whole number own light theaters, etc., all shares of the

Denman Picture Houses Ltd.
Gaumont-British Distributors Ltd.
Gaumont-British Picture Corporation of America Inc.
Gaumont Construction Co. Ltd.
Ideal Films Ltd.
Standard Film Co. Ltd.
Theatre (Grimsby) Ltd.
W. and F. Film Service Ltd.
as well as the majority in British Acoustic Films Ltd.
Gaumont Super-Cinemas Ltd.
New Standard Film Co. Ltd.
Provincial Cinematograph Ltd. owned, each of which in turn owns a whole Number of other film companies or cinemas trolled. The Gaumont-British Picture Corporation acts as Managing Director for all companies owned by the General Theater Corporation Ltd.
located or controlled by these companies, as well as the Moss Empires Ltd.
Their share capital amounts to £6,250,000.

To understand the extent of the influence of the three Ostrer brothers somewhat
To examine this in more detail, we will discuss further below.
Details about some of the above-mentioned companies are given below:

Denman Picture Houses Ltd. This company was founded in

Founded in 1928 with the purpose of acquiring ownership of the following To acquire businesses:

Aighburt Picture House Ltd.
Attractive Cinema (West Kenington) Ltd.
Beresford Cinema Ltd.

Broadway Variety Ltd.

Confolidated Cinematograph Cof. Ltd.
Corona Cinema (Great Crosby) Ltd.
Dingle Picturedrome Ltd.

Grand Cinema Ltd.

Kinematograph Properties Ltd.
Kings Hall (Penge) Ltd.

Magnet Cinema (Wavertree) Ltd.

287

New Cross Cinema Ltd.

Popular Cinemas Ltd.

Thompson and Collins Enterprises Ltd as well as the majority in various other societies to obtain.

Denman Picture Houses Ltd. directly or indirectly controls 102 lighthouses and also owns the majority in 24 other cinemas. Their authorized capital amounts to £1,650,000.

The General Theatre Corporation, in which the three Ofter brothers to serve as president, director or managing director, has in eight various film companies or entertainment venues directly significant influence and owns the majority in 59 light games= or variety theaters.

The Provincial Cinematograph Theatres Ltd. owns, among others, the total capital of seven lighthouses or lighthouse= Corporations. It directly controls the Asffociated Provincial Picture Houses Ltd.

City Cinema Ltd.

Dorking Regional Theatre Ltd.

Leeds Picture Playhouse Ltd.

PCT Construction Co. Ltd.

Royal Hotel (Edinburgh) Co. Ltd.

Trocadero SuperCinema (Liverpool) Ltd.
and manages the business of

Regent (Stamford Hill) Ltd.

Scala (Ealing) Ltd.

Scala (Kilburn) Ltd.

Scala (Maida Vale) Ltd.

York Cinema Ltd.

Furthermore, it owns directly or through its subsidiaries
108 theaters, etc. Their capital amounts to L 3,200,000.

The aforementioned Provincial Cinematograph Theatres
Ltd. directly controlled Associated Provincial Picture Houses Ltd.
It was founded with an authorized capital of £1,000,000.
for the purpose of acquiring building plots, contracts and Options on building plots in various cities to light them to build cinemas. The company owns 18 cinemas, of nine of which are simultaneously connected with a coffee shop operation are. Furthermore, it has significant interests in a number of other movie theaters.

The capital of the Provincial Cinematograph Theatres Ltd. controlled PCT Construction Co. Ltd. – to only one from the multitude of different companies access – amounts to £1,750,000; their main tasks lie on the field of finance, and it's not hard to guess, that it too has a far-reaching influence.

288

All in all, Gaumont-British currently controls approximately 350 cinemas in Great Britain, which are estimated to have an audience of around 31
Millions of people visit it every week.

Newspapers were recently filled with major headlines about a £20,000,000 – Business involving merger plans the Gaumont-British with the Odeon Theatres – Chairman Oskar Deutsch – deals with the latter, which we will discuss later.

They will come to talk. These two companies control Together, there are already more than 500 theaters. In the event of this situation...
When this business comes along, they will be by far the largest group.
represent the British film industry and its position of power= (undoubtedly by enlarging it even further?).

The aforementioned Oscar Deutsch is the director of the Copper Sheets (Sales Ltd.)
Decorative Crafts Ltd.
Deutsch and Brenner.
Entertainments and General Investment Corp. Ltd,
London and Southern Cinemas Ltd.
Odeon Theatres Ltd.
Scophony Ltd.
Sound and Cinema Equipment Ltd.
United Artists Corporation Ltd

His influence in the film industry is also quite considerable.
For example, Odeon Theatres Ltd. – among its other Directors M. Silverstone and EC Simmons are among them – the Companies from various corporations with 84 lighthouses taken over, to which more cinemas have since been added–
They have been purchased. Odeon, in turn, has direct control.
via London and Southern Super Cinemas Ltd. and Entertainments and General Investment Corporation, which
The latter, with its subsidiaries, owns 54 amusement arcades, controls or manages. Odeon also handles the business. management of a further 71 theaters, for which you have the option of purchase granted. Their authorized capital amounts to £6,000,000.
The aforementioned London and Southern Super Cinemas Ltd.
– its deputy chairman and managing director is Arthur Cohen – owns directly or through its subsidiaries fifteen Cinemas in London, the suburbs and the provinces, and also direct control in eight other cinema groups.

It would obviously go beyond the scope of this work to discuss all of them.
to list Jewish threads that run through the English film= Industry and the lighthouse operators are attracting attention. The name Alfred Levy, Sidney Bernstein, Abrahams, etc. may only be considered as hin=
This serves as a guide for those who want to learn more about the subject.
intends to deal with the judiciary of the film industry.

1) Daily Express from January 7th and 9th, 1939.

The enormous importance and influence of cinemas was recognized by Finance Minister Sir John Simon at a celebration of the Recognized by the British Cinematograph Society. He pointed out their un= of great importance to the community and the state. He He doubted, he explained, whether there was another way. to inform the public about certain events, or the to influence public opinion, which will prove to be so in the future would prove important – important for the statesman, important for the publicists, important for the future of freedom and demonstration= kratie, for decency, taste, and judgment. In elevated Dimensions influenced and directed cinema, shaping the taste and judgment of the audience. The public. Therefore, a great responsibility rests on the... film industry, which has shown its immense influence as worthily as possible= should make it usable ..).

The working conditions for the staff of cinemas are results from a strike initiated by the union in question. was distributed. This leaflet states that although a contract stipulates a It was agreed that employment would last a maximum of 48 hours. However, employers are not adhering to this in any way. After An overview of the profits achieved is given, e.g. Gaumont=British Picture Corporation for the year 1937: Net profits for the year from theatres . . £ 561,701,- Preferred dividend g .. . E 178,750, – Provincial Cinematograph Theaters Ltd.: : A dividend of 10% was paid for the tenth consecutive year. explained the following year. General Theatre Corporation: An increase in profits of £61,072 had the Increase in dividend to 15% The union is demanding a reduction in the weekly wages. 64 hours of work and a small proportion this dividend as a supplement to their inappropriate salary).

Apparently not particularly socially minded either, as can be seen from a leaflet.

Times of the 9th. Fine i J Fasel of the Electrical Trades W London Central Committee.

290

Science and Education in Jewish Hands

Let us turn to the universities, which are closely connected with this= related to education and general science. Also Here we can only discuss some of the most well-known Jews, at whom we are also completely certain are of the Jewish race belong; and indeed, those we have mentioned are entirely With a few exceptions, also religious Jews.

Let's first take a look at Lane's verdict in the Years 1934 on the general influence of Jews on the the aforementioned areas. In his view, it had been possible since long noticed that English traditions, customs and ge=
It would gradually require a new, but unfamiliar, interpretation.
This would already go so far as to mean that the activity of foreigners would be "fh the spread of treacherous, insurrectionary and revolutionary words=
They devote themselves to foolish doctrines. They constantly seek patriotism and Nationalism through pacifism and internationalism replace them. Foreigners are corrupting our youth and creating a dangerous and detrimental element in our midst").

Have our research findings led to this conclusion?
Is our opinion confirmed? We can only affirm this.
Let us first turn our attention to the two universities, those involved with the science and education of Great Britain for All times are and will be connected, namely Oxford and Cambridge.

In the latter we find, among others, the lecturers of aiah Berlin'), Ch. Rabinovitch, Dr. J. Marshak as Statiftiker, H. Loewe as Orientalists and M. Lutzki, the Assi= stent in the Oriental Department of the Bodleian Library is,
W. Ettinghausen as German lecturer, and E. Fraenkel as Professor of Latin. A. Goodhart is Professor of Law.
and staff members of the legal journal "Law Quarterly" Review". He is the author of, among other things, the publication "Poland".
and the Minority Races." Ephraim Lipfon tft lecturer in Economic sciences. He authored numerous works on this area. He is the editor of the "History of Europe Series" and was the publisher from its founding until 1934.
the "Economic History of Europe Series". Furthermore, he is, among other things, Employees in the "Transactions of the Royal Historical Society" ciety", "English Historical Review" and "Fortnightly Review".

Salaman is the director of the agricultural and forestry department.
Research institute. He holds many honorary positions, many associations.
publications about potatoes and provides supplements inert to numerous scientific journals, such as the "Lancet". Furthermore, we find the anatomist Golly in Oxford.
LIE was also the editor of various works.

Lane: p. 1

EETA Jewish Dear Book (1987): pp. 407ff. Cf. continuously. Also "Who's Who".

Sir Alfred Zimmern is Professor of International Relations relationships. He too has written many works, such as "The Third British Empire," "The League of Nations and the Rule of Law." He has held many important positions in the country. He is the deputy director of the Institute for Intellectual Cooperation at the League of Nations and Director of the School for He has completed international studies in Geneva. In addition, he has held high Positions in the Foreign Office (intelligence service) and in the Er-educational beings are dressed. Just recently, C. Roth and Da- niel de Meffquita appointed to the University of Oxford'). End= We must also mention that among the above-mentioned persons... fonen to count another 27 posts, which were created after the year 1933 with emigrants from Germany, Czechoslovakia, etc. were filled. They were filled through the mediation of a particularly The company established for this purpose has been appointed, which "Society for the Protection of Science and Learning" (Gefell= (the Society for the Protection of Science). The president of this society The Archbishop of York is currently the society. Besides be- Among the Jews one finds many personalities of British society. Public participation in the management, with the nobility and knights entirely excluded. are particularly numerous. This institution has become The task was made to find the Jews who had emigrated from Germany. and people of Jewish descent, insofar as they are scientists, in new to accommodate positions. We will see below, in to what extent they have succeeded in doing this in Great Britain').

Apparently, this large number of Jewish teachers It has already had an impact in political terms. Because we They themselves have their own experiences, which repeatedly confirm our beliefs. will be that a large part of the students in Oxford, yes, a lot= perhaps even a majority of them, to communism= falling is. i

In Cambridge, the situation is almost the same. So says Dr. L. Harris. Director of the food laboratories, who has numerous He has published works on biochemistry. His contributions to... sluggishly to the journal "The Proceedings of the Royal Society" and others are known. N. Kahn is a lecturer in the field of economics. School doctrine and Reuben Levy, lecturer in Persian, as well as Lauterbach, Professor of International Law. Charles S. Myers is a well-known psychologist with numerous publications. Lectures and contributions to scientific journals. On 25 German Jews were enrolled at the university after 1933 alone. Cambridge University). At this beginning, One can of course understand that the construction of a synagogue in Cam- bridge became necessary').

Jewish Chronicle, November 25, 1938

'Annual reports of the aforementioned company for 1934, 1935, 1937, 1938.
5 Annual Report of the Society for Protection (1938): p. 14.

) Jewish Chronicle from April 30 and October 29, 1937.

202

It will not be surprising that London had a particularly large number of Jews in its scientific institutions has white, since this is known to be the case in all metropolises of Jews. In subservient countries, this is the case. Thus we find LP Aaronson as a lecturer in economics at the City of London College, M. Dainow as lecturer in psychology, who taught many has well-known publications, and S. Dainow as a lecturer in modern languages. Sir Percival David is Member of the Institute of Archaeology and was director of the world-famous exhibition of Chinese art in 1935/36. H. Finer gives lectures on administrative law and has a great reputation because of his publications, such as... "The British Service" and "English Local Government". M. Ginsberg is a professor of sociology and also has He has published numerous works on his field of study. He is, among other things, still co-editor of the journal "Social Review". Jacob Isaacs is a lecturer in English language and literature. In addition to his publications, he has made a name for himself as Editor of the "English Library Reprints" and "Contemporary Movements in European Literature." He provides numerous Contributions to the Times Literary Supplement, Review of England", "Spectator" and Barnett Janner, the Parliament Member of Parliament for Whitechapel from 1931 to 1935, is President of the Students Representative Council and publishers of the Univerfity Magazine. Herbert Jolowicz is Professor of Roman law and since 1937 Dean of the Faculty of Law Faculty. Besides well-known works, he authored the "Journal of the Published by the Society of Public Teachers of Law. Harold Kisch is a surgeon at the University College Hospital, Harold Laski is a professor of politics at the University of London. He has held numerous important positions in politics and education. His publications are well-known, and his contributions to Newspapers and magazines, such as "New Republic", "Harvard", "Law Review", "The Nation", "Manchester Guardian" and many more rich. Hyman Levy is a professor of mathematics at Imperial College of Science and Technology; he holds many honorary positions. held a scientific position. Numerous publications.

about mathematics and aeronautics, as well as contributions to many scientific journals are known. At the same institute L. Roth serves as lecturer and B. Stmons at Acton. Technical College as a full professor in the same field. Charles Seligman was a professor of ethnology at the University of London. He too has a large number of academic qualifications. He publishes works and regularly contributes articles to magazines, such as "Journal of the Anthropologica Institute", "Geographical Journal", "Lancet", "British Journal of Pfychology" and others

Charles Singer is a professor in the history of medicine. He was President of the International Congress of in 1932

298

History of Medicine in London. J. Wartzki, Lecturer for Oriental Languages, Samson Wright, Professor of Psychology and Claude Spiers, lecturer in chemistry. Dr. Birnbaum also works as a lecturer for Oriental languages. One of the best-known among those mentioned for London is A. Wolf, Professor of Logic and Scientific Method at the University of London, editor of philosophical and psychological works Sections from the Encyclopaedia Britannica, as well as many well-known Works, Head of the Department of History and Science at University College London and the London School of Economics and Political Science, Chairman of the Examination Committee for Academic examinations in scientific fields, editor the "History of Science" library, etc., etc.

In London, after 1933, no fewer than 59 German Jews were accommodated."

The other universities are in some cases considerably smaller than the three mentioned first, so that the Mn-
The number of Jews is lower.

Lewis Namier is a professor of modern history at the University of Manchester. He has, among other things, written the fourth volume of the series the work we used by Major Templarley "History of the "Peace Conference of Paris" and was written during the Wartime member of the secret service. He was in the years 1929 Member of the Records Committee of Parliament until 1933. Dr. W. Susman teaches at the Pathology Department of the same university and R. Wile nfet ift art historian therein.

He authored many works on modern art. Furthermore, he provides
He wrote essays for "Observer", "Apollo", "The Studio" and others.
Polanyi is a professor of chemistry and comes from Hungary.
Adolf Loewe was recently appointed lecturer in modern political philosophy"), David Blank as lecturer of the law= science, S. Abelson as first medical assistant at the Department of Clinical Research and Bruno NR offi – just immigrated from Italy – hired as a professor of physics?).
The University of Manchester has nine scholars from the refugee camp.
Lingen from Germany.

Noah Morris is a lecturer at the University of Glasgow.
Medicine and five other German Jews have themselves teaching= received orders.

Selig Brodetsky, an ardent Zionist, was a professor of applied mathematics in Leeds. Several works originate from him Works and numerous articles in scientific journals.
Myer Coplans is a well-known scholar in bacteriology.
He has authored countless essays and books.

1) Annual Report of the Society for series (108): ©. 14.

9 awesome Chronicle from January 13th ewish Chronicle of November 11, 1988.

294

Leeds has so far admitted only one
Jew from Germany, as far as can be ascertained

In Birmingham we find H. Goltein as a professor of Commercial law, Sophia Weitzmann as lecturer for history and eight German Jews. H. Cohen is a professor of medicine in Liverpool, Ffrael Levine, Head of the Philosophy Department and J. Sager, Professor of Botany at the University of Exeter.
J. Lipkin, scholar of medicine at the University of Liverpool,
R. Powell, Lecturer in Law at the University of Hull, L. Rosenhead Professor of Applied Mathematics in Liver= pool, J. Doffey Lecturer in Anatomy at Cardiff University.
Finally, it should be mentioned that Birmingham, among others, has eight, Bristol four, Edinburgh seven and Glasgow five German Jews have been added to their teaching staff. In total, up to the November 1938 in Great Britain: 251 Jews from Germany in British teaching and research institutes have been housed").
We are convinced that this number, taking into account the latest information,

The migration of Jews has now far exceeded expectations. One can They should therefore not be surprised that of England's educational institutions the directed against the Third Reich the ugliest propaganda campaigns will be. The appointment of the Chief Rabbi of London by the Chancellor of the university there, the Earl of Athlone, Brother of the King's mother, awarded an honorary doctorate from the University (will therefore no longer be a surprise for the reader).

Jews also have a focus on general education.
significant influence. Lane already points to the increasing influence.
The increasing foreign influence in this area and the associated consequences—(boundary dangers to the entire nation). We also want Don't miss the opportunity here to examine individual people and their positions.
and publications, to verify one's opinion. This is how they find we are referring to well-known educators, including Joseph Bernberg, V. Cohen with fine works: Economic Society, The Nineteenth Century etc., Charles Fox, Director of Teacher Training hospital and author of Practical Psychology and The Mind and its Body. L. Franks, former Deputy Mayor of the London suburb of Stoke Newington is now director a boys' school in Hadney, Sidney Golding if English
He is a teacher at the London County Council Hackney Institute.
Examiner for English at the Ministry of Civil Aviation and the London University. A. Gould is the director of the Park House School in Middlesex, and J. Hadida, director of a boys' school in Mile End. FfaacGourvit ds tft also works at the Hackney Institute.
A. Kahn was formerly an inspector in the Ministry of Education.
Morris Lewis is a lecturer in education at the university.
Nottingham, Miss A. Marks is a school inspector and H. Salv:

ur Annual Report of the Society for Protection (1938): SM
a) 0 1015 Chronicle of December 2, 1938.
1) Lane: pp. 151–160.

205

Mons, Director of a state school in Christian Street.
J. Simons, Lecturer in Modern Languages at the municipal College of Portsmouth. Sir Philip Magnus held a professorship there.
higher positions in the Ministry of Education, also Sir Philip Hartog. Many publications originate from the latter, such as... e.g. B. "An Examination of Examinations", "The Marks of Examiners", "The Purposes of Examination", "The Writing of His English articles are in "Special Reports on Educational Subjects of the Board of Education" and "Fort=
The "nightly Review" was published. Mr. Maurice Wollmann was elected a member of the Royal Society of Literature because chosen for his merits in literature. The reason for this

His works include "Modern Poetry 1922-34" and "Poems of "Twenty Years." Wollman was formerly an English examiner for the northern universities, since 1938 he has been in the same Property at London University.

This brief summary shows that everywhere in Leading positions are held by Jews in education. In addition,
There are a number of English people who are working in their interests.
They may have. From 1924 to 1929, Lord Eustace Percy, son the Duke of Northumberland, Minister of Education. His
The intellectual direction can be seen, among other things, in the fine work "Pefponfibil:
of the League" recognize!).

Earl de La Warr, the Parliamentary Undersecretary of State in the Ministry of Education in the years 1935 and 1936 and F is, refused to serve in the war as a student= enst.

To what extent Jews and their system are valued in responsible positions and which teachings of Jews and Jews= Friends of youth are preached to, as follows= fall.

In October 1938, the Jew J. Ellis, director of the Finnart Houfe School, retired. Sir Alexander Maxwell, Under-Secretary of State at the Department of the Interior, praised the
The outgoing director's work is considered particularly outstanding. "The departure=
The division for children of the home office had always asked him when she intended to introduce a new scheme, and about it
He would always be praised for his efforts on behalf of the Development of the association of school principals, officials of the Home office and the teaching staff of the schools in grateful "Retain the memory."

Sir Alexander then turned to the pupils and made them pointed out that in the future they would decide whether England would be governed according to its traditions, or not.
One should never tolerate a dictatorial regime in England.
"He reminded them of the prophets of Judah and Israel, who had put their dictatorial kings in their place and

"aay Percy: p. 150.

whose words have now become part of English tradition free..." Other high-ranking negationists, such as SW Harris, Undersecretary of State in the Ministry of the Interior, Chief Inspector of the

The children's department there also expressed their views.
(Identification for the work of the departing director!).

We also don't want to forget the field of medicine and some of the most famous Jews of this profession.

Abraham Abelson is a well-known specialist in internal diseases, and various works, such as "Measurement of Mental Ability" comes from him. Every. Frederic Alexander is a doctor in the same field and at the same time
Surgeon. He also has several publications to his name.
Dr. Harold Avery is in the Central Research Clinic, and E. Baron works at the Prince of Wales Hospital. S. Blackman is a well-known radiologist with numerous publications.
Dr. M. Cutner has made a name for himself in medicine because of his Books and articles in scientific journals.
J. Emanuel was formerly a professor of medicine at the university—Verbitz Birmingham. V. Feldmann is the chief physician at Effex.
County Sanatorium, and W. Feldman, a very well-known Women's and pediatrician. M. Fenton is a dermatologist at Battersea General Hospital, and N. Finzi, Director of the Radiology Department at St. Bartholomew's Hospital. By Hugh Gainsborough
There are numerous medical works and related articles.
He is reluctant to write about magazines. DH Geffen is a civil servant physician and Recognized physician for internal medicine; W. Geffen is among others Vice Chairman of Kensington Medical Society; M. Goldblatt physiologist at St. Thomas Hospital and Dr. J. Gorsky, District Medical Officer with the London Police.
Davis Haldin has done various works on skin—diseases etc. written by B. Homa and D. Krestin.
knew doctors for internal diseases, the latter being a member of the Royal Society for Medicine. Martin Ifrael is acting Acting Director of the Department of Clinical Research and Investigations and J. Quastel, Director of the Municipal Cardiff Asylum. Bertram Nisse and G. Slot
They have a great reputation as specialists in rheumatism.
Both have various publications in this field.
Edited by the brothers Arnold and Maurice Sors.
have a presence in the medical world of Great Britain
They have gained a great reputation. Both are, among other things, trusted physicians in The City of London administration has published numerous works—given, — the former about eye diseases, the latter about Deafness and ulcers. Arnold is an employee of various... scientific journals, such as the "Quarterly Journal of Media", and Maurice, co-editor of the "Medical Forum" and the series "Pocket Monographs of Practical Media, Short"

The Jewish Chronicle of October 28, 1938.

"History of Medicine" Simon Wigoderr is a medical advisor to Royal London Assurance and Eugene Wolff Pathologist. Both are authors of numerous scientific publications. actions.

This brief summary of the leading Jewish physicians may suffice here. It remains to be left to future works to compile a To write a book about the Judaization of medicine in England. The same applies to dentists, regarding whom, however, we have no further information. We would like to refrain from listing them. Here and in the medical profession, we demonstrate However, currents that averted foreign infiltration already exist. warn. This is especially due to the immigration of Jewish people. Doctors and dentists have apparently become aware of this. At the annual The meeting of the British Medical Association in July 1938 already detailed discussions took place about the fact that one should more or less unimpeded influx of emigrants no longer er= might believe. The Jews and their friends, on the other hand, maintain that Immigration of these people is a great benefit to the Health of the people and therefore demand extensive stay= Permit. This was primarily granted by the Jews Viscount Samuel and Marquess of Reading in the House of Lords Printed!

It is impossible within the scope of this work to cover all areas of to treat science, and therefore we will only discuss in the following some of the most famous Jews in various fields— draw.

Professor E. Andrade is one of the leading physicists in the field of atomic research. Very recently he has awarded himself in Claimed to have discovered an external energy source. as the alpha article of radium).

Furthermore, A. Yahuda belongs to this circle in the area Oriental sciences. His publications are in It was published in German, English, and Spanish. R. Barnett is Deputy curator of the Egyptian Department and Assyrian Antiquities of the British Museum, and J. Le= veen is in the same property in the department for oriental Books and manuscripts of the British Museum. Miss Phyllis Abrahams is editor of the Briti committee= fchen Academy for a dictionary in medieval Latin. Samuel Alexander is a professor of philosophy and has He has received almost countless awards. Ph. Guedalla is He was known for his historical publications. formerly Barrister and, among other things, legal advisor to the war effort, and Munitions Ministry. Levy Leonard is a member of the Institute of Chemistry and Chemical Society, and PE Sptelman is a well-known chemist. Miss S. Rosenfeld delivers including contributions to numerous magazines, such as "Review of

0 8) Daily Tel Telegrap 4 from July 11th and 28th 1
Daily Telegraph, February 1, 1039. Jewift Dear Book (1937): p. 401.

298

English Studies". Jakob Rich is a member of the Royal Institute of International Affairs and former editor of the "Jewish Chronicle". A. Ornstien is among other publications known as the editor of the yearbook "Property Companies". Furthermore, Sir Henry Rothband should also be mentioned, who has made a name for himself through writings on social issues.

Finally, we would like to point out that the Jew Sir Lionel Faudel Phillips – one of the Britain's largest import merchants – according to their own According to reports from the British Council, it holds a leading position there.

299

The Jew in Art and Literature

Now we would like to give the reader a brief impression means to what extent art has been corrupted by Judaism. This will already be evident. aptly described in an article in the magazine "The Jewish Peril" from It was discussed in detail in April 1924. Just like before with us, Even back then, degenerate art was considered the latest achievement. explained. The most famous art galleries were in the hands of Jews. This applied especially to Leicester, Gaupil, and National Jews. Gallery. It almost goes without saying that this is still the case today. Nothing has changed. Especially Lord Duveen and the family. Rothenstein are leading figures in this field as full Jews. The former is now the decisive man in the National Gallery. He was or is in a leading position at the Wallace Collection, National Portrait Gallery, Imperial Gallery of Art, Museum of Modern Art in New York and others. He is also the founder of the Society for the Promotion of Lesser-Known Artist and member of the National Art Collections Fund. Almost He has received countless honorary positions and other awards. became. He is the author of the work "Thirty Years of British Art".

The head of the Rothenstein family is Sir William Rothenstein. He was a Principal of the Royal College of Art, Member of the Royal Fine Art Commission and in a leading position in the Tate Gallery. His paintings and drawings are located there. He is known throughout the world, and his writings are numerous and known. Sir William's eldest son is now director and curator of the Tate Gallery. He was previously director of the City Art Gallery in Leeds and in the same position at the City Art Galleries and the Ruskin Museum in Sheffield. He also has published many works and contributes to, among other things, the literary supplements of the "Times". Another son of Sir William, Michael Rothenstein, recently published an art exhibition is being held at the Matthiefen Gallery. Sir William Rothenstein's brother has meanwhile the name Albert Rutherford was given to it and is nothing less than the other family members are known. His paintings and Drawings hang in the Tate Gallery and the British Museum. at the Victoria and Albert Museum and others. Various He designed the theater decorations. He is the mastermind. donor of the "Contemporary British Artist Series".

Solomon J. Solomon was a well-known portrait painter and After the war, he became President of the Royal Society of British Artists. JH Amshewittz is also a portrait painter, mural painter, etc. His works can be found, among other places, in the rooms of the London Stock Exchange, the Liverpool City Hall, in the South Africa House at Trafalgar

300

Square, the Victoria and Albert Museum, and many other locations around the world. He is also a cartoonist for the "Sunday Times". Two other painters found FJ. Emanuel and Herbert Horwitz. They both have, among other things, exhibitions at the Royal Academy and in the Parisian salon. The former, among other things, equipped the London Stock Exchange. E. Kapp is also a well-known artist. His paintings can be found, among other places, in the National Portrait Gallery, the British Museum, the Victoria and the Albert Museum and the League of Nations Peace Palace in Geneva. He contributes scientific articles to journals, and newspapers "Time and Tide", "New Statesman and Nation", "Manchester Guardian", "Daily Telegraph", "Observer", etc. Mark Gertler belongs to the New English Art movement. and is also known for his corresponding paintings. Joseph Mordecai is a well-known portrait painter. He painted For example, King Edward VII and Kitchener. The portrait of the former It hangs in St. James's Palace today. FJfaae Snowman has the portraits of King George V and the mother of the current The king, Queen Mary, painted. One of the most vehement advocates for modern art in word, writing and image by A. Wol mark. He has had numerous art exhibitions in all parts of the world. had. Reuben Rubin is also a well-known painter. and recently held an exhibition at Tooth's Gallery.

The most famous, but also most controversial sculptor and
 The painter is Jacob Epstein. He is the son of Polish Jews.
 Born in 1880 in New York. His first major appearance...
 The decoration of the new British building is likely to be quite something.
 It was a medical profession in 1907.
 18 fiaauras. Their unveiling caused a storm in the land.
 about his artistic vision. The majority of the press, almost All religious and other bodies attacked him.
 Among the few who defended him was the Times.
 Art is influenced by, among other things, African sculpture and Cubism.
 influenced. According to his own opinion, "Negro sculpture governed by the same considerations as any other image=
 "Hauerei". He attributes his inspirations to his Jewish heritage.
 Tribe back. Another work, Jesus Christ, is, as Moreover, almost all of his works have been criticized very harshly.
 and has been called blasphemy. Among his busts
 There are two of Ramsay MacDonald's alone. As a result
 But one doesn't need to worry about Jewish influence in art.
 It is surprising that, according to a report in the "Jewish Chronicle" of November 19, 1937, Epstein selected ift, on certain inter-to represent England with its art at national exhibitions.

After listing some of the most famous Jews in painting
 And sculpture, we now want to take a brief look at the Literature.

301

Regarding the past, we only want to mention what has already been
 The aforementioned Jews Difraeli and Grace Aguilar are remembered.
 Also from their time was Sir Francis Palgrave.
 was born in 1788 as the son of the full Jew Meyer Cohen born. In 1823 he converted to Christianity and took the name Palgrave. Just nine years later he became Elevated to the rank of knight. Besides many historical works.
 He has published countless lighter works.
 It is impossible to list them. He died in 1861.

His four sons also set off on different journeys.
 offer a name. Thus, Francis Turner Palgrave (1824–1897) Editor of the "Golden Treasury of English Songs" and Lyrics" and Professor of Poetry at Oxford. William Gifford Palgrave (1826–1888) is known for its fine mature wines.
 stories, especially through the book "A Year's Journey" through Central and Eastern Arabia" and through his work
 He became known in the consular service. Robert Harry was the Editor of the "Dictionary of Political Economy" (1827–1919), and Sir Reginald Francis Palgrave (1829–1908) was Clerk of the lower house?). 1 Israel Zangwill, the later Zionist leader, has, among other things Publications about purely Jewish events, including works of all... written in a vulgar style, such as "Six Persons" or "Three Penny". Bits", "The Revolting Daughter", "The Moment of Death" etc., which found the applause of the audiences of England and America should have. His poems are published under the title "Blind". Children" appeared). * ev ; i

Finally, we want to see someone from the older generation who is still a Sir Sidney Lee should be mentioned. He was born in 1859 as Solomon. Lazarus was born. Later he changed his name to Sidney Lee. and was raised to the rank of baronet in 1911. He has written extensively about Shakespeare, and he has, as our current statements have shown, been thoroughly examined with the problem of guilt of Roderigo Lopez, the role model by Shakespeare's Shylock. His works on the The greatest English poets have widespread distribution. found. Besides this activity, he is probably best known for his Collaboration on the publication of the "Dictionary of National" He became known as "Biography". The first 21 volumes were... he, an employee of the publisher Leslie Stephen, for the next He was co-editor of 5 volumes and for volumes 27 to 63 and the In later addenda totaling 41 volumes, he was the sole author. Editor. Among many others, he has written a work about

1) Gentleman's Magazine of 1861, Part I: pp. 441–448. Dictionary of National Biography: Vol. 15, pp. 107–1083. .

3) ae a National Biography: Vol. 15, pp. 109–110. Jewish Encyclopedia:

) Jewish Encyclopedia: vol. 12, pp. 633–685.

302

Written to Queen Victoria. King George V commissioned him, with access to all archives, to write a to write a biography of his father, King Edward VII. His other publications are so numerous that they are un= They could possibly be called that. Sir Sidney died unmarried. in 1926). 1

Modern playwrights and writers include, among others: Major J. Brandon, F. Emanuel, L. Spero and Benn Levy with many well-known releases, such as "The Devil", "Evergreen", "The Poet's Hart" and others)). Especially Golicator Harold Rubinstein was productive.

 His publications have been known since 1918, such as...
 Consequences, Exodus, Churchill, The Dickens of Gray's Inn", "Prelude to Tragedy", etc. Finally, he is also secretary of the "League of British Dramatists". Marion Spielmann is A leading writer and art critic. It is impossible, To list all her works and positions here. She has contributions to "Bryan's Dictionary of Painters" and to the "Dictionary of National Biography" and has been published in various editions= entries in the art section of the "Encyclopedia Britannica"
 She collaborated on the project. The "New Art Library" is partly hers.
 published, and for 17 years she has been responsible for the Ver= Responsible for the publication of the "Magazine of Art". Her work: Sentences in leading magazines and newspapers are hardly to count. Her namesake Mabel Spielmann has While not such a large Nuf, her works are also, as e.g., "The Rainbow Buck". Other Jews and Jiai-inside, namely Lily Tobias, Rose Woolf, S. Bensuan, Hannah Berman, Regina Block and N. Burstein have distinguished themselves with their works. Humbert Wolfe, a A senior official in the Ministry of Labour, he has many volumes in Edited poetry, prose, and satire. Louis Zangwill can also refer to the publication of numerous works to look back, which also applies to Gladys Stern. Her Plays such as "The Matriarch", "The Man who pays the Piper" was very well received by the London audience. Except=
 We only want to add the Sassoons to that, namely Alfred, David, Flora, and Siegfried are mentioned. Among them is... especially the latter with numerous works in poetry and He became known for his prose. For example, we find his "Memoirs of a Fox Hunting Man", "Vigils", "The Old Century", "Sherston's Progress" and War Poems. The latter are war poems and They are moving at roughly the same level as before.
 Works written by Jews in Germany.

| 4) Jewish Encyclopedia: vol. 7, pp. 661-682. "Dictionary of National Biography:
 d. 1922-1910 pp. 497-502. Times from 4th and 6th Vary 1926.
 s) Jewish Year Book (1997): pp. 409, 484, 464, 502. Who's who (1080): pp. 1882ff.

808

Temperley, HM: History of the Peace Conference of Paris,

6 vols., 1920

Tennant, E.: Spanish Journey, 1936.

Unseen Net, 1936.

Wasfilevsky, J.: Jewish Refugees and Military Service, 1916.

Walpole, Sir Spencer: A History of England ... 5 vols., 1878-86.

– History of Twenty-five Years, 1904.

Weir,

M.: The Tragedy of Ramsay MacDonald, 1938.

Whelpley, J.D.: The Problem of the Immigrant, 1905

White, A.: The Destitute Alien in Great Britain, 1892.

– The Modern Jew, 1899.

Wilkins, WH: The Immigration of Destitute Foreigners, 1891.

Wilkins, WH:

The Alien Invasion, 1892.

Wilson, R. Me. Nair: Monarchy or Money Power, 1934.

Wolf, L.: Essays in Jewish History, 1934.

Wolf, S.: The Influence of the Jews on the Progress of the World, 1888.

Worms, H. de: England's Policy in the East, 1877.

Zangwill, J.: Hands off Russia, 1919

Zukerman, W.: The Jew in Revolt, 1937.

Newspapers and magazines

Action.

Daily Chronicle.

Daily News.

Daily Sketch

East London Observer.

Evening News.

Evening Standard.

Fafeişt.

Illustrated London News

Jewish Chronicle.

Jewish Guardian.

Jewish World.

Jewry Above All

Manchester Guardian.

Morning Chronicle.

Morning Herald.

News Chronicle

New Statesman and Nation.

322

Public Ledger

Spectator.

Standard

Sun.

Sunday Chronicle.

Sunday Express.

Sunday Times

The British Guardian.

The Daily Express.

The Daily Mail.

The Daily Telegraph
and Morning Post.

The Hidden Hand.

The Morning Post.

The Observer.

The People.

The Star.

The Times

New York City Evening Paper

Written to Queen Victoria. King George V commissioned him, with access to all archives, to write a biography of his father, King Edward VII. His other publications are so numerous that they are un= They could possibly be called that. Sir Sidney died unmarried. in the year 19260). 1

Modern playwrights and writers include, among others: Major J. Brandon, J. Emanuel, L. Spero and Benn Levy with many well-known releases, such as "The Devil", "Evergreen", "The Poet's Hart" and others). Especially The solicitor Harold Rubinstein was productive. His publications have been known since 1913, such as... Consequences, Exodus, Churchill, The Dickens of Gray's Inn", "Prelude to Tragedy", etc. Finally, he is also secretary of the "League of British Dramatists". Marion Spielmann is a leading writer and art critic. It is impossible, To list all her works and positions here. She has contributions to "Bryan's Dictionary of Painters" and to the "Dictionary of National Biography" and has delivered to various Mus- entries in the art section of the "Encyclopedia Britannica" She collaborated on the project. The "New Art Library" is partly hers. published, and for 17 years she has been responsible for the Ver= Responsible for the publication of the "Magazine of Art". Her work: Sentences in leading magazines and newspapers are hardly to be found count. Her namesake Mabel Spielmann has While not a huge number, her works are also well-received, such as... e.g., "The Rainbow Buck". Further Inden and Jü= inside, namely Lily Tobias, Rose Woolf, S. Bensuan, Hannah Berman, Regina Block and N. Burstein have distinguished themselves with their works. Humbert Wolfe, a A senior official in the Ministry of Labour, he has many volumes in Edited poetry, prose, and satire. Louis Zangwill can also refer to the publication of numerous works to look back, which also applies to Gladys Stern. Her Plays such as "The Matriarch", "The Man who pays the Piper" was very well received by the London audience. Except= We only want to add the Sassoons to that, namely Alfred, David, Flora, and Siegfried are mentioned. Among them is... especially the latter with numerous works in poetry and

He became known for his prose. For example, we find his "Memoirs of a Fox Hunting Man", "Vigils", "The Old Century", "Sherston's Progress" and War Poems. The latter are war poems and they are moving at roughly the same level as before. Works written by Jews in Germany.

4) Jewish Encyclopedia: vol. 7, pp. 661-662. Dictionary of National Biography: id. 1922-10 0 pp. 497-502. Times of March 4 and 6, 1926.
) Jewish Year Book (1937): pp. 409, 434, 464, 502. Who's who (1999): pp. 1882ff.

303

Finally, we want to mention an art critic, namely Reginald Wilenski. During the war, he was a secret service. His works and essays, such as in the "Observer", "Apollo" and "The Studio" have received widespread attention in England. found.

In the field of music, there should be no exceptions to the aforementioned areas. Thus is Gertrude Azulay, Professor of Music at Trinity College, author of the book "Youth Own Book of Great Composers" and Her- editor of "Adult Albums". Gustav Pearlson is Member and examiner of the National College of Music, and Har- Cohen, very well known in music circles, was born in the year Selected to represent England at the 1924 International Festival to be represented in Salzburg. Mark Ham is expected to be the pianist. Bourgeois in England recognized fine, and Lionel Tertis He has made a name for himself, among other things, because of his compositions for viola. done. Moses Biart, who recently passed away, was an- well-known music critic and consultant for Columbia Graphophone Co. as well as author of many articles in various music magazines. He was, incidentally, one of the founders of the Socialist Party of England. Sir Ronald Landon enjoys a great Reputation as conductor, composer and director of the Guildhall School of Music. He has published many works on music. In 1918 he received special honors from the Freemason. He was, among other things, a music critic for the following: Contributed to newspapers and magazines: "Artist", "The Onlooker", "The Tatler", also as publisher of the "Musical News", writing- Head of the musical section of the "News Chronicle".

The theatre world cannot complain about a lack of... lament the influx of Jews. This arises, for example, without further excerpts from a compilation in the "Jewish Chronicle" of September 11, 1936, for the preceding year. Thereafter were the pieces performed in the past season too a not insignificant number of Jewish authors, such as Schnitzler, Sarah Millin, H. Bernstein, Bella and Samuel Spewack, H. Wolfe, Ernst Toller et al. The Number of Jewish Actors was also quite considerable. Henry Kaß served as director. at the "Old Vic" theatre, a stage that almost exclusively dedicated to Shakespeare performances. However, the two results the mastery of the theater stems from the fact that many, and not the worst and most insignificant, in the hands of Jews.

The Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, has had two Jewish directors. namely JB Joel, the gold magnate, and Louis Dreyfuse). Another theatre company, Associated Theatre Properties (London) Ltd, has appointed Sir Harold as Chairman Wernher and A. Gumpert as well as MS Myers as Director

9) Stock Exchange (1938): p. 1924. Directory of Directors (1938): p. 918f.

804

tors. All three persons are Jews. This company owns the Apollo Theatre, Cambridge Theatre, His Majesty's Theatre, Shaftesbury Theatre, Adelphi Theatre, and Gaiety Theatre. There In addition, the aforementioned company also controls the Affociated Catering Co. Ltd., which owns the entire restaurant operation, and the Theatrical and General Advertising Co. Ltd., which has a large part of the advertising business and the associated business hanging areas controlled in the theatre world.

Word of mouth

At the end of our remarks on the Judaization of individual areas of British life, we must also mention the Rundfunk and the press are coming. Both are out today. most decisive modern means of governing a people can.

One of the honored directors of the broadcasting company, the British Broadcasting Corporation, or as it is most often called The BBC, as it is commonly called, was the one from the Marconi scandal. Godfrey Isaacs, already familiar to the reader. It is the Lane deserves credit for pointing out that already In the beginning, Jews and their socialist friends, namely, for example, Lord Sankey, the Archbishop of York, and the Jew Professor H. Laski held a leading position. Thus, it is possible It is no wonder that the program was accordingly flawed. and is. Even before 1934, it was not uncommon that Jews and communists were glorified. The works of the aforementioned Jacob Epstein and Bolshevik Russia were praised. Personalities with opposing views. Voices were barely heard. For example, Nesta Webster, who... various publications against Freemasons and Jews= has been issued, the possibility of broadcasting has been taken away to speak. Sir Oswald Mosley also has a strong opinion on this matter. Please, so far, no use of this material to explain your reasons. Sentences and ideas were denied. About the actual co-op= Little, or rather nothing, is known about the workforce. Lane has once undertaken to submit a related inquiry to the to direct the management of the BBC. The result was a harsh one. (Rejection).

The "Jewish Chronicle" is published every Friday and concludes its extensive contents with a summary Excerpt from the radio program of the following week. This This usually refers to radio broadcasts from all over Europe. The special thing about it, however, is that only the events are those who are Jewish in character, i.e., those who either had Jewish music, art and literature or Jews as executors. Since the selection is made by the official Since the organ of the British Jewish community has been affected, we have no Concerns about accepting them as correct. To gain an overview of We have received information regarding certain periods of the years 1936, Investigations were conducted in this regard in 1937 and 1938. For the The period from May 15th to October 23rd, 1936, i.e. 24 weeks, is 242 such presentations took place. A similar sample for the period from October 1st to December 31st, 1937, thus 14 weeks, This resulted in a number of 263, of which a digit totaling 56 was used.

1) Lane: pp. 84-95.

806

faces leadership across the entire continent. The The year 1938 shows a considerable increase, because for that time From October 14th to December 30th, i.e. 12 weeks, it amounted to the number of shipments reached 366, while at the same time According to the aforementioned magazine, only on the continent Sixteen such broadcasts took place. After all this, we have for the year 1936 a weekly average of 10, for the next year one of 20 and for the past year 1938 out of 30. Nothing could better illustrate the situation than these bare digits. To shed light on the spirit of the BBC. Apparently, they are in the process of doing this. to significantly increase rate for the current year 1939, because according to the first issue of the "Jewish Chronicle" from January 6, 1939 the performances in this regard amount to... The following week it will rise to 40. How low are these numbers compared to... the related events across the continent, where there are still plenty of states that are friendly to Jews.

It may be of interest that in England even on June 24th...

In 1936, for a certain period of time, an exclusively Jewish [place/restaurant] was established.
The program with directional beams has been sent to South Africa.

Press Jews

There is probably rarely a country in the world where the press has such a great influence as in England. This is primarily due to the fact that newspapers are disproportionately expensive. They are available at a moderately low price and consequently have a wide distribution. There are newspapers in England that are published daily and sell two million or more copies. This means, that not only two million readers of the newspapers in question are present, but at least twice that number, since a newspaper either from all family members or from friends the buyer's is also seen. It is quite possible that it is possible that with a turnover of two million, approximately seven millions of readers are assumed. Be that as it may, in a country where the total population of Great Britain is approximately 46 million. One can assess the influence a newspaper with the stated sales figure must have.

Furthermore, the average Englishman is only too willing to believe what his newspaper reports, and that he believes all other members of the press. He rejects divisions as untrue from the outset, or at least treats them with skepticism.

Newspaper publishing, with a few important exceptions, is controlled by a few large groups. He will be, from the following six large groups errrficht:

Od hams Prek

. Beaverbrook Group
Berry Group
News Chronicle Group
Daily Mail Group
Westminster Press

In all these corporations, we will either be Jews at the head or to locate the place or to sense its spirit.

One of the Jews who had a dominant influence on the Odhams-Presse was, it is said, Baron Southwood of Fernhurst. His former name was Julius Salter Elias.

He was only recently knighted.

He is initially the Chairman of the Illustrated Newspapers Ltd. This owns: "The Tatler", "The Drapers' Record", "Men's Wear", "The Bystander" and "The Sphere", with which the latter is merged with "The Graphic". Furthermore, she directly controls "British National Newspapers". The latter belongs (it rules together with Inveresk Paper Comp. Ltd.), which also indicates a close connection with the latter.

SN ee N

3 Jewish Chronicle, September 8, 1997.
) Stock Exchange Yearbook (1938): pp. 1419, 1442ff.

808

Furthermore, she has a great influence in Illustrated London News & Sketch Ltd., where Lord Southwood is also chairman. This company in turn belongs to Lascelles & Co. Ltd. and controls Sporting & Dramatic Publishing. In the latter, it is Lord Southwood who is also chairman. She publishes the "Illustrated Sporting & Dramatic News".

Finally, he is also chairman and managing director in Odhams Press Ltd. and Director in Odhams Properties Ltd. The latter. The company was mainly formed to secure the rights to publish to purchase a copy of the newspaper "The People". This newspaper is being published today with a print run of over three million copies. The first company, however, represents by far the largest share of Lord Southwood.

It was formed, among other reasons, to protect all the rights of "John". to obtain Bull Ltd.", which is still known today as "John Bull" and "Everywoman's" brings out. This company also includes all shares of Coming Fashions Ltd., Dean & Son Ltd., English Newspapers Ltd., Gosnay Advertising Ltd., Cinematograph Publications Ltd., Pref Printers Ltd., Melody Maker Ltd., NRP & Co. Ltd., Woman's London Printing Co. Ltd. Further controlled by Clarion Presses Ltd., Odhams (Watford), Victoria House Printing Co. Ltd., Feathered World Ltd. and Willbank Publications Ltd.

Among other things, the following emerge from these numerous companies:

1. The Melody Maker

2. Kinematograph Weekly
Picturegoer

Electrical Trading

Weekly Illustrated

Puffing Show

Ideal Home

. Broadcaster

. Sporting Life

10. 20 Story Magazine.

Finally, Odhams Press Ltd. is publishing the "Daily Herald" with a daily circulation of over two million published. It is the official organ of the Marxist Workers' Party. Another Jew, A. Easterman, was also there.

a year ago literary editor and

Deputy editor for foreign policy on the staff of this Newspaper. Now he is the main correspondent for foreign affairs.

opportunities (Chief Foreign Correspondent). In the very early days, he was

Foreign policy editor at the "Daily Express" His Ver=

Services for the Zionist cause are great.

SONA of os

) The Writers' and Mrtifts' Year Book (1938): pp. 62, 54, 81, 80, 110, 78, 48.
Odhams: p. 45.

809

One can get a rough idea of the size of this newspaper group when one considers its co-founder hears that he prints no fewer than 60 newspapers and already in

In 1934, it employed ten thousand people. At the meeting of Shareholders of 1 May 1934 were informed by Lord Southwood that the Sales during the financial year exceeded £8,500,000.

Free. Salaries and wages alone amount to £2,000,000.

Payments have been made. Paper consumption would have amounted to 132,000 tons.

amount to").

The Beaverbrook Group includes:

1. "The Daily Express", circulation approximately 2,500,000
2. "Sunday Express", circulation approximately 1,500,000
3. "The Evening Standard", circulation approximately 500,000).

Lord Beaverbrook, to whom this group practically belongs, He is likely to be friendly towards the Jews. He and the Jew Lord Melchett and I were close friends. On March 7, 1928, he wrote Lord Beaverbrook in the "Daily Express" that "not the mistakes, especially the virtues that made Jews unpopular in England, ver= made him foolish and hated." Furthermore, he is particularly proud, that a few years ago he met the Jew Edwin Montagu, then The Secretary of State for India would have defended it almost single-handedly. Likewise. He stated that his lawyer was the Jew Sir George Lewis. As late as December 4, 1930, he expressed his satisfaction with it, that there is no anti-Semitism in England. On September 17th. In September 1930, we already find similar articles in the "Daily Express". thank you, but even more so in a positive sense. "The coming= "The physical and intellectual abilities of the Jews," Lord writes Beaverbrook, "and therefore so outstanding in Great Britain, Because there is neither a ban nor a restriction on them. With us Is the Jewish question solved by the complete assimilation of the Jews into our diverse activities are solved, and the nation is therefore richer and happier. On the continent, one is met with the Time to realize that there is no other option.

This should be sufficient to determine the hiring of the person primarily responsible= to demonstrate the lichen head of the Beaverbrook Group. In addition We found and still find Jews in leading positions. For example, NR. D. Blumenfeld, former editor of the "Daily Express", then chairman of the same newspaper. We remind you that the Jew A. Easterman until recently editor of the was the foreign policy department of the "Daily Express". Lord Castlerosse is the director of the three companies belonging to the group. Newspapers. He wrote in the "Daily Express" on May 30, 1930, that, "If he were Jewish, he could earn his money in America, whereas

) Odhams: p. 4344.

5) Daily Express, December 9, 1938. Soames: p. 54.
) Bolitho: Lord Melchett, p. 337.

1) Daily Express of April 9, 1028.

would spend in England, because there are only idiots there who are anti-Semites

The Berry Group comprises approximately 30 newspapers. The main paper is the "Daily Telegraph" with a circulation figure that is rapidly approaching the two million mark. The political stance This newspaper is probably well-known in Germany. is one of the most anti-German and one of the most pro-Jewish. Lord Camrose is to be regarded as the head of this group, who ...is, moreover, almost exclusively in the hands of his family with the name Berry. Lord Camrose probably has no Jewish blood in their veins. Undisputed, however, are the close ties. The Berry family's relationship with Jews. One of their (Has a younger member married a daughter of Rothschild?).

The "News Chronicle" group includes the "News Chronicle" with a print run of approximately 1,500,000 and the "Star" with approximately 700,000 copies. In addition, it also has various provincial editions. Leaves. There should be little doubt that these The group is under Jewish influence.

Until November 1936, it was published by the United Newspaper Ltd. controlled, whose chairman in 1926 was the Jewish Lord Reading was'). This company was founded by the Daily Chronicle Investment Corporation (berrfdt). It now follows again controlled by General Investors and Trustees Ltd. (become fine), Of the directors of the latter, three alone are Jews, namely Harry Kahn, Maurice Stern, Felix Rose (formerly Rosenheim). According to a statement from "Action", the owners The shareholders of this company are almost exclusively Jews.

However, there has now been a formal change in these financial matters. Obligations of the "News Chronicle" towards the last= joined the aforementioned company. For in November 1936 The interests of United Newspaper Ltd. in this were transferred to the Daily News Ltd. newspaper.

The Daily Mail group includes, among others, the Daily Mail with a circulation of almost two million and the "Evening News" with a circulation of approximately 700,000 copies. Until very recently These were the only two daily newspapers in London that... advocated for a friendship with Germany. However, this has only lasted as long as Lord Rothermere held the majority of the He owned shares. This is no longer the case. Rather, The group is now controlled by a man who is behind a share package. His name is not recognizable because the Shares are held in a bank trust company. suspects that this person is one of three Jews, namely Roth=

Schild, Sieff or Sir John Ellerman.

—

) Who's Who (1938): p. 536. Stock Exchange (1938): p. 847. Action of April 2, 1936

2) Jackson: p. 287.

1) Stock Exchange (1958): pp. 1974, 1160–1161.

") Action of March 12, 1936.

311

As we have already discussed in detail above, tft Lord Rosebery was half-Jewish, and one of his daughters married the Marquess of Crewe, who also had Jewish blood in his veins Lord Rosebery has interests in the Westminster Press.
in which he is the director. All shares belong to this company.
at the Bradford District Newspaper Company Ltd.; it has direct Control over the following companies:

Barrow News and Mail Ltd.

Bedfordshire Standard Ltd.

Bedfordshire Times Publishing Co. Ltd.

Birmingham Gazette Ltd.

City and Town Building Ltd.

Darlington and Stockton Times Newspaper Co. Ltd.

Durham Country Advertiser and General Printing Co. Ltd.

Lancaster Guardian Ltd.

Lincolnshire Guardian Printing and Publishing Co. Ltd.

Lincolnshire Newspaper Ltd.

North of England Newspaper Co. Ltd.

Northern Presses Ltd.

Nottingham Journal Ltd.

Oxford Times Ltd.

Stamford Mercury Ltd.

Swindon Prep Ltd.

Weftmorland Gazette Ltd.

Wm. Dreffer and Sons Ltd.

Wiltshire Gazette Ltd.

These companies publish a large number of newspapers. out. After the compilation of Grünbeck from An= Starting in 1936, they published four morning papers and nine evening papers. blätter, a Sunday newspaper, thirty-eight weekly newspapers and eight sports newspapers!).

But the newspapers outside these six groups are also partly of considerable influence. This applies to= Next up for the "Times". Not long ago, the... The late Jewish scholar Sir John Ellerman had a great interest in this. newspaper, but he sold his shares even before his death. (again). So at the moment, neither a director can be appointed. as noted by other prominent figures in the "Times", the Jew is. However, in the course of this treatise we have so often encountered enthusiastic Articles in the "Times" in favor of the Jews up to the present day. encountered the fact that it is hardly necessary to consider their attitude and to point out individual articles. N

The "Sunday Referee" belongs to the Jew Ffidore Ostrer, who has already been treated in the film industry. He has various books on economic issues, especially on 18) Grünbeck: Vol. 2, pp. 135-186.

18) Times of July 18, 1083.

312

Folds that are connected with gold, written. Maurice Oster, my brother, is chairman of the Sunday Referee Publishing Co. Ltd. The newspaper in question, incidentally, belonged to Previously also a Jew, namely Mark Goulden. Since 1982, the latter has been editor-in-chief of the "Sunday". Referee." According to the 1938 "Who's Who," he held this position. still within, while according to the Jewish Communal Directory it was so looks as if he abandoned it in 1935. Until By 1929 he was, among other things, editor-in-chief of the "Eastern Morning News" and other newspapers; subsequently publisher of the

"Norway Evening News". The edition of the "Sunday Referee"
The amount is approximately one million.

The ownership structure of the "Daily Mirror" is currently under discussion.
Not entirely clear. It's a daily newspaper with about a Million copies. It is said that the Jew Ifrael Sieff would have considerable interest in it. 600,000 shares are owned by a bank as trustee. Perhaps he owns them. Others Jews, like Nathan Wolff and Meyerstein, are simply if mentioned. In any case, the family of the Jew Sir John Ellerman played a significant role in this. Besides his
The Daily Mirror also mentions further interests.
This millionaire's investments have been reported in the press. It is, in fact,
It has become known that Sir William Cox, former managing director, 480,000 shares were purchased in the Odhams Press. They are certain not clear whether this purchase was for Sir John Ellerman
This follows. Be that as it may, Sir John Ellerman is likely to have been fine.
Managing director exerts a great influence on Odham's press practice, since Sir William Cox is Vice President of this company tft!').

The magazine "The Leader" is strongly opposed to Germany.
Discontinued. This is probably due, at least in part, to that.
leading to the fact that H. Hyams, a leading Freemason and Jew, (in a responsible position!) and co-editor. The
The owner of the aforementioned magazine is Alfred Coshier.
Probably also a Jew. He was, incidentally, involved in the scandal.
involved former minister J. Thomas.

But the influence of the Jews on the Design of the content of newspapers and magazines. We have already had frequent opportunities above to collaborate to draw the attention of numerous Jews and are probably now allowed to to refer to that. Furthermore, we would like to add a few more things.
list the Jews in question.

D. Magarshak was formerly the editor of the "Joreign" Affairs". Israel Cohen is a well-known journalist and He was currently Secretary General of the Zionist Organization.

1) Evening Standard of 19 September and 11 October 1938. Daily Express of January 11, 1937. The Britisher of September 15, 1937.

18) emits Chronicle from 7, 9 1086.

% Action of January 16, 1937.

818

formerly correspondent for the "Glasgow Herald" and "Globe", and at times as a special correspondent for the "Times", "Manchester"

He worked for publications such as the Guardian, the Westminster Gazette, and others. He s he wrote the article for the "Quarterly Review", "Fortnightly Review", "Nineteenth Century", "Contemporary", "Times" etc.

In this context, we also want to remember, one of Britain's most famous journalists, namely Herbert Sidebotham, to mention. He is not Jewish.
But he is very close to this race. Under his pseudonyms
"Candidus" in the "Daily Sketch", "A Student of Politics" in "Daily Telegraph", and as "Serutator" in the "Sunday Times" etc. He has achieved global significance. His sympathies for the Jews are so strong that one could almost call him a Zionist. can, especially since he himself emphasizes this connection. He has various Books about Palestine and the Balfour Declaration related questions written. Very early on, in the year In 1916, it belonged to the original British Palestine Committee.
in Manchester and was also a member of the "Palestine Mandates" Society".

The author Leonard Woolf became known not only for his fine writings but also through his work in the press. Thus, he was he was formerly editor of the "International Review", and also of international section of the "Contemporary Review", the literary= part of "The Nation", he has been co-editor since 1931= donor to the "Political Quarterly". In addition, he also...
The "Hogarth Press" was founded in 1917.

Finally, the Jew Mortimer Epstein is the editor of the "Annual Register" and the "Statesman's Year Book".

Besides the documented evidence above, there are much larger, outwardly invisible influences of the Jews. The following examples...
Games may shed light on this.

Lord Rothermere had a few years ago in the then-owned
The newspaper he controls, the "Daily Mail," has begun to campaign for the National Socialist movement of Sir Oswald Mosley= set up. After a few weeks, Jews and their Friends, as we have been informed by a reliable source, who
An advertisement was placed in the newspaper in question. Within a short time...
Lord Nothermere had between the arrival of his newspaper or to choose the task of his politics. To er= his newspaper
He chose the latter.

It should not go unmentioned here that a large part
The publisher is either Jewish or influenced by Jewish tradition. Among the
The first group includes, for example, Victor Gollancz. He is the chairman.
and managing director of "Victor Gollancz", a large publishing house.
Furthermore, he is the managing director of Mundanus Ltd. and chairman.
Favil Press Ltd. Its political stance is evident in the best of all, he is the founder of the Left Book Club. This

The association publishes numerous discounted books that contain more or less all have a Marxist tendency and are not directed against the Third Reich. The influence of the Be-

314

The influence of these books on the population was and is so strong that nation=Nale Kreise felt moved to create a Right Book as a counterweight.
to form a club.

A very well-known publishing company is also almost exclusively Jewish. It is Tuck (Raphael and Sons) Ltd. The Jude Gustave Tuck is the chairman and managing director, Sir Reginald Tuck and D.A. Tuck serve as directors.
The company also controls its other branches in New York and Paris. The capital amounts to £500,000.

Until recently, the Jew Sir Leon Levison was also at the well-known publishing house of Marshall, Morgan, Scott.

815

Summary and Retrospective

We break off here. A wealth of events and figures
It passed us by and revealed the terrifying extent of The Judaization of England made visible. It may be suggested that, to what extent this mixing of the best racial strata with those of the Whether the presence of a dangerous parasitic population is accidental or intentional is a
We will not discuss here whether perhaps the English nobility, who came from= shaped by the British ruling class, unconsciously or in a seemingly clever manner Foresight, the dangerous, plutocratic and power-oriented ones are particularly... the outstanding representative of Judaism in himself and his
It picks up circles and believes it can neutralize them. It's just...
Leaving aside the question of whether the strong stratum of English Jewry deliberately mingled with the English nobility in order to gain these advantages for their for example, an uncomfortable ruling class in its danger and power= To neutralize the abundance. Accident or intention, that is irrelevant here.
even if we believe more in mutual intent. Decide=
The success of this is important and significant here.
Politics.

The extent of Jewish-influenced English life diminishes according to what was only hinted at in the last chapters of this work

The material brought in should no longer be underestimated. May the list... of names and organizations, of positions of power and per= personal, political and financial obligations of this or Even if it tires some of us, the enumeration is still necessary in order to an outline of the endless abundance of Jewish influences and
To identify possible ways of influencing the situation.

England is the stronghold and center of world Jewry. In it
The Jewish element has the most important and decisive courtly features.
He knew how to achieve his goals. The Jew truly rules in England.
and often only uses seemingly disguised methods and concealing intermediaries. But what is the English Fate? The wealth and power of the empire have in recent years have not been able to prevent a diploma=
The defeat of the others was followed by the fact that in this area it was
The state association is crashing alarmingly, with millions of earning= to perish miserably, that the healthy peasantry, once

816

the pride of England, destroyed, and urbanization seems to be the natural fate of England. Population policy
The situation of the island nation is anything but pleasant: instead of the loss of the best blood caused by imperial policies to counteract this through a targeted population policy, has the meaningless mixing of the physical and the psychological.
The destructive Jewish element created further areas of weakness.
We will not prophesy here. History will tell its harsh side.
but to deliver a just verdict. When this book is published England is at war with Germany, so they know we, who this "English" opponent is.

English Judaism may believe it has achieved its goal.
have. But we will know how to do it. The Jews corrupt and ultimately destroy their host peoples. Also England will be no exception – the Jewish triumph=
The shouting will turn into lamenting.

Thus, in a fateful way, English destiny is intertwined with Jewish connections, inextricably intertwined and matted. To these
The future of England is indeed being decided.

817

Bibliography

Abbott, GF: Israel in Europe, 1907

Abrahams, L.: Sir L. Goldschmid and the Assimilation of the Jews in: Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. IV, p. 116 ff., 1901.

Accounts and Papers, official collection.

Adams, Ch.: Representative Orations, 1884.

Adler, M.: The Jews of the Empire and the Great War, 1919.

Aguilar, G.: History of the Jews in England, in: Chambers
Miscellany of useful ... Tracts, Vol. 18, No. 158, 1847.

Annual Register.

Argyll, Duke of: Autobiography and Memoirs, Vol. I, 1906.

Ayerst, W.: The Jews of the 19th Century, 1848.

Banister: Our Jewish-Fresh Labor Party, 1931.

Bardsley, C.: A Dictionary of English and Welsh Surnames, 1901.

Beadon, N.: Some Memoirs of the Peace Conference, 1938.

Belloc, H.: The Jews, 1922.

– The Crisis of our Civilization, 1937.

– An Essay on the Nature of Contemporary England, 1937.

Birks, TR: Letter to the Right Hon. Lord John Russell, 1848.

Bleloch, WE: The News South Africa ... 1902.

Bolitho, H.: Alfred Mond, First Lord Melchett, 1933.

– Twelve Jews, 1934.

Bradshaw, SA: The Trumpet Voice ... 1884.

Brazol, BL: The World at the Cross Roads, 1921.

Britannicus: The Cafe of Mr. Salomons ... 1836.

Brodick, G.: The History of England, 12 vol., 1906.

Buchanan, Sir G.: My Mission to Russia, 1923.

Burton, Sir R.: The Few, the Gipsy and El Islam, 1898.

– Lord Beaconsfield, 1882.

Campbell, J.: Life of the Lord Chancellors ..., 8 vols., 1848–1869.

Carlyle, J.: The Lords and the Jews, 1853.

Cafe of D. Salomons being his address to the count ... 1844.

Chambers Miscellany, Vol. 18.

Clarke, T.: My Northcliffe Diary, 1931.

Clayden, P.: England under Lord Beaconsfield, 1880.
Clergyman: A Clergyman's Apology..., 1847.

Cobbett: Jews, and the Jews in England 1938.

Coleg, J.: Observations on the Civil Disabilities ... 1834.

– Vivian Grey, 1826.

– Conningsby, 1844.

– Tancred, 1847.

–Lord George Bentinck, 1852.

Confett, MW: The Triumph of Unarmed Forces, 1923.

Denny, L.: We fight for oil, 1928.

318

Dillon, EJ: The Inside Story of the Peace Conference, 1919.

Directory of Directors: 1938

Disraeli, B.: Aloroy, 1833.

Dycke, J.: The Jewish Workman in: Contemporary Review,
Jan. 1898.

Edison, JS: The Impossibility of Aomitting Jews . . . , 1858.

– The Question of the Widmiffibility ... 1859

– Two additional chapters..., 1859.

Egan, Ch.: The Statutes of the Jews in England ... 1848.

Eliot, G.: Daniel Deronda, 4 vols., 1876.

Elliot, A.: The Life of George Joachim Goschen . . . first Viscount Goschen, 1911.

Emanuel, Ch.: A Century and a Half of Jewish History ..., 1910

Englishman: Britons awake, 1909.

Farrow, Th.: The Moneylender Unmasked, 1895.

– In the Money=Lenders' Clutches, 1896.

Francis, GH: The Rt. Hon. B. Disraeli, 1852.

Fraser, Sir JF: The Conquering Jew, 1915.

Fry, L.: Waters Flowing Eastward, 1934.

Golding, L.: The Jewish Problem, 1938.

Goldfmid, FH: The Arguments advanced . . . 1831.

– Reply to the Arguments..., 1848.

– Remarks=s on the Civil Disabilities, 1830.

Gordon, WE: The Alien Immigrant..., 1903.

Graetz, H.: Hiftoric Parallels in Jewish Hiftory, 1888.

Guttenberg, V.: A Modern Exodus, 1904.

Gwyne, HA: The Cause of World Unrest, 1920.

Hanfard, Th.: Parliamentary Debates from the year 1803 to the present time.

– The Jews and the English Law, 1908.

Heine, H.: Heinrich Heine's Works, edited by H. Laube, 6 vols., 1884–1888.

Henriques, HS: The Law of Aliens and Naturalization, 1905.

– She Question whether a Yew can be Lord Chancellor of England; in: Trans. Yew Hift. Soc., Vol. 8, 1915.

Hobson, JA: God and Mammon, 1931.

– The War in South Africa, its causes and effects, 1900.

Hollingsworth, A.: The Holy Land Restored ..., 1849.

– Remarks on the present condition and future prospects, 1853.

Hughes, H.: A few plain Thoughts . . . 1849.

Hurwitz, H.: A letter to J.L. Goldsmid . . . , 1833

Hutchison, GS: Truth, The Evidence in the case, 1936.

Hyamson, AM: British Projects for the Reftoration of the Jews, 1917.

– A History of the Jews in England, 1928.

– Great Britain and the Jews, 1918

319

Israel: To the Rev. H. Mackenzie, 1847.

Jackson, St.: Rufus Isaacs, First Marquis of Reading, 1936

Jarvie, JR: The old Lady unveiled, 1988,

Jewish Disabilities: Views of the Question, 1847.

Jewish Year Book from 1936, 1937, edited by S. Levy and Cecil Roth, 2 vols.

Kebbel, TE: Selected Speeches of . . . Beaconsfield, 1882.

Keith, AB: The King and the Imperial Crown, 1936.

Klingender, FD: Money behind the Screen, 1937.

Landa, MJ: The Alien Problem and its Remedy, 1911.

Landman, S.: Great Britain, the Jews and Palestine, 1936.

Lane, A.: a Wlien Menace, 1934,

Lawson, W.: The Government and Marconi, 1912.

Layman, A.: Remarks on a letter... ., 1848,

Levason, L.: Jewish Disabilities, 1847.

Levy, S.: Anglo Jewish Historiography, in: Trans. Jew. Hist. Soc., Vol. VI, pp. 1 ff., 1907–1908.

Lewis, H.: Another View of the Question, 1900.

Lewis, W.: Count Your Dead–They are alive, 1937.

Lingard, J., et al.: The History of England, Vol. II, 1915.

Low, S.: The History of England, Vol. 12, 1907.

Ludovici, AM: A Defense of Conservatism, 1927.

– A Defense of Ariftocracy, 1983.

– Man: An Indictment, 1927.

Lymington, Viscount: Famine in England, 1933.

MacColl, M.: Lord Beaconsfield in: The Contemporary Review, June 1881.

Mackenzie, H.: A Letter to the Parishioners, 1847.

Margoliouth, M.: The History of the Jews in Great Britain, 3 vols., 1851.

Maxfe, L.: The Great Marconi Mystery in: National Review,
 Vol. 61, pp. 405 ff, 1913.
 Mendelsohn: Jewish Pioneers of South Africa in: Trans. Jew
 Host. Soc., Vol. VII, p. 180 ff., 1912.
 Militant Christian Patriots: Ziontam.
 Mills, J.: The British Jews, 1853.
 Montagu, B.: A Letter to Henry Warburton ... 183g.
 – A Letter to . 4. Lord Bishop of Sbideter, 1834.
 –The Jews in Parliament, 1858.
 Mosley, Sir O.: Tomorrow we live, 1938.
 Myers, M.: Some SM. Sidelights on... in: Tranf. Jew. Hift.
 Soc., Vol. VI, p. 240 ff., 1908.
 Nichols, B.: News of England, 1938.
 Nugée, G.: England and the Jews, 1881.
 O'Connor, TP: Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield
 2 vols., 1878.
 Odbams, W.: The Business and I., 1985,
 Oven, J. van: Ought Baron de Rothschild ..., 1847.

,

820

Padley, A.: An Answer to from the opinions ... 1852
 Parishoner: A few Words on a Minister's Letter. "1847.
 Paul, A.: A History of Modern England, Vol. 1 and 2, 1904.
 Percy, Str E.: The Responsibilities of the League, 1919, Piciotto, J.: Sketches of Anglo-Jewish Hiftory, 1875.
 Pope, WL: On the Removal of Jewish Disabilities, 1847.
 – The Notschids, 1887.
 Prentice, A.: History of the Anti-Corn Law League, 2 vol., 1853.
 Query: The Jems, in the journal Query, Book No. 2, 1938.
 Raymond, E.: Disraeli, The Alien Patriot, 1925.
 Reeves, J.: The Nothschilds: The Financial Rulers of Nations, 1887.
 Reitz, F.: A Century of Wrong, 1900.
 Report of the Case of Miller versus Solomon, 1852
 Riddell, Lord GA: More Pages from my Diary, 1908–1914, 1934.
 Rivers, GP: The World Significance of the Ruffian Nevos.
 Lutton, 1920.
 Russell, C.: The Jew in London, 1900.
 Salomons, D.: A Short Statement .. ., 1885,
 – Further Observations... . 1836, Shapira, J.: The Relief of the Jewish Disabilities. . under the Instructions by F. Clarke, unpublished, 1935.
 St. Aulaire, Comte: Geneva versus Peace, 1937.
 Saffoon, S.: The War Poems of Siegfried Saffoons, 1919.
 Sidebotham, H.: England and Palestine, 1918.
 – The Future of Palestine, 1922.

- British Policy and the Palestinian Mandate, 1929,
- British Imperial Interest in Palestine, 1997,
- Sinclair, JG: A Defense of Nuffia and the Christians of Turkey, 1877.
- Smallay, GW: Anglo-American Memoirs, 1912.
- Smith, G.: The Jews, in: The Nineteenth Century, Vol.: No November 1882. ö
- Soames, J.: The English Press, 1938.
- Society for the Protection of Science and Learning, 1934, 1935, 1937.
- Sokolow, N.: History of Zionism, 2 vols., 1919.
- Sombart, W.: The Jews and Modern Capitalism, 1918,
- Spectator: Prince Bülow and the Emperor, 1930.
- Stanhope, C. and E. Cardwell: Memoirs of Sir Robert Peel, 1871.
- Stead, W.: The Scandal of the South African Committee, 1900,
- Are we in the right? 1900.
- Steed, HW: The Habsburg Monarchy, 1918.
- Steed, HW: Through Thirty Years, 1892–1922, 2 vols., 1924.
- The Press, 1938.
- Stock Exchange Official Intelligence, 1920.
- Stock Exchange Official Year Book 1936, 1937, 1038.
- Stoughton, J.: The World a debtor to the Yew, 1858,
- Street, H.: A Plea for the Removal of Jewish Disabilities, 1849.

ái 821

Temperley, HM: History of the Peace Conference of Paris,

6 vols., 1920

Tennant, E.: Spanish Journey, 1936.

Unseen Net, 1936.

Wasfilevsky, J.: Jewish Refugees and Military Service, 1916.

Walpole, Sir Spencer: A History of England.

e +? 5 vols., 1878–86,

– History of Twenty-five Years, 1904.

Weir,

M.: The Tragedy of Ramsay MacDonald, 1938.

Whelpley, J.D.: The Problem of the Immigrant, 1905

White, A.: The Destitute Alien in Great Britain, 1892.

– The Modern Jew, 1899.

Wilkins, WH: The Immigration of Destitute Foreigners, 1891.

Wilkins, WH:

The Alien Invasion, 1892.

Wilson, R. Me. Nair: Monarchy or Money Power, 1934.

Wolf, L.: Essays in Jewish History, 1934.

Wolf, S.: The Influence of the Jews on the Progress of the World, 1888.

Worms, H. de: England's Policy in the East, 1877.

Zangwill, J.: Hands off Russia, 1919

Zukerman, W.: The Jew in Revolt, 1937.

Newspapers and magazines

Action.

Daily Chronicle.

Daily News.

Daily Sketch

East London Observer.

Evening News.

Evening Standard.

Fafeişt.

Illustrated London News

Jewish Chronicle.

Jewish Guardian.

Jewish World.
Jewry Above All
Manchester Guardian.
Morning Chronicle.
Morning Herald.
News Chronicle

New Statesman and Nation.

322

Public Ledger

Spectator.

Standard

Sun.

Sunday Chronicle.

Sunday Express.

Sunday Times

The British Guardian.

The Daily Express.

The Daily Mail.

The Daily Telegraph
and Morning Post.

| The Hidden Hand.

The Morning Post.
The Observer.

The People.

The Star.

The Times

Norkshire Evening Post.

Table of Contents

Part L: Emancipation

"EEE HERNE chose telracte 9
Method of the Jews l E ODY 13
The number of Jews in 1830: 2.2 17
Jewish Preparations and First Defeats 18
The battle for decision erupts... 21
The years 1888 to 18311lee· h..... 27
A fictional interlude: David Solomon's... 30
The fight continues CCF 33
Disraeli on the Jewish Nose CCC 34
Ritual murders in Orlen 'U 000! 38
New defeats $\frac{1}{2}$ Hn EEE EEE ee 42
Salomons becomes councilor of the Citi naa nnn n. 43
Solomon's fails – Rothschild ff... 8 46
New propaganda wave 77. ain ateere. ok 50
The comedy Rothschild repeats I. 57
Rothschild's expulsion... VFC 63
For the second time: David Solomon .. 69
New battle in parliament... 80
Advance and resistance. 88
Inden and Lords /.!!! sî?ě; aac: 94
Judah hath aefieat.....VVV 106
BECO ````]3f,n 8 116
Part II: The Rule of the Jews
Prime Minister Disraeli, or Politics and Character. 117
Disraelis Außenpoliii aaa. 126
Retrospective: The impact and effects of Disrael. 130
Leading Jews as shapers of English life. 133
The Jews in Scandal: Honduran Bonds 135
Anti-Jewish advice. CCC142

England and World Idonia FFC 145

e " " "" "" " "" " " "6 0

blee ee tea.

rr

hh " " " " "

„..... " " .. „„ E r

.. .. 2. e 2. . r €—ee

EZ EEZEZZEZ TIME IT TEA Tar

"" E EE E a E

Jews in Berfailleß eee eee cece e 209

England's Palestine=Politics jj ee 211

England's weakness .. 214

How many Jews live in the Empire? 220

England under Jewish leadership gd 230

Jews and Lordztert een. q 3Z 235

Jews in the Cabinet! 237

Foreign policy interlude. 239

Jews in the Party and Parliament .. 241

Jews in Administration and Law... 5 . 247

Jewish Family ss. 251

Faithful Judaization of Olindus. 258

Judgment of the insurances FFC 260

Judaization of the sagas inbuilti f ene 263

Jews everywhere!l!ldc?c?qscscscJc .. . 264

Jewish finance nn. 269

Gold and diamonds 273

Jilmjuden i cc ccc idea eee 285

Science and education in Jewish hands. 291

The Jew in Art and Literature 8

The Rundfununun k ,,, 306

Press Jude ndnd 308

Summary and review "e 316

Scripture nmmnmnm 318

Introduction

Jews rule England

It is almost a mark of the Jewish race that they always carries the seed of anti-Semitism with them and that where the Jewish element prevails to a greater extent, Anti-Semitism also arises and becomes effective on its own. It would be an unprecedented historical event if it happened in England would have ordered things differently. Already in the early English History repeatedly reveals the anti-Jewish attitude as almost... to establish the self-evident basis of the mindset, and often Enough anti-Semitic currents manifest themselves in pogroms-kind of riots and strongest state and nationalist Measures. Just think of those that were so fateful for England. The expulsion of almost all Jews by Edward I around 1290. Was it had been customary until then, as it later became common again It became common for princes and kings to have Jewish advisors. surrounded and, above all, by a Jewish financier were accompanied, for Edward was one of the few noblemen who the nationalist interest takes precedence over everything, including its financial gain. It probably highlights the general mood of the people. He carries it out and expels the Jews from the country. The people knew how to All too well, at any time, what it thinks of Judaism. At that time, some cases of ritual murder were probably—Coin debasement, usury, and land exploitation have been rampant. not unjustly attributed to Jewish machinations, in short, The royal act was merely the logical consequence of a non-existent only ever latent anti-Semitic attitudes of the people.

But this great work is also episodic in nature. and what was in itself a fruitful event did not go beyond that. Above all Things Cromwell has to the greatest extent not only the narrow Ber— The integration of the Jewish element with English folk life, but almost even the identification of English and Jewish Policy initiated and justified. Not that it would be possible,

9

To describe Cromwell as a philosophical secularist or to attribute pro-philosophical endeavors to him — Cromwell was English and only Englishmen. But several factors had to force his return. The promotion and advancement of Judaism appear expedient. let.

Let's start from the genuine Puritan basic feeling of being chosen and divinely bestowed. Who would want this a high degree of similarity between the assessment of the external— lichen upswing, of regular success and of social Ascent with the Jewish Old Testament basic attitude ver— know? And didn't have to be for the Puritan in his sober, a clear and religiously and outwardly expressed basic attitude a comparison between the Old and New Testaments that Should the former win? Didn't the history of the religious and therefore politically chosen people called to rule puritanical Englishmen, intent on world domination, more au— say, as the New Testament teaching of love, compassion and Renunciation?

But apart from this intellectual attitude, Cromwell was keen to not only thwart the English claim to world domination to give religious commissions and divine consecration, but Furthermore, the English people directly as successors of the old— to present and to the testamentary divine mandate to rule to mark. It is no coincidence that the English royal family still leads the way today. The house traces its origins back to the lineage of David.

Cromwell would have been too little of a Puritan if he Besides the justification through tradition, not also the very would have drawn concrete and materially successful conclusions.

With the new wave of immigration from the Puritan-dominated
The largest part of Judaism was still present, along with a good portion of those already World trade relations with England and currently in hand
He thus became perhaps the best federal comrade in the fight against Holland and Spain.

All of this can only happen here very randomly and on a small, individual basis. phenomena are observed and presented and is for the Understanding the following is only directly important insofar as it is relevant.
meaningful, as it is the inner and spiritual kinship of the Puritan Englishman and Old Testament Judaism makes it understandable, with the Old Testament playing the role of, as it were, a 10 to play out the "matter-political parable". Also Cromwell's death, which undoubtedly put Judaism in a not very favorable position and left behind a pleasing situation, could basically only little will change. The Jewish spirit of chosenness and divine grace lived in countless sects and associations.

and still finds its strongest overshoot in the extreme efforts to make the English people one of the ten most-to shape the Lorraine tribes of Israel. On this inner readiness The emancipation movement of the 19th century could not be successfully implemented.
take on fateful dimensions and are very essential to Judaism= play into their hands regarding positions and key situations.
Even after Cromwell, every English king had once again been in his Leading Jews in the surrounding area, among the most important court and association:
consulted by registrars or at least by one Advised a Jewish banker. Although anti-Semitism was still prevalent.
Not dead. The last bulwark against Jewish emancipation. represented the upper house, until this position too was stormed and was destroyed. But only very rarely were genuine racial ones still destroyed.
Instincts and racial knowledge visible and clear, and only
The religious differences were recognized and emphasized.

The following pages may now be about emancipation-judge and demonstrate how Judaism does not view its findings only dominated England's national and state life, but believes it is possible to strive for and achieve world domination.

11

J. Zeil: Emancipation

The Jewish Method

The period from 1830 to 1866

The year 1830 had arrived. The Jews and their Friends had all of them necessary for the general attack Approached the emerging positions with calm and composure. They then set about removing the last remaining restrictions of To break down Jews. What did these consist of?

The question is quite difficult to answer, because purely theoretically— At the table, many things were still closed to the Jews, but practically speaking... There were very few things that were forbidden to the Jews.

The first group included the question of ownership. Perhaps the reader is familiar with the two laws from the 13th year[≈] hundred, according to which the Jews were denied the possession of free land ownership was forbidden. These regulations were reinstated in 1738. discovered. Since they were not explicitly repealed. They were still there. Gradually, however, people only cared about them. little attention was paid to them, and this has not been uncommon in recent decades. (that Jews had acquired real estate). Nothing[≈] Nevertheless, a battle had been raging among the lawyers for some time. regarding the validity or invalidity of such a measure. But the last word has by no means been spoken yet.

The Jews were also theoretically allowed to exercise their right to vote. hardly possible. Although, after obtaining British statehood, Membership fulfilled the first prerequisite for this. It was However, it is still necessary, among other things, that the eligible voter a free landowner in a county or full right[≈] was a citizen of a city-state. The former was for the Jews, at least with regard to the ambiguity of their own identity[≈] tumsproblems unsure – the latter property was the Jews from urban municipalities, such as the City of London, only in recently granted. Furthermore, the election supervisor was able to at the request of one of the candidates of the constituency by a require certain voters to take the oath of abjuration, which was impossible for Jews for religious reasons. Despite this Despite the theoretical difficulties, the Jews participated in the Elections. This situation persisted, incidentally, until the final The question was clarified in 1867, in which the Jews were granted complete (Freedom of choice was granted).

) ae ews, pp. 191–194. , ) Henriques: Jews, pp. 246–247. Hyamson: History, p. 261.

actually only theoretically – not practically – for the Jews caused difficulties in their pursuit of power.

In contrast, the number of important territories that still lie with them is They were completely closed off, larger. So they were not allowed to to take up the profession of barrister. Nor could they to hold municipal or state positions. Furthermore, they were entitled to I was denied enrollment at the universities. Finally, I was able to... (they cannot be elected as a member of parliament).

The oath presented the main obstacle that had previously seemed insurmountable. of abjuration, which mostly precedes the granting of the relevant rights Rights were demanded. These were the concluding words of the oath:

“By the faithful faith of a Christian,” which the Jews made it impossible to take the oath. These words were almost sole reason why for almost 30 years the

The fiercest battles did not calm the English public.

The motions in parliament for repeal for its admission there, its usual acceptance in Parliament and their rejection in the House of Lords are hardly to count. Sometimes we find several years in a row.

Parliament dealt with this question, and another time

We even see several similar applications within a single year.

replace. There is hardly a similar incident in English

A story that stirs emotions so deeply and has been discussed for so long.

This domestic political event has kept people on edge.

The Catholic question was also the subject of much discussion for a long time.

had been. But when the final settlement was completed in 1829 in the legislative bodies, she also succeeded Completely satisfactory for those interested. Which a greater amount of energy, money and effort of every kind is involved was spent to resolve the Jewish question in favor of the Jews to be done. Debates took place in parliament for days, even nights on end.

instead, and for 28 years the House of Lords was the bulwark against the Jewish onslaught. According to the British at the time...

A version was required for the legal validity of a law.

Agreement of both houses. At the beginning of 1858, the

The lords' resistance remains unbroken. What one sees today in almost all

England's circles, which he could hardly believe anymore, threatened to come true.

namely a constitution that had hardly existed in England before crisis. The Jews and their friends incited hatred in their newspapers in irresponsibly against the upper house and demanded more or less openly resorting to violent interference with rights of the lords. And so, later, partly, the inglorious

Explain the end of the latter. | |

It's quite astonishing – but again, even for experts.

Jewish methods not surprisingly – that the general

English historical works hardly mention these battles and crises.

mention. One finds prominent historians who gloss over such events with two to three sentences and then spread the word in detail that one has to present for a long time— I negotiated whether the marriage of the sister of the deceased would now take place. Whether or not a deceased woman's funeral is permitted for the widower. Of course. Things that are much more important to the average Englishman today are the Jewish question, which strikes at the very core of his being. For him The latter is completely irrelevant and therefore not the Worth mentioning. We want to discuss one of the— not to discuss such attitudes, but only once ask why the Jews and their friends almost thirty They fought for years with every conceivable effort to achieve this, if it was so insignificant.

It is mainly this ignorance of the British that prevents us—

This prompted the following detailed discussion of important speeches from that time. to return members of parliament. They can be found all in the official collection of Hansard and are therefore beyond any doubt regarding their veracity. Furthermore We were guided by the idea that content and form quite modern anti-Jewish versions— promised and thereby also the Jews in England promised widespread theory unequivocally refuted that in Great Britain There had never been strong anti-Jewish circles. Even if their point of view is mixed with religious reasons. and our racial standpoint is not clearly expressed, so However, the content of the speeches leaves no doubt that They viewed the Jews as something immoral and harmful to the Look at the people. Increasingly, we will also have to deal with the position of the press. Lord Thomas Babington Macauley, who lived from 1800 to 1859 and was mainly Having become known through his historical works, he has had consequences— coined the phrase: "The only true history of a country "You can only find it in their newspapers." This contains a good Partly true, but one should be careful not to attach too much importance to it— to measure. It will be interesting to determine that the press became increasingly preoccupied with the Jewish question and gradually turned completely towards the Jews and their friends.

We have already discussed in detail above how the Jews gradually cleared the land for their use in the years before 1830. purposes prepared.

The Jews owe their victory, among other things, to the fact that they were partly respons: Friendly press. Furthermore, it was the liberal circles, the Eman- under the slogan of general freedom

They had inscribed the emancipation of the Jews on their banners. Above all
But it was the organized Jewish community in London that was responsible for Money and connections to leading statesmen ensured so that the matter would not be allowed to rest.

15

Behind these associations, however, were men who were equipped with energy and inexhaustible financial resources. It This is the aforementioned Lord John Nuffel. and around the Rothschild house. The latter was completed in 1836.
by Nathan Mayer Rothschild and later mainly by his Son Lionel led. Lord John Russell had been in charge for decades.
a significant share in English politics, while Rothschild over had the necessary money. Besides these two, there is also...
Saac Lyon Goldsmid. He too possessed an un= he possessed great wealth and had friends among the nobility and so on= rising leading circles. As the efforts of Jews had no success at all in the first years of their struggle.
as demonstrated, he devoted himself almost exclusively to emancipation= movement. He was just about to witness the final victory of his fellow race.
witnessing this, after he had previously been elevated to the nobility.
The last, and certainly not the least important, in this group.
Then there was Benjamin Disraeli, who actually only came into being in the year
1837, upon his entry into parliament, in favor of the Jews=
He may have intervened. We will be looking into him more closely.
have gone.

The Jews' tactics also require a brief explanation.
After achieving partial successes in the city, they was the aim of the application for statutory repeal of the Restrictions brought Jewish emancipation to an abrupt halt win. When this attempt failed, they went to the old methods. The overall endeavors were dissolved into individual actions by imposing a restriction on Jews according to which allowed the other to be overturned. This established the general principle.
The opponent was broken through and finally brought down.
Furthermore, this was initially achieved by gradually appointing Jews to public office.
came into them, in which they with all the power associated with them= authority to support the Jewish cause. The most ruthless and For English conditions, this was almost the only existing method.
in the fact that Jews elect themselves to any public posts left them without being able to legally fill them in. They worked then with the people as expressed through the election= will and the potential lack of freedom in the event of exclusion Justice for voters and elected officials. To what extent is this actually achieved through Such elections allow the true will of the people to prevail.
We will find out more below.

Here we would like to briefly mention the number of Jews in England. and their main settlement sites. This seems therefore necessary to prove once again emphatically to establish that in all major upheavals within a Community in the Jewish question should never rely solely on the numbers= moderate strength of the children of Israel arrives, but merely on individual wealthy Jewish cliques.

16

The number of Jews in 1830

The estimates of individual researchers in 1830 regarding the The number of Jews varies, however the discrepancies are only insignificant. One can probably assume with reasonable certainty that that at this time there were approximately 20,000 Jews in London and another approximately (lived in the rest of England). In 1848 (The Jewish population was already listed as 40,000 souls?), which, however, This contradicts an estimate from 1853. (estimated the number of Jews at 25,000), which, taking into account the Estimates from 1830 do not appear entirely without reservations. These latter details come from a clergyman named Mills, who as a result of his numerous interactions with Jews, a precise He claims to know their lives. Thus he shares us, among other things, that the majority of Jews are considered poor I have. This group is usually made up of people who only recently They had recently immigrated from other European countries. He would find them mainly in London. Based on his With a total estimate of 25,000, he gives the number of the latter with 12,000 – almost half – belonged to the group. Another 8,000 belonged to the group. so-called middle class, while the rest of 5000 belong to the rich would have to be allocated to districts. These latter would likely be for a

Leadership and influencing the leading men of England only

They may have been considered. Of these 5000, it is probably again, only a few people like Notschild and Goldsmid were-beings who, because of their wealth and connections have made the English government subservient.

Finally, we learn more from Mills, that even already At that time, Birmingham and Liverpool were industrial centers alongside London. and Manchester were the main centers of Jewish settlements.

1) Hyamfon: History, p. 260. B. al p. 21. Goldfmid: Remarks: p. 26, 69, 70. Salomons: Short Statement: p. 21.

R. Egan: p. 86.
3) Mills: p. 256.

2 17

Jewish Preparations and First Defeats

In the preparations for the first attempt at emancipation of the Jews are known to us through documents published by Jews. rare opportunity offered to start from scratch in goal setting and To gain insight into the Jewish approach. consist of letters from the estate of JL Goldsmid, who was a played a leading role among the Jews. Unfortunately, this is only a selection. published, while the main part is still in Jewish private property. But even this small part gives We already have a good insight into the secret negotiations. of the Jews with influential men of England at that time.

As early as May 1828, we see from a letter by Lord Holland to JL Goldsmid, that he recommends the fatal words to abolish the oath of abjuration for Jews by law let him. He assures him that he will use all his influence for this request would be considered in the House of Lords.

Further correspondence between the two from February 1829 It puts Rothschild's work in the right light. He, he recommends... Lord Holland is to confront the Duke of Wellington, how valuable the favor of world Jewry is. With the growing Russia's influence in Western Asia was absolutely essential for England. necessary, the secret help of the Jews living there= to be against it.

But Jews around the world made their position clear. vis-à-vis the various governments regarding their treatment dependent on their racial comrades. "If, therefore, the Jews of England would enjoy the same rights as other subjects then not their brothers in Constantinople, Turkey and Levante feel that by promoting political goals Britain's interests as a friendly power under= "Support...?" If England is therefore generous towards the If Jews were shown, in his view every Jewish Banker, every Jewish doctor, every Jewish merchant in the Throughout Türkiye, an active and useful supporter of the system of English politics in the Levant fine ..).

Other letters indicate that one should pay particular attention to... attentively followed the progress of the Catholic Law. In the minutes of the meeting of the "Chamber of Deputies for the "Opportunities of British Jews" from March 1829, that JL Goldfmid with numerous members of both laws= The giving houses had held discussions about the Jewish question. He had, among others, met with Lord Holland and Lord Lansdowne, as well as negotiations with other leading men. It was also hoped that... further powerful influence through Mr. M. Montefiore in this To be able to exert direction.

1) L. Abrahams: pp. 185–187ff.

18

The month of April 1829 saw apparently new steps of the Uden

We find letters from Lord Holland dated April 11th and 12th to JL Goldfmid, which demonstrates the general lively activity. In addition, it is interesting to learn that Mr. R. – – un-Doubtful Rothschild –, with influential people who... He would have spoken if he were in favor of the plans. Likewise. It had apparently been established that the press and the public– was only too inclined to undermine the cause of the Jews. support.

The minutes of the meeting of the organized Jewish community of April 16, 1829, have also been published. According to these minutes, Noth– shield with the Duke of Wellington, the Lord Chancellor and I spoke to other influential government representatives, who all They had promised their help. However, emphasis is placed on the fact that "Not a single mention of this in the daily newspapers" The matter should be dealt with, as it was believed that every conflict is considered a step towards the desired goal= would prove to be partial. The request to lift the Jewish restrictions was It was designed immediately and was ready by the beginning of May of the same year. completed. Its main demand was for equality. with the English, because the Catholics already had the same rights be granted. However, before taking the final formal steps Regarding the submission, they asked the Duke of Wellington was asked whether he would continue to offer his support. It was certainly an embarrassing surprise for the Jews when he did this. now denied it on the grounds that, with regard to the Catholic Law a similar measure for another people= The group was inappropriate. One would immediately be met with violent... They can expect attacks from the public. Even Lord Holland agreed with the Duke of Wellington's view, and so The intended step was abandoned.

However, there was no inclination to prolong the matter.

to postpone it for a few months. We will meet again at the end of June.
a letter from Lord Holland to JL Goldsmid containing the hin=
He points to necessary future measures. He represents the
The opinion that one should not visit a high-ranking church official in House of Lords would have to be brought to the side of the law in order to gain followers in a direction not very inclined towards Jewish emancipation= win. He considers the Bishop of London suitable for this and to have him worked on in this direction by Lord Bexley ate.

Lord Glengall also apparently belonged to the friends of the Jews, who made considerable propaganda efforts in favor of the proposed law. Thus he reports in a letter to JL Goldsmid that his this= Regarding these efforts, it seems to have been successful with Lord Hertford. would have led.

27 19

In mid-September 1829, the help of the leader of the Catholic Party, Daniel O'Connell secured. He had with great energy led the Catholic cause to victory, and was only too inclined to help the Jews, since he saw in them the
He saw the oppressed, as in his letter of September 11, 1829 as expressed by JL Goldsmid. Special emphasis He emphasized that the Jews had been brought about by a fait accompli Parliament should be compelled to take a position. N

"They should," Goldsmid explains, "not focus on to abandon English generosity. This is a plant that the British soil is not to its liking. It must be forced and requires a greenhouse. The English were always pursuers.
Before the so-called Reformation, the English tortured the Jews and hanged the Lollards in droves. After this During the Reformation, they still burned the Jews and the Popes hanged."

Immediately before the motion in Parliament in 1830 MP Robert Grant, who was to introduce the
The law was chosen so that certain members of the Parliament has doubts about how to finally resolve the issue.
would address the Jewish question.

From all this, one can see what years of effort and Work has been expended to complete the last tasks behind the scenes.
To make preparations. Here too, the often suspected and so Rarely admitted by Jews, a game of one or more of their racial comrades who are the highest dignitaries of a host country to use them to achieve their goals. It is unlikely that various members of the legislative houses, let alone for it must have been known to the public in what near future

Their leading men were closely allied with the Jews, indeed, that they only took certain steps after receiving their consent. Unfortunately, this is not the case in any of the many other unsuccessful emancipation efforts. Attempts in the following years revealed the game of intrigue.

The time was now considered right for a general offensive. It had come. For years, the position of the opponents had been underestimated. It was undermined. The city, formerly the strongest bulwark of the anti-Semites, had not only fallen, but was now the center of the Jews' efforts. They had become friends. The number of those who are in the highest ranks of the government was legion. If any. It was then now was the moment for a successful action to be given.

20

The battle for decision erupts

On April 5, 1830, Robert Grant proposed, "German citizens—no restrictions that apply to British-born followers of the Jewish faith."

In a fine way of the Jewish history of England, which is of interest in his speech, Grant presented all the circumstances that would justify an appeal—He spoke about his draft legislation. He explained his reasoning by saying He argued, among other things, that the time was now modern enough to address the issue of justice, which has been denied to the Indians for centuries—to lift the restrictions. The restrictions are in no way just—manufactures. The Jews have always acted in the interests of the country. subordinate, and what was cheap for Catholics must also be perfectly legal for the 30,000 to 40,000 Indians in England. In fine, very lengthy explanations, he also addressed the issues that needed to be resolved—awaiting arguments from the opposition. A particularly strong one The opposition saw the reason in the fact that "the Jews would have a demoralizing influence on others and therefore still not ready to be granted rights. That accusation was True in respect of some of them, but false in respect of others. the greater part. There would be no citizens in the country who— notable for their integrity, untouchability, and high They are of a more refined disposition than the higher classes of Jews. He would have to also admit that the opposition's accusation regarding the lower classes are not lacking in foundation. But one must consider that at the moment of the lifting of the Restrictions through a finely proposed law of the most potent a course would be taken that would forever eliminate any accusation would bring an end to it."

After him spoke the leading opposition speaker of the time. Sir Robert Inglis. With eloquent and bitter words he attacked the draft legislation.

"In my view," he explained, "I justify neither the character of the Jews nor their general behavior neither its history, nor its current overall constitution either. only in the slightest the measures envisaged for them." He insisted emphatically that the Jews were foreigners. be, not in the technically legal sense, but in the general sense, Popular significance was discussed. Their country and their interests. They are not only different from the English ones, but hostile towards them. The Jews of London would have more Sympathy with the Jews in Berlin or Vienna than with the Christians with whom they live in a country. A A brief mention of some of them would show that their

1) Henriques: Jews, p. 285.

2) Hanfard: Vol. 23, p. 1293. Hanfard was widely regarded as an authoritative source work. It trembles noticeably and will therefore only be used in exceptional cases in the following quoted.

21

-i

Interests may differ and even be hostile. In one of the In the last centuries, the Jews were expelled from Bohemia. The reason for this was that they were exposed to the penetrating- They would have provided aid to the enemy. Furthermore, it was all- It is common knowledge that they largely caused the withdrawal of would have made it easier for Napoleon to escape from Russia by making him happy The escapees had provided further funds. It is also an undisputed fact that the Londoners Jews during the war between England and France Napoleon was supported by a loan, thus enabling him to... would have set in motion the most persistent hostilities.

After a few more similar hints, Sir Robert drives Inglis continued that, "if the Jews were to enter parliament, they further their power for their own selfish and un- They would use them for national purposes. They are by no means only a sect, no, they would have considered themselves a people to this day. They would use their political influence for purposes to... to take advantage of opportunities that are connected with their own increase. If his predecessor had stated that he knew many Jews, Those who are willing to come to parliament, then it must first be The following should be taken into account: In the entire British royal family In the rich, there would be at most 40,000 Jews. Furthermore, it is known that on For every 40,000 Christians, only one representative would be elected to parliament. In-

Consequently, the number of four members of parliament is considerable. above a reasonable proportion. But the possession of capital would enable Jews to win seats in parliament. The introduction of a Jew must be considered direct proof of criminal activity. This can be considered election interference. There is no question that that only bought votes from the people would have been enough for them= won can be. A Jewish member of parliament would be the manner in which it had obtained approval, "wear it on his forehead."

Ultimately, Sir Robert concludes that Under no circumstances should Jews be allowed access to parliament. be allowed to.

Another MP named Macauley supported the bill for "moral reasons". Mr. Harrison Batley Parliament warned that, "if the Jews come to Parliament..." would be left, 25 of them would receive seats in parliament and some of their leading men then had just as much influence they would acquire them there, as they already did via the three percent "Consols would have." Another MP then speaks out again in favor of the law. "He admitted that the Jews to be submissive. But this would only be because they were treated that way. I openly despise them. The moral deficiencies of theirs Characters are solely a product of the oppression inflicted upon them. They were born. They should be given rights and their children properly cared for. Let them be educated. Then the Jews would undoubtedly become better people.

22

can be made of people." The then Finance Minister also intervened in the debate with a long speech, and admittedly in favor of the anti-Semites. He deals, among other things, with the The argument of the proponents of the proposed law is that it is unfair. not to grant Jews the same rights as Catholics. "He takes the liberty of pointing this out," he explains, "that that there is a difference between Catholics and Jews. Catholics had shed their blood for her. They had their They fought battles on land and at sea. They would have risen to power. contributed to their fleet and their armies. As a result, a There was a reasonable reason why one should have done that did not make them enemies who would have fought for them in the war. Finally, there is the fact that there are seven Catholics. Millions of people traded – but the Jews did not. They had fought their battles, nor would they have lost their armies. and served in their fleet, and finally their number amounted to the information provided by a writer from their own ranks no more than 27,000 people. Consequently, one could... Arguments that can be made in favor of the emancipation of Catholics had cited, not cite for the Jews as well."

The vote at the first reading resulted in a narrow margin.
A majority of 18 votes in favor of the bill.

The debate in parliament had long since made it clear.
A smoldering fire broke out and was naturally extinguished.
fought with all means by the enemies of the Jews. Even the Presse intervened in the disputes. Initially, she was however, still quite moderate, and only the major battles of the year From 1847 onwards, the stark differences became increasingly apparent.
between the two views on the Jewish question.

The "Public Ledger" of April 6, 1830, and the "Spectator"
The document dated April 10, 1830, mentions the Grant Act. It brings expresses that the question of emancipation is as quickly as It should be done as possible. The stance of the "Standard" is also relevant.
The date of April 6th is rather vague. Only the "Times" in one
The article from May 3rd took a very harsh stance against the Jews.
She writes, among other things, as follows:

"The Jews are neither a part of a nation nor can they ever become that, because their civic and religious Institutions prohibit such distribution... It can They are not granted any rights because an Indian never can be a patriotic Frenchman, German or Englishman, before he shed his refined Jewish character... More than one As is generally known, a third of the seats in parliament are held by... purchasable, and a few years would therefore perhaps be a British "To transform the House of Commons into a Jewish Sanhedrin..."

These were harsh words for the Jews and their friends, and one looked forward to the second reading with mixed feelings, especially since the majority at the first reading had been very narrow.

23

But they were not inactive; rather, they now also used their influence in the public sphere. Already with the application of the
A petition from a portion of the voters had been submitted under the law.
Liverpool was taught in favor of the Jews. It is not quite unimportant, to establish that the two thousand signatures are main= (derived primarily from bankers and merchants). As is well known Liverpool was one of the centers of Judaism in the province, and so we can probably assume that under such conditions= not a few of the petitioners, both baptized and unbaptized, are receiving Jews, mixed-race individuals, friends and from the Jews Mb-have been pending.

For the second reading, however, they wanted to attract even more people.

to express their opinion to parliament. As a result, they brought In the stronghold of Judaism, Citn, another petition was submitted. with approximately 14,000 signatures. These were almost all there.
if exclusively bankers, merchants and academics.
Among them were eleven directors of the bank of England, 1100 doctors and thousands of leading men.

With the greatest participation of all involved districts, the following took place:
second reading. Lord Belgrave believed he had granted the Jews equality.
to have to deny permission because they are international and as a result, they were unable to muster any patriotic feeling.
Sir E. Deering did not want to deny them the city offices, but definitely a seat in Parliament. Sir Norbert too.
Peel was against the proposed law because it did not address the sects.
who took Quakers and Sevaratists into account. All that rhetoric Lord John Nuffell could not, the Geans of the Jews to convince, and the bill was passed with a majority.
Rejected by 228 to 165 votes.

The defeat in the Jewish camp was great. But that with their innate tenacity they continue to fight for the Eman=
We can see from a shortly afterwards that cipation should be fought for.
incident taking place in parliament.

An Indian named Levi had lived between the first and second Reading of the aforementioned law, the request for clarification of the
The question was raised whether Jews are legally allowed to own real estate. to acquire. His request was even supported by the Crown Prosecutor under= supports. However, when a final statement was later made on the matter.
MP Robert Grant wanted to speak with the Green Party representative.
The argument, on the other hand, is that "one should either all or none of the Jews be giv should not fulfill any claims; he would not agree to any partial solution.
voices".

Change had to be brought about here, which could best be achieved through "enlightening the ignorant masses". Thus, resorting to every possible means of propaganda), the ) Egan: S.

') Shapira: S. off. Marks: S. gaff.

24

yes, the Jews owe their successes in the 19th century not least to them. ö

First, the proposals in parliament in favor of the Speeches given on Jewish emancipation are printed and presented in large format. Distribute the number. Various authors of reputation were awarded with approached with the request to produce brochures or leaflets in favor of to publish the Jews. Most of the time they had the right ones. People were pre-selected, and so they also had to deal with their Efforts successful. The first of them to publish was the The aforementioned and then very well-known Macaulay, a this-regarding the essay in the "Edinburgh Review" of 1831. He set This is explained in such a way that, according to philosophical principles, one can... They would have to be granted access to parliament. They already have. They have so much power in the country that they could never get any more. The Jews cannot be held responsible for the fact that they They might not be patriotic, because that would only be because... They had been treated badly up to now. But also in the public- Well-known Jews took up their pens, and among them were said to be... only the two most important ones, Barnard van Oven and FH Goldfmid, the son of JL Goldfmid, is mentioned. The latter came to prominence through his writings. He campaigned going with the arguments put forward by the opponents in parliament He analyzed the reasons and sought to refute them. Thus, the fatal concluding words of the oath of abjuration not at all against (the Jews were judged and therefore not applicable to them). It is also not right to grant Catholics equal status. I granted it, but not to the Jews. The English were solely due to the partly reprehensible behavior of the Jews It was their fault, because they had always treated them badly. It was true. It is ridiculous to speak of a Jewish threat when only about There were 30,000 Jews in the country, and perhaps three or four Jews would enter parliament as members of parliament. In a In other writings he points out that the twelve Aboe representatives the City and the other districts of London in Parliament They had unanimously spoken out in favor of the Jewish law. It was wrong, that the Jews from England would ever return to Palestine They wanted to. But they refused to become slaves under the English. to live. He too seems certain of imminent victory. when, at the end of his detailed explanations, he rejects every compromise-rejects and seeks full equality with the English.

It is reported that this propaganda achieved its intended purpose. It was successful. This should be partly very good, especially since... The other side had hardly any noteworthy similarities Measures were taken.

However, the English political public was in the following He has been very busy with parliamentary reforms for years, and so ) FH Goldfmid: Remarks, p. off.

It may well be quite nice that the Jewish problem had to take a back seat to these things for the time being. The time span, however, should be the Jews may not have been so disliked after all, since they were used for further purposes. used in the detailed preparation of a new draft law have.

At the beginning of 1832, Jews in Canada were granted full emancipation by law. The Jews failed not, with reference to this the same law in the mother country for to demand it. Perhaps this fact also helped them in "next year will bring about a not insignificant success" win.

The four associations of barristers – called Inns of Court – had hitherto closed themselves off from the Jews and still demanded the full oath around the year 1830. Abjuration. In 1833, the first Jew, who had already mentioned FH Goldsmid, the application for admission to Lincolns Inn and admission to the court with permission to the last to be able to omit words from the oath. Some members set opposed the request. When her statements were read... resisted, it was a hardship for the young Jew, to first quiet him= silently granting training within the Inn and then to refuse admission, Lord Campbell declared, at the same time Member of Parliament: "What does 'toughness' mean? Not at all! Let's..." "His writing will become...)." However, the majority approved the motion. instead, and on January 30, 1833, the first Jew was ordained as a barrister admitted").

FH Goldsmid then took the oath in a form possible for him as a Jew. It wasn't long after that The other three inns also followed suit and took in Jews.

This success should not be underestimated, because the profession of Barrister is exceptionally well-regarded in England, as a judge and other state institutions offer training as a barrifter- to abandon. In other words, the Jews had a new gained a position of power, within which and from which they had gained new bases for their general attack.

In January 1833, the newly formed parliament had convened first meeting. The liberals, with whose help the Jews Those still calculating had no fewer than 511 members of parliament in the House of Commons, while the Conservatives had less than 150. FH Goldsmid addressed the public in a letter. new House of Commons, in which he expressed his hope that the Parliament's activities are being described as "an act of justice".

would begin.

9 Lives of the Chancellors: Vol. V, p. 544.

Administrative Register no. 19, fol. 65, Records of Lincoln's Inn: Vol. II, p. 127

Hyamson: History, p. 262. Pictotto: p. 396.

The years 1833–1834

On April 17, 1833, Mr. Robert Grant presented the following in Parliament:

Motion that a committee be formed to study Jewish restrictions=

Kungen should be formed. Grant was particularly keen this time.

The applicant is suitable, as he now holds a higher position in held the government formed by Lord Grey. The application was, despite the patronage of Sir Robert Inglis, without further ado Vote carried.

This Member's name has already appeared here before a second time. This will become even more apparent in the course of further battles.

This will often be the case. It would therefore be worthwhile to briefly...

fiber fine life to communicate.

Sir Robert was born in London in 1786. According to a

After receiving an excellent upbringing, he devoted himself almost exclusively to the

He turned to politics and repeatedly appeared in parliament as a representative of the conservative English viewpoint. One be= characterized him as a representative of those represented in the countryside

Opinions and – perhaps only for that reason – as not being of be= especially great abilities. A careful review of his Speeches in parliament on the Jewish question provide no indication whatsoever=

Points for that. On the contrary, his speeches always demonstrate again, a good knowledge of Jewish history. Perhaps.

It was also his stance on this issue that made him a liberal.

The majority of England is considered backward and not particularly made him appear capable.

Grant then introduced the law without any difficulty, which

Regarding the committee, he returned to parliament and received it without...

Furthermore, a majority voted in favor of the first reading.

The second reading took place on May 22nd. Again it was Sir

Robert Inglis, who faced the bad Consequence in every respect= consequences arising from the passage of the law had to, he warned. He was warmly received by Sir Oswald.

Mosley, probably an ancestor of the current fascist= supported by the leader of the same name. The Friends of the Jews

They, on the other hand, considered a rejection incompatible with the liberal principles of England and the brilliant abilities=

The Jewish way of life. What one learns from the composition of the Par=

What had been expected happened, namely the second reading was

It was passed with a majority of 107 votes. That also the
The generally unimportant third reading found the necessary majority.
This hardly needs mentioning. This success should not be overlooked.
to a small extent thanks to father and son Goldsmid Fine. The latter had tirelessly championed the Jewish cause through publicliche Schriften were recruited, while the former incessantly Ver-
He had engaged in dealings with influential people.
reports that he spends every night in the arcades of the Par-
I have delayed laments to allow incoming and outgoing members of parliament to stop them and explain to them the reasons for passing the Jewish Law. The following little anecdote may have been heard on to show fine Jewish zeal:

27

When one day it was uncertain whether the bill would pass because It was heard that the onset of night should still be dealt with.
two members of parliament who offered their help to the Jews in voting had promised to talk. "There is hardly any..."
"Prospect," said one, "that the Jewish law will still be in place for this
"It will be negotiated at the late hour; I will go home." The Another replied: "I would like to do the same, but it
It's completely useless to try. Goldsmid fits into the change-
The hall will open and will surely force me to wait."

But they did not rest on their newly won success, because
For it to be legally valid, the approval of the upper house was still required. necessary. The leaders of the Jews and their loyal friends, such as
For example, Lord Holland visited and interviewed various peers.
They talked with varying degrees of success to convince her to stay under= support. Lord Holland even managed to win over some members of the to get the royal house on his side and their under= to secure support for the vote in the House of Lords.
He also made every possible effort to recruit members of the high to win over the clergy in the upper house. In fact, they had at Bishop of Dublin success.

The last meeting took place on August 1, 1833.
House of Lords.

As a powerful demonstration of strength, they first had the
The Duke of Suffer will appear and announce that he has 7000 sub-Writings by West Minister for the passage of the law in holding hands. Subsequently, Lord Bexlen, a close associate-workers from JL Goldsmid, the formal application for second Reading. The Archbishop of Canterbury was the first to speak.

against it. He does, however, have respect for morality and religion. of the Jews. But parliament is a Christian institution. where Jews had no place. The Bishop of Chichester supported the motion, however, because the Jews were only elderly. They were brothers of the Christians. But when the Duke of Wellington spoke out against the bill because it was against the Christian character of the country. There was no doubt that this would violate the Christian character of the country. Moreover, the majority of the lords refused to approve it. would. This then happened, and the application was approved with Rejected by a large majority.

Great was the grief in the Israeli camp, which could not be alleviated even by an article from the "Times" of August 2nd, which has since become one of the Jews and their friends had switched sides, to hide The law was indeed rejected yesterday, but in the A new one would simply be introduced at the next session. And then it would work out. The "Morning Post" from the same

28

Days, on the other hand, welcomes the events of the previous evening at the House of Lords and continues:

"...A Jew, if he is consistent and conscientious, must always consider themselves strangers here and refuse the offer, to be actively admitted to our national institutions, whenever such an offer is made to him..." i

Regarding the previously shown nonchalance of the Jews at Given the failures, it doesn't surprise us that already on the 18th of November... November 1833, the Jews, under the chairmanship of J.L. Goldfield, new Decide on formal steps in parliament.

But it wasn't until spring that it finally arrived, until the

On April 24, 1834, Grant submitted another application. Again There were the usual speeches for and against the law. The draft legislation passed without difficulty. the lower house and found their way into the upper house. But here, the Jews were once again denied success. During the debates, the Earl of Malmesbury pointed out that that in the event of the law being passed, not only Jews, but should also admit Muslims, and the arch-Bishop of Canterbury was very indignant that people were thinking would have to deal with another anti-Jewish law.

The events had taught the Jews and their friends that the opposition was still too strong despite the many preparations, to solve the Jewish question in one fell swoop. We will therefore see that they will return to their original state in the next ten years= return to the natural method and pursue emancipation in stages – or, as we call it, by means of laws of attrition –, to strive to achieve.

29

A Jewish Interlude: David Solomon's

This tactic should bring success as early as next year have.

The Jew David Salomon's, who will keep coming into our lives will be elected Sheriff of London. London has not only the character of a city community, but also the a county. As is well known, a [district] had existed since 1829. A law stipulating that anyone elected to such an office must be examined before He had to make a formal declaration upon taking office. This pre-... However, the Jews could not escape because of the fatal closing words. not enough.

In this election of Solomon, one should not overlook the overall situation: Voter and elected official knew perfectly well that the Jew was right was not able to assume the office. Nevertheless – or perhaps precisely because of that – people gave their vote to him. off, in order to challenge the law and reach a decision of the to bring about Parliament or the House of Lords.

David Salomon, as expected, refused the offer from him requested explanation. The consequence of this was that he was given the He was not permitted to exercise his office.

Apparently, everything had been carefully prepared in advance; the The government immediately took up the matter and, under the Initiative by Lord John Nuffel and the then Crown Prosecutor Lord John Campbell introduced a special law to protect David to enable Solomon to assume office.

One shouldn't even think that the draft law was from the present case or generally the inability of the Jews Regarding the submission of the declaration, not even that. The word "Jew" appeared in it. The name London was also not mentioned. The tale was told. The title was also completely meaningless. autete:

"Law for the resolution of doubts regarding the declaration and oaths that must be sworn by persons who are to be elected to the office of sheriff of a city that is also a County if').

Among many convoluted phrases that a layperson can hardly understand able to, the law intended to allow the Jews, in the case of over- The declaration was allowed to proceed by municipal authorities. It should have been obvious to any attentive reader that The law, in the event of its renunciation, does not grant the Jews full [right of protection] Emancipation was granted, but it brought them a big step closer. which would get us there. The most important thing was, above all, that one The general principle would be abandoned if the law were adopted. and therefore confessed to the friends of the Jews the infamy against them Exception to the request for approval of further Bue confessions. In other words, a principle of such far-reaching scope tolerates no exception, since otherwise there would be no end to it names are given and in the end it is completely hollowed out together must break.

1) Statutes of the United Kingdom, Vol. 75, p. 127128.

80

It is therefore incomprehensible and probably impossible to clarify. why the opposition did not fight against it with all its might. Was she misled by the wording of the law? Did people believe that... to be able to grant this exception generously because one feels felt strong enough to reject general emancipation? Or was the draft law considered too insignificant to be passed? to become dangerous in general terms? Probably they were There are both reasons. We, who today look back on the events, to be able to judge their results, know that it is the greatest and irreparable mistakes in the fight against the Jews was. In dealing with them, there is only the The motto: "All or nothing!" Because even "something" leads to... "Everything" is the beginning of the end. Note the following: the data, to show the incredible speed with which the law pursued through the instances necessary for legal validity was, to be recognized. ;

The Gefebes bill was introduced on July 23, 1835 and I read it for the first time the very next day. July 29th. He already saw the second reading, after the application had previously been in Committee had been dealt with. He was already on August 3rd. finally passed in the House of Commons. With the almost unbelievable With the speed of ten days, he passed through what was otherwise so hostile.

a sympathetic upper house, and on August 21st the king already gave his formally required consent. i

But the speed is not the only surprising thing.

The press takes almost no notice of it, and despite careful
The search returns the otherwise reliable official collection of Hansard.
not the slightest thing about a debate or even a vote again. After that, the anti-Semites must have come from some unrelated source.
They knew no reason to take any action against the law.

Immediately after the law comes into force Solomon took over his office. Two years later, his successor... folger fein rassengegenye Moses Montefiore.

The tactic of diverting the fight from the general principle and limiting it to specific areas and persons was successful.
had been. It was therefore hoped that further successes could be achieved in this way.
won and had the same David Solomon on November 18, 1835 to be elected as a city councillor.

In this case too, Solomon was unable to relinquish his office.
to take up a seat, because the requirement for this still existed under the law.
Law from the year 1829, since the aforementioned law merely had made a change to the position of sheriff.

On December 3, 1835, he arrived accompanied by a large number of people.
A large number of his constituents went to the Court of Aldermen to be officially sworn in to be installed in his office. Here he was informed that he first had to make the declaration required by the law of 1829 to hand it over. He refused this just as he had previously refused his Appointment as sheriff. However, the Court of Aldermen allowed itself to be...

31

He refused all negotiations and declared his election invalid.
A new election was called and a different candidate was nominated.
chosen. Solomon now rose up against this new councilman.
Lawsuit seeking to establish that his election was invalid.
However, the legally binding judgment recognized that the view of The Court of Aldermen has complied with the law and the second
The election is legally valid.

The court's stance is not surprising, as it is openly
He had clearly only spoken the law according to the law. Rather It is somewhat surprising that the City's organ, the Court of Aldermen, still objective of the facts and the law
The situation was handled fairly.

But Solomon, shortly after his defeat, pointed this out in a writing.

pointing out that it was more important for the Jews to know, that the people elect them, rather than that the Court of Aldermen deposes them. "Reject. Moreover, the fight would continue."

9 enriques: 0 pp. 254-255. Hyamson: History, p. 263.

1) Salomons: Observations, ©. 4.

32

The fight continues

In July 1836, the Minister of Finance submitted a new bill general abolition of Jewish restrictions. This time The last days of a session had been cleverly chosen. elected by parliament. Clever insofar as, as is well known, in the In the last days of a session, the members of parliament ments more or less tired. In addition, there was the fact that... It was the height of summer and most members of parliament probably already their stay in parliament in favor of a had abandoned such things in a seaside resort. It's not like that at all. It is inexplicable that the debate about the law took place before a little interested, almost empty house went on and with only 39 to The parliament approved it with 17 votes. This whole However, the action was completely fruitless insofar as it resulted not even to the government's dismissive stance a second reading took place in the House of Lords. Thus, that was it. The law, in turn, did not become legally valid.

The manner of disregard, which the last attempt of The discovery of the Jews must have been a harder blow for them than if they were only defeated after the fiercest opposition. So Do we also hear that the failure is "a devastating (A blow for the Jews) But already in the next year David Salomon is running for re-election in Shoreham. This. Sometimes the majority of the local electorate rejects his election. However, it clearly differs.

In this year, the Jews were also confronted with new [unclear] Courage through the aforementioned election of Moses Montefiore as Sheriff of London fulfilled. At the celebratory banquet, which given on the occasion of his inauguration into office was also Lord Campbell was present. In a speech, he expressed his delight. about the election from under the simultaneous assurance that the The current government will do everything in its power. would, in order to grant Jews full equality.

In contrast to the king, one could also...

William IV now sought the favor of the young Queen Victoria, reckoning, who had ascended the throne that year. She drew Montefiore repeatedly failed. This was most evident when She raised him to the rank of knight in the same year. Besides the The Jews could also, as before, rely on the deed to devise a plan against the queen. strong support from the Queen's mother, the Duchess of Kent, and the Duke of Sussex.

1) Shapira: p. 92.

883

Disraeli on the Jewish Race

In this year Lord Holland and the now-retired Sir Robert Grant was defeated by Nitter. However, they were to be replaced by... Two people appear, who with the same zeal, but probably with greater abilities to address the Jewish question alongside Lord John Nuffel and Rothschild. These were Lord Lyndhurst and the baptized Jew Benjamin Disraeli, – later Lord Beaconsfield. Neither played immediately after the Years 1837 the leading role in Jewish emancipation, from Year after year, however, they became increasingly assertive with their best efforts. exercises stand out. Of the former, it is even said that he then sought to obtain the epithet "Liberator of the Jews", which He actually deserves it, as we shall see.

We will refrain from going into further details about life. to give from Lord Lyndhurst. It may suffice to mention that he was born in Boston (America) in 1772 and almost He lived to be 92 years old. He was a lawyer and held the position of such. high and highest offices. With his political principles, he took He wasn't that precise and therefore often switched sides.

Disraeli was born in 1804 to Jewish parents.

On July 31, 1817, he converted to Christianity and therefore had no difficulties participating in the public life of England to participate. He was active as a writer from an early age. As He praised primarily the Jewish race in this way. In the year 1837 He first came to parliament as a member of parliament, in order to then to achieve the highest honors in England. One of his greatest His friends were Lord Lyndhurst, who in turn was very close to Roth. The shield was friendly. We even hear of grand galas! Festivals given by Rothschild in his honor. We They see a triumvirate that was already suitable to handle the Jewish cause. to enforce ruthlessly.

Before we return to the general history of the Jews, however...

To turn around, it might be necessary to confront the reader with the almost overwhelming Disraeli's raging view of race and its all= to make public the general attitude towards the Jews.

These result from fine public speeches), but still more from fine, often forgotten throws?).

His attitude is particularly evident in "Conningsby" or "The New Generation" (1844), as well as in his political biography=

Graphic "Lord George Bentinck" (1852). The one in the first work

The persons involved were removed from public life.

They were given names and only their names were changed. The main characters are...

1) Sat, among others Ganfard: Vol. 95, p. 1821ff., Vol. 133, p. 872ff., Vol. 149, Taji, E. Kebbel 1882, 2 volumes, "Selected Speeches of the late Rt. Pa Gari of Beaconsfield", ) Val., among others, Vivian Gray (1826), Tancred (1847).

34

a young Englishman, Conningsby, and fine friend and teacher Master Sidonia, a Jew. Sidonia's role model is Rothschild

The book "Lord George Bentinck" was given to his friend, the Dedicated to a well-known politician. Chapter 24 of this book has Disraeli dealt exclusively with the Jews and Naffe questions employed. | |

In "Conningsby" he explains that Sidonia is the one in the world visited scattered Jewish communities and found that that the Jews of the lowest classes were generally down-would have come, while the upper classes were getting dirty devoted themselves to business. He noted that their intellectual The future development was unaffected, and that gave him hope. The only human quality that interested Sidonia was his intellect. He didn't care where he came from, where he found him. Faith, fatherland, class, character – in this direction= From his perspective, everything was the same.

In "Lord George Bentinck" he admits that the Jews are full of Hatred would be hostile towards humanity. The lack of Furthermore, understanding for the Jews has led to the fact "that the most skilled collectors of wealth sided with the communists allies; this particular race now walks hand in hand with to the scum and outcasts of Europe."

At the same point he goes on to explain that with the Revolutions Jews were involved in the riots around 1848.

New developments in Germany, Italy and even France

They were allegedly prepared by secret organizations that were involved in whose outbreak also led to the formation of the provisional government would have – and everywhere would have been at the head of such a Jewish stood.

The aim of these revolutions was to turn against religion and property. Thus, it came to pass that the Children of God walked hand in hand with the atheists.

This sinister direction of the Jewish movement is, according to Disraeli's view is not based on Jewish nature, but solely a consequence of the mistreatment of the Jews by the Christians.

Despite all the evil deeds, humanity has treated the Jews We owe an extraordinary amount of thanks. In art they would have received more. performs better than the Athenians. Their creative genius has never been surpassed. It appeared so brilliantly, as if instantly. And when "the Russians, French and Anglo-Saxons, – completely surrendered to the magic a Mozart (17) or Mendelssohn, applauded in the theater, Thus they paid homage to Jewish art."

Besides music, Jews are also leaders in knowledge. shaft.

9 Disraeli: Conningsby, p. 91.

) Disraeli: Lord George Bentinck, pp. 489–490

In "Conningsby" Disraeli believes he can establish that no major intellectual movement is taking place in Europe, which is why The Jews were not involved. The first Jesuits were Jews. essence. Russian diplomacy, which alarms Western Europe so much – mierte, fei haupt achrich von Juden organised und ein zum Leben was called.

He then proudly lets Sidonia confess that he is about to stands to undertake large international financial transactions. The story, told with great sarcasm, describes how Sidonia was treated by a The minister is being recalled to London for a stay in the countryside because the minister of the English Empire not the interest on a bond on – can bring about. Now he, the all-powerful, international one, should The banker deferred interest payments. He remarked mockingly to... Conningsby: "Can anything be more absurd than that a nation to maintain its credit and through this Loan to maintain their existence as an empire to a individual to whom the law grants the proudest civil rights denied, namely the privilege of sitting in his Senate and

To be a landowner?!"

Also the fact that the Jews exerted their influence on every country
Disraeli describes the attempt to spread the world as a special Quality of Jewish character and Jewish skills=

"Sidonia," he writes, "has been acquainted with every minister of the
He is known in various states. He maintains secret agents and political spies, to obtain any information. He under= even maintains connections with all the clever outcasts of the World. Its organization is so extensive and yet so secretive, that the world in general is influenced by his influence in this direction=
He learns nothing. His immense wealth has opened all doors for him.
opened, and there is nothing he cannot experience."

Disraeli then has Sidonia cry out: "The Jewish Opinion has an enormous influence on all events in Europe and will be passed down from generation to generation to humankind= more powerful and dangerous in their relation to lichen society
"Enmity will arise." Consequently, there is also no [enmity] through [enmity].
Sidonia's interests were limited by national borders.

His reasons why the Jews, despite all persecutions since the millennia ago are able to this un= to exert considerable influence in the world. In his opinion.
Only the unmixed race of Jews is suitable for this.
Consideration. However, the aristocracy of [the state] was an unmixed race.
Nature. Such sublimity is a positive fact and not
"...perhaps imagination." "Only this circumstance of racial purity
"I have enabled the Jews in the first place," he continues, bringing up the topic of the e pressure, "all the persecutions by the Egyptians, Assyrians, To survive the Romans, etc. No penal code, no corporal punishment Torment could cause a superior race to be defeated by a lower levels would be absorbed or even destroyed. The mixed

86

Races, as history has taught, have disappeared. But the pure race of the persecuted Jews has survived to this day
"The same statements have been preserved."
also elsewhere. But he adds that it
It is nonsense – as would now be so popular – to claim that a natural to speak of the inherent equality of all people and then to put this into practice to clothe a form of global brotherhood. Would the latter in
If the act were carried out, it would mean that the large races would perish and all the genius of the world would be destroyed. "Which This would have consequences for the great Anglo-Saxon republic, if, for example, their citizens depart from the healthy principle of reserves= separate the fourth race and mingle with Negroes and other colored peoples would mix! Over time, they would degenerate and their States would probably return to the natives= conquered." This is the viewpoint of a leading Jew on

The Jewish question and the nose question. Disraeli therefore considered—
There is no difference between baptized and unbaptized people.
Jews made, but for him, just as for us, there was only the Raise the rash. This viewpoint will also be held by Hente.
by the vast majority of the world and especially by England is being attacked as wrong. It is therefore not surprising that a contemporary of Disraeli") him because of this statement on most attacked.

This may initially suffice to determine the attitude of this "great"
Englishman", as one not rarely hears in Great Britain
He is fond of describing the Jewish question. That he... has done to make a finer "superior race" the one they are looking for in a finer
To give them their rightful place in the sun, they will we'll be downstairs.

5) Padley: An answer.

87

Ritual Murders in the Orient

The year 1840 would prove significant in many respects to be. | ; Ä
Just before the Jewish Easter festival, there was a [event] in Damascus.
The Capuchin monk disappeared. The population immediately took action.
their suspicion against the Jewish community, as they assumed that the Jews used human blood to make their cakes
They would have needed them. A Jewish barber was arrested, who allegedly after severe physical punishment, the suspicion arose= confirmed this in order to protect himself from further abuse. He be= identified a number of Jews as perpetrators. Some were already fled, but six of the Jews designated by the barber
They were still able to be arrested. They denied their guilt, and Even Turkish torture methods could not lead to any guilt.
to provoke a confession. Meanwhile, the excited crowd stormed in.
He destroyed some Jewish houses.

The French consul in Damascus had long represented
Time for the interests of all Catholics in the Middle East, and under Under his chairmanship, the trial against the accused Jews took place.
It took place. It ended with her being sentenced to death, as the guilt
It was proven beyond doubt. The consul had to carry out the execution.
the judgment, the permission of the vice president responsible for Damascus= to catch up with the king of Egypt, Mehemet Ali.

At almost the same time, there was a boy of ten in Rhodes died years ago. Suspicion immediately fell on him as well.

The Jews. The entirety of the consuls accredited there. European states, with the exception of the representative of Hfter-rich, turned to the responsible Pasha with the request for Punishment of the Jews denounced by two Greeks. The Jews They were arrested, and here too they are said to be subjected to harsh treatment. to obtain a confession from them. a | The news of these incidents arrived in early April 1840. London. Without any delay, the Jew Sir Moses summoned Montefiore, a gathering of leading Jews. Him It should have been immediately clear that he was not only acting in the interest of not only for his affected fellow race members, but also for the future of Jewish emancipation must be addressed immediately. Should the Jews executed and thus the charges against her being confirmed, was the struggle of the Jews for equal rights throughout The world, but especially England, is doomed to failure. Because The events in Asia Minor gave the opponents of the Jews good reason to oppose them. "Trump cards in hand."

Thus, in the house of Sir Moses Montefiore, they found themselves Rothschild, J.L. Goldfmid, David Salomon and others to to discuss the necessary measures. They had received word from Paris. summoned Crémieux, the leading Jew in France, to

lack, but the opposite. He had considerably

to ensure the international cooperation of the Jews. One first drafted a memorandum outlining all the advantages This would be a disgrace to civilization and some kind of guilt. declared impossible by the Jews involved.

Only those who understand the methods of the Jews on such occasions Anyone who has studied diligently and recognized this will be able to guess which means now to refute the events in Asia Minor and to ret= The treatment of the convicted Jews was applied. Most The steps will, as always, not be made public. have become known. But those mentioned by the Jews themselves fine enough to detect their feverish activity to let. | |

The first step was to win over the public. The one from the A report written by a Jew about the events was initially sent to Thirty newspapers were sent, which immediately published it. With few exceptions, we find the English press here. defenses of the Jews. She couldn't do enough to denounce the innocence of the to emphasize Jews and the cruelty of those involved to condemn the Christians in Asia Minor. Almost A relentless barrage of fire was unleashed on the population. left alone. Once one takes the trouble to do what also Even then, the leading newspaper, The Times, was to be investigated, so it will be one can learn about the frequency of the related issue treated there.

A topic that is of great global interest to England.
of subordinate importance, more than astonishingly fine!).

Given this propaganda, it should come as no surprise that the
The city convened a formal protest assembly and its full roster
He expressed sympathy for the Jews.

A delegation of Jews went to the Foreign Office.
and asked the then Minister, Lord Palmerston, for immediate action Intervention by the British government in favor of the Jews. This agreed with the greatest pleasure to fulfill the wishes to comply. "He would immediately," reads the published statement.
Communiqué, "Lord Ponsonby, the English ambassador in Constantinople, and Colonel Hedges, the English representative in Alexandria, give instructions and direct them to each in to raise ideas within their power in order to advance the fort= setting these shameless cruelties in this day and age prevent.

Some time later, a delegation from the London Society went for Promoting Christianity among the Jews to Lord Palmerston.
It consisted of the Bishop of Ripon, Lord Ashley, Sir George, H. Rose, Member of Parliament, and Sir Thomas Baring. Man expressed his deep sympathy for the Jews and requested... in case the British government urgently needs protection for the Jews.

- 1) So e.g. B. Times of May 2nd, 14th, 18th, 28th, June 2nd, 25th, 20th, 2nd, 5th, 6th, 7th July 15, October 6, 10, December 3, 7, 1810.
- 2) Times, May 2, 1840.

39

Lord Palmerston replied in a public letter that he would give the matter his serious attention and One could assure that the influence of British directing-
The power to exercise this power should be exercised to oppose the government in Constanti and to persuade the Pasha of Egypt to accept any kind of pre= to ensure that justice is guaranteed and a revival is achieved such processes would be avoided)).

At the end of the year, a delegation from the "General" Assembly of the Church of Scotland for Promoting Christianity amongst the Jews", which also includes Christianity among the Jews wished to promote, with the same request to Lord Palmerston and ver= went further than that, so that the British government would from now on generally placed the Jews in Asia Minor under their protection."

One wonders in surprise what reasons this company

The group took this opportunity to stand up for the Jews, since they were already... Allegedly, he only wanted to convert the Jews to Christianity. (Anseiz)
One felt enthusiastic when publicly advocating for the Be=

For a long time, the unbaptized Jews were also not entirely comfortable, since one could The step was explicitly justified by the fact that one could also "tiefites
"Interest in the earthly happiness of the Jews."

Apparently, the last delegation also had its special= whose wish was successful, for from now on England declared

The Turkish government officially stated that England –. how France the Catholics – in the future the Jews in Asia Minor would represent and protect. Lord Palmerston stated to the The consul appointed in Jerusalem in 1839 was instructed to "the
"To grant Jews in general every protection." This
The request was expressly acknowledged by the gate and the
He instructed other British consuls in Turkey accordingly.

But the incident has another important significance. Since

At this time, one can openly discuss international cooperation. to establish the work of Judaism. Thus we see how from almost all Parts of the world, such as Hamburg, Altona, Amsterdam, Barbados, Jamaica, Gibraltar, Philadelphia, etc. are not unaffected.
Interpretive contributions to the implementation of the Jewish action to London were sent.

The Jews then also formed a society under the name Alliance Israelite Universal, which together had its headquarters in Paris. "The English Jews," Wolf emphasizes,
"have never ceased to hold first place in the Jewish community" to possess, thanks to their freedom-loving English instincts and the support that their work has always received from their government and learned from their Christian comrades ..."

It is actually superfluous to mention that world Jewry with the help of the powerful British government, the one he had desired success achieved. Sir Moses Montefiore, who led the Ver=

Times, June 2, 1840.

Times, December 3, 1840.

40 actions carried out in Alexandria and Constantinople, he held in both cases the official assurance that the innocence the Jews were proven to be guilty. The accused and arrested Jews

They were subsequently released. For his services to the cause.
He was honored by Queen Victoria and also in other ways.
praised by members of the royal family.

New Defeats

On the stirred-up mob of pity, the Jews again hoped to be able to drive their demands upwards. Thus, ver= It is not surprising that already on February 9th of the following A draft law was introduced this year with the aim of... Jews finally have the opportunity to assume office as to enable councilors.

To everyone's surprise, the law was even passed in House of Lords a majority in the first and second readings find. In the third and otherwise usually no longer decisive round. However, the reading was rejected again by the Lords.

Another Jewish partial attack had been repelled, and it was another setback, as Solomon's efforts were once again in vain. as a candidate in an election to parliament in Maidstone erected.

The renewed defeat of the Jews certainly contributed to this to ensure that from this year onwards they dedicate all their energy to it= They went to build their own press. This allows us to observe that that from now on an organized press of them into existence was summoned.

When, in 1843, the Jews of Tetouan and Tunis were allegedly treated badly, the local British consul at the instigation of his government at the meeting there presented himself to the incumbent Bey, who then promised to remedy the situation.

In England itself, the second half of 1841 and the two following years saw no particularly noticeable events Actions taken by Jews to achieve their goals. This may on the one hand, a certain fatigue, but probably mainly This can be attributed to internal disagreement. Within the The Jewish community was, in fact, a powerful reform movement. religious sphere arose, which mainly involved the forces of Jews were being targeted because two opposing camps were involved. had formed.

Salomon becomes City Councillor

David Salomon was re-elected City Councillor in 1844 elected to the City. He hoped this time to win the Court of Aldermen. to convince him that he can relinquish his office without the explanation that is impossible could take up the position, since the relevant authorities in other cities already They had distanced themselves from it. But he received it again, as well as... The previous times, a rejection, and thus received the true message. justice, which he, however, lacked with the arrogance of his race. I wanted nothing!

This time, Solomon let the Court of Justice decide. Aldermen leave it at that, without seeking a court ruling. Apparently, they didn't want to face the rejection again. A court ruling was obtained, especially since negotiations could begin immediately. likely included in order to extend the 1829 law to the to change Jews.

On March 10 of the following year, Lord Lyndhurst, as The Lord Chancellor personally introduced a draft law according to which the Jews The original declaration should be issued. In its place A version acceptable to the Jews should be adopted.

Lord Lyndhurst cited the following as justification for his application= that many Jews already satisfactorily hold high positions= filled and even some cities, like Portsmouth, Southampton and Birmingham, Jews without submitting a declaration to the They would have been allowed to hold positions as councilors. The bishop of [unclear] also London indicated that it would agree to the request. so as not to "provoke angry feelings and the grace of well-being" to reduce what was about to happen, this very respect= to grant to the community." However, he would still be against every law in favor of admitting Jews to Parliament. Not a single speaker addressed the assembly, as far as could be ascertained. It was possible to oppose the bill, and no objections were raised. No more named votes will be taken.

There was therefore no doubt that it would be possible without any difficulty= possibilities in parliament – that such draft laws already had always been friendly towards – assuming who= the would. There it was personally opened by Sir Robert Peel. brought forth and thoroughly explained. Undaunted, Sir Robert took up Inglis once again reiterated his arguments for rejection= gathered and complained bitterly that the Jewish council= Gentlemen in Birmingham could have violated the law without to be punished, and now, in addition, the Jewish

The nation will be rewarded with a law that is so favorable to it.
With an overwhelming majority of 91 to 10 votes,

1) Salomons: Cafe, pp. 3–4. Henriques: Jews, p. 255.

48 the bill was passed in Parliament and received the Queen's assent on 31 July 1845

The Jews could be satisfied with this success.
The tactic of attrition had led to success, because Now all the offices of the communities were open to them, including the
(The position of mayor is open?). The danger posed by the
The passage of this law is a boon for the opponents of the Jews=
What had been invoked was partially recognized. With bitter words.
The Morning Post complained about the adoption of the law in House of Lords. In her editorial of July 19, 1845, she referred to They see these events as a "blow to the old British"
"The state of [the state]." She can't believe that this is also possible.
still had to accept it from a conservative government.
It's truly enough to drive you to despair that for a handful Jews would jeopardize the British Constitution.

But this was not to be the only success of the Jews.
They should continue to win and clear the ground for the
The final attack, namely admission to parliament.

The aim was to dispel any remaining doubts about the project as early as the following year to resolve the still not fully clarified ownership issue.
It was also desired that the laws be repealed, which, among other things, Jews wore special badges to identify themselves to wear. Finally, they also wanted the so-called To formally repeal the Statutum de Judaismo. As always, Lord John Russell distinguished himself on such occasions, and
The draft law in question passed through the process almost without difficulty.
different stages of the upper house, in which he again first
It had been introduced. Parliament also passed it.
This application will be processed as quickly as possible. With the official title "A Law for Exemption from Certain Penalties and restrictions regarding the religious opinions of the sub=
"By order of Her Majesty" it went into the official collection of laws.
a)).

This effectively removed all major restrictions on Jews.
They fell. Only access to Parliament and the House of Lords.
was still impossible.

The Jews and their friends now set about conquering the conquered
To thoroughly clean and scour the foreland. This is how we find In ever-increasing numbers, Jews held positions in the community. David Solomon was reappointed as a councilman shortly afterwards.
He was elected to the city council and was finally able to take up his post.

The progress of the Jews could also be clearly seen in other ways.
Positions. Anthony de Rothschild, one of the brothers from the house von Rothschild, and Ifaac Lyon Goldsmid were knighted
The powerful position of the Jews was made most apparent.
but marked by the events of 1847.

- 2) Statutes of the United Kingdom, Vol. 85. pp. 480-481.
-) Statutes of the United Kingdom, Vol. 86, p. 418.

44

At this time, the general elections to Parliament were being held. To the surprise of most, David was running as a candidate Solomons in Greenwich, a district of London, and Lionel Rothschild, the head of the bank, in the City. The
The former only made his intention in this regard the day before the election.
announced"). |

-) Daily News of July 80, 1847.

45

Solomon's fails – Rothschild flies

The tactics of the Jews and their friends were quite obvious.
They wanted a parliament here too, just like in the municipalities.
elections, presenting a fait accompli by making some of the
The influential Yuden was elected. One could then focus on the invoking the alleged will of the people and in turn invoking the struggle from
To translate principles into personal ones.

The so-called Nomination Day for the candidates took place on July 29th.
This meant, and still means in England, that on this day in The candidates in question from a constituency were formally appointed.
be named. Furthermore, if no explicit name is given,
An objection is raised; the candidate has already been elected by acclamation.
will be. The latter election, however, is taking place more or less as a trial run.
always takes place, and so one can speak of a before on this day= speak of the current election.

In Greenwich, Solomon was by no means alone as A candidate appeared. Rather, Admiral Dundas attempted to Barnard and Kidd also wanted to be elected to Parliament.
As is usual on such occasions, Nomination Day had taken place.
a crowd of about 5000 to 6000 people gathered, to obtain the statements of the various candidates regarding their Listen to the program.

The preliminary election resulted in a majority for Solomon.
Dundas and Barnard then requested a date for the following day.
a formal election. This brought them a complete victory, and Once again, Salomon was fighting for a parliamentary seat.
defeated.

But Lionel Rothschild was to win in the important electoral district of Eng= countries have a resounding success, although the conservatoire= held counter-meetings and attempted to...
To make it clear to voters that Rothschild should not be elected (may). Their press championed this and described it as It's a disgrace that a Jew should be chosen to lead the city.
to represent?).

The pro-Jewish press, on the other hand, was not only confident regarding the election, but maintained the previous status= Point for being completely unjustified. Because in the drafting of England cannot be prevented from indirectly already exerted their influence on the legislature. "Through their entry "Into parliament," they state, "they do not gain new influence, but merely a just and wise confirmation deffen, was fie schon befeten.")

Certainly, various circumstances have contributed to this.
To secure Rothschild's election. The main reason, however, is likely...

- 1) Morning Herald, July 27, 1847.
- 2) Standard of July 26, Morning Post of July 7, 1847.
- 1) Morning Chronicle of July 27, 1847.

46

to seek in an organized bribery of voters.
We have often emphasized that this type of crime is associated with the
It is hardest to prove, since almost always all those involved are condemned to silence. But in this case, we believe, based on completely objective historical research, the to be able to take responsibility for the findings made.

As early as July 19th, a police force generally known for such crimes left the station.

The notorious agent and his two assistants visited the city of Norwich. Their destination was London, and honorable citizens of Norwich They decided to warn their friends in London. They sat down. contact with certain people and learned that the Re: Agent already several years ago for a liberal MB-£20,000, – for bribery in connection with an election I have turned to him. It was an open secret that he was now going to He went to London to conduct the elections there in his own way. influence.

These facts were reported in an open letter by a leading Conservative in the "Morning Herald" of July 31, 1847 brought to the public's attention. We will continue See below for any signs during election day. They spoke of the agent and his accomplices at The work was. The Nomination Day took place with a large turnout. Here too, the various members of parliament of the Conservatives spoke= vatives and liberals and exposed their political views= each other. We are currently more interested in the accompanying- circumstances of this event and in particular those present Voters. ;

From the third-largest part of the city, most of the voters had hurried along. They were right in the limited space– arrived early and therefore made up the majority of the – key voters. They consisted of at least three-quarters from Jews of the worst type and most repulsive appearance. Their roars filled the air almost incessantly, and could not do enough to silence the speakers they did not like. to prevent them from speaking. Only in Rothschild's case did they preserve their right to Peace and quiet, interrupting fine speeches only occasionally with commotion. Screaming. They were so unrestrained that they even attacked those in need. shield-allied liberal MPs temporarily not through– allowed them to penetrate. All in all, this was, as we learned, a matter of... is communicated to produce an "unwashed hired mass of Applauding, consisting mainly of coal carriers and – "Buyers of old clothes consisted of".

In the preliminary election, the Liberals, and also Rothschild, at least nine-tenths of the votes present, which is of course the case with the composition of the voters present. not surprised. The conservatives therefore requested a formal election.

Election day was approaching, and it must have been the most amazing have brought scenes. The so-called long-shore men, i.e.

those individuals who were ordered to bribe,
They were at work all day. You could see them particularly... in the poorest parts of the city, such as Cripplegate, Bishopsgate, Smithfield, etc. These were at the polling station.
Completely unknown persons to the citizens and almost entirely blocked the entrance. Voters who were about to exercise their right to vote= Things that needed to be practiced were usually put aside at first.
She then saw the strangers talking to her. In most cases
In some cases, after lengthy haggling, they handed the relevant voters the documents.
£3 to £5 out, while they received insurance for it, that the person in question would vote liberal, i.e., Rothschild. Some
The voters made no secret of this deal. Many came to the nearby members of the Conservatives
They approached the party and told them how much they had been offered.
If you paid them the same or perhaps even more,
would not be averse to also including the conservatives choose. They indignantly refused and were able to confirm shortly afterwards= to suggest that the person in question would have voted for the Liberals.

In general, these processes could happen again and again.
be determined. The same picture in every electoral district. Completely.
It must have been terrible in the last hour of the election.
be. Not only was bribery even more blatant than at the beginning,
The prices for the voice had risen considerably.
One paid no less than £63 for it. Truly, the late Voters have been richly rewarded!!

The outcome of the elections is likely to be affected by such methods.
had been determined from the outset. Lord John Russell had the
The most votes were united in favor with 7137; then followed as next two more liberal MPs, including Rothschild, and only one conservative had managed to prevail.
able to.

The pro-Jewish press celebrated Rothschild's victory in the most effusive tones. The prevailing view was City has acquired immortal fame through the election and the
The Jewish question is practically solved (fet'). "We have seen," fo
The "Morning Chronicle" writes that "a Prime Minister of the British Empire (Lord John Russell) a Jew at the took his hand and walked with him to the first of the British electoral districts went and said: 'Help me to emancipate this man (Rothschild)' to pierce the last sinister remnants of stupidity and insults=
the tyranny and to make him one of ours." |

The leaders of the anti-Semites are appalled by the outcome of the Elections. It's a disgrace that a Jew should be chosen for this.
fet, the Git, the City, represent. The outcome of the elections fet der Jens) Sunday Times from August 1, 1847.

Morning Chronicle of July 30, 1847.

Triumph of money. In unimaginable quantities, money – we are talking about £25,000 – – – –, has been used for bribes People have been. They are also giving serious thought to the future. What good can one expect when religion and principles that money would be worshipped and abandoned. Because "It is crystal clear that Nothschild's finest choice is money, money and (thanks again to money)".

Rothschild himself later confirmed this through his own statements. Suspicion of bribery confirmed and reported to persons: to state that the election in the City cost him £20,000 to £25,000. would cost. In fact, however, the expenses for a Such an election normally cost between £800 and £1,000 back then. City might, but at most up to £5,000.

However, there was still no possibility for Rothschild. keit, to take his seat in the House of Commons, since he lacks the necessary qualification could not afford the flexible oath of abjuration. The Jews and Her friends prepared everything to finally make this last thing happen. To remove the obstacle. Therefore, new ones should be developed soon. We can expect heated debates to erupt over this in parliament.

) Morning Post v. July 30 and 31, 1847. Morning Herald v. July 30 and 31, 1847.

1 49

New wave of propaganda

Before and during this wave, the country was bombarded with a new A wave of propaganda has flooded the country. It is impossible to read all the writings. We will mention only the most important ones briefly, outlining their content. cite.

FH Goldsmid published a new pamphlet in which he considered it unjustified that the Jews should be administrative officials could be in the highest positions, but not in parliament= could be elected. Only the unfortunate Jews will be. (still excluded from this right in England)). The attitude The opponent would be incompatible with the Christian religion, since One should then love one's neighbor as oneself.

Another writer demands reparations from the "Injustice done to Jews by the ancestors of the English."

Hopefully, the British nation would soon be seen as a younger and loving sister to the happiness and resurrection of Contribute to Israel.

"The van Oven, who had previously come to prominence in a similar vein He couldn't be missing this time either, of course. He sat down in the especially with regard to the religious reasons of the opponents and considered them completely misguided, since England was "not a Christ."
"Liesland" free).

Finally, we don't want to miss the opportunity to mention a book that was published back to point out the "History of the Jews". It was not in a single Volume appeared, but in a collection of general, Entertainment stories that interest the public. Their
This meant a much larger readership from the outset.
Secured. Furthermore, it's interesting that they appeared anonymously.
was and therefore no one easily came up with the idea that the
The author was a Jew, namely Grace Aguilar. Would that have been Had this been known, certainly not a small part of the
The English perceived the statements as considerably presumptuous.
and were consequently rejected.

In the first part of the book, the Jewish woman can't get enough.
to do the alleged past atrocities of the ancient British (to list them?). This is immediately followed by a eulogy.
the scholarship of Menasseh Ben Israel.

It is regrettable that one still sometimes has to rely on the look down on Jews. "Because they are," she continues, "in fact Jews only in relation to their religion, whereas Englishmen in every other respect "In other respects..." Isn't that incompatible with the view of our age, that such hardships still exist in relation to this

1) Goldfmid: Reply, pp. 5-7 ff.

1) Birks: S. :

3) van Oven: Baron de Rothschild, pp. 20-25, ) Aguilar: pp. 1-11 ff.

50

Part of the community that has already been completely absorbed into us should exist. '

The Jewish immigrants from Spanten resembled princes, However, the part originating from Germany still belongs to would leave no wishes unfulfilled. But the Jews were not to blame for this, – but was responsible for the oppressions in the aforementioned country.

Moreover, one could search in vain for Jewish criminals.
and looking for beggars.

Then follow the descriptions of the so-called persecutions.
on the continent, which then as now has the Mit= should cause suffering among the English.

Finally, there is a serious appeal to talk to the Jews.
to make peace and give them everything they wanted and which would be theirs. : |

Besides these publications, there was also the pro-Jewish one
The press was extremely active. It seems that things were also happening behind the scenes
As always, they worked with great energy. They applied to the various leading members in the upper and lower houses members, in order to express their attitude towards the Jewish question in advance to clarify). |

The correspondence we received regarding this matter should certainly represent even a fraction of the negotiations at that time.
At the beginning of December 1847, it was believed that there was sufficient resources in to be prepared to fight the Jewish question in parliament to be able to do so. This time they had the full support of the liberals.
Government. As always on such occasions, Lord should John Nussell, Prime Minister of England, will be honored.

On December 16, 1847, he personally submitted the request, "that the House should form a committee to lift the religious restrictions on the Jewish subjects of your Majesty." The aim was to grant the Jews complete freedom all at once.
To achieve equality with the British.

Lord John Russell took a dialectically excellent approach the word on his draft law. The speech must follow the
The text he provided took hours to write. Apparently, he had He studied the history of the Jews in detail. He believed in particular, the opposition has to point out that it that the Jews were "people of the highest morality".
They would be unsurpassed in fulfilling their duties towards the state and their loyalty to the crown. The Jews, in English= Those born in the country should be English and nothing else.

He was succeeded by the leader of the anti-Semites, Sir Robert.
Inglis. He too spoke at length and in detail. Mostly
He was surprised that the Prime Minister personally had...
He largely supported the proposed legislation. However, he was also in generally a completely different view than this one. They were already boasting the Jews, with the support of the Prime Minister, publicly announced that their final triumph was no longer be far away.

Benjamin Difraeli also intervened in the debate. The assumption, Judaism could destroy the Christian character of a country. To change it would be downright ridiculous. Furthermore, he couldn't be under= to point out that the Jews are superior to all other races of the They are superior to the world. Their overwhelming influence is felt everywhere. to feel it. Not even Christian doctrine is spared from it. remained, because the Jews were the true originators of the Christian religion. Given this situation of emancipation of the To contradict Jews for religious reasons is surely more as absurd. On every holy day, the doctrine of Jewish heroes and poets were read aloud to the people. This could but only as a prerequisite that they are also morally sound would be regarded as highly distinguished. Furthermore, "every gentleman here In the house he professes the Jewish religion and believes in Moses and the prophets. (Interjection: Oh!) Where is your Christian? "What if you don't believe in Judaism?" In fact, it was But a Jew is only an undeveloped Christian, and a Christian is only a undeveloped Jew. He asked his listeners if any of them could deny that "Jesus of Nazareth, who came to be a man= "The Son of God, who became the eternal glory of the Jewish Rafe." His speech then concluded with the demand to eternally condemn the Jews to be grateful for her works. Only from this feeling, not from the consideration that the Jews, as citizens and Taxpayers should have a right to a seat in parliament. One would have had to approve Lord John Russell's motion.

Representative Wood believes it is an injustice. to use the great influence and wealth of the Jews, without granting them rights, while in the further course of the During the debate, MP Seymer warned against "even one To grant Jews access to parliament. Had they only just... If they had a seat, they would gain a number of additional seats in parliament. to acquire help with their money.

The law was passed by parliament after a lengthy debate. accepted.

After that, as on previous occasions, the House of Commons had taken Jewish wishes into account. Nevertheless was despite all kinds of propaganda and support in the The highest circles have by no means silenced the opposition. This was demonstrated by the speeches in parliament. and also the press of the anti-Semites, which is now fighting back.

The "Morning Post" tries to make it clear to its readers that It is by no means an injustice to banish the Jews once and for all to deny the right to sit in parliament. Because the
The reason given was that the Jews were English and therefore had a

1) Morning Post of December 15th and 18th, 1847.

52

Right to that, certainly false. The Jews could never become English people. Rather, they were only "natural and undoubtedly "Enemies of the state".

The "Standard" joined this view in numerous articles.
He elaborated and added that "never the caste of "Usurers were more hated in the country than at present."
The paper also turned against the fairy tale with all its might.
of the "intolerance towards the Jews". It would really be nice enough that one would have to endure the presence of the Jews themselves.
They were also allowed to freely practice their religion.
and to accumulate wealth.

The editorial in the "Standard" of December 18, 1847 contains particularly sharp attacks against the Jews, and includes, among other things, as follows:

"Nothing has happened to change the character of the Jews or their relations with us during this long period. If We are therefore fools and oppressors because we have despised the Jews.
excluding the government of our country, then our pre-
For more than ten centuries, fools and oppressors have been driving been |

Now Jews are not English, although they were born here.
They are a distinct nation and also raise claims to be it. But, contrary to the truth, – it is assumed, that the Jews born here were English, would be the presiding judge.
Lord John Russell's proposal, however, will not be applied.
because there are millions of English people born in this country who are from are excluded from a seat in parliament because they do not meet the requirements.
Qualification of the landowner or lack of resources=
We are sitting down to raise the funds for a parliamentary election.
could add: "the millions of those born here who did not
They have the right to vote once because they do not own real estate.
40 shillings or own a house worth E 10,-.

We would like to present a statistical breakdown of our 25,000 or see 40,000 Jews. How many of them are usurers?

How many of them are owners of thieves' and fences' businesses?
Dive bars, or employed in even more disgusting professions? How Many, if any, pursue a useful occupation.
After? How many have ever driven a plow or been involved with it?
Connected to the land's soil? ..."

In her article of February 14, 1848, the "Morning Post" as follows with the general character of the Jews:

"The true impression of the people in this country is that the Jews are more dishonorable members of society than any other Sect or class of equal number. Whatever the most vile term.
and most repugnant in their immorality and secret atrocities large crowds – whatever vices the cruel city possesses ) Standard of November 26th and 20th, December 18th, 20th, 21st and 24th, 1847.

a š

produced' –, it is mostly under the direction of members of the Jewish race. We are not accusing their religion, – because we believe that these people have no religion at all. "The "Lower-class Jews," says Mr. Coleridge in fine papers.
"Table talk" – 'find the meanest people in mankind. They possess
No principle of decency. To amass and acquire money.
ift stets ihre einzige und ausschmpts bescharbeits"

"Since the wickedness of these people in our great Given that cities are obviously affected, one would assume that the best options are... preparations that could meet their leading men to...
to convince the British people that they are worthy to participate to turn to parliament, they should go there, and work diligently to to strive to understand the character and behavior of these wicked people improve, which is not only a disgrace to the Hebrew race, but fogar for human nature find..."

One can see from the tone of the press that opinions are very divided.
They are more confrontational than before. It also always breaks down.
more the realization that the battles were not just that concerning religious areas. The anxious question of the anti-Semites was:
What will the upper house do this time? Will it once again
Do you have the courage to resist all that pressure?

On May 25, 1848, the law was introduced before the House of Lords.
Language.

The stormy debate ended with a vote in favor of the anti-Semites. Another attack by the Jews was again rejected.

The general public was still not inclined to support the wishes of the Jews in any way. This is evident from including from the petitions addressed to Parliament, the votes cast by voters for or against a proposed law were submitted. A brief overview of the relevant ones. Applications regarding the draft laws against Jews clearly reveal an overwhelming majority against the laws in question). Also otherwise All circumstances in public life point to anti-Semitism. The people's attitude. Although we occasionally hear of two Meetings in Edinburgh and Cambridge in support of Jews. But they face anti-Semitic actions from others. (page in rich majority opposite).

For the overly confident Jews, the events of the The year 1848 must have been a bitter disappointment. From the the immediate wave of Jewish propaganda could

However, it was concluded that they wanted to continue the fight.

A comprehensive work, probably published by them, brought the main speeches that were associated with the last Jewish law was observed. The author, Egan, was a

') Morning Post of December 17, 1847. Standard u. 1847. Standard of December 29, 1847 and Times of December 17 14) Standard of 30 December 1847. Times of 13 January, 2 February 1848.

54

Barrister. He summarized, in the form of a legal opinion, the individual counterarguments of the opposition and attempted to refute them).

The following year saw another Borftoß. the Jews in Parliament under the leadership of Lord John Russell. This time he called the draft law "Law concerning... parliamentary oath", in order to create the impression from the outset to avoid a situation where only the Jews were actually helped by it should be. Basically, he generally demanded a Reform of the oaths for members of parliament. The ones for The new form of the oath proposed by all members was thus It was assumed that it was also readily acceptable to the Jews. But the Jews quickly recognized the secret intention. by Lord John.

During the negotiations in parliament, the leader of the Anti-Semite Sir Robert Inglis, after a skillful speech The Prime Minister spoke. He gave the latter the The accusation is that the entire law is only intended to serve the purpose of harming the to gain access to parliament. "Once the Jews..." Once admission to parliament is granted, they will be given a seat there. form the core of their own opinion... and have a great influence on have public resolutions." ö

He was supported by MP Major Beresford, In his view, the main reason for the requested Inde-Swearing an oath that a Jew had been elected by the City.

Both were supported by the still frequently emphasized Newdegate, the anti-Semitic activist.

"He fears," we hear, "that his predecessor, who advocated for the who would have agreed with Voltaire on the adoption of the law= agreed. He had asserted that with consideration that Jews and Christians would invest their money together on the stock exchange. earned – also no difference between parliament and the stock exchange. If these two institutions actually If they were the same, there would of course be no right to exclusion. of the Jews from the House of Commons. But he was in a grew up with a different opinion on this issue. Parliament would be the highest and most honorable thing for him, and a place in it would be more than a privilege. However, Jews could be denied a seat in... Parliament will not grant them this. They would be discriminated against according to race Religion is a separate people."

After further discussions, a vote was held, which A majority of 93 votes was in favor of adoption.

Contrary to expectations, further issues arose during the third reading. interesting debates, in which the Member of Parliament Newdegate intervenes in the debate once again. His speeches find mostly of very special value and of special Interest, especially since he apparently acquired it through in-depth study.

11) Egan: p. 150 ff.

had familiarized him with Jewish history. Above all In this regard, Newdegate points out that the Jew, as a result of his Religious principles of an inferior nature. In Furthermore, he was not surprised that the Jews were such general subjects. They would have support in parliament. Because they would be listed on the stock exchange. prevailing and the principles present there are already fully introduced into parliament.

The opposition's efforts to pass the law had been unsuccessful. Attempts to thwart the plan were unsuccessful. The vote was 272 to 206. in favor of the government.

However, the attack by the friends of the Jews in the courtyard was again of Lords rejected. Here, too, there were bitter debates about The pros and cons were discussed. The Bishop of Oxford took part. passionately opposed the acceptance.

"First of all," he argued, "the approval is dangerous, because it is impossible to count the electoral districts in which the The power of money would be needed to create one for the Jews To ensure an important matter... Especially in recent times Years ago, one could have observed the great growth of financial power in the legislative bodies seen. . . . Consequently, he found the The opinion that the adoption of this law, which directly Representation of the direct financial power in the country, a truly great evil..."

The House of Lords then expressed its opinion in the vote with The vote was 95 to 70 against the adoption of the law.

56

The comedy Rothschild repeats fid

The next eight days after this defeat of the Jews in House of Lords are perhaps the most revealing for the 28-year-old fierce battles.

The session of the Lords, in which the bill was defeated, began late in the evening on Tuesday, June 26 1849. At 12:30 a.m., so actually already the next day, The debates ended with the vote. With consideration The House of Lords adjourned until late. Very early in the morning. The next morning, Rothschild relinquished his seat in the Parliament, so that a new election became necessary.

Immediately afterwards, the responsible official authority The certificate for the new election in the city was issued. Unver

She was immediately sent to the city sheriffs, where she arrived shortly before 2 p.m. Just a few hours later... It was publicly announced that Nomination Day would be on Monday, July 2nd, and the election would take place on Tuesday, July 3rd).

The speed with which this formal matter is handled is simply unsurpassed. We can hardly imagine that it There is a similar case in English history. Usually This takes weeks. The "Standard" of July 2nd states Therefore, the necessary information is not lacking. The "Morning The Herald of the same date states that "every fool thinks: It must be evidenced that everything had been prepared in good time beforehand. would be to surprise the city's electorate."

On Thursday, Rothschild's election appeal was already published, that "the form should be given justice and also the true spirit of the British Constitution . . . "). The "Morning The Herald of June 29th is particularly concerned about this phrase. angered because, in his opinion, all of Roth's actions shield of the Constitution and laws of Great Britain contradicts this, as he is by no means entitled to a seat in parliament—to take.

Simultaneously with the call to vote, signs appeared everywhere and Posters in favor of Rothschild were put up at the ends of the city. In contrast, nothing of the sort was seen from the unprepared anti-Semites, let alone those who opposed them made this public, whether an opposing candidate would even be nominated. How How surprised one was by the whole maneuver, one can see the best way to do this is to first set up a lineup of candidates= considered the data completely worthless. Only after lengthy debates in the At the meeting concerning this matter, it was decided that Lord John to establish Manners. This decision was only made in the late Afternoon hours of Saturday, June 30, to the voters with= i Standard of June 28, 90, and July 2, 1819. Morning Herald of July 2, 1819.

- 2) Times of June 28, 1849.
-) Standard of June 29, 1849,

57

divided. Whether Lord Manners was even capable of issuing an election appeal on this day seems more than doubtful In custody. In any case, we won't find him until Monday, the Nomi= National Day, published in the newspapers. This will be noted pointed out that the election had only been staged to... to intimidate the House of Lords. Lord Manners would defend himself. to appear before the lords and attempt to refute every action directed against them. to thwart it."

The position of Rothschild's opponent was, of course, Anything but pleasant. Rothschild had been at it from day one. They worked with sophisticated, long-planned election propaganda. Since there was hardly any significant electioneering in England on Sunday Lord Manners therefore did not have a single day for the event to take place. He made himself available. This was what Rothschild gave – apart from everything else. and others – a much more favorable position. But even on Sunday The Jews of the city were active on behalf of their fellow Jews. Even during church services, they flooded the city with Election posters, which were probably put up overnight from Saturday to They had to be made on Sunday. Because the content of the same took hold. already Lord Manners in an outrageous manner. Next to him were stuck They posted leaflets on every suitable wall and door. The “Standard” points to the outcry that arose. would have happened if, for example, the opponents of Jews had issued a call such as “Juda and justice for the Jews” or “Barabbas, the election of the “British”, which would have been published.

The morning of Nomination Day saw large crowds of people. on the streets. Upon closer inspection, one noticed that it mainly Jews from the darkest east side of London acted. It almost seemed as if not a single Jew had his He pursued trade on that day. For he would otherwise be in the streets. The cry of the Jewish ragpickers, “Clo, Clo,” could be heard in the city. (Abbreviation of Cloths = Clothes) was not there all day. to hear. As far as was still possible, Even more election appeals in favor of Rothschild were pasted up. Flags with the inscription “Civil and religious freedom” or “Rothschild” were unfurled in every possible place. When Rothschild was introduced to the crowd by a friend, She was beside herself with enthusiasm. When, on the other hand, Lord John Manners... The welcoming words of a friend of [name omitted] were given during the meeting. him in the tumult of the masses.

Rothschild's speech mainly referred to the hardship= The flexibility of freedom and equality of all rights for everyone. When it ended, the applause knew no bounds.

Lord John Manners tried in vain to explain his message to the crowd. to discuss election principles. Not even the one that was closest to his heart.

) Standard of July 2, 1849. Morning Post of July 2. Morning Herald of July 2, 1840

1) Standard of July 2, 1849.

The nearest occupants could understand him. When the noise finally became too much even for Rothschild's friends, the official meeting leader was urged to restore calm. He appealed to the spirit of those present, by describing it as un-English, if you didn't also let your opponent have their say. On~~=~~ However, this clue apparently made no impression whatsoever. pressure, because immediately after the start of Lord's further speech John resumed the same roar. With a final up... He hurled his weight with force, at least for those close to him. Those seated could understand the words to the assembly: "It he~~=~~ It seems, gentlemen, that you do not consider freedom of speech to be a fundamental right. "To invoke freedom of conscience." Apparently, Rothschild felt that Uncomfortable with the situation, he himself asked the crowd to be quiet. He too had only partial success. At least now it was possible to understand bits and pieces of Lord John Manner's speech. Rothschild was attacked primarily because of his international relations that undoubtedly run counter to national interests England would have to be expelled,

The preliminary election resulted in an overwhelming majority for Roth~~=~~ sign. Subsequently, the final request was made for the next day. valid election.

In contrast to Rothschild's first election, they wanted to apparently play it safe this time and had therefore already on Nomination Day began, the masses were illegally gathered~~=~~ to influence Rothschild's favor. For already at this Days were held in various locations near the meeting place. lying innkeepers followers of Rothschild with an early~~=~~ (a piece of food and drink).

Election day itself would, to a completely different extent, bring such things Riots are showing. Just like in the elections of 1847. His agents, the so-called long-shore men, controlled the Field. The same scenes occurred (fic) as before, and the Be- The stings were at least no less severe than the first time.

In addition, Rothschild also worked with inaccurate, but Naturally, the ballot papers were drawn up in his favor. Thus, he had the Conservative Association had been in power for some time before the elections determined that approximately 1400 people – a large percentage of the Citizens of the city who were eligible to vote at that time – were wrongly excluded The ballot papers were listed. These were already Deceased persons or those not eligible to vote. The Conservative Association~~=~~ tion lodged a formal objection with the responsible regional authority. City Court and requested the deletion of these names. However, the presiding judge rejected this. This... It's no surprise when you know that for years now, over the Public complaints have been filed regarding the bias of this official body. were. In addition, the decisive member of this Times, July 3. Standard, July 3. Morning Post, July 3. Morning Herald, July 8, 1849.

59

The office was held by a clerk who was exclusively employed by a morning newspaper. The director of this newspaper, however, was in turn, completely dependent on Rothschild financially. Thus, the unlawful situation remained, and the unjust upheaval continued. Almost all of the companies they managed were bought by Rothschild and voted for him. Those who had already died were replaced by the living. replaced. , |

Rothschild's opponents were not entirely idle either. remained. Already in the first hours of voting, they distributed a Leaflet against Rothschild.

In this they pointed out that the emergency shields were removed- The votes cast would be lost, since the Jew, according to before, taking into account the fatal concluding words of the oath, not his He could take a seat in parliament. Furthermore, he is a Government entrepreneur, so that he does not represent the interests of the citizens. could represent.

Finally, "Lionel Nathan Rothschild himself or fine agents", The public was informed that "both bribery and including the keeping of people free in restaurants and other inadmissible places actions on the occasion of the election on July 29, 1847, culpable and therefore also unable to be elected to serve as a citizen. Parliament of the aforementioned city regarding the current situation To fill a vacancy

The leaflet was dated July 2, 1849, and bore the following title: Letter from four citizens, written in the presence of two legal representatives. were submitted to lawyers. | | |

Apparently, this was very unwelcome to Rothschild and his fine friends. pleasant, because only a few hours later they let us fly= Distribute the barrister's report. According to this, The opponents' view that Rothschild's election was null and void is false. be. Rather, he remains without regard for attitude. of the House of Lords. But most interesting is that not the slightest attempt is made to refute the accusation of Be= to refute the sting or at least to refute it in the strongest possible terms= assign"). i EN,

It couldn't have turned out any other way! Rothschild was with 6017 votes compared to Lord Manners with 2814 votes re-elected. The "Morning Herald" will likely confirm this. Verdict published on July 6, 1849, addressed to the majority of Voters can best describe the situation with the following words:

Write it on your banners –
Dispute it if you can.

Nothing Lord Manners means here –
No, money only makes the man.

During the official announcement of the election results, it may be possible to Rothschild's great friend, a certain Mr. Wire, was not enough.

7) Times of July 4th. Morning Herald of July 3rd, 4th, 5th, 1849.

60

to do, to praise the Jew and to condemn the House of Lords for its attitude?). Similar statements are made in the The "Sun" of July 4th. Here, the upper house is threatened completely. openly resorting to retaliatory measures if its members still... would no longer dare to stand in the way of the Jews. They They should only be reminded that the funds for the They wished to have the House of Lords approved by Parliament. to see only the stupid faces of the bishops, if one The parliament will no longer provide any money. would. The "Daily News" of the same day also rejoices. and believes that Rothschild Lord Manners in the same way I beat Sidonia, like young Conningsby.

It is now very interesting to examine the attitude of the Jewish press regarding the public charges and efforts regarding a violation to establish the driving against Rothschild.

The Times and the Sun remain completely silent, and also Here the general formula applies: Silence is To-mood. The "Morning Chronicle", Rothschild's court newspaper, This time, however, in contrast to 1847, it was discussed in detail Position. In her editorial of July 7, she shows the whole Fear of a trial, even if it presents a contrary case Attempts to create an impression.

"We believe," she proclaims to the world, "that the attempt will fail. To the best of our knowledge, the accusation is the bribery or unlawful release in 1847 just as baseless as that of bribery and unlawful Keeping the area clear last Tuesday... But even assuming, that it is confirmed by evidence would not merely be necessary. Lord John Manners in a highly embarrassing and humiliating situation Situations are coming... We can hardly imagine that any an influential group of citizens will be crazy enough to to involve the capital in such a scandal.

In our opinion, a decision that would affect Lord John Manners, contrary to the wishes of a large electorate, won the seat. in parliament, conjuring up a crisis that is full Danger is.

One sees howling fear coupled with threats that would intimidate a small citizen, generally trembling for his right to vote must have sounded unpleasant to their ears.

It is therefore not surprising that one searches in vain for further Appeals for fundraising to cover further steps are being sought. People don't like to spend money on such things, and a gloomy The "Standard" newspaper hinted in its article of July 6th that this was true. It seems likely that the whole matter will fail because of this. This has proven all too true.

Times, July 5, 1849.

61

One rightly wonders what purpose Rothschild's abdication and re-election served. This is difficult today to answer. But the press of the Jewish sympathizers has given us a A hint was given. It was to be expected from the outset. the re-election of Rothschild, intends to elevate the upper house- to intimidate him by presenting him with the alleged public opinion (would want to guide eyes'), At the same time, one always wanted to something sleepy and easily forgetful English measures to remind people once again of the Jewish question through a play. Finally. was it a particularly good opportunity for the press to report on the Jews= question in a way that the English man on the street can understand= in a lichen way. For according to the "Times" of June 28, 1849 the entire struggle was no longer a matter for the Jews, because "the draft law does not intend to deny Jews the right to..." to grant permission to parliament, but to the Christians "Authorize the Jews to vote." In other words, this The backward House of Lords dared to violate the sacred right of to question the freedom of choice of the English and actually through to rescind his stance. This, of course, had to involve the blood of a to make a staid English voter boil over, especially since he It was further clarified that his side "regards the principles of Freedom of religion and the express will of the English People's representation."

Times, June 28. Morning Chronicle, July 2, 1849.

62

Rothschild's Expulsion

Almost a whole year would pass before any serious steps were taken undertaken to exploit Rothschild's victory, i.e., to harm him to bring it into parliament. This was still done in the form of... The oaths, especially the oath of abjuration, are impossible.

On March 12, 1850, Parliament decided to establish a committee to investigate the question of whether and under what conditions Exclusions could prevent Jews from taking seats in parliament. During the debates, it was noticeable that Lord John's stance Russell, in contrast to earlier times, though not exactly dismissive, was rather reserved. Despite the deployment of the The committee did not pursue the matter further, and it remained closed. Next, at the first reading on May 31st. In response to an inquiry In Parliament, Lord John Russell even declared on July 22nd of the... same year, it was hardly likely that one would find in the opposite= Further steps could be expected during the current session. What reasons led him to his hesitant stance, It can hardly be determined today . The court newspaper of Roth= Schild was naturally not pleased about this and didn't keep up. his unwillingness.

Rothschild now took the achievement of his goal into his own hands. Attack. He called a meeting in London for July 25th. Tavern, Bishopsgate Street. Approximately [number] people were there. 500 people in total. Among them were the well-known ones. Jews, such as Montefiore, Goldmid and Cohen, and more significantly- white the acting governor of the Bank of England, Mr. Thomson Hankay.

The course of the meeting is described in great detail. (have been!). We can deduce from this that the assembly Rothschild unanimously called for the next day to go to the to go to parliament and take his seat. Especially

Lord Dudley Stuart distinguished himself in the various speeches. In his opinion, the assembly was the most important of all. Times are changing, and we just need to finally take drastic measures. proceed.

Like wildfire, despite the late hour, news of Rothschild's decision spread throughout London. Even the Anti-Semites in parliament were informed of this around midnight. taught.

The next day therefore saw a rarely full house, as many Mb-orderly only because of Rothschild's announced project had appeared. Immediately before the start of the meeting, it happened. then also Rothschild with numerous voters who supported him on his who wanted to accompany the heavy procession, in the lower house.

1) Morning Chronicle, July 26, 1850.

63

The atmosphere in Parliament was tense. The eyes of all MPs were fixed on the door through which Rothschild to take the fine route into the actual meeting room had. Until the very last minute, there were doubters as to whether Rothschild I will really have the nerve to take up his seat on to enforce this in this way. They shouldn't wait too long, because Immediately after the opening of the meeting, Rothschild entered the room and step onto the raised special seat of the to the president. He asked him to take the necessary oaths. may, however, only on the condition that he directs them to the He could resign his Old Testament. However, the president refused. off and requested that Rohrschild (fic) be removed immediately. The latter complied with this request.

One can imagine that the ensuing debate about the Incident related to the already discussed Jewish question was extremely violent.

Sir Robert Inglis was no longer alone in his opposition to the Jews. in a leading position, but he was succeeded by two younger people, Sir Frederick Thesiger and Charles Newdegate, actively supported.

The first was the grandson of John Andrew, who emigrated from Saxony to England around the century

Thesiger. He had received a good legal education and

He was soon considered the most brilliant bar keeper of his time. He wore the highest offices. Later he was in Lord Derby's cabinet.

On February 26, 1858, he became Lord Chancellor and under the name Lord Chelmsford was raised to peerage status. It seems like an irony of...

Fate suggested that the House of Lords would fall under his rule.
He succumbed to the onslaught of the Jews, and he himself believed, without his inner to have overcome aversion to Jews, out of solidarity to have to vote with the government for the Jewish law.

Charles Newdegate was just as brilliant a speaker as Sir Frederick and of the same good academic education. He He attended Eton and then Oxford. His family name is...
We've met before. During the battles of 1753... another member of his family who was first against who had fought the Jews. The life of the younger Newdegate
He was entirely devoted to politics. He died on April 9, 1887.
was buried in Harefield Church. Unlike Sir Frederick remained loyal to his cause against the Jews until the very end.
fought. When, in 1866, the restrictions on Jews, the
They were merely a formality and will be abolished by law.
should, he defended at the head of a small group of four
He shared his conviction with other upright men. Perhaps it will come.
in England once again the day that this Briton is honored is being done what he deserves.

It was these two men who, in the subsequent debates lasting all night led to the admission of Jews from the former Soviet Union.

84 considered inadmissible for various reasons. The first day of the hearing was not intended to bring about any decision. Rather, it was intended to

The meeting was adjourned until the next session day, Monday, July 29th.

The pro-Jewish press could not contain itself the next day.
Doing enough to call for further action. The Times judged Lord John Nuffell's behavior to be too slow and not conducive to the Jewish cause. The voters of the City could Rightly displeased about yesterday's events in parliament
It's now or never, according to the "Chronicle" of July 27th, is the...
The moment for complete emancipation has arrived. Courage and Perseverance is the only way. That the press of the Jews opponents who vehemently condemned Rothschild's move need hardly to be mentioned.

The battle broke out on Monday of the following week.
Parliament again. The majority secured the decision where Rothschild should be asked by the President whether he was willing be, to swear oaths on the Old Testament. Then it was established by resolution that the swearing-in would accordingly be... should follow. However, due to the late hour, the act should be postponed.
will only take place the following day.

The jubilation of the pro-Jewish press knew no bounds. More. Now, finally, the end of the conflicts could be in sight. He would see it, and victory would be near. Tomorrow Rothschild would sworn to the Old Testament, and he would and must profess his Take a seat. Why couldn't it have been done that way from the start? can??)

One can imagine that on the other side there was dejection and despair. It does not seem impossible that the government worked closely with Rothschild and had chosen the path to avoid any influence from the upper house to switch off.

With the same tension as on the first day, the session began on Tuesday, July 30. Once again, Rothschild went into the Near the President. Again he demanded the removal of the oath under the express condition that he takes it under could appeal to the Old Testament. This time it was He was not asked to leave the room, but politely informed about= The assistant handed him a copy of the Old Testament, which he had to hold in his hand during the oath. Rothschild, Lord John Russell and all the many others saw each other They had reached the end of their journey. The men sat in impotent defiance. about Sir Frederick Thesiger and Newdegate.

With a confident smile, Rothschild performed under the on= encouraging nods from fine friends, the oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy. Only the Oath of Abjuration remained. How

2) Times, Sun, Morning Chronicle dated July 30, 1850.

5 65

During the first oaths, the words were spoken to him, which he repeated without hesitation. And now he was almost finished. "At the "The faithful faith of a Christian," so the responsible official was heard to say. An official recites the concluding words of Rothschild's oath. And Into the breathless silence came Rothschild's reply: "I will let I omit these words, as they are not binding on my conscience. He then concluded the oath with: "So help me God."

Friend and foe sat frozen. Into the silence of At the high assembly came the clear voice of the President, who Rothschild demanded that everyone leave the room immediately. Rothschild prepared, albeit reluctantly, to comply with the request to come. One of the active, pro-Jewish members of parliament, jumped up and protested against this order from the President, by pointing out that Rothschild had properly taken the oaths had been dismissed. Now even the anti-Semites found their voice. again. They apparently still couldn't believe that this one too. such a skillful and already seemingly successful attack by the Jews should have been struck down again. Her relief and her Previously accumulated anger manifested itself in tremendous resistance. A cacophony of words filled the air. Again, friend and foe tried to... from the correctness of their respective views to each other witnesses. Parliament spent a third night with these Debates, only to postpone again. N

What a different picture in the press the next morning! One went from the highest euphoria to the deepest despair. Beatings overthrown, and vice versa. The newspapers of the Jews Friends asked desperately what would happen now. Be again Is a new election needed in the city, or should Rothschild...? Introduction of a new law to amend the oath formula wait and see?"

On the other side, of course, there was nothing but joy. Thus, the "Morning Herald" of July 31st says that one should actually be concerned about the to be not at all surprised by Rothschild's repeated failures I need. Because even if a Jew were incredibly rich, he would But they don't learn to behave like a gentleman. Without this However, he could only achieve his goal with difficulty due to these qualities.

Apparently, the government felt it could justify the behavior of Rothschild no longer completely excluded the Volkssturm. On August 1st, the Crown Prosecutor announced a motion for the meeting. from August 5th onwards, after which emergency signs were to be banned, to take his seat before taking the oath of abjuration. Furthermore, it should be expressly stipulated that in the next Session period, a law to amend the oath of The application for a declaratory judgment should be submitted and discussed. In the The meeting scheduled for the day in question also included a discussion. A clear decision was reached.

) Times, Morning Chronicle, Sun, July 31, 1850.

Thus, the well-laid plan of the Jews and their friends had once again collapsed, and one therefore had to consider-go to the House of Lords to request a change to the law.

to win.

But this should take quite some time. Apparently they initially wanted to unofficially aim for a majority in the upper house working towards that, or there may be other unknown reasons= beings who initially prevented a new action. In any case.
It was only on April 3, 1851, that an application was submitted by Lord John Russell.
issued pursuant to the decision of August 5, 1850, after which the subjects of the Queen of Jewish faith the Oath of Abjuration omitting the fatal concluding words N could. The first one took place the very next day.

eating.

Heated debates began again in parliament. The anti-Semites were outraged that this question was being raised again and again reappeared and they also saw it as an affront to the House of Lords, which has clearly been opposed several times against the Jewish emancipation would have been proclaimed.

"One cannot simply get lost," as Newdegate stated in a in a fiery speech, "that Baron Rothschild had come to the table of parliament and on the basis of its own authority in his case, the content of the oath would have been altered... The
The president, in his characteristic dignity, pointed this out.
that he had made fi... . guilty of a serious impropriety.
The election of Rothschild in the City of London was too under the large purse of Rothschild and the others there resident Jews. The Jews could not cope with the to be granted equal status with the English. Their religious precepts
It can be found in the Talmud. Its content is more than just...
Reprehensible. Thus, among others, the Jews were allowed to keep it.
what belonged to a Christian ..."

Newdegate then carried out further similarly immoral acts.
writings from the Talmud.

The vote resulted in a fairly close result in favor of the
The law was passed. A majority of only 25 votes was required.
hand. In the previous votes, the measure was The right to emancipation has never been so small. The reason
This was probably because many were previously responsible for the An= took favorably disposed members of parliament, through the tactics of the Eman= They rejected emigration and had joined the anti-Semites. Because One legislative proposal followed another without regard for the...
The upper house's negative stance, and probably mainly Rothschild's behavior before parliament had the Jews opponents gained new supporters. Perhaps they also in turn, others contradict the historically documented statements of the Member of Parlian Newdegate could not refuse their approval.
In any case, it was certain that the opposition in parliament and had grown in the country. At the end of June, further consultations took place regarding the form of the law, and on July 3rd The final reading took place in the House of Commons.

But the upper house again followed the Jewish attack. reject it. Even the Bishop of Norwich's suggestion that the The previous stance of the majority of the upper house was unbelievable. An inexcusable spirit of persecution "towards the The fact that he was a "Jewish brother" had not been able to change anything. On On July 17, 1851, the second reading of the bill passed by Parliament took place. rejected the differing law.

For the second time: David Galomon's

Nevertheless, for the 4 and 14th time, officially in this way It was established that the admission of Jews in general and The Rothschilds, in particular, were not welcome, the latter moved and Fine friends certainly do not appreciate the resulting conflicts. quenzen, namely, to give up its headquarters in the city.

A few weeks before the events in the top house, a Elections have taken place in the Greenwich borough. Several have already been held. Days before the scheduled date of June 27th, the Rumors are circulating that the well-known Jew David Salomon wants to after some unsuccessful attempts in other places to look for to apply for this seat in parliament. It was just the right time. the fierce battles in parliament and immediately before the third, final reading. Hope was therefore already high. generally again strongly concerned with the Jewish question taken. The anti-Semitic side was furious. that apparently no conservative representative The party was inclined to put forward a candidate. Meanwhile, the nomination had been... Day came close. Besides Salomon, another candidate was also running. Mr. Chambers and Mr. Wire. The former gave immediately on The evening before election day, to everyone's surprise, without any visible signs. He withdrew his application for personal reasons. Mr. Wire, on the other hand, accepted th The battle with Solomon began. He was the one who, in 1847, after Rothschild's first election did not do enough in a speech. was able to celebrate the big day. But apart from this It was generally known that he completely opposed the Jews. was subservient. The organized Jewish community in London expelled him. He was lavishly occupied with tasks of all kinds. Once he was even on their behalf to carry out certain tasks for went to Jerusalem for a considerable time. Under these circumstances, So the Morning Herald says, it is not surprising that "he has acquired a kind of Jewish slant."

The election was eagerly anticipated, and wondered if Solomon's really cost what he had said, Whatever it may be, – with the help of the beer barrel and the brandy-
"Winning the bottle" (if it were to win).

So it was no surprise that Solomon's this time Parliament was elected. The total number of all votes cast Voices indicated that approximately 1500 voters of the voting party had cast their ballots had included the tax. The Morning Herald of July 17, 1851 rightly pointed out that this had happened because "both Candidates not enough resistance in the hostile confrontation=
"offering a solution between Jews and Christians".

- 1) Morning Herald from July 4th and 17th, 1851.
-) Morning Herald, June 26, 1851.

69

On Saturday, June 28, at 11 a.m., the result was publicly announced in Greenwich. A large crowd was present and learned that Solomon had 2165 votes, while Wire only had 2165.
He would have received 1278 votes. Solomon showed his... ghostly voters whose cheers would never end. He took the floor and announced his firm decision, in which to go to parliament next week. He just has to wait for the After the grueling election campaign, have a few days of rest and besides= to be informed by the government which day would be suitable to scheduled important meetings were not disrupted by his appearance.
disturb.

The press of the anti-Semites left no stone unturned in trying to inform the public about the methods used by Solomon clarify. She did not, incidentally, criticize the voters of Greenwich was so pleased with her choice, because in her opinion it was
It is quite understandable that they wanted a real Jew and not They chose the shadow of a Jew as their representative.
batten').

But Solomon's appearance in Parliament should not happen so quickly. Apparently, his friend had
The government changed its mind, because on July 3rd Lord John announced Russell in the House of Commons informed Solomon of this plan intends to keep his distance until the matter is resolved before the House of Lords.

bende Judengesetz in one way or another.

Late in the evening of July 17th, the Jewish Law was famously passed.
Brought down by the House of Lords. The newspapers were on The next morning, he was full of this event. Will Solomon's dare to now make his threat – to come to parliament and to continue the struggle that has been raging for years – to make it a reality,
So asks the Morning Herald? The Times of the same day, Apparently well-informed as always, he answers this question.
as follows: "There is no doubt – they (the Jews) will do it Do it! Your vitality and perseverance will overcome any kind of Survive setbacks.

The beginning of the survey of the lower house on July 18th stood immediately before. The Speaker of Parliament had barely finished speaking.
The meeting was declared open when Solomon suddenly appeared in the doorway.
appeared and walked without hesitation to the president's seat.
Once there, he demanded that the three oaths be taken. He asked, to be allowed to place them on the Old Testament. This wish was granted to him, and one was handed to him. The first He took both oaths without difficulty, by reciting the oaths prescribed by the
He repeated the words spoken to his assistant. These words proved fatal for him.
He replaced the concluding words of the third oath, however, like Rothschild.
the year before with the words: "So help me God."
Immediately afterwards, he read the explanation from a sheet of paper.

) Standard of June 28, Morning Post of June 30, 1851.

70

before, he could not reconcile the concluding sentence of the Oath of Abjuration with his conscience. In his opinion, he had nevertheless meets the legal requirements, and he
He is duly entitled to occupy his seat.

The president was informed by his aide of the omission of the Words and the successful presentation of the reading by Solomon
The document was communicated. The president then declared, "the ver= Honest members of parliament have taken the prescribed form of the oath.
disregarded, and it is therefore my duty to seek him out, to go behind the barrier."

Solomon had followed the development of events very nervously.
and became increasingly excited. To everyone's surprise...
He did not follow the president's request. After some time
He reluctantly left the seat in front of the president's table, but sat down next to the MP Sir W. Molesworth the bench located directly below the ministers' seats.

Suddenly, an incredible noise erupted, mixed with the
They shouted "out!" or "order!" The commotion grew louder and louder.
when it was seen that Solomon was making preparations to join the high court to speak of a collection. This was of course a second, probably never before the first.
previous breakthrough in English history otherwise so strictly followed house rules. The unwillingness of Anti-Semitism knew no bounds.

Only after a considerable amount of time was the president able to find peace.
create and he once again called on Solomon to convene the meeting to leave the room, since he had been following the events of last year must know that he did not properly take the Oath of Abjuration had filed away. | |

Solomon now rose from his fine seat and went to the Down the barrier. There he paused for another moment.
as if he was still hesitating to comply with the request.
Once again, tremendous commotion broke out. One heard again the...
The words "Out" and "Order". Mr. JA Smith then stepped forward.
He led him behind the barrier. But Solomon remained stand between this and the door again.

Sir Benjamin Hall had meanwhile risen and gave a speech for Solomon's declaration that he had complied with the request of the Pre= he wanted to add to the presidential team. Then he made another announcement.
He wanted to give up for Solomon's, but was turned down by Sir Frederick Thesiger interrupted. He had jumped up and asked the president about the word. Again, there was a roaring noise. As opposing When members of parliament tried to call him to order, he replied that he was about to speak to order. "I'm afraid," he continued.
continued in a raised voice, "that the esteemed councilman should not..."
"has added house rules." (Cheers from fine party members-(friends.) "He hasn't withdrawn, but is still holding on."
always inside the house. It is my duty to open the door.
to draw the attention of the distinguished assembly to it. (Listen, listen.)

71

Now the President again called on Solomon to leave the interior, which was reserved for the members of parliament alone Solomon still hesitated and remained unentious.
Locks between the barrier and the door of the house. Close=
He climbed the steps to the gallery of lords and entered
He moved to the left side of the entrance door. He remained there in the
The role of a listener throughout the entire subsequent debate.

After things had calmed down a bit, Sir Benjamin drove Hall continued his speech and asked if the Crown Prosecutor had been questioned about the
He wants to bring charges against Solomon for his conduct. The Finance Ministry of the Prime Minister Lord John Russell.
The minister declined to answer, citing his absence.

After some skirmishes between friends of the Jews and their Opponents agreed to postpone the discussion about the An= opportunity to postpone until Monday, July 21.

On that day, it was noticed immediately before the start of the The meeting of Solomon's Jew, who was already waiting behind the The gate of the house was closed. This part of the house did not belong to to the room reserved exclusively for members of parliament. A A buzzing unease hung over the entire house. The spectators The seats were overcrowded, and outside the crowd was densely packed. no more seats had been found. Everyone waited with bated breath for the Things to come.

After the opening of parliament, the president read a letter. from Solomon, according to which he, among other things, corrected the He requested the minutes of Friday's meeting. The president refused. Solomon's request was readily denied. He was told regarding The fine decision was not contradicted by any of the members of parliament. spoken.

Immediately afterwards, the agenda was addressed. As the first speaker, Sir Benjamin Hall rose and asked the now present Prime Minister, whether the government will impose a penalty= Proceedings against Solomon because of his behavior on Friday to make it a pending case. Lord John Russell denied this. He had barely announced this decision when Solomon... went into the part of the house forbidden to him and looked towards the front= the first bench, which was reserved only for ministers. A A wild screaming erupted. It surpassed even what had been heard before in terms of intensity The scenes from the previous Friday. Sir Robert was immediately Inglis, the veteran in the fight against the Jews, as Wolf called him") named, jumped up and tried to speak. To= First the noise prevented him, and then the clear light, the riot the president's overpowering voice. As a little peace and quiet... Having stepped forward, he urged Solomon's Jew to immediately He was eager to leave the meeting room. He had barely finished when a new, indescribable tumult, mixed with the word

1) Wolf: Essaus, p. 382.

72

"Out!" he shouted. Solomon, however, made no attempt to leave his seat

During the incessant noise of the members of parliament, The Minister-President was sitting very comfortably. Apparently, he intended to

He tried to speak to him, but all efforts were in vain. They let him
He was not allowed to speak.

The MP C. Amstey was seen by the President as a Hand him the document and talk to him. Only after a longer time Over time, the president managed to restore some semblance of calm.
to produce. First, he informed him that the Member of Parliament had informed him Amsterdam had submitted a request. The processing of the same However, he refused. First, things needed to be put in order-to be dealt with.

Now Lord John Russell rose again from his seat, but this time too his attempt was thwarted by the fact that it was again in full Strength, revived cry, doomed to failure from the outset.
He judged. Resigned, he took his seat again. Still.
Solomon sat quietly in his seat, although he was somewhat anxious.
looked into the excited faces of his opponents, whose shouts
"Get out!" echoed in his ears.

Finally, the venerable man, who had been completely beside himself, rose.
President, who certainly would never have done something like that in the English Parliame would have thought it possible. With energetic hand movements, he tried he wanted to find some peace and quiet. After some time he succeeded, and He asked for the assistance of the House and the government, Solomon's.
to be thrown out. Cheers and other gestures of support.
The mood was perceived.

Lord John Russell rose again, and this time he was able to to finally prevail after a long time. Apparently, he had...
Meanwhile, the situation has become embarrassing, and to the point of...
To everyone's astonishment, he personally made the request "that Councillor Solomon should now withdraw." Cheers erupted.
to the anti-Semites!

Sir Robert Inglis jumped up and supported the motion.
Surely it was the first time that these two opponents had met in the Jewish question.

But just as quickly, from the other side of the house came the Motion by MP Osborne, Solomon's Ordinary to recognize appropriate authorization and to allow him to take his to grant him a seat. His request was approved by Mr. Amsterdam.
Words. New noise began and under constant under
The latter attempted to justify his position through his arguments.
Meanwhile, the president had great difficulty keeping strangers safe.
Many Jews among them – who were in the privileged part of the house
They tried to break in, to have them thrown out. It was a Utter confusion.

Finally, MP Amsterdam ended his fine remarks. and initially requested a postponement. Solomon was still sitting on fine place. They proceeded to the vote on the motion from Amsterdam, which was rejected by an overwhelming majority

To the great dismay and displeasure of the vast majority Part of the house had to be determined to show that Solomon's an- had possessed the measure to vote. This was due to two- There were several reasons against the established order. Once upon a time... He had just been made aware by the President that he had no right whatsoever to sit in the house, let alone to leave= votes. Secondly, members of parliament never participated in Decisions in their own affairs.

The noise, however, continued almost without interruption. Also The spectators participated to an unprecedented degree. The president therefore had officials clear the galleries.

He wanted to decide on Osborne's application as quickly as possible, after which Solomon had rightfully taken his seat, from= to have his proposal voted on. His proposal was opposed by a member of parliament. interrupted, as he was about to elaborate. Noisier Opposition arose from the majority of the members of parliament. Action! Objectively speaking, a vote should not take place for a long time yet. Much= There were even more long-winded speeches accompanied by continuous shouting. held. As has often been the case, the pros and cons of the reasons were discussed. The admission of Jews was discussed. It really only deserves... a remark by MP Bright mentioning that Queen Victoria also urgently requested that the matter be resolved. longed for the favor of the Jews.

Finally, the vote on the application was approaching. Un= Immediately before that, Solomon, who was still in the room found, to be communicated by Representative JA Smith, that he had done this= to leave the room during the upcoming vote would, however, every decision for the subsequent events= Nisse reserved. After the announcement of this decision Solomon stood up and bowed to the president. and left the meeting room. By a significant majority Osborne's application was rejected.

The vote had barely ended when Solomon's under the Protest shouts from his opponents in the house could be heard, and his former... took a seat on the ministerial bench.

MP Amstey again submitted the motion for a report. conference. To everyone's surprise, Lord John disagreed. Russell spoke most energetically. Suddenly Solomon himself spoke up. to the word. A tremendous scream began, and only after For a considerable time, Solomon's voice was able to penetrate the crowd.

Over and over again, people shouted "Out!" at him. Eventually, it became possible to understand bits and pieces of his speech, and He was heard explaining that his stance was not based on disrespect towards the president can be attributed to fet, Rather, he only wanted to protect his rights through his behavior. to defend himself, to which he believed he was entitled.

74

Further motions from other MPs followed. The vote showed that the majority rejected Amsterdam's motion to adjourn rejected. Immediately afterwards, the president had the already vote on Lord John Nussel's earlier motion, according to which Solomon had to leave the meeting room. An overwhelming A majority was found in favor.

Solomon, in turn, had not hesitated to use both occasions- to cast his vote.

The President then reiterated, "that the honor- Dear Member for Greenwich, the decision of the House belongs have and he now expresses the hope that Solomon's "Finally, be ready to obey."

"Councillor Solomon," as it literally says in the parliamentary records. Reading the reports, "remained firmly in his seat. The prefect- Dent then ordered the Sergeant of Arms – the duty officer Watchman – to lead Solomon behind the barrier.

The Sergeant of Arms then placed his hand on the "Solomon's shoulder and led him behind the barrier."

Solomon's Jew has let it get so far that He was forcibly removed – only a Jew could have done such a thing Maintain a stance throughout the entire duration of the negotiation! The meeting, which lasted late into the night, then concluded, among other things, with in response to a question from a member of parliament as to whether the government finally inclined to bring charges against Solomon. The The Prime Minister replied: "In my view, the honorable member for Greenwich, in case there is a judicial matter Desiring to pursue the matter, a private individual should be found. which initiates a corresponding procedure." So once again a clear refusal of public prosecution.

Because of the late hour, they agreed to postpone the question. to postpone until tomorrow's meeting at 5 a.m.

The next day, July 22nd, things got quite lively again- The entire incident was discussed in detail until the night fell. Solomon was also present – but this time he was sitting on the front bench of the gallery, which is usually occupied by the peers was taken.

After much back and forth, it was postponed again

Negotiations resumed on July 28th.

At the start of the meeting, the president read a letter from Solomon's of July 25th. In it, the latter stated that already two lawsuits against him for his conduct in parliament They were strained. Then they proceeded with the petition. to be employed by Greenwich on July 25th. According to this, the Voters of this place are granted the favor of being elected by a Lawyers have the right to prove their rights before parliament, that They could elect whomever they wanted as their representative. At the same time, a request from some of the voters of the City was submitted, to allow Rothschild to take his seat and at the

75

also consult a recognized lawyer in these matters
As you can see, the cooperation between the two Jewish
The selection of electoral districts went exceptionally well.

The two applications were handled differently. There was no consideration of...
However, the wishes expressed therein were met with fierce musical resistance.
The debates were rejected by a large majority. Also, an appeal...
The amendment to the Oath of Abjuration was passed by a majority Rejected by 38 votes. The original motion, Solomon's fet before the coronation-like taking of the oath of abjuration not entitled to take up his seat, was elected with 123.
68 votes accepted.

Every reader will agree that this is the most persistent one to date.
and had been the longest attack by the Jews.

Solomon's participation in the meetings should prove even more valuable to him.
a legal aftermath. There was a law based on the Reign of King George I, after which significant penalties were imposed for such violations were established. Thus, the person who who violated this law, for every instance of contravention= He was ordered to pay a fine of £500. Furthermore, he was granted, among other things, the agreed to be the guardian of minors, so that he
He could not legally represent his own children. Except=
He was unable to obtain any legal protection against property rights.
to claim injuries, nor had he been involved in the removal of assets, the right to sue for the return of the stolen Objects. Finally, he was unable to hold office. and to participate in elections. A person convicted by a final judgment stood so much worse than in today's times, if someone

Civil rights have been revoked. The consequences for Solomon's were therefore extraordinary in the event of a conviction= very difficult.

Since the government, for reasons not publicly disclosed, did not initiate proceedings against Solomon under this law
Two private individuals filed separate lawsuits against the court.
These and requested the application of the law. One of the complaints.
was returned – probably with the agreement of the parties.
taken. The second, however, was taken under the heading Miller.
a case against Solomon is pending before the Treasury Court.

The first trial took place on December 9, 1851.
The judges consisted of both professional and lay judges. After a short time During the negotiations, it was decided to resolve the matter in light of the
The importance of submitting the question to the plenary for a decision.

The trial took place on January 26th and 28th, 1852.
Salomon had no fewer than three baristas for fine bar-
A defense was called. Among them was also his race.
Comrade Augustus Goldsmid. During the course of the trial, the
The plaintiff, in agreement with the defendant, alleged two cases of Violations are recorded and the hearing was – allegedly –

76

to simplify the procedure – limited to one case only. |

Solomon defended himself in particular by claiming that, according to his
In view, he had been authorized to speak during the debate in to hold the meeting room and even vote, since he had taken the oaths, insofar as its essential components were relevant, performed would have. The closing words "in the faithful faith of a Christian" are not an essential part of the oath, and it is therefore It is irrelevant whether he omitted these words or not. Except= the fet da8 law concerning the oath of abjuration no longer applies in force. Finally, it was granted to him by a special law from the year In 1838, it was permitted to take the oath in the form he had given it.
to afford. N

The public took a significant interest in the negotiations.
Share. To everyone's surprise, after a lengthy discussion... actions contrary to English practice not immediately after Conclusion of the session or the verdict on the following day= not announces, but the chairman announced that in view of the
The size and difficulty of the issue in dispute make it "for the court"

"It is necessary to take time with the legal process."
The date of the announcement will be announced later).

However, one should expect to wait quite a long time for the verdict.
It was only announced on April 19th, and to their disadvantage.
Solomon's. After that, he was not only fined by not only were they fined £500,-, but at the same time the above also appeared a severe penalties, such as not holding public office etc., one. u

Solomon appealed this verdict, which was in Tried in 1853 before the Court of Exchequer Chamber
The appeal was unanimously dismissed as unfounded.
explained, thereby upholding the judgment of the first instance.
The then Chief Justice, Lord Campbell, pronounced
A friend of Jews had chaired the meeting. He, too, had not
